City Council Approves Bid, Moves Toward First Class

A bid from L. E. Hall Construction of Norfolk for installing sanitary sewer lines on the north end of Walnut Street was accepted by the Wayne city council Tuesday night.

Bid on the work, which will service the homes in the area, was $11,184. A total of about $8,200 of that cost will be paid by the property owners who will use the lines.

The council gave its stamp of approval to Mayor Kent Hall's request that he ask Gov. J. J. Exon to make Wayne a first class city.

Changing the city's status will entail making several changes in the way the city operates, according to city officials.

The 1970 census which showed the city having a population over 5,000 permits Wayne to change to a first class city.

Also relating to the city's population, the council discussed how it should go about counting the people who live in various parts of the city so steps can be taken to divide the city into four wards, one more than now exist.

Council agreed to wait until classes at Wayne State College begin in order to get a truer picture of the potential voters who will be living throughout the city when elections roll around next spring.

The help of college officials will be sought in making the survey of people living in the dormitories on campus.

The survey has to be completed and the town divided into four wards by the first of next year. If it isn't, city officials will be chosen at large at the next election.

In other action the councilmen: —Approved the extension of the ambulance agreement between the city, county and hospital board for one more year. The agreement is the same as that approved a year ago.

—Discussed what to do about controlling septic tanks on the northwest side of the city where development is planned. The council, concerned over the possibility of pollution of the city's underground water supply in that area, will take up the problem at its next meeting.

—Received notice that the city has been given its third and last federal grant to help operate

There'll Be No Loafing For North's All-Stars

Erwin

Rehwisch

Members of that select North Squad expected to arrive in Wayne today (Thursday) won't be setting around for it—their two coaches plan to start them working out tonight.

Even at that, they will probably have it a little easier than the South Squad at Kearney. Members of that club are to go up against each other in a scrimmage this evening.

Why all the hurry? Because both teams have only a week to prepare for the Nebraska Coaches Association's All-Star Basketball Game. That game, the third annual one, is scheduled for Lincoln's Pershing Municipal Auditorium Friday of next week.

Both teams will try to get in enough practices over the next week at the two state college campuses—so they will be ready for that contest in the North because it has lost the first two games, the South because it wants to continue its winning streak.

All 24 players who will see action in the basketball game were outstanding players as seniors in high school last year. They were named to the teams by coaches across the state.

A member of the North Squad is Steve Erwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Verdel Erwin of rural Concord and a leader for the Laurel basketball team the past several seasons.

Two other northeast Nebraskans will join him on that team, Rich Rehwisch of Tilden and Terry Roost of South Sioux City.

Others on the club: Tom Anderson, Arlington; Dick Hansen, Columbus; Mike Higgins, and Hilary Howard, Omaha Cathedral; Neil Klutman, Columbus; Ken Marech, Lincoln Northeast; Tom O'Connell, Sidney; David Peterson, North Platte; Jack Wesolowski, Eldorado.

Charolais Steer Is Runner-up

Ron Magnuson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Magnuson of rural Carroll, showed the overall reserve champion steer in Friday's 4-H cattle show at the Wayne County Fair.

A story in Monday's issue of the Wayne Herald incorrectly reported that Jacquelyn Slivers showed that reserve champion. Young Magnuson's steer, a Charolais, earned him the top purple ribbon in his class during the afternoon's judging, then gained him runner-up honors to Wakefield's Jack Slivers, in judging of all classes.

John Geowe showed the top Angus steer in the judging, not John Geowe as reported in Monday's issue of the newspaper.

Two Youths Injured By Gunpowder Burns

A starting gun misfired during a test firing at the swimming pool Saturday afternoon resulting in two Wayne youths receiving minor powder burns.

Mrs. Frank Mrsny told Wayne police that her two sons, Jeff, 9, and Frank, 11, received powder burns from a .22 caliber starting gun at the pool. The boys apparently walked by the lifeguard as he was test firing the gun, officers said. The gun was misfired and caused the powder burns.

Police investigated an in-town collision Monday in the 100 block on West Third Street. Officers said Mrs. Donna Frevett, Wayne, was backing from a parking stall and struck a parked 1969 Ford owned by Leo Dowling, Wayne.

