McGovern: There Can Be Prosperity

By Jane Owens
"Agricultural parity is down to about 68 per cent and farmers just can't make it at that level," said South Dakota Sen. George McGovern Saturday at Laurel. The Senator, hoping to be the 1972 Democratic candidate for President, talked to farmers and Democratic leaders from about 10 counties at Laurel during a three-day campaign trip through the Midlands.
McGovern hopes to win the Nebraska primary on May 9, one of 10 or 12 primaries in the nation.
"I think that economic issues will decide the 1972 Presidential race," said McGovern. He told his Laurel audience: "We've got to quit wasting our resources on war and start building up this country."

Sen. and Mrs. George McGovern, left, and Vince Rossiter of Hartington arrive for Saturday's meeting at Laurel.

The Senator mentioned problems with housing, transportation, unemployment and pollution in both rural and urban areas. According to McGovern, the worst way to fight inflation is to depress farm prices and create unemployment. Farmers are getting only two-thirds of the national average income and the Senator feels that raising parity to the 100 per cent level would help the entire economy.

To achieve full parity, McGovern would "go back to the basic price supports and direct payment through certificates."
He said that the U.S. economy is definitely in a period of recession with about six million people unemployed. According to the Senator, full employment is possible but we need different priorities. "There can be prosperity," he claimed.
When asked what effect the 18-year-old vote will have on the 1972 election, McGovern said that 25 million new voters have been added. So far, they are registering as Democrats in a ratio See MCGOVERN, page 5.

71st Old Settlers Reunion in Swing

Youngsters moved into the spotlight Wednesday night as the 71st annual Old Settlers Reunion got underway at Winside.

The youths in the area were offered a chance to compete in such varied activities as a junior water fight, penny scramble, tug-of-war and — for the hearty eaters — a boiled egg eating contest.

Activities today (Thursday) are just as varied.

In the slate for today are a children's parade at 10:15 a.m., a grand parade at 11, a band concert by the Wamed-arroll Band at 11, marching by the Junior Norfolk Drum and Bugle Corps at 2 and performances by the Hibbilly Dillies at 2:30.

Also scheduled to perform today: Harlan Bringer on the electric organ at 4, Hungry Five at 5:30, Emerson-Libbard stage band at 6, Battle Creek band at 7:30, Bill Legate and his country western group at 8:30 in a free street dance, the Senior Norfolk Drum and Bugle Corps at 8 and the Smoke Ring at 9.
Other activities on the agenda: horseshoe pitching to start at 9 this morning, a girls' softball tournament this afternoon at 1:30 and 2:30 and water fights between area volunteer fire departments at 6:30.

Sr. and Mrs. Harrington will be presented certificates by LeLand Herman, president of the Wayne County Agricultural Society, and engraved plaques by J. Alan Cramer, Ak-Sar-Ben ambassador. The presentation is slated for 7:30 p.m. on Aug. 5 at the Wayne County fairgrounds/grandstand.

Pioneer Farm Families to Be Cited

Two Wayne County farm owners, Ella King Harrington and Ernest Strate Jr., will receive the Nebraska Pioneer Farm Award during the Wayne County Fair.

The award, co-sponsored by Ak-Sar-Ben and the Nebraska Association of Farm Managers, is made annually to owners of farms which have remained in the same family for 100 years or longer.
In 1871, George J. King of Illinois (Mrs. Harrington's grandfather) paid for 160 acres of Wayne County land by "cash entry" at Dakota City, buying a patent which was issued to veterans by the federal government.

Several veterans sold their patents to pioneers for $1.14 to $1.25 an acre.
Mrs. Harrington now owns half of the original acreage. Anephew, J. Knox Jones of Lincoln, owns the rest of the land.

