Top Steer Brings $42.10 at Laurel

A youngster from Hartington, Dennis Milander, showed the champion steer and earned top money in Tuesday night's annual calf show and sale at Laurel. Taking championship honors for heifers was Lori Hartman of Dixon.

The all-day affair, sponsored each summer by the Laurel Chamber of Commerce, attracted nearly 1,000 people during the evening's barbecue and sale. Del Hanson and Harold White, in charge of the barbecue this year, Nebraska turned out to help with the sale.

Milander's animal went for $42.10 a hundredweight to Yankton Production Credit Association. The sale price was over $12 above the Spencer bid of $30.

State National Bank of Wayne bought Lori's animal for $36 a hundredweight, nearly $10 over the Hormel bid of $27.75.

John Burney, another Hartington youth, showed the reserve champion steer. His animal was purchased by the Hartington Chamber of Commerce for $37.50. Hormel bid $29.75.

Hartington placed a third youth among the top when Greg Wolfe's heifer was named reserve champion. See TOP STEER, page 6

'Drought-Damaged Corn is Valuable'

Drought-damaged corn may be nearly as high in energy value as normal-corn silage. That's the conclusion Harold Ingalls, Wayne County agricultural agent, draws in his column on the Farm Page of this issue of The Wayne Herald. Ingalls explains how forage handled correctly should give no problems because of nitrate content and how the maximum value from it can be realized. Farmers with broad fields of corn should find the column interesting and informative.

Comp's Out, Lab's in at Wayne State

The teaching of writing will have a new approach at Wayne State College this fall. Gone from the curriculum is the former Composition I course, now replaced by a Writing Laboratory.

Dr. Laura Franklin, head of the English Department, said the laboratory will concentrate on instruction in writing to correct whatever weaknesses each student revealed in an English proficiency test. In past years, Composition I included considerable reading of literature along with writing.

Incoming freshmen who attended one of the college orientation programs this summer took an English proficiency test which measured competence in four major phases of writing—organization, sentence structure, grammar and vocabulary. Students who scored above the 75th percentile overall are not required to take the Writing Laboratory.

Students enrolled in the laboratory will get individualized instruction on their special writing problems. When they demonstrate by another proficiency test that they have conquered the problems, they leave the Writing Laboratory and receive credit for it, Dr. Franklin said.

There will be no failures in the lab course. However, students will continue in it until they achieve satisfactory writing skill.

Upperclass students weak in writing can eventually enroll in Writing Lab, as openings are available. Dr. Franklin said, and any professor may advise a student to take the lab.

The English faculty met Tuesday in conference with three visiting consultants who have had experience with the writing laboratory method—Mildred Sleasman of Western Midland College, Fremont, and Esther Glenn and Darlene Conover of the Kansas State University English Department.

Your Place in the Stars

by Tom McDermott

About a year ago I picked up a copy of a dictionary of superstitions, expecting to find astrology misplaced in it. Sure enough, it was there among tea leaves, palms and cards.

I was curious to find out what the author held astrology to be, even though I knew I wouldn't agree. Apparently the author of the dictionary (it really wasn't a dictionary—more like a hard bound leaflet) hadn't done his homework, like so many, many others who criticize astrology, or anything for that matter.

The author, well-heeled and certainly no intellectual, repeatedly spoke of the "constellations of the zodiac" having really no influence on us humans, etc., etc. Calling the SIGNS of the zodiac the CONSTELLATIONS, as this author did, was entirely incorrect. Ask any professor of astronomy at Wayne State!

Astrologers themselves know full well that they are concerned with the astrological signs of the zodiac, not the astronomical belt of constellations which forms another zodiac. The two zodiacs are not one and the same. When you gaze into the sky at night, picking out constellations, you're dabbling in astronomy, not astrology.

Why the difference? Why was the author of the dictionary of superstitions wrong? The answer: because of an astronomical phenomenon known as the precession of the equinoxes (the clockwise movement of the equinoxes against the sky) the signs of the zodiac no longer are the constellations of the zodiac, as they once were eons ago. (Actually, the two zodiacs were one and the same some time in the third century.) Today, the difference between the astronomical zodiac and the astrological zodiac is about 24 degrees—enough to make a considerable difference. Therefore, the ephemerides used by astrologers do NOT show a true picture of the planets as they appear in the sky. Such ephemerides (star books) as the U. S. Nautical, which is, of course, not for use by astrologers, are correct inasmuch as they do show a true picture of the sky.

I should point out that a handful of western astrologers do use the constellational zodiac instead of the usual astrological one, believing it to be more accurate. These astrologers are called "siderealists" and are rebels in the eyes of most "tropical" astrologers (we straight who stick to the older methods). Hindu astrologers—and there are thousands—use the sidereal (constellation) zodiac exclusively, also.

So, the next time you hear mention of the constellations of the zodiac, show your intelligence by not mentioning astrology.

Dear Tom: I think that even more interesting than astrology are the teachings of Christ. I have studied many subjects: astrology, being only one, reincarnation, the occult, numerology, palmistry, graphology, dreams, psychology, the colors, mental telepathy and religion. Everything to gain a complete knowledge of life. All the answers, and all the searching has served to lead me back to the Divine Creator! I believe that faith, above all else, is the ultimate answer. I guess we seekers want to get to the bottom of all things in order to truly understand. But how beautiful our Master is to allow us such a broad scope of understanding!