County Budget Okayed

Three people other than the county commissioners and clerk appeared at the 10 a.m. public hearing held Tuesday at the courthouse concerning the proposed 1971-72 Wayne County budget.

Those attending the meeting held for the purpose of hearing any objections, suggestions or recommendations included Norman Wickman and Clark Kai, representatives of the Farm-Bureaus—county committee, and a news reporter.

There were no objections to the proposed budget. Therefore it is now scheduled for adoption at the next meeting of the county board on Tuesday.

The estimated budget totaled $951,365. That amount combined with a necessary cash reserve fund of $233,483 amounts to a grand total of $1,215,118.

A mill levy of 11.79-2.22 mills higher than last year will be necessary to raise through taxation about $441,593 based on a tentative valuation of $37,332,720.

A breakdown on the budget for the coming year shows 4.50 mills being levied for general operation, 4.23 for roads and bridges, .77 for county relief, .82 for state institutions, .60 for county fair, .61 for weed control and .25 for county improvement.

Police to Hold Traffic School For Youngsters

Sally, the talking traffic signal, will again be featured on the program planned by the Wayne Police Department as they hold their fifth annual pedestrian safety school for kindergartners on Aug. 25.

The talking traffic signal—popular with previous classes of kindergartners—is an audio-visual device used by police instructors to teach children when and when not to cross streets. All kindergartners planning to attend Wayne Public Schools are being invited to attend the classes where they will be taught the proper methods of crossing streets, observing stop signs and traffic signals.

Asst. Chief E. L. "Pat" Hatley, assisted by Patrolman Melvin Lamb, will be in charge of the one and a half hour school.

Vern Fairchild, police chief, said letters inviting kindergartners to attend the school are being mailed to area parents. Classes will be held in Room 106 of the Wayne High School.

Scheduling of classes is as follows: Youngsters with last names starting with letters A through G See TRAFFIC SCHOOL, page 2

Vesper Service

Dixon County's 57th annual fair gets underway with the traditional vesper services on Sunday evening, Aug. 22.

The services, which are open to the public, begin at 8 o'clock in front of the grandstand at the fairgrounds in Concord. There is no admission for the event.

The following day the fair gets underway with gates opening at 8 in the morning. All entries are to be in place by noon that day.

Four-H judging starts at 1 in the afternoon the first day of the fair, as does the judging of 4-H cooking and home living exhibits.

A free barbecue similar to the one held at the Wayne County Fair last week is set to begin at 5:30 the opening day. The feed is made possible by donations from businessmen and other interested people in the area.

Following the barbecue there will be free entertainment in front of the grandstand with the John Harting's group providing country and western music.

There will also be an open class horse show starting at 7:30 that evening. The show will include junior and senior western pleasure, junior barrel crawl, junior and senior hat race, women's flag race, senior and junior pole bending, senior and junior cloverleaf barrels, ribbon race, trail horse, baton race and innumerate race.

A square dance starts at 9 p.m. with Harold Bausel calling.

August 24 activities start at 8 with the judging of swine exhibits. At 8:30 will be the judging of crops, garden poultry and rabbits and open class Home Economics.

Horseplay on A Sunday Afternoon

By Norvin Hansen Thanks to some generous guss from Sioux Falls and several area people, the benefit softball game at the Wayne ball park Sunday afternoon was a big success.

Nearly $300 was collected during the game for Whisde farmer Al Carlson. A donation of $25 came from the Sioux Falls team, "The Big Guys."

The 80 or 90 people who turned out for the game—actually several innings of slow pitch and several innings of fast pitch—were treated to some old-fashioned shenanigans during the first few innings. Samples: throwing a grapefruit to a Wayne hitter instead of a softball, sneaking first base several feet closer to home See HORSEPLAY, page 4

Two Full Pages of Pictures—25 in All—can be found inside this issue of The Wayne Herald.

Featuring on the two pages are some of the top 4-H exhibitors in the cattle, dairy, hog, sheep and horse shows at the 1971 Wayne County Fair.

the champion from the three-year-old and over at halter in the horse show is pictured. That class was one of the toughest to win, considering 47 youths vied for the trophy.

