County Board Sets Guidelines for Hospital Hearing

Guidelines were set Tuesday by the Wayne County commissioners for the coming public hearing regarding inclusion and exclusion of property in the proposed Logan Valley Hospital District.

The hearing is set for Wednesday, Apr. 21, at 10 a.m.

Members of the Wayne Hospital Foundation board and several interested area people helped the commissioners decide the hearing procedures.

It was agreed that every effort should be made to keep the hearing from turning into a public hassle. Floyd Burt, chairman of the commissioners, said, "We want it held in an orderly manner."

With that goal in mind, the commissioners decided there will be no cross-examining persons regarding their proposals for inclusion or exclusion in the hospital district. The county board will, however, be free to make inquiry.

It was also decided that after the hearing gets underway the hospital foundation will be allowed a period of time—about 30 minutes—to present a brief sketch of events that have led to the present proposed district.

Following that presentation, spokesmen for precincts, villages or individual property owners wanting to be included or excluded in the proposed district will be given five minutes each to state their requests to the commissioners.

The county board will be in full charge of the hearing.

A representative from Coleridge attending the meeting asked whether each property owner could speak for himself or have one person represent a group.

Considerable discussion was held on the subject as to the most efficient method that might be used at the hearing which would allow everyone an opportunity to make his request known to the county board.

Burt cited a letter the commissioners received from County Attorney Don Reed pointing out the legal requirements provided by Nebraska Statutes governing such a hearing.

In that letter Reed said the commissioners may consider any evidence they wish regarding the inclusion of or deletion of land from the district.

Such proposals to the board may be made at the hearing, Reed said, by the property owners themselves, by an attorney appearing in their behalf or by formal or informal petitions.

The matter of whether to hold an election concerning the proposed hospital district will not be considered at the hearing.

John Neihardt Coming Home Again

Dr. John G. Neihardt, poet laureate of Nebraska, will come home to his college alma mater as speaker for the Wayne State Spring commencement Monday evening.

"Speaker" is not the exact word, for Dr. Neihardt has been asked to read from the celebrated poetry which earned him the laureate honor by Nebraska Legislature action in 1921. He began writing poetry before his student years at the Nebraska Normal College, which became a state college in 1910, he graduated from NSU in 1937, then lived in Bancroft where he wrote poetry and edited the Bancroft newspaper for several years.

In the decades since, Dr. Neihardt has returned to Wayne many times as a teacher, lecturer, poet, reader and commentator-instructor in life, always with enthusiastic student audiences.

Commencement is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Dice Auditorium.

Local Youth Named To Head Committee

A Wayne youth has been elected chairman of the recently organized regional juvenile committee of the Region 11 and 25 Joint Planning Commission for law enforcement and criminal justice.

Ed Bull was named chairman of the youth committee during a meeting of the crime commission and youths from seven other area counties in Norfolk Tuesday night.

Norris Weible, commission secretary, said Bull and Linda Lesh, both students at Wayne High School, are working on the subcommittee.

Purpose of the juvenile committee, Weible said, is to plan for the avoidance of juvenile offenses in the area. This includes preventative and rehabilitative planning.

Guest speakers on the program included Fred Holbert, director of the juvenile division of the State Crime Commission in Lincoln.

Winside Plans Senior Center

Plans are underway at Winside to organize a senior citizens' center.

Mrs. Marie Herrmann of Laurel, a senior opportunity aid at the Carroll Senior Citizens' Center, said Tuesday that she met with the town board in Winside Monday night to discuss getting a center started.

As a result of that meeting there will be a potluck dinner in the Winside auditorium at noon Apr. 20 for every one 55 years old or more living in the area who is interested in establishing a permanent center.

Mrs. Herrmann said the dinner will be an organizational meeting and that all senior citizens and town board members and their wives are welcome.

A door prize will be given to a lucky person following the dinner.

Linda Sue Nelson Hired In Middle School Music

Linda Sue Nelson, a native of Creighton, will take over instrumental music in the Wayne Middle School next year.

Mrs. Nelson, who will graduate from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln this spring, will replace Lila Haisch. Miss Haisch several weeks ago resigned from the job effective the end of this school year.

The hiring of Mrs. Nelson was approved during Monday night's regular school board meeting.