I have had also prophetic dreams from age 14 of things to unfold in my life. They have only been of the states of experiences which had to be met for definite purposes in order for the soul to learn. Sincerely, Mrs. L. P. (Iowa). This letter reminded me to again tell you that I welcome questions. They need not be signed. Send them in care of this newspaper.

Cost of Food at Home

It cost six per cent to nine per cent more in March than it did a year earlier to purchase similar market baskets of food. Under a low-cost plan it cost seven per cent to eight per cent more, under a moderate-cost plan six per cent to seven per cent more and under a liberal plan seven per cent to nine per cent more.

Estimates of the cost of standard items which provide well-balanced meals similar to those commonly eaten in the U. S., are prepared quarterly by the Department of Agriculture. Costs are based on the Departments' estimates of specific amounts of each of 11 groups of food. No allowances are made for meals or snacks eaten out.

Examples of low-cost plan in March were $30.80 for food for one week for a family of four with school children, and $18.30 for a family of two between 20 and 35 years of age.

The liberal plan for food at home was estimated to cost a family of four with children in school $49.30 and $28.50 for a family of two between 25 and 35 years of age.

Revived League Will Give Team 'Incentive'

The Nebraska College Conference is alive again, and Wayne State coaches think that's fine, because the teams will have a championship to play for.

The State College Board of Trustees voted Monday in Lincoln to revive the NCC immediately with the four state colleges as members. The conference had been deactivated in June, 1969, after Hastings College left, reducing it to four teams.

Wayne State Athletic Director LeRoy Simpson hailed the revival, even though the league, with only four teams, does not qualify as a conference under rules of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. The NAAI requires at least five colleges in a conference.

The NCC, organized in 1945, had a varying membership over the years, up to 10 colleges participating in the late 1950's.

Dr. Simpson said the revived conference may become the nucleus for attracting other colleges, in Nebraska or surrounding states.

Football Coach Del Stoltenberg likes the renewed conference. "It will give the teams more incentive."

More Days, Larger Limits Highlight '70 Hunt Season

NEBRASKA hunters can look forward to more days in the field and larger bag limits on most species of game this fall, with the seasons set by the Game and Parks Commission recently.

A statewide 72-day season has been set for pheasants and quail, running from Nov. 7 through Jan. 17. Bag limit on cock pheasants will be three, with a possession limit of 15. Quail hunters may bag eight birds daily and have 16 in possession.

goose and one Canada goose or its subspecies; two Canada geese and their subspecies. The remainder of the bag may be filled with snow and/or blue geese.

Starting Jan. 1, the bag limit on cottontail rabbits will be reduced from 10 to seven and the possession limit lowered from 30 to 21. And, the cottontail season will close on Feb. 28. Squirrel season will be open from Sept. 1 through Jan. 31, with a bag limit of seven and possession limit of 21.

Grouse season has been set from Oct. 3 through Nov. 15, with a daily bag limit of two and a possession limit of six.

A total of 1,700 permits has been authorized for the fall wild turkey season, from Oct. 31 through Nov. 15. The special permits will be issued for Niobrara and Round Top units.

With waterfowl populations at their highest level in recent years, Nebraska duck and goose hunters can look forward to an interesting season. A special point-system for ducks will be in effect statewide. The duck season will run from Oct. 10 through Dec. 18 east of Highway 83 and from Oct. 10 through Jan. 7 west of Highway 83.

Shooting hours for the fall and winter seasons are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset for deer and antelope; sunrise to sunset for ducks, mergansers, coots, wild turkey and the special teal season, and one-half hour before sunrise to sunset for all other species.

Mink and muskrat trapping seasons will open Nov. 15 and run to March 15 with no limits. Beaver may be trapped from Dec. 1 to Feb. 28, except in a small portion of the southwestern part of the state, where the season will run from Dec. 1 through Jan. 3.

Billfold cards with season dates and bag and possession limits should be available shortly from permit vendors across the state, as well as from Game and Parks Commission offices and conservation officers. Complete details on the seasons will be found in the 1970 NEBRASKA Land Hunting Guide, which should be available in late September.

2nd in Iowa Fair Pull

Doug Nelson of Wayne, using a 3010 John Deere, finished second in the 5,000-pound division in the tractor pull at the Iowa State Fair in Des Moines last week.

About 30 tractors were entered in the 5,000-pound stock class. Winning the event in an Oliver 1650 was Ted Eriksen of Rock Valley, Ia.

Goose season was set for Oct. 1 through Dec. 15, with a daily bag and possession limit of five. However, the limit may not contain more of the following species than (a) one Ross' goose, (b) in the alternative, one white-fronted goose; one white-fronted Arbor Lodge, the home of J. Sterling Morton, was given to the people of Nebraska by the Morton family in 1923. It is now administered by the Game and Parks Commission as a historical park.

'Yes I Can!' 'No You Can't!'

Some grudges are going to be settled tonight (Thursday) on the Wayne ball diamond. And benefiting from it all will be young Tommy Gahl of Winslow, now recuperating from surgery for the removal of a malignant brain tumor.

The grudges are between the volunteer firemen from Winslow and Wayne and between players on the Wayne Ice and Cold Storage team and the Wayne High faculty team.

Wayne firemen lost a rather decisive softball game to their counterparts at Winslow nearly two weeks ago. But the game, played before a fairly large crowd at the Winslow diamond, resulted in nearly $150 being collected to add to the fund that has been started for the young Winslow youth.

The high school faculty team recently lost "by eight or nine runs" to the local softball team.

Action will get underway at 8:15 tonight between the two firemen teams. The other game will follow.

