Baseball Fan Recognized

"I just love baseball." That's the response you get from Henry Wessloh of Wayne when you ask him what he thinks of the sport. For that reason — plus his serving almost without fail as a ticket taker for over 20 years — the Wayne Baseball Association Saturday night presented Henry with a plaque during the annual steak feed for members of the local baseball team. Henry could remember missing at least one game since he began taking tickets nearly 22 years ago. Reason: a broken leg. Said a member of the association: "Giving him the plaque is the least we can do for a person who has worked as long and as hard as he has."

Council Stands Fast on Sidewalk Decision

By Merlin Wright
A good football game on film may be viewed more than once and likewise the Wayne city council found itself going over the subject of sidewalks again Tuesday night. As the topical football was passed back and forth, mostly between some 42 persons present but with an occasional hand-off to a councilman, the conference ended with the same result as was reached in the previous council meeting.

Sidewalks will be put in right next to the curb along North Sherman Street if the majority of property owners want them located there. That was the decision reached by the council earlier this month in a compromise worked out with property owners and it was decided by the council to stick with the decision except for a minor additional change.

Council voted to leave the decision made at the last meeting concerning the sidewalks in effect and specifically pointed out that the majority of property owners in a block may determine whether sidewalks or curbs are to be installed on Sherman.

Councilman Darrel Fuchterh noted that the state passed legislation stating that a street with a parking lane may have approved curbs, but if there is no parking lane, then sidewalks are to be a minimum of two feet from the curb. He said the law is in effect this year, but without penalty. He explained however that failure to comply with the ruling during the year of 1971 would mean some loss of state funds.

Members of the housing authority reported to the council they are advertising for bids for the general contract work including plumbing, electrical, heating and ventilation, landscaping and site work for the low-rent public housing project.

The project consists of eight dwelling buildings containing 38 units and a community facilities building.

Bids on the project will be accepted until 2 p.m. Sept. 23 at the office of the city clerk. They will be opened and read the same day. A spokesman for the Housing Authority noted, "We feel we'll have the contract signed and construction started in the latter part of October."

Council continued the public hearing on the request by Wayne businessman Roy Corvill for rezoning a strip of land on the west edge of the city from agricultural to highway business. The public hearing was continued in that it had not been completed during the meeting earlier this month.

Legal council for Corvill submitted a petition carrying 24 signatures of local businessmen asking the council to consider granting zoning on areas adjacent to Wayne for business and industry. Wording on the petition noted that those signing it believe it is necessary for the development of Wayne—that highways adjacent to Wayne be opened for business and industry and not be limited to residential areas.

Picking Pointers
Ingredients for pickling fruits and vegetables need to be selected with care to insure the desired results. Correct measures or weights according to the tested recipes are also important.

Use pure granulated pickling salt for best results. Undiluted table salt can be used, but the materials added to the salt to prevent caking may make the brine cloudy. Avoid using iodized table salt as it may darken pickles. Use a high-grade cider or white distilled vinegar of 4 to 6 per cent acidity. The white distilled vinegar is desired when light color in pickled product is important. Do not dilute the vinegar unless the recipe so specifies. If a less sour product is preferred add sugar rather than decrease vinegar.

Either brown or white granulated sugar may be used depending upon the color preferred in the end product.

Use fresh spices for best flavor in pickles. Spices deteriorate and quickly lose their pungency in heat and humidity. They should be stored in airtight containers in a cool place.

Picking Pointers
Ingredients for pickling fruits and vegetables need to be selected with care to insure the desired results. Correct measures or weights according to the tested recipes are also important.

Use pure granulated pickling salt for best results. Undiluted table salt can be used, but the materials added to the salt to prevent caking may make the brine cloudy. Avoid using iodized table salt as it may darken pickles. Use a high-grade cider or white distilled vinegar of 4 to 6 per cent acidity. The white distilled vinegar is desired when light color in pickled product is important. Do not dilute the vinegar unless the recipe so specifies. If a less sour product is preferred add sugar rather than decrease vinegar.

Either brown or white granulated sugar may be used depending upon the color preferred in the end product.

Use fresh spices for best flavor in pickles. Spices deteriorate and quickly lose their pungency in heat and humidity. They should be stored in airtight containers in a cool place.

