Dixon - Concord Phone Service Updated

Work is in full swing on a $400,000 investment by the North-east Nebraska Telephone Co. in the Dixon-Concord exchange. The work is being done by about 60 employees—some working for the telephone company, some for the contractor installing the underground lines and some for the manufacturer of the intricate switching equipment being put into an office at Dixon. Howard Rasmussen of Hubbard, general manager for the telephone company, said last week that the investment is considerable—about $1,000 per customer in the two towns and the rural areas served by the exchange. When completed later this summer, the addition of the underground lines in the exchange "should take care of our storm problems," said Rasmussen. The underground lines, being placed about three feet below the surface, will not be bothered by ice and sleet during winter or by strong winds and rain during summer, he said.

In addition, most of the customers in the exchange will be on private lines once the work is finished, and customers will have the option of having push-button phones installed in their homes for a slightly higher monthly fee. Although only visible the past few weeks, work on the improvement of the telephone lines in the exchange has been going on for about three years, the general manager said. It takes about a long to get the various phases of the job completed—designing, planning, engineering and talking to the customers to be served. Rasmussen said the company was very pleased with the acceptable response from the customers in the Dixon-Concord exchange when they were asked their feelings about improving the service. They gave 70 per cent approval to the idea, he said. The telephone company is not going into this job without experience. Recently the company has tackled similar improvements at Jackson, Clearwater, Bartel and Saunders County. Along with the underground lines being put down in the ex-

NORTHEAST EXTENSION Notes

A Poultry Barbecue
Turn your weekend picnic into something special with a barbecued chicken or turkey on the menu. A top quality, well-meat, ready-to-cook bird weighing from 1-3/4 to 2-1/2 pounds is best for grilling.
Birds cut in half, ready for the grill, are most convenient. If you need to cut it, split the bird by cutting it along the side of the backbone. Remove neck and giblets. Complete the separation by cutting down the middle of the breast.
Any type of inexpensive or expensive outdoor grill can be used. If using charcoal briquets, wait until they get small white spots on the surface and spread them evenly in one layer.
Place the birds bone side down and close together on the grill, approximately five inches from the coals. Use tongs or white gloves to turn birds every five to six minutes. Using a fork will puncture the meat causing juices to escape.
The secret to barbecuing mouth-watering chicken and turkey is slow cooking. The skin on a bird will blister when it is cooking too fast. The bird is usually done when the drumstick turns loose from the meat.
Add extra flavor to poultry with barbecue sauce, basting frequently. Use a regular basting brush or a new paint brush. For variety, try marinating the bird in sauce for several hours before grilling.
Poultry on the grill tastes so good and it's such a good excuse for stretching out-of-the-house hours.

Golf Winners Told

Winners of the mixed two-ball foursome held at the Country Club last Friday afternoon were Mrs. Del Stoltenberg and Mrs. Jane Higelow, first; Mrs. George Thorbeck and James Marsh, second; and Ken Dahl and Mrs. Fred Giffers-leave tied with Budd Barnhoff and Mrs. Ken Dahl for third.
About 15 couples turned out for the event which was followed by a potluck supper. Co-chairmen were Adon Jeffress and George Thorbecks.
A mixed two-ball, best-ball, to be followed by a cold supper and dancing to recorded music has been scheduled for July 17. Co-chairmen will be the Bob Reegs and Roger Bentleys.
There are about one million licensed women hunters in the United States.

Allen Pee Wees Drop 2nd of Year

Allen's PeeWees, blowing hot and cold this season, dropped their second game of the year, bowing to Jackson Sunday afternoon by the score of 9-2.

After taking an early lead on Brent Chase's home run in the first inning, the Allen club failed to click. Jackson scored in every inning to even Allen's record at 2-2.

Al Midgets won their third in a row in polishing off Jackson, 12-1, in the second half of Sunday's twin bill.

The bottom half of the batting order carried the load for the locals as they accounted for 10 of the 11 hits Allen collected.

Paul Snyder's four for four, Charlie Peters' run for one and three walks, Darwin Rubick's two for two and two walks, Donald Kluer's two for four, and Tim Hill's one for two led the way to the victory.

Scott Von Minden was in control all the way, allowing three hits and no runs while issuing four walks. Paul Snyder, pitching the seventh, gave up one hit, and a miscue allowed Jackson to score its only run.

Allen hosted Emerson Wednesday at 6:30 in a make-up game.

