

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers. It is the duty of an editorial writer to write all articles before he sits down to write. From this basis the writer should be able to give a clear picture of important topics.

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you may gain. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

Championship Caliber

What a welcoming committee! The string of cars escorting the Wayne High state baseball champions into town last week kept growing and growing south of town until it was over a mile long. The people who took part in welcoming the Wayne team home after knocking off two teams at state to win the Class B crown are to be commended for their enthusiasm and spirit. They realize that not just any team can compete in district and state tournaments and come out with top laurels. It takes a championship caliber team to do that, and they are hard to come by.

A state championship in any sport should give the people in Wayne — not just the people at Wayne High — a good dose of old-fashioned pride. It should emphasize that Wayne has some fine young people, some young people who are willing to work hard enough at something — in this case, baseball — in order to come out on top. The Wayne Herald would like to extend its congratulations to the team which brought home that dose of pride for the rest of the town to take advantage of. We would also like to extend our congratulations to the other people who make such a winning team possible — all the way from the student managers, and the players who ride the bench to the taxpayers who make the school programs possible. Somewhere in that span is about everybody who has a hand in producing the winning teams in all sports which have come out of Wayne High. — NLH.

Loaded Words

No one needs brief us on the impact of three words put together like, "I love you." It doesn't make any difference who you are, even if you might possibly be the world's worst old crab, those three words mean at least because a human desire is to be wanted and loved. Next of kin to those words are two others, "Thank you." Is there a living soul who doesn't want to be appreciated? However, as few times as we hear "thank you" any more, one wonders if maybe we have forgotten, not only how to be polite, but to be appreciative.

It appears to this old grooch that, instead of rising, bombing, cursing the police and causing a general disturbance, there are a lot of the disident campus youths who should be saying such things as, "Thank you, Mr. Taxpayer, for building such a beautiful campus, multi-million dollar buildings in which I may pursue an education, and thank you for dedicated teachers who are willing to put up with me." Many students are, of course, thankful, but too many, though a minority, are ungrateful bigots. (The rights, dear, you started the same calling and some of us over 30 aren't exactly amateurs at it either. How does it taste?) This old-fashioned foggy believes it wouldn't hurt any of us to remember to say "thank you" to some people for just simply being what they are. A few weeks ago during a downpour and electrical storm, men from the city light department were called out to take care of two power lines that had been snapped by the storm. One was at 10th and Window was snapping, popping and burning on the ground, a real recipe for disaster. These guys got into their truck and arrived on the scene, went to work and had the situation well in hand in a few minutes. It was an unpleasant job but they did it anyway. Members of the fire department were there and so were members of the police department — all of them working in the rain. Did anyone say "thank you?" As newsmen, we are often on a scene where public servants are willing to go beyond the call of duty. They go right ahead and do it — not for a thank you — but because they were thoughtful in responding to human need. You have missed something if you haven't observed our law enforcement officers, doctors, nurses, telephone personnel, utilities people, service station operators, teachers and ministers go beyond the call of duty. Why not surprise them sometime and give them a big "thank you" for jobs well done. Those two words are loaded, so be careful when you aim them toward someone. — MMW.

Careful, Children Ahead!

No sane motorist would intentionally run over a child, large or small, at any time, but it can and does happen accidentally. A word of caution to all motorists is being given this week at many local and area churches start Vacation Bible School classes. Youngsters of every age will be walking to church school, crossing dangerous intersections, and some of them will be riding bicycles. Children are not as cautious as they should be in that they do not always understand how easy it is for a motorist to be looking at something else other than where he or she is going. Parents are encouraged to hold a briefing session with their children and remind them of safety rules for pedestrians. Several hundred boys and girls will be in vacation schools starting today (Monday) and to lose even one would be a real tragedy. Motorists are reminded that not every child on a bicycle is experienced rider of the shiny wheels. Youthful bicycle riders may react in various ways if scared by a lead horn immediately behind them, or if caught in a frightening traffic situation. In fact, there will be lots of children on the streets, not only this week of church school, but every week this summer as they go in their way to swimming lessons, music lessons, to parks, to baseball practice, and just out riding or walking. Most drivers are aware that a bicycle or motorcycle is not as easily seen as is another automobile, but nevertheless, each carries at least one life. So the word for summer driving anywhere at anytime is — take it easy. Don't become easily exasperated by youths on bicycles and motorcycles who do not conform to traffic rules in perfect manner, for after all, as a driver, most all of us have, at one time or another, pulled some real genuine goats. Let's drive with the professional touch which helps prohibit a goof from becoming a disastrous accident. Drive with care. Can it be said too often? — MMW.