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

This year the National Open for the United States Golf Association chose Hazeltine Country Club near Minneapolis for their playing site. Forevermore, the adverse comments by Davey Hill, professional and eventual runner-up (second place), will be referred to and remembered longer than the ultimate winner. Criticism of Hill might have been right. Many golf courses that would make much better pastures are being selected for high convenience and potential real estate value rather than natural terrain.

Today, let us talk a little about low "pasture pool." If the Old Man says, "Hey, he's talking about me!"—untrue, Mom—but, maybe.

Golf for 90 years of cattle branding was known to cowhands as a sissy sport. Chase that little white ball—hub. That was for bankers, druggists, lawyers and panty waists. Let a cattle buyer expose a set of clubs in his car trunk. That oversight would cost from 25 cents to $1 a hundred, or worse, ordered off the place.

Then came catastrophe. Never forewarned specifically in the Good Book, golf was allowed to transcend natural resistance and today is a part of rural, yes even ranch country, America.

How? The government. To cut down crop acreage, recreational lands were arranged. Some lush, too. Some pastures that would not support 40 head of shortmouth ewes are supported enthusiastically today. Supported by an unbelievable heterogeneous unity of town and rural new style "sod busters" or "divot takers."

Feeders and ranchers that five years ago were too busy for coffee now get in a "hine" or an "eighteen" with every rain. Some even go to tournaments and ride golf carts. The quarter bred gelding just rests his head on the fence watching and restlessly kicks flies while the pickup heads for the club.

Our story: Tournament time. Scene: Out-West at any one of a hundred new clubs. A Third High match-between-qualifiers. Don Fagle, a Charolais-Angus cross-breeder, and Ezra Lewis, an old school die-hard Hereford breeder. Both have advanced playing with a cold-blooded competitive drive. Both wanted that twelve-inch, gold-colored cup. Go great with rodeo and fair ribbons.

Dressing apparel: For Don, loud and golf correct, straight from Haggard's best; for Ezra, blue Levi's; both wore spikes.

Don on some shiny two-toed, red and whites, Doug Sanders-endorsed knockouts; Ezra, an $80, eight-stitched pair of lizard-skinned cowboy boots with cleats added. Don went hatless. Ezra had a twelve-inch brim sombrero.

They rode together in an eight-horse power Cushman, a three wheeler. Neither hit gas savers: Don, long and wild to the left;

Ezra chopping right-twisting slice. The first nine played all even. Both accepted, without choice, the thigh-slapping jokers that "hurrahed" them as they ate the buffet styled food. The ladies' champion served iced-tea. The second tight winner served the chicken. Cost, incidentally, was 70 cents. Betiffs were freed. Dozens of neophyte golfers impatiently walked or swung a club outside the screamed porch ensembled in every color of the rainbow.

Time to tee off—second round—behind three long-haired, loose-gaited kids who blasted balls out of reason—cutting the 300 yard hole. Once they would have made good roping prospects.

Don up first, caught the unusual round of kablitzing which cracks, hit left on the right-turning dog leg. Ez gave three nervous coughs then topped the ball off the tee twice—no penalty while merely addressing tee off. Mom—then hit a dribble right into the wily rough. Ez took two iron clubs and Don sped away. Both met six shots later at the green.

"That rough would carry four yearling to the acre."

"Yeah, I got me in that rattlesnake gulch. Between grasshoppers buzzing and thoughts of those snakes and those old fence caluses in the wrong place, I couldn't get the ball out." Another tie hole.

"Say, Don, are we playing winter rules?"

"Don't know. Never played during snowtime. Just put the ball on a tuft any time you feel like it."

"A grant back."

"Want a chaw, Don?" They shared a half plug of Union Standard.

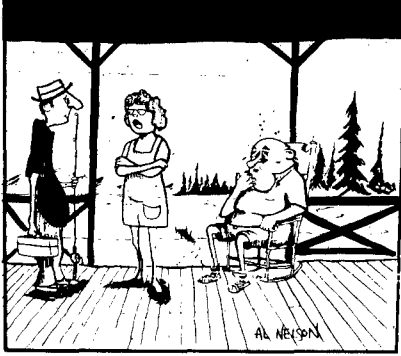

Through the twelfth, still even. Past the clubhouse. From the porch, the hecklers waved and cajoled. Unlike Hazeltine, unlike Pebble Beach or the Augusta National, the members were more baseball, more rodeo indoctrinated than the silent, fancy-drawer golf set.

