Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 10:30 a.m. in the First Presbyterian Church in Wakefield for 27-year-old Bernard Charles Kinney who died Sunday evening in a tractor accident on a county road six miles north and one and three-quarter miles east of Wisner.

Bernard Charles Kinney

State Trooper D.E. Ruppert of Oakland investigated the mishap and reported the tractor was eastbound when the right rear wheel apparently dropped off the road. The tractor over turned pinning the Wakefield farmer underneath. It is thought the accident occurred shortly after 5:30 p.m. when he was on the way to his farm located eight miles south and a mile east of Wakefield.

Kinney had competed in a tractor pull Sunday afternoon at Wisner and was enroute home. He was found around 9:30 a.m. Monday morning. Searchers had looked for him during the night without success.

The Rev. John Erlanson, pastor of the Concordia Lutheran Church at Concord, officiated at the 10:30 a.m. service Wednesday in Wakefield.

Thomas Sherlock, accompanied by Mrs. H.F. Paulson, sang "The Old Fugged Cross" and "How Firm A Foundation."

Tommy Gahl, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gahl of Winslow, had surgery Tuesday in Children's Memorial Hospital in Omaha for the removal of a tumor located at the base of the brain. Doctors told the parents that the tumor was malignant.

Residents of Winslow started a drive at the end of last month to raise funds that will help cover surgical costs. A total of $615.42 was in the fund as of Monday afternoon.

The Federated Women's Club at Winslow sponsored a bake sale Saturday at Hoeman's Plumbing to raise money for the fund drive. Bake sale profits amounted to $143.

All those desiring to contribute to the Tommy Gahl Fund may do so at any business firm in Winslow or at the Winslow State Bank. Persons in the Wayne area may take or mail their contributions to either the First National Bank or the State National Bank in Carroll, contributions to the fund are being handled by the Farmer's State Bank.

Wayne County Noxious Weed District board members will soon have a storage and office building at the east edge of Wayne if present plans reach completion.

Wayne County Attorney Don Reed said Monday that Carhart Lumber Company submitted the single sealed bid for constructing the proposed 40 by 40 foot building. Reed noted the bid was the only one submitted to the county clerk prior to the July 21 deadline. He said two other bids were submitted too late.

The accepted bid for the building was $7,035. The structure will be used for storing chemicals, equipment, vehicles and for office space. Attorney Reed said the bid carried the provision that if the Weed District does the finishing work in the office there would be a deduction of $345.

Reed said a definite site for the building has not as yet been decided, but the industrial site east of town is being strongly considered. He estimated cost See SINGLE BID, page 6.

Electricity Off Saturday Night Due to Vandals

About 1,200 Wayne County residents were without electrical power for more than one and a half hours Saturday night after an unidentified person or persons shot insulators of a power pole located a mile west and six miles north of Carroll.

Cal Comstock of the Wayne County Public Power District said Monday that after vandals destroyed the insulators by shooting them, the top two feet of the pole burned which dropped a cross arm and the wires fell to the ground. He noted that one of the insulators had a bullet hole in it made by a high-powered rifle.

People living in Carroll, Sholes and in the Hoskins and Pierce areas lost their electrical power around 8:40 p.m. Those affected by the vandalism are supplied with electricity from the Winslow and Sholes substations.

Damage and related costs were estimated by the WCPD manager to be around $2,000 for the district. Comstock said this amount would include the repairs, loss of sales and energy. He noted, "It's the consumer that has to pay the bill."

Nine local crewmen and six men from Columbus were called on Saturday night to make repairs and restore service. Comstock reported the men had to do the repair work under adverse conditions caused by wind and lightning.

When asked as to what reason anyone might have to shoot the insulators, the manager said, "It's more than thoughtlessness, it's a vicious vandalism."

Lightning Hits Hay

Winslow firemen were called to the Mark Beneshoff farm about 7:45 p.m. Saturday when lightning apparently struck a hay stack setting it afire. The stack was a complete loss.

The farm located two miles north and one west of Winslow is farmed by Alvin Longe and son. Neighbors of the Beneshoff farm summoned the fire department.

Verl Preston Named Miss Centennial

Wayne County now has a beauty queen.

Miss Verl Preston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jason Preston of Wayne, was selected by the judges in Monday evening's beauty pageant at the Wayne City auditorium to be Centennial Queen. Mayor Kent Hall crowned the 18-year-old beauty before a near capacity crowd of about 800.