Several other pictures from the activities at the fair were printed in the last issue of the newspaper. Others are printed elsewhere in this issue.

NORTHEAST EXTENSION Notes

In 1969 the average consumption of frozen desserts was over 21 quarts per person, so as a consumer of frozen desserts you should know what your money is buying. There are three primary members of the family: ice cream, ice milk and sherbert. These products differ, among other things, in percentage of milkfat and milk solids they contain. Milkfat gives the product richness and smoothness, while milk solids improve the texture and give "whippability" to frozen desserts. Stabilizers keep the product from separating. Ice cream is made from cream, milk, sugar and stabilizers. To meet federal standards it must contain at least 10 per cent milkfat and 20 per cent total milk solids. Frozen custard or French ice cream is the same as ice cream with addition of egg yolks. More expensive brands of ice cream probably have a higher milkfat content and a lower "overrun." Overrun is the amount of air whipped into ice cream during its manufacture. Ice milk must contain from two to seven per cent milkfat and at least 11 per cent milk solids. Sherbert is characterized by a high level of sugar—about twice as much as ice cream. Standards for sherbert require one to two per cent milkfat and two to five per cent total milk solids. Both ice cream and ice milk may be bought artificially sweetened. Requirements are the same as for regular products, except that artificial sweeteners are substituted for sugar and corn sweeteners. Artificial sweeteners are to be indicated on the carton.

Married Saturday at St. Mark's On Campus

In 2 p.m. rites Saturday at St. Mark's On The Campus, Lincoln, Ann Clarke Wall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Wall, Wayne, became the bride of Bruce C. Rauscher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rauscher, Lincoln. The couple left for Estes Park, Colorado, and upon their return will make their home in Lincoln.

The Rev. Ronald Wiley officiated at the single ring ceremony. Mrs. N. Roy Anderson, Lincoln, was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Nick L. Kostos, Omaha, and Sue Westerhoff, Lincoln.

The bridegroom's attendants were his brother, Jon Rauscher, Lawrence Pilgrim and Tim Ailes, all of Lincoln, Garwood Anderson, Omaha, and Gaylord Anderson, Wahoo.

The bride appeared at her father's side in a floor length, empire styled fashion of antique Irish linen, dark Irish lace and drizzle, styled with Florentine neckline, elbow length sleeves and silhouette skirt. Her silk illusion veil extended from a matching bow to brush the floor and she carried a multicolored nosegay of corn flowers, daisies and baby's breath.

Her attendants were attired in identically styled fashions of blue, pink and white fleur de stripe cotton voile over blue taffeta which featured Florentine necklines, self bows at the shoulders, elbow length, puffed sleeves and draped drizzle skirts. They carried small versions of the bride's bouquet.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Wall chose a silk shantung jacket dress in coral trimmed with white braid. Mrs. Rauscher wore yellow chiffon and both mothers had corsages of daisies.

High school gridders who attended the first annual Wayne State Football Camp last week will have a head start on teammates when they play in practice at home later this month. A sample of camp action is pictured as John Yorzoon, who will be head coach at Wakefield High School this fall, directs linemen in a three-on-one drill. The crack of helmets could be heard a considerable distance. At left rear, Roger Bentley, Wayne State line coach, views the action from another angle. Elsewhere on the field, Camp Director Del Stoltenberg and Irv Wentling, head coach at Norfolk High, ran the backs through stiff drills. Coach Stoltenberg counted the camp a success and said he hopes to repeat it next year.

Ikes Lake Restocked

Ikes Lake northwest of Wayne now has something more in it than water.

Spring water is refilling the lake, following a complete renovation last year, and Ikes restocked the lake Wednesday with 600 bass and 600 bluegill. The Ikes plan to add 100 catfish to the lake at a later date.

"There won't be any fishing for a year, although we might have bluegill fishing late next summer," Weible said.

Norris Weible, president of the local Izaak Walton League, said the fish, furnished by the State Game Commission, came from a hatchery at Yankton, S.D.

Renovation of the lake last year included draining and dredging the lake bed.