On 13, Ez shanked out of bounds. On 14, Ez hit a ditch on the right side then hit two trees. I'll a 3-wood across the fairway, straight this time, into another free clump. Finally, a ten-2 down.

On 15, Don lost a ball in the left rough; Ez had an OB into the railroad right-of-way to the right. Tie hole. Ez still 2 down, 3 to play.

"Say, Ez, you getting some French Bulls next year? Surely would add 50 pounds to those sore eyes." Silence...

That started the action. Ez had once been the legendary all-time third baseman on the Loupington Bloopers—an expert chawer and expectorator. From then on, Don had almost unplayable lies. Even in the 30-mile hot wind, somehow, sometime, that white ball splattered or the putting line was breached. Sticky North Carolina sauce.

"The weather report back home was -112 and his bank has money loaned on 2 year old cattle!"

Two quick holes to Ez. Now all even and on the final hole. No pleasanties exchanged now, grunts either. Pressure.

Again Ez hit his "banana ball" toward the tennis courts. Don, a high blooper, the wind carrying it the first 150 yards. Ez slicked a five-iron expertly. His shot half-mooned around the wire fence. Don scuffed a wood 100 yards. Being out, (Mom, farthest away), he "duck-hooked" into the tree line. Ez, studying his grassy lie, skulled an eight iron. They rode 60 to 70 yards in complete silence.

"Say, Ez, you got a bull I want. You got one that's the right kind. He's near your barn. I need two or three like him to go on my registered F-helpers." Registration emphasis paid membership more than quality or purpose. Ez merely grunted.

"After our match, could I look Ez?" Another grunt.

Ez shanked. Don hit a tree and another, finally bending a nine iron to the left corner. Meanwhile, Ez whiffed, then dribbled, with top spin, to the right corner. Ez still out, putted six feet by. Don hit four feet short. Ez, in turn, lipped the putt below the cup. In anger, he spat in on and around the F-helpers' ball.

"Where's the rules committee? Need a ground ruling."

Five ranchers, a lawyer, and a furniture salesman were on the board. Confusion.

Was it an unplayable lie? Or ground under repair? Or perhaps casual water? Can't improve lie on the green!

Mom, golfers can move loose material on the green in line of putt, but no rule covers "in solution" or "in suspension." Ever putt through a sea of glue? Needless to say, the tournament committee is awaiting their fall meeting. Club opinions are sharply divided. Divided between the cross and the straight breeders.

As Ez tells it: "Don insulted me, my ancestors, and my cow herd. Why, he selected my hired man's runt calf from the milk cow! The runt! For a bull! My granddad started our registered herd in '86. In gunsmoke, we'd have shot it out."

Incidentally, I talked to "Big John" Tschenko, club president. "Is your club rated hard to play by the USGA?"

"Dunno; not to play, but rated hard to pay by the USDA. Interest payments alone surpass the total annual dues income."

"What about tourists seeking recreation?"

"Ez, they travel only the super highways, not the cow trails."

So, hopeless and unpaid for, golf is a great new rural way of life.

The Laurel stage band under the direction of David McFiro, will provide entertainment during the sale and feed.

Judging by the 1 cedar (only) Feeders Association will begin at the Laurel sales Pavilion at 1 p.m.

Any 4-H member who has shown a calf at a county fair may enter the show. Exhibitors will be judged for showmanship by members of the county association. Ray Switzer will judge each entry.

All calves being entered in the show and sale must be in the barn by 11 a.m. the morning of the affair. Sale of the calves

Area auctioneers will be calling for bids. Bidding is open to anyone in the area.

Slatted Floors Affect Gain of Station Swine

The amount of slatted floor on which market pigs are grown has a highly significant influence on feed efficiency, according to Bob Fritschen, area swine specialist at University of Nebraska Northeast Station east of Concord.

Fritschen reported on research involving 480 pigs which disclosed that when 25, 50, 75 and 100 per cent slatted floors were compared, the feed requirement per unit of gain increased in a linear manner with an increase in per cent of slatted floor.

He also reported that when comparing housing types and systems, the modified open front compared favorably with the environmentally controlled.

Performance in the one unit production system in both the modified open front and environmentally controlled was superior to the two unit systems. Laboratory diagnosis revealed that pigs grown in the two unit production systems had a much greater incidence of pneumonia than those grown in the one unit system.

In another fact of the study, Fritschen reported that while different amounts of slatted floors had no significant effect on bone breaking strength, the amount of time spent on concrete as related to age did have a significant effect on leg strength.

