W-C School Levy to Increase 3 Mills

Members of the Wayne-Carroll school board Monday night approved a budget for next year which will require a total mill levy of 69.80—an increase of slightly over three mills over the current levy of 66.76.

The approved budget—which will require the raising of about $68,000 more through local taxes than the present budget—means the following to a property owner:

A person owning a $20,000 home would pay $488.60 in taxes to help support the school system (taxes paid on 35 per cent valuation of that home, or $7,000). That same person is paying $467.32 on his home under the present school district mill levy.

Most of the increase in taxes will go to pay the salary increases for the teachers and employees in the school system—$60,000 of the approximate $68,000 which will be raised locally, according to Superintendent Francis Haum. Haum said that the salary increases approved by the board earlier in the year averaged four and a half per cent for each employee.

The general fund will require a levy of 59.59 mills, up from the present 56.81. The levy for bond, interest and retirement will be 6.21, up from the 7.35 presently levied. The levy could mean to pay for any building or improvement projects—2.0 mills—will remain the same under the approved budget.

Lynn Roberts, president of the board, said he was pretty well convinced that the budget was as low as the board could keep it without doing away with some of the things which give students incentive to go to school.

According to the superintendent, the school will be operating on less money next year than it is this year when the effects of inflation are taken into consideration.

Estimates of the mill levy which will be needed to raise money for the school to operate under next year's budget are based on the estimated valuation of the school district property of $11.6 million.

School officials estimate an increase in the school population next year of about one per cent.

Total budget for the coming school year—counting transfer of money from one fund to another and necessary cash reserve the school has on hand—is $1,217,318.

However, only $668,000 will be raised through local property taxes. The rest will be made up through such sources as the non-resident tuition payments, state aid, school lunch payments and so on.

Not counting transfers from one fund to another, the board actually approved a budget of $928,383—up about $3,000 from the $876,050 in the budget this year.

Early July daytime temperatures have averaged about 10 degrees below those in the area in late June. The lower temperatures were welcomed even though humidity remained high.

Precipitation amounted to 1.12 inches of rain Monday and little more than a trace fell Tuesday.

Dick Dion of Wayne has been named commander of Wayne American Legion Post 43.

Post members held an election of officers June 30 during a meeting at the Vet's Club and elected Dion to head up the local post for a term of one year. He and other officers will take over official duties after installation Aug. 25.

LeRoy Clark, outgoing commander, was elected first vice-commander. Officers re-elected include Loran Ellis, second vice-commander; Jean Nuss, adjutant; Chris Bargholz, finance officer and post chaplain; Lee Tietgen, service officer; Ivan Creighton, child welfare chairman; Jim Pickett, athletic chairman; Raymond Murray, Americanism chairman, and Jerry Wehrer, Viet Nam membership chairman.

The VFW post in Wayne has decided to spend about $4,500 to build an addition to the west of the local club in order to increase the meeting room and dancing area.

The decision to enlarge the Vets Club came during the recent regular meeting of the See VETS CLUB, page 6

NEN Group $1,000 Richer

Floyd Burt of Winside, a member of the Wayne County commissioners and vice-chairman of the northeast Nebraska board of mental retardation, signs a $1,000 check the board received recently through the Madison County mental retardation office. The money came from the state and will go to develop services for the mentally retarded in this part of the state, probably to help start a workshop in South Sioux City. Watching Burt sign the check are Jim Russell of Allen, at left, chairman of the regional board of mental retardation, and Kenneth Siltman, vice-chairman of the board and president of the Northeast Nebraska Association of Retarded Children.

Herald's Glass Pile Starting to Grow

The Wayne Herald's glass drive has started to reap results—over 295 pounds of glass were brought in by early this week.

The person or group bringing in the most glass before the August 2nd deadline will receive a $25 cash prize from the newspaper.

Individual or group wishing to try for the cash prize. It should be washed and have any paper or metal removed before being brought to the newspaper for weighing.