When are they going to legalize Pot?

A lot of people these days are going around saying it's only a matter of months until Acapulco Gold is available over the counter in menthol and long-stem lengths. Which is an indication of how little people know about marijuana. The real fact of the matter is that marijuana is a drug. Like all drugs, it affects the human body and the human brain. Like all drugs, it has side effects. Today, research scientists are studying marijuana's effects on the brain, the nervous system, on chromosomes, and on various organs of the body. They're trying to find out why different people have different reactions to it. They're studying its effects when smoked in two cigarettes, and they're trying to find out what happens with long term use. Maybe it will turn out that there's no reason for it to be illegal. But nobody can be sure until all the facts are in. And until they are, it's a pretty bad risk. By Merlin Wright

Now that your youngsters are out of school for the summer, you will surely be asked by a teenage daughter or son, "What can we do?" or "Where can we go?" While considering high school students who ask those questions, a judge by the name of Phillip Gilliam wrote an item which has been appearing in newspapers throughout the country. Herb Frevert of Wayne cut it out of a paper not long ago and is sharing it here. "Many high school boys and girls cry, 'What can we do?' — 'Where can we go?' 'Go home!' the judge says. 'Hang the storm windows, paint the woodwork. Rake the leaves, mow the lawn, scrub the floors. Wash the car, learn to cook, scrub the floors. Repair the sink, build a boat, get a job. Help the minister, priest or rabbi. Visit the sick, help the poor, study your lessons. And when you are through — and not too tired — read a good book.' 'Your parents do not owe you entertainment. Your city or village does not owe you recreational facilities. The world does not owe you a living. You owe the world something. 'In plain, simple words, grow up, quit being a cry-baby, get out of your dream world, and develop a backbone, not a wishbone, and start acting like a man or a lady. You're supposed to be mature enough to accept some responsibility your parents have carried for years. They have nursed, protected, helped, appealed, begged, excused, tolerated and denied themselves many things so that you could have every benefit. 'This they have done gladly, for you are their dearest treasure. — But now, you have no right to expect them to bow to every whim and fancy just because selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality, thinking and requests. In Heaven's name, grow up and go home.' At one time the man of the house could earn enough money to pay monthly bills, then, due to increased costs, mom had to go to work too. Now the kids have to work it seems in order to make ends meet. The stock market is down and has frightened a few people, particularly back east in New York where fortunes can be lost easily by dabbling in stocks and bondes. It was fun being downtown Wayne Tuesday night when the baseball champs were ushered back into the city via a caravan of vehicles. Horns were locking in sound, cheers pierced the night air, and everyone was happy the state Class B champs were home with their victory and trophy. Were you in on any of the fanfare and fun? That is the kind of demonstration a community should really get out and support. There is no better feeling than being a champion. Third graders are clever little people. They are champs too. One boy recently returned home from a dental checkup and told his father, 'The dentist says my six-year morals are just fine.' Paul Rogge of Wayne handed J. W. an essay written by a third grade boy on the subject of what a grandmother is. (We appreciate all these items you folks share with us.) The third grader wrote: 'A grandmother is a lady who has no children of her own, so she likes other people's little girls. A grandfather is a man grandmother. He goes for walks with the boys and they talk about fishing and tractors and like that. 'Grandmas don't have to do anything except be there. They're old so they shouldn't play hard or run. It is enough if they drive us to the market where the pretzel horse is and have lots of dimes ready. Or if they take us for walks, they should slow-down-past things-like pretty leaves or caterpillars. They should never say 'hurry up.' 