Adults Offered Swimming Tips At Local Pool

If you're an adult and haven't learned how to swim, you are being offered a chance to learn through the adult swimming lessons being given at the Wayne municipal pool.

There is no charge for the lessons. All that is needed is a one-time ticket to the pool.

Teaching the lessons this year will be Sadi Newell. The lessons, which began Monday, will be given nightly from 5 to 6 o'clock.

Allen Hansen, manager of the pool, said the lessons cover everything from the basics of swimming to advanced swimming depending upon the ability of the adults who take advantage of the offering.

About 265 youths are enrolled for the daily lessons given during the week at the pool, reports Hansen.

Meier, Overin Hurl Wayne To Season's 4th Victory

Larry Meier and Hank Overin shared mound duties as Wayne's town team baseball club posted its fourth straight win of the season, a 7-1 win over host Verdrege Sunday night.

Tonight (Thursday) the homeowners host Randolph in an 8:15 tilt. Sunday evening sees the locals playing at Orchard, one of last year's strong squads.

Meier pitched the first three innings against the Verdrege squad, getting tagged for a single in the opening frame to drive in a runner who made it on base on an outfield error.

He gave up one other hit, a double with one out in the second, while holding Verdrege scoreless the rest of his stint.

Overin, manager of the Wayne team, struck out seven hitters, gave up only one hit and walked but one in his six innings on the mound.

Phil Witt, an import from the Winstate area, opened Wayne's scoring by tagging Verdrege for a double with the bases loaded in the second to bring home two runs. Cerny walked two and hit another batter before giving up the two-bagger to Witt.

Wayne added two more runs in the second, on a sacrifice by Overin and a single by Jerry Weber, and then squeezed home one run each in the sixth, seventh and ninth frames.

Collecting the other five hits for Wayne were Overin, Meier, Fritz Weible, Randy Jacobsen and Gordie Jorgensen, the last two for doubles.

Other Tri-County League action scheduled for tonight: Laurel at Verdrege, Coleridge at Orchard, Pierce at Bloomfield. Sunday will see Laurel at Pierce, Verdrege at Bloomfield and Randolph at Wausa.

Local Midgets, Legion Sting Wisner Monday

Wayne's Midgets and Legion combined to score 32 runs against Wisner Monday to rack up two more Ralph Bishop League victories.

The win for the Midgets, 17-5, followed on the heels of a 6-3 loss to host Wakefield Saturday night. In their last outing, the Legion players, winners 15-2 at Wisner, dropped a 9-0 contest at North Bend a week ago.

Chuck Roland's four straight singles in four trips to the plate and Bob Nelson's three singles in four at bats highlighted the 15-hit barrage of the Midgets against Wisner.

Also getting more than one hit against Wisner's Babe were Gordon Cook, a triple and a single, and Roger Saul, a double and a single. John Rehwisch accounted for the third extra-bagger given up by Cerny when he doubled in the lively second.

Wayne, down 3-0 after one complete inning, collected six runs in the second frame on two walks, Rehwisch's double, singles by Roland, Nelson and Cook, and two errors.

The local team bettered that output by one in the fourth, then added four more runs in the fifth. Wisner, after pushing two runs home in the third, was unable to score again, forcing the game to be called at the end of five innings because of the 10-run rule.

Earle Overin and Chuck Roland combined to handle pitching chores in the victory.

Wayne's Legion bettered the Midgets' 15-hit effort. Leading that humiliation of the Wisner hurler was Mike Ginn with two home runs and a triple in five trips to the plate.

Right behind him was Breck Glese with a triple and a double in three at bats, Mike Creighton and Rod Cook with three singles each. Chuck Weible with two

The petitioners claim they filed their petitions with Rickers on Feb. 17 this year. They charge that although the petitions were accepted by Rickers and given to the Wayne County Reorganization Committee, they were not acted upon.

Rickers informed the petitioners by letter on May 11 that they would not act on the petitions because state law prohibited the transfer of School District 80 land to Districts 75 and 76, according to the petition.

A Deserted Farmhouse --- Sign of the Times

Story and Photos by Jane Owens
 An eerie feeling penetrates the air. The farm has been deserted, yet much evidence of human life remains. The weeds have shot up and the wood on the house rots away.

Tools hang on the side of the barn. Once new, the flitch has worn off, leaving only a rusted brown color.

Beside a weather-worn shed lies a junk heap. Old tires, farm equipment and screen doors are jumbled together, along with several newly deposited beer cans.