Contestants are asked to take the glass to the pile along the railroad tracks in the southwest part of the city after having it weighed at the newspaper.

Danes Study American Education

It's something of a busman's holiday for 33 Danish educators spending two weeks at Wayne State College. They are studying American education—its philosophy, techniques and equipment. One of the techniques they practiced was micro teaching with television. Mogens Falk, at right, conducts his single concept lesson (on chemistry) for the television camera and microphone while Dr. Gene Bigelow of the WSC faculty, Mette Hampen and Anders Mathisson serve as the class. Just as Wayne State students practice the micro teaching technique, the Danes watched a videotape playback of each lesson and then shared comments on their proficiency. Said Dr. Bigelow: "They all proved they are experienced teachers." Monday the Danes visited the Wayne High School library where librarian Beverly Merriman explained numerous teaching techniques. Tuesday and Wednesday they visited Lincoln and Omaha—to be greeted by Governor Exon and tour the capitol and an elementary school, then to inspect Burke High School and the Instructional Media Center in Omaha. The Wayne stay will end early Monday.

School Board Okays Paving Parking Lot

Work will probably begin within the next few weeks on $14,000 worth of concrete paving at the three schools in Wayne.

The Wayne-Carroll school board Monday night approved the low bid of $14,195 turned in by Norfolk Concrete Finishers for the work, which will provide parking for about 75 cars in the south part of the high school parking lot and will provide paved recreation areas at the other two schools.

Paved will be an area 205 feet east and west by 95 feet east and south in the high school lot. It will park three rows of cars and will permit cars to drive along the south edge to get on the exit driveway around the high school.

Also included in the bid are two small concrete paving jobs at the other schools in Wayne—a 50-foot by 80-foot slab at each school.

The two concrete slabs will be used for such things as volleyball, badminton, shuffle board and tennis, according to Superintendent Francis Haum.

Haum, who said several parents have expressed concern about youngsters falling off playground equipment onto the concrete, said there will be no equipment placed on the concrete.

The concrete slabs will be placed just west of the elementary school and south of the middle school.

Other bids turned in on the work: $15,234 by Don Goeden of Wayne and $15,880 by Christlansen Construction Co. of Pender.

The school board has been wrestling with the problem of how to improve the parking lot for the past several months. Now, the board can pave a small area of the lot at a time.

Money to pay for the paving projects will come out of the

Allen Gets $39,000 FHA Grant

The village of Allen has received a $39,660 grant from the Farmers Home Administration to help pay for the sanitary sewer system recently installed in Allen.

Bill Snyder, clerk for the village board, said the money was received late in June.

The money will go to help pay the approximate $147,500 cost of the sewer system. Remainder of the cost of the system was financed through issuing $75,000 in general obligation bonds and application for a grant of approximately $15,000 from another federal agency. The second grant has not been received by the village.

Work on the sewer system began in the spring of 1970.

Golden Rod Council Establishes Office To Help Residents

Youths looking for jobs, people of any age looking for help in the area of work, housing or education, may now get a helping hand in Wayne.

Representatives of the Golden Rod Hills Community Action Agency now have an office located in the local Chamber of Commerce building at 108 West Third Street.

Mrs. Pat Dahl and Mrs. Juanita Thies, both of Winside, are community organizers at the office daily from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Financed on the federal level by the Office of Economic Opportunity, the action agency works in a five-county area including Wayne, Thurston, Burt, Dakota and Cedar Counties.

Fireworks Display Draws Big Crowd

Dick Diltman, chairman of the committee in charge of the Wayne County Jaycees' fireworks display Sunday night, said he was very pleased with the large number of people who turned out for the affair.

Over a thousand people lined the inside and outside of the fences at the ball park and sat in their cars for the display, which lasted about an hour and which included almost all aerial fireworks.

Diltman said that the display cost $625 and was purchased through donations from local businessmen. Latest contributions to the display are West's Barber Shop and Coryell Auto.

Next year the Jaycees hope to purchase individual pieces of fireworks for the display to make it more interesting and enjoyable, Diltman noted.