'Usually they are fat, but not too fat to the kid's shoes. They wear glasses and funny underwear. They can take their teeth and gums off. 'It is better if they don't typewrite, or play cards except with us. They don't have to be smart, only answer questions like why dogs hate cats and how come God isn't married. They don't talk like talk like the other old people. It is hard to understand. When they read to us they don't skip, or mind if it is the same story again. 'Everybody should try to have one, especially if they don't have television, because grandmas are the only grownups who have got time. 'They'd make anybody feel good.' — — — — — If you have ever had the experience of moving from one house to another you know what it is to sort, pack, throw away, clean, box, sort more and more and then go to the throw-away pile and rescue something you didn't intend to throw away. All! What fun! J. W. decided to relocate from the city to the farm and has been in the process of moving a little for about five days. What really sold me on moving was the lack of noise out there at the edge of town. It is just about as quiet as a turkey farm. Thanksgiving afternoon. That's quiet and that's nice. — — — — — Did you ever live on a farm? Moving into the country will be just like going home again for yours truly, as it was on a farm in southwest Iowa, near the old muddy Missouri River, where my parents became my parents. After one has been born and reared in the open country it is difficult to find anything better. Oh, it's true, we didn't have running water (and not a pump when you applied a little muscle to the handle) and we didn't have all of the conveniences that electrically runs nowadays, but we were busy making tremendous memories. Is there anything like standing on a hilltop on a good clear night and watching the myriad of stars in constellations overhead? Years ago, those of us on the farm used to burn corn stalks which were in piles scattered across a field. Some nights you could look out across the countryside and see such fires 10 miles away. — — — — — There is a sneaking suspicion which lurks in my mind every once in a while that one of these days we're going to be seeing the concrete cave dwellers come out of the cities and head back to the hills. Just think about it, would you prefer living in Washington, D. C. with all its social problems, or would you prefer living out here in the west where there are rolling prairies, good streams, trees, parks, birds and a lot of natural wildlife? — — — — — Nebraskaans can get into their cars most any time and go for a short drive during which they may see a cock pheasant at the edge of the road, a multi-colored sunset, cattle by the hundred, horses behind a white fence, and lots of friendly neighbors. You can't buy that kind of environment in a city. It wouldn't be a bit surprising if the day will come when the real dad in mid-America will once again be country-living. As the world closes in on us via television, telephone, and houses a few feet apart, there seems to be a tendency of wanting to get away from everybody and everything. This leads to a lot of summer camping for some families while others move to or build outside of town. The trend will be an interesting one to watch. — — — — — Wayne has another source of entertainment which opened Saturday out east of town. Penway Golf, Inc. has the facilities for miniature golf, a lighted driving range and a merry-go-round. If you and your family are looking for entertainment these summer days, come to Wayne. There are three theaters (two indoor, one drive-in), municipal swimming pool, 18-hole golf course, bowling facilities; flying the municipal airport; horseback riding in a saddle club; ball games; fishing nearby; picnic in the park, and until the final show Wednesday evening your family was offered free celestial shows in the new planetarium at Wayne State College. It will not be open again 'till next fall. If unable to be very active physically, perhaps you would enjoy reading some of the new books at the public library or listening to some of the records there which can be checked out like books. It isn't hard to find something enjoyable