Fredrick Strate, Ernest Strate Jr.'s grandfather, and his bride bought a 160 acre homestead and an additional land claim in 1870. The Wayne County farm con-

The exhibit, which will run all summer, will feature over 100 works by students in painting classes under Richard Lesh, chairman of the college's art department.
Most of the paintings will be for sale ranging from a few dollars on up, according to Lesh. The exhibit, representing the work of about 50 students will come down Sept. 10.

Weather

Air conditioners in the area got a rest as cooler temperatures moved across northeast Nebraska during the last week. Thermometers climbed above the 90 degree mark for a high of 96 Friday, but otherwise stayed in the mid-eighties. Night-time temperatures got down into the low fifties and as air conditioners were turned off, several residents reported adding an extra blanket on the bed.
An area rain shower Saturday night amounted to .22 of an inch bringing the total rainfall for the month to 2.75 inches.

Wayne, Allen Legals On Proposed Budgets Printed Inside Today

Legal publications of interest to residents of the city of Wayne and the Allen school district are printed inside this issue of The Wayne Herald.
The legal concerning Wayne residents involves the proposed budget for the city for the coming year.
That proposed budget will be considered for adoption at Tuesday night's council meeting. Estimate of the probable amount of money necessary for all purposes for the fiscal year is set at $1,941,930.
If the city's present valuation of $7.7 million doesn't change drastically, city officials estimate that the city tax levy will increase from its present 23 mills to 23.88 mills to finance that budget.
The legal concerning Allen school district residents is the school board's estimate of the amount of money which will be necessary to operate the school system for another year.
The proposal includes a raise in the total budget from $284,400 to $312,000.
The board will meet at 8 p.m. Monday night at the high school to consider adopting the budget for the coming year.

Area Youths to Receive 4 State College Awards

One youth from Wayne, two from Wakefield and one from Laurel have been named winners of the 1971-72 State College Board of Trustees' scholarships.
Named to receive the awards—all to Wayne State College—were Kathryn Hepburn of Wayne, Mary Kaufman and Robert Mavis of Wakefield and Patti Mason of Laurel. All are spring graduates of their respective high schools.
The awards went to 81 graduates of Nebraska high schools who will receive remission of tuition at one of the four state colleges in the state—Wayne, Chadron, Kearney or Peru.
Tests in examinations specified by the board and recommendations from high school teachers and administrators were used as the basis for awarding the scholarships.
Resident tuition for the coming year at the schools is $365.
The awards mark the first time the board has given them based on scholarship.
The 1971 Legislature authorized the scholarships.

'Thou Shalt Not Kill Thyself'

"Thou shalt proceed slowly on rough or slippery ground or roadways, for otherwise thy tractor may slip most painfully atop thee."
That is one of 20 commandments of tractor safety printed recently in Farm Safety Review, a publication of the National Safety Council.
The other 19 commandments—all containing a gem of truth—can be found in County Agent Harold Ingalls' column on the Farm Page of this issue of The Wayne Herald. Reason for their appearance—National Farm Safety Week is July 19-25.

Wakefield Couple Cited for Good Works

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Baker of rural Wakefield reveal their pride in receiving their Good Neighbor plaque from Ak-Sar-Ben Ambassador August Pospisil, right. Pospisil, also of Wakefield, presented the plaque to the couple Tuesday night during a meeting of the Dixon County 4-H Junior Leaders at the Northeast Station near Concord. The couple was nominated for the honor by the young adults for their willingness to help in various youth activities in the area. Last year Merlin 'Lefty' Olson of Wakefield was one of the area people singled out to receive the Ak-Sar-Ben honor.

Wakefield Group Leads in Glass Drive

With just over a week to go, the Sunday school group from Wakefield's Salem Lutheran Church is leading all contestants in The Wayne Herald's glass drive.
The group had collected about 1,290 pounds of glass by early this week, just over two hundred pounds more than two ambitious youngsters from Wayne had come up with by that time.
Those youngsters from Wayne are Brian Magnuson and Mark Powers, who had gathered 1,068 pounds in the contest.
Winner in the drive to collect the most glass will receive a $25 cash prize from The Wayne Herald.
Second place in the contest is worth $15 and third place is worth $10. The two banks in Wayne, State National and First National, are making the other two cash prizes possible.