Miss Preston was one of five finalists chosen by the judges for the title. Runners-up were Sheryl Wittler, first; Debbie Jaeger, second; Phyllis Miller, third, and Angela Paulsen, fourth.

Miss Jaeger, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jaeger of Winslow, was also named Miss Congeniality.

A total of 15 area girls competed for the Miss Wayne County Centennial Queen title. Each was judged in three categories. The girls first appeared in swimming suits, then presented a talent program and were finally asked a question for which they were judged for poise while answering.

Queen Preston chose a two-piece white bathing suit for the first round of competition. She sang "Thoroughly Modern Millie" combined with a 1920 Charleston dance routine in the second category and appeared in a pink evening gown.

Besides winning the queen title, Miss Preston won a $50 U. S. Savings Bond. Her first official duty will be to ride in the parade which will open the 1970 Wayne County Fair today (Thursday).

Beef Study Shows Feeders Producing Superior Quality

Cattle feeders of northeast Nebraska are producing superior beef as shown by their recent market study at Iowa Beef Processors at Dakota City.

Of 67 cattle studied, 17 won the coveted standard of choice or better quality grade along with No. 2 yield grade. Four feeders each produced two of these excellent cattle—Bob Boals of Dakota City, Dwane Holmeit of Waterbury, Vernon Knecht of Winnebago and Merrill Callahan of Pender.

Producing one excellent beef each were John W. Servine, Washburn; Merlin Holm, Wakefield; Alvin Westershold, Pender; James Troutman, Windsor; Willis Krusemark, Pender; Don Mayberry, Pender; Loren Lind, Newcastle, and Martin Bros., Emerson.

Feeders sharpened their skill in selecting high grading cattle under the direction of Eddie Kimbrell, USDA grader from Washington, D. C.

4-H Lass Named New Dairy Queen

Linda Baler, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Baler of rural Carroll, was crowned queen of the Nebraska-Lowa District Dairy Show held at the Norfolk Livestock Market Inc. Monday. She won over four other contestants and was crowned during afternoon ceremonies.

Mercury in local thermometers found its way back down the glass tube in the local area during the past few days after a period of high readings. It appeared that as the temperatures dropped and residents cooled off, the humidity decided to try its talent in reaching high percentages approaching 100 per cent Wednesday morning.

After a lengthy dry spell, residents have greeted several rain showers. The showers didn't bring a whole lot of rain but what did arrive was appreciated. Total rainfall for the past week amounted to .47 of an inch.

Northeast Extension Notes

The Pan Makes a Difference
Do your cookies, cakes and pies turn out just as you expect? Or are you getting pale cookies, crusty cakes and soggy-bottomed pies?

The trouble might not be the recipe, your oven or you. The pan you use might not be doing a proper job.

Blackened cake pans absorb too much heat. This causes the sides and bottom of a cake to become a crusty dark brown instead of soft and lightly browned. Glass dishes hold rather than reflect heat. For cakes baked in glass pans, reduce the temperature about 25 degrees.

Pastry-crust pies bake best in darkened tin, anodized aluminum pans or glass pans. These pie pans absorb heat very rapidly, thus baking the crust before the filling. A shiny pie pan reflects heat, therefore raising the lower crust to become soggy before it is baked.

Over-size cookie sheets interfere with proper heat distribution in the oven. There should be at least two inches of space on all sides of the baking sheet when it sits on the oven rack. If two sheets of cookies are baked at once, switch them around halfway through the baking time for even browning.

'Three Angels' Last Play of Season

In a hot, tropical, 1910 setting in Ezechi, New Guinea, Stage State Players will present this season's final show at Shore Acres Summer Theatre in Sioux City, "My Three Angels." The comedy opens tonight (Thursday) and will run Sunday with performances at 8:30 p.m. nightly.

An engaging and pleasantly posterous comedy, this is the story of three comets - two murderers and a swindler - who become good angels to a sadly harassed household. Ken Graffis, Dwight Meyerling and Fred Wington, accepting the roles played by Humphrey Bogart, Peter Cushing and Aldo Ray in the movie version, "We're No Angels," are employed by Fred Liddleike, who plays Felix Ducotel, a man in danger of losing his home and business because of his soft heart.