During that meeting the board learned that two teachers—Larry McClure, high school biology teacher, and Jan Woodward, middle school academically talented teacher—have resigned effective the close of this school year.

McClure, who has been in the Wayne-Carroll system for nearly two years, has received a grant to study full-time at the University of South Dakota next year.

Mrs. Nelson and her husband are now house managers for the Methodist Chapel at the university. A member of the college band for four years and the college orchestra for two years, she has belonged to numerous organizations during her college career.

There are a total of 54 eligible voters in Dixon, a town of 128.

Bike Route Youths' Job

A group of seventh graders at Wayne Middle School are seeking help in locating points of interest in the city so a bike route can be mapped out.

The group, under the direction of Jan Woodward, is taking on the task as a class project. It will serve two purposes: giving the youths a chance to learn about the important places and things in the city and resulting in a route which should interest those who like to ride bicycles.

Although many facilities and historical points are already known, the group would appreciate any help from people in the city who know of something unusual or of importance. They should call Mrs. Woodward at the middle school at 375-2230 or at home in the afternoon at 375-3452.

Students participating in the project are Phil Koerber, Paul Mallette, Don Dutton, Mike Schmoldt, Linda Costello and Kris Nedergaard.

Families Asked To Share Homes With Children

Mrs. Ethel Martelle, county assistance director, said Tuesday that the State Department of Public Welfare has announced that summer foster homes are needed by the State Home for children.

The program, pioneered in 1965, provides an opportunity for a number of adolescents and older children to live away from the State Home. They spend part of the summer in the community on farms, ranches, or in the city. Some of the youngsters have stayed on and have become members of families.

Families are needed in rural and urban Nebraska areas and are interested in assisting these youngsters by providing a summer foster home.

Any family wishing to offer an opportunity to a young person to spend a part of the summer in their home may contact Robert Ruddle at the State Home for Children, Summer Foster Home Program, 5701 Walker, Lincoln, Neb. 68507. Inquiries should be into that office by Apr. 23.

Near Traffic Jam in Court

The number of persons paying fines in the Wayne County Court is presently running at an all-time high, according to Judge Luverna Hilton.

Judge Hilton noted that fines in March totaled $1,801 and court costs amounted to $660.50. "I can't remember a month in the last 10 years when total fines have amounted to over $1,200," she said. Records show total fines for most months to be less than $1,300.

A lot of the increase has occurred in the areas of pet larceny, check charges and violations related to alcohol, she explained.

Most of the $1,801 in fines—or $1,786—will be distributed to Wayne County schools. Only one $15 fine for a vehicle being overloaded will not go to the schools, but will be divided between the State Highway Department and the county general fund.

Records in the judge's office show the following 26 persons have appeared in county court on varying charges since Mar. 30:

—Illegal parking: James R. Leach, Rock Falls, Ill., $10; Connie Postma, Paullina, Ia., $10; Ross A. Smith, Lincoln, $10; J. Michael Weber, Wayne, $10; Ed Nieman, Wayne, two charges, each $10; and Thomas Stevan, Pochontas, Ia., $10. Each person also paid $5 in court costs.

—Petit larceny: Donald Meinke, West Point, $50 fine, $5 costs and restitution.

Local College People Oppose Lt. Calley's Conviction

By Merlin Wright

Lt. William L. Calley Jr., 27, should not have been convicted of murder for an alleged massacre at My Lai, Viet Nam, according to the opinions of seven people picked at random in Wayne Monday.

Calley was convicted of murder last week by a military jury and sentenced to life imprisonment. Within 24 hours of being sentenced and placed in the stockade at Fort Benning, Ga., President Richard Nixon ordered Calley released pending appeal of that conviction. Calley is presently confined to his own quarters.

Diane Wilson, 22, of Lincoln, a graduate student at Wayne State College, talked of Calley's conviction. "I think it was unfair," she said. "No trial, a man to kill, then bring him home and crucify him for doing what he was trained to do."

She said she thought President Nixon did the right thing in getting Calley out of the stockade. "I just wish he had gone further and, using executive clemency, given him a complete pardon," she said. "I'm afraid if the appeals are dragged out too long, the issue will be used as a political football in the '72 election."

A Carroll father who has two sons back home after completing military service and another son still in the Army made several observations about the Calley case. Arthur Cook said that Calley was "taught to shoot to kill" and that "he had orders."