Eastern players: Paul Snyder, Darwin Rubeck, Tim Hill, Don Kluever, Loren Trube, Pete Snyder; back row: Coach Hill, Scott Von Minsien, Chuck Peters, Brian Linafelter, Duane Mitchell, Jim Koester. Q.—What is the treatment for sedge and yellow nut sedge? A.—Sedge in the leaves is very difficult to remove. The corn in yellow nut sedge grows at the base of the plant, right at the end of the root. The sedge multiplies by way of the corn. Because this sedge grows below the surface of the soil, eradication is very difficult. The best treatment is an arsenate—either disodium or monosodium. The products that can be purchased are either Ansar or Selectar. Treatment must be used repeatedly and complete eradication may take as long as one year. If the sedge does not cover too large an area, the best method is pulling it out.

Q. What can be used on lawns now for spotted-spurge and knotweed?

A. During this period of the summer 2,4-D would be the safest spray. Silvex or Banvil could cause damage to shrubs and trees if sprayed underneath them.

Q. What should be used to combat elm leaf beetles?

A. Sevin sprayed on the trees should keep them under control.

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

Problems that must be faced doggone soon:
—Escalating clause in labor contracts based on the cost of living index.
—With food the only non-union item, Uncle Sam is constantly forced to exert pressure to prevent a runaway inflation.
—The new steel and railroad contracts call for an unlimited wage increase coinciding with cost of living, so it will be like two fifth graders trying to outdo each other.
—Our court case is in Denver, and if we lose there we will fight again and again until we win.
—Our contention is that farmers and ranchers suffer loss of civil liberties when movement and pricing of their products are hampered by another's contract.
—I think the cost of living escalating clause is truly unconstitutional, and you ranchers and farmers had better get involved or your prices will be forced to be teeter-tottered—the higher they go, the deeper you get.
—Can we win this test case? No, it will take more research and a judge willing to break precedent. However, the wrong exists and eventually can and must be corrected. No rancher gives a hoot how much a union man receives. More power to him, but not at the expense of agriculture.
—Crop and livestock reports. You begged for more and more. USDA report said. Now it is like having a hitchhiker mouth CIA agent in your midst.
—Examples of their efforts: Cash corn prices have been ripped 25¢ a bushel, not by an oversupply of stored grain—the government storage has not been this low in 20 years—but by press release and the 20 per cent farm program.
—No corn has been harvested, so how can corn worth $1.35 in December collapse after being stored eight months, with a $34 fat cattle market and with low government storage? Simple. Government blight and crop reports coupled with the desire to maintain an exportable product means rock bottom prices.
—Uncle Sam reports 1971 hogs will be in surplus. Last year's reports collapsed prices $14 a hundred from February to mid-September. And this in a million less, slaughtered curly tails.
—Expect hogs by mid-October this year to be under $17. Why? You can't tell the consumer you have a surplus and then command a price.

—Imports.
—That will be our next problem. The 1971 volume is way behind expected schedules, so the fourth quarter will find boats heading to America so chain stores can sell California steaks from Australia.
—Cattlemen must insist on smaller total imports and quarterly quotas with all shipments assessed 10¢ a pound to go domestic beef promotion.
—It is time to quit pussy-footing with imports and politicians, time

NU Expert Urges Farmers To Watch for Corn Borers

There is no sure way to determine when controls for second brood corn borers should be applied, but a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension entomologist suggests that the best approach is to be very observant of fields during the next few days for any evidence of brood activity.
According to Robert E. Roselle, following certain guidelines while making field observations can help a farmer determine which fields will return the most from borer control. Roselle pointed out that later corn is attractive to moths and that fields still shedding pollen are most attractive.

He suggested keeping a close watch for egg masses on undersides of leaves. The eggs, he said, will appear creamy-white when first laid and will turn dark as young borers develop.
The entomologist noted that the laying period of the moths runs from late July into September, indicating that absence of eggs now does not necessarily mean there will be no corn borers.
Check leaf axils for small corn borers, he advised, noting that the borers, which are small and light colored with a dark head, feed on pollen in axils for about half their lives.
Adults (moths) lay in weedy or grassy margins during the day, Roselle said. If a number of moths are noticed, he suggests farmers take a good look every few days for eggs and larvae in axils.
Generally, if eggs, small larvae in axils and adults are easy to find in late corn, Roselle said control should be profitable. Due to the long egg laying period, he said there will be borers in spite of the best timing and materials, but he added that the best control time would be shortly after the peak of moth emergence. This peak emergence, he said, is occurring now until around Aug. 14.
Roselle said a number of control materials can be applied and local county agents should be contacted for instructions on proper materials and application methods.