Watching color television for Norma Smith is going to be especially enjoyable for her. Reason: she won a portable color TV during the Golden Pin Bowling Tournament at Minneapolis recently. She bowled a 985 series in the competition, placing her fifth in her bracket. — — — — — A dance at the Legion Hall in Emerson will follow the Emerson-Hubbard alumni banquet this coming Saturday. The banquet is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at the high school auditorium. — — — — — Delno Davis, just finishing four years as head of the Crofton school system, has been hired as superintendent at Tilden. He has 27 years of teaching experience, 12 of them as superintendent. — — — — — Six Spanish students from Pender — Karen Merry, Suzi Wingert, Sue Callahan, Nancy Stuckenschmidt, Conita Tranter, and John Biles — left by bus early this week for a two-week trip to Mexico. Accompanying the young people are Mrs. Sherry Winters, Spanish teacher, and Mrs. Marilyn Jones of Wayne. The trip ends June 14 when the group arrives by plane in Omaha. The group will stay with a Mexican family while in Mexico City, but will stay in hotels while in Taxco, Acapulco and Oaxaca. Besides shopping, the students will visit churches, art galleries, museums, parks, monuments and archeological ruins. The trip will enable the students to use their Spanish in ordinary situations. — — — — — Senator Roman Hruska addressed the 48 graduating seniors at Randolph High during the school's commencement exercises last week. Valdeletorian at the school was William Reed; salutatorian was Kay Eberhart. — — — — — It's been a long dry spell, but the efforts of Coleridge's Dave Fox and Ed Kalin at the state track meet finally ended the drought. The two tracksters scored the first state track meet points for Coleridge High since 1942 when Clas Stetten won the mile race. Fox began the action the first day of the meet when he qualified in the preliminary heat, then finished sixth in the finals the next day. Kalin tied for fifth in the pole vault by clearing 12 feet, a new school record. — — — — — O'Neil "Miles" Miles, a 1969 graduate of South Sioux High School, was wounded in an ambush in Quang Nam Province in Viet Nam recently. He sustained shrapnel wounds in the area of the chest, abdomen, legs and feet. He is hospitalized in Japan and will be moved to the United States when his condition permits. — — — — — From the Oakland Independent and Republican's "Thought of the Week" column: "One can be an American only so long as his heart beats American; he departs from Americanism the minute his heart roams abroad." — — — — — "There're certainly doing a lousy job," commented a certain as he watched South Sioux City firemen lazily play streams of water on a blazing home recently. "They're going to lose it," he finally gumbled. Henry Trysla, editor of the South Sioux City Star, mentioned those remarks in his column "Over the Editor's Desk" last Thursday. He noted that he didn't have the nerve to inform the commentator that the firemen had ignited the house to get rid of it. — — — — — to do, so come to Wayne. — — — — — Say, you could sure be a big help to us and your man in the service by sending us a news item about him, his base, rank, promotion, or new address. There are at least 100 young men from the immediate area in the military services and we'd like to have news about them in every issue of the Monday paper in the servicemen's column. We like pictures too, but if the picture is a colored one, it must have excellent contrast and quality. Black and white pictures are preferred. If you have nothing but a colored print of him, however, we'll do our best to use it but the results are often disappointing. Why not jot down the information, include the picture if you have one, and either bring it in or mail it to us today? We'll appreciate it and so will we. Your pictures will be returned or may be picked up at the counter. Don't forget!

'Now Watch the Pheasants Flourish'

Birds, animals and taxpayers will benefit under a new right-of-way mowing program established recently by the Nebraska Department of Roads. In addition, the state's nationally recognized Acres for Wildlife Program will get a 100,000 acre boost.

Mowing on most rural highways, including approximately 400 miles of rural interstate, will be limited to 15 feet from each shoulder except in hazardous areas. Highway maintenance engineers say that approximately 91,000 acres of rural land primary right-of-way and about 9,000 acres of rural interstate right-of-way will revert to undisturbed natural cover under the new plan.

Nebraska's Acres for Wildlife Program is a statewide effort to preserve habitat and help stem the wildlife decline that saw Nebraska's right-tailed pheasants slide from 18,000 birds in 1945 to 3,000,000 in 1969 largely because of habitat change or destruction.

The program encourages landowners, sportsmen and youth groups and others to "adopt" and develop an acre or more into suitable year-round habitat for wildlife. In some cases this is simply letting the land revert to natural vegetation; however, plantings of shrubs and trees or seeding of suitable grasses are often recommended to improve existing conditions.

The two-year-old project is the brainchild of Nebraska Game and Parks Commissioner Dr. Bruce C. Cowgill of Silver Creek. Approximately 1,000 acres have been enrolled and certified thus far. Participants are recognized through shoulder patches and certificates. Colorado, Oklahoma and Texas are studying the Nebraska program and may start their own.

Director-State Engineer Marvin L. Nuernberger endorsed the Acres for Wildlife Program and pledged Department of Roads cooperation. He described the new mowing policy as evidence of the Department's continuing desire to cooperate with conservationists and ecologists.

"This is just one example of how a roads department can meet the needs of the traveling public and still preserve and protect the environment," he said.

Nuernberger emphasized that traffic safety is not compromised by the new mowing policy.