The pigs staying on concrete the longest had the stronger bones, he said.

Corn Should Be Irrigated Until Crop Is Well Dented

By Paul E. Fischbach
Extension Irrigationist
University of Nebraska

Irrigation should be continued on corn until it's well dented to assure this year's crop. Some irrigators are inclined to stop irrigating in August or early September and allow their crops to use much of the soil moisture in the top three feet of soil.

This may or may not be a wise procedure. On a soil with a deep clay pan, irrigating too late may cause harvest problems if heavy rains occur prior to harvest. However, on shallow sandy soils the crop will need irrigation water up until the time the corn is well dented.

On most well drained deep soils irrigation should be continued into September so the top soil will be moist during the winter for favorable freezing and thawing action during the winter months.

Grain sorghum in the soft dough stage should have another irrigation or have a full profile of soil moisture in the subsoil at this stage of growth. Adequate moisture at this stage of growth not only increases yield but also helps to reduce lodging at harvest time.

Sugar beets continue to grow and consume water up until harvest.

Alfalfa should be irrigated until a killing frost occurs. Alfalfa uses about four to five inches per ton. It requires two irrigations of 4 to 5 inches application to produce a two-ton cutting.

Off-season irrigation (September through June), is often practiced on alfalfa. Now would be a good time to irrigate alfalfa if water capacity is short.

In summary: corn will need to be irrigated until it is mature if on sandy soil. Irrigators may stop short of this if they have a deep fine textured soil that is filled to field capacity the last part of August or the first part of September.

Sugar beets and alfalfa need to be irrigated until harvest, or a killing frost occurs.

Plastic-Covered Haystacks
A plastic cover over a haystack out in the open may protect it from rain but pay for itself by covering it with a covering of plastic.

These are findings of South Dakota State University dairy researchers comparing hay harvesting and storage methods on 10 representative farms.

David J. Schingoethe, assistant professor at the South Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station, said the experiments were conducted because of a trend by some farmers in north-central areas to store hay out in the open, unprotected from the weather, in loose or baled stacks.

The covered hay retained more of its nutrients during storage until fed than the uncovered hay. On the basis of digestible crude protein conserved for feeding, the saving was enough to buy the plastic cover with a little left over.

"Nutrients and digestible dry matter composition of the hay at time of feeding were essentially the same for baled and loose hay," Schingoethe explained. "But loose hay cost a dollar less an acre to harvest than baled hay because less expensive harvesting machinery was used and a half hour an acre less labor was needed." He added that while plastic covers saved enough digestible dry matter to pay annual storage costs of baled hay, such was not the case with loose hay.

Farm Tax Management
Most Nebraska farmers get tax-conscious around the end of the year, but Extension farm management specialists have better advice.

The smart Nebraska farmer pursues sound tax management practices all year, they point out. Like other farm costs, income tax management costs can be reduced by good management. Unlike that of most professions, farm income is often variable. Price, weather and other factors sometimes cause extreme fluctuation of income from year to year.

Income may be slow one year that normal exemptions and deductions are not covered. The following year income in the same farm operation may place the operator in a relatively high tax bracket.

Research shows the less a farmer's net income fluctuates from year to year, the less income tax he pays over a period of years.

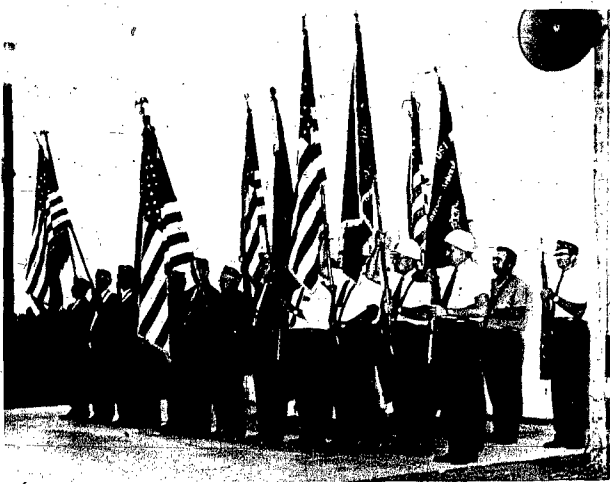

The goal in tax management is to maintain an annual net income at least equal to the year's allowable non-business deductions and personal exemptions, and to avoid unusually high income years.