to quit lobbying from a smiling passive character.
Oh, about our beef promotion in the East. We are going. We need you. Cowbelle and will pay half your fare to New York City and Boston and half your meals for Sept. 14, 15 and 16.
I am also asking each local bank to pay the way of two or three ranch moms.
I do not want the head-odders or those who fill up the back seat of a school board meeting. I want those proud of their livestock, those who can look Mrs. Eastern Consumer in the eye and say "We Raise the Greatest!" I want New York City and Boston to know and remember the Moins and their Marlboro Man. Forever.

County Agent's Column

by Harold Ingalls

That rosy red glow on the evergreens just might not be Christmas decorations. Robert E. Roselle, extension entomologist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, warned that now is the time when mites or red spiders thrive on shrubs—particularly in evergreens.
Barely visible to the naked eye, the mites are probably present when the shrub has a bronzed or sticky-looking foliage. The best way to check for the pests, Roselle said, is to hold a sheet of white paper or cardboard under a branch and tap the branch sharply with a stick.
If mites are present they will fall to the paper and can be seen moving and crawling. Results of the mites' activities are fading of the shrub's color or a peppery appearance.
The mites suck juices from the plants through small, needle-like mouthparts, destroying the chlorophyll or green coloring of the plants. The mites spin very fine, irregular webs over the leaves and stems giving them a "cobwebby" appearance, Roselle said.
They can be controlled by spraying with miticides such as Kelthane or chlorobenzilate and Cygon or diazinon. Kelthane in wettable powder form should be used one tablespoon to one gallon of water or one-fourth pound to 25 gallons of water; in emulsifiable concentrate use two tablespoons to one gallon and one cup to 25 gallons.
Chiggers Having Field Day
The beltline scratchers are busy now, and many hikers, campers and fishermen wish they had stayed home last weekend.
The familiar redbug, or chigger, is out hunting the human host again, ready to inflict his itching rash on any man, woman or child who happens to be near.
Most of these pests can be battled to a stand-off by using a couple of commercial repellent preparations.
The chiggers like berry patches, orchards, woodlands, lake shores, lawns, parks and golf courses where Americans spend their holidays. Rather than give up these outings, get either of the repellents known as "Off" or "612." Pour or spray some of the repellent on the hands, rub them together, then rub lightly the exposed arms and legs.
Put some of the repellent on stockings or socks at the ankles, waistband of shirts and shorts, or trousers.
After an outing, take a hot, soapy bath to wash the chiggers off before they settle down for a meal.
Chiggers lodge in human skin and inject a fluid to dissolve the tissue upon which they feed. They'll stay about three days and leave. Their legacy to you—an inflamed, itching red spot.
Here's a simple test to check for their presence in an area where you intend to visit: Make a fold of black cardboard and set it up on the ground. Chiggers in the area, for some reason, will climb to the top of the cardboard. They can be easily seen.
Put these folded cardboard in several different areas. Use areas with different types of cover, such as solid grass areas, dead leaf areas or decaying tree areas.
If you want to field spray, use either malathion or diazinon. Follow labels for mixing and safe use.

Want Farm Pond Stocked? Apply Soon

Owners of farm ponds in the Wayne area who want their ponds stocked should apply to the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission or the Soil Conservation Service before April 15.
The stockings of the private ponds is a joint effort of the Game Commission and the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife. The Commission handles applications and pre-stocking inspections, while the federal agency provides the fingerlings.
After application, a biologist inspects the pond, and if it meets requirements, approves the application.
Requirement includes adequate water supply, surface area of at least one-half acre, depth of at least 10 feet, fencing or some other means of excluding livestock, an adequate overflow system and absence of other fish.
Largemouth bass have been stocked in farm and ranch ponds throughout Nebraska, and shipments of bluegill and channel catfish will be sent out later this year.
Stocking is usually done with bass, bluegill and channel catfish fingerlings. However, rainbow trout will be introduced if the pond provides their specific requirements.