"We are not in any way evading our basic responsibility to make Nebraska's highways as safe and efficient as humanly possible. However, we've realized for some time that total mowing of right of ways does not materially help the driver or contribute to overall traffic safety. Total mowing was more of a tradition than a necessity," he said.

Game Commissioner Director Willard R. Barbee praised the Department's action and described it as a milestone in the "work-together" attitude that must be accepted and followed if human demands and earth's capabilities are to be compatible.

"The Department's action is highly commendable and one that should be studied and adapted by other states. This should help still the unwarranted but often-voiced contentions by armchair critics that road men have no regard for environmental preservation," he said.

Preservation of wildlife habitat is but one benefit from the new mowing policy. Highway developers cite two other side gains. One is the crowding out by native grasses of noxious weeds, always a costly and perplexing highway maintenance problem in this highly agriculturalized state.

The other is aesthetics. Once the native flora is well established, travelers will, to some extent, have an opportunity to see the Great Plains as their ancestors saw them, "a grassland of all-season beauty."

Wayne BB Team Asking for Help

Letters requesting donations to help the Wayne town baseball club purchase uniforms and bats were sent out to business firms in Carroll, Winside and Wayne last week.

Mailing out the letters were members of the Wayne Baseball Association, the group which handles town team baseball in Wayne.

The group is asking for money donations in order to help this year's club make a better showing in the newly expanded Tri-County League.

The league, composed of 10 teams from Northeast Nebraska, is more amateur than the Northeast Nebraska League Wayne belonged to last year. By joining it, the group hopes to attract larger crowds to the games because of the more local talent on the diamond. The larger crowds would give the team a chance at operating in the "black" for the first time in many years, the letter pointed out.

Members of the Tri-County League are Wayne, Wakefield, Ponca, Laurel, Randolph, Orchard, Coleridge, Wausa, Bloomfield and Verdigris.

The group decided to contact the businesses in Winside and Carroll for donations because the Wayne team will probably include players from those towns. League rules state that players have to live within 15 miles of the town they are playing for.

Donations to the team may be sent to Ted Babe at the State National Bank in Wayne.

Latin American Tour Planned by Watson

John Watson, son of former Wayne area residents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Watson, is among a group of University of Nebraska students and faculty who will spend two weeks touring Guatemala and Colombia.

The tour, which will run from June 5-19, is being conducted to promote an appreciation within the students and faculty for foreign country training and employment and inform them of agriculture and home economics conditions in Latin America and Colombia, according to NU staff member, Dr. Don Edwards, a coordinator of the trip.

During the tour in Colombia, the group will visit points of interest relative to the University of Nebraska Mission.

The NU Mission, through the use of resident instruction, research and development, is attempting to help Colombia solve its agricultural problems, Edwards said. It came about as a part of the Institute of Colombian Agriculture which was designed to carry out agricultural research in Colombia.

Edwards commented that "the tour provides all the memories that go with traveling over 7,000 miles to foreign countries, as well as a chance to actually view the agricultural and home economics life in these countries."

Why is Gillette the only dairy in Nebraska qualified to carry the Quality Chekd label?

Extras earned it for Gillette. Extra care. Extra effort. Extra quality. You see, the Quality Chekd people are as particular as their name implies. They are an international group of more than 100 independent dairies dedicated to extra quality. And they look for the same dedication in new members. Like Gillette. Gillette has been producing extra quality dairy products for 50 years. Testing. Re-testing. Constantly improving. To meet their own high standards over and above those of the government. The dairy thus earned the right to take the final tests given by the Quality Chekd Dairy Products Association: 38 extra "special exams" for everything from cows to cartons. Gillette passed with honors. They'll be undergoing the same tests periodically. And submitting samples regularly to the Quality Chekd testing laboratories. To insure extra quality.

Meeting for the last regular time before the new council members and new mayor take over, the council agreed to leave the car lot on the west edge of the city as is until the owner, Roy Corvill, has a chance to attempt to get the area rezoned from A-1 (agriculture) to B-1 (highway business).

At the last meeting the council decided to start proceedings to have the lot rezoned since it is in violation of zoning regulations. Corvill will now take his request for rezoning to the planning commission. It could take 60 days before that request gets back to the council for a final decision.

