Home Furnishing Tips
On-the-move living has become part of our life style since one out of five families move each year. An on-the-go life creates new problems in decorating, especially for newly marrieds on a limited budget.

It is advisable to begin with only the essential home furnishings.
Bedroom furnishings should top that list of basics. A good set of standard (not deluxe) mattress and springs can be purchased from $100 to $150. Extra large beds cost more and call for more expensive extra-size linens. A difference of $2 per sheet can strain the limited household furnishings budget.
A headboard is not a must for a good night's sleep so why not buy it later. A couple could even economize by designing their own headboard.
The dining room is another place to be versatile. A sturdy card table is a wise investment—it can serve as a dining table until the budget will permit the couple to do better.
When a dining table is purchased, consider the drop-leaf or expandable type that will take up less space when not in use or can be moved to another home more easily. Otherwise a casual all-purpose table good for many purposes might be the answer will be the Rev. Scott Libby, congregational conference minister from Lincoln.

Anniversary Services Are Set Sunday

The church, which was 80 years old April 2, was organized in 1891 by early Welsh settlers and has long maintained a Welsh background. Welsh was spoken until 1921 when the congregation converted to English for one Sunday per month. Now there are few in the congregation who can speak or understand Welsh.

Sunday school classes were originally held in the Wadsworth School and church services were conducted in a school four miles southwest of the present building, which was erected in 1913 at a cost of $7,000.

Since 1950 the church has shared a pastor with the Presbyterian Church nearby and services alternate between the two churches.

Church officers include Gwilyn Jones, Robert Jones, Ronald Pees and Lynn Roberts, deacons; Glen Dowling, John Hansen and John Rees, trustees; Mrs. Stanley Morris, treasurer; Mrs. Gwilyn Jones, secretary; Mrs. John Rees, organist and historian, and Glen Dowling, Melvin Dowling, Stanley Morris and John Rees, ushers.

Two former Presidents, Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, and John Adams, one of its most outspoken supporters, both died on July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the document's adoption by the Continental Congress.

Zion Congregational Church, three miles west of Carroll, will mark its 80th anniversary Sunday with services at 10 a.m., to be followed by a basket dinner at noon, and a 2 p.m. program which will include special music and the reading of the history and letters from former members.

The Rev. Gail Axen, who serves the church, invites all area residents to attend. Guest speaker

The contest is scheduled for 8:15 with admission $1 for adults and 25 cents for youths over 12 years of age.

Although still waiting for the season opening game against Pierce (rained out, of course), the local team had little trouble in rolling past Laurel Friday night, 11-5, and Wausa Tuesday night, 10-3.

George Fyon won all the way on the mound Friday night, striking out 11 hitters while giving up six hits.

Three straight errors by Wayne with one on and two out helped open the gate for two scores in the seventh, and a home run by Hart Vollers with one on and one out in the top of the third.

Wayne had three sluggers turn in good performances against Laurel's Elliott and Luit-Randy Helgren with a double and two singles in four at bats and Gerdtie Jorgensen and Jerry Wehrer with two singles each.

Fun with Figures

PI, the Greek-letter symbol that represents a circle's ratio of circumference to diameter, is an odd number that won't come out even. The ancient Greeks reckoned its value at our familiar 3 1/7—or about 3.1416. Electronic calculators now have carried the figure out to 2,000 digits beyond the decimal point—still without coming out 15 or 16 times the "interminable fraction."

Wakefield Marks 90th Birthday

Hundreds of people jammed the streets of Wakefield Monday through Wednesday as that community celebrated its 90th birthday anniversary.

Dozens of gents in top hats, bow ties, full grown beards and neatly trimmed mustaches participated in the gala activities as did ladies dressed in old-fashioned street-length skirts and colorful bonnets.

A children's parade Monday evening marked the opening of the celebration. Youngsters dressed in a variety of costumes participated. Some rode bicycles, some walked and others pulled pets in decorated wagons. A final entry wore an appropriate sign, "The End."

Firemen from Winsde, Wayne, Wakefield and Wisner put on a crowd-pleasing exhibition of water fighting, using high-pressure fire hoses in trying to push a barrel suspended on an overhead cable across the opponent's goal line.