Owners of private waters stocked under this program must agree to allow a reasonable harvest of fish, but are not required to allow public access. However, they may not charge a fee for angling, and everyone fishing in these waters must observe fish laws and possess a Nebraska fishing permit.
The number of ponds being stocked and the fish being induced during 1971 will not be tabulated until fall. During 1970 some 477 applications were received, and 397 were approved and stocked with a total of 413,000 fish.

May Be Surveyor
Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will visit a number of households in the Wayne area next week to obtain information on employment here. Guy A. Lutz, Director of the Census Bureau office in St. Paul, said the households are among the 50,000 across the country that have been scientifically selected to represent a cross section of the American people.
The survey, conducted each month for the U. S. Department of Labor, provides a continuing measure of employment and unemployment for the nation. For example, the overall unemployment rate dropped from 6.2 per cent in May to 5.6 per cent in June. Total employment fell one-half million to 75.4 million, the same level as in March.
Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is confidential by law and results are used only to compile statistical totals in which no individual or household can be identified. Interviewers who will visit households in this area include Catherine Moeller of Wisner and Ruth Koehl of Norfolk.

Hollywood Stars Once Customers of Leo Holt

By Jane Owens

One of Ginger Rogers' custom-made furniture builders lives closer than many people realize. Leo Holt of rural Wayne, a former wood worker, has built bedroom sets, tables and TV and hi-fi cabinets for several Hollywood stars, including Miss Rogers, Jack Benny and Olympic skater Steve Nouri.

Holt, who began his wood working business about 20 years ago, was employed by another furniture maker when several Hollywood decorators asked him to build special furniture for their movie star clients.

"The decorators wanted to order special furniture that my boss didn't want to fool around with," Holt said, "so they asked me to build it."

According to Holt, movie stars would sometimes see a piece of furniture they liked in a store then ask him to duplicate it, making the piece almost twice as large as the original. He said: "Their houses are so big that normal furniture would look miniature-sized."

Holt, who worked for almost 100 different decorators during his eight years in California, once filled a customer's order for a curved sofa 30 feet long.

After leaving California, Holt owned a custom-made furniture shop in Omaha called "Creative Woodcraft." In addition to building furniture for Brandeis and Orchard and Wilhelm, he made kitchen cabinets, restaurant servers and beauty parlor counters. He once built half of a covered wagon, including the wheels, to be mounted on a restaurant's walls. Pulling the wagon were two life-size horses carved out of plywood by Holt.

When hired to build special furniture, Holt was usually given a sketch showing how the finished piece should look. After seeing the drawing, he calculated the dimensions of each part, keeping each in proportion to the other pieces.

Beginning with rough lumber, he would first dry and clean the wood. Patterns were then cut out with a hand saw or routers. After assembling the furniture and sanding, he applied several coats of stain, sealer and finish—the most time-consuming step, according to Holt.

Carving ornamental trim on a piece also took time and patience. The border around a hatch in Holt's dining room—carved to look like rope—took a whole day to complete. In addition, he hand-carved an elaborate design on each of the hatch doors.

His home is also furnished with a bedroom set, coffee table, dining room set and several chairs which he built and carved himself. Hanging in the living and dining room walls are his original oil paintings. The former wood worker, who attended art school and taught commercial and fine arts in Omaha, said "I'll see something that I like, I'll paint it. Most of the time I just sit and visualize a scene, then go to work."

Holt painted one of his more unusual pictures—showing Christ's crucifixion—after dreaming about the scene. "After dreaming this same thing for three nights in a row, I went out and bought a canvas," he said.

Leo Holt shows off a hatch which he spent many hours dressing up by hand carving.