In other action the council: Closed Connable Street, the last street south in Roosevelt Park in south Wayne. The request for it to be closed but not vacated came from Wayne Refuse. The business plans on building a garage in the area. Annexed into the city about three acres of land in southeast Wayne which for some time have been an island within the city limits. The land, south of the railroad right of way, north of Fairground Avenue and just west of the sewer lagoon, belongs to Elnung Concrete, Feeders Elevator and Golden Eggs.

Monday Services At Denver, Colo. For W. H. Rees, 79

Funeral services for W. H. Rees, 79, Denver, were to have been held today (Monday) at Denver, Colo. Mr. Rees died May 27, 1970 at a hospital at Cor-

Wayne was originally in use in Minneapolis prior to being purchased by the Wayne Community Kidney Aid Non-Profit Corporation. It was moved from Minneapolis to Sioux City where it was set up at St. Vincent's Hospital and checked out for operation as well as allowing Mrs. Miron Jannoss, a registered nurse who will operate the equipment in Wayne, to become familiar with the particular unit.

Pete Haberer was in Sioux City Thursday on the machine all day following the treatment, he and the machine, along with the local men going after the equipment, all returned to Wayne.

Mr. Herb Burt

took the Council that he was happy with the new parking restrictions recently passed and wants everything he can do to make the "no parking" signs to remain.

Mr. Robert Vajro addressed the Council regarding the use of land just west of the City limits as a car lot. Mr. Vajro objected to land used as a car lot being used for anything other than a car lot. He stated that the zoning officer was the owner of the property and that the violation and request owner should be made. The name should not be removed.

Mr. Vajro also stated that most contractors were complaining with the ordinance in place allowing a lot of time for construction of new residences. Contractors have been informed of the violation and the request owner should be made. The name should not be removed.

Time Has a Way

By Mecljn Wright

Aged by wind and weather, a Wayne County one-room school house creaked slightly as it came to life once again for a final time May 17. Real live human beings poured through wide doors, swung open on rusty hinges.

Barren of open textbooks, laughing children and ringing bells for two years, District 65 school appeared to be gaunt, well used — and just tired. Fading paint and broken window panes spoke of a lonely vigil on a hill-top waiting for curious children to come inside and touch pages of knowledge — but they had not returned.

There is a sound within her now that the old school had never before heard — the cry of an auctioneer. Surrounding him is a sea of inquiring faces. Many came to purchase an object that will be kept as a souvenir of bygone days. Others came out of curiosity. Whatever the reason for being present, the crowd livens up the building on the inside with idle chatter while outside Old Sol creeps across the yard, climbs up the wall and falls into the auction through a shattered pane of glass.

Giggling youngsters have a final romp on playground equipment which will also go to the highest bidder. Their laughter is a musical dialogue in the background as the auctioneer begins his chant.

Small items are the first to go under the hammer, and then folding chairs, a flag and some pictures. A small phonograph, books and maps are being readied for sale when all of a sudden eyes are riveted on that which is held in the crier's hand — the old classroom bell!

Is there any item in the school, except the teacher, having a more commanding voice? How often its tones brought pupils in from recess after an exciting ball game. The bell is about to be sold but every head is gray, for even after every bid its sound, someone will remember its clear tones on a sunny day.

Holding the tarnished bell in one hand while seeking out a bidder with the other, the auctioneer cries out for a top price. Will someone give two, and now three, now four, now five... Going-gone! Almost as if jubilant about being once more possessed and used, the hammer on the bell strikes up its voice while being handed from seller to buyer. After two years of silence its tones are surprisingly clear.

It takes a while to sell the teacher's desk, pupil's desks, piano and other myriad items, all of which at one time were used, each in its own way, to open the windows of learning in youthful minds. Soon they will be gone.

As the last item is sold, new owners are paying the clerk and departing with their possessions.

Now empty, the old school looks even more forlorn as we all drive away. It is just possible it was imagination, but starting down the road and glancing back, I could have sworn I heard an old bell tolling in the school, just as it had on so many occasions in yesteryears. Undoubtedly, it was some memory calling a final recess.

Army Specialist Four Dennis L. Loftis, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard F. Loftis, Laurel, recently received the Good Conduct Medal while assigned with the American Division near Duc Pho, Viet Nam.