Helping the chairman with arranging this year's display, the second annual one for the group, was Bill Workman.

Guest from California Names Housing Project

The local low-income housing project has a new name and a California visitor in Wayne is the donor of a $25 U. S. Savings Bond for submitting the winning entry in a contest to name the development.

"Villa Wayne" is the name judges selected as winning the contest sponsored by the Wayne Housing Authority.

Submitting that entry, one of 166 competing in the contest held in late June, was Marge Davey of Huntington Beach, Calif., who is in Wayne this summer visiting her aunt, Madeline K. Davey, Miss Davey is also a niece of the late Mrs. Fred S. Berry.

Good Move by Council

Wayne's city council spent considerable time last week in discussing what to do to make sure the city's water supply would be safe from contamination if a residential development is started north of town.

The development is that proposed by Ernest Muhs just northwest of the drive-in theatre. Should plans for that development progress much further, the council would have to make a decision about whether to permit septic tanks in the area or to require some other method of handling the sewage waste from those who would live there.

State law permits the city to have a say in how sewage wastes in the area are disposed of. It should, for the city's water "mbe" is located right under where that development would spring up.

Job Help for Youth

Getting a job is not an easy task regardless of age, but youths looking for work during the summer months have a special program.

Employers needing help occasionally or on a part-time basis do not always know where to go to find good responsible help.

Getting those looking for work and those wanting to hire help together is one of the services being offered at the Golden Rod Hills Community Action Council office located at the local Chamber of Commerce building.

Young people looking for work should contact the action council and leave their names as being available for work. If an employer in the area needs help, he may contact the council's office at 108 West Third Street and get immediate results in getting responsible help.

The Golden Rod Hills Community Action Council is an agency set up by the Office of Equal Opportunity, a federal program, for a five-county area including Wayne, Thurston, Burt, Dakota and Cedar Counties.

The council was organized to add these counties in a self-help program regarding economic and self development, housing, employment, education and alcoholism. The council works with all ages of people.

Having a central office where those looking for work and those looking for laborers may find each other is an advantage to both.

Anyone wanting further details may call the Golden Rod Hills Community Action Council at 375-1515. Staff members are Mrs. Pat Dahne and Mrs. Nita Thies. Mrs. Thies is furnished to have an office offering such help. — MMW.

Goal Is Safer Streets

The police department apparently doesn't want stop signs at the corner of Fifth and Walnut Streets in Wayne. At least that's what must be deduced from comments made by the chief of police during last week's city council meeting.

The chief feels that more stop signs in the city will just create "enforcement problems" rather than eliminate some of the dangerous situations existing at several street corners in town. When you have numerous stop signs, some drivers will either "run them or burn them to the other," he told the council.

We disagree with the chief of police. We think that stop signs—although not necessarily 4-way stop signs as requested by residents in the area—would go a long way to reducing the danger now existing at Fifth and Walnut.

We disagree with the city councilmen who think that putting up caution signs will slow the traffic at that corner enough to eliminate that danger.

There is only one driver in a hundred—probably even fewer than that—who will run stop signs or "burn" from one to the other just because there are a few more around than he would like.

That stop signs at the corner might create a bit more work for the police force is less important than that they might make the intersection safer for the children in the area. — N.H.

Death Trap Set to Snap

Much like a trap waits to catch an unsuspecting mouse, a bridge located in Dixon County three miles north and three miles east of Wayne was nearly successful in claiming three lives last Thursday. A resident living near the intersection where the bridge is located reports there have been at least five accidents at the site in the last few years.

The bridge is located at an intersection of two county roads and is positioned northeast-southwest. Traffic approaching the bridge from any direction must make a turn to cross the crooked bridge. It is not only the position of the bridge which makes it dangerous, but Dixon County supervisors have posted only one sign warning motorists they are approaching a bridge in the bend of the road. That sign is several hundred feet west of the bridge. The other three approaches are unmarked.