Using hundreds of gallons of water, occasionally sprinkling the crowd, Winsde firemen won the battle with Wayne in second place. Third and fourth places went to Wakefield and Wisner respectively.

In other anniversary activities Monday evening, two-year-old Jennifer Salmon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Salmon of Wakefield, was named as the best dressed girl.

Named as best dressed family were Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Greve and their children, Kevin, Kimberly and Kelly.

Judging of beards was the next event on the agenda. About two dozen gents appeared on a temporary platform in downtown Wakefield to compete for having the best growth of whiskers. Dave Fredrickson took first place for his full beard and won the $30 prize. Having the best trimmed facial growth was Bud Eriandson who won $20. Larry Sampson won $10 for having the best moustache. All of the winners are of the Wakefield area.

Winning the contest to name the Little Miss Wakefield was Susan Baker, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Baker of rural Wakefield.

Named runners-up to the winner were Kella Lund, Angela Stout and Kimberly Greve. Receiving honorable mentions in the judging were Dylane Ryers and Renee Wenstrand.

More talent than had been anticipated resulted in the judges of the talent contest Tuesday night awarding four prizes rather than the planned three.

The judges picked Kelly Pook of Ponca as tops in the contest for his organ selection. The choice earned the youth $25 in cash. Named runner-up to the Ponca boy was the jazz band from Emerson, winner of $10 in cash. Janice Olsen of Carroll took third place and $5 in cash for her piano solo, and the New Way Singers from the Covenant Church at Wakefield earned themselves $5 for taking fourth place.

Getting honorable mentions from the judges—Rosemary Mintz, Shirley Fredrickson and Inez Tockenhauser—were Cindy Beeks of Wayne and Coleen Baldo.

There were 11 participants in the contest.

Winning the competition at the celebration Monday night as the best dressed family is Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Greve and children of Wakefield. Two-year-old Kevin is held by his father, Kimberly, 7, and Kelly, 4, stand with their mother, all wearing look-alike dresses.

Chemicals Are Dangerous

Farmers across the state are being urged to use care in applying chemicals to their crops in order to control the pesky insects that threaten them.

There are two important reasons why farmers should use care in applying those insecticides. First, they can be dangerous—possibly deadly—to our wildlife. Second, it may not be economical to use insecticides under certain circumstances.

Farmers should first make certain that chemicals are necessary. Then they should be certain that the way they use those chemicals is the correct way. The insecticides should be applied the way it is recommended on the label. Incorrect application can have damaging results—damaged crops or dead wildlife, for instance.

Farmers in doubt about whether they should use chemicals or how they should use them can receive expert help by contacting their county agent. A simple telephone call could avoid a lot of problems. —NLH.

Nailing Down Three Rumors

Rumors around town include three concerning the Wayne County board of commissioners. The board has reportedly: purchased a grader costing about $30,000 without taking bids for the purchase, plans to make a supplemental appropriation because of too much spending and is paying $3,000 a month for two road machines which are not being used.

In an effort to find out the validity of the stories, an inquiry was made at the clerk's office.

County board members did purchase a grader early this year costing around $20,000 for use of Commissioner Ken Edzie's District 1. The board can buy road equipment, according to the clerk, without calling for public bids.

How about the supplemental appropriation? The commissioners may have to have a supplemental appropriation due to spending not anticipated in the Wayne County Noxious Weed Control budget. Items not anticipated include a water well at the site of the weed control building east of Wayne and the purchase of a new sprayer which dispenses a spray that is not supposed to drift.

It is true that two road machines are being rented for $3,000 a month each in repairing Wayne County roads damaged by spring flooding. Cost of renting the machines is being paid by federal disaster funds granted to the county. The machines were rented for May, June and July and are being used when weather conditions permit.

Records at the county courthouse are open for public inspection and any interested in actions taken in those departments may freely inquire concerning a particular matter. —MMW.

Jaycees Need Your Support

The Wayne County Jaycees are currently conducting a drive to raise funds to put on a fireworks display on the Fourth of July. We hope the group has success in that drive.