Spec. Loftis received the award for exemplary conduct, efficiency and fidelity in active military service.

The specialist is a member of Troop E, 1st Cavalry of the division's 11th Infantry Brigade.

Army Private First Class Robert E. Woehler, 21, son of Mrs. Dorothy I. Reed, South Sioux City, is currently serving as an armored personnel carrier driver in support of the summer Reserve Officers' Training Corps (ROTC) summer camp at Ft. Sill, Okla. Pfc. Woehler and some 800 other men from the 2nd Battalion of the 2nd Armored Division's 41st Infantry from Ft. Hood, Texas, are aiding in the training of the ROTC cadets in such areas as weapons qualification, patrolling, reconnaissance missions, field tactics, chemical warfare and map reading.

This temporary duty assignment began in early May and will continue into July.

The private entered the Army in March, 1969 and has served in Viet Nam. He holds the Purple Heart.

His father, William F. Woehler lives in Wayne.

Because Togs are fond of fat and oily foods, and consider pig's liver a delicacy fit only for chiefs, one of the highest compliments a youth of the South Pacific Islands can pay a girl is to describe her as a "fat liver full of oil," National Geographic says.

Better Check, You May Not Owe Tax

Students working for the summer, retired persons and other part-time workers may be entitled to exemption from income tax withholding under the Tax Reform Act of 1969, said Richard P. Vinal, district director of Internal Revenue for Nebraska. Forms for claiming this exemption are available from local Internal Revenue Service offices.

Any employee who had no income tax liability last year and anticipates none for this year should use Withholding Exemption Certificate, Form W-4E to claim the exemption, said Vinal. For 1970, a single person who made less than $1,725 owes no tax. This is based on the $1,100 low income allowance and a personal exemption of $625. A taxpayer over 65 can earn wages up to $2,350 without incurring a tax liability, explained Vinal.

Anyone who qualifies can fill out the form and give it to his employer to claim exemption from income tax withholding on his wages.

Employers needing quantities of the new Form W-4E may obtain them from the Omaha district office.

Schedule A (Form W-4), revised to reflect the liberalized rules that were also provided in the Tax Reform Act of 1969 for claiming additional withholding exemptions based on large itemized deductions, are also available from local IRS offices.

Final regulations on the two provisions of the 1969 Act have not yet been issued. Vinal said both forms may require revision when regulations are issued.

What's Your Car Care I.Q.?

Who knows more about caring for the family car? Is it dad? Or maybe it's mom or the younger members of the family? Test your Car Care I.Q. with this quiz. You may want to take it separately to see who gets the highest score.

- When you step on the gas to pass another car and your engine begins to act balky, it's a sign that:
 - Your car is low on engine oil and should add some.
 - Your engine oil is not properly lubricated and needs to be checked.
 - You're having ignition trouble and need a tune-up.
 - Your axle is misaligned.
- It's a good idea to have your tires rotated:
 - Once a week.
 - Every six months.
 - Every year.
 - Just before trading the car.
- Blue smoke coming from the tail pipe is an indication that:
 - You are using gasoline of a too low an octane.
 - You're low on antifreeze and need a refill.
 - Your car is burning oil and engine damage is imminent.
 - You need a new tail pipe.
- Mufflers and the rest of the exhaust system should be replaced at the first sign of damage because:
 - There's a danger of death by carbon monoxide entering the passenger compartment.
 - It is required by your new car warranty.
 - The exhaust system has a definite link to your steering linkage.
 - Your car will not be as cool in warm weather.
- A squealing or scraping sound heard when applying the brakes can be a sign that:
 - Your brake pedal needs adjustment.
 - Your brake linings are dangerously worn.
 - Your braking system is wet.
 - Your emergency brake is on.
- All but the following can cause your cooling system to overheat:
 - A leak in the radiator or hoses.
 - Coolant level is low and not maintained.
 - Battery cable near the radiator is frayed or loose.
 - There is a leak in the pressure cap.
- Abnormally rough ride on bumpy terrain should indicate to you that:
 - Your shock absorbers and/or springs may need replacement.
 - Your tire treads are too thin.
 - Your car is long overdue for a tune up.
 - Your transmission needs immediate attention.
- After 5,000 miles of driving it's a good idea to have the following done to the spark plugs:
 - Have them cleaned and retapped.
 - Replace half of them.
 - Have them lubricated with No. 10 oil.
 - Have them checked with a hydrometer.