A Wayne youth and two passengers in the car approached the bridge in the dark last Thursday and at the last split second—noticed an old tree limb laying half-way across the northeast approach to the bridge. The driver swerved to avoid hitting the limb, which incidentally covered a 12-foot deep and three-foot wide hole, causing the car to go out of control and roll over into a deep ditch.

Fortunately, no one was killed. Later examination of the bridge showed that both approaches were undermined and washed out. A nearby resident said he has told the Dixon County supervisors numerous times since February that the bridge was in need of maintenance.

Since the county posted no warnings marking the deep hole, which reaches across nearly three-quarters of the road, someone placed the tree branch over the hole. That branch made the young man driving the car swerve to miss the hole and consequently miss the bridge railing.

All motorists should stay away from the bridge, as both approaches are only a thin crust of roadbed.

It is hard to believe such conditions exist in road and bridge maintenance in this age.

Should a fatality occur at the site, the responsibility for the death will have to be shouldered by the Dixon County supervisors. — MMW.

Gun Sounds for Nebraska's Pollution Fighting Agency

LINCOLN—The state's new environmental protection department is off and running. The new agency, a creation of the 1971 Legislature, began operating July 1, the first day of the fiscal year, with T. A. Filipi in charge.

Actually, Gov. J. J. Exon was holding the title of director and Filipi, a 35-year veteran of the State Health Department, was acting as Exon's agent. That set-up is to continue until the 16-member advisory council on the environment gets together and nominates a slate of candidates from which the governor will choose a permanent director.

The first meeting of the new council—which replaces the air and water pollution control councils—is scheduled for later this month.

The water pollution control body, which had been in existence 13 years, held its final meeting last week. John S. Samson of Omaha, a charter member of the council, said he was proud of the work the group had accomplished.

"We've conducted a reasonable program and still protected the environment," he said. "The blight of 150 years of civilization (in Nebraska) can't be cured by arbitrary and rash action. This council needs apolitize to no..."

Air Standards Signed Just before the turn of the fiscal year, Exon signed state air quality standards proposed by the air pollution control council—another agency eliminated by the new law.

The standards for Douglas, Sarpy and Dakota Counties are equal to the limits established by the federal government as minimums. For the rest of the state, the limits are 20 per cent more stringent.

Dr. Henry D. Smith, the state health director and chairman of the air pollution control group, said the two-level standards were worked out as a sort of compromise.

One faction of the council sought tougher standards for the entire state and another faction lobbied for the federal standards statewide, Smith said.

If Exon hadn't given his endorsement of the proposals before July 1, the new environmental protection council would have had to begin all over again on air quality standards, including new hearings.

The law which created the new council, however, restricts it to standards no tougher than the federal government has set.

Exon conferred with the attorney-general's office before signing the standards which call for federal-plus-20-per-cent levels for all of the state except the Omaha, Bellevue and South Sioux City areas. He was told he would be on safe ground if he acted before July 1.

New Job for Otsson Elsewhere on the pollution control front, the University of Nebraska has established a new job for Dr. Howard W. Otsson, who has been associate dean of the College of Agriculture and director of agricultural experiment stations.

Chancellor Durward B. Varner has selected Otsson to serve as a coordinator of a statewide program to attack agricultural pollution problems. Varner says there is a possibility Nebraska may be chosen by the federal government as the site for a regional institute for research into such problems as feedlot pollution and the effects of pesticide and herbicide use.

Sheffield to Head Program At the same time, the chancellor announced that Dr. Leslie F. Sheffield, who has been superintendent of the NU experiment station at North Platte, has been named to head a statewide irrigation development program.

"Additional research and extension education programs," Varner said, "will be aimed at supporting an orderly, sound and economic development of Nebraska's irrigation agriculture. Many disciplines within the university are making important contributions and all outstate stations and most county agents are involved. Sheffield will be charged with coordinating the total effort."