'Spray Cans Are Potential Bombs'

Aerosol cans are potential bombs, warns the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

However, proper handling of the spray cans will help avoid any harmful accident, according to the experts. Here's what those experts recommend:

- Do not leave an aerosol container near any source of heat. Never discard an "empty" container into a fire or incinerator. It may not be empty at all. Heat causes gas expansion and the container may explode.
- Never puncture a container because all aerosols are under pressure. Puncturing, like heat, can be dangerous. Before discarding a container, hold the valve open until all gas and the contents have escaped.
- Have adequate ventilation when using aerosols containing toxic or flammable formulations. Insecticides, paints and enamels, and lacquers would be included in this group.
- Do not use an aerosol to spray plants unless the recommendations on the container specify use for that purpose.
- Aerosol cans containing tire puncture sealants have been known to explode when left in trunks or glove compartments of cars parked in the hot sun. Do not inhale aerosols, and wash your eyes with liberal amounts of water if the spray gets into them.

Never spray aerosols containing alcohol or other flammable materials near an open flame. Droplets or vapors from sprays may ignite and start fires. Many aerosol labels are prominently marked "Caution—Flammable Mixture. Do not use near fire or flame."

Remember, always read the label when you buy a new can. Do not assume you have the same ingredient just because the brand name is the same.

Most manufacturers make several different types of preparations and place them in containers that look alike, so double check to make sure the one you are buying is really the one you think it is. And remember, always store aerosols along with other chemicals and drugs in a safe place out of reach of children.

Yellow grass?

—even though you fertilize?

It's likely caused by iron deficiency. Our amemic soils are frequently responsible for the "yellows," even when the grass is fed regularly. And the color won't improve, no matter how much you fertilize, until the iron deficiency is corrected.

That's where Scotts' new IRON-5 comes in. It supplies the plant-available iron that is necessary for good green color. Iron-5 is not a substitute for fertilizer. It is an iron supplement that, when used with fertilizer, helps yellowing grass turn green again. See for yourself — this weekend.

"DOC ADAMS OF GUNSMOKE"

By Irving Wallace

Milburn Stone, the frontier Doc Adams of the television program, "Gunsmoke", for 16 years, is doing fine these days. You may remember that he had a heart attack several years ago. The Dodge City Doc underwent open heart surgery last March after he was told that a second attack would render him useless.

After a recent checkup, he said, "I feel fine, better than I'm supposed to." He said "Doc Adams" would return to work soon which would put him in episodes that would be released this fall.

Milburn Stone lives in North Hollywood, California, with his wife Jane. They have been married 30 years.

It was not until I caught up with him at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City, where he was being honored, did I really have an opportunity to visit with this busy man. He has received more honors than one can shake a stick at, including honorary membership in the National Coroners Association and the Outstanding Service Award of the Kansas Medical Society, conferred on laymen only five times in the Society's 100-year history. He has also won an Emmy Award as the best supporting actor.

Probably no other television star is as much alike out of character as in character. The only difference between Milburn Stone and Doc Adams is the frontier period clothes he wears while on the program.

Doc was especially interested to talk about his associates on the long-playing western television program, in fact, happy to do so, but very reserved and modest when it came to his own part in the production.

Amanda Blake, who plays the part of Matt Dillon's girlfriend Kitty, never wanted to be anything but an actress. She wanted to live in a large ranch house with a swimming pool. Today she had made it all come true. Born Beverly Louis Neill in Buffalo, New York, she was in films when she was in her teens. Then she went to TV in the Red Skelton Show. She is forty two.

James Arness, known as Marshal Matt Dillon, was born in Minneapolis, Minnesota, on May 26, 1923. He interrupted his college education to serve in World War II. Back in Minnesota Jim became an announcer, then moved to the film capital. The following three years the wolf was snapping at his heels. The going was rough until he was able to land some work in films. The television production "Gunsmoke" brought him stardom. Jim Arness is devoted to his children; Craig, 23; Jenny Lee, 21; and Rolfe, 19. Many people are surprised when they first learn that Peter Graves on "Mission: Impossible" is his brother.

two his father, a country storekeeper, moved the family to Fort Larned, 50 miles closer to Dodge. The man to become the best known television doctor as a youngster had such a splendid scholastic record in elementary and high school he earned a Congressional appointment to the United States Naval Academy, but he turned it down to join up with a touring repertory group. They would usually stay in a town a week, playing a different show each night. This was during the Opera House era. He toured the Middle West with the Helen B. Ross Stock Company. He performed with several little-theater groups, including the Allen-Names Players, the Harold English Players, the Wallace Bruce Company, and also with the leading tent shows whose booking itinerate reached from the Dakota prairies to the Rio Grande Valley in Texas.