Head for the Grills

Some of the best . . . and most enjoyable meals you'll prepare during the summer months will be on your outdoor grill. Ideas and recipes for both conventional and rotisserie grilling are included here. Next step . . . turn Dad loose!

A Glance at the Grill

Lining the Fire Bowl
 Line fire bowl of your grill with heavy duty aluminum foil to make cleaning easier.

Fire Base
 Use a fire base to allow fire to breathe. Many Super Valu stores sell a commercial barbecue base. A 2 lb. bag is the correct amount for the average grill. The commercial base should be 2" to 3" deep. It should be replaced once or twice a season depending on how much the grill is used.

Starting Fire
 Start fire 30 to 45 min. before you're ready to cook to allow coals time to be ruddy and glowing, not flaming. A thin gray ash will cover coals. Some brands of briquets build up quite a layer of ash which they do not shed. If you have this kind, knock off the ashes from time to time, as too thick a layer reduces amount of heat.

Avoiding Flare-Ups
 Follow these rules to reduce flare-ups:
 1. Spread a single layer of lighted briquets evenly over the cooking area to be used, allowing about 1" space between.
 2. Cut most of fat from edge of steaks and chops before grilling.
 3. Very fatty meats such as ribs may be par-boiled in water before grilling.

ROTISSERIE RULES
How to Build Fire
 Build fire with briquets at back of firebox, not directly under roast. Be sure area covered by briquets extends a little beyond each end of roast. Have glowing briquets 3 deep and about 3 high. Lighted briquets need to be added from time to time during roasting period, so start them ahead of time in a separate container.

Check Balance on Spit
 Before attaching spit to rotisserie, rotate spit in palms of hands after roast is secured in place with holding forks, to check balance. If roast is not balanced, extra strain is put on motor, and meat will not roast evenly.

How to Make Drip Pan
 Place drip pan under roast. You can easily make one with heavy duty aluminum foil. Turn a 9x13" pan upside down and form foil to fit pan, being sure to crease corners.

Timing
 When cooking with coals, timing can only be approximate, since many things affect the heat.

GRILLED FAMILY STEAK with Beer Marinade

- Beer helps to tenderize steak . . . no beer taste
- 1 Family Steak, 1" to 1 1/2" thick (about 2 1/2 lbs.)
- 1 (12 oz.) Bottle Beer
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons salt

Cut excess fat from edge of steak (to avoid flare-ups), flesh remaining fat away back to prevent curling. Being careful not to cut into meat. Place steak in glass dish. Pour beer and oil over steak. Sprinkle liberally on both sides with garlic salt. Let stand several hours in refrigerator to marinate, turning several times. Remove from refrigerator 1 hour before grilling, and let stand at room temperature.

Grass grill with fat edge out from steak to keep steak from sticking. Use a long-handled fork for this. Grill 2" over hot coals.

	Medium	Well Done
1" thick steak	8-10 minutes	12 minutes
	total time	total time
1 1/2" thick steak	12-14 minutes	18 minutes
	total time	total time

Cut on diagonal with sharp knife across grain in thin slices. Serve 4. Super Tip: Grilling time charts are only approximate. Seasoning and basting affect cooking time.

BEEF KABOBS

Lean, tender, boneless cubes of beef on skewers. Sometimes beef is threaded on skewers by hand. Sometimes the tender beef cubes are alternated with good-sized chunks green pepper and zucchini, mushrooms, pre-cooked onions and potatoes. Cherry tomatoes may be stuck on the end of the skewers the last couple minutes of cooking.

- 2 lbs. tender boneless cubes of beef
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 1/2 cup honey
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 tablespoons chopped chive or spring onion tops
- 1 teaspoon MSG (Accent)

Put beef cubes in plastic bag. Mix rest of ingredients and pour over meat. Fasten bag securely and marinate in refrigerator several hours or overnight. Thread beef cubes on skewers. Grill 4" above hot coals, turning and basting frequently with marinade 12 to 15 min. Serve 4-6.
