Holiday Feature Starts Inside Today

Inside of this issue of The Wayne Herald you will find the first installment of what will be a standing feature in all Monday issues of the newspaper from now until the holiday season ends.
The feature, "Holiday Events in Wayne," is a simple listing of the events scheduled at the schools and churches in Wayne this Christmas season. It was compiled by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce Christmas committee in order to give more emphasis to the holiday events taking place and to avoid conflicts between various events.

Wayne Ball Park to Be Improved

The condition of the Wayne ball park will be improved to the tune of $5,000 thanks to a decision by the Wayne city council.
The council voted last Tuesday night to set aside that amount after hearing a report from Larry Brasch that it would take about $440 in lumber, $120 in paint and $11 in nails to repair the seating and grandstand and about $3,400 to replace and repair the lighting for the field.

Some of the wooden bleacher seating will be replaced with two sets of fiberglass seating. The fiberglass seats would be five tiers tall and 16 feet long.
On the committee with Brasch were councilmen Pat Gross and Darrel Fuehlberth.

Workshop Will Focus on Indian Education Problems

A training workshop in Indian education is scheduled at Macy three days next week, sponsored by the Macy Public Schools and the Wayne State Institute for Teachers of American Indian Children.
Open to all interested persons, the workshop will focus attention on two major problems in education for Indians—lack of understanding of Indian culture and the lack of a practical methodology of teaching.

Two University of South Dakota professors of educational psychology, Dr. John Bryde and Tom Golden, will speak on the problem of understanding—Dr. Bryde from 1 to 4 p.m. Thursday, Golden from 1 to 4 p.m. Friday, at the Macy School.

Five consultants will give practical classroom help on teaching methodology at Saturday sessions. They will direct workshops in various grade levels and subject areas from 8:30 to 10:45 a.m., then will meet as a panel

Neighbors Pick Corn For Winside Farmer

Friends and neighbors gathered at the Hubert McClary farm northwest of Winstate Nov. 23 for a corn picking bee. McClary recently had surgery and neighbors decided to give him a helping hand with his corn crop.

Those furnishing pickers were Warren Holtzberg, Nels A. Nelson, Jim Jensen, LeRoy Damm, Harold Wade, Henry Graef and Lily Krueger.
Tractors, wagons and elevators were furnished by Julius Eckert, William Holtzberg, Dale Krueger, Harris Heinemann, Adolph Meyer, John Asmus, Ernest Schuetz, Arland Aurl, O. C. to Field, Neil McClary, Jack Krueger, Werner Mann, Glen Wade and Keith McClary.

Food was donated by Mrs. Harris Heinemann, Mrs. Wanda McClary, Mrs. Irene Meyer, Mrs. Daisy Janke, Mrs. John Asmus, Mrs. Ella Field, Mrs. Ron Kittle, Mrs. Virginia Holtzberg, Mrs. Helen Holtzberg, Mrs. Betty Jensen, Mrs. Vera Mann, Mrs. Julius Eckert and Mrs. Ella Graef.
Women helping included Darlene Eckert, Vera Mann, Betty Jensen, Irene Meyers and Wanda McClary.

Dixon Co. 4-H Night Set

The annual Dixon County 4-H Recognition Night will be held on next Monday, Dec. 7, at the Allen High School auditorium starting at 7:30 p.m.
Forty-four 4-H members will be honored for their outstanding work in various 4-H projects and activities. In addition, 4-H leaders who have completed two and five years of service will be honored.
A slide report on the Citizen Short Course Trip to Washington, D. C., will be presented by some of the 4-H members who attended. There will also be a short 4-H council meeting for election of members and adopting changes in the constitution.
The public is invited and welcome to attend.

AFS Club Will Sell Note Cards Tuesday

Local members of the American Field Service Club and Wayne High School student organizers will be selling Christmas note cards Tuesday in a door-to-door fund-raising campaign.
The youths sell the cards each year to help raise funds that go toward getting an AFS student here. The cards are available in five different styles designed by former AFS on American A-broad pupils and sold at $1.50 for a box of ten.
Members of the Wayne Kiwanis Club plan to furnish transportation for the students in their campaign Tuesday.