With headlights missing and tires removed, an old Chevrolet stands amidst the weeds. Shattered glass forms a spider web pattern on its window panes.

In contrast to the dinginess of the front porch, wild flowers bloom beside the screen. The floor has caved in, broken windows stand out like empty caverns, rotted boards and tarnished milk pails litter the ground.

Inside the house, all valuable articles have disappeared and a layer of dust coats the floor.

An old water pump, probably once used for Saturday night baths, stands idle. As if the inhabitants only left yesterday, a gallon milk carton and shiny coffee can sit beside the sink.

Each detail helps contribute to the mysterious mood surrounding the abandoned farmyard. Will anyone share the secrets hidden in its past?

A 'People Investment'

People living in the Dixon-Concord area will soon be benefiting from underground telephone lines. The underground lines promise to offer much better service during winter and summer storms and will give each home or business in the area a private telephone line.

The improvement is not coming cheaply, however. The Northeast Nebraska Telephone Co. is spending about $400,000 on the improvement. That figures out to roughly $1,000 per customer—a small amount in anybody's language.

If things continue progressing in the small towns around Wayne as they have done over the past few years, people in the larger cities will come to envy them rather than feel sorry for them.

Here's a sampling of some of the improvements made in the lives of those living in some of the smaller area towns: Carroll residents are now making use of a sanitary sewer system. The system is similar to the one installed not too long ago at Allen. Residents in Dixon are about half way to their goal of a sewage system for their town.

Carroll's older citizens can enjoy the friendship and fun provided at their own senior citizens center, one very similar to the one in Wayne. Allen area people can probably sleep a little sounder now that several citizens have passed a first aid course which taught them how to react in a variety of emergencies.

Similar things are going on in the other area towns—Laurel, Wakefield, Winside and Hoskins. They point out that the people living there are trying to make their towns better places to live. That they are succeeding is shown by the willingness of a telephone company to invest such a huge amount in the area—and in the people. —NLH.

Thoughtlessness May Kill

Heavy rains and flooding in the area during the last month have made it necessary to use more than common caution while driving on some rural roads due to washouts.

Bob Nissen, county superintendent of roads, said the washouts were marked with red flags as rapidly as possible. Other roads in extremely poor shape were marked as dangerous by roadblock posts.

Vandals have thoughtlessly removed the red warning markers and some roadblocks, Nissen said.

Three potentially dangerous washouts on the east side of the road four miles west of Winside and a mile south were marked Thursday afternoon. A car traveling that road at night might easily have hit any of the three and the result would most likely have been disastrous.

Just why anyone with any concern for others at all would steal road markers that warn of danger is difficult to understand.

What kick could vandals have in possibly contributing to someone's death or permanent disability? Everyone driving rural roads in the area will do well to use extreme caution, particularly at night, because there may be danger ahead beyond reach of the headlights.

May those of you stealing the road markers soon grow up and hope no one dies because of your lack of judgment. —MMW.

Suggestion for Public Restrooms

A reader from Pilger commented recently in a letter to the editor that it is too bad Wayne does not have public restrooms close to the business district. The lack of restrooms makes it unhandy for mothers with children and for some of the older people out to do some shopping.

It is unfortunate that no public restrooms exist within close walking distance of the main shopping area in the city. Although there are public restrooms at the city auditorium, they are only open to use when the auditorium is open.

The subject of public restrooms has come up before city officials several times over the past few years. Had the city complex been approved by the voters a few years back, public restrooms would have been provided in that building.

Since any other city building plan seems unlikely for the next several years, maybe it is time for the city council and possibly the local Chamber of Commerce to consider solving this problem. A solution would benefit both groups.

A local man has suggested that the facilities be located in the small vacant lot just east of the Chamber offices on West Third Street. The facilities would not have to be elaborate or expensive. —NLH.

A Salute to the Elderly

More than a million Americans are currently residents of nursing homes. This is National Nursing Home Week, an annual salute to the aged and ill living in long term health care facilities.

Ninety per cent of nursing home patients are over 65 years of age; 33 per cent are over 85. Many of these persons have outlived family and friends and community contact is an important factor to their well-being.

Observance of National Nursing Home Week is sponsored by members of the American Nursing Home Association and is meant to arouse community awareness to nursing home residents, an often neglected segment of society.

As consistently greater emphasis in the market place is put on youth and a seemingly prevalent attitude is that of wanting to stay young, oftentimes elderly persons do not receive recognition that is rightfully theirs.