Economists emphasize that the farmer need not be a tax expert. He should know enough about taxes to recognize the income tax consequences of a farm decision. Farmers have many opportunities during the year to make decisions that will affect their income for that year.

An up-to-date, complete record system is a must in tax management. With good records, periodic checks of income and expenses determine the approximate taxable income to date. Business decisions can then be made to result in the greatest net income after taxes over a period of years.

As an example, if a preliminary check indicates an unusually high net farm income, sales may be delayed beyond the end of the year, or deductible expenses increased before the end of the year.

Farm real estate value has risen 64% since 1958 for roughly the same acres. Farmers' real estate taxes rose 34% in the same period.

Kiwanis Club Learns

Of Research Project

Members of the Wayne Kiwanis Club in a room at the University of Nebraska, Northeast Station near Concord, that bleeding pig disease is apparently nutritionally induced and can be nutritionally controlled.

Fischer spoke to Kiwanis following a noon luncheon Monday in the Kiwanis Club room. He has written a paper entitled "Nutritionally-induced Hemophilia in Swine" which describes how the condition was set up at the station in a research program and how the swine disease is controlled. The specialist told the club that a synthetic source of vitamin K, menadiol sodium bisulfite, at the two gram per ton level was successful in preventing the condition. He used colored slides along with his lecture to illustrate research results.

Wayne Nine Downs Wausa 1-2-3 for Championship

A grand slam homerun by Dave Tietgen in the fourth inning in Tuesday night's action at Wausa shattered any hopes Wausa may have had for fighting their way back into the best three-of-five playoffs of the yearling Tri-County League.

The Wayne locals, a two-win favorite, clobbered the Wausa nine 11-4 after downing them 8-3 last Thursday and 11-8 in Sunday night action.

Wayne took a commanding lead in the first inning of the second ball game Sunday night when third baseman Jerry Hix drove in three runs, followed by runs by centerfielder Randy Jacobson and second baseman Ralph Forbes to give the Wayne nine a 6-1 lead after the first inning of play.

Wausa rallied in the third inning, scoring four runs on three hits to move within one run of the locals. In the fourth inning a single by Forbes widened the

Wayne nine's lead when he drove in Hix, on base with a double. Final scoring for both teams came in the sixth inning when Wausa scored two runs on a combination of walks and a hit pitch. Wayne tallied four more runs in the sixth when a triple by Hix brought home short stop Mark Johnson, catcher Gordie Jorgenson and rightfielder Dave Tietgen. Johnson and Tietgen had a free ride to the bases on a walk and an error, while Jorgenson singled to earn a trip to the bases. Hix added the final run of the game when he stole home to make the score 11-8 in favor of the Wayne team.

In the final game Tuesday night a grand slam home run by Tietgen put the game on ice for the Wayne team. The action in the fourth inning began when Johnson went to first base on a walk, followed by a single by Jorgenson. A walk by Jacobson then loaded the bases for a grand slam home run by Tietgen, the next batter up.

In the eighth inning when his double brought in Johnson and Jorgenson, who were on base with a walk and a hit pitch. Hix added another tally for Wayne in the same inning when he scored on a single by Forbes.

In the final inning of play Hix again was credited with two more runs following a score by pitcher Denny Bowers on a fielder's choice when he brought home the same duo. Johnson was on base through an error, while Jorgenson singled to earn a trip to the bases. A single by first baseman Denny Bowers brought Hix across home plate for the final score.

Bruised and aching muscles are being felt by many Wayne youths this week as the first week of football practice gets underway for the Blue Devils. Coach Allen Hansen reported that about 60 boys have been reported for action. Assistant coaches Don Koenig (left) and Ron Carnes are shown here putting prospective linemen through their paces.

Fisher New Country Club Champ

Chuck Fisher shut out two former champions to take top honors in the Wayne Country Club tournament Sunday. Fisher eliminated Don Sund after 30 holes of match play to win the final round of the tournament. Earlier in the tourney he had eliminated last year's champion Ken Dahl.

Both Sund and Dahl are former tournament champions, Dahl having won the championship in 1965, 1966, 1967 and 1969, Sund one time previously in 1964. After falling victim to Fisher in the semifinals of the match play, Dahl returned on the final day to take third place in the tournament, downing Kyle Willis, another newcomer to the championship flight in 33 holes.

Fisher will now have his name inscribed on the George A. Berres Memorial, joining the ranks of eight other golfers listed on the trophy since its beginning in 1967.

