

'Ah, To Be A Young Boy Again!'

Kidney Machine Donated to Foundation

What else do you expect a couple of young boys to do when there's high water in their neighborhood? Two young brothers from Concord spent part of Thursday morning doing exactly what every other boy would do with half a chance — until their mother spotted them. The youths are fine-year-old Scott, left, and Il-vez-old Chance — the state of the specific part of the s of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Nelson of Concord. Heavy rains throughout the Wayne area last week filled creeks and flooded much farm land. These two boys were lucky enough to find a couple telephone poles in a flooded ditch just north of Concord.

A Wrong Move

Tuesday night the city council voted to permit a strip of land along Seventh Street to be changed from its present residential zoning to business zoning. Although the vote was split, 4-2, the decision stands and the zoning of the area will be altered.

Affected is a strip of land a block and a half long and a half block deep from Lincoln Street east to the present area zoned for business at Seventh and Main.

area zoned for business at Seventh and Main.

What the vote means is that such businesses as motels, filling stations, barber shops or laundries can now be built in that strip of land. Before the vote, construction in the area was limited to homes, dental clinics, multiple family dwellings, sorority or fraternity houses and the like.

We feel the city council has made a mistake in deciding to change the zoning in the area. Among the reasons for feeling so:

—First, the decision goes against the recommendation of the city planning commission and the recommendation in the city's comprehensive plan.

The planning commission spent a great deal of time studying the request to change the zoning in the area. That study resulted in a recommendation that it not be changed. Listed with that recommendation were several reasons why the planning group reached that conclusion.

The people who drew up the comprehensive plan, a detailed study of the city running over 100 pages, spent considerable time, money and work in drawing up that plan. It recommends that the existing residential zoning in the area be retained.

—Second, the decision sets a precedent. When somebody farther upthe street comes to the council requesting that his land be zoned for business rather than homes, the council may have a difficult time in doing anything, but granting that request. The result might well be that Seventh Street—on both sides of Main—will slowly be changed from an area for homes to an area for businesses.
—Third, the decision seems to go against the thinking of many people involved in helping cittles grow in a planned and orderly manner. That thinking is that "areas" rather than "spots" or "strips" of cities should be zoned for certain uses. We don't think a Strip of land a block and a half long and a half block deep can be called an "area."
—Fourth, the decision may well re-

Fourth, the declsion may well result in another vacant building in the central business area. The person asking for the request told the council that the business which wanted to buy land in the area was not one new to the city. Vacant buildings on main street are a city's worst kind of advertisement.

There are several other reasons for why we think the council erred in granting the request. Those mentioned pretty well explain why we feel that way. — NLH.

Banner of the Nation

Today Is Flag Day. The day is the 194th anniversary of the day in 1777 when the United States flag was adopted. The stars and stripes have been symbolic of a troubled but progressive nation or many years. Recognized the world over as a symbol of power, the flag is also representative of a nation that has struggled since its infancy to maintain freedom for the individual.

America is not without fault, but Old Glory is a banner deserving respect, honor and devotion from the millions who live under the colors symbolic of united statehood.

In these days of turmoil while some salute the flag, others spit upon it; while some have died for it, others have disgraced it; while some display its brilliance, others burn it in a display of revo-

Allegiance and loyalty to one's country and its flag are still popular in spite of the fact that there are a few rebellious citizens who despise allegiance and loyalty to anything other than their own violence.

Do you and your family possess an American flag? Is it in front of your home flying today?

Trying today."

While thousands of young Americans are yet shedding blood on foreign soil in behalf of this nation, may we not err in underestimating the importance of homoring, respecting and saluting the banner of the nation.

Long may it wave. — MNW.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

The reprinted article, "Please Be Bruti to M; Son" from the police publication The Badge in your June? Issue prompts me to disagree.

Thave teenage sons, too, and the very last thing I want for them is to be objects of brutality. I'll expand this to say that I don't want anyone any where to suffer from brutality, for brutality is a last resort—really a means of defending one-self when all other resources have been exhausted.

set when all other resources have been exhausted.

Brutality, defined, means not possessing reason. Surely we as a society are not ready to say we can no longer use reason to solve our problems, that we must resort to putality.

In truth, I don't think brutality is a problem solver at all. It can only compound a bad situation.

If we need a last resort answer, I guess it is the only thing to turn to; but the many sad situations she described as brutal are more often, in my opinion, ignorance and inadequacy rather than brutality.

One's mouth is such a small area to work in, it's a wonder Ol' Doc can get all that work done. It reminds me of those coupons where it says, "Please print your name and address," and then you're supposed to put it all in a blank about a quarter of an inch long. There are lots of please that are crowded.

For instance, Twe got the box tops and 25 cents to order a special gift for a bargain but there sust isn't room for my name, address and zip code number in the blank.

You folks withumbrellas —and they're been handy lately — will appreciate the trial of trying to get that little strap lack around the umbrella which is supposed to keep it closed. There just lan't enough room.

And A Little Care Might Have Avoided It

Clogged drainage lines, flooded streets and curbs, wet lawns. Those are some of the results of people throwing trash and grass clippings into the city streets in Wayne. Other results include the spending of considerable time and mines in cleaning out those drains.