En route from France is a snarling cousin, Henri Frochard, played by Bob Hilligas, who is ready to oust Papa from the business. And accompanying him is a cold-hearted nephew, Paul, played by Kevin Hall, who is jilting Papa's daughter, Marie Louise, for an heiress - Marie Louise, portrayed by Phyllis Mausbach, insists that she is not being jilted at all.

With warm hearts, clever hands, sleepless brains and a common belief in the Robinson of man, the three comets set out to make things right, and conclude that it is easier to bump Scrooge off than to convert him.

Also in the cast are Linda Knoebel from Omaha, as Emille Ducotel, and Barb Pruten from Ewing as Mme. Parole.

Theatre patrons are invited to enjoy an air conditioned, "come as you are" atmosphere of the theatre, which is located just off Interstate 29 North on Riverside Boulevard. Group and students rates are available at the box office, open daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. for reservations and information. Phone 712-232-2788.

They had taken a two-day trip to Mt. McKinley National Park and spent another two days on a jaunt to Point Barrow on the Arctic Ocean, the northern most point in the North American continent. At Point Barrow, which can be reached only by plane, and where the sun shines 82 days in summer without setting, the group visited the largest Eskimo village in the world and were treated to caribou and reindeer steak. Buskirks reported Alaskan highways consisted of good gravel road for nearly 1200 miles.

Of Danish Institute

Riwanlan's meeting Monday for their weekly noon luncheon in the Woman's Club room heard Dr. Lyle Seymour of Wayne State College review activities he and 75 undergraduates participated in during a Nebraska-Scandinavian Institute in Denmark.
Seymour noted there were 10 students from Chadron State College, 10 from Peru State College, five from Kearney State College, and 50 students from Wayne State College who flew to Denmark early in July for a four-week program of study and visiting. He explained that the 75 college youths were undergraduates, a change from previous years when only graduate students participated.
The group attended a Danish Folk High School for one and a half weeks where they heard daily lectures on the culture of Denmark.
Seymour said they were greeted at Copenhagen by the Lord Mayor of the city. While there the group visited the American Embassy and in the homes of residents.
Students attended lectures in the morning hours and then went on tours in the afternoon during a visit at Oslo, Norway.
The collegians returned home from the institute at the end of July.
The state legislature has given the school systems in the state the authority to do that.

All nine Wayne batters got a chance to swing away at Wausa's Wilbeck in the top of the first frame of Monday's game. The result: Wayne scored five runs on the way to an 8-2 shelling of the Tri-County League leader. The loss was only Wausa's second in 18 starts this year. Monday's win tacked on to Tuesday's 2-0 squeaker over Orchard gives the locals second place in the league with a 13-5 mark at the end of regular season competition. An involved series of play-offs begin Sunday night, postponed from tonight (Thursday).

Wayne 500 100 002 - 8 14 1
Wausa 100 000 010 - 2 6 6

George Eynon pitched a four-hitter while striking out five and giving up two free passes in chalking up his last regular season win. Orchard's Dempster held Wayne scoreless until the top of the seventh when Denny Bowers led off with a single—his second in 18 starts this year. Monday's win tacked on to Tuesday's 2-0 squeaker over Orchard gives the locals second place in the league with a 13-5 mark at the end of regular season competition.

Wayne continued the rough treatment on the Wausa hurler, connecting for a total of 14 hits. Big sticks for the locals: Bowers with two doubles and a single, Tomjack with the same and a single, Tomjack and Mark Johnson, Jerry Wehrer and Larry Hill with two singles each. Tomjack held Wausa to six hits—four of them by Holmquist—while striking out one and walking five. Wausa's Wilbeck fanned two, walked one.

A fine defensive effort by Wayne shortstop Mark Johnson—11 assists without an error—and timely hits by three Wayne batters produced a 2-0 blanking of Orchard Tuesday night.

Parking Woes with Us Yet

Several people in Wayne woke up Sunday morning to find parking tickets on the windshields of the cars they left parked on the street during the night. Those who have received their first tickets will have to go to court if they receive two more during the next three months.

Police began enforcing the new 3-5 a.m. no parking regulations throughout the city after the city council decided to go with those restrictions rather than extend the grace period during which the regulations were not enforced.

However, those who are in favor of permitting parking on city streets all night should not become too disgruntled. The council recently decided to throw the whole parking problem back in the lap of the city planning commission. With help from some of the councilmen, the planners are to study the problem and to come up with a recommendation which is fair to the greatest number of people.