Tommy, now an out-patient at the Methodist Hospital in Omaha, was able to spend the past weekend at the home of his parents in Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. George Gahl.

While an out-patient, he is staying with his father's brother and family in Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gahl.

Young Gahl is getting along "pretty well" following surgery, reports his parents.

The fund for the boy stands at over $1,200. Donations may be left at the Winslow State Bank, Farmer's State Bank at Carroll or at either the First National Bank or the State National Bank in Wayne.

Youths Can Now Enter Grid Contest

Registration blanks for the coming Hunt, Pass and Kick contest are now available for boys eight through 13 years of age who would like to compete in the contest.

The blanks — and the 18 trophies which will be awarded to the winners — are at Wortman Auto in Wayne, local Ford dealer who annually sponsors the contest.

Last year young Steven Lahr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lahr of rural Wakefield, advanced through local and zone competition before losing out in the district competition at Omaha.

Top winners in each of the six age divisions in the local contest at Wayne will earn the right to advance to the zone contest set for Oct. 10 at Fremont. Winners there move on to the district affair at Omaha on Oct. 17 and winners there go on to the area contest at Minneapolis on Dec. 13. Winners of the area affairs go either to New Orleans or Oakland, Calif., for the Dec. 20th semifinals, winners of which compete in the finals during the NFL All-Star game at Los Angeles on Jan. 24.

The local contest at Wayne this year will probably be held on Oct. 3 or 4, depending on the Wayne Lions Club, the group which yearly supplies the manpower to put on the contest.

Trophies will be handed out to the first, second and third place winners in each of the age groups during a special dinner for the youths and their parents shortly after the local contest. That dinner is put on by Wortman Auto.

Youngsters 13 years of age can enter the contest as long as they do not turn 14 by Jan. 24, 1971.

Task Mer, Race Won for Brudigan

Gene Brudigan of Hoskins was faced with a formidable task Friday night — rebuild the blown engine in his stock car in time to compete in Sunday's round of action at Riviera Raceway in Norfolk.

He not only completed that task, but did a fine mechanical job along the way. The result earned him a first place in the big A Feature on the Norfolk oval and a third place in the third heat.

Brudigan and Gene Wagner of Norfolk battled for first place much of the time in the A Feature before Wagner finally lost second gear in his transmission. Wagner managed to scrape out a second place in the race despite the disadvantage.

Also racing to point placings in Sunday's competition at Norfolk: Don Lau of Pflug, second place in the B Feature; Warren Jensen of Coleridge, fourth place

$2,000 in Prizes To Tourney Winners

A total of $2,000 in prizes will be handed out to the winners in the two-day Labor Day golf tournament at the Wayne Country Club.

The tournament, a 36-hole handicap affair again this year, will open on Sunday, conclude on Monday. An 18-hole qualifying round will be played the first day and the final 18-hole round the following day. The top 24 golfers after the first round will make up the championship flight.

Entry fee for the tourney is $15, which includes admission to the dinner dance Sunday night at the clubhouse.

Golfers interested in signing up for the action should call the clubhouse at 375-9946.

Laurel Farmer Boats Big Mo In Nine Days

A Laurel farmer, Ralph Gould, has finally completed one of his lifetime dreams — to take a boat trip from the mouth of the Missouri River at Glasgow, Mont., to Sioux City.

Making the trip with him was his 18-year-old nephew, Danny Gould of Laurel, and the James Peterson family of Vermillion, S.D.

The trip began on Aug. 6 when the group left the launching ramp at Fort Peck. The Goulds used a 15-foot boat with an 80-horsepower motor. The Petersons traveled in an 18-footer with an 80-horsepower motor.

On the nine-day adventure the two groups visited all six dams on the upper Missouri River: Fort Peck, Garrison, Oahe, Big Bend, Fort Randall and Gavins Point.

The Peterson family consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Peterson and their son James Scott. Mr. Peterson, teacher business law at the University of South Dakota, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gould, Keith and Arlin accompanied Ralph and Danny to Fort Peck and returned home by car after touring eastern Montana and fishing along the way.

Christian Coop Program Is Set

Cooperative Christian Ministries, located at 312 East Thirteenth Street, Wayne, is getting its fall program underway with a full schedule of activities for Wayne State College students. The CCM was brought into existence several years ago through the combined efforts of Wayne churches.

The Rev. Paul Belmers, Lutheran Campus Ministry, said the CCM building will be open from 8 a.m. until 11 p.m. daily except when the center is open longer periods on weekends. Mrs. Robert Sutherland is CCM secretary this year and will be in the office four hours each day.

A folk sing has been scheduled at CCM Sunday evening, according to Pastor Belmers. He said beginning Sept. 13 there will be 5 p.m. suppers followed by films or discussions at 6 p.m. each Sunday evening.

Pastors of Wayne churches take turns in serving as counselors each week day afternoon at the CCM house.

Pastor Belmers noted that the fall schedule of the Cooperative Christian Ministries will include a Tuesday evening theology seminar at 6:30 p.m., an inter-personal relationship group at 6:30 p.m. on Thursdays, an 8:30 p.m. Bible study class on Thursdays, and an informal fireside-type program on Friday evenings.

Wayne State College students interested in the Cooperative Christian Ministries are welcome to inquire about the program at the CCM house, Pastor Belmers said.

Summer Jobs Less Plentiful in '70

Jobs for young people were less plentiful this summer than last, according to a report published today by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The total number of 16-21 year-olds employed this summer was 11.2 million, down 210,000 from 1969 and the same as in 1968. At the same time, the youth labor force increased, due mainly to the return of young men from the Armed Forces. As a result, unemployment among youth rose by 410,000 between this and last summer to 2.1 million, and their unemployment rate rose to 16 per cent, compared with 13 per cent in 1969 and 14 per cent in 1968.

In addition to the added number of unemployed young people, there was also a large increase in the number of youth remaining out of the labor market this summer, partly due to discouragement over job prospects.

Although employment of youth in service-producing industries (especially in retail trade) increased substantially from a year ago, the increase was not enough to offset declines in employment in goods-producing industries and government. Of the 13.5 million 16-21 year-olds in the labor force, approximately 84 per cent were employed this summer, compared with 87 per cent last year and 86 per cent the year before.

Christmas Seal Contest Slated

Nebraska artists have been invited by the Nebraska Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association to enter the annual nationwide competition for the design of the Christmas Seal.

A $1,000 cash award will be given the artists whose design is chosen to spearhead the annual drive against emphysema, tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases and air pollution. The design itself will appear on the Christmas Seals mailed to millions of U. S. homes during the holiday season. It also will appear on posters, billboards and television screens, according to Delmar H. Seraff, Executive Director of the Nebraska Association.

The 1970 Seal, created by Gerald Snyder of California, goes into the mail this fall. The 1971 Christmas Seal, now in production, was designed by James J. Clarke, also of California. Deadline for entries is Oct. 1, 1970.

The Wayne (Nebr.) Herald, Thursday, September 3, 1970

Contest rules and information, and copies of the Christmas Seal designs from 1967 to 1970 are available from the Nebraska Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, 406 W.O.W. Bldg., Omaha, Nebr.

Such well-known artists as Stevan Donahoe, Heidi Brandt and Dale Nichols have contributed Christmas Seal designs in past years," Mr. Seraff said, "but the national contest has also been won by artists just beginning their careers. We hope that a number of Nebraska artists will submit their ideas for the Christmas Seal. Any combination of colors is acceptable."

Foreign Journalists Tour Points in Nebr.

Top travel writers and photographers representing 15 foreign countries arrived in Nebraska Wednesday for a five-day look at what the state might offer their travel-minded readers in their native countries.

Twenty-four journalists strong, the group's first stop is Scottsbluff. Nebraska is the final leg of the tour of Old West Trail Country which is sponsored jointly by the Old West Trail Foundation and the U. S. Travel Service of the Department of Commerce. Before coming to Nebraska, the writers visited Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming. The Nebraska portion of the western-gear tour was arranged by the Game and Parks Commission, the state's official tourism agency.

While in Scottsbluff, the reporters will gather facts and photographs at Scottsbluff National Monument for their homeland newspapers and magazines. Their stay in the Panhandle city will include a dinner and reception courtesy of the Scottsbluff Chamber of Commerce.

North Platte and Buffalo Bill State Historical Park are the next day's agenda, along with a chuckwagon cookout sponsored by the North Platte Chamber of Commerce. Then, the journalists will be taken to Kearney to retrace the steps of frontier troopers in a visit to Fort Kearney State Historical Park. An evening reception and dinner will be hosted by the Kearney Chamber of Commerce.

Harold Warp's Pioneer Village in Minden, one of the nation's top 20 tourist attractions, is their next stop. There, they will walk through the world's largest single collection of Americana. That afternoon, the group will tour the Museum of the Prairie Pioneer in Grand Island, then after a reception and dinner hosted by the Grand Island Chamber of Commerce, they will pitch tents for the night, camping out at Mormon Island State Wayside Area.

Next stop is Omaha, where Boy's Town, the world's largest stockyards, and the Strategic Aerospace Museum await them. The Tourism Council of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce and the Omaha Press Club will jointly host the group's stay in the Gateway City.

Countries represented on the Old West Trail tour include: France, Holland, Italy, England, Norway, Denmark, Ireland, Germany, Mexico, Hong Kong, Japan, New Zealand, Australia, Brazil and Argentina.

2 Injured In Mishap On U. S. 20

Two Concord residents were treated at the Wayne Clinic for injuries received around 4:45 p.m. Saturday in a two-car accident occurring two miles south and a mile east of Martinsburg on Highway 20.

Trapper J. B. Vosten, Nebraska Safety Patrol, reported Edward W. Kirchner, 69, received severe facial lacerations and Bertha C. Vollers, 59, had lacerations on both legs. He said both were passengers in a 1964 Chevrolet driven by James K. Kirehner, 17, of Concord.

Vosten said the driver of the other car, a 1969 Chevrolet, was John L. Pearson, 21, of Waterbury.

The investigating officer said both vehicles were westbound and the Pearson auto was making a left turn onto a county road a mile east of the junction of Highways 9 and 20 when hit in the rear by the Kirchner car. Vosten said Kirchner was attempting to pass the Pearson car at the time of the mishap.

Estimated damage to the 1969 Chevrolet was $900 while the Kirchner auto was estimated to be a total loss.

3 Attend Meet on Retarded Children

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sitzman of Wayne and Mrs. Otto Miller of Hubbard, members of the Northeast Nebraska Association for Retarded Children recently attended a mental retardation leadership and manpower development sequence at the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute at the University of Nebraska Medical Center in Omaha.

Subjects included: Ideas behind vocational services and cost-benefit concepts.

The old concept that all mentally retarded must live in institutions or in their own homes is no longer true, the trio was told, for those who are quite self-sufficient may live in an apartment and work at a job with a minimum of supervision. Hostels, boarding homes, sheltered workshops and intensive training serve for those who require more supervision.

The mentally retarded must live and work in the most normal way possible, according to the speakers. They can be taught to work in factories, as maids or janitors, in laundries and in food services. They have a low rate of absenteeism and once they have been taught to do a job they seldom change their work pattern, they noted.

In the evening a slide lecture by Dr. Wolf Wolfensburger illustrated the difference between the institutions in the United States and those in Denmark. Denmark cares for its retarded in as normal a situation as possible, using hostels, apartments and boarding homes and job placements with minimum supervision. Those who are physically unable to live in this way are cared for in small institutions. Retarded people in America are living in overcrowded institutions regardless of the degree of retardation with no chance to live a more normal life, according to Dr. Wolfensburger.

Coming Weekend May Be Last for Nine Nebraskans

Labor Day weekend traditionally offers Americans their last summer fling. But in 1969 the final long summer weekend was the last holiday ever for eight Nebraskans killed in traffic accidents.

Those comments come from the AAA Conhusher Motor Club, which predicts that as many as nine Nebraskans may die on state roadways this Labor Day weekend.

Nebraskans could easily reverse the deadly trend set in previous holiday weekends, the club notes, by heeding just a few simple precautions.

Drivers should be more careful when they are near home, says the club, for 77 per cent of the deaths which occurred in wrecks between Memorial Day weekend and July 19 happened within 25 miles of home.

Also, drivers should use seat belts at all times when driving, warns the organization. Only three per cent of the 74 people who were killed in the period of the study had seat belts on.

Finally, notes the club, a disproportionate number of young people are being killed on the highways. Of the 74 dead, exactly half were less than voting age, even though young drivers make up only 21 per cent of the motoring population.

Treated feed should never be fed to livestock or poultry. It should be stored away from feed and in a place where neither livestock nor children have access to it.

DENNIS MILANDER of Hartington showed this sleek champion "honor" in the annual Laurel calf sale Tuesday night. The animal brought $42.10 a hundredweight from Yankton Production Credit Association.

DIXON'S Lori Hartman took championship honors for this halter in Laurel's annual calf sale Tuesday night. State National Bank of Wayne paid $36 a hundredweight for the animal.

NOXIOUS WEEDS THISTLE VIOLATIONS
Ellsworth Carlson, Chief Weed and Seed Division, Lincoln, Nebr.

This thistle control under the present mandatory weed law is now in its fifth year. Success of diligent and appropriate efforts of farmers and ranchers provides evidence this weed can be controlled and infestations reduced to negligible numbers. In some instances, total eradication has been accomplished.

All thistle infestations not appropriately controlled as of July 1969 are, of course, in violation of the noxious weed law. The hard work and money spent by people sincerely trying to bring thistle weeds under control must be protected.

A. All present infestations, inappropriately controlled or recorded and the people in charge be advised accordingly.
B. Appropriate fall spraying is strongly urged.
C. Any and all serious infestations be sprayed this fall, even if legal notices be issued and the local weed control authority must take the necessary physical action.
D. Consideration be given to using misdemeanor or fine provisions of the law where indifference or carelessness constitutes the major reason for weed law thistle violations.
E. Cooperation of the general public be requested as a means of providing the county weed control superintendents with locations of existing infestations.

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786

Students First, Athletes Second

A few more days and high school students in Winslow, Wayne, Wakefield, Allen and Laurel will be donning protective equipment for their first football game of the season. Most people will concede that there are good and bad aspects to competitive athletics at the high school level.

The student, if he is of much worth as an individual, will set some high goals for himself on the football field. If he doesn't attain those goals, he will feel disappointed and angry with himself. At the same time, the student will have high goals set for himself by his classmates and by the adults he is friendly with. As with the goals he sets for himself, he will feel disappointed and angry with himself if he doesn't attain these goals.

There's nothing basically wrong with a person reaching for something which makes him put forth a little extra effort to attain. In fact, it's often a healthy sign, indicating that the person is not content to go through life taking only the things at arm's reach.

However, it is wrong when these goals he is trying to reach, whether set by himself or those around him, are too high and too difficult for him to attain. This, sad to say, often happens in sports. And all too often it is those about the youth who are setting the goals too high.

How often last year on the football field or the basketball court did you see parents and relatives of the players complain about an official's call, moan about a poorly executed play or comment that the kid in the action looked like an amateur. Probably too often.

High school athletics are amateurish—they're there for the pure enjoyment they can provide to the athletes. They're not there as a stepping stone to bigger and greater things. And they're not there to provide the sports fans with their weekly meal at the arena.

Our youths in high school are students first and athletes second. We would all be much better off if we repeated that to ourselves before each athletic event we attend this year. — N.H.L.

Where Would You Live?

Ghettos, pollution, bumper-to-bumper traffic, racial problems, brutality, murder and sexual assaults are only a few of the problems which plague large cities. Is it any wonder many city residents are thinking about moving back to rural areas?

All of Wayne County, when compared to New York City and Los Angeles, is a rural area. We are small out here on these rolling prairies of the midwest and we like it.

Concern for other human beings, or call it neighborliness if you like, is one of the greatest natural resources in existence. We have lots of it in Wayne County.

Another thing Wayne County has going for it is that it isn't crowded and people still depend upon their neighbors to be building blocks rather than stepping stones.

Illustrating a point of aggressive involvement and progress, note that Hoskins and Winslow each has a rescue unit now. It is very likely these villages are the smallest in the state to boast of having rescue squads. How did they get them? They did it themselves because they were concerned about the welfare of those in need.

Is the village of Carroll giving up in a struggle to survive? Hardly. Those folks just completed a new fire station and started right in on getting a complete new sewer system installed. They are preparing for a solid future.

Wayne is busy getting a new low-rent housing unit built and preparing to welcome about 3,000 college youths back to one of its largest industries—Wayne State College.

Maybe the city slickers are right. Perhaps we do live "in the sticks." We've taken the sticks, of course, and constructed a county in which people may live as humans rather than as animals.

May those living here in the west never sell it short. Our geographical location alone is a priceless treasure. There is room here to be free. You can't beat that. — M.M.W.

End of a Weekend

It is forecast that more than 500 Americans will end their Labor Day weekend in the cemetery. Your family's survival will depend upon your ability to drive with a high degree of professionalism.

Traffic fatalities during past Labor Day weekends have turned it into a "holiday of horror." Your family's safety on the highway is only one wrong turn of the wheel away from disaster. Because of the annual slaughter that turns highways into dieways, newspapers, radio and television people are reminding all motorists to drive defensively using a maximum of caution.

Will Wayne County motorists be able to go through the Labor Day weekend without a fatality? Only those who assume the responsibility of getting behind the wheel have the answer.

We all have a lot to live for so let's not throw it all away with a few seconds of "I didn't see him coming." — M.M.W.

Quotable Notables:

The newspapers! Sir, they are the most villainous — licentious — abominable — infernal — not that I ever read them — no — I make it a rule never to look into a newspaper. — R. B. Sheridan.

Four score and seven years ago, our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. — Lincoln.

Nebraska's Graveled Highways Target for Roads Department

LINCOLN — The State Roads Department has leveled its sights on one of rural Nebraska's biggest gripes — the gravelled state highway.

If the construction planned for the next six years, as announced this week, is completed on schedule, there will be only 67.5 miles of state highway left without a hard surface by 1976.

Going into this year, there was more than 900 miles of road on the state system with only a gravel cover.

During the fiscal year which ends next June 30, projects 40-pave 231.3 miles of presently gravelled road are scheduled. The department says it plans to spend $17.8 million on those projects.

During the following five years — with no annual target dates for individual projects — paving is to be laid on 523.6 more miles of gravelled highway at a projected cost of $49,765.

Furthermore, engineering and right-of-way purchasing is scheduled on 43.1 miles. This will cost an additional $305,000.

State Engineer Marvin L. Nuernberger said the department is doing its best to convert the gravel to dustless surface throughout the state highway system as swiftly as possible.

Another of Nuernberger's targets is the state highway which received only a thin layer of asphalt during a previous policy of staged construction. The old idea was to put a dustless surface — even if it wasn't thick enough to last long — on as many miles as possible to provide at least some help.

Nuernberger said this policy has forced the posting of many rural roads each spring to limit the amount of weight trucks could haul. Axle-snapping chuckholes also are common on these roads.

The state engineer says the new policy is to build each road to specifications all at once.

During the six years covered in the plans announced by the department, Nuernberger says, "we will get rid of nearly all gravel roads, we will get rid of nearly all posted roads, we will have completed the Interstate Highway well within the five year cycle, and we will be started on our freeway-expressway program."

The program designed to meet these aims involves 478 contracts for work on primary and secondary roads, 164 Interstate projects and a total cost of $316.3 million.

The schedule was laid out on the basis of expected income. If more money becomes available, Nuernberger said, the department may be able to accelerate its program.

The state engineer is campaigning for a change in federal statutes which would bring more money into Nebraska as it completes work on its Interstate. Unless the change is made, the state — because it will be one of the first to and Interstate construction — won't share in the distribution of federal money now ticketed for work on the super highway.

Needs for the construction programs — on the state and federal levels — is provided almost entirely by highway users. It is taxes paid on fuel, vehicle purchases and registration which put the dollars in the road-building funds.

During the current fiscal year — which actually began last July 1 — the department has scheduled projects costing $73.3 million. There will be 183 contracts for work on the state highways and 38 more for the Interstate.

In addition, $22.6 million is to be spent for recreation, secondary local road systems, maintenance, administration, research, building and grounds and other highway-oriented needs.

All told, the highway department plans on spending $95.5 million before the end of June.

From a dollar standpoint, the biggest project on the list for this year is a 14.1-mile improvement of U. S. 6 between Waucoma and Palsade in the southwest corner of the state. That project carries a $1.7 million price tag.

Close behind in cost is a $1.8 million job on Nebor. 32 between Petersburg and Nebor. 38.

Most of the Interstate contracts this calendar year were let before the fiscal year began July 1. The next big series is slated for letting in the fall of 1971 — after the end of the current fiscal year.

Therefore, "only" $9.8 million in Interstate work is scheduled in fiscal 1971, covering only 8.8 miles.

In addition to work in the Omaha area on the metropolitan Interstate complex, the major project of 6.5 miles of I-80 between Sunol and Lodgepole in Cheyenne County.

The bulk of the other work involves lighting, guard rails, landscaping and rest area improvements on Interstate mileage already open to traffic.

Nebraska is slated to put all its Interstate work under contract by 1973.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I am a handicapped veteran, living on a small pension. My vision and hearing are slowly leaving me. The doctors say they can do nothing, so I have made hobbies to keep busy and fight off periods of mental depression and dependency which seem to plague me most of the time.

While I am collecting very old valentines and old post cards, I am also collecting rare old calendars and advertising cards in hopes of writing a book about the items I collect and earn enough from it to get off this small VA pension and have medical care, which the VA is unable to afford me, so my hobbies have a dual purpose.

Living on limited funds, I depend on friends and others for the items I collect and was wondering if any of your readers may have any old valentines, old post cards or rare old calendars they do not want, because I would be happy to have any they may care to send me and be glad to get them.

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddle Collins

Have you seen that TV ad, that peaceful, rural Wisconsin scene of Holstein cows, a modern dairy? A soothing voice comes softly as a stroked milk stone. But, about them, a porcupine-quill hits the dairy industry.

What message does this voice deliver? A margarine—a particular brand-name margarine—is proclaimed the pick of the dairymen of Wisconsin! Ouch!

Then, a knife eases into the pound carton of twisted yellow margarine, and finally it's spread on bread to the drone of old "Honey Voice."

The better people, after World War II, sat on a throne of Quality Eating. Complacent, above challenge, above reproach, the dairy people and dairy products were as essential as womanhood, God, the flag, the Pledge of Allegiance and daily work. Promotion was not needed. Was not all animal nature based on milk? Who could improve, or even claim to improve, on the primary essential of life itself?

So dairymen sat back—safe from competition. Safe until the big companies developed an inexpensive, potentially profitable substitute of similar, though artificial, taste. And hired lobbyists in Washington.

Still no worry. The voters of the U. S. surely would never permit an impurity on their table! Mom, what dairymen failed to understand were politics, money, man and the impact of advertising.

First, politicians opened the door—just a crack—for color, margarine, an appeasement, a compromise. Now, even the TV ads claim complete capitulation.

And Moms, the same thing could—and probably will—happen to cattle. Reason: cattlemen continue to sit on their complacent rear quarters. They permit open doors. Even encourage it. Let's take a look...

Import beef, plain and rarely inspected, not only flows into the U. S. at a price-breaking volume but at a compromise of rate. Increase is based on equal proportions to domestic beef growth, regardless of the fact that America could and should eventually supply all the domestic need. If an effort is made to increase home production two, three or four per cent, the imports also increase proportionately.

Cattlemen cannot accept the responsibility of self-sufficiency. The main concern of the USDA is to the consumer. Not only a price debilitate, import meat is used in most chain stores, most chain restaurants, most city hamburger joints. Up through puberty, American kids eating out usually consume a foreign beef product. Cultivate a taste, accept a non-quality standard.

And guess what, Mom, the American cattle producer played observer when professional lobbyist Clark Clifford persuaded Mayor John Lindsay and Senator Javits to outwardly campaign for Australian beef. Results: USDA compromise by organizational executives. Big deal, too.

A 50 million pound increase allowed from Australia? But, we did get alleviation. Australian beef, going through Canada was restricted—about one million pounds. Big deal—a 50 to 1 compromise. A moral victory, like Montana 1 losing to Michigan by only 72-6, scoring on the ninth team in the last seconds.

Meanwhile, in America, the campaign continues. "Fat Beef," belittles the Meat Institute. Great Import, too (at no expense), while American cattlemen support the program by a per head deduction.

Mom, imagine this advertisement possibility. On TV the Galloping Gourmet comes on. Screen shows a feedlot filled with Angus and Hereford choice finished steers. Then it shows a cowbelle or two in suspicious mini skirts. A Marlboro husband drives off in a camper.

The voice: "Across the cattle country, discriminating housewives know the difference. Like a connoisseur of import wines, Madame has learned to select either the 'Juicy Joey' or the 'Darwin Dry'—better because it's closer to nature. Never exposed to DDT, nor to herbicides, nor to pesticides, never breathing smog. Actually, a health food. And, Madames, not but a fraction higher than fat, American, grain-fed animals condemned by doctors of the U. S. Health and Dept.

"Australian aborigines live to be a hundred eating the same grasses our cattle eat."

Then the camera turns on a TV model, Nat.

Or, even worse, in 10 years our TV competition will be soybean hamburgers and roasts, or even soybean, half-cornish chicken, half pheasant flavored, boneless roasts.

"Look at it this way - it keeps the kids on the farm!"

Seems a happy hippie commune with a sacred ecological look in far-gazing, glazed eyes. All dressed in Western rear-hand-me-downs from Salvation Army stores.

The voice purrs: "American outdoorsmen have waited long enough. American youth demanded the cattle slaughter be eliminated. So Congress-sanctioned and subsidized the new non-fat Bleeftettes. Over one billion dollars of federal funds spent in research to bring you boneless Bleeftettes, the TV dinner of the future. Bleeftettes, the hippie's guarantee to always have the perfect hip burger fit."

Then the camera shifts to two models who resemble Twiggy, the English Sissy and Jill the Slut: "Cool, man, cool."

Know what, Moms? These episodes are not far-fetched. And if some Dutch boy doesn't come along, the beef picture WILL change.

It is time we stood up for quality, for human fat needs, for delectable taste. And quit following the path of breeding to imitate lean, impure-like beef that every other county in the world can already produce.

Americans, grain-fed beef is

Business Notes

Morris Sandahl of rural Carroll has purchased Frank's Welding Shop on Main Street in Carroll. Sandahl said Saturday that plans for opening the shop are as yet indefinite.

Drought Conditions Emphasizing Need for Water Conservation

Many rural families and communities in northeast Nebraska will be facing financial hardships in the coming months because of the widespread shortage of rain this year, says William Yost of the Soil Conservation Service office in Wakefield.

Yost points out that the sub-normal rainfall this year and two years ago emphasizes the need for water conservation in this area of the state. Research, says Yost, has repeatedly shown that certain tillage and construction practices do much to prevent the loss of water from fields.

Since it takes about 20 inches of water to produce a 100-bushel corn crop, he notes, farming methods should be adopted which will conserve moisture.

Terraces, contour farming and minimum tillage are proven methods to conserve moisture. Spring plowing causes the loss of one to two inches of water through drying of the plow layer. Contour farming with minimum tillage will save many inches of water during the year, Yost says, all of which adds up to higher yields because of reduced loss of run-off rainfall.

Says Yost: Farmers will do well to consider their present system of moisture conserving practices and compare it to what could be done. Farmers may not be able to control the amount of rainfall, he says, but they can control the rain that falls.

Yard 'n Garden Tips
Q.—How can one get rid of moles in a lawn?
A.—The moles are in the lawn because they feed on the insects that are there. The best solution to getting rid of moles is to get rid of the insects. Many times the moles are feeding on white grubs. Treatment for the grubs could be applications of Chlorthane, used in a 45 percent concentrate of about 1 pint per 1,000 square feet.

Drought-Damaged Corn
When a farmer looks out across his field of drought-damaged corn he may have the feeling of total loss. And although the yield losses from drought are very large, the forage still standing when drought stops growth is surprisingly valuable feed.

On a dry weight basis, drought-damaged corn may be nearly as high in energy value as normal-corn silage. And its protein content will usually be higher.

For corn that has not put on ears, the younger the plant at time of growth stoppage, the higher the energy and protein value. This refers to the crop on a dry basis. However, the moisture content of this drought corn is often much higher than expected.

At the University of Nebraska Mead Field Laboratory, large amounts of drought corn were harvested for silage between July 15 and July 25. This corn was near the tassel stage. Although about 50 per cent of the leaves were brown, it contained 77-79 per cent moisture.

This compares with ideal corn silage, which has about 65 per cent moisture. It takes about 150 pounds of the drought silage to contain the feed nutrients in 100 pounds of ideal silage.

The drought corn at Mead contained 11.3 to 12.7 per cent protein on the dry basis. This is nearly 50 per cent more than is in the normal corn plant.

The nitrate (KNO₃ equivalent) values in this crop ranged from 1.44 to 1.98 per cent of the dry matter. The material was ensiled to preserve as much of the value as possible.

Since the crop had no grain on it, 100 pounds of ground corn was added per ton to help assure good preservation. This will also add to the feeding value while filling the uprights.

The corn was simply put on top of the load of the self-unloading wagon. This gives reasonably good mix in the process of unloading, blowing in and distributing of the forage in silage. While filling a bunker, the corn was added on top of dumped loads of forage before pushing up on the pile, leveling and packing.

The nitrate content of the corn is expected to be reduced considerably during ensiling and there should be no problem at feeding time.

By handling the forage in this way, a good quality feed should be produced and the maximum value from drought-damaged corn realized.

Don Mangers, second from left, accepts a pin from Lee Schultz for being with McDonald's clothing chain for the past 10 years. Presenting him with his pin recently was Lee Schultz of Hastings, district manager for the store. Schultz also presented Mrs. Dale Miller, next to Mangers, a brooch for working for the store for five years and Mrs. Wendell Korh a necklace for her five children, was assistant manager at York for about two years before coming to Wayne as manager in April.

Soybean Field Day

University of Nebraska researchers will outline soybean studies being conducted at the Field Laboratory during a Field Day on Wednesday, Sept. 23, according to Duane Foote, secretary of the Nebraska Grain Improvement Association.

Soybean producers and others interested in soybeans will assemble at the Agronomy Headquarters at the Field Laboratory at 1 p.m. The tour will include fertility plots, new kinds of harvesting equipment, cultural practices, use of TBA, disease and insect control, weed control, breeding nursery, variety trials, water use, study and soybeans after wheat.

The Field Day will provide an excellent opportunity for all those interested in soybeans to get an overview of the research program being conducted by the University on this important crop. Foote concluded.

Gas Rates Increase Asked by Kan-Neb

Gas customers in Piller, Stanton and Wisner may be paying more for their gas if a request by Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas is approved.

The gas company has applied to the Federal Power Commission for permission to increase rates for gas sales to wholesale customers in three states, according to the Omaha World-Herald.

The newspaper reported that the wholesale customers would resell the gas from the firm's interstate pipeline system in Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado.

The wholesale customer which provides gas users in these three towns with gas is Central Telephone and Utilities Corporation.

LETTER FROM A LITTLE BOY:

I have started school again, and this year I'm in the sixth grade. My little sister is in Kindergarten and frankly, I think she is pretty dumb about a lot of things, but I guess we all are when we are just five years old.

She doesn't know much about safety, and like all girls she is a little hard to teach anything to. Mother keeps telling her not to cross the street until she has looked both ways, and never to run across the street, but I see her do it all the time.

Last night just before we went to bed, we all talked about going to school, and who our teacher is, and I told Daddy about plans and mother fussed over the new dress she had made for Sis. After I went to bed, Daddy came in and told me I would have to watch out for Sis on the way to and from school and not let her do silly things like run from between parked cars and play in the street. He said motorists sometimes were careless and didn't always watch out for kids, he said that some adults drive like crazy and that the big kids in high school who have cars, show off for And when he left the room, I was pretty worried, what if someone in a car hit Sis and maybe killed her. Gee... she is a girl and she always wants to go where I go, but she always shares her candy with me and she feeds Tippy our dog when I'm not home and— Well golly — I'm appealing to you —