Road Program Announced

Development of the state's highway system also was in the news recently. The State Road Department announced plans for the new fiscal year which include 123 projects on the state system and 60 for the Interstate Highway.

All told, the department says it will contract for $61.9 million worth of work before next June 30.

At the same time, the department released its plans for the next five fiscal years—stretching until June 30, 1977. Over the total six-year period, the department says $390.9 million is to be spent on highway construction.

State Engineer Thomas D. Doyle said the program for the coming year doesn't involve the use of any additional revenue bond money. He said even if more bonds were issued, no more work could be done because the entire federal obligation authority for the period—except for 91 cents—is involved in the schedule already.

Dear Editor: We have tried to answer personally all the letters we have received since the University of Nebraska at Lincoln students started their fund drive for Gary. The letters are still coming in and we are finding this an impossible task. We can only hope that all you thoughtful people will see this public expression of our gratitude.

On Christmas Eve Gary's mother arrived home from the hospital, ending 1970 with a total of 14 weeks away from the family. We hoped 1971 would treat us better.

In February Gary's illness was diagnosed as Hodgkins disease. It was not easy to tell a young man of 18 that he had Hodgkins disease, but Gary has a firm faith in the Lord and took the news calmly. On top of last year's medical bills, expenses for Gary's treatment seemed overwhelming, but we had faith the Lord would provide for them in some way.

When we first learned what Gary's friends at the University were doing, we were surprised to say the least. That anyone would start a fund for Gary's medical expenses had never occurred to us. And we thank God for all you wonderful people out there who through your love and generosity have made this trying time for us a time of hope and gratitude. Certainly the Lord never does anything without a purpose, and if nothing else Gary's illness has proved to us what we already knew—that love for one's fellowman is not dead.

Gary finished his last series of cobalt treatments on May 29, and everything considered is doing very well. We thank again all those who had any part in helping him. We can only pray now that this recovery will be complete.

Dear Editor: The AFS pupils in this country evidently are from well-to-do or rich parents who could come to this country any time they want to. These pupils are hand-picked from these families. The girl going to school at Battle Creek said most mothers in Chile work at a job, but her mother doesn't work. Also, her father had the money to make a trip to this country to see her graduate. Do these people really carry the message about this country to their country? Why doesn't the American Field Service have middle income or poor family children come to this country in place of the rich kids to see if they can do a better job of carrying the message. The poor kids can't get out of their country and don't know what this country is like or the people. These are the kids that need to get to this country to have better relations.

Are we not doing just the opposite of what we are trying to accomplish by having these rich kids coming here? Claire's Vogel P. S. The American Field Service could take a good hard look at this program.

Safer Storage

Rearranging equipment and cleaning supplies in the kitchen can be a simple way to safe storage.

For example, reserve upper cabinets or top-most shelves for household cleaning agents and install simple automatic latching or hidden door-catchers devices to convert them into child-proof, safe storage areas. The harmless items such as pots and pans can occupy the lower shelves, under counter or under sink areas.

Never store packaged foods with non-food items. The risk of product misuse is increased with such storage and the busy mother herself might reach for the wrong item in the middle of a recipe. If you own an automatic dishwasher, do not leave the door open after you have put dishwasher detergent in the receptacle within reach of a small child. This will protect eyes and throats of curious children.

Never transfer a cleaning agent from its usual container to be stored in a cup, glass or other receptacle ordinarily used for edibles. Before discarding empty containers, be sure the last drop is gone.

Right now, while you're thinking about it, why not check those kitchen cabinets and set up appropriate safe storage areas.

2 Winside Men Hurt in Crash

Two Winside men were injured around 10 a.m. Tuesday morning when the vehicles they were driving, a pickup and truck, collided four miles west of Winside at a county road intersection.

Hospitalized in serious condition at the Lutheran Community Hospital in Norfolk is 49-year-old Alvin L. Carlson, 5111 W. Wt. 19, was treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises and released.

Thirty-one American Field Service students and chaperones departed Wayne Monday continuing their bus tour of the United States after a three-day visit in Wayne.