In the first flight of the tournament Dr. Sid Hillieraced out Alan Cramer to take home top honors. Cramer, down five holes after the first nine holes of play, was unable to make up the deficit in the final nine holes of play.

The second flight of the tournament is scheduled to be completed Friday evening, the first nine holes being played Sunday afternoon between Jerry Miller and Fred Gildersleeve. Miller holds a one stroke lead at the end of the first nine holes of the match play.

A sudden death playoff at the end of 18 holes of golf gave Dr. Wayne Wessel the edge over Doug Lyman in the third flight. Wessel downed Lyman on the 19th hole of play.

The fourth flight of the tournament saw Dale Gutshall nudge out E. B. Bornhoff for the top spot. Gutshall scored a decisive

5-4 win to take the first in the flight.

Two Stantonites, Russ Zient and H. Suchan eliminated all Wayne players to take the top honors in the fifth flight. Zient took the number one position in the flight, while Suchan settled for second.

The 16th hole proved fatal for Bob Fleming in the seventh flight of the tourney as he fell one stroke behind Jim Thomas. Although he was able to tie the last two holes, Fleming was unable to gain back the one hole lead held by flight winner Thomas, and ended up in second position.

The Wayne Country Club was scheduled to begin its team tournament last night (Wednesday), with the top four teams in both the American and National Leagues vying for Wednesday night golf league laurels.

The first stocking of fish in Nebraska was accidental. In 1873, a train carrying 30,000 live fish from New Hampshire to California plunged through a bridge over the Elkton River near Fremont, releasing striped bass, brook trout, channel catfish, yellow perch, walleye, and largemouth bass.

Saturday Will Open Rec Football League

Saturday will see the first of some 125 boys from grades four through eighth begin another season of recreation football. The program, under the direction of Hank Overin, city recreation director, will feature flag football for the younger boys in fourth and fifth grades, with regulation football for sixth, seventh and eighth graders.

Eighth grade boys will begin the program by checking out their football gear at the Wayne Boys Club above the city firehall. Overin said that the boys should be on hand at the club between 11 and 12:30 Saturday morning. Sixth and seventh grade boys—and those few eighth graders unable to check out equipment Saturday morning—should report to the club rooms Monday after school at 4 p.m.

The remainder of the first week following the check out will be spent in conditioning and practice, according to Overin. Monday, Wednesday and Friday are set aside for eighth grade griders, with the sixth and seventh graders meeting on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The fourth and fifth grades will meet every Saturday morning from 9:30 to noon for the flag football program.

Overin noted that rural young-

Golf Tourney Slated Sept. 6-7

Approximately 150 golfers are expected to be on hand at the Wayne Country Club Sept. 6 and 7 for the country club's annual Labor Day tournament, according to club officials.

The annual affair will be a 36-hole handicap tournament again this year, with an 18-hole qualifying round to be played on Sunday, and the final 18 holes to be played the following day. Championship round for the tourney will be made up of the low 24 golfers competing Sunday.

Over $2,000 in prizes will be awarded to the golfers, with trophies for the winners flight, plus prizes for the top four golfers in each flight.

Entry fee for the two-day affair is $15, which includes admission to a dinner dance, which is scheduled for Sunday night at the clubhouse.

Anyone interested in signing up for the tournament may call the Wayne Country Club at 375-9946.

sters are welcome to take part in the city recreation program. A $10 fee is charged to cover the entire year's recreation fees.

Thursday, Sept. 3 will mark the official fall opening of the Wayne Boys Club, according to the recreation director. The club, which will remain open from seven until 10 on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings is open to boys in both Wayne and surrounding rural areas.

Such pastimes as ping pong, pinball machines, weights, punching bags, table games and color television are available at the club.

Five Firsts Fall to Three Hoskins Men

Several Hoskins racers kept their reputation for being fast drivers around alive during the swivel as they pulled down first place honors on three area ovals, and finished in the money at other tracks in Nebraska and Iowa.

In action at Boone County Raceway in Albion Monday, Aug. 17 Bob Taylor, Gerald Bruggeman and Gene Brudigan of Hoskins captured a pair of firsts and thirds. Taylor took top honors in the first heat, while Bruggeman beat all comers in the second heat. Bruggeman went on to take third place in the A Feature race in Albion. Brudigan also made a showing at the Albion track, taking third place in the third heat.

