dozen of the cookbooks. Those interested in getting a copy should contact the county agriculture agent's office at the courthouse.

Cookbooks Going Fast In 4-H Finance Drive

Four-H leaders and members in Wayne County and 39 other counties are "cooking up a fundraising project" to help finance expansion of the National 4-H Center in Washington, D. C. and also boost the Nebraska 4-H program.

The production and sale of a 4-H cookbook, which includes more than 600 recipes contributed by persons associated with the 4-H program and friends of 4-H, is one of several ways being used by Nebraska counties to raise funds.

Two Guests at Meeting Of Roving Gardeners

Guests at the Roving Gardeners Club meeting last Tuesday afternoon in the Mrs. George Biermann home were Mrs. Ios Albertson, who became a member, and Mrs. Ernest Greenwood. Seven members answered "off" with "favorite wild flowers."

Mrs. Val Dammie read "Reminiscences of the Storm" and Mrs. Virgil Chambers gave the lesson, "Poisonous Plants To Avoid." A donation was made to the Wayne kidney fund.

Mrs. Chambers will host the 2 p.m. meeting July 7.

Kitchen Shower Held In M. Beckner Home

A kitchen shower and breakfast to honor bride-elect Virginia Witt, were held Thursday morning in the home of Merle Beckner at Berry Hall. Hostesses were Mrs. Beckner, Mrs. Cella Assmusen, Mrs. Evelyn Hertel, Mrs. Glennis Lippert, Mrs. Ida Monson and Mrs. Roberta Welte, resident counselors at Wayne State College.

Other guests were the honoree, her mother, Mrs. Howard Witt, Linda Weber, Sioux Falls, S. D., Mrs. Lucille Sherry, Mrs. Vivienne Brady, and Mrs. Florence Pankrat.

Following the breakfast the bride was presented a treasure chest of kitchen gadgets with clues to help her guess the contents. Table appointments were in pink and white, chosen colors of the bride-elect.

Twenty-two at Guild Meet Tuesday Evening

Twenty-two members were present Tuesday evening for the meeting of St. Mary's Guild at the school hall.

Plans were made to operate a lunch stand at the Fourth of July horse show being held by Wayne Saddle Club at the Wayne County Fairgrounds. Instead of holding a July meeting, Guild members will meet at the fairgrounds at 7:30 July 28 to clean the fairstand for the fair. The group also discussed making articles for the bazaar to be held at the annual fall dinner Oct. 11.

Loren Boeckenhauer Circle Guest Speaker

Guest speaker at the First United Methodist W.C.S. Friendship Circle meeting Wednesday evening in the Mrs. Earl Becks home was Loren Boeckenhauer, who has served with the U. S. Armed Forces in Viet Nam, where he was wounded. Boeckenhauer explained what serving his country meant to him, and encouraged the group to write the servicemen, reminding them that they are respected for carrying out the policies of their country. Boeckenhauer's mother, Mrs. Robert Boeckenhauer, was in charge of the patriotic program, which included group singing and a book report, "To Believe in God," written by Father Joseph Pinturo and illustrated by his sister Corita Pinturo.

Mrs. Ivan Freese was co-hostess for the meeting. Seven mem-

Making Microscope Slides Demanding, Exacting

By Burns McCulloch

Few biology students peering at a prepared slide through a microscope think about the time and labor that goes into making that slide.

Kerry Voss and Karen Pedersen, biology students at Wayne State College, spent the first summer session preparing slides for microscope study. Together they made over 500 slides—a rather astonishing number considering that it takes two weeks of exacting labor to manufacture a single slide.

There is a big difference between a commercially prepared slide and one which beginning students make for classroom study. The beginner merely sandwiches an object between a slide and another thin piece of glass called a coverslip. The commercial slide, on the other hand, sells for 50 cents and is manufactured in a complex cycle, during which the smallest mistake at any point means destruction of that slide.

Kerry, a senior biology major from Council Bluffs, and Karen, an elementary teacher from Denmark studying microbiology, explain the cycle thus:

Karen Pedersen is blowing on a vial filled with paraffin so that the paraffin will harden at the same time instead of in layers. When the paraffin is hardened Karen will place the specimens on the "floor" that is created.

The Wayne (Nebr.) Herald, Monday, June 29, 1970

fixing the specimen. We cut the specimen into pieces and place them in a vial, twelve to a vial. The vial is filled with a formalin, acetic acid, and ethyl alcohol solution, FAA for short, which keeps the cells and tissues preserved as though still alive.

"We then aspirate the vial to remove any trapped air from the FAA. We do this by attaching the vial to a tube which is connected to the cold water faucet. The running water sucks the air from the vial. When the FAA stops bubbling in the vial, all of the air is removed.

"After an 18-hour wait we drain the FAA from the vial and replace it with a solution of 50 per cent tertiary butyl alcohol and 50 per cent water. The TBA replaces the water in the cells with alcohol. We aspirate this and set it aside for two hours.

"Then we drain the 50 per cent TBA solution and put in a 70 per cent TBA, aspirate the vial, again, and leave this overnight.

"The next morning we drain the vial again and then gradually increase the amount of TBA in the solutions at one hour intervals from 85 per cent to 95 per cent, and 100 per cent, aspirating between each change.

"Next the specimen is placed in a pure TBA solution and set aside for one hour. The difference between pure TBA and a 100 per cent solution is that the 100 per cent solution contains 5 per cent ethyl alcohol.

"We change the pure TBA solution three times, after one hour, after a second hour and then overnight, aspirating between each change.

"We put the specimen in a 50 per cent TBA and 50 per cent paraffin oil solution for one hour and then drain the vial.

"Now we take a vial of paraffin from the oven, where it is kept at 75 degrees centigrade so that it is in a liquid state. We blow into the paraffin to harden it. This is necessary since the paraffin would harden in layers if allowed to harden in the air. By blowing on the paraffin we harden it all at once and then we place our specimen on top of the paraffin and put the vial back in the oven overnight so that the specimens will gradually sink into the paraffin.

"Then we pour the melted paraffin into a paper boat and rearrange the specimens in the paraffin so that they do not stick together.

"We place the boat in ice water so that the paraffin will harden rapidly, blowing on top again so that layers won't form. We leave this overnight and then cut the paraffin into sections the next morning.

"Now we are ready to cut the sections of paraffin into strips and mount these on slides. This is the most crucial and exasperating phase in the entire cycle.

"To slice the specimens we use a cutting machine called a microtome. The blade on this is capable of cutting the specimens at a thickness of one 10,000th of a millimeter. The tricky part comes after we have cut the specimen because we have to make sure that there is no overlap of specimens since this destroys the worth of the slides.

"After we have a single layer of the specimen on a slide, we place the slide on a slide warmer to heat the section and get rid of any wax caused by the cutting process. Shaving anything naturally tends to make the shaved part waxy, but these sections are even more so with such a small thickness.

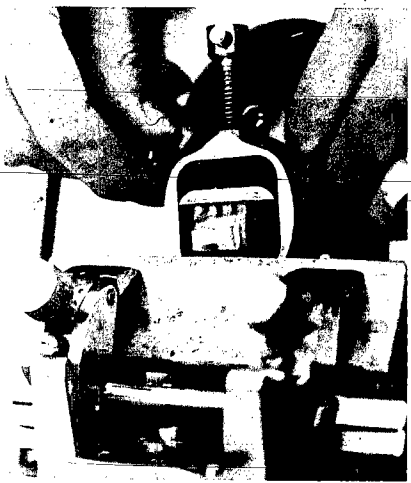

"With the specimen on the slide we immerse the slide in several xylol solutions, to remove the paraffin. When this is done we are ready to stain the slide.

"Staining is required for every slide since the stains make the walls and the individual parts of the cells stand out so that they can be examined easier. A different stain series is used for different types of cells.

"As an example of the staining process we shall stain a plant stem. We start with a safranin red stain for the walls of the cells, leaving the slides in this stain overnight. This stain and the rest of the chemicals used in the staining process are kept in coplin jars, which are partitioned off to hold five slides at one time.

"The next morning we wash the slide and then place it in a 95 per cent ethyl alcohol jar for one minute. Next we put on a fast green stain which is allowed to remain for 15 seconds. This is why it is called a fast green, then we clean the slide in a clove oil rinse by dipping the slide in this jar one or two times. Next we place the slide in a clove oil jar for two or three minutes.

A paraffin section containing a specimen is secured in a holder to await cutting on the microtome. The microtome, a precision cutting instrument, is equipped with a blade capable of cutting the specimen into strips one 10,000th of a millimeter thick.

These finished slides are ready for microscope examination. To prevent the specimens from moving on the slide the box of slides has to be stored on its side for one year.

"After this we put the slide in a 50 per cent xylol and 50 per cent ethyl alcohol solution for 30 seconds. This serves the two-fold purpose of drying and strengthening the cells while also cleaning the stain from the slide.

"The next step is to put the slide in a pure xylol solution for five minutes. We do this twice. After this we wipe off the underside of the slide. This is also a critical stage because it is difficult to tell whether we are cleaning the bottom of the slide or the top, thus wiping off the specimen.

"Next we put on the coverslip. To do this we put a few drops of Canadian balsam on the slide so that the coverslip will stick. Then we heat the coverslip over an alcohol lamp to remove any moisture and put it on the slide. Then we set the slide aside for one week. At the end of the week we clean off the excess balsam with a razor blade and wash any excess balsam off the xylol. The slide is now finished. It will have to be stored horizontally when not in use for one year because the sections might accumulate at one side of the slide if it were in a vertical position.

"Using these procedures you can make slides out of almost anything. We have made our slides mostly out of the leaf and stems of plants, pine needles, onion root tips and several rat tissues such as the lung, liver, brain, and thyroid gland."

Wayne's population currently is increased by 405 Danish students and teachers, but is faced by the same number of Nebraskans now in Denmark.

The Danes flew into Omaha Wednesday morning and arrived in Wayne by noon to begin the Scandinavia-Nebraska Summer Institute at Wayne State. The same jet plane that brought them left Omaha at 10:30 a.m. Thursday taking the Nebraskans, 78 of them WSC students and faculty—to Denmark for the Nebraska-Denmark Summer Institute. Others on the plane were Wayne area residents going to Europe as tourists.

Radtke Powders 2 Homers in Wayne Win

A good old-fashioned slugfest is the only way to describe Wayne's sound 18-7 mauling of Coleridge in Tri-County League play Thursday.

The win gives Wayne a 4-2 mark in league play and keeps the local squad in contention with the league leaders.

Good evidence to support that description of the Thursday contest: Doug Radtke's two home runs (back-to-back) no less and the eight singles Wayne posted off the Coleridge pitcher (the third) in the seventh frame.

Wayne 013 260 400 -- 18 21 4
Coleridge 002 010 022 -- 7 7 1

Every player except hapless second baseman Don Helgren chaffed up hits off the host pitchers. Leading the hitting foray were Mark Johnson with three singles and a double, fix with a triple and two singles and Gordie Jorgensen with three singles.

While the Wayne hitters were plastering those three Coleridge throwers, Wayne's Lynn Tomjack was giving up only seven hits. Two of those hits went for extra bases—Dale Lortz's homer in the third, sandwiched between Radtke's and Clarte Jorgensen's double.

Wayne scored one run in the first and three in the second (all on Radtke's homer) before allowing Coleridge to push two runs across home plate. Wayne rallied for two more in the fourth and six in the fifth to move into a 12-2 lead. The hosts scored one in the bottom of the fifth without benefit of a hit, but Wayne put eight runners across home in the seventh with eight singles to take a huge 18-3 edge. Coleridge scored twice each in the last two frames.

Leading Coleridge at the plate was Jordan, a Coleridge product who recently finished a coaching stint at Allen High. He doubled and singled in the game.

Wayne's Tomjack stitched together eight strikeouts in the game while walking four and hitting one. The three Coleridge hurlers—Meier, Keffner and Benson—managed to fan only five while walking four and nicking one.

Sunday night the Wayne team was scheduled to host Wausau. Thursday's contests: Wayne at Onawa in regular game, not the makeup for the game postponed because of rain, Wausau at Wakefield, Randolph at Bloomfield, Verdigré at Laurel, Ponca at Coleridge.

Game Dads Embark On 'Whistle's' Court

Game technicians of the Game and Parks Commission will be up bright and early the next week or two, listening for calls of qual for a survey to determine the level of the bobs' summer breeding population.

The number of bobwhites "whistles" heard along 80 routes in the state, each 19 miles long, will be noted and compared to figures compiled in previous years. Since the same routes are used each year, comparisons reflect upward or downward trends in the total quail population.

At the same time, the technicians will be making a survey of the cottontail population, noting the number and ages of bunnies sighted.

Beginning at sunrise, the technicians drive the prescribed routes, stopping every mile to listen for a specified length of time. Routes are covered only on clear, quiet days.

Winside Pee Wees, Girls-Fall at Pierce

Pierce posted a 12-6 win over the visiting Winside Pee Wees and a 16-3 win over the girls softball team in competition Thursday evening.

Pierce scored early in the Pee Wee contest, rapping off 12 hits off losing pitcher Bob Hoffman. The big blow for the winners was Luebe's grand slam. Hoffman played a dual role in the game, providing three hits—one of them a triple—in three at bats.

In the girls game, Winside's Mary Landanger and Jean Weible gave up 17 hits to Pierce. Winside came up with 11 hits, including two by Sally Landanger, two by Karmon Schellenberg and two by Mary Landanger. Winside scored one run in the first, one in the third and one in the sixth.

The Winside youths get another crack at the Pierce players this Thursday.

Winside Slates Budget Hearing

Winside Village board members have slated a hearing July 6 at 8 p.m. in the village clerk's office for the purpose of hearing support, opposition, criticism, suggestions or observations relating to a proposed budget.

The proposed budget for the period from August 1 through July 31, 1971 is $39,578. Of this amount $15,939 would be raised through taxation and the balance is covered by cash balance and revenues.

The village mill levy would remain at 23.6 mills or the same as it has been for the previous two years.

Proposed total expenditures in all funds for the ensuing year as estimated at $39,578, based on a tangible evaluation of $600,000.

Proposed departmental budgets are as follows: General operation, $13,378; streets, $15,000; auditorium, $2,500; amusement, $300; roads, $1,500; street lighting, $2,500; fire department, $2,000; Social Security, $800, and the library, $500.

Complete details of the proposed budget to be examined at the hearing may be found in the legal section of this issue of THE HERALD.

Esther Karlberg Funeral Services Held in Wakefield

Funeral services for Esther Karlberg, 66, Wakefield, were held Friday at Salem Lutheran Church, Wakefield, Mrs. Karlberg died Wednesday at the Wakefield Hospital following a week illness.

The Rev. R. V. Johnson officiated. Pallbearers were Wendell Schwarten, Earl Block, Chaney Agler, Wendell Isom, Vernon Anderson and Mary Karlberg. Pastor Glenn Lundahl, Omaha sang "Children of the Heavenly Father" and "My God and I," accompanied by Linda Anderson. Burial was in the Wakefield Cemetery.

Esther Genevieve Karlberg, daughter of Arthur and Esther Warner, was born June 14, 1904 at Allen. She was married to Oscar Karlberg Febr. 20, 1924 at Sioux City, Iowa. Mrs. Karlberg had spent 29 years in the Wakefield community and was a member of Salem Lutheran Church.

Survivors include two sons, Weldon of Wakefield, Donald of Omaha; one granddaughter; and one brother, George Warner of El Monte, Calif.

Young Keglers Compete

Recent action in the junior bowling league in Wayne saw Steve Meyer and Mike Foot teaming up to roll a 518 series to take top honors. Meyer's 182 was high single game rolled in the day's action.

The design for Nebraska's Great Seal was prescribed by the state's first legislature in 1867.

Learning to Swim

These are but a few of the many area youngsters starting the process of learning to swim at the pool in Wayne this summer. Doug Maurer stands on the far side of the pool instructing while Winona Peterson and Don Hansen work with youngsters in the foreground. Allen Hansen, pool manager, said there are about 300 enrolled in all of the various classes.

'Come on in— Water's Fine'

These pigs on the Hans Asmus acres at the west edge of Hoskins might well have been singing a chorus of "Cool, Cool Water" as they attempted to relax in the hot afternoon sun Thursday. The two in the far end of the trough are apparently the committee in charge of admission to the bath. Evidently the pinkoink in the upper left-hand corner forgot his ticket at home.

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given a useful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

Underoccupied

Adequate housing is a common problem in Wayne and surrounding counties. Each community wants to grow but doesn't have enough housing available if there should be a sudden influx of people.

It is reliably reported that three to five million families in the U. S. are desperately in need of places to live. Many of these could be housed if existing space was used to its fullest extent — instead of renting five-room apartments and two-family houses to childless adults while families with children are stuffed into rooming houses.

It Won't Happen Again

We're going to have to do something we don't ordinarily enjoy: make a public apology. This one, however, is a pleasure for us.

In a recent editorial about the Wayne County commissioners' decision not to donate some money to help the school trustees pay on a fourth-of-July celebration, we noted that there is no annual fireworks display of any great size in northeast Nebraska.

Should an 18-Year-Old Vote?

Should 18-year-olds in Wayne County, along with the hundreds of thousands of others in the nation, be allowed to vote? Let's briefly examine both sides of the story.

Proponents of having the voting age lowered to 18 point out that today's youth wants roles in government and that they can participate responsibly if given a chance.

Who's Got the Answer?

Taxpayers all across Nebraska are being offered opportunities to help determine how much they should pay in local taxes and where the emphasis should be placed in spending that money.

It seems, to complain about taxes. There's nothing particularly wrong with that. However, it seems to us wrong for a person to sit back and let a taxing group go about its work and then to have him rant and rave over the high taxes those so-and-sos heaped on him.

JUST WRIGHT

When you are small, a display of candy may be very tempting, consequently a cashier in a Wayne drug firm kept a watchful eye on two little girls standing near a candy counter.

A well known psychologist says the important things parents may give their children are food and affection. Along with differences in physique go differences in intellectual interests, control of emotions, quality of judgment and a lot of other things.

It is the thought ever crossed your mind that perhaps the past 50 years of what we call civilization may have ruined childhood? Look what the monster called an automobile has done all by itself for those children reared in cities.

Actually the American boy is imprisoned as soon as he can crawl in what is ironically called a play pen area? If he crawls out of his play pen he soon finds out by the feelings on his bottom that he has done something illegal.

The Pender FFA chapter left Sunday on a three-day fishing trip to the Harlem County Reservoir. The group had originally planned on going to Valentine.

The superintendent of schools in Madison County is in for her share of criticism from the county's weekly newspaper editors. The superintendent, Marilyn Mortensen Say, made the mistake of suggesting to all the school districts in the county that they have the required publications concerning budgets and official reports printed in the Norfolk Daily News.

Scout Honored

Jim Brasch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Brasch of Wayne, was honored during worship services at the Redeemer Lutheran Church Sunday, June 21, with the presentation of the Pro Deo Et Patria or God and Country Boy Scout award. A scout must work more than 100 hours in his church to earn the emblem. Jim is a member of Troop 175. Participants in the ceremony were, from left to right, Ted Bahr, Harvey and Mrs. Brasch, the Rev. de Freese, Jim, Scoutmaster Rowan Wittke and Bill Kugler. Bahr and Kugler are members of the church who also received the Pro Deo Et Patria honor about 15 years ago.

Several other guests were present at the church. The group spent the afternoon at the home of Mrs. Elmer Nielsen. Wayne Area Census

The questions on consumer buying and home improvement expectations will be asked by representatives of the Bureau of the Census in the Wayne area during July, according to Guy A. Lutz, director of the Bureau's regional office in St. Paul.

The questions are asked four times yearly as part of a nationwide effort to collect information as a guide to federal agencies and other groups in developing programs based on consumer spending patterns. A sample of residents in this area will be asked if they expect to buy a house, car or major appliance during the next year and if they have made recent purchases of these items. Homeowners will be asked about home improvements and repairs during the last three months and any planned for the future.

For the first quarter of 1970, the survey showed an increase in the number of households expecting to buy a used car compared to April, 1969; there was no corresponding upswing in new car expectations. Expectations to buy houses remained depressed. Expectations to buy furniture, floor coverings and home improvements were not significantly different than in April, 1969.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept confidential by law, and will be published only in the form of statistical totals.

On Tour of Europe

Concord Streets Get Face-Lifting

Streets in Concord took on a new look last week as construction workers put down a new layer of oil, a job required every few years in the small Dixon County community. This picture gives an indication of the new appearance of those streets as the drivers of the grader and packer go about their work.

Archeologist to Study Indian Village Buried 400 Years Along Highway 15

When did the first Europeans come to Nebraska?

Light may be shed on that mystery this summer when Gayle J. Carlson, Nebraska Department of Roads archeologist, and an excavation crew investigate a 400-year-old Pawnee Indian village north of Schuyler, after right of entry is obtained. The village, buried by time, is along the route of a proposed improvement of Nebraska Highway 15.

The 40-acre site was occupied by stone-age proto-historic Pawnees, probably between 1500 and 1650. These ancestors of the historic Pawnees lived by farming and buffalo-hunting. The buried Indian village may have housed hundreds or thousands of persons in round sod lodges, but now it exists only as subterranean charcoal circles marking the sites of burned lodges and fireplaces.

Carlson expects the most significant discoveries to come from the eight-foot-wide, eight-foot-deep trash pits, which sometimes contain burials as well as the refuse of the village. Broken pottery, trade goods and stone tools were deposited in these caches, then covered with dirt, where they remained hidden for centuries. Only a trained archeologist can locate them now.

Charcoal remains of a cooking fire cold for 400 years can also tell stories to Carlson, through Carbon-14 dating techniques that can approximate age by measuring the radioactivity left in the substances.

Previous finds at associated sites have included steel knives, copper sheets and beads of European manufacture. The question is, were these imported goods traded from tribe to tribe to the Pawnees or were there unknown backpack peddlers along the Platte in the 16th or 17th centuries?

Spanish explorers from Mexico are known to have come as far north as Oklahoma and perhaps Kansas. Other settlers from the eastern colonies were slowly spreading westward. How far these adventurers got may be partially answered by this summer's dig.

A 1960 state law provides federal matching funds from the Department of Roads for historic and pre-historic research. More than 100 historic sites have been recorded as a direct result of roadbuilding work and its allied scientific excavations.

The dig along N-15 will precede construction workers, who are expected to lay a two-lane concrete pavement during 1971.

Eventual improvement of the road to four lanes with median is in the planning stages. At present, final design of the right of way is underway. Excavation is expected late in July or early in August.

The road improvement contract, for an estimated $300,000, has a scheduled letting date of late 1970.

Today, nearly two out of every five American workers are women.

Area Scouts Invited To 4th River-Cade

As many as 1,000 Boy Scouts from Nebraska, South Dakota and Iowa may accept invitations to attend the fourth annual River-Cade Jamboree in Sioux City July 31-Aug. 2. Reason for the attraction is the possibility of winning a $50 scholarship for Junior Leader training at the famed Philmont Scout Ranch, plus other prizes.

Each attending Scout will receive a special four-color River-Cade Jamboree patch and will have opportunity to attend the festival riverfront attractions, such as the boat races and water ski shows, tractor pull, sky diving, fishing contest and fireworks display.

Among the features of the Jamboree will be a friendship campfire and worship services.

"Up With People" and the big band sound of Tex Beneke again will top the entertainment bill of fare at the celebration. The "Up With People" show made its first Siouxland appearance during last year's Jamboree, winning praise from many of those who attended the affair. Beneke brings the nostalgic enthusiasm of Glenn Miller's musical arrangements of the 1940's to life.

There will again be boat races between drivers from six states on the Missouri River.

WHS Counselor: 'Many Pressures on Students Today'

By Merlin Wright

"Counseling is an individualized effort to assist the client to become self directive, face reality, assume responsibility and face the consequences of human behaviour." Giving this single concept of his work as counselor at Wayne High School, Ken Carlson, a neat appearing, youthful instructor, sat behind his office desk recently sharing insights into his job.

"Students today in high school are introduced to problems on a national basis at a fairly early age," Carlson observed. "I see many pressures of all sorts on the students today," he continued, "and it is rough also on parents to rear children—they have pressures too. Parents are undecided as well as offspring, having indecisions and doubts that are a part of parenthood."

The 27-year-old high school counselor takes his work seriously. He said he entered the field of counseling after teaching two years in Vellich and a year in Red Oak, Iowa. Finding himself doing a lot of counseling and enjoying it, he enrolled in Wayne State College and received his master's degree in 1965. Carlson commenced teaching at WHS the same year. He and his wife, Janet, and two sons, Bryan and David, have made Wayne their home and are in the process of building a new house this summer.

COUNSELOR CARLSON checks over some of the many booklets in his office which are available to Wayne High School students inquiring about opportunities in a variety of career fields.

son looking for immediate, tangible, and business-like impersonal results from a counseling program is unrealistic concerning the worth, dignity and privacy of the individual."

Being enthusiastic about his work, Carlson doesn't confine his job to the school building or school hours, but may be found visiting with students or parents on weekends, evenings or whenever needed. "Immediate problems demand immediate solutions and long range problems take longer," he noted.

Problems which bring a student and counselor together may relate to the home or something outside the school, Carlson explained that being a general practitioner in the guidance counseling field he is aware of his limitations and doesn't hesitate to refer the student to other specialists for help.

Relating to pressures on students today, the counselor mentioned the pressures of the mass media bringing world news events to one's attention in moments; the pressure to buy; the pressure as to what to believe in.

"Many parents and students feel their problems are unique. They may feel they are the only ones to ever face a particular problem," the teacher pointed out, "and if the student knows someone else has had a similar problem and liked it, this may help. I have emphasized the normality of general problems to help the individual get away from the feeling that he or she is alone in facing a particular situation."

Each year Carlson does a follow-up study of those who graduated from Wayne High School five years previously to determine where the students are located and what they are doing. "The study is an attempt to find out where the products of our community are going," he explained. He is presently studying the 89 graduates in the WHS class of 1965.

Research is another phase of the counselors work. He handles questionnaires filled out by WHS pupils, which aid him in better understanding the student as an individual.

He also has a work observation program underway. It is designed, he said, to give the pupil a realistic picture of the Wayne business community and its inner workings; to attempt to communicate business needs of the community to students and the needs of students to the community.

Other office duties of the counselor include enrollment of students, processing transcripts, and orientation of new students.

He sponsors the Student Council, American Field Service Club, and will head up a new group this fall to be known as Future Teachers. The new organization will be used by those who wish to investigate the field of education as a whole with the possibility of becoming a part of it.

Each high school class is gathered together once each semester by the counselor to better acquaint the counselor with questions of students, to explain important school policies in detail, to review correct study techniques, to refresh school spirit and courtesy, to discuss occupational, personal and social information available to interested students, and better acquaint students with the next educational step in secondary education, or in the case of seniors, the next step into higher education.

The guidance program in Wayne High School is now 10 years old. It is one of the many different departments making up the entire school system which operates on a level deemed worthy of a coveted double A rating by the State Department of Education.

When class buzzers start ringing once again this fall, among those plunging into a schedule designed for the utmost benefit of the individual student will be a familiar face at WHS for the past three years—that of the guidance counselor—Ken Carlson.

Winside Boy Returns From Leadership Camp

Rodger Alleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Alleman of rural Winside, last week attended the 24th annual CO-OP Youth Leadership Camp on the campus of William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo.

He was among some 600 outstanding rural youth who attended the camp's three sessions. He was sponsored by Tri-County Co-Op of Winside. The camp program is designed to develop leadership abilities, to teach good citizenship, to increase understanding of farmer cooperatives and to provide plenty of fun.

Farmland Industries, with headquarters in nearby Kansas City, sponsors this event. Youth at camp are from fourteen Midwestern states.

Campers arrived at William

Jewell on Monday in time for registration, games and swimming. Tuesday morning they toured Farmland Industries facilities in the Kansas City area. From Tuesday afternoon through Saturday morning, they took part in regular camp activities ranging from athletics to group discussions. Campers themselves plan and conduct much of the camp program and even establish their own rules through their elected camp senate. Campers learn how cooperative functions by organizing and operating a Co-op Canteen during their camping period.

The unemployment rate among youth in this country is far higher than in any other industrial nation in the world, says the U.S. Department of Labor. The youth unemployment rate is about four times higher than the rate of joblessness for the nation as a whole.

Allen Sewer Project Continues

Pipe, pipe and more pipe — that pretty well sums up the top items of discussion in Allen these days. Construction employees there are busy installing the pipes for the new sanitary sewer system and by doing so they are causing a bit of a problem for traffic in and through the town. This photograph was taken on the southeast edge of the community looking north along Highway 9.

Former Area Youth Ends S. A. Tour

John Watson, son of former Wayne area residents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Watson, was one of 16 University of Nebraska students and three teachers recently returned from a tour of Guatemala and Colombia. The educational tour began June 5 and ended June 19.

The group had an opportunity to see the history of early morning cup of coffee as they toured a coffee experiment station in Colombia.

The 19-member group visited an experiment station operated by the National Federation of Coffee Growers of Colombia.

Dr. Echeverrie explained that the famous "Mountain-Grown" coffee is grown at elevations of about 3,000-5,000 feet. The coffee plants can produce yields ranging from 550-8,000 pounds of raw berries per acre, depending upon the growing conditions and practices.

The coffee plants undergo numerous transplants before they are planted in the grove on the mountain. After four to five years, the plants begin to produce mature coffee berries.

These ripened berries contain the coffee beans within pulp layers. The mature berries are harvested by peasant workers. Dr. Echeverrie said that machinery is not used for several reasons, including social responsibilities in providing work for unemployed peasants, variance of ripening times of the berries and economic impracticability of machinery on the steep slopes. The peasant workers are paid 25-30 pesos ($1.35-$1.50) per day for picking berries.

The pulp is removed from the picked berries, leaving the coffee beans. The beans are then dried either in the sun or by a machine. The dried beans are bagged and exported to countries such as the United States.

NETV Series Directed

At Work-Bound Youth

Two coming series on the Nebraska Educational Television Network should be of interest to young people about to enter the work force.

One series is an 18-lesson course in beginning typing. The lessons, two each week, begin July 7 and run through the summer until Sept. 8. Textbook and materials needed for the course can be obtained by sending $4.50 to the Nebraska ETV Network, 1600 R. St., Lincoln 68508.

The other series is on careers — what they are like, the work they involve, their salaries, their requirements. The series will be televised each Thursday beginning July 30. A total of 18 careers will be covered, including farming, teaching, social work, construction work and sales.

100 Attend Session On LSD at Allen High

Three extension clubs sponsored a program for community education about drugs at the Allen public school June 18. The clubs were Artemis, EJC Club and the Allen Commercial Club.

Approximately 100 youth and adults viewed several films and asked questions of the guest speaker, Larry Frahm, social worker at the Norfolk Regional Center.

The films presented were "A Day in the Death of Donny B.," "LSD, Insight or Insanity" and "LSD 25." Following the films two open discussion groups formed. Frahm led the adult group and Lee Remer, Mental Health Educator at the North East Mental Health Clinic, discussed the topic with the teenage participants.

Coronary artery disease develops over many years of time, says the Nebraska Heart Association. The earlier in life a heart-helping diet is adopted, the lower your risk of heart attack.

New Residents

The Rev. and Mrs. Frank H. Kirtley, called to serve the United Methodist Church in Wayne, arrived here June 10 from York. They are the parents of five children. Frank is married and living in Lincoln; Albert is married and serving in the U.S. Navy; Paul, 14, is at home; Barbara, a foster daughter, is in nurses training in Lincoln; and Chris, also a foster daughter, is at home and will attend Wayne State College this fall taking a pre-nursing course. Pastor and Mrs. Kirtley had served the Methodist Church in York for six years.

vice-president; Ruth Miller of Emerson, secretary; Pauline Russel of Allen, treasurer; Father Paul Schwaab of Nabrara and the Rev. William Stanton of Emerson.

The group covers Wayne, Dixon, Dakota and Thurston Counties.

Kvols Making Marks

The son and daughter of the late Damon and Mrs. Dorothy Kvols, both well known in the Wayne-Laurel area before moving to New Mexico, have made headlines in their hometown newspaper with their recent achievements.

Larry Kvols graduated from Baylor Medical School at Houston, Texas, with high honors earlier this month, marking him as one of the top six students in his class. While in medical school he received several honors, including one for the outstanding freshman research in medicine. Attending his graduation were Mrs. Howard Gould and Mrs. Lucille Thompson from Laurel and Mrs. Ohlde Kvols from Wayne.

The daughter, Marolyn, is one of two sophomores at the high school she attends in Tucumcari, N. M., to be chosen to participate in the People to People High School Student Ambassador Program to Europe. She left on that trip June 14. Only 250 students from the entire United States have been chosen for the tour.