Total glass collected earlier this week weighed over two tons—4,687 pounds.
That glass, and the glass collected in the monthly drives held by the Environmental Action Committee in Wayne, will be shipped off for recycling some time in the future.
Because the glass will be sent away to be melted down, it should have paper and metal removed and should be cleaned before it is brought to the newspaper for weighing.
Contestants must bring all their glass to the newspaper for weighing by closing time Monday, Aug. 2. Winners in the contest will be named in the following Monday issue.

Now in its fifth week, the glass drive is being conducted by the newspaper as a public service. Owners of the newspaper hope the drive will clean up the environment as well as focus attention of the public on the problems of pollution in and around Wayne.

M. Kallstrom Dies

Gravestone rites for Marshall Kallstrom, 69, were held Wednesday at 11 a.m. at Pleasantville Cemetery, Winslow. The Rev. Fred Peterson officiated.
Marshall Kallstrom, son of Wilhelm and Columbia Hickman Kallstrom, was born October 13, 1901, in Emmet County, Iowa. As a child he moved with his parents to Winslow, Nebraska. He was married July 18, at Doral Retirement Center, Wayne, where he had lived his home since November 18, 1964.
He was preceded in death by his parents, and two brothers. Survivors include a sister, Mrs. Viola McAleer, Elsiegood, Calif.; three nephews, and one niece.
SS Q & A
Q. I will be getting married this month. Since I will be providing for the wife of a worker covered by social security, why do I have to contribute?
A. When you are ready to retire, you might qualify for higher cash benefits based on your own eligibility and earnings record. During your working years, you and your children will receive disability benefits based on your work record. And, if you should die while your children are still young, they could receive monthly survivor benefits based on your record.
Q. My mother, who lives in another State, was hospitalized while visiting me. Will Medicare help pay for the ambulance service needed to take her over 100 miles back to her own home?
A. No. Your mother's medical insurance can only help pay for ambulance service within the locality normally served by the hospital.
Q. My 67-year-old husband recently had surgery for a slipped disc. He will soon be able to come home, but the doctor says he will need to use a wheelchair. Will Medicare help pay for a wheelchair?
A. Yes. The medical insurance part of Medicare does help pay for the rental or purchase of such durable medical equipment as a wheelchair when the equipment is prescribed by a doctor. Whether your husband decides to purchase or rent the equipment, Medicare generally makes monthly payments and the payments are 80 per cent of the reasonable rental charges.

Samuelson Is Father, Mother to Racing Dogs

By Jane Owens

"Greyhounds are just like kids," said Melvin Samuelson of rural Wayne. "Some are as gentle as kittens and others need spanking to behave."

Samuelson, who has been raising the racing dogs for four years, has cared for broken toenails, cleaned cages, given penicillin and put dogs on reducing diets.

And just like a mother, Samuelson has become attached to every one of his 42 "kids."

From when pups are born until they reach the age of four or five months they are cared for by their mothers. "That is unless she has too many pups," said Samuelson. Then he helps out by feeding and caring for the litter. Once, a dog had 13 pups—too many for any mother to handle, so he had to take charge.

When the pups are 10 days old, Samuelson adds mash containing vegetable soup and cooked lettuce to their diet, feeding them every three hours. The feeding is reduced to once a day when the dogs reach six months and Samuelson introduces them to dog food, meat and bones.

Young pups are simply allowed to run in a pasture, but at about five months, training is begun. Eight months later, the dogs are put in cages and only let loose twice a day, morning and evening.

Samuelson has built two training tracks about an eighth of a mile long. The greyhounds exercise each day but only run the track every third day.

"You can't train them every day or you'll spoil them," said Samuelson.