In the championship races at Boone County Raceway last Wednesday, Bruggeman swept the field, taking first place in the second heat, first place in the A Feature, and first in the season championship. Bruggeman also garnered more points than any other racer on the Boone County track.

At the Clearwater Speedway last Thursday night Bruggeman again took home all the money, winning first in the second heat and first in the A-Feature race.

He traveled to the Platte Valley Raceway in Columbus on Sunday night to take second spot in the first heat and third place in Platte Valley's A Feature. Racing fans at Collins Field in LeMars, Ia, saw Hoskins racer Gene Brudigan pull down third place in the second feature and fourth spot in their A Feature race. Brudigan returned to the Riveria Raceway to take runner-up spot in the A Feature at the Norfolk track Sunday night.

Teal Pamphlet Now Available

Now is the time to start stalking teal. But, until the Sept. 12 season opener, hunters should leave their scatterguns at home and arm themselves instead with binoculars and literature to help them hone up on duck identification, according to the Nebraska Game Commission.

Proficiency at identifying teal in the field is the key to a successful hunt, and a bit of pre-season practice on the state's marshes and ponds is one of the best ways for hunters to acquire this skill, according to the Game and Parks Commission. Native teal can be most found on suitable water in most parts of the state, and more should be present when migrants from the north arrive, probably in early September.

During their pre-season trips to the field, hunters can refer to several books and field guides available from Hbarles, Bun, perhaps the best publication for their purposes will be the teal identification guide sent by the Game Commission with teal permit.

Hunters can get their special free teal permit and the teal identification guide by writing the Game and Parks Commission, State Capitol, Lincoln, Nebr. 68509. The request should include the hunters' name, address and county of residence. Limits for the Sept. 12 through 20 hunt are 4 teal daily, with 8 in possession. Shooting hours are sunrise to sunset.

Rainfall Needed for Successful Waterfowl Hunting Season

Success of waterfowl hunters in Nebraska this year will depend in part on rainfall between now and the opening of the season, according to Game and Parks Commission biologists studying the state's wetlands areas.

Water in the Sand Hills is quite low in all but a few localized spots and some bodies have dried up completely. And, the rainwater basins of south central Nebraska are dry in all but the deepest parts. Irrigation runoff has helped keep some of the areas wet, but the irrigation season there is nearing an end.

The biologists were quick to point out, however, that the picture could change almost overnight. One or two heavy downpours in these areas, or a period of rainy weather, could fill the Sand Hills ponds and rainwater basins with duck and goose-attracting water in time for the fall seasons.

The first waterfowl season this year will be the special early teal season, running from Sept. 12 through 20. Water in the ponds and marshes by opening day is needed for good results, since the teal prefer these small, shallow bodies.

But, even if the rains do not come, the hunting outlook is not entirely pessimistic. Dry conditions in the rainwater basins work against waterfowlers, but improve the pheasant hunting there.

Men Still Needed for Volleyball

Those men over 25 who are interested in recreation and exercise this fall still have time to sign up for recreational volleyball, according to Hank Overin, city recreation director. The league, which is scheduled to begin Sept. 14 with an informal organizational meeting and practice, still has plenty of vacancies, he noted.

Overin said that if enough men express an interest in playing volleyball, at least four teams of seven members each will be formed. The program, new to the recreation league this fall, is intended to fill the gap between the summer softball league and winter's basketball. The league would last until about the first week in November.

Games are scheduled to be held at 7 and 8 o'clock every Monday night in either the National Guard Armory or the city auditorium, both of which have shower facilities.

Overin said that anyone interested in joining the league may either phone him at 375-2584 or simply report for the opening night's meeting September 14.

'70 Wildcat Team Strong

Optimism was the right word to describe Wayne State football coaches after the first two days of field practice this week.

Head Coach Del Stoltenberg and staff greeted about 80 players for Monday morning rigors, and by day's end Stoltenberg allowed himself some smiles.

"We're ahead of last year's early sessions already," he said. "Spring practice certainly helped. We have more size and quickness, and more experience. I think most of the boys showed up in pretty good condition too."

Coach Ralph Barclay, who has masterminded Wayne's strong defense for five seasons, rates the 1970 crop of defenders as the best yet. "We even have some depth, with good players in all the backfield spots," he said. "The defensive line was hardest hit by graduation—both ends and the nose man gone—but some promising prospects are ready to take over," Barclay noted.