Aging is a process that takes place in every living being regardless of wealth or position in life. It should therefore be of interest to society to see that the elderly receive proper care and respect.

Many of the elderly in our society maintain their own residence while others live with relatives or children. Countless others make their residence in one of the many nursing homes scattered across the nation.

During National Nursing Home Week let us pay special tribute to those whose labors and courage paved the way for following generations.

It would be a good time to visit the nursing home in your community and let the elderly there know they are not forgotten. —MMW.

High Cost of Farming

Three Dixon County residents lost their lives in tractor accidents in the last 18 months and there have been other numerous mishaps throughout the Wayne County area which resulted in injuries.

Accidents in the United States involving farm tractors annually claim the lives of more than 4,000 persons and injure scores more. Ninety-seven per cent of the victims are males. One-third are under 25 years of age.

Seven in 10 of the fatal accidents occur on the farm. Six of 10 accidents involve a tractor overturning.

Information available at the county agriculture agent's office notes that safe tractor operation includes:

—Keeping small children away from tractors. Tractors are designed to carry only the driver. Discourage other riders.

—Keep wheels spread wide whenever possible.

—Reduce speed before turning. Doubling the speed of a farm tractor increases the danger of upsetting sideways four times.

—A loader in the raised position can increase the possibility of upset.

—Keep the tractor in gear when going down hill. Let the tractor engine serve as a brake.

—Never attach a post or log to the rear tractor wheels when stuck in mud. If the wheels are not free to turn, the tractor will pivot around the axle and upset.

—Never hitch to the axle or other high points. Always hitch to the drawbar. Take up slack slowly and never jerk on chains or cables. Broken parts of the chain could act like shrapnel.

—Tractors can also upset backwards when pushing, using a front end loader, or when hitched to the front end by chains or cables which pass under the back axle.

—Brake carefully when backing down a steep incline because the tractor can flip over backwards.

Many hours of a farmer's time are spent driving a tractor. We hope each driver will exercise daily caution to protect his own life. —MMW.

State Seeking New Ways For Improved Health Care

LINCOLN—A one-year study to uncover innovative ways to deliver health care to Nebraskans, no matter where they live has been undertaken.

The study will be financed with a $252,000 grant from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to the State Office of Comprehensive Health Planning.

Callista Cooper Hughes, head of the planning agency, will be in charge of the study. She said there is a good possibility further federal money will be available to help implement some of the suggestions developed by the study.

To help with the analysis and collection of data for the study, Mrs. Hughes said, the Westinghouse Electric Corp. was hired under a $175,000 contract. The study will begin by compiling basic information about the health care presently available in Nebraska and the amount that is needed. The two will be compared to find what were described as "mismatches." Then programs will be developed to solve the problems.

Mrs. Hughes said local organizations and individuals will be involved throughout the study, providing information and assisting in the decisions.

She said Nebraska is the only state to receive a grant for such a study on a statewide basis.

Motor Pool Planned

The Exon administration has hired a former North Platte automobile dealer to develop and operate a state motor pool. Al Eighty, who owned a dealership in North Platte 20 years, went on the state payroll last week.

The 1969 Legislature authorized the creation of a pool of state cars, but no funds were provided and nothing was done to get the program going.

State Administrative Services Director Gus Lieske said Eighty would put together a system using cars now assigned to specific agencies and make them available to all state employees.

Eighty also was directed to develop a record-keeping system which will allow the state to keep better track of the condition of its automobiles. Until now, Lieske said, cars have been kept for a specific number of miles or a certain time period, without consideration of their condition. It could be, Lieske said, that it would be more efficient to trade in some cars earlier and some later.

Ag No. 1 Priority

Gov. J. E. Exon has said the improvement of agriculture will be the No. 1 priority of his administration.

He said all state agencies will assist in finding ways to make farming and ranching more prosperous. He said it's the backbone of the state's economy and Nebraskans in the past may have been "stepping over diamonds on the way to the mine" as they courted outside industry to locate in the state.

One method Exon said he has under consideration is a state-guaranteed loan program for the development of irrigation. Some farmers, he said, have trouble qualifying for loans to start or improve their irrigation facilities.

Money for the irrigation loans, he said, might be made available from the revenues from the sale of school lands. It would be better to invest that money in Nebraska's basic industry, the governor said, than to speculate on the stock market with it.