Cook approved the military action that brought Calley to trial, but added, "They did the wrong thing in sentencing him to life."

Another Wayne State College student, Barb Erickson, 18, of Grand Island, called the entire Calley affair "ridiculous." She said she does not agree with the conviction at all. "There are so many others involved. I think Calley was just following orders, but they are using him as a scapegoat," she said.

Should the government have tried Calley in the first place? Miss Erickson replied: "No, not under the circumstances."

AFS Fund Gains $200

Several hundred persons attended a fund-raising carnival Saturday night at Wayne High School sponsored by the American Field Service Club.

Carnival profits will amount to something over $200 for the AFS according to Ken Carlson, AFS faculty representative. He said the exact amount has not as yet been determined as there are still a few bills to be paid.

As people competed in cake walks, throwing basketballs, racing tricycles and jumping on the trampoline, profits were set aside to help support the 1971-72 AFS program which includes bringing another foreign student to study at Wayne High School.

2 WSC Students Charged, Jailed

Two Wayne State College students are being held in the Wayne County Jail after being arraigned in county court Tuesday on charges of breaking and entering automobiles.

David B. Huntington, 19, of Fremont and Gerald S. Sheppard, 18, of Manila, Iowa, were jailed after falling to post $1,000 bonds set by Judge Luverna Hilton.

Huntington is charged with breaking and entering a 1965 Pontiac owned by Dennis Paul of Wakefield. The Paul auto was reportedly parked on property belonging to St. Mary's Church in Wayne. County Attorney Don Reed said a preliminary hearing for both students is set for Friday.

Feed Grain Deadline Is Fast Approaching

Friday is the final day for farmers in Wayne County to sign up at the ASCS office in Wayne to participate in the 1971 feed grain set-aside program.

Of the 1,345 farms eligible to participate, a total of 1,025 had signed up for the program by Tuesday night.

In order to participate a farmer is required to sign his intentions by April 9, set aside 20 per cent of his feed grain base and maintain the conserving base. The farmer may then plant all the grain crops desired.

Know Your Knits

Science has provided fashion wearers with a combination of luxurious comfort and easy care in the form of knit fabrics. The problem is knowing the advantages and features of various knits.

Double knits are firm and stable. These knits can be of various fibers such as wool, cotton, polyester or blends of synthetics. The cautious shopper will look for the fiber content on the label.

Jerseys or single knits are softer, drape more easily and are usually used for softer styling than double knits.

Tricot knits, mostly used for lingerie, are lightweight and easily draped. The tricot has vertical wales on the right side of the fabric, crosswise rib on the wrong side.

Bonding affects the characteristics of the knit. Bonding gives a knit more stability, makes open lacy knits easier to sew or wear, adds body and warmth to the main fabric and makes it possible to use knits that would be too stretchy to enjoy otherwise.

Washability, shrinkage and care of knit fabrics and garments are determined by fiber content. Manufacturer's instructions and information on labels should be given close attention.

Trojan '9' Nips Bancroft

The Wakefield Trojan baseball team successfully opened its spring campaign Monday by erupting for five runs in the bottom half of the seventh inning to nip an aroused Bancroft team, 8-7.

Bancroft picked up single runs in the first, second and third innings and added two more each in the fifth and sixth. The Trojans picked up two runs in the fourth on a two-out walk to Randy Hallstrom, a single by Pat Starzl and a double by Sam Utecht. In the sixth Wakefield picked up another lone run on an error and a double by Bob Twite.

In the bottom half of the wild seventh, Kevin Peters and Randy Hallstrom both started. Pat Starzl chased home Kevin with a double and then Sam Utecht doubled in Pat and Randy and the Trojans trailed by only one.

With two out, Bob Twite ripped a double to right field to drive in Utecht and the game was tied. Doug Soderberg reached first on an error and Kirk Gardner put the game on ice with a game-winning single to rightfield scoring Utecht.

Pat Starzl pitched the first five innings for the Trojans and scattered 10 hits and five runs. Kevin Peters hurled the last two innings and gave up two runs on four hits and picked up his first win of the season in relief.

Coach Tomjack had praise for his team after they refused to buckle under the pressure and had to fight back from behind to win.

The next game for the Trojans will be against Dodge Tuesday at 4:30 in the Wakefield park.