The group originally numbered 32 but one of the boys was hospitalized in Colorado Springs, Colo. after being injured in a fall earlier last week.

Local host families met the bus load of foreign students around midnight Thursday night at Wayne High School. Activities Friday included a visit to the Jack Langemeier Dairy Farm six miles south and one mile west of Wayne. Langemeiers treated the pupils to refreshments and a tour of the dairy operation.

Friday evening, host families and the AFS teenagers met for a potluck picnic in Bressler Park at 6:30 and later attended the high school band concert also in the park. Evening activities were concluded with a dance at the Wayne Country Club.

Students spent Saturday and Sunday engaged in activities of their hosts and then gathered Sunday night in the yard at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Brandstetter.

The yard party included singing and presentation of several humorous skits, one of which featured five of the boys dressed as chorus girls.

Host families said goodbye to their guests Monday when the bus tour resumed and headed for Newton, Iowa.

Jack Langemeier of rural Wayne, at right explains to the AFS pupils touring his dairy Friday afternoon something about the many procedures necessary in handling the milk cows and milk.

AFS visitors added visual entertainment to the audio pleasures of a Friday night band concert in Bressler Park. Some of the enthusiastic students formed a chorus line and tried — with something short of perfection — to coordinate a kick. The spirit was there anyway and appreciated by the crowd.

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

After addressing a Royalean Hog Marketing Annual Meeting in Colorado, in early June, I met an old country boy who in 20 minutes made more stimulating agricultural statements than have come from our gifted Secretary of Agriculture during his entire career.

One question was: "What do you think of unionized farm laborers?" Truthfully, I seldom did. Then he casually remarked, "The one hope of the small independent rancher and farmer is the unionization of farm and ranch workers." To me, this was stronger than a double shot of Cutty Sark.

"Think about it. I'm being squeezed for land by a dozen corporation farms. If they are forced to unionize, they can't compete with me in any way. A unionized farm will pay wages comparable with competing industry—$3.50 to $5 an hour for a truck driver who won't put out as much work as the after-school help—I can hire."

"Corporate ranches and farms would be buried in government farms. Why, they'd be forced to record and report 10 times the cash expense. They'd need accountants, auditors, lawyers, managers, foremen.

"Truthfully, the best chance my kids have to keep our 420 roving is farm unionization."

These statements made me think—how far has Cesar Chavez progressed? My opinion—he has failed.

Last year, Chavez had a national victory after asking the American consumer to boycott grapes. But like Napoleon, he fought too long and spread his battle lines to Arizona, which has a right-to-work law. Washington committees respect civil liberties more than minority farm unions.

Chavez will ask the American housewife to boycott another product, but she will not respond.

Except at the localized level, the compulsory unionization led by Chavez is finished. Public opinion could care less.

However, expect giant farms and ranches to lose large amounts of money in operation, profiting only in land appreciation and real development. Conglomerate units will be successful only in produce and poultry, if monopolized. But with tax sheltering and advantageous intra-company exchange cash flows, these giant companies will find agricultural pursuits increasingly more inviting.

Agriculturally speaking, their labor costs will be out of line and eventually destructive if it were not for the tax and real advantages.

Family and small farm corporations are entirely another deal that will definitely threaten the independent agricultural unit.

Analyzing the statement of the Secretary of Colorado, widespread farm unionization would revitalize the independent family unit.

In fact, with the independent operator's innate know-how, his flexibility of decision and his willingness to forget the clock, the conditions and the stresses, there is only one way to defeat him. A bad banker.

True, some units are just too small to compete. A one-pump gas station on a swamp-surrounded gravel road will not work either.

Also, as individuals sell out, few new men replace them. Therefore, the farms are absorbed into a larger independent enterprise or a corporate body. But this again is a matter of long-term financing, not in the merits of individual potential.

Will farm unions profitably work? Maybe in truck farming, but not on the range, not in the mountains, not in the corn or wheat fields.