2-Car Smash-Up Injures Family On Holiday Trip

Two members of a Sioux City family were hospitalized in Wayne and seven others in the family were treated and released following a two-car crash three miles east of Wayne on Highway 35 about 11 a.m.
Trooper J. Turgeon, South Sioux City, investigated and reported that nine members of the Paul W. Deek family were westbound in a 1969 Chevrolet station wagon driven by 16-year-old Wm. Deek. Turgeon said John W. Lower, 77, accompanied by his wife, had been northbound on a county road in a 1963 Ford.

Who's Cold? Winter's Fun

These freezing temperatures and blustery winds which descended upon the Wayne area in typical Nebraska weather fashion recently didn't halt these three youngsters from getting in their playing after school on Monday. The three youths, all third graders at West Elementary, are, from left, Julie Creighton, Kim Denton and Tona Hansen. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Creighton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Denton and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hansen, all of Wayne.

Drug Workshop Begins Today At Wayne State

What the schools in Nebraska should be doing in preventing drug abuse will be discussed this week at Wayne State College during the workshop being sponsored by the State Department of Education.
Representatives from schools and communities across northeast Nebraska will be attending the workshop, scheduled to last today (Monday) through Thursday.
Purpose of the workshop is to provide a complete overview of the drug-oriented society we live in, find better alternatives to drug use and misuse, and develop school and communities to help a school curriculum relating to drug-abuse education.

Dixon County Board Sets Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Dixon County Extension Board will be held at the Northeast Station near Concord on Tuesday evening, Dec. 8, starting at 8:00 p.m.
At this meeting nominations will be made by three directors to the Extension Board. A revised constitution will be presented for adoption.
All Dixon County residents of voting age are eligible to participate in this meeting.

School Tuition Case in Supreme Court

A group of seven Wayne County taxpayers, represented by their attorney, Kille W. Johnson of Lincoln, filed a brief Wednesday with the Nebraska Supreme Court in Lincoln asking the court to overturn a Wayne County District Court ruling and declare LB 910 passed by the 1969 Legislature unconstitutional.
Johnson filed a notice of appeal last July with the clerk of the district court in Warren notifying the defendants, the WAYNE County Board of Equalization, that the plaintiffs planned to take the case to the higher court.
LB 910 came under questioning in the Wayne County District Court early this year after a petition was filed by plaintiffs Frederick H. Mann, Cornelius Leonard, John Holmquist, Leslie Young and Mrs. Merlyn Eppinger, Duane Isthvics and Young. Plaintiffs, naming the Wayne County Board of Equalization as defendant.
The legislation deals with non-resident high school tuition rates and the plaintiffs allege that the non-resident tuition for 1969-70 was in excess of requirements and that portions of the levy are

Owens Named To State Board

Dr. Orvid Owens, Dean of School of Behavioral and Social Sciences, at Wayne State College, has been named to a three-year term on the board of directors of the Nebraska Council on Economic Education.
He and nine other new board members were elected to their posts during the annual meeting of the group at the University of

Holiday Theme For AH Concert

Music students in the Allen school system will be presenting a Christmas concert on Monday, Dec. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.
The public is welcome to attend the concert, which will feature mostly holiday songs.
Scheduled to take part in the concert are the high school band, fifth grade band, girls glee, mixed chorus, seventh and eighth grade girls, seventh and eighth grade mixed chorus, and elementary classes.
To last about an hour or slightly longer, the concert will include "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas," "Do You Hear What I Hear?" and "All Ye Whom Music Love." Also on the program will be "Christ Is Born," "Handology" and "Pudding Woodwinds."
Directing the students will be Mrs. Darlene Roberts for the elementary grades and Mrs. Gwen Krueger for the instrumental and high school students.