The council rejected recently the commission's recommendation that the midnight-5 a.m. parking restrictions be lifted in all but the northeast quarter of the city on a trial basis. The council decided instead to change the times when parking would not be allowed on the streets from midnight-5 a.m. to 3-5 a.m. Permanently.

At the next meeting the council quickly and unexpectedly decided to let the planners look at the situation once again.

We have taken an editorial stand in favor of restricting much of the parking on city streets. We reason that city streets are designed and made for one basic purpose: to move traffic quickly and safely. We contend that parking on city streets makes it more difficult to clean and maintain those streets, increases the danger to youngsters and families living in the area and makes the area less beautiful.

Although we are not sure exactly what should be done with the problem, we do recommend to the planners that they keep in mind our arguments for restricted parking. We think they are valid arguments. — NLH.

On the Top Rung

It's always fun to be first and at the top of the ladder in accomplishments. Our editorial congratulations to you men making up Company, First Battalion 134th Infantry of the Nebraska National Guard.

The company consists of men from Wayne and O'Neill who are presently training for two weeks at Fort Carson, Colorado. Saturday, during the Governor's visit and review, the Wayne-O'Neill Guard Unit received the coveted Eisenhower Trophy for 1969.

Getting the cup-type trophy means Company A was judged as the outstanding unit in the Nebraska Army National Guard last year. A board of officers appointed by the Adjutant General selects the outstanding unit. Among the criteria which the unit must meet and which is considered by the board includes maintaining 95 per cent of authorized strength throughout the year, having 95 per cent of the men assigned qualified in Military Occupational Specialty, maintaining an average of 90 per cent attendance at unit training, attaining attendance of 95 per cent at annual training, outstanding performance at annual training, passing annual general inspection and passing command maintenance management inspection.

There are more details that are also considered, but those mentioned are enough to help one understand it takes a crack team to qualify for the trophy.

In a time when mediocrity is all too popular, it is a genuine honor to have the home National Guard team on the top rung of the ladder. Our congratulations. — MMW.

'Section' Is Successful

Farmers and businessmen in the Wayne area were apparently more pleased with the recent "Farmer-Feeder Section" put out by The Wayne Herald than we had hoped they would be.

Several people commented that the section is something that is needed in this highly agricultural part of the state. Farmers need to know more about what other farmers are doing and thinking, and people not living on farms need to keep in touch with farmers because this area of the state is so dependent upon the farmer. The section, which will become at least an annual effort on the part of the news and advertising staff at the newspaper, is a good step toward both those ends.

Another reason we're pretty sure the section was well received was the interest shown by several businesses who had not advertised in it. Those businesses have expressed a desire to advertise in the section next year, showing the farmer that they also appreciate his importance to the area. — NLH.

What Kind of Mentality?

"It's not thoughtlessness, it's vicious vandalism," observed Cal Comstock, manager of the Wayne County Public Power District, while describing a $2,000 power outage caused by vandals shooting insulators off a power pole Saturday night.

About 1,200 Wayne County residents had no electricity for more than an hour and a half after the insulators had been destroyed. Those affected by the outage live in and around Carroll, Sholes, Hoskins and Pierce.

Fifteen crewmen were called away from their families and evening plans to make repairs on a pole located a mile west and six miles north of Carroll. Repairs were made in spite of high winds and an electrical storm.

What kind of defective mentality is enough off balance to endanger the lives and welfare of 1,200 people as well as his own?

Can you possibly begin to stretch your thoughts enough to imagine the inconvenience caused 1,200 people by the reckless attitude of one or more persons who have convinced themselves that it is fun to destroy private property regardless of how it affects others?

Isn't it a bit frightening to stop and think that somewhere in our fine county there are people whose combined intelligence could be stuffed through the eye of a needle? Some of those people have guns. Their fingers triggered a power failure that undoubtedly ruined Saturday evening plans for more than 1,000 people.

The stupidity of destroying insulators on electrical power lines can only belong to twisted minds. Anyone having knowledge as to who pulled the trigger should by all means report it to authorities before that person either kills himself or someone else. A mind that has no respect whatever for public property or the rights of others needs help.

Every such incident only leads to more ideas about gun control. But how can anybody control a gun in the hands of a person who apparently likes to destroy at will? — MMW.