Although the dogs must run around the track to get their milk, they need no inspiration to race. According to Samuelson, the greyhounds will "run till they're all in." They usually know when to stop but sometimes a dog will exercise so hard he temporarily runs out of oxygen.

At 18 months, Samuelson's dogs are shipped by plane or truck to a dog runner in Tampa, Fla., who prepares them further for track racing. None of the dogs are sold to the runner. Instead, they are "leased for life."

The runner usually trains about eight dogs at a time and races them at three tracks a year for four months each.

"I've had dogs for two and a half years in Florida and I've never been down to see them race," Samuelson said.

However, he watched one of his dogs run at a track in the Black Hills last year. Another will race in Sioux City soon.

Before dogs can race, they must be registered. At 60 days Samuelson tattoos them with their birth date, litter number and serial number of breeding. This same information goes on the registration certificate with a description of all markings, the color of toenails and names of parents.

Runners must carry the certificate on the track when they are checked by a judge.

According to Samuelson, the best age to race greyhounds is at three years. Although the dogs sometimes live to be 12 years old, a regulation forces them to quit racing when they are five.

He said that weight apparently has little to do with racing ability, but 58 pounds is considered a good weight for females and 72 pounds for males.

Four years ago Samuelson quit farming and bought three female greyhounds. Since then he has built up the size of his operation to 42 dogs, including three mothers and nine pups, kept in a separate building.

Because of the expense involved Samuelson does not own a stud dog for breeding. Breeding a female dog usually costs between $100 and $300. The average size of a litter is seven or eight pups, but Samuelson said that he's had dogs with as few as two and as many as 13 in a litter.

What are the problems of raising greyhounds?

—Howling: Samuelson's dogs usually remain quiet during the warm hours when they are inside. "But you ought to be around here in the evening," he said. Every night about an hour after feeding the entire group will howl for 10 minutes. Just as suddenly, all the dogs will become quiet again.

—Cleaning: "Housewives don't even know what cleaning is," said Samuelson. He cleans one cage twice a week. In addition, the greyhounds track in mud every time it rains, creating more work for their owner.

—Fighting: Samuelson has a simple solution for two dogs who don't get along. He puts them in a cage together, both wearing muzzles. When the dogs learn to tolerate each other, he takes only one muzzle off, alternating each day. Samuelson finds that the muzzled dog is not nearly as eager to quarrel.

—Injuries: When a dog breaks a toenail, Samuelson stops training and gives him penicillin. In about two weeks, the nail grows back. Penicillin is also given to greyhounds scratched in a fight.

—Dieting: Occasionally, a greyhound becomes overweight and Samuelson must feed him smaller portions until he loses the extra pounds.

In spite of the problems, Samuelson enjoys raising greyhounds and watching them race. However, he seldom goes to the tracks. Why? "I'm too busy taking care of my own dogs," he said.

Samuelson, who is one of the 45 greyhound raisers in Nebraska, lives two and three-fourths miles north and two miles east of Wayne with his wife and son Lanny, 12.

Samuelson and "Rhonda Slipper" are welcomed by these pups on the Samuelson farm north of Wayne.

VA Q & A

Q - I was discharged from the Army because of a leg injury, and accepted severance pay in a lump sum. Since I have been awarded disability compensation by the Veterans Administration, can you tell me why I am not being paid?

A - Disability compensation for your leg injury will be withheld and applied against the amount of severance pay until the full amount is liquidated. After that, the VA will start sending compensation checks if your disability is still rated 10 per cent or more by our standards.

Q - A serious auto accident four months ago disabled me and it looks like I'll be unable to work for well over a year. I am 23. Because I had worked only since graduation from college two years ago, the possibility of monthly social security payments never occurred to me. At least until now. Is two years of work enough?

A - Yes. A person disabled before reaching age 24 needs only 1 1/2 years of work covered by social security, even though the work must have been in the three years before the disability began. You meet this requirement.

Q - I am 19 years old and plan to start school this fall. I received social security benefits as a child, after my father died, until I was 18. I quit school two years ago but as I stated, plan to go back this fall. Can I qualify for benefits now?