Area Groups Distribute Hospital Petitions

A petition drive to secure signatures of at least 10 percent of more of the freeholders living in portions of Wayne, Dixon and Cedar Counties as a first step toward forming a hospital district in the immediate area is well underway with numerous organizations participating.
Wayne Hospital Foundation directors launched the drive Nov. 21 and hope to have the petitions completed and returned early in December.
Ken Olds, Foundation secretary, emphasized Monday that the petition drive will be carried throughout the entire proposed hospital district which includes the following precincts: Hancock, Brenna, Plum Creek, Chapin, Strahan, part of Hunter, Deer Creek and Wilbur in Wayne County; Concord, Clark and a part of Logan Precinct in Dixon County, and 15, 16, 20 and 21 precincts in Cedar County.
Olds noted that the boundary lines for the proposed hospital district were made following a study of the patient load at the Wayne Hospital over a period of time. He said the study revealed the area served by the hospital and the origination point of patients. "A committee of seven persons made the boundary line recommendations," Olds recalled, adding "and that committee included representation from Laurel and Concord."
Members of the American Association of University Women are heading up the petition drive in the Dixon County area, including that area in Wayne County north of Highway 35, excluding Wayne, and east of Highway 15. Kiwanis Club members are getting petitions circulated in that portion of Wayne County south of Highway 35, excluding Wayne. Lions Club members are in charge of the campaign in Wayne County north of Highway 35 and west of Highway 15. Petitions are being filed in portions of the proposed hospital district which is in Cedar County. The Wayne Hospital Auxiliary is in charge of circulating the petitions in Wayne.
Olds pointed out that there are petitions available for signing in the drug stores, banks and doctor's offices in Wayne.
Petitions may be signed by any person 21 years of age or more who has real property on the tax records.
After 10 percent of more of the freeholders throughout the proposed hospital district have signed the petitions, the signers

More Eyesores Planned

That picture editorial in last Thursday's issue of The Wayne Herald—"Pollution in Wayne? What Are You Talking About?"—has drawn quite a bit of comment both from people who live in Wayne and people who live in the rural areas. Surprisingly, most of that comment has been good.

Said to say, there is pollution in Wayne. Pollution of the air, the land and the scenery. About the only way it will be halted is for individuals to take the proper action to clear up their own yards and alleys.

But pollution doesn't occur just in Wayne and not in the surrounding areas. Gullies are used for dumping rubbish and creeks are used to swallow old car bodies within a few short miles of Wayne. Those eyesores will be the subject of a picture editorial planned for Thursday's issue of the newspaper.

If you happen to notice your own backyard or alley in one of those pictures, don't assume that the newspaper is pointing to you personally. Rather, the newspaper is trying to draw attention to a problem which exists throughout the area in hopes that something can be done to help solve it. —NLLI.

Want to Help Somebody?

There are problems of a last-minute nature in every business. Can you imagine what happens when everybody wants to make a long distance call at the same time, get gas at a single service station in the last few minutes before it closes, get groceries at five minutes until closing time, mail Christmas packages and cards on Dec. 21 and expect those people in charge to handle it all?

There is a simple solution to all last-minute jams in any business and it is for customers, which includes all of us at one time or another, to take care of buying or mailing early.

Can you begin to imagine the deluge of mail that is handled by our local post office personnel at this time of year? Thousands upon thousands of pieces of mail are handled daily and each piece of mail must get to a specific address. You can begin to imagine the tremendous task of sorting just the Christmas card mail alone.

How can the public help? The answer is to begin mailing cards and packages early and mail some each week, preferably, rather than mail them all at once during the last week before Christmas.

Greeting cards are enjoyed and appreciated by recipients any time during those weeks in December prior to Christmas. A card doesn't have to be in the recipient's mailbox Dec. 21 through 24 to be seasonal or appreciated.

The early bird gets the worm in the spring and more than likely your friends will also appreciate hearing from you early in December so there will be time to get a return letter and greeting back to you before the holidays.

Let's give post office personnel a break and mail cards and letters early, and a few at a time.

Something else that would help those fellows handling the mail is getting your letters mailed early in the day and not at 5 p.m.

Want to help somebody this year? Make it a mailman. —MMW.

Quotable Notables:

Disappointments are to the soul what a thunder-storm is to the air. —Shiller.

Some remedies are worse than the disease. —Syruus.

One thing about Christmas that could withstand a 12-month exposure is the spirit of giving.

The specter overshadowing every day, but particularly the holidays, is that of wholesale terror and bloodshed on the highways. There seems no stopping the killing of hundreds of people in accidents that need not happen. —Journalists have written untold numbers of articles, columns, editorials and feature stories concerning the horror happening to nice people, but the written word has seemingly had little effect. Photographers have snapped photos after auto crashes that would make a normal individual sick-looking at them. But more than 100 persons die daily in the U. S. via the automobile, to say nothing of the millions injured in such mishaps every year.

Those hundreds of people that died over Thanksgiving Day were undoubtedly planning on being around for Christmas and New Year's Day. Hundreds more who are now making plans for Christmas will never live to tell about it. We Americans are excited about pollution but not very excited about killing 55,000 people a year in car wrecks.

The only force that keeps any kind of normal sanity on the highways is that of the State Patrol. You might ask those boys how they can stomach it when they have to walk around crushed metal and torn bodies of what were once warm living human beings.

More than 100 of those people who leave home each day in the U. S. never reach for the doorknob on a return trip. Little did they think when they closed the door to the house that it was for final letter. They had mailed their last letter, telephoned their last appointment, ate their last meal, gave the baby its final farewell kiss, made a few last remarks to the friendly neighbor, and didn't know that it was for the last time. No one can make anyone else a careful driver. Scare tactics and everything else have been tried to get motorists to use common sense and courtesy, but hundreds still end the day in a casket. Too many drivers don't even have enough sense to dim their lights when meeting or approaching their highway neighbor in a car. With drivers like that, what good does it do to advise them to be careful?

You made it through the Thanksgiving Day traffic. Are you now ready to cheer all the Santa Clauses filled with cheer driving in Christmas traffic?

Did you know an appreciation dinner for the Wayne High School football boys has been slated for Dec. 8 at 7 p.m. in the Wayne State College Student Center? Some of the parents are working out the details, but it sounds like an affair that every sports enthusiast will want to attend. (Flete Sharrer is in charge of ticket sales. A $5 ticket will admit one person and a football player. Additional single tickets are $2.50 each. Man, you ought to hear what is planned for the menu! Food will be served in smorgasbord style so you will be able to help yourself. A person may crab about the price of a ticket and then eat twice that cost in food! Or are you a part of the troop of us who do that?

There will be a program at the dinner given in honor of the gridiron guys but details are not as yet available. There is a chance for you guys to take the wife out for dinner accompanied by a football player as a guest. Your wife would likely enjoy being escorted by two gentlemen and surely both you and your sweetie will enjoy having the company of the football player. Having dinner out will make you all feel good and not one of the three of you will have to worry about doing the dishes. How about it? More details of the program will follow in a forthcoming issue of the paper.

J. W. was busy a few nights last week attending stage presentations by area schools. There was a lot of variety as usual. Wakefield and Allen classes entertained with three-act comedies. Windie

High School's Fine Arts Club was the only school to give a musical. The cast did a nice job with "Oklahoma." The Troupians at Wayne High School presented the only spine-tingler filled with mystery and ghostly evil called "The Innocents." Laurel High School students came up with an outstanding drama called "Dino." We enjoyed and appreciated all of the enthusiasm students put into these productions. As it always is in football, study hall or what have you, some of the actors and actresses did a better job than others.

We were especially impressed with the emotional impact projected over the footlights in the stars of "Dino," a 17-year-old lad fresh out of the reform school. The cast of 22 LIS students played it for real. That is a swinging school at Laurel and they have reason to be proud, not only of their football team, but their stage band is something else. That crew of instrumentalists nearly had everybody wanting to dance in the aisles between acts of the play. They really sound professional and it has to be the result of a tremendous amount of self-discipline in rehearsals.

We're glad to see communities proud of their schools and participate in the many activities. Every school is unique in its own way. Much of our work here at The Herald is related to the activities and achievements of young people. We're always happy to be able to print the good news made by the younger generation. We think the youth today have a lot going for them, in spite of living in a much-troubled world.

Now that Thanksgiving is over you are probably thinking a little more about what you are going to get your family for Christmas, right? Whatever gift you decide upon, we hope you'll be able to buy it in Wayne so you can have a chance at winning one of those $500 prizes the Chamber of Commerce is giving away. Now wouldn't you have fun with the problem of trying to decide what to do with 500 greenbacks? Shop in Wayne, get your lucky tickets, and maybe you will have that groovy problem.

News of Note around Northeast Nebraska

Vincent J. Logan, a former Wayne State student who was forced to drop out of college a few weeks ago because of another flare-up of cancer, died in a Sioux City hospital recently.

Only 21, young Logan has fought a continuous battle against the disease for the past three years. He graduated from South Sioux High and later went to college at Wayne.

Madison will host the annual West Husker Conference Band Clinic this coming Wednesday. Students from Bloomfield, Laurel, Neligh, Plainview, Stanton, Wayne and Madison are expected to attend.

Tuesday evening there will be a fall music concert at Plainview. The theme of this year's program is "Music of Many Countries." Featured will be a 120-voice choir from the upper elementary classes.

A large neon sign outside a steak house outside Neligh was damaged extensively recently by two 12-gauge shotgun blasts. The pellets from the shots did about $500 damage to the metal face of the building.

Three football players from Orbehard have been named to the Nebraska Valley All-conference football team. The selections: Larry Butterfield, Bruce Wettlaufer and Curt Mittels.

A total of 449 deer were checked in to the O'Neill station following the close of the 1970 firearm season. The figure tops the 406 turned in a year ago.

The prisoners in the Dakota County jail were given a special treat on Thanksgiving. They were served Thanksgiving dinner at the home of Sheriff Allan Bligh.

A number of Pink Ladies, not the kind you get in a bar, were honored at Plainview earlier this month. The group are women serving as volunteers at the Plainview Manor, the senior citizens' home.

J. J. Exon, governor-elect of Nebraska, said in South Sioux City recently that he considers his 50,000 vote majority over Governor Norbert Tiemann a mandate from the people to curb spending.

"Let's listen to the vote of the people Nov. 3, 1970. Let's take a realistic look at expenditures, set proper priorities and hold the tax line that was a key commitment in my campaign," he said.

Jim Richards, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Richards, received minor injuries when a gun he was carrying accidentally discharged and grazed his leg and body. He was hospitalized for a few days.

Two cows were found shot to death in a pasture at the farm home of John Howard a half mile west of Hubbard on Highway 34. The pasture where the cattle were grazing was posted against hunting.

Taken from The Madison Star-Mail: "After two weeks of mourning for Charlie DeGaulle, we take our typewriter in hand again. Unlike the politicians of the world, we couldn't think of anything good to say about Charlie so we just kept quiet. We were reminded of a poem we learned as a boy about the Negro who had died. The preacher was hard put to think of something good to say about him but finally came up with the statement that he had never stolen the last chicken from the coop. Politicians may be a little more subtle than this, but not much."

Tonight at Eight

by Sandra Breitkreutz

'The Monkey's Paw'

The three senior drama majors from Wayne State College who directed a trio of one-act plays in the annual "Tonight at Eight" performance at Ramsey Theatre last week are to be commended for the professional finesse evident in each presentation.

First on the bill was "The Monkey's Paw," age old story of three wishes, written by Jacobs and Parker, and directed by Fred Fiddelke from Paullina, Iowa. The three wishes are promised, but with them comes the warning that each wish granted also brings tragedy, so natural as to seem coincidental, and so appalling that the owner of the Monkey's paw would rather he had never been granted the wishes.

Fiddelke's excellently chosen cast included Ken Grafis, well-known to theatre goers for his adaptability to various roles, who did not let the audience down in his portrayal of Mr. White, an aging man, content, or nearly so, with his way of life. Pam Clark did an equally admirable job in her role as Mrs. White. One could almost hear her arthritic bones creak as she laboriously moved about at her chores. Last as the couple's son was Doug Stanley, who, without an abundance of lines, was still able to convey to the audience his role as an obedient, hard-working son who honored his parents, if not always in agreement with them.

Sgt. Major Morris, an aged, one-armed soldier, who with the prodding of whiskey and friends would break forth with the tales he was well-known for, was played by Gary Dunker. Dunker's accent was heavy, but not bad; much better in fact than it had been in his last performance, "The Odd Couple."

A minor role of Mr. Sampson was played by Arthur Pylzer, who said more in his silence than many could have done with a multitude of lines. It is Sampson's duty to inform the Whites that their son has been killed in an accident at work and that the company, though assuming no responsibility for the accident, was willing to offer them a little gift of sympathy - 200 pounds, the very amount of money the old man had asked for with his first wish.

The couple are heart-broken until suddenly about a week after their son's funeral, the wife remembers the monkey's paw, and implores her husband to use it a second time, and wish their son alive again. The husband, frightened, for he now knows that each wish brings something much worse than the previous plight, nevertheless makes the wish. And suddenly, out of the silent winter night comes a knock at the heavily barred door. The husband urgently regrets his second wish, fearing the consequences of it. While his wife fumbles at the door, hurriedly trying to open it for the caller, who she is certain is their son returned from the dead, the father searches frantically on hands and knees for the paw. As the wife finally forces open the stubborn latch and flings open the door, Mr. White discovers the paw, and wishes his son safely dead again, using the last of the three wishes. The door stands open to reveal - no one.

'The Sisters McIntosh'

The second presentation at Ramsey was "The Sisters McIntosh," a tinker written by Richard Corson and directed by Donna Noll from Sanborn, Iowa. It was necessary for Miss Noll to choose strong characters for this play which involves a cast of only three, and her success was evident from the continuous chuckles of the audience.

The sisters McIntosh, Lulle and Tizze, are old maids, well past their prime, but unaware of it. A caller arrives at their home one evening as they are preparing for bed, and tells them he is a nephew they have not seen for over 20 years.

Lulle, who is played by Shirley Smith, is well endowed with good sense as well as a good sense of humor, but being a cautious person and not about to let a young stranger come into her home and exploit her with the line that he is a long lost relative, devises a plan whereby the sisters can trap the young man in his story and get him out of their home.

The second sister, Tizze, extremely forgetful and slightly narrow minded, is gently convinced by Lulle that the deceit the sisters must participate in would not really be wrong, and might even be fun. Tizze's bones creak, she cracks peanuts with her teeth, picks her teeth with her fingernails, and can't remember whether her cat is in or out of doors. All-in-all, she is a very convincing little old lady, and with Shirley Smith, who plays Lulle like a female Festus, keeps the audience in raptures with the plot to convince the stranger that they are crazy . . . and thus frighten him out of the house.

Only after he is gone and the sisters tumble down the steps with his forgotten valise do they discover a picture of a relative and realize that the stranger was indeed their long-lost nephew.

Tom Karel, who played the nephew, was also very well cast, and though his role was not so impressively written as those of the sisters, he gave an equally flawless presentation.

'The Bald Soprano'

Gary Ehler from Missouri Valley, Iowa, directed the last of the one-acts, "The Bald Soprano," which seems to be playwright Eugene Ionesco's sarcastic comment on society, and an attempt by him to look objectively at our way of life. Whether that attempt was successful or not could only be determined by each individual in the audience, so unorthodox was this presentation. And if there were some who did not understand all of the play and many who did not comprehend parts of it, they did not seem to mind, and went away smiling at the eccentricity of the presentation the same.

The bizarre make-up and costuming were effective in promoting the farce, but staging was awkward. For the majority of their lines, the characters were seated at the outskirts of the stage where it was impossible to see all of them at one time and difficult at times to see anyone, leaving the theatre patron with a sense having experienced modern theatre via radio.

The cast included Ron Bleker and Charlene Hespe as Mr. and Mrs. Smith; Mark Hamm and Phyllis Mausebach as Mr. and Mrs. Martin; Joyce Sallach as Mary, the maid, and Larry Fletcher as the fire chief, all of whom acted their parts well. Both couples had captured to perfection and played upon the base attitude of today.

Miss Mausebach might have worked to tone down her voice, its high pitch being somewhat distracting and without reason in this particular role. Special mention should be made of Mary the maid, the only character in the play with a distinct personality, who was given additional charm by Joyce Sallach's vivacious portrayal. It might have been interesting to see the fire chief's part played with a bit more enthusiasm also.

The sketch takes place in the Smiths' London living room. The Martins have come to call, and the ensuing scene is comprised of a mottled collection of worn cliches, meaningless phrases, equally meaningless gestures, and thoughts usually kept to oneself, now spoken aloud. The entire group, without ever saying anything revelant, plays at theorizing on religion, politics, morals and theory itself.

The result was a funny little sketch, which in spite of having no real plot, moved quickly along, leaving you shaking your head in wonder, and realizing at the finale, a chaos of garbled words and phrases flung back and forth between the characters, that it probably wasn't such a funny little play at all.

quarters million senior girls have been enrolled.

The test is prepared and will be scored by Science Research Associates, Chicago, which also selects the school, state and national winners.

Thirty-six Seniors To Take Local Test

Thirty-six Wayne High School senior girls will join about 648,000 other senior girls throughout the 50 states and District of Columbia Tuesday in participating in the locally given written examination, which is a part of the annual Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow, sponsored annually by General Mills.

Mrs. Marle Mohr, Wayne High School home economics instructor will give the tests during regularly scheduled home ec classes Tuesday. Test scores are expected back early in 1971.

The local winner, whose paper will be entered in competition with those of all other school winners in the state, will also receive a specially designed silver charm from General Mills. The state winner who will receive a $1,500 scholarship, will join other state winners, each accompanied by a school adviser, in a tour of Washington D. C., and Colonial Williamsburg, Va., next spring. Second place winners at state level will receive $500 educational grants. In addition, schools of the State Homemakers of Tomorrow are awarded complete sets of Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Latest Honey Sunday $500 Successful

Wayne residents joined hands with members of Delta Sigma Pi, business fraternity at Wayne State College, Dec. 27 and collected a total of $521.25 during the sale of small jars of honey in order to raise money to help retarded children in the state. The Jaycees, who take on the job each Honey Sunday, planned on being in the southeast part of the city Sunday afternoon since they were unable to completely cover the city in one day. Fraternity members taking part in the drive were Keith Warrelman of Wayne, Jim Dinklage of Pender, Ken Hiser of Lynch, Larry Phillips of Lindsay, Gary Eckhard of Lincoln and Doug Livefmore of Oto, Ia. Others canvassing the city were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sitzman, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Moore, Jerry Bose, Grant Halse, Bill Woehler, Bill Workman and Darrell Fuelberth.

 Three will be presented to the county commissioners who will in turn take the matter to the voters by calling an election. All legal voters living within the proposed district would have the opportunity in the election to be heard via the ballot box.
 "Towns not having modern hospitals have a difficult time keeping physicians and attracting new ones," Olds pointed out.

 Dr. Bob Benthack, Wayne, chairman of the Rural Medical Service Committee in the State Medical Association, explained Monday afternoon that "There is a big demand for doctors. At most every grad has a number of offers. There are more places available than can be filled. Even a city the size of Omaha is looking for more family practitioners."

A district hospital would be owned by those paying taxes in the district and due to its service area the hospital would be influential in keeping good doctors in the area and in securing new ones, according to Bob Land, president of the Wayne Hospital Foundation.

If a hospital district is formed, individual members of the Wayne City Council have pledged their support of the project and have indicated that when the law permits they would turn the assets of the present hospital in Wayne, excluding the ground and building, over to the hospital district. The value of those assets is estimated at $250,000.

Mobile Home Damaged

Wayne firemen were called to the Flex Watson trailer home in the Woehler Trailer Court Friday evening when a heating stove got too hot and filled the trailer with smoke.
 Cliff Pipselman, fire chief, said there was no blaze but there was smoke damage.

New Postmaster Named At Winside Post Office

Mrs. Rosemary N. Mintz, Winside, has been appointed postmaster at Winside, according to an announcement made Friday by J. F. Applegate, acting director of the Wichita Postal Service Region. Mrs. Mintz has served as Officer in Charge in the Winside Post Office since May 31, 1969.

In accordance with the merit selection procedures of the Postal Reorganization Act, Mrs. Mintz was nominated for the postmastership by the Regional Management Selection Board and appointed by the postmaster general.

Mrs. Mintz planned to fly to Washington, D. C., Saturday morning to represent all Third Class Post Offices in a 10 a.m. Installation Program Today (Monday)

Mrs. Mintz was born at Winside and has been employed at the Winside Post Office since June 1, 1949 where she has served as a career substitute clerk and Officer in Charge. She has taught school in various communities for nine and a half years and is active in the Winside Community Club. She has been a member of the club for 14 years and has served as secretary-treasurer for 12 years.

Grass Fire at Lutts

Wayne firemen were called to the Les Lutts residence slightly more than a mile north of Wayne on Highway 15 shortly before noon Wednesday. A Wayne fireman reported that a trash fire in the Lutts residence was fanned by the wind and started a fire in a fence row.

School Tuition -

 Court Judge Merritt C. Warren in mid-April ruling that LB 910 is constitutional. The court also found at that time the 10.98 mill levy in School District 17 for non-resident high school tuition to be lawful.

Don Reed, county attorney, noted Friday that after both the plaintiffs and defendant in the case have filed their briefs with the higher court, then that court will hear oral arguments before giving an opinion.

Smash-Up -

 started to pull onto the highway and struck the left side of the Deck vehicle.
 Due to the impact, Turgeon said, the Deck vehicle skidded sideways toward the north ditch, hit a cement culvert in the ditch rolled over one complete turn and landed on its wheels.
 The Wayne ambulance and an unidentified motorist took the Deck family to the hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Lower, Wayne, were reportedly uninjured.

Workshop -

Violators of City Ordinance No. 17-105 regarding snow removal will receive a summons to appear in court by the Wayne Police Dept. for failing to clear sidewalks within 24 hours after a snowfall.

Ordinance No. 17-105 states that all sidewalks must be cleared and remain cleared of snow or ice to full width of sidewalk within 24 hours of each snowfall or the property owner or occupant will be subject to appear in court and fined. Any sidewalks not cleared within the 24 hours will be cleared by personnel hired by the City and the expense billed back to the owner plus the fine.

In the Business District snow must be thrown into the street at least one foot from curb as soon as possible to permit removal by Street crews. Also, only snow from sidewalk out to the street is permitted to be dumped into the street for city hauling. All snow behind sidewalks, Stations, Off-street parking, etc. will have to be removed by private haulers. The CITY CLERK'S OFFICE will have on hand a list of private snow removers. Also anyone interested in scooping or hauling snow, can contact the City Clerk's Office and have their name added to the list.