Bramer Resigns Job at Laurel High

Laurel High's Vince Bramer, highly respected by his fellow coaches in northeast Nebraska, has resigned his coaching position at Laurel and has accepted a job as counselor in the Millard school system for 1971-72 school year.

Mrs. Bramer, head librarian at Laurel High, has also resigned her position and will take on a similar job at Millard.

Bramer has served as head football coach, girls volleyball coach and guidance counselor for the past seven years at Laurel. He has racked up an enviable football record of 57 wins and 10 losses over those seven years.

Twice during that time he posted perfect seasons—in 1964, his first year at Laurel, with a 9-0 mark and in 1970 with a 10-0 mark. Last year Bramer was named coach of the third annual Wayne Herald All-Star West Husker Football Team after guiding the Bears to their second perfect season and a full share of the Husker Conference crown.

Bramer has never had a losing season at Laurel. The closest he came to that was with his 6-3 team in 1967.

In volleyball, Bramer has posted 106 wins and 22 defeats. A graduate of Kearney State College, he moved to Laurel after coaching two years at Shelby, Ia. He's a native of Mason City, Ia.

School Board Raises Staff Salaries

The Wayne-Carroll school board Monday night approved salary increases for the custodians, cooks, secretaries, school nurse and building superintendent.

The raise for the custodians was 20 cents an hour over what is currently paid them and five cents below what they had requested from the board.

The increase will bring the smallest wage paid any of those employees to $1.80 an hour.

Cooks in the school system will have their pay increased the same as they requested—10 cents an hour. Cooks begin at $1.60 an hour, the federal minimum wage.

The head cook, Marjorie Summers, will receive $385 a month for nine and a half months. She now receives $225 an hour.

Secretaries in the system will receive the same raise as the custodians, 20 cents an hour. Exception to that is Doris Daniels, secretary for the board, who will receive a $60 a month increase next year. She now receives $450 monthly.

The school nurse, Mary Ann Cottrell, will receive a raise of $500 over her current yearly salary. That will increase her salary to $5,500 a year.

Dick Powers, superintendent of building and grounds, will receive a raise from $383 a month to $625 a month, an increase of just under $300 over the year.

The raises go into effect in the 1971-72 school year.

The board gave its approval for the school to participate with Wayne State College so college students will have a chance before they become seniors to see if they would like to enter the teaching field. However, the board instructed Superintendent Francis Ham to check several things before going along with the program.

College students of a sophomore or junior level would spend a three-week period in the local school system, seeing firsthand what goes on in the classroom. The program would be similar to the senior's seven-week practice teaching session.

In other action the school board:

—Was asked by Ham to consider several possible building and grounds improvements for the coming year, including lowering ceilings in the middle school, purchasing playground equipment for the mentally trainable class, buying bleachers for the high school auditorium and building an athletic track around the practice football field south of West Elementary.

—Learned that Dr. Freeman Decker, professor of education at Wayne State College, will be speaker for the high school's —Discussed the recent problems which resulted when the coaches in the school drew up teaching rules for athletes. The board decided to let Ham work on a possible revision of the school's general dress code which would cover the current problem.

May 24th graduation exercises.

—Learned of some of the work students are doing in the area of media preparation and its application to learning situations. Telling the board about some of these things was Beverly Merriman, librarian at the high school.

Calley Conviction Opposed

State College, Kirk Schellenberg, 18, of Winslow, said he does not agree with Calley's conviction of murder.

Schellenberg said, "I think Calley was just following out his orders." He said he feels that some higher officer is getting out of the rap while "Calley is getting convicted."

He said he doesn't think Calley should have been brought to trial since bombs and mortars hit villages daily, killing women and children, "but that is just considered an act of war." Schellenberg interpreted Nixon's action of releasing Calley from the stockade: "I think Nixon is trying to get a little extra political publicity."

Jeff Pilbeam, 19, of Peotone, Ill., is about to complete his freshman year at Wayne State College. When asked about the Calley conviction, he replied: "I don't think they should have convicted Calley. He said that the U. S. is at war in Viet Nam and that American military men are trained to kill the enemy. 'I don't think Calley is really responsible,'" Pilbeam said, "he was obeying orders."