Among 13 lettermen returning are all the backfield starters, both offense and defense, from last year's team which lost its first four games, then finished strong at 4-4-1.

Offensive backfield regulars who accounted for most of the 30-point Wildcat scoring average in 1969 and will be Vikings again this year are tailback Sam Singleton, the No. 1 rusher at 836 yards a year ago; fullback Jerry Luedtke, No. 2 rusher and most valuable player on offense; quarterback Marty Goding, who passed for 719 yards and six touchdowns; and wingbacks Mike Wise and Jim Leach, who played a lot as freshmen last year.

Stoltenberg said these regulars will get stiff challenges from several newcomers, including a flock of junior college transfers.

Defensive backfield veterans include halfback Doug Radtke, Charlie Ross, and Charlie Wendt, who also did the punting last year; linebackers Bruce Cramer, Reggie Smith, and Doug Anderson. Singleton also may be used at defensive half, if needed. He played defense nearly full time last year as well as offense.

Singleton, Luedtke, and offensive end Jon Roberts are co-captains, elected by the team after the 1969 season.

Besides Stoltenberg and Barclay, the coaching staff includes Don Pate, in charge of offensive backs, and Roger Bentley, the offensive line, plus graduate assistants Bob Zolner and Doug Barclay.

Wayne opens the campaign at home September 19 against Kansas State Teachers College of Emporia, a team which last year routed Wayne 56-0.

Khalwaleh's homeland has a lot of hills and rolling country. He said Jordan is about 660 miles long and 218 miles at the widest point. Amman is the capital with approximately 500,000 population.

The youth is a Moslem. He said most Jordanians youth become members of that faith between the ages of eight and ten.

Under the AFS student program the host family budgets for their guest's food and lodging, fares to and from the host family, holiday and farewell presents in accordance with its own way of living.

The local AFS Chapter contributes $850 to AFS International. The student's own family contributes what it can afford plus clothing, luggage, transportation in his own country, and medical expenses for pre-existing conditions.

The school generally furnishes transportation to and from school, school lunches, school books, supplies, yearbook, class photographs, school activity fees, graduation expenses, school trips, gym suit and equipment.

American Field Service International pays for the overseas plane fare, students' personal allowances of $16 per month, medical expenses except for dental and eye care, illness due to pre-existing conditions, and preventive inoculations.

AFS International also pays for the pupil's arrival and departure expenses and orientation, transportation fares within the U.S., baggage charges and end-of-year bus tour costs. Khalwaleh is rapidly becoming acquainted and, according to Scott Niemann, he is a good hand at playing ping-pong.

The AFS student will study at Wayne High this year and after a tour of the U. S. next summer, he will return to Jordan.

Disabled Vets Get Pay Boost
The Veterans Administration released today the new rates for monthly compensation payments to veterans who incurred disabilities during military service. Under the new law signed by President Nixon Aug. 12, compensation payments for most of two million disabled veterans will be hiked from 8 to 12 per cent, retroactive to last July 1. Mr. Nixon, Director, said that under the new rates, compensation to veterans with a 100 per cent disability rating will be raised from $400 to $450 a month. Those with a 90 per cent rating will be increased from $226 to $250 a month; 80 per cent disability, $201 to $223; 70 per cent, $174 to $193; 60 per cent, $147 to $163; and 50 per cent, $122 to $135.
Other increases are as follows: 40 per cent, $89 to $96; 30 per cent, $65 to $70; 20 per cent, $43 to $46; and 10 per cent, $23 to $25 a month.
Nixon said veterans will receive their regular monthly checks for August on Sept. 1, computed at the old rate. Later, in early September, most veterans will receive another check which will reflect the retroactive increases for July and August. The following month regular monthly checks will include the increases.
He stressed that since the increased payments are automatic, veterans need not contact the VA to receive them.
The 12 per cent increase goes to totally disabled veterans, including those who also receive additional compensation for such disabilities as deafness, blindness and the loss of, or use of arms and feet.
The additional allowances for dependents of veterans rated 50 per cent or more, also are being increased, he said.
The Director said that the new law also permits restoration to compensation rolls the remarried widows of veterans whose remarriages end in death or divorce. This provision becomes effective next Jan. 1.
Another provision, which would affect comparatively few veterans, would presume certain illnesses of former prisoners of war during World War II, the Korean Conflict, and the Viet Nam era to be service-connected for purposes of compensation payments, he said.