The objective in Nebraska should be the development of agriculture which will keep money in the state. In the area of livestock, for example, Exon said Nebraska-bred cattle should be fed Nebraska-produced feed grains and processed in

Out of Old Nebraska

Surveying on the Republican, 1863

Nebraska's pioneer surveyors are too often overlooked when the importance of various types of pioneer professions, yet their job was not only important, but it was dangerous as well as rigorous. The papers for the U. S. Surveyor General of Nebraska, in the archives of the Nebraska State Historical Society, contain many interesting letters from surveyors detailing their experiences.

On July 8, 1863, Dennis C. Hathorn wrote the Surveyor General from Fort Kearny prior to going to the Republican country to survey the townships of present Franklin and Webster Counties. Shortly before arriving at the Fort, a party of Sioux had attacked the Pawnee reservation killing several Pawnee and one Nebraska soldier. Hathorn wrote, "I reached here Monday evening last, and my team got up Tuesday morning expecting to deposit a part of our supplies and go on that evening so we could reach the Republican today—but other deputies, who had got here before me thought it inadvisable to start." After discussing the Indian threat Hathorn concluded it was probably safest to go south, and one month later, August 7, he was at the fort on business, writing of his month's work:

"The weather has been very unfavorable for running township lines. The last two weeks, it has been rainy or cloudy a part of about every other day. My whole party was drenched with rain three days in succession. The Republican has been high and troublesome to cross since the last heavy rains. The Indians keep ahead of us—we have seen only a few and they appeared friendly. They seem much surprised at the big pile of guns in our wagons—and wanted to know how many men we had. My compassman told them a 'heap'... Last week we were on the camping grounds lately occupied by Indians—they looked as though there might have been several thousand. The buffaloes too have most all gone, which latter we regret... I have run up four tier of township lines—and unless the weather becomes more favorable shall keep on down the Republican and run the Exterior lines and subdivisions of the other three townships."

Little else is known of Hathorn or his experiences except that he finished his contract in late September.

Use Caution in Applying Insecticides

Insecticides commonly used by homeowners and gardeners can be dangerous and users should take special care in their selection and application this summer, according to the Game and Parks Commission and the University of Nebraska Agricultural Extension Service.

Some insecticides are very hazardous, especially in the hands of inexperienced individuals who have not been properly trained in their use. For this reason, every precaution should be taken in applying insecticides around the home. The first step toward effective, yet safe application, is to read the label.

The university and commission suggest several ways of solving problems associated with insecticides.

Selection of the proper pesticide poses the first dilemma for the homeowner. Only those insecticides with a short residual life are desirable. For most sucking-type insects, malathion or diazinon are safe, effective and easy to apply. For all other insects, Sevin or methoxychlor are suggested for use.

These four insecticides will solve almost all of the homeowner's major lawn or garden problems.

Safe storage and handling of insecticides is also important. All insecticides should be stored only in the original, labeled container and out of the reach of children, preferably in a locked cabinet.

Disposal of unused insecticides which have already been mixed also poses a problem. Experts suggest burning the excess. A special precaution is not to dump it down the drain or pour along the curb.

Following these suggestions will insure that insect pests are controlled effectively and safely while maintaining a safe home environment.

Following is an all-purpose mixture using wettable powders for homeowner to control most destructive insects:

70% Sevin.....	2 Tbsp. per gallon of water or
50% methoxychlor.....	2 Tbsp. per gallon of water mix either of above with either of the following
2% malathion.....	2 Tbsp. per gallon of water or
50% diazinon.....	1 Tbsp. per gallon of water

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

A funny thing happened to me coming home from the Forum. I became part of the Ladies' Club. No, I did not go to the Scandinavian countries and submit to a Christine Jorgensen operation. My transformation was more psychological than physical.

As I finished a strictly middle-of-the-road talk to the Wyoming Livestock Growers, a dancing band of Avon-smelling, burlesque-wearing indian damsels layd me task too boring for their "lord-and-masters." They finish almost as many projects as the men table. The only ones willing to work cheaper are their kids and maybe the college professors who submit papers to state magazines. They do not merely smile, they give old-fashioned grins—the kind that turn me on.

Incidentally, after 9,700 miles in three weeks of travelling through the Cornbelt, mountains and northeast, I see the best grass prospects of all time. However, it is washy—not packing much power as mid-June.

Due to soft (lethargic and early) rains, expect a $2-$3 drop in stock cattle between mid-August and mid-October.

Was surprised not to see more crossbred cattle from the highway. More mixed flats within 50 miles of North Platte than the other 9,600 miles combined.