Quotable Notables:

A good book is the precious lifeblood of a master-spirit, embalmed and treasured up on purpose to a life beyond life. — Milton.

The Bible is a window in this prison-world, through which we may look into eternity. — Timothy Dwight.

When he says a law is constitutional or unconstitutional he is right. Although his opinion isn't the final decision, he doesn't give an opinion unless he's absolutely sure.

No one bothered to test in court the old method of figuring high school tuition of which Mr. Meyer told the members of the legislative (which wanted an opinion) that method if tested in court would be declared unconstitutional.

I admire the rural people for getting it settled in court once and for all. I think they have fine schools in Wayne County and also real good teachers. Also, I admire District 17 for having fine schools. I also think Winside has a fine school too. — Claire Vogel

State's Communication Web Making Tremendous Progress

LINCOLN — "Tremendous progress" has been made in recent weeks in improving the reliability of the state telecommunication network under lease from the Nebraska Consolidated Communications Corp. (NCCC), according to Administrative Services Director Robert D. McManus.

McManus said the system, which is the first phase of what is expected to become a statewide network providing integrated telephone and radio service for state government, now has "a high degree of reliability."

Just how high is to be determined later this month when the federal Office of Civil Defense (OCD) conducts a comprehensive inspection of the system. The inspection is to see if the Nebraska network qualifies for a grant of civil defense money.

Failure in the system, which now serves only the southeastern quarter of the state, had led McManus to uphold payments to NCCC this spring. But, last week, NCCC submitted a bill for $58,986 covering service in March, April, May and June.

McManus said the state would pay half that amount. How much of the other half would be paid depended, he said, upon how the system checked out in the OCD inspection and how accurately NCCC made its deduction for system failures early in the billing period.

State officials under the direction of Telecommunications Director Stephen McGinnis have conducted a preliminary inspection and found the system in good shape. McGinnis said he is confident now that there will be a longer period of reliability because of engineering changes made by NCCC.

The "backbone" of the microwave system extends from Lincoln to Grand Island. According to tentative plans, the 1971 Legislature will be asked for funds to extend the system from Grand Island to North Platte and from Lincoln to Omaha—this bringing in about 85 per cent of the state's population.

Under the system, officials may speak from their desk telephones to field men with radios in their cars and representatives of various agencies may be interconnected by radio. Previously, messages from, say, the State Patrol to the Highway Department had to be relayed through operators.

Some county sheriff's departments and city police departments also have been tied into the system.

It is on the basis of the assistance such a network could be during an emergency that the civil defense grant has been offered.

OPPD Turbines Approved

The Omaha Public Power District, which serves a large portion of eastern Nebraska, has been given approval by the Nebraska Power Review Board to install three gas turbine generators.

The district said it planned to ask for permission to install the generators some time in the mid-1970's, but found it would have to accelerate those plans because of delays in construction of a nuclear-fueled generating plant at Fort Calhoun.

The nuclear facility had been due for completion in time for the heavy-demand summer season of 1972. OPPD Asst. Gen. Mgr. Ralph Shaw told the power review board, however, there now is no hope of meeting that schedule.

The earlier-than-anticipated installation of the gas turbine generators, however, would give the district the capacity to meet the power needs of that summer,

Shaw said. The turbines, each capable of producing 50 megawatts of power, will be installed in the Omaha area, but have the effect of permitting the district to meet the demands throughout its service territory. The cost will be about $17.9 million.

Water Standard Hearing Continued

The Nebraska Water Pollution Control Council will hold another hearing late this month to take testimony on proposed changes in the water quality standards for the Missouri River.

The proposed changes weren't put into final shape until just before a hearing recently and officials agreed with witnesses who complained they hadn't had time to study them.

As the standards are worked, secondary treatment of sewage dumped in the Missouri is required and disinfection of the discharges is called for "when needed."

Federal officials claim this doesn't go far enough. They say municipal wastes discharged into the river must be disinfected because downstream cities use the river for drinking supplies.

Nebraska is one of several states in the Missouri basin which is challenging the federal insistence upon chlorination or disinfection of sewage.