Many people are either not aware or do not care that putting trash, leaves or it, grass clippings info the streets is against the law. If the city police begin enforcing the city ordinance prohibiting it, some people may find themselves paying fines at the county courthouse.

When you consider the number of people who can design computers and space craft, wouldn't you think somebody could figure out how to make a card fit into a card compartment without too much trouble?

could ligure on now to make a caro much trouble?

O-O-O

We finally got the drivers license to fit by trimming the edges. Sure hope that isn't violating a law of some kind. Using a tape measure, I learmed that the license is exactly three stateenths of an inch. larger than the see-through compartment in my wallet.

Surely those people who design the drivers license can afford a tape measure too and it would sure save a lot of time and elipping if they'd print the licenses just the right size, right?

These problems of space can take a lot of time to think out. Take the problem of wieners and bans. Why can't they either make the wiener longer or the bun shorter? It really is something important to worry about. Why aren't there such things as parfect fits any more? Cofne to think of it maybe there are, such as when we throw ourselves into one because things don't fit.

Space problems start when you're a idd and you try to stuff building blocks back into a small box. They stay with you right through dailthood as you try to pack a sulcase. How hard it is to get anything to fit like a glove.

Come to think of it, my gloves don't fit either.

Taking A Test

This is a final examination at Wayne State College. Un-usual? Yes, if you consider an examination as a question-answer test on paper. But this, is the way art instruct Carlos Frey graded his pottery students for the third-farm class which neded Friday. He had the students arrange exhibits of their term pottery production. Pictured is Har-lan' Rowe, a junior art major from Crete, with the display he arranged outside the Fine Arts Center.

Meeting on Health Planning Slated

The recently chosen steering committee formed to develop, an organized comprehensive health planning agency in north-eastern and northern Nebraska met at the Plannive Wlospital last week.

The committee decided to hold an informational conference on comprehensive health planning at O'Neill on July 10.

Registration for the conference will begin at 8:30 a.m. and the conference will start at 9:30.

A nationally known physician and leader in health planning educa-tion and development will be the keynote speaker.

Final procedure of the con-ference will be the selection of representatives from each of the 21 counties to assist as council members in the development of a comprehensive health planning agency for this part of the state. Counties in the area include Wayne, Dixon and Cedar.

Dutch Elm Disease Still Spreading

Dutch elm disease, the most destructive disorder known to the American elm, continues to spread over Nebraska and the rest of the nation, according to a University of Nebraska plant pathologist.

Jack Riesselman sald that the disease has been found in 82 of the 93 Nebraska counties. Only the northwest area of the state has escaped the ravages of the disease.
Will the disease continue to spread? Yes, according to Riesselman.

The disease, which has killed many elm trees in Wayne and the surrounding area, will probably occur wherever American elms

Wayne Juniors 2-3 In Wisner Outing

In Wisner Outing

Wayne's junior baseballers travelled to Wisner Tuesday and came home with two wins out of three tries.

Wayne's nine and ten-year-olds bombarded Wisner with eleven runs, while holding the Wisner team to a single run. Ginn handled the pitching duties for the Wayne squad, with Rasmussen on the mound for Wisner.

Wayne's team in the 11-12 bracket didn't fare quite as well as their juniors, as they were edged out 2-1. Runs for both teams came late in the game, wayne jeking up their lone run in the fourth inning, with Wisner garnering a run in both the fourth and fifth innings. Creighting agree the form of the wayne, while Wisner's McGill allowed three hits.

Wayne took the final outing with Wisner's maveler right severing game between the 13 and 14-year-olds. Over in gave up only one hit for Wayne to lead his team to an 8-1 victory. Wisner's Kane gave up three hits to the Wayne squad.

Itarold Ingalls, Wayne County agricultural agent, said that the disease is still taking its toll to this part of the state. He said that the disease may even become

The spraying, according to ingalls, merely slowed up the progress of the disease in Wayne.
It did not halt the disease, he sald.
Can Dutch elm disease be prevented? Not entirely, according to Riesselman.

A rigorously followed program involving sanitation, prompt removal of diseased frees, prevention of root graft transmission and spraying will slow down this disease but will not completely prevent its occurrence.

The high cost involved in such a preventative program limits its feasibility. Each city, town and village will have to examine its resources and tailor a program to fit local circumstances, he said.

gram to fit local circumstances, he said.

What about "miracle drugs" or "cures" for Dutch elm disease? Presenty there are no scientifically proven products on the market which are known to the market which are known to cure or arrest Dutch elm dis-ease, said Riesselman. Caution should be used in purchasing any of these miracle products, not only to avoid unnecessary cost but because some of these may be hazardous to your trees, chil-dren and nets.

but because some of these may be hazardous to your trees, children and pets.
What can I do to prevent a similar occurrence in the future? When replanting, select a wide variety of locally adapted trees, the pathologist sald. Unfortunate—Ly, many cities and towns overplanted the American elm, A mixed planting of trees will not allow one disease to be so severely felt.