A - Yes. Student benefits can be paid to you until you are 22 years of age as long as you are unmarried, do not earn too much, and are a full time student.

Q - The other day I found a

Nebraska (Cough, Cough), Home of Clean Air

It probably came as a shock to many Nebraskans that several areas of the state have polluted air. The state, it seems, isn't as clean and healthy as we have been led to believe for so long.

Areas as close to Wayne as South Sioux City and Norfolk failed to meet the recently adopted clean-air standards during statewide sampling of the atmosphere.

It could safely be predicted that such places as Omaha and Lincoln would have polluted air, but who would have hazarded a guess that Chadron—located in the beautiful northwestern end of the state—nor Fairbury or McCook would have failed to meet those standards?

The results certainly surprised somebody that should have a good idea on the quality of the state's air—Walter Franke, chief of state air pollution control.

We hope the results of that first sampling of the air help emphasize to the average citizen that even Nebraska is being threatened with pollution. Maybe the experts are right when they say it will just take a few more years before everybody in this nation is vitally affected by pollution of the water, air and land.

What point is being made? Just that everybody—even residents in and around Wayne—have an important role to play in stopping pollution. You can do that by taking part in the periodic drives to collect glass and newspapers, by being conservative in your use of water, by not burning leaves and trash, by purchasing groceries in large quantities so as to cut down on the number of cartons and packages, and in thousands of other ways. In other words, you can help stop pollution daily. —NLH.

Time to Reconsider?

We have hesitated commenting on the vacant building which stands on the east edge of Wayne, hoping that the Wayne County Historical Society could turn it into a museum which the whole area could be proud of.

However, it has been sitting there for over two years and little has been done to renovate it. As it now stands, it is an eyesore to motorists entering the city from that direction.

The situation apparently bothers others in the area. A letter to the editor elsewhere on this page raises some interesting questions concerning the building and the wisdom of having a museum located so far from town.

We realize that volunteer organizations and groups often have difficulty in getting public support for projects. This may be the case in this instance.

As one of the board of directors of the historical group said, it isn't that the group hasn't tried to do something with the building to turn it into a museum. Lack of funds and lack of interest have hurt that effort, she said.

However, maybe the letter writer is correct in suggesting that it is time to consider doing something else with the house and property.

The Wayne Herald welcomes letters to the editor on all current topics. Although they must be signed, the writer can request that a pen name be used. The writer's real name will be kept confidential.

Wayne

Dear Editor: Some months (?) years (?) back, most residents were happy to see the junkyard on Highway 35 disappear (across from the airport). The donors of the land and the house are to be commended for their community-minded gestures.

However, I would not be surprised if even they, as well as the rest of us, now have some misgivings as to the wisdom of such a plan for a Wayne County Historical Museum.

Availability to the public, especially elderly people, is not overly evident. They don't particularly relish a lot of steps, nor an afternoon walk a mile out of town.

Though none of the contributions were probably large, the public may have a legitimate "beef" about the end result, which was understood to be something more than what we have.

Who can be expected to provide vandalism protection at this location?

In any case, the time is long overdue for a change in this eyesore to all incoming traffic to Wayne from the east.

If finances and/or labor are not available at present to complete the project, perhaps it could be offered for sale at a price that would be attractive to a prospective buyer so that he could afford to make an attractive home of it.

By the same token, the county historical group could realize the value of the donations to their project. The donors of the land and the house could possibly still feel their offers were worthwhile and will be put to good use.

Just maybe, a little in the community would feel a little better about the situation!

An Apology Due?

Somewhere around 150 Wayne area youths are probably pretty disappointed over the mix-up which has resulted in their losing out on corn detasseling jobs this summer.

As far as we can determine, the Norfolk Employment Service, which had lined up the youths for the detasseling work, is not to blame for that mix-up. Neither is the local man who was to act as supervisor during the work. It seems that the seed company which had originally requested youths from the area is responsible for the mix-up. More youths had been sought by the company, according to the Norfolk office, than had been necessary.