Nebraska Land Offices

With the signing of the Kansas-Nebraska Act by President Franklin Pierce on May 30, 1854, the area comprising present-day Nebraska became part of the public domain. The settlement of this land began immediately and was to continue until 1933, when the last U. S. Land Office in Nebraska was closed at Alliance. Throughout the period settlers acquired land under the provisions of the various land laws which included the Preemption Act of 1841, the Homestead Act of 1862, the Timber Culture Act of 1873, and the Kinkaid Act of 1904. In addition, large tracts of Nebraska land were set aside as railroad grants, school lands, or agricultural college grants.

The opening of land offices in Nebraska reflect the progress of settlement across the State. The first office was located at Omaha in 1854, and shortly thereafter offices were opened at Dakota City, Nebraska City, and Brownville. The period between 1890 and 1893 saw twelve land offices in operation at the following locations: Chadron, Alliance, Sidney, Valentine, Broken Bow, North Platte, McCook, O'Neill, Grand Island, Neligh; Bloomington, and Lincoln. Other offices existed at various times in Beatrice, West Point, Lowell, Niobrara, and Norfolk.

Once a settler had selected his claim, it was necessary to appear at the appropriate land office for filing. This was done at the earliest opportunity to prevent "claim-jumping" or selection by another settler, and the rush to file claims was often tumultuous. Dr. Everett Dick, in his from the wastes and secondary treatment kills most of the bacteria. Disinfection would make the sewage discharges almost pure.

But it also is expensive and cities have resisted that level of treatment because they say aren't convinced, as the federal government is, that it is necessary.

Municipal authorities claim so much gets into the stream from sources other than city sewer systems that it is a waste of time to spend the money purifying their discharges. They cite runoff from agricultural lands as an example of a pollution source that wouldn't be controlled by city plants.

The federal argument is, however, that tests have shown significant increases in pollution just downstream from major cities such as Sioux City, Omaha, Council Bluffs, St. Joseph and Kansas City. They say some disease-carrying bacteria do survive in the river from Omaha to St. Joseph, the next major city which takes its water from the Missouri basin which is challenging the federal insistence upon chlorination or disinfection of sewage.

Dutch Elm Disease? Future's Not Gloomy

Dutch Elm disease, the most destructive disorder known on the majestic American Elm, continues to spread westward in Nebraska and the United States. Diseased trees have been found in 76 of the 93 counties in Nebraska since 1960. The most recent confirmed cases this year are in McPherson, Keith, Perkins, Garden, Cheyenne and Kimball Counties. Several towns and communities are already taking steps to meet the challenges they will face within the next few years. The disease has appeared in eastern Colorado, in Wyoming, and as far west as Boise, Idaho. Will it continue to spread? Yes. So far as we know, the disease will probably occur wherever American Elms are grown, eventually. The fungus that causes Dutch Elm disease is carried by a beetle that feeds on the tender twigs, depositing the fungus in the feeding wounds. Neither the fungus nor the beetle are native to the United States. We therefore lack the evolutionary processes that result in a biological "check and balance" system. We have unwisely overplanted many of our towns to susceptible American Elms and then inadvertently introduced an extremely pathogenic fungus and its ideally suited insect vector to our shores.

Can Dutch Elm disease be prevented? A 4-point program, rigorously followed, will reduce the incidence within a community but will not prevent its occurrence entirely. The program includes sanitation (periodic pruning and maintenance of healthy trees and prompt removal/destruction of diseased ones), spraying once a year between Feb. 1 and the time of leaf emergence with methoxychlor, preventing root graft transmission of the fungus and replanting when necessary to a gain of mixed population of different kinds of trees.

Should most Nebraskans follow the 4-point program? No. Each town is a unique situation and final decisions have to be made utilizing the best information available tailored to the local circumstances. Enlisting the aid of local county extension agents is strongly recommended. They are in an excellent position to objectively evaluate the local situation, gather together the facts known about the disease, and arrive at realistic conclusions.

What about miracle drugs and "cures" for Dutch Elm disease? Several materials and methods of application have been claimed to cure Dutch Elm disease, or provide sure protection. There have been various and unknown materials injected into the trunks or buried in the soil at the base of trees. None of these so-called cures have been scientifically proven effective in eliminating the fungus from infected tissue or preventing the establishment of the disease. Some materials, in fact, present a hazard to treated trees and to children and pets.

While the future may appear dim, it is far from gloomy. There are more scientists working on this disease and its control today than at any time in the past.

Grain Bins Can Be Dangerous

"Quick Action Saves Farmer Buried in Silo." This is an unusual headline - not all grain bin accidents have a happy ending. After entering the bin to move the soybeans toward the outlet, the farmer began shuffling.