Last year's display fell far short of the expectations of many in Wayne and the surrounding area. The display was probably long enough, but it just didn't have the proper type of fireworks to live up to the advance publicity given it.

This year the Jaycees hope to erase all memory of last year's display by putting on one that will be a credit to the organization and to the city. We have a feeling that they are going to do exactly that.

Groups and organizations are being asked to donate money so about $600 worth of fireworks can be purchased. The Jaycees themselves already donated $50. The city of Wayne last week voted to give $165.

If your organization or group is asked to give something to the fund, we hope it does so. The display could be developed into something the city of Wayne could be very proud of. It will take your support and help to make it so. —NLH.

Nebraska

Jack Johnson visits Omaha on the afternoon of April 22, 1910, Jack Johnson, the first American Negro to become world heavyweight boxing champion, made a scheduled stop in Omaha after completing preliminary training a few days earlier in Chicago for his upcoming world championship bout on July 4 with James Jeffries, a former world champion. The champion was enroute to Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, and finally San Francisco where he planned to establish a permanent training camp. The Omaha World-Herald microfilm files of which are preserved in the Nebraska State Historical Society archives at Lincoln, reported extensively on his short visit. An estimated three to five thousand enthusiastic people greeted Johnson at Union Station. In fact, the crowd's reaction completely overshadowed a similar gathering a month earlier for Johnson's future opponent, Jeffries. The champion was obviously quite pleased and indicated that the greeting was even larger than the send off received in Chicago and his manager interpreted the reception as a removal of the last lingering suspicion from his mind that the American people were not going to give Johnson a fair and impartial show in the Golden Gate city. Omaha, in particular, appeared to him as very open minded in this respect. Shortly after arriving at the station,

Capital News — Judge Considering Legality Of the 'Bob Devaney Law'

LINCOLN—A district judge in Lincoln is considering the constitutionality of what has been called the Bob Devaney law.

That's LB 87, passed by the 1951 Legislature after an appearance by the University of Nebraska athletic director.

The bill boosts the state tax on cigarettes by a nickel a pack and directs the additional revenue be spent for an activities building at the Beatrice State Home, a state office building and an NFL fieldhouse.

Lawrence Sandberg, a Lincoln attorney, filed a suit in Lancaster County District Court claiming the act is unconstitutional because it puts the financial burden for the three buildings on cigarette smokers who receive no special benefits.

Judge Herbert A. Ronin listened to oral arguments on the issues last week and is studying written briefs prepared by Sandberg and Assistant Attorney General Ralph H. Gillan.

Gillan said in his arguments the only thing the state must promise to taxpayers is that their tax funds be used for public purposes.

Gillan said Sandberg didn't attempt to prove it was wrong for cigarettes to be taxed and he didn't seek to show it would be unconstitutional to spend general fund money on the three projects.

All the bill did, Gillan said, was earmark cigarette tax revenue for direct use on the three projects, bypassing the general fund.

Sandberg also claimed the bill hadn't actually been passed because it didn't receive at least 33 votes on the motion to override Gov. J. J. Egan's veto. He told the judge 33 votes were needed because the bill carried the emergency clause.

Gillan replied that the 33 votes were needed for bills with that clause only on their first passage. The constitution is clear, he said, that only 30 votes are necessary to override a governor, whether there is an emergency clause or not.

Sandberg said if that were true, then the framers of the state constitution "guffed" and he didn't think they had. He said he thinks the authors of the constitution intended the 33 votes to be required on an override when an emergency clause is involved.

If Ronin decides in Sandberg's favor, Gillan said the state will appeal to the State Supreme Court. Sandberg said he would depend upon his finances whether he decides to appeal if Ronin rules against him.

Sandberg said the only "outside" help he has had on the suit was $13 he had received from six donors whose money was sent unsolicited.

Egan Applies for Commission Nebraska has notified federal officials it wishes to participate in a proposed Missouri River Basin Commission.

Gov. J. J. Egan wrote to W. Don Maughan, director of the U. S. Water Resources Council, and made a formal request for membership in the proposed 10-state commission.