True, there's little that can be done about the situation, and the young people who had been planning on working in the corn fields will have to look elsewhere if they want to earn some money this summer. It does seem, however, that somebody owes the youths an apology. —NLH.

That Time of the Year Again

Turning to a happier subject, we hope everybody in the area can turn out for some of the activities at the Old Settlers Reunion at Winside today (Thursday).

The celebration, one of the first big summer events in the area, began Wednesday night with a variety of activities for youngsters. Among them: boiled egg eating contest, tug-of-war and junior horse-shoe pitching contest.

Today's activities include everything from a children's parade to a water fight to a girls' softball tournament.

A lot of people have put in a lot of work and sweat in order to make the celebration a successful one. A list of those people working to make it possible would certainly be a long one. We hope their work turns out to be well worth it. —NLH.

D. B. Varner Still Seeking To Make NU Best in Big 8

LINCOLN—The University of Nebraska probably won't be seeking for anything like $101 million this fall when it submits its budget request for the 1971-72 fiscal year to Gov. R. L. Exon and the Legislature.

That's what the university asked for last year in its request for the 1971-72 fiscal period. It got $78.1 million—and had to fight to get that much.

Chancellor D. B. Varner acknowledges that a lesson was learned last year. That request was built on amounts NU subdivisions said would be needed to do the best job possible. Those figures were slashed at the direction of the board of regents, but the final total still ran to $101 million.

Exon, who then was a candidate for governor, expressed shock at the amount. After his election, he held firm in his stand that significant cuts still would be needed before he would endorse the NU appropriations.

There were many negotiating sessions involving the governor, his staff, Varner and legislative officials before the $78.1 million finally emerged in the appropriations bill.

Exon, as he did on other budget items, put a heavy stress on the need to tap other fund sources. If additional money was needed and ease the pressure on taxes. The $78.1 million figure includes $43.1—or 55.2 per cent—state tax funds. The remainder is to be generated from tuition, federal funds, other cash accounts and revolving funds.

The regents last week authorized the expenditures after hearing NU administration officials explain that they had some doubts about the generation of all the non-tax funds the budget contemplates.

Dr. Howard B. Neville, vice-chancellor for business and finance, said the university is "in the uncomfortable position of relying heavily on uncertainties in the development of the budget. Whereas the university in recent years has been assured of a firm and a considerable increase in the form of state support, it is now being asked to count heavily on increased tuition rates. Whether these rates can and will produce the expected increases remains to be seen."

The NU administrators also complained about what Neville described as the "uncommonly restrictive" language written into the budget by the Legislature.

The regents were told the senators had made it "very difficult, if not impossible, to effect even minor reallocations of funds within the total university program or make on-going judgments about priorities as programs develop, or situations change, on any of the campuses."

Varner said the university, as it gets to work on the request it will make to the 1972 Legislature, will attempt to keep its totals lower—knowing Exon already has pledged to try to maintain the same tax rates again.

The chancellor said, however, there would be requests for additional salary increases and funds to improve the quality of some programs.

Varner said he still was aiming at making NU the finest university in the Big Eight within this decade. The 1971-72 budget, he said, only allowed the university to hold its ground.

"We've managed to hold our position primarily by assessing our students more," he said. "That's not good enough. We need stronger financial support from the state and a better job internally of managing our resources."

A step toward cutting back internally was approved by the regents, who authorized the suspension of admissions in three Ph.D. programs—biochemistry and nutrition, pharmaceutical science and romance languages and literature.

Additional streamlining is under consideration, Varner said.

Coed Visits Scrapped

At the same meeting at which they adopted the 1971-72 budget, the regents heard a presentation from the students for a "good visitation" policy in university living units.

They turned down the proposal, but suggested that the students continue their efforts to develop an acceptable plan.