But a farmer or rancher on

YA! IT WAS A GREAT PLACE TO RAISE KIDS, BUT A POOR PLACE TO RAISE CORN, HOGS, AND CATTLE.

time-and-a-half, add up the kids' and the wife's time and some of these dry land operators, who own a longer suit in prairie than a bank balance, could soon be Texas.

Of course, that depends whether or its union scale or farm scale. If the latter, it is sure nice to break even occasionally.

Wayne Co. Fair Gets $1,000 Gift

Half of a $1,000 gift to the Wayne County Fair from Ak-Sar-Ben will help make a payment on the new exhibit building constructed at the fairgrounds last year. The balance will be used to put a new roof on the barn, according to two officers of the Wayne County Agricultural Society.

President Ieland Herman and Secretary Al Balle made the announcement about how the money would be used after receiving the check from Ak-Sar-Ben.

The county fair improvement program, now in its 14th year, is one of a series of projects of financial assistance to county fairs made possible by funds from Ak-Sar-Ben's annual race meeting, according to Tom Brock, executive director of Ak-Sar-Ben.

The popular program follows the "dollar-matching" principle in that Ak-Sar-Ben agrees to match dollars with each county fair which will match its contribution with at least an equal amount.

This year Ak-Sar-Ben has offered two programs to the county fairs. The first is the $500 matching grant for new construction; the second is the $500 "spruce-up" grant for repairs, painting, landscaping, cement work, roofing and beautification.

Thus, Ak-Sar-Ben has offered a maximum of $1,000 to each county fair in Nebraska on a matching basis. Ak-Sar-Ben sets aside $90,000 for this improvement program, plus approximately $25,000 annually for county fair premiums for direct payments to exhibitors by Ak-Sar-Ben.

The first 17-year period of the program has seen over $2,650,000 spent to benefit the

Tips for Making Silage

Making good quality, low-moisture legume-grass silage or haylage starts with a good stand of weed-free legumes, grasses or legume-grass mixtures. Since ensiling doesn't improve the crop, harvesting at the proper stage of maturity is important.

Alfalfa should be harvested in the late-bud stage, red clover and ladino during partial bloom and the tall-growing grasses during the late-boot or early-heading stage. Getting the crop cut, wilted and into the silo at the right time results in well-fermented silage that animals will eat readily.

Wilt cut forage and put it in the silo at 40 to 60 per cent moisture. You can expect the lowest combined field and silo losses when legume-grass forage is ensiled at this approximate moisture content.

Chop the forage so most of the pieces are less than one-half inch long. Pack the material uniformly and firmly in the silo to eliminate air pockets and see that all openings into the silo are tightly sealed. Moldy silage results when air comes into contact with the ensilage.

Blowing a load or two of wet, direct-cut forage on top of the silage and placing a weighted plastic cap over the top will reduce surface spoilage in conventional tower silos.

Take Time for Safety

Don't give safety a fast shuffle. That's the advice of 4-H boys and girls pursuing safety. Their projects cover a wide range of accident prevention at home, on the farm, on the highway, in sports and hunting and in doing everyday tasks.

The national 4-H safety program, conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and supported for a quarter-century by General Motors, enrolls about a half million youths annually between the ages of nine and 19.

Four-H community safety programs are also popular—groups of youth survey their communities and hold hazard hunts.

Safety specialists maintain that habits formed early in childhood are apt to stay with the individual throughout a lifetime. If that is so, 4-H youths have a good start. Why not join them?

But like Napoleon, he fought too long and spread his battle lines to Arizona, which has a right-to-work law. Washington committees respect civil liberties more than minority farm unions.

Chavez will ask the American housewife to boycott another product, but she will not respond.

Except at the localized level, the compulsory unionization led by Chavez is finished. Public opinion could care less.

However, expect giant farms and ranches to lose large amounts of money in operation, profiting only in appreciation and real development. Conglomerates will be successful only in produce and poultry, if monopolized. But with tax shelters and advantageous intra-company exchanging cash flows, these giant companies will find agricultural pursuits increasingly more inviting. Agriculturally speaking, their labor costs will be out of line and eventually destructive if it were not for the tax and real advantages.