After calling the Calley trial and conviction a "farce," Pilbeam asked: "Why should Calley pick up the blame for the whole mess when there were more atrocities than just those involving him?"

He questioned whether the My Lai killings were in response to orders or whether it was an atrocious act on Calley's part. "If there was a question," Pilbeam observed, "you'd have to bring him to court like any other person."

Mrs. Orville Larson of rural Wakefield, mother of a son currently serving in the U. S.

Air Force, said she "really wasn't happy" with the decision made by the military jury in the Calley case. "I didn't expect them to convict him, it was a bit stiff," she said.

Responding to a question as to whether President Nixon did the right thing in releasing Calley from stockade quarters, Mrs. Larson said, "I certainly do. As a parent you think of Calley's parents and wonder how you would feel if it were your son."

Should the government have put Calley on trial in the first place? Mrs. Larson said, "I don't know. It would be difficult to tell as there may be some things we don't know as civilians."

Eighteen-year-old Ron Jones, a Wayne State College freshman from Kankakee, Ill., described his opinion of the Calley conviction: "I don't think he should have been convicted, as they sent him to Viet Nam to do a job and I guess that is doing a job. He was fighting the North Vietnamese and now finds himself fighting Americans."

Concerning Nixon's action of getting Calley released to his quarters until further appeals are made, Jones said it is hard to say if the President's action was a good move or not. "It makes one wonder where it will go from here," he said.

Jones gave his reason why Calley should not have been convicted: "A lot of guys are following orders and doing about the same thing but have not been tried for it," he said.

Local Trailer Court Gets Federal Okay

A Wayne mobile home court has been inspected and approved for placing on the acceptable home court list compiled by the federal government, a step necessary for owners of trailer homes there to be eligible for insured loans.

Approved by the government for placing on the list was Wriedt Mobile Home Court. It is the only trailer court in the city which has been placed on the list.

Friday Banquet Attracts 150

About 150 people attended Friday night's third annual Wayne-Stanton Counties Farm Bureau banquet at Wayne State College's Student Union.

Speaking to the group was Gary Ehrlich, administrative director of the South Dakota Farm Bureau and formerly information director of the Livestock Market News Foundation at the Sioux City Stockyards.

Toastmaster for the evening was Melvin "Bud" Froehlich of Wayne. Bill Hansen of Wakefield, president of the Wayne County organization, and George Benson Jr. of Stanton, president of the Stanton County organization, gave short talks to the audience.

Enright told the group, slightly smaller than that of a year ago, that it is important that the farmers of the nation retain their important role in this country's progress.

Two Firms Entered

Thieves and vandals were busy in Wayne earlier this week according to the Wayne police.

A break in at the Wayne Greenhouse was reported Sunday. Vern Fairchild, police chief, said several Easter lilies were taken. Another break in was reported that same day at the L.J. Duffer. Fairchild said Wednesday morning the loss had not as yet been determined.

Sticks were thrown through two windows some time Tuesday at Pat's Beauty Salon at 305 Pearl Street.

Officers were told Tuesday that a revolver was stolen from an apartment in the 800 block on Windom.

Can you think of one solution to the problem of pollution? It's YOU!

A Way to Heal A Broken World

Be presumptuous for a moment and pretend that you are God. You have watched your creation for a long time. You have seen political leaders using the people, seen bloody wars pilled upon each other, seen people building walls of hatred, lust and greed. You ask:

"The world which I have created has turned against me. Its people have turned it into a garbage heap. Its natural beauty is destroyed. Its people no longer love me. They act as though I do not exist. Even most of the religious leaders do not really care for me. They continue to talk about me, but are more concerned about keeping the institutional wheels turning. What has happened to my world? Black against white, young against old, brother against brother. How can I put back together again? I have only one choice—I will send them a leader, one of their own kind. He will choose his followers and together they will tell others what genuine love is really like.

"I can see Him there by the seashore, telling them to love one another and to forgive their enemies. He's showing them that my love is something you are; not something to talk about. He's talking to all kinds of people—the rich and the poor, the black and the white, the elite and the outcasts. Some of them are really listening to him. He's healing their minds, mending their broken bodies, giving them a new kind of spiritual energy.

"But what's this? See the anger and fear on the faces of the crowd? They're turning against him! See how they mock and beat him after arresting him like a common thief. They crucified him!