John Humblek of Prague, the student spokesman, assured the board further efforts would be made.

Humblek said a survey of 2,200 parents conducted by the Council on Student

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

WANTED: Cowbells—not the clinking kind, but the family raising kind. Oh yes, their boot-wearing husbands, too.

PURPOSE: Beef Promotion. Not at Valentine, Yankton or Spencer, but in New York City and Boston.

I realize that most agree the best way to promote corned beef and quality calves is to send two cents to Chicago to subsidize the administration costs and (limited) "Eat Beef" signs of the Beef Council, but I still can't get it through my thick skull that promotion must be done not only at the consumer level but at the front door.

I can't see any possible meat promotion with that beautiful pork chop illustration placed along every highway in the Corn Belt, but in New York or Detroit, it would count.

My stand is that all the individuals, their cattle, their bloodlines and the feed are important.

"Eat Colorado Beef" or "Eat Nebraska Beef" is too unspecific and about as saleable as "Buy a Kansas Car."

I will budget $10,000 for this Eastern beef promotion. I will pay half of the cowbells (flight charges and half of her hotel rooms for three days. I hope the husbands go along at their own expense, but although my budget is limited, I imagine one shot of Cuts Sark or Old Grand Dad would be possible.

with smiling Cowbells. I want to stop traffic, jam up the heart of New York City as if Orson Well's Martians had arrived. I want to see a half million Eastern sophisticates drawn to three or four chuck wagons—all pushing and arguing.

I want to call attention to Mayor Lindsay and Senator Javits, advocates of unlimited beef imports, that there is a difference. And call attention to their constituents that import beef is only slightly better than aged shoe leather and that the politicians don't themselves eat it.

There is no difference in beef we might as well resign ourselves to soybean derivatives. But I believe the difference does exist. And the promotional potential exists. You are all important, as well as your quality cattle which have been selected since Sitting Bull.

So, Cowbells, get your traveling kit ready. Proposed date: Sept. 14-16. We'll plan on leaving from North Platte and Sioux City by charter plane.

Also, I wish we could get a truckload of showy horses for a small parade, and I'd love to have a bobtail truck of feeder pigs to give away.

We could set New York's complacency back to the speakeasy days!

Oh yes, we have already arranged for a premium beef price with three Eastern chains. A premium! Not the commodity price.

Our gimmick: Your quality English breed bovine feed livestock feed. We will furnish producer's and feeder's names, plus pictures and each carcass will be so branded when graded.

The premium will be $2 a hundred—half to the feeder, half for East coast and national advertising.

Not talk—fact, and no number—some board meeting. Please write for reservations to Eddie Collins, Red Oak, Iowa, 51566.

20 "Commandments"

Farm Safety Review, National Safety Council publication, has published 20 "commandments of Tractor Safety" which, if followed, certainly will save lives. Here are the 20 commandments:

"THOU SHALT dimish thy speed when approaching ditches and turning corners, thereby smiting prospects of thee supporting thy tractor's weight with thine neck.

"THOU SHALT proceed slowly on rough or slippery ground or roadways, for otherwise thy tractor may land most painfully atop thee.

"THOU SHALT refuse to heed the small child's begging to accompany thee on the tractor, and neither shalt thou invite them to so travel.

"THOU SHALT present thyself to the tractor fit and ready to operate it well and safely, thus reaping a handsome day's work and good health.

"THOU SHALT NOT require nor permit thy son to perform tasks without first ascertaining if he is capable in body and temperament and is sufficiently trained to operate a tractor without risk to his life.

"THOU SHALT temper thy speed when crossing slopes and when going up or down a hill.

"THOU SHALT interrupt the flow of power before exploring, reaching or poking about in thy machinery, particularly if thou treasure thy limbs.

"THOU SHALT faithfully cause thine eyes to remain open to discern precisely where thee and thy tractor are going and where, moreover, to spy hidden obstacles and other dangerous hazards so thou can avoid them.