Family and small farm corporations are entirely another deal that will definitely threaten the independent agricultural unit. Analyzing the statement of the Secretary of Agriculture, which spread farm unionization truly would revitalize the independent family unit.

In fact, with the independent operator's innate know-how, his flexibility of decision and his willingness to forget the clock, the conditions and the stresses, there is only one way to defeat him. A bad banker.

True, some units are just too small to compete. A one-pump gas station on a swamp-surrounded gravel road will not work either.

Also, as individuals sell out, few new men replace them. Therefore, the farms are absorbed into a larger independent acreage or a corporate body. But this again is a matter of long-term financing, not in the merits of individual potential.

Will farm unions profitably work? Maybe in truck farming, but not on the range, not in the mountains, not in the corn or wheat fields.

Wayne Co. Fair Gets $1,000 Gift

Half of a $1,000 gift to the Wayne County Fair from Ak-Sar-Ben will help make a payment on the new exhibit building constructed at the fairgrounds last year. The balance will be used to put a new roof on the hot barn, according to two officers of the Wayne County Agricultural Society.

President Ieland Herman and Secretary Al Babe made the announcement about how the money would be used after receiving the check from Ak-Sar-Ben.

The county fair improvement program, now in its 18th year, is one of a series of projects of financial assistance to county fairs made possible by funds from Ak-Sar-Ben's annual race meeting, according to Tom Brock, executive director of Ak-Sar-Ben.

The popular program follows the "dollar-matching" principle in that Ak-Sar-Ben agrees to match dollars with each county fair which will match its contribution with at least an equal amount.

This year Ak-Sar-Ben has offered two programs to the county fairs. The first is the $500 matching grant for new construction; the second is the $500 "spruce-up" grant for repairs, painting, landscaping, cement work, roofing and beautification.

Thus, Ak-Sar-Ben has offered a maximum of $1,000 to each county fair in Nebraska on a matching basis. Ak-Sar-Ben sets aside $50,000 for this improvement program, plus approximately $25,000 annually for county fair premiums for direct payments to exhibitors by Ak-Sar-Ben.

The first 17-year period of the program has seen over $2,650,000 spent to benefit the

Tips for Making Silage

Making good quality, low-moisture legume-grass silage or haylage starts with a good stand of weed-free legumes, grasses or legume-grass mixtures. Since ensiling doesn't improve the crop, harvesting at the proper stage of maturity is important. Alfalfa should be harvested in the late-bud stage, red clover and ladino during partial bloom and the tall-growing grasses during the late-boot or early-heading stage. Getting the crop cut, wilted and into the silo at the right time results in well-fermented silage that animals will eat readily.

Wilt cut forage and put it in the silo at 40 to 60 per cent moisture. You can expect the longer combined field and silo losses when legume-grass forage is ensiled at this approximate moisture content.

Chop the forage so most of the pieces are one-half inch long. Pack the material uniformly and firmly in the silo to eliminate air pockets and see that all openings into the silo are tightly sealed. Moldy silage results when air comes into contact with the ensilage.

Blowing a load or two of wet, direct-cut forage on top of the silage and placing a weighted plastic cap over the top will reduce surface spoilage in conventional tower silos.

Take Time for Safety

Don't give safety a fast shuffle. That's the advice of 4-H boys and girls pursuing safety. Their projects cover a wide range of accident prevention at home, on the farm, on the highway, in sports and hunting and in doing everyday tasks.

The national 4-H safety program, conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and supported for a quarter-century by General Motors, enrolls about a half million youth annually between the ages of nine and 19. Four-H community safety programs are also popular—groups of youth survey their communities and hold hazard hunts.

Safety specialists maintain that habits formed early in childhood are apt to stay with the individual throughout a lifetime. If that is so, 4-H youths have a good start. Why not join them?