"His disciples have left him now. They look beaten and defeated. Despair and failure have obsessed their spirits. Somehow I've got to show them that what they sought was right and just and true.

"There! They can see Him. They can see the empty tomb. They can see that He still lives. The disciples are filled with joy and victory and triumph. 'He has risen!' they shout. Their joy and love are contagious. They are spreading the good news to others.

"See there? There's a businessman cutting his prices to offer a fair deal to his customers. There's a farmer who's saving a certain percentage of his profits and sending the money overseas to help someone who's starving! There's a young student who's making a real effort to understand an old man. There's a lawyer who has decided he will enforce the spirit and not just the letter of the law. There's a politician who has decided he will work towards the good of the people even if it costs him votes. There's a white man and a black man who have put aside their bitter hatred and are brothers again. There's a soldier who's laid down his gun and decided to work as hard for peace as he had for war. There's a housewife who's trying to turn her house into a real home filled with love and understanding.

"But I wonder? I wonder if there are enough to mend this broken world? Are there enough who will see that the resurrection and Easter celebration is the right way to transform our broken world?"

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

Can you imagine the value of a glass of beer without an advertised name?

Oh, Mom, would Champion spark plugs outsell a cheaper Japanese model without the constant advertising?

And, how many dollars are added to the final price of a Cadillac because of recognized value and status symbol?

This should teach the cattlemen.

When is this cattle producer going to step forward and promote his product? I don't care if he is a Wyoming homesteader or a Sand Hills rancher, he will seldom willingly promote. Oh, he'll kick in his 10¢ per head on the check-off, but most will even complain of that.

Promote your individual product as being different and superior or all beef will sell the same. I got ill watching the Angus and Hereford association executives shove ideas. If the end product cannot bring on a registry fee, the leaders shy from outside responsibility.

My friends, the only true test of a champion is the toothpick. When hours later the flavor remains pleasurable and the gastric juices plead for that savored moment, that is the champion!

Beef promotion continues fancy backwards. Show me one store in New York City that can boast of his source of supply. Oh, he can name a packer, but I mean the producer. Who raised the sire? Where was the commercial herd? What breed? The type of country? Does the brand have a history? Who fed the steers? What type of feed was used?

These are the answers that must be presented. A packer has as much appeal to a New York housewife as does Texas sulphur to you. But, Mr. Producer, you can be personalities, living and lending excitement to an otherwise drab cellophane package of meat.

I've read dozens of expensive magazine advertisements telling of the breeding merits of Colossal or Emulous or Mischief. Excellent, but I can't find one restaurant in the USA that carries a promotional note that the steaks being used were sired by the sons of quarter-million-dollar bulls.

Additional promotion must go to the ultimate consumer in the metropolitan East. Until then we have nothing, just good bull sales.

Relate to the consumer that the calves were from Dale Grace of Lewellen, fed Pioneer III-Moisture corn thru Harvestores at Sioux Center, Iowa, and processed by IBP. This romanticizes beef.

Until the producer's name is part of the ultimate promotion and advertising, no rancher, no feeder, no association member will ever receive one mill premium from any chain store.

I have watched good ideas tabled by lazy, ill-equipped boards of directors. Gather all the associations together and only the women can carry their weight.

Good people, but when the fire starts, the leaders disappear in the smoke. The easiest thing to do is nothing. They do that well.

I have watched and waited long enough. We must prove to the national chain stores that breeds can be capitalized upon, that ranchers, brands and cattle can be household words and cocktail conversation. We must establish that a steak is not merely meat, but a delightful experience, a symbolic status.

Readers, we will need some help.

Our beef promotion test will be in either Sioux City or Omaha, with cooperation of a local chain store management, the union members and the packer. Two groups I particularly need are the cowbells and meat cutting vocational students (from Pipestone, Minn.).

We will use specific cattle. Will spend days on breed, ownership and feed research.

Our project has tentative plans for mid-June, duration to be one month on weekends. Objective: to increase volume at least 50% at competitive prices yet paying a dollar per hundred premium to the feeder.

We want those chain stores, nationwide, to spell out and ring out about beef. We want beef pushed, not trading stamps. If a fat woman will buy a mini skirt, we can promote superior beef.

Friendly Banker, my eye! His mother weaned him on a pickle.

Early Spring Fertilization

If it has been a long time between feedings for our cool-season grass pastures, now may be a good time for another application of fertilizer. Heavy applications of nitrogen along with other fertilizing elements will work wonders if applied at or before spring growth starts.

Farmers who want a large profit of high quality forage for the rest of the spring need to put down some nitrogen if they haven't done so this winter.

The amount of nitrogen needed is determined by the additional amount of forage needed and the amount of grazing that has been done up to the present time. If the forage can be used efficiently, apply from 50 to 80 pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Forage produced by early spring application of nitrogen is usually the cheapest high quality forage that can be grown anytime of the year. If there's a good supply of moisture and a good stand of grass plus a need for extra forage, the early spring application of nitrogen will work wonders. The returns for investment are a pound of extra beef for each pound of nitrogen fertilizer used.

Optimum Dates

Best dates for planting corn, soybeans and grain sorghum are such that a farmer can take advantage of all three.

Experiments at the University of Nebraska field laboratories at Mead and at Lincoln showed that May 1 to 10 is the best time to plant there for top yields.

Corn can be planted 1 week ahead of the average killing frost and make a good crop, even though it might be frozen back. Another way of determining when to plant is to check the soil temperature. When the temperature at two inches reaches 50 degrees early in the morning, that is a good time to start planting.

Best planting time for top yields of soybeans proved to be May 15 to 30. The soil temperature at two inches should be 60 degrees when soybeans are planted.

It pays to plant an adapted, full-season soybean variety, no matter what the planting date. Late May or early June was found to be the best time to plant grain sorghum. At that time, the soil temperature at two inches should be 70 degrees, insuring quick emergence and minimizing weed problems.

Fertilizer Industry Can Meet Demands Of Farmers in 1971

The United States fertilizer industry has enough production capacity to meet the farmers' expected needs during 1971. Even so, weather and transportation problems may cause temporary shortages of fertilizer products

Farmers Urged to Save Weed Patches

Farmers in the Wayne area and across the state are being asked to remember the blizzards of recent winters when they begin their spring field work.

Willard Barbee, director of the Game and Parks Commission, issued the call to farmers as the time for spring field work rapidly draws near.

"Our pheasants, quail and other wildlife populations suffered during these storms, mainly because they lacked adequate habitat for protection from the snow and wind. In a few weeks, the survivors will again feed cover, this time as nesting sites, in which tion capacity is sufficient to provide farmers with their requirements for all three primary plant nutrients—nitrogen, phosphate and potash.

Despite the adequate production capacities, delays and bad weather may prevent prompt deliveries to the farmers during the peak spring season. Thus the farmers are encouraged to take delivery of fertilizer early in the season.

Fertilizer usage by U.S. farmers this year is expected to exceed last year's volumes. A major factor in this increase was the spread of the southern corn leaf blight into the Corn Belt last year.

Corn is presently in short supply and corn prices are high. Farmers are expected to fertilize heavily and try for maximum yields to take full advantage of the high corn price.

to rear replacements for those lost to winter and other hazards of the wild," he said.

Early spring is a most critical time in the lives of Nebraska's wildlife, as much of the habitat they need for spring nesting and winter cover is destroyed in farming operations.

Barbee urged farmers to think twice before burning or otherwise destroying any patches of cover that might be used by birds and animals.

"I know that some of this clearing is necessary, but much of Nebraska's habitat is needlessly destroyed each spring. For instance, why do people burn county road ditches? Ditches can't be farmed. The high grasses and weeds cause no harm and certainly look better than the blackened scar left by fire.

"These county road ditches harbor nests that produce about 25 per cent of our state's pheasants.

Yard & Garden Tips . . .

Q—A planting of pampasgrass has spread quite extensively. Is there a chemical which can be used to control it?

A—in a case such as this it is difficult to use a preventive chemical without damaging surrounding grass or vegetation. Dalapon can be used if precautions are taken to keep it from other vegetation. Use the chemical in a quantity of about one-fourth lb. or one-half cup per gallon of water and spray on the grass to be eliminated.

factor is cover, said the director.

"Wildlife would benefit greatly if farmers would think twice before putting the torch to a patch of grass or weeds. If not absolutely necessary for farming, that patch could raise several broods of pheasants this spring and summer and protect them next winter," Barbee said.