In the 1930's, he was a partner in a vaudeville act, Stone and Strain, offering songs, dances and snappy patter. He appeared on stage circuits and radio networks. It was also in the 30's when he first appeared on Broadway and in a motion picture. The stage play was Sinclair Lewis's "The Jayhawker", and the movie was "Ladies Crave Excitement".

Steady work followed in Hollywood. Milburn Stone has been featured in more than 150 full-length pictures.

His hobbies included designing furniture, fishing and cruising on Lake Meade, Nevada, in his 41-foot boat, the "Jayhawker".

Doc Adams is a true gentleman under all occasions, both on and off the screen. According to Doc, it has been the on-camera close friendship among the cast that has been responsible for the success of the long-playing program.

"The public senses it and they respond. It's something actors just can't fake," explained the veteran actor. "Jim Arness is the most honest, least hypocritical man I've ever met. Sure he's quiet, he's a loner. That's his right. Sure he's lazy. On Jim, it looks good."

Comradeship on the "Gunsmoke" sets is not reserved for Messrs. Stone and Arness. According to Doc, Miss Kitty is the glue that holds the cast together.

"If ever a show had all the ingredients for trouble, it's ours. Here's one gal with three rough characters. And, let me tell you she's a master at pulling in the reins before any rough stuff or any rough talk can get out of hand."

Ken Curtis, too, gets credit from Doc for helping to preserve the happy backstage family atmosphere.

"Sure, we get into our ruckuses. But, somehow, when things get tense, it's always Miss Kitty who eases the tension by finding something humorous in the situation and breaking into that marvelous lumberman's laugh of hers."

But it was the gal known as Miss Kitty who gave all credit to Doc Adams for the family-like harmony during their past many years together. "Like any family we have our differences," Miss Kitty told me. "But we stick together when an outsider picks on one of us."

On one occasion Doc Adams had a verbal go-a-round with what he called a Johnny-come-lately sort of a fellow who in some way got on the production end of the show—for a short while. That is, until he riled up the veteran actor to a point he could no longer contain himself.

On this particular day Doc walked off the set when the young producer insisted on a scene that Doc thought had no place in a "Gunsmoke" show. The confrontation ended up in one crashing argument. Doc, as he walked off the set said he was leaving the show and his words have often been retold: "I am too old to scare and too rich to care!"

The rest of the "Gunsmoke" family sat quietly by, watching the confrontation. Not one said a word until the young producer turned to them, obviously assuming they were 100 per cent on his side, and with a smirk asked, "Just what can you do with a guy like that?"

There were a few moments of silence. It was Jim Arness, the shy and silent one, who came up with an answer. "I'd listen to him if I were you," he drawled. "We always do, and it's never done us one bit of harm!"

Ken Curtis, featured as "Festus" came into show business as a musician. While at Colorado College, he wrote musicals, then landed a staff job on television. Tommy Dorsey liked his voice and hired him. Ken toured next with the Shep Field's band as a vocalist. Later he got parts in western pictures and his big break came with "Gunsmoke" to replace Dennis Weaver, who left the show after playing the part of "Chester". Ken was born Curtis Gates in Larmer, Colorado, on July 12, 1916.

And the veteran of them all in the entertainment world is Milburn Stone. His background is rooted in the locale of "Gunsmoke". For he was born July 5, 1904, in Burton, Kansas, about 80 miles from the real Dodge City. When he was

Fun and Bruises at the County Fair

By Bill Nelson

Enjoy rock 'em, sock 'em action? Then a highlight of many county fairs and cattle shows around the nation—the calf scramble—is for you.

The bronzed, muscular farm boys who vie for the skittish 300-pound critters must be rugged, quick and cunning, with an appetite for combat and tolerance of lumps and bruises.

If not, they'll go home empty-handed.

That's because the show ring contains twice as many combatants as calves. Contestants are given a 5-foot rope with which to fashion a halter. Then the nervous animals are turned loose in a fenced-in arena.

Frightened by the commotion, the calves sprint wildly to evade pursuers. As hundreds of spectators cheer themselves hoarse, the farm youths race after the calves, bulldