

Touchy Decisions

The people aren't wasting any time in putting the Wayne city council on the spot.

For instance, last week the council had to decide what to do with a request for permission to sell beer and liquor on Sunday and had to act on recommendations from the city planning commission concerning the touchy subject of parking on streets during late evening hours.

The council took about the only step possible concerning the Sunday opening request — it decided to take steps to draw up a law which would permit exactly that. The council's reasoning went something like this: If nobody is opposed to opening the two battle clubs on Sunday, then the council might as well begin steps to allow them to open if they wish. And, if there are people who are opposed to opening them on Sunday, the quickest way to find that out is to begin those steps.

In case you happened to miss it in the news story, the council will hold a public hearing on Tuesday, July 28, before deciding whether to pass the law which would allow the battle clubs to do business on Sunday.

Regarding the problem of parking on city streets, the council decided that the restrictions on parking in several parts of town should be changed from midnight-5 a.m. to 3-5 a.m. Although the council's reasoning on reducing the hours when no parking is allowed on one side of the street was not completely clear, the council apparently wanted to give the restrictions still more of a chance to prove their worth while reducing the number of complaints from those who want them removed completely.

It is our opinion that the city council should take what will probably be the unpopular stand on both of these issues. The council should allow the sale of beer and liquor on Sundays to those tavern owners who wish that privilege, and the council should do its best to see that parking is restricted on most residential streets in the city.

The reasoning behind these beliefs is quite simple. On Sunday opening: A person in business should not have undue restrictions placed upon him. If many local people drive out of town on Sundays for a drink and meal, we think it is time to give new consideration to our law restricting taverns from opening on Sundays.

On parking on city streets: By their very nature, streets are meant to move traffic and are not meant as parking places for private vehicles. Removing cars and trucks from the streets tends to beautify the area, reduce maintenance and policing problems and makes the area safer.

We hope the members of the council keep in mind that public officials should seldom strive to be popular. However, they should always strive to be right. In these cases the two are probably not compatible. — N.L.H.

Will It Be Your Child?

Death often strikes hurriedly and unexpectedly. It may occur in a car, on a tractor, or ride the saddle of a horse. Several youths died near Norfolk not long ago when they were electrocuted after a bullet severed a power line. Death coiled and struck them on a country road.

One would normally believe the tragedy would be a reminder to others not to be shooting around electrical lines, but evidently the lesson has not been learned.

Glass insulators used by power lines belonging to the Wayne Public Power District appear to be constant targets of persons old enough to know their action of destroying private property, disrupting electrical service, and flirting with death, is entirely wrong. Perhaps we need to have a special school in Wayne County with a giant kindergarten in which such fools could enroll and learn the basic fundamentals of civilized society.

A rural Westfield man observed boys with a rifle shooting at a meadow lark sitting on a power line. Suppose the bullet would have accidentally severed the power line?

Danger lurks in many corners as a constant threat to the welfare of you and your offspring. Blasting caps (see accompanying photo) loom innocent enough in their many shapes and colors. The one in the picture was found by a local resident on Logan Street and turned over to police officers who searched the area for the possibility of others. An innocent person or child might have been victim to an "accident" and who would have been at fault? What is more important than who was at fault, is who might have suffered permanent injuries? Might it have been your blue-eyed boy or curly-haired girl? Someone's carelessness with a blasting cap set up a potentially disastrous situation.

Guns have a definite place in the world, but when they are misused it creates arguments for gun controls by those who would like to see them outlawed.

Death is always only an "accident" away. Will it be your child? The public can help law enforcement officers crack down on those who violate the law by reporting it to police when lawlessness is observed. Reporting it may save a life — perhaps even that of the guilty — of a Wayne County resident. — MMW.

A man approached Mrs. Ethel Martelle, Wayne County welfare director during a meeting of welfare directors in South Sioux City not long ago and reaching out to shake hands said, "I never can remember your name, but I think of you as that nice old lady in the Wayne Welfare office." This man has a pleasant memory, but forgot a name. It happens to us all, or does it?

The law of compensation works nowhere more exactly or with greater kindness than in the matter of remembering and forgetting. As a man cannot remember the names of pleasant acquaintances, he forgets the names of those who bore him with equal ability. If he is unable to recall the tangled events of history, he is not likely to retain the details of all of yesterday's bad news either. The mind tends to clear itself of a lot of material, some good and some bad.

Memory is a great gift, as is forgetting. One may become disgusted with one's thought apparatus when the name of a friend will not come forth, but we should be grateful that the mind has also buried a lot of the unpleasant things of life along with it. Whenever we resurrect a name from one of the mind's many graves, we must be ready and able to handle a lot of other details that come

A person tends to find the present year more interesting because the events of last year are already beginning to dim. Thus, one who enjoys what is called a bad memory finds his life constantly renewed and always wearing a little freshness. Forgetting is just as much a function of the mind as remembering. Could we remember anything if we didn't forget a great deal more? As we stop to think about it, one's memory is what is used to forget with. One thinks almost as much in terms of what we have forgotten as of what we remember, right?

Or are you married to one of those people who never forgets anything? You may have a sweet "old auntie" who is a real dream in every aspect of life and fun to have as a guest in the home, except that she has seemingly never forgotten anything. Regardless of what happens today, she had a similar experience which usually was much worse. She is the lovely person who makes you rattle your coffee cup on the saucer at breakfast.

For some reason the mind collects the data that enters it during waking hours, and not wanting to carry excess baggage, lets a lot of information sink out of sight. The common stuff of every day sinks down there, stays for awhile and is, as we say, "forgotten." When we resurrect it one day, it comes back shining and glimmering like a diamond after having been under pressure. So a turn in life that at the time seemed very unpleasant may be recalled in a later conversation as "I had a funny experience once." It wasn't funny all until you conveniently forgot the unpleasant details.

"I can remember" is a terribly important part of the human language. Remember the last time you took a bad fall? There just isn't any way of getting around it, it hurt — and in the wrong places. But to hear you tell it now, those who listen get the idea that it was funny and everyone laughs. Forgetting the "thirty" parts of experiences is a marvelous velous operation of the mind. You may not remember your close friend's name when you go to introduce him, but you have forgotten the unpleasant parts of a not-so-funny fall. Now what more could you ask for?

If you have ever had a neighbor who was good at forgetting all those things either you or your children have done which could have irritated him, then you may greatly appreciate his ability to forget. For instance, your relationship is still pleasant though your poach tops up his eyes, and he could have been a sizeable fool, but he chose to "forget" it. The score is usually evened out between neighbors, however, as you too have chosen to forget certain things about him, right?

It is all well and good to be a good rememberer, but a man who is remarkable for his memory seems to keep his entire intellectual stock in his brain's front window. You know what I mean? He doesn't have anything hidden anywhere and dispels all mystery about him. Now you take a good forgetter and that person is always coming up with something new and surprising — sometimes even to himself. True, he may have fewer facts, but many more ideas than the rememberer. It can even be fun to see him fish his thoughts up one after another and play with them for awhile before tossing them back into the memory pool as being too small to bother with.

If you are looking for some real fun, sit down on the bank of your memory pool and throw a bait line into its placid surface. You're apt to catch some thoughts and ideas in your think tank you didn't know existed because you are a good forgetter. J. W. has had a lot of folks who didn't always have all their thoughts in the foreground, but who, like good fishermen, can keep throwing in the line and hook to come up with some nice catches for a pleasant conversation.

Planning on going to the hereafter? Can you imagine what a bore Heaven will be after a few million years for the person who remembers everything about everything? Now if you are a forgetter, it should be an opportunity for rereading old books because you have forgotten so much of them; a time for renewing old acquaintances, because you have forgotten so much about them too; and a time, most of all, to practice forgetting how things used to be.

Maybe you are a good forgetter and didn't know it. You can check on yourself by going over your vacation last year. Do you recall some of the fabulous scenery along the way? And have you forgotten how many times your young-

Dear Editor: Since the release of the proposed site for the low-income housing for the elderly, many discussions have taken place — several, I'm sure, feeling the way I do.

Is the site between Fourth and Fifth on Dearborn a good location? You better believe I don't think so. When this much money is involved, and many people's hopes for such housing rise, why should a location be chosen there?

Human nature causes elderly people and college students to differ in opinion on several matters, such as sleeping hours, noise, etc. Would an elderly couple be happy living in the backyard of a trailer court? Ask a few. Then they could always look the other way. They could view the sewer lagoon. And inhale the fresh air. When men and women work all their lives and reach retirement age should they even be asked to put up with these conditions? Why can't they have a nice elevated spot on the highway? If a million dollars can be spent on a recreation area, why can't it be between Fourth and Fifth on Dearborn and the low-income housing on

News of Note around Northeast Nebraska

The South Sioux school board estimates a mill levy of 61.66 will be needed to finance the school during the 1970-71 school year. Included in the levy are four mills for a sinking fund for future building.

The total levy represents a drop from the 1969-70 levy of 67.87 mills. The budget estimate lists requirements of $1,593,033 for general fund, $175,421 for bond redemption and $84,772 for a bond sinking fund.

A Scribner youth, Timothy Meyer, 18, died in a one-car crash near Pender recently. The wreck took place on a curve about one-half mile east of Pender as Meyer was travelling east.

The annual Randolph fair is less than two weeks away. Scheduled for Wednesday, July 29, the fair will include livestock exhibits, homemaking exhibits, foods competition and clothing competition. Judges include Walt Tolman and Don Kubic of the Northeast Station near Concord.

Directed by Mrs. Susan Von Minden, the Ponca High School band will take part in the 12th annual Shrine Bowl football game in Lincoln Aug. 22. Blocked seats are on sale until Aug. 1, but after that date the seats go on sale to the general public. Ponca's band will be seated in the East Stadium.

Cedar County farmer George Barystadt suffered gunshot wounds in the leg and head in a shooting incident at Yankton. He was hospitalized at Yankton. No reports of the incident were available, according to the Cedar County News of Hartington. The newspaper reported that a person had pleaded not guilty to a state charge of assault with intent to kill at Yankton and that the case had been continued to July 17 for preliminary hearing.

Coleridge apparently doesn't want to be included in the hospital district being proposed by the Wayne Hospital Foundation.

Last week's issue of the Coleridge Blade reported that the delegation from Coleridge which attended the recent meeting at Laurel said they were not in favor of it as now proposed. The Coleridge paper said the board members of the foundation received "a rather cool reception" at the meeting to explain the district.

The Madison school board has found a way to cure the teacher-housing problem: purchase its own house. It did just that earlier this month when the members agreed to pay $16,000 for a private house to serve any future Madison school teachers. The board will rent the house to any teachers who are unable to find housing.

Black served in both World War I and II and retired from the Air Force as a colonel. He was a past commander of the Nebraska wing of the Air Reserve Association. He lived in Lincoln several years and moved to Texas in 1965 when he was elected a vice-president of Palm Shores Development. He was married to Byrl Malow, who died in 1951. He had remarried.

Editor's Note: The Just Wright column the writer is referring to carried an item from a Wayne church bulletin. The item contrasted the boy in Viet Nam giving his life for his country to the boy in the United States tramping on the American flag. It also contrasted the Negro soldier in Viet Nam who cradles his dead white comrade with the Negro in America who screams hate against his white brother. The item began, and ended, with the question: "My God, how can it be?"

(Editor's Note: The Wayne city council last Tuesday evening agreed to close the alley between Fourth and Fifth just east of Dearborn and agreed to extend Fourth Street to serve this land. These two decisions were made after hearing a request from the local housing authority, which has reportedly decided upon this land as the site for the proposed elderly housing project in Wayne. That housing project has received unofficial approval from the federal government. Official approval is being awaited. Earlier this year, a dispute arose when the housing authority asked the council for permission to build the project on the local ball park. The public's strong feelings against that as the site halted those plans. The million dollar park project the writer refers to is the large recreation center proposed for the present site of the Wayne County Fairgrounds just west of the city. The city would pay about 25 per cent of the cost of that project, the county fair board would donate the land and the government would supply the other 75 per cent of the cost. The project is several years in the future, if in the future at all.)

 insurance and that the majority of the drivers who choose to drive standard powered vehicles will no longer subsidize the excessive losses of these over-powered vehicles, according to Neff.
 The Department of Insurance has approved the use of surcharges, ranging in amounts from 20 per cent to 50 per cent and applicable to 1971 and subsequent model "hot cars." The surcharges were filed by insurers doing most of the automobile insurance business in the state.
 These surcharges are not applicable to 1970 or earlier models of the "hot" cars nor are they applicable to a average performance automobiles.
 In addition, the department is studying the proposed insurance rate discounts being offered by some insurers for any automobile that is certified to withstand striking a standard test barrier at the low speed of five miles per hour without sustaining damage.
 "In view of the fact that over 80 per cent of the accidents in the United States involve speeds of less than 15 mph it would certainly seem reasonable, according to Neff, that a discount should be permitted.

 However, the auto manufacturers seem to be at least two years away from providing the public with such an automobile. It should be noted, Neff said, that Florida has passed a law requiring all automobiles in that state to withstand impacts up to five mph if manufactured on or after January 1, 1973, and 10 mph if manufactured on or after January 1, 1975.
 The Department is also studying the possibility of rating automobiles on their susceptibility to damage and their average repair costs.
 For instance, recently the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety of Washington, D.C. tested 1970 models by running the vehicles into a standard test barrier. "As an example," Neff said, "their statistics show that a 1970 Ford Mustang sustained $661.35 in damage at 15 mph while a 1970 Chevrolet Camaro sustained $1,052.60 in damages at 15 mph. This would seem to indicate that the insurance rates on these two automobiles should not be the same. It seems almost amazing that the average damage to 1970 model sedans was $215.64 at five mph - a speed at which a person can easily walk."

 "It makes more sense to us," according to Neff, "that insurance rates be based upon the susceptibility to damage and the costs of repair than some of the questionable factors such as occupation or marital status that are being used now. Obviously a person's driving record and the accident frequency of his community are also major factors in rates."
 Anyone wanting to know the names of the 1971 "hot" cars to which a surcharge may apply can obtain this from his insurance agent or by calling the Department of Insurance in Lincoln.

operator should regulate this according to his experience.
 However, starting the fertilizer injection when the water is two-thirds to three-fourths of the way through the field and stopping it shortly after the water comes through has proven satisfactory in most conditions, says Fisher.
 Shorter irrigation runs have proven to give the best distribution of both water and nitrogen. Systems which reuse the waste runoff water on another field or the same field will make more efficient use of both nitrogen and water. Proper injection equipment and control valves can prevent loss of nitrogen to fresh water sources at the point of injection, Fisher points out.
 Most irrigators are using proper precautions so that valuable nitrogen does not escape their fields to pollute streams, ponds or sources of fresh water. The earlier thinking that soil had an attractive force for nitrogen has been discarded. Tests at the University of Nebraska have shown that concentrations of nitrogen in water do not change appreciably when passing over or through a soil system.

Tests at the University have shown that yield increases are possible when supplemental nitrogen is applied through irrigation water. Most producers realize that only when the nitrogen is in the root zone can the plant make use of it. Fisher feels that this production practice will greatly increase within the next few years.

Exhibit Building Nearly Finished For County Fair

Workmen should be finishing up this exhibit building at the Wayne County Fairgrounds sometime this week, according to the contractor. The building will house 28 booths for the coming fair. Booths will be eight feet deep with frontages of eight, 12 and 16 feet. The open steel beams span the 60-foot floor width. Length of the building is 100 feet, providing a total of 6,000 square feet.

Wayne Pilot Gets DFC In Viet Nam Ceremony

Chief Warrant Officer W2 Jon R. Beckenhauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Beckenhauer of Wayne, has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for actions taken on Oct. 31, 1969 in Viet Nam. Beckenhauer is flying assault-support helicopters.

The citation was presented recently "For heroism while participating in aerial flight evidenced by voluntary actions while flying on a re-supply mission to fire-support Base Kate. The firebase was in vital need of ammunition and water re-supply.

"Enemy fire in the area was intense and the mission had been delayed as long as possible. The approach of the CH-47 'Chinook' helicopter was completed without incident but on termination to the landing zone, heavy enemy mortar, rocket and machine gun fire began hitting the area. However the sortie was successfully completed and the aircraft returned to Bu Prang for the second load.

"The second sortie had to be delayed until tactical air support could complete numerous air strikes in an attempt to silence enemy positions in the mountains and thick jungle surrounding the firebase.

The landing zone his aircraft began receiving hits from enemy automatic weapons fire. Beckenhauer continued his approach to approximately one hundred meters short of the landing zone and was caught in a cross fire. The firing was so intense that the load had to be dropped short of the landing zone. Evasive maneuvers were taken and with his crew members returning automatic weapons fire, the aircraft, having taken numerous small arms hits, was flown out of the firebase to Bu Prang for an estimate of damages.

"Chief Warrant Officer Beckenhauer's flying ability and his devotion to duty were exemplary. His actions were in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit and the United States Army."

Beckenhauer has been previously awarded, receiving a Bronze Star, Army Accommodation Medal, and the Basic Air Medal with 32 oak leaf clusters, all received for service in Viet Nam and Cambodia. The sergeant is to return from Viet Nam in January, 1971 after completion of his second year in the Viet Nam war.

"Learning by doing" is a popular phrase these days and one that fits Air Force Academy cadets now participating in a summer research program at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

Cadet David Peterson of Wakefield, is doing fuels research in the Air Force Aero Propulsion Laboratory under the tutelage of Capt. William T. Allen.

Each year the Academy sends its cadets to Air Force bases throughout the country to better prepare themselves for their future as Air Force officers. During this trial year, the cadets, under the supervision of outstanding junior officers, see for themselves what the Air Force is all about.

NINETY-FIFTH YEAR NUMBER TWENTY-TWO

Wayne County Youth Tally Declines

It may become a man's world in Wayne County if the present boy-girl birth ratio continues as shown by the latest school census report. The report, released Friday by Mrs. Gladys Porter, county superintendent of schools, shows there are not only more boys than girls, but fewer of both.

Youths aging from one day old through 18 years old continue to decrease in number for the second consecutive year in the county. Figures show there are 27 fewer youngsters than a year ago.

The report reveals a decrease of 24 youths in the age bracket from one-day-old through four-year-olds in the county since last year's census, and three fewer in the five to 18-year-old bracket. The numerical breakdown lists 15 fewer girls and 12 fewer boys.

County totals for 1970 with last year's figures in parentheses are as follows: One day old through four years—boys 255 (267) and 252 girls (264) with a total of 507 children (531); five through 18-year-olds boys 1,233 (1,233) and 1,108 girls (1,111) for a total of 2,341 (2,344). Total tally for all youths from one day old through 18 is 2,848, whereas the figure for the county last year was 2,875 and in 1968 was 3,045. In two years the total tally has dropped 197.

The number of youths in Wayne continues to increase. Boys in the five to 18 age group rose in number from 593 in 1969 to 630 this year and the number of girls increased from 549 a year ago to 559. Total tally was 1,123 and is now 1,168. This is an increase of 64 youths in this category since 1968.

Those children whose ages are from one day through four-year-olds in Wayne currently number 294 compared to 278 last year. Of the 294 there are 152 boys and 142 girls.

In the Village of Winsted the new report shows a numerical decline. Those in the one-day-old through four-year-old group now number 65 with 31 boys and 34 girls, whereas a year ago there was a total of 71, or 37 boys and 34 girls. The older youths, five through 18, now total 380 with 199 boys and 181 girls, while last year's tally showed 390 with 201 boys and 189 girls.

Supt. Porter noted there are 148 rural youngsters in the pre-school age bracket and 793 in the five through 18 group. In the latter group there are 425 boys and 368 girls.

Young people from five through 20 years old in Winsted have decreased in number from 494 a year to the present 482. Those in the same age group in Wayne increased from 1,532 to 1,578 in the last 12 months.

Local Hospital Has 'Walk-In, Walk-Out' Bank

By Merlin Wright

Rrr-ing. A groping hand reaches for a noisy bedside phone at half-past midnight.

"Hello." "Hello sir. This is the hospital. Sorry to bother you at this time of night but there has been a bad accident. We have a teenage boy needing some 'A' positive blood. Would it be possible for you to come to the hospital right away for a transfusion? You can? Fine. We'll have everything ready when you arrive. Thank you."

Though the preceding conversation is imaginary, similar calls are made day and night from hospital switchboards across the nation to generous people in a select group who share their blood with those needing more of the priceless commodity.

Perhaps you are not aware that the Wayne hospital has a walk-in blood bank. It is a different type of bank since the customers make investments expecting only satisfaction as a return.

Not just anyone may make a donation to the blood bank. In fact, before a person is privileged to be listed as a donor, he or she must meet a number of qualifications.

Let's see how well you might do in answering the screening questions. Ready? Have you ever had malaria or taken malaria preventative drugs? Have you ever had jaundice or been in contact with anyone having jaundice within the last six months? Have you had tuberculosis? Have you had brucellosis or undulant fever? Have you had a cold, fever, flu, persistent cough, sore throat, pain in the chest, or any other upper respiratory disease recently? Have you had any skin diseases? Do you have any allergies? Do you have any ailments of excessive bleeding? Are you subject to convulsions?

No. Not any of the questions. There are more. Do you use any drug with regularity? Have you had any inoculations or vaccinations within the last two weeks? Are you a diabetic? Do you have a heart condition or ever had a heart condition? Have you had any tooth extraction within the last week? Have you given blood within the last eight weeks? Have you had any transfusions within the last six months? Have you had a recent weight loss? Have you had cancer? Are you pregnant?

If you were able to answer "no" to each question then you will more than likely be approved for becoming a walk-in blood bank donor. Maybe.

Sorry, but there are still a few more details. Your blood pressure, and hemoglobin are checked. Your blood must be typed to determine whether it is

"O" positive or negative, "B" positive or negative, "AB" positive or negative, or "A" positive or negative. You will fit in there someplace, but the hospital must know your exact type.

Your name isn't quite ready for the donors list as a sample of your blood must now be sent to the state laboratory for analysis to find out whether or not you have any communicable diseases.

Since all of the preceding qualifications whittle down the number of potential blood donors to a rather small group, surely there aren't any more requirements that might eliminate you.

Well now, those of you who are left really are a select group, right? Last, but not least, there is a final question. Do you want to be a blood donor to help another person like yourself live?

There are about 40 persons in the Wayne area, among those who qualify, who have answered affirmatively to the question of wanting to be a blood donor. Of course, if you qualify and are accepted to the list, there will be at least one more donor.

Judy Woehler (Mrs. Bill Woehler Jr.), lab technician at the Wayne Hospital, said Friday, "I need more donors and younger donors. My list consists of names of people many of whom are between 40 and 50 years old. Younger persons are preferred since they don't seem to mind it as much."

We'll call Mrs. Woehler "Judy" informally as her friends all do. She pointed out that the walk-in blood bank here in Wayne meets the standards of the Medicare program.

Since the donor gives the blood to the hospital there is no charge to the recipient for the blood itself, however, as Judy explained, there is a fee to cover the costs of administering the transfusion and the nurse's time.

People participating in the Medicare program must pay for the administration of the first three units of blood after which Medicare takes care of the costs, according to the technician. A 35-year-old Wayne County farmer, Kenneth Frevert, was called to the hospital Friday morning around 9 a.m., as has happened a number of times since he joined the donors list in 1964.

For the donation of a pint of life-saving blood. With his consent, we watched the 15-minute procedure. Judy's efficiency made the technical part of the donation appear easy as she methodically made all of the necessary connections and arrangements.

Frevert's donation Friday was the 29th unit given by area donors this year. A total of 83 units were contributed during 1969, July said. As the blood is withdrawn through a needle, it enters a plastic container which already holds a clear fluid which the technician identified as an anticoagulant. The unit of blood is immediately refrigerated unless, of course, it is immediately given to a recipient in an emergency situation. In extreme emergencies blood may be given directly from one person to another. Most donations, however, are not that direct, Judy pointed out, and the blood will keep under refrigeration for as long as 21 days. It is seldom the blood is not needed, however, before that length of time.

Judy said that about 85 per cent of the U.S. population has positive blood types and the remaining 15 per cent have a negative type. She also said about 40 per cent of the people have either type "O" or "A", 15 per cent have type "B" blood and only about five per cent have a type called "AB" which is obviously rare.

When asked if the Wayne Hospital could use more donors, the answer was affirmative. Judy said an interested person need only call the hospital for an appointment and she will ask them to fill out a questionnaire for the screening procedure.

Someone's bedside phone will ring tonight. "You will be able to come to the hospital, sir? Fine. We'll have everything ready when you arrive. Thank you."

And because of that, someone may get another chance to live.

Car, Pickup Collide

Occupants of a pickup and car received only minor injuries when the two vehicles collided nearby head-on about 11 p.m. Thursday one and a half miles north of Wakefield on Highway 35. Trooper William R. Johnson of Platteville investigated.

southbound pickup driven by Doyle Kasting, 23, of Ponca. Miss Kasting and her 14-year-old brother, a passenger in the car, were treated at the Wakefield Community Hospital and released.

Both vehicles received extensive damage. Although there are 20 species of pocket mouse, the tiny rodent has never been observed east of the Mississippi River.

'Toys in Attic' Hit for WS Players

A hot, sticky evening and a nearly empty theatre at Shore Acres Thursday evening does not seem too promising a beginning. But it is still early. And by the time the Wayne State Players are ready to raise the curtain on the first act of "Toys in the Attic," this season's third production in Sioux City, a crowd, small but intent, has gathered, and is swept up in the theatre's magnetic aura to eagerly await another hypnotic drama by Lillian Hellman, whose play, "The Children's Hour," stunned audiences to such a degree last summer.

Setting the mood for the story, Ann Berniers, one of two old-maid sisters, most authentically played by Ann Schroeder, arrives from work on a hot summer evening in New Orleans. Miss Schroeder immediately and effectively establishes the character of Ann, probably always a plain woman, resigned to her fate, not happy about it, but not totally unhappy either. Soon Anna is joined by her younger sister, Carrie, high strung, a faded rose type, played by Rita Mines, who so completely adopts her role that little fault can be found with her portrayal—facial expression, carriage, gestures, costuming, inflection, all superb.

The sisters have planned for years for a European trip they never expect to take. But their only real concern is for a younger brother, Julian, who has been married and gone from home a year now—a likeable, handsome young man who seems to have fate against him, and who has been bailed out of countless financial disasters by his sisters, at the expense of their trip abroad.

Julian is played by Fred Fiddelle, a comparative newcomer to Wayne theatre goers. His portrayal shows a lot of talent, and could be improved only by more experience. The romantic scenes, fortunately are brushed over lightly as they are embarrassingly awkward, but Fiddelle in every other respect comes across beautifully.

The sisters, Carrie quibbling, and Anna, pacifying and simultaneously infecting a marvelous sense of humor and hints of intelligence beyond what her life demands of her, are just beginning supper when Mrs. Albertine Prime, Julian's mother-in-law comes to call.

Mrs. Prime is played by Wayne State's professor of theatre, Dr. Helen J. Russell, who is in charge of the Summer Theatre productions. The professional finesse gained her six years of summer stock in New England and Florida several years ago are not wasted on the character of Mrs. Prime, a non-conforming, woman of wealth and power whose liaison with a handsome and intelligent negro is cause for considerable confusion in the past of Mrs. Prime's near-neurotic daughter, Lily.

Mrs. Prime surprises the Berniers sisters with the news that Julian and Lily have been in town several days and will be calling on them soon. The sisters are sure Julian has had another failure, and prepare once again to give him their savings. However, when he arrives with the tickets to Europe for them, the paid-up mortgage on their home, and numerous other gifts—the sisters, and Lily as well, are befuddled. Carrie refuses to believe in or accept the fact that Julian has $150,000.00 and is no longer financially dependent upon her and Anna. Anna, on the other hand packs for Europe, as she is told to do, though she is not as enthusiastic as Julian feels she should be.

Lily's naive blundering finally unearths the mystery of Julian's sudden wealth, and with it the knowledge of a past relationship with a woman who has now made his sudden wealth possible. Julian has an appointment to meet the woman to give her a share of the money so she may escape from her tyrannical husband, but in a jealous frenzy, Lily contacts the woman's husband, a mean and violent man who arranges for Julian to be beaten and robbed.

Julian has fallen again! Anna begins, to unpack, Carrie, who in the course of events, has been told by her sister that she, Carrie, has always desired Julian, is now almost gleeful at the turn of events. Lily shows promise of growing up as she follows her mother's instructions not to hurt Julian further with the knowledge that she was the cause of his undoing.

And Henry Simpson, Mrs. Prime's "fancy man" as Carrie calls him, takes his leave for her to ease the emotional burden between Mrs. Prime and her daughter, who will now need her.

Applause is not overly-enthusiastic. The audience, left hanging, and with little hope, as is typical in a Hellman play, is too drained, and cannot adjust to reality so quickly. But later in the lobby, comments begin.

The make-up of Gus, a negro played by Kevin Hill, was badly done, not definite enough, and left the audience unsure of him, but his portrayal in the brief scenes he appeared in was good. Ken Grafias as a taxi driver and Dwight Meyerink, Fred Wington and Jim Zersching as moving men also had small parts.

The Southern accents of the characters sometimes slipped away, and speech and actions in general seemed too rapid for the South, which has a tendency to a slower, more lackadaisical manner.

The play was one of the best. And Wayne State Players did a tremendous job with it.

Farm Home Fires Costly

When fire occurs on farm or rural property, damage is three to six times greater than in the average city fire. Two-fifths of all damage is to the homes and their contents. The remainder of losses, in the order of their importance: other out buildings, machinery and equipment, livestock and produce.

With rising costs involved in replacements, the value of total losses has greatly increased over the past few years. Thus prevention becomes of primary importance.

Gridiron Dinner Will Lampoon Great, Near Great

Politicians, businessmen and community leaders from a three-state area are facing common fate—in fact, a hot seat—at the Marina Inn on Saturday evening, Sept. 12, when they will be roasted, fried, grilled and baked over the coals at St. Louis' first Gridiron Dinner and Show.

Lamponing of the great, the near great, the prominent and the popular will be the major bill of fare being cooked up by the Greater Sioux City Press Club, sponsor of the event. The Gridiron theme will be "The Population In-Explosion, or It Pays to Live in St. Louis."

The victims—from the governors, senators and congressmen of Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota, to councilmen, supervisors, mayors and business leaders—are being invited to attend and to laugh at themselves and others. The Gridiron Dinner and Show will be open not only to the courageous victims, but to the general public.

To "boil it down," the show will spoof the well-known guests through skits, songs and acts, written and performed by many of St. Louis' most versatile newspaper writers, radio and television newscasters, and public relations representatives from major businesses.

Gridiron banquets have proved immensely popular in other cities, most notably Washington, D. C., where the President annually heads the list of luminaries attending and where, in recent years, women of the press have raised a great hue and cry over being excluded.

The Greater Sioux City Press Club Gridiron Dinner and Show will differ from Washington's in two major areas—the President isn't expected, and women are invited. Although the Greater Sioux City Press Club is predominantly male in membership, it includes a number of "new hens" who are lending their "culinary" talents to the Gridiron.

The closest such event to Sioux City is the Omaha Press Club Gridiron Dinner—sometimes referred to as Omaha's "annual search and destroy" mission, which is sold out a year in advance.

Milo Bredek, district representative to Congressman Wiley Wayne and also vice-president of the Greater Sioux City Press Club, is general chairman of the Gridiron Dinner & Show Sept. 12. Members of the general committee include the club president, Mrs. Karen Stuck, plus Joe J. Ireland, Joe Cleghorn, Charles Harness and Joe Terry.

The Greater Sioux City Press Club currently has some 80 members.

INDIAN LADS at Macy perform intricate dance steps of Omaha Tribal tradition as part of celebration marking the end of summer school at the Macy School.

Institute Students See Indians in Action

Students of Wayne State's Institute for Teachers of American Indian Children had a rewarding opportunity to see Indian children in action Thursday.

They went to Macy to share in the celebration marking the close of summer school, a six-week session which Macy school superintendent Simon Latta called the most successful ever.

The two dozen Wayne students, most of them teachers, found themselves among about 200 Macy residents attending the celebration. One of the highlights was dancing by Indian lads, accompanied at the tom tom by six elders of the Omaha Tribe. Each boy wore a brand new costume of authentic design, brilliant with features, beading and cloth of reds, yellows blues, greens.

The audience stood up as master of ceremonies Jim Hamilton, a director of the community Action Program at Macy, introduced the dancers. Then as the tom tom boomed and singers chanted, the young dancers performed traditional tribal rituals while grandparents, parents, youthful friends of the dancers and the Wayne visitors watched in appreciation.

The dancing was one product of summer school. Other activities Superintendent Orta said, included arts, crafts, cultural studies of Indian history and home economics. Summer school attracted about 60 children this year and nearly all stayed in the program all six weeks—in contrast to previous years when many dropped out.

The Wayne visitors sat in on a movie premiere. It was product of Indian children, who did nearly all the filming, under the guidance of John Mancini, a former member of the Teacher Corps who now is on the Macy faculty.

Another highlight of the celebration: the noon lunch, prepared and served at the dance arena. The menu included turkey, boiled pork, Indian fried bread, rice soup, and potato salad.

Tekamah Cuts Midgets' String at 14

By Marvin Hansen

A stung Tekamah squad handed the Wayne Midgets their first loss in 15 starts this season, a 3-0 setback Friday night at Tekamah.

Tekamah's Litel held the local squad to just two hits in the six and half inning contest—a single by shortstop, Roger Saul and a double by outfielder Rod Cook—while striking out six and walking just two. Both hits led off innings—Saul's in the top of the fifth, Cook's in the top of the seventh but Wayne was unable to stitch a rally together.

Handling duties on the mound for the full stretch, Mike Ginn came up with 11 strike outs while giving up three hits for a better-than-average performance. Ginn walked two and clipped one batter during his stint.

Two of Tekamah's three runs were unearned, one in the fourth when a sacrifice brought home two runners after men got on base on an error and a single. Another unearned run scored in the bottom of the sixth when a runner got on by an infield error.

In the Pee Wee game at Tekamah Wayne slammed the hosts with a 14-3 loss.
Wayne's Earle Overin hurled his way to eight strikeouts while giving up four hits and one free pass to first base. Meanwhile, the Wayne team went about smacking out 10 hits off the Tekamah pitcher. Getting more than one hit in the contest: Hansen with two singles, Nelson with a triple and double, and Overin with two singles.

The Wayne Midgets and Legion were scheduled to go up against Laurel in a home game Sunday which ended the regular Ralph Bishop League action this season.

Wednesday's Best Isn't Too Envious

Rounds of 38 turned in by Loren Kamish and Jim Marsh were the best efforts turned in during last week's Wednesday night golf league. No other golfers broke 40 in the late afternoon competition.

Leading the pack in the National League by half a point after Wednesday's action is the team of Chuck DeBermet, Wayne Tietgen and Bob Wilson. They are just ahead of three-somes Sid Hillier, Al Swan and George Gohlirsch and Jim Tietn, Roy Christensen and W.C. Corvill.

Tied in the American League at 19 points are the squads of William Selmgus, H. Suchon and D. Anderson and S. Ellis, Lee Tietgen and Jim Sturm.

2. Wisner Squads Feel Sting From Wayne Bats

The local Midgets and Legion charged up near identical victories over Wisner Wednesday, the Midgets winning by a 7-2 count and the Legion winning by a 7-1 count.

Wayne Magdanz pitched one of his finest games this season in the Legion win, posting nine strikeouts and only one walk while allowing three hits. All three hits were singles with two of them coming in the fourth frame to produce Wisner's lone score.

Outfielder Dennis Redel poked out three singles and scored two runs to spark the Legion squad to its win. The Wayne hitters slammed the total of nine hits off Wisner's koalmoo, including a double by Magdanz and two singles by outfielder Lynn Gunderson. Also hitting safely were catcher Hutch Meyer, outfielder Rick Ginn and third baseman Vaughn Korth.

Koalmoo fanned six Wayne hitters and walked one before giving up mound duties to Meyer in the top of the sixth with one out. Wayne scored against Koalmoo once in the first, third and fifth innings and then exploded for four runs in the sixth to knock him off the mound.

The Midgets posted their 14th straight win of the season in the opener—primarily because of a double-barreled effort by Rod Cook.

Cook hurled his way to eight strikeouts while allowing only four singles sandwiched between fine showing at the plate against Wisner's koalmoo. He scored three of Wayne's seven runs and rapped out three of seven hits—a single and two doubles.

Coming up with Wayne's other four hits were Lonnie Bittorf with a double and Mike Creighton, Mike Ginn and Bob Nelson with singles.

Wayne scored four times in the first inning on just two hits, added two more in the fourth and one in the sixth.

Jacobsen's Triple Aids Locals to 8-6 Victory

Wayne's town team broke a mid-game 4-4 tie on Randy Jacobsen's triple with two on and two out and then went on to scratch out an 8-6 win over Bloomfield Thursday night in Tri-County League action.

The win gives the locals a 7-5 record and keeps them in the upper half of the league. The loss washed out Bloomfield's hopes of gaining its second win in 13 starts.

Halted Sunday because of the all-star game at Overland, league action gets underway again this Thursday night with Wayne playing host to Randolph in an 8:15 tilt. Counting that contest, there are only four more games until the league play-off begins on Thursday, Aug. 6.

Two errors and a single by second baseman Ralph Forbes gave Wayne an early 2-0 lead in the top of the first. Bloomfield tied the game in the bottom of the opener on a double, a walk and a single off hurler George Eymon. Larry Hill's walk, Jacobsen's first triple of the night off Bloomfield's Jim Eisenhauer and Eymon's sacrifice in that second gave Wayne a 4-2 lead which stood until the bottom of the fourth.

The contest could not make its own burrow. Instead, it takes over an old badger digging, the abandoned home of a skunk, or woodchuck, prairie dog, or fox burrow. It does not need a deep tunnel and is content with little more than an overhanging roof.

Schellenberg Triples for Winside Win

A triple by Kirt Schellenberg in the top of the seventh inning broke a tie and knocked in the winning run to hand Winside Legion an 8-7 victory over host Pierce last week.

The victory, scratched out on Sunday, July 12, was the Legion's second win in 11 starts this year.

Big guns in that victory included Schellenberg with two hits in three at bats, Dave Langenberg with two singles in four attempts and Gary Soden with two singles in three at bats.

Soden also figured in strongly with three RBIs. Langenberg scored one of Winside's eight runs.

Doug Deck went five innings on the mound and held a slim 6-5 lead over the hosts before being relieved by Soden. Soden had no trouble in preserving that win, striking out five of the last six batters he faced.

Also rapping off hits against the Pierce hurler were Steph Carlson, Greg Troutman and Deck.

In the opener the Winside Midgets didn't fare as well, suffering an 8-0 whipping for their seventh loss in 11 games this year.

Pierce's Christensen held Winside to only four hits while his squad proceeded to knock out a dozen hits off Winside's LaDue Langenberg. Only Winside hitters able to tag Christensen were Dean Krueger (twice), Jon Behrmer and Dave Jaeger.

Winside was scheduled to travel to Pender Sunday in the final game of the regular season in the Ralph Bishop League.