Although completely buried, fast action by members of his family, neighbors, the fire department and highway patrol troopers who hacked away at the base of the metal silo to release the soybeans saved his life.

A western Iowa family was not as fortunate. Just a few weeks after moving back to the family farm, a 12-year-old boy climbed undetected into an overhead bin during the emptying operation. The first indication of trouble was when the grain quit flowing from the outlet. A probe of the outlet chute detected the boy's feet and legs. At this point, his head was under several feet of grain, and despite valiant efforts to quickly remove him, he had already suffocated when taken from the bin.

A grain bin can be just as dangerous as quicksand, particularly during the period of time that the bin is being emptied. Grain flowing out of a bin can cause an individual, child or adult to be literally sucked into the discharge or bin outlet. This is true of bottom unloading type of grain or feed storage bin.

Without something to hang onto, it is almost impossible to keep from being drawn down by the moving material. Therefore, before you open the grain gate, always make a safety check. Be sure no one is in the bin and that everyone is aware that the unloading operation is underway.

It is always best to stay out of a bin during the unloading operation. However, if someone must enter the bin, it is recommended that another person be present at the entrance to the bin with immediate means for providing assistance or for shutting down the equipment, if necessary. Anyone entering the grain bin during unloading operations should have one end of a rope secured around his body just below the arms with the other end secured outside the bin entrance.

Another recommended safety feature is a ladder that is permanently attached to the bin floor or wall to permit inspection of the bin interior and to observe or assist grain flow without stepping into the material.

Bulk feed is particularly dangerous since it may bridge and cause a solid to form near the outlet. A good safety measure to follow is to remain out of the bin or on the ladder and use a long pole to break up the bridging. Mechanical vibrators may also be used to keep the material flowing properly.

Don't become a statistic or a party to the cause. Take the proper precautions. Safety doesn't just happen. Safe habits must be practiced and become a way of life.

Variations, Careers in Agriculture Will Highlight 4th NAYI Institute

A look at the nation-wide variations in agriculture and a view of career opportunities in the future of agriculture and agribusiness will be emphasized during the fourth annual National Agricultural Youth Institute (NAYI), which opened in Lincoln Tuesday.

One hundred thirteen delegates from 46 states and Puerto Rico will convene at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education for a week. Each out-of-state will spend three days at the home of a Nebraska delegate and all will make a final three-day stop at the Nebraska State 4-H Camp near Halsey. The institute ends Aug. 15.

"Discussions on pineapple culture, caribou migration, lobster fishing, maple sugar collecting and cotton picking indicated the wide range of interests which will be represented at the institute," Dr. John Orr, NAYI director, commented. Representation from almost every state, plus Puerto Rico, and the varied background of delegates, add a new dimension to the event, Orr noted.

First week activities will center on discussion sessions and talks given by recognized national leaders in agribusiness, research, education, farming and ranching. Delegates and agricultural authorities will exchange views on world agriculture, crop production, agribusiness associations, livestock feeds and agricultural chemicals, symposiums and panels will make new developments in agriculture, transportation and marketing, food processing and distribution, sales and promotion of agricultural products and farm credit.

After the first week of the institute, out-state NAYI delegates will be week-end guests of their Nebraska hosts. The Nebraska delegates will show their out-of-state friends what "life on the farm" is like in the Cornhusker State.

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

Mom, have you sat down lately and studied the pictures of advertised bulls in the various breed magazines? If you have, and if you truly love the taste and lasting flavor of quality beef, Choice to Prime beef, then you can visualize the backward step to quality oblivion.

I have viewed hundreds of pictures that theoretically stress the better feature of these registered herd sires. Every cow jockey from Montana to Oklahoma has steered bulls much better. Expensive advertising pictures of what was once considered junk.

Today's stress on bulls is on a with the Silt height and concentration, rump, finish, compared to beef females, Twiggy, the British model, carries an excess roll.

Since southern Texas oilmen and U. S. investors in Australia cannot produce finish, they do lobby and have pressured the USDA grading service and the Surgeon General's office until no one dare admit fat. Consequently, the ranchest, roughest, beef sire nightmares since jack-rabbits were preferred to the Texas longhorn and buffalo jerkie. Culls, strictly culls.