"THOU SHALT mind thy manners on the roadway, acting courteously to highway travelers by not entering the roadway until after thou hast established that the way is clear, by always signalling what thou are contriving to do and by decorating the rear of thy machinery with a Slow-Moving Vehicle emblem, to proclaim that thou are proceeding slowly.

"THOU SHALT render thy tractor out of gear and stoutly set the brakes before dismounting.

"THOU SHALT never permit a gear to turn nor a wheel to roll until all guards and safety devices are in place for their shield thee from harm.

"THOU SHALT weight thy tractor's front to balance it if the drawbar be heavily burdened with such as a two-wheel spreader, and also place upon the rear sufficient weight to effect balance when thy tractor is encumbered with a front-end loader.

"THOU SHALT manage thy tractor and front-end loader with skill, traveling about with the bucket low and forsaking jerky starts and stops and wild turns, for otherwise thy travel may amount to only a sideways flop.

"THOU SHALT respect thy tractor, keep it well and not demand more than it can deliver, nor require that it labor under burdens better suited to a husker steed, lest it repay thy maltreatment with low performance, mechanical troubles and accidents.

"THOU SHALT contain thy temper, even though the day goes foul and everything attempted conspireth against thee, as robust anger not only maketh thee look foolish and exclaim unkind sentiments, but also multiplieth thy prospects of coming to grief by accident.

"THOU SHALT snuff out the fire of thy tobacco before refueling and mount upon thy tractor a fire extinguisher and first-aid kit.

"THOU SHALT enlist a protective cab or frame to assist thee in surviving should thy tractor tumble over despite thy good and safe intentions."

Yard & Garden Tips . . .
Q. What can be done about a former bluegrass lawn that has now been taken over by clover?
A. When you fertilize, be sure not to use phosphorus which will encourage the clover. You may treat the lawn with silvex in the fall. This may need to be repeated more than once to be effective.

USDA May Change Estimating Programs

The United States Department of Agriculture Statistical Reporting Service (SRS) has announced some proposed changes in its livestock, dairy and poultry estimating programs.

Although no major reports will be dropped, some are being combined and others will be issued less frequently. Users of the reports have been asked to help SRS determine which cuts are good and which detrimental by commenting on the proposed changes between now and Aug. 1.

The Jan. 1 inventory on the value of all cows and heifers that have calved will be discontinued, but estimates on the value of all cattle and calves on farms will continue, effective January, 1972.

All states will receive cattle-and-hog estimates at the first of every year. Quarterly estimates will be continued for 23 states now sending quarterly reports, but length of time on feed information will be deleted. All changes will go into effect next Jan. 1.

Milk Production Reports are to be changed from monthly to quarterly and issued in January, April, July and October. Beginning in April, 1972, this report will show the number of milk cows on hand and the pounds of milk produced. The June and December estimates and kinds of forage fed, value of hay fed milk cows and percentage of baled, loose or chopped hay reports will be discontinued. The quantity of grain fed milk cows will be changed from bi-monthly to quarterly. Several milk and cream production, disposition and income reports are to be discontinued or combined, along with some manufacturing product reports.

In related reports, pasture condition information now issued with Crop Reports and/or Milk Production Reports will be combined with range condition information now issued in the Range and Livestock Report, with data grid maps to be issued monthly, April through December, as a part of the Monthly Crop Report.

Several farm flock and poultry harvesting information reports will be discontinued, but reports will not be among those rates reported in the December Livestock and Poultry Report.

According to University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension agricultural economist, Dr. Everett F. Peterson, livestock reporters—farmers, ranchers, livestock producers and feeders, turkey growers, poultrymen, processors, packers, commodity traders, sellers of farm supplies, exporters, economists, bankers, railroads and other transporters—have until Aug. 1 to comment on the proposed changes. Remarks should be sent to Harry Trilogan, administrator, Statistical Reporting Service, USDA, Washington, D. C. 20250.