The Farmer and Insecticide Use Insect pests will soon become a problem to agricultural crops and farmers will be considering control measures.

This period is also a crucial time for a number of species of wildlife, particularly birds that are rearing young, according to the University of Nebraska Agricultural Extension Service and the Nebraska Game

Service and the Nebraska Game

Farmers Getting Back in Fields

Alden Dunklau finishes cultivating these "point rows" on a field of his several miles northwest of Wayne. The field, damaged only slightly by the recent hail in the area, should yield a fine corn crop this fall if the weather and disease do not go against it, according to Dunklau. The farmer was one of several in the north part of the county who were forced to plant a second time after hail and siltling ruined some of their crops. Like numerous other farmers, Dunklau was in the field early this week in an effort to knock down the weeds before they began damaging his crops.

Corn Borer Now Making Appearance

European corn borer moth emergence is well underway throughout the eastern half of Nebraska and egg laying has started, reports a University of Nebraska at Lincoln entomologist.

ing all the details of just how pine should be pruned, contact the State Forestry Office on the University of Nebraska-Lincoln East Campus. If enough people are interested, a field demonstration may be scheduled.

The agronomists report that about 94 out of every 100 plants had borer damage and there was an average of almost four borers in every corn stalk.

Larvae hatching from eggs laid on smaller corn are not likely to survive in very high numbers due to the higher concentration of the chemical DIMBOA, which confers resistance to first brood borers. This chemical is in higher concentration in small plants and gradually fades as the plants mature so that taller plants are more likely to have first brood borers.

No control is warranted until the signs of borer feeding are evident in the field, explains Keith. The most obvious indication of first generation borer activity in a cornfield is the presence of small shot-holes and excrement in and on the leaves that are unfolding in the whorl.

If a few whorls are pulled apart and examined closely, small brown-headed worms measuring about one eighth to one-half inch long will be found. If 50 per cent or more of the plants show this type of feeding damage, it may pay to apply a chemical control, Keith recommends.

First brood damage will occur from about June 20 into the last week of July. However, treatments must be applied before borers are half-grown and have begun to bore into the stalks. Once they have left the leaf axils and penetrated the stalks, they are protected from entomological chemicals, warns the entomologist.

Chemicals registered for use on corn for the control of corn borers are: Diazinon 14G, seven pounds per acre; Sevin 10G, 20 pounds per acre; EPN 2G, 10 pounds per acre, and toxaphene 10 per cent granules, 15 pounds per acre.

If toxaphene is applied, fields should not be used for pasturing or fed to animals being finished for slaughter. It should never be used on dairy farms. Restrictions on the other products are not limiting.

Some farmers and a few aerial applicators in the past have attempted to control the moth stage of the corn borer instead of directing the attack at borer larvae, which actually cause the damage.

Suggested, this approach prevents egg-laying but there is little or no evidence to support this idea. Corn borer moths are good fliers and are capable of flying from some distance to reinfest a field, even if sprayed. In addition, it is unlikely that many of the moths hiding in tall grasses and weeds within a field will be killed, since they are well protected by heavy foliage.

No one should treat unless he is certain he has an insect problem. If in doubt, consult with the county extension agent.

Yard & Garden Tips

Q—What are recommended varieties of tomatoes?
A—"Super Sue" has been found to be very favorable in the Nebraska climate. Other good varieties are "Bushmore," "Spring Giant," "Surprise" and "Avalanche." A recommended early variety is "Galaxy."

Prune Pine Tree
Prune pine at the right time if you want shapely trees.
All pine varieties produce new shoots in May with bud clusters on the ends. Pruning in June or July regulates length of the new shoots while the tree still is able to develop new buds near the cut.
A profusion of buds usually develops near the cut, producing more branching and more dense growth.
Do not prune pine later than August 1. If you do, they will not develop new buds near the cut and this cannot produce the next year's growth.

People Ask Us--

QUESTION: My husband was killed in a military airplane crash. His body could not be recovered and identified. Is it true that the government will furnish a memorial to be placed on our local cemetery plot for him?

ANSWER: The U. S. Office of Support Services has been authorized by Congress to provide memorial markers in honor of members of Armed Forces missing in action, who died, or who were killed while so serving, and whose remains have not been identified but are believed to be non-recoverable.

Families of deceased veterans who come within this category may apply for a memorial marker. This will be inscribed and delivered with charge to Wayne. The only cost to the family is the cost of erecting the memorial on their family cemetery plot. We have these forms, and will complete them for anyone without charge.