But, cattlemen following the cow college edicts are like the ladies following the fashion designers. Ladies' styles change every time each lady has spent her entire budget. Likewise, the new breed ideas and the mass push to imitate these red-muscled Colliaths are the fad for periodical change. Otherwise, how could the hustlers make the fast buck?

Remember the ankle dress, the shirt flapper, the calf length, the pleats, the puffs, the skin tight, the sack, the mini, the maxi? And now Paris and New York say time to change again. Also, remember the Durham, the two-way Shorthorn, the big Angus, the gigantic blends with 1800 pound international steer champions, then the university push to compactness, finally, dwarfs - mostly Angus and Hereford. Also, the six strains of Brahma-eraze, the individual promotion and profiteering of Beefmaster, Santa Gertrudis, Braford, Brangus - finally Charolais. Now, even the ridiculous push to dehydrate the industry, to implement, to infuse rejected magpies and yellow catfish bait into the beef industry.

Now, also the push to the Australian Murray Grey and the tasteless French and European breeds - known more for draft service than beef. Oh, Mom, I admit, tastier than a used Chevrolet pickup, but compared to a rose, a sunflower comes in sections - and even though both are creatures of God.

Limosine, Simoneath and Brown Swiss are good cattle. But, outside of size, name me the favorable beef quality characteristics. I criticize not these breeds - but, I do ask why should Angus, Hereford and Shorthorn try to imitate that which they are not?

Is a ton of coal worth a diamond? Both have nearly an identical carbon structure. So do all these cattle - they walk on four legs, have two eyes, two ears and one tail. But, genetically, why should the quality be surrendered to imitate the giants? I know I chant upwind, I know the Phineas T. Barnum-to-moms beat the tune, "Starker Farm Ever, Minot." Big, big, often undeserved profits are being made. The fast bucks for the guy with the gimmick. France is known for wine, fish, prepared cuisine, not steak. The gimmick is fine. But, Mom, if these are not fads, heaven help the cowman, for U. S. beef has become supreme by the corn-fed quality and flavor - not bulk. If the red meat cattle become dominant, then consumers can buy the equal taste with equal flavor from Australia, Honduras and even Turkey. And much cheaper. Also unlimited volume. Plus, that is the moment soybean derivatives, soybean polysaturates move on top the cowman. Soy steaks, Soyburgers. Soy roasts. Think not? That's what the butter people said, too.

advertising and promotion stress superiority - and difference? That eliminates merely red muscle. Do you think Cadillac and Michelob would fail to push their advantageous quality factors? Mom, it is not the size of the bottle that is mentioned - it is the superiority of the beverage inside. Not the Mack truck size of Cadillac - but the superiority. Next gimmick - the hippo, the elephant, the rhino - the exotic food push. Why not? Aren't they bigger? No marbling.

Wayne-O'Neill National Guardsmen Train in Colorado

Those 150 Wayne-O'Neill National Guardsmen who have been training for nearly two weeks at Fort Carson, Colo., in summer camp will return home Saturday morning.

The local men are some of 4,000 living in tent cities at the base of the Rocky Mountains south of Colorado Springs, Colo., fulfilling annual training requirements.

Amidst prairie dogs, rattlesnakes, rocks and mountain pines, men of Company A, First Battalion (Mechanized), 13th Infantry, have been eating, sleeping, training, planning and carrying out combat maneuvers.

The two-week camp is programmed annually to keep troops proficient in simulated war operations.

As troops moved into camp about two weeks ago, tent cities were built overnight, equipped with kitchens, garbage disposal systems, power plants, postal systems, policemen, water and gas utilities, hospital facilities, transportation systems and programs for restocking supplies.

Guardsmen had last Sunday off after a rigorous week of field maneuvers and solving attack problems. Artillery and atomic blast simulators are used against the aggressive forces in combat training.

The Governor's Day Parade was held Saturday morning. Seated on the reviewing platform with Governor Norbert Tiemann were Nebraska senators, numerous city mayors and military personnel. Wayne's Mayor Kent Hall was introduced along with other officials who watched nearly 400 mechanized military vehicles pass in review.

Guardsmen will complete the two-week camp Friday.

OUTDOOR KITCHEN—Sergeant Harvey Anderson of Wakefield, at right, is about ready to try out a meal prepared in the field kitchen. When the Guardsmen are away from camp working on combat maneuvers, hot food from the mess hall tent is trucked to them.