If a majority of the 10 basin states decide they want to form the commission, it would be created by an executive order. Nebraska, Missouri, South Dakota and Colorado already have agreed. Nebraska had agreed earlier, but Republican Gov. Norbert Tiemann withdrew Nebraska support four years ago. Democrat Egan has put the state back on the side of supporting the commission.

At least two more states will have to join the present four in order for the commission to be established.

"I have long felt that such a commission would be desirable and that under it the full development of the water and related land resources of the basin would be expedited," Egan said in his letter to Maughan.

Sewage Treatment Money Short

Inflation has taken a toll in the sewage treatment program. T. A. Hipli, chief of the environmental health office of the State Health Department, said the $6.5 million appropriated for waste treatment facilities won't stretch as far as originally predicted because inflation has caused the costs of many projects to jump since original estimates.

The state funds will be distributed on the basis of the earlier cost figures, which means some cities may have to make up more of the difference than they had expected.

The federal government also participates in the funding formula, which is designed to assist municipalities build plants to treat their sewage before it is dumped into the state's streams and rivers.

Welfare Changes Planned

The State Welfare Department is preparing a new system for distributing aid to dependent children.

Under the present system, amounts of aid for various categories can vary among recipients according to individual differences. The new plan, however, calls for standard amounts for each recipient for necessities such as rent, food and clothing.

For example, the allowance for rent now depends upon what the ADC recipient has been paying. Under the new system, each family will receive $75 a month for rent.

Welfare department officials say the new system will eliminate the possibility of a caseworker "padding" a budget for a recipient.

Caseworkers throughout the state are being trained in the new system, which is to be implemented late this summer.

Johnson with the help of the police moved to his expensive Chalmers Detroit automobile which he had earlier sent by freight. With the remainder of his group in nine other vehicles, the entourage sped off to the Murra; hotel in order to prepare for a three-day stay in the city. A principal part of the visit was a show Saturday evening at the Gaiety Theatre involving several grappling matches and sparring exhibitions. The finale, of course, was two bouts of two rounds each between Johnson and two of his sparring partners. On that evening a capacity crowd appeared at the theatre and was not disappointed by the show. Johnson easily took care of his opponents even though they put up a determined effort. So impressed were the spectators that several indicated that the exhibition was better than some prize fights costing $10.00.

After the bout the champion made a short speech indicating that he hoped to win his future fight with Jeffries whom he considered the greatest fighter that had ever faced on boxing gloves. However, he reiterated his manager's earlier desire that the championship fight would be fought on a fair basis without any outside influences—only the best man should win. In closing he showed his political astuteness by eulogizing Omaha Mayor James Dahlman and even went so far as to predict that flamboyant mayor would be the next governor of Nebraska. Indeed, Johnson had found his stay in Omaha satisfying.

On the other hand, Omaha was pleased with Johnson not as a person but as a pugilist. Impressed with the entire Saturday evening show, the World-Herald reported that "about six out of every ten who watched the movements of the black champion are probably ready to bet their socks this morning that he beats Jeffries." This prophecy proved correct for Johnson was victorious in San Francisco and continued to retain the coveted boxing title until his defeat by Jesse Willard in 1915.

Both the Scandinavian Institute students and Spanish Institute directed by Dr. Rafael Sosa will have many opportunities to travel. Both will spend considerable time in classrooms before returning to London and a July 20 flight to Chicago.

TV Series Nears End of 2nd Month

A series of television programs for Nebraskans over 55 years of age is nearing the end of its second month. The series, "The Grand Generation," will continue running until Aug. 6. Programs are shown every Friday evening at 8:00 clock with a repeat broadcast at 5:30 the following Monday. The series is being shown over the Nebraska Educational Television Network.

The programs feature experts in specialized fields from private and government organizations. Included in the programs are discussions about health care, preparation for retirement, social security, consumer frauds and information on nutrition and transportation.

Programs slated for the rest of this month include those on special programs for older Americans to be shown Friday evening, and health frauds, scheduled for showing the following Friday night.

