There are days like that, have you had one lately? Such a day descended upon a lady at the courthouse a few months ago. She walked out of the courthouse with her new drivers license, got into her car, and rammed a parked auto. You just never know when those little gremlins of confusion are going to attack.

A young married couple arrived home in front of their mobile home in Wayne last week. They found it necessary to start playing the old game of 'Dear, did you pick up the keys?' Of course the one playing the game with you is the person who shared your wedding vows and the answer is always, 'No dear, I thought you had the keys.' 'But dear, you always lock the house and take the keys with your car keys.' 'No dear, my car keys estimate that there are likely 100 million planetary systems stars with planets in our own Milky Way Galaxy. Have you ever wondered if there are other places like Earth among those countless planets in space?

The sun is a nuclear furnace with surface temperatures of 5,000 degrees Centigrade. It discharges each second as much energy as would be released by 1,000 of the largest hydrogen bombs.

Earth has only one satellite, the moon, and we who dwell on this orbiting space station traveling at 18 and a half miles a second through the heavens have invented a space craft that will lift our feet off this planet and allow us to walk on the moon.

Astronomers tell us that if we could transport a 200 inch telescope from the Earth to the nearest star and look back at our sun, we would not be able to see any of the planets, let alone realize that one of the nine had life on it.

When we visit about stars and their size we must realize that in comparison planets become as interplanetary particles of dust. Man's optical equipment is primitive enough that he cannot see both elephants and mice with the same instrument. Man on Earth is still very much in kindergarten when it comes to a knowledge of space.

The board of education for the Randolph public school system has adopted a budget of $607,219 for the coming school year. The new budget exceeds the $559,852 budget of last year when the St. Frances Catholic School was still in operation.

For district taxpayers the budget means an increase in school taxes of about 18.5 a year — from 33.5 to 52 mills.

Gerry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald T. Perrin of Sioux City and Carol's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Petersen of Bloomfield.

After their marriage they remained in Koror two more years where both taught TES (Teaching English as a Second Language) under a government contract. "Teaching in Palau has been a good experience and we will miss living here very much," Carol said. "We are, however, anxious to see what it is like teaching in an American school."

Why, you might ask, would a young couple adopt three teenage boys?

"Well, you get hooked on it," Carol admitted.

Adoption is a prevalent custom in Palau. The first born of most families, for instance, is given to the grandparents on the mother's side shortly after birth. Carol was adopted by the family with which she stayed as a Peace Corps volunteer. Many American families in Palau take Palauan students into their homes.

Felix was one of Carol's students. "I promised him he could live with me if I came back," she said. "When Gerry and I got off the plane, there he was."

The Perrins' other two sons joined their household in much the same way.

Horror, the Perrins' home for two years, is like an American frontier town... "lots of bears". While the community has its own power plant, electricity and water are unreliable. "You'd just get used to having lights and water," Carol said. "When they'd go off - again, we caught and drank rainwater for months."

The Perrins also used kerosene lanterns on the days when the utilities weren't working. "Palau is literally a paradise in the survival sense," Gerry added. "Money isn't a necessity, the women raise gardens (taro and tapioca are the staples). There is never a lack of food. There's also very little disease."

"However," he added, "there isn't much profitable industry. And most of what there is, isn't by Palauans." New industries are tuna fishing and tourism, with its accompanying sport

Spending of the fund drive which is expected to get underway later this week, Richardson said. "We're going to start soliciting funds first from members of the Ikes around the middle of the week. We'll then be contacting other interested people in the attempt to raise the $3,000. That is what we will have to have to complete the renovation job."

Present plans call for removal of the remaining fish in the lake which are few in that the lake was drained a week ago. Dredging will be completed this fall and then the lake, after refilling next Spring, will be restocked with game fish.

Chairman Richardson explained that although the main lake bed was drained there are two existing ponds remaining containing 1,000 small bass and 200 catfish. He said these will be eventually transferred to a small pond near the lake bed to permit continued fishing next Spring while the new fish placed in the renovated lake get a chance to grow.

"We hope to have the $3,000 raised before the excavation is finished this fall," noted Richardson, "and it will take a lot of contributions both large and small to reach our goal."

Seminar -

Ray Mellor of Lincoln, director of volunteer probation services through the municipal court of that city, spoke Friday afternoon concerning the design of a volunteer probation program. Qualified volunteers work on a one-to-one basis with youths on probation. He pointed out that the most important thing we have found is that youths who return as offenders again and again have no meaningful relationships with mature people.

Mellor explained the program as one which projects the feeling that someone cares. He said youths involved in the program receive both individual and group counseling.

There are 70 volunteers presently working in the volunteer probation system in Lincoln. All sessions of the law seminar were held at Ramsey Theatre and overnight guests stayed in Bowen Hall.

Laurel Native Gets Scholarship for Study At Missouri School

William D. Mallatt, a graduate of Laurel High School, has received the Chrysler Corporation Scholarship for graduate study during the 10-week session at the Safety Education Center at Central Missouri State College in Warrensburg.

Mallatt, president of the South Dakota Drivers Education Association, is working on his master's degree in safety education at the Missouri school center. The center has the largest training program in the nation, with about 300 undergraduates preparing for teaching driver and safety education.

The center also conducts workshops for bus drivers, state highway patrolmen, sheriffs and others interested in driving safety.

Mallatt is a drivers education teacher at Washington Senior High at Sioux Falls. He received his undergraduate degree from Wayne State in 1960. He is married to the former Janet Holmes. The couple has two children.

The Score Is What?

Kenneth Gramberg and his 12-year-old daughter Tammy got in on the fun while tending the scoreboard during the benefit softball game played by Winside and Wayne firemen Wednesday night on the Winside ball diamond. Players and scorekeepers had a heyday as shown by a final score of 30-10 in favor of Winside. Firemen went to bat in order to help raise contributions to the Tommy Gahl Fund. Tammy, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gahl, recently had surgery in Children's Memorial Hospital for the removal of a tumor. Area neighbors and friends started the fund drive to help out with surgical and hospital costs.

'Mildew on Lawns Is Easy to Control'

Homeowners with lawns damaged by mildew this summer can control the disease with little bother, says Dr. John L. Welby, Extension plant pathologist at the University of Nebraska. Lawns damaged with mildew look as if they have been dusted with flour or lime, says Welby, and closer inspection will reveal a whiter powder-like growth on the blades of grass. New plantings and even established turf may be killed or the stand severely reduced if mildew is not removed.