SS Q & A

Q. I have been offered part-time work by my employer when I retire next month. Since I have already applied for monthly social security retirement benefits, will my employer still have to withhold social security contributions from my wages?

A. Yes. The fact that you draw monthly social security benefits has no bearing on the requirement that your employer withhold and report social security contributions on your wages.

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

Occasionally you can't see the forest for the trees. In the early 1950's a synthetic hormone was developed at Iowa State University diethylstilbestrol that advanced beef feed lot gains. Today, the beef industry has permitted the wanton use of stilbestrol to lead us to the point of no return. The time has arrived for ranchers, feeders, packers and everyone connected with the beef industry to wake up. Immediately move in a direction to clarify your status on this subject. The full publicity we are receiving is detrimental.

To the drug industry involved in the production of diethylstilbestrol, the responsibility exists to clarify the position of the drug that you produce. The discussion of pros and cons of the benefits or detriments of stilbestrol should be left to qualified technicians within the beef industry and the Federal Drug Administration.

Another concern is the advertising picture we are currently painting. A brief review of statements that are presently flooding the newspapers follows. "Senator Proxmire has called upon the FDA for a ban on the use of diethylstilbestrol." His reason: The World Health Organization has recognized that stilbestrol can cause cancer. Experiments have shown that stilbestrol fed in large amounts can cause cancer in laboratory animals. Its effect on humans through beef consumption is not known. W. D. Farr, president of American National Cattle Association, said that the senator obviously is grossly misinformed about the use of diethylstilbestrol in finishing beef cattle in the U.S. He further stated that stilbestrol means a 10 per cent savings in beef production costs, which are passed on to the consumer. Don Maganz, executive secretary of the National Feeders Association, stated that "the nation's beef supply is absolutely safe and wholesome. Senator Proxmire's estimate that 100,000 to 150,000 cattle slaughtered last year contained a substantial portion of stilbestrol is simply not true."

His quote: "Only part of 35,000,000 head of cattle slaughtered in 1970 were ever fed stilbestrol and when withdrawn 48 hours prior to slaughter, no residue was found. Also, if found, it was in the liver." One question: How is stilbestrol removed 48 hours prior to slaughter from cattle that have been implanted with stilbestrol? Currently 21 countries including the two leading foreign cattle producers (Argentina and Australia) have banned the use of stilbestrol. The Common Market has also recently prohibited its use.

Gentlemen, a suggestion: If you hope to avoid a total war with the consumer, ban together to exploit the positive and negative effects of stilbestrol.

MR. HARDIN ASKED IF MAYBE ON-YOUR THIRD OR FOURTH ORBIT COULD YOU CHECK FOR CORN BLIGHT SPORES.

Other industries have been hurt by bad publicity. Do not feel you are immune. (Examples: the cranberry scare a few years back, the tuna and sword fish industries this year.)

Another warning: The state of Iowa within two weeks will start sampling beef carcasses for stilbestrol residue. Cattle found contaminated could be condemned—a high-priced financial lesson for any producer.

To all farm organizations, ranchers, feeders, producers, packers, commission men, terminal stockyard personnel and the beef industry, move to stop this adverse publicity. If it is permissible to feed stilbestrol without harmful results, why not voluntarily remove it 50 days prior to shipment (not 48 hours) to absolutely guarantee the quality of your product.

County Agent's Column

Feedlot Waste
University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural engineers are getting a number of questions regarding the need for livestock waste control systems.

How can a livestockman determine if he needs to build facilities to control livestock waste? Briefly stated, Nebraska laws holds the livestock producer responsible to see that runoff from his feedlots does not flow into a stream or watercourse and that it does not run onto his neighbor's land or other public property.

With heavy spring rains in many areas of the state, it has been easy to see what happens to any feedlot runoff. The operator must be somewhat objective to look at his situation. In some cases, it may be very obvious if the lots are close to a creek or watercourse. One can usually determine if wastes are being carried into a watercourse.

There are a number of possibilities if a livestock producer or feeder needs assistance. Perhaps a neighbor can help out, particularly if some waste runs on his property.

Another possibility is to contact the county extension agent or SCS personnel. They can look over a situation to help decide if a waste control system is needed.

The Water Pollution Control Council would be glad to send a representative to visit a feedlot to help determine what individual needs might be. Their personnel are knowledgeable in this area and are fair and reasonable to work with. County extension agents can help make this contact.

The answer to the question, how elaborate or expensive might waste control facilities be, will vary with each individual feedlot. A diversion terrace may be all that is needed. Land may lay so the cost will be less than expected.

Finally, a new extension circular, EC 71-795, provides much helpful information.

This circular, "Waste Management for Feedlots," attempts to cover problems for the operator with existing lots and one who might be getting ready to build new lots or possibly expand.

It points out some of the things to consider in keeping feedlot runoff a minimum or under control with minimum effort.

An illustrated example is shown of how an operator might build facilities to control waste. This includes the diversion terrace above the lot to keep outside runoff off of the lot. The debris basin to collect lot runoff is shown along with the holding pond. Suggestions for spreading runoff liquid along with management pointers are also provided. EC 71-795 is available from the county extension offices.

4-H Tractor Contests
A basic safety rule is "use good common sense, no horse play and well-maintained equipment."

In spring and summer seasons, the tractor is a busy piece of equipment on the farm. Learning to use it the best way is a challenge for 4-H'ers enrolled in the tractor project, emphasizes Delbert Lane, extension agricultural engineer, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The opportunity for the 4-H'ers is the tractor operators' contest, a part of the county and state 4-H program. Now is not too early to consider the event and prepare to take part, Lane noted.

The state event is scheduled as part of Tractor Power & Safety Day, July 29 at Mead. The contest has been held during State Fair in previous years. The area contest including Wayne County will be held at the Dixon County fairgrounds on Wednesday, June 30.

Servicing a tractor, checking mechanical condition daily and mechanics of operating are part of preparation for the contest. The contest includes five parts—written examination, practical examination, two-wheel driving event, four-wheel driving event and safety.

County extension agents can provide interested 4-H'ers and leaders with information on the contest and helpful suggestions for the safe and efficient use of tractors and equipment. A review of the tractor project literature now could be a good beginning in preparation for the 1971 county contest, Lane concluded.

There were about 62 million acres of hay harvested in the United States during 1969, according to New Holland farm equipment engineers.

Wool Producers Urged to Vote Before Deadline

Wayne County wool producers who are eligible to vote in the market promotion program are urged to do so before the June 18 deadline, says Harry Heinemann, chairman of the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

An eligible voter is one who has owned sheep six months of age or older for any one period of at least 30 days since Jan. 1, 1970.

Ballots may be cast by mailing them to the county ASC office or by voting at the county office.

The chairman emphasized that the referendum will not affect the wool payment itself, which has been extended by law through 1973.

The voting will determine whether growers will finance wool and lamb market-promotion activities through deductions from the wool payments they receive through the next three years.

Deductions under the new agreement would be up to 11 cents a pound on shorn wool payments and 7 cents a hundredweight on payments for unshorn lambs—the same as for the past five years.

The market-promotion activities are carried out under an agreement between the Secretary of Agriculture and the American Sheep Producers Council. The new agreement will go into effect if favored nationally by at least two-thirds of the volume of production represented by the total vote.

Heinemann said that all growers should have received ballots. Any producer who believes that he is eligible to vote but has not received his ballot should get in touch with his county ASCS office before the voting deadline.

SS Q & A
Q—I have an uncle who is 81 years of age. He hasn't signed up for any Medicare benefits and has had no work under Social Security. Can he qualify for Medicare?
A—Your uncle can qualify for hospital insurance by filing an application and presenting evidence of his age at the local Social Security Office. He will not be able to qualify for Medical Insurance due to a provision of the law requiring enrollment within three years of his first opportunity to elect coverage. This period ended for your uncle in September 1969.

Q—I will be 65 in August but have never worked under social security. Will I be eligible for hospital benefits?
A—No. The law requires some coverage under social security for those people becoming 65 now to be eligible for hospital benefits. Wives and widows of insured workers can, however, be covered by medicare on their husband's account.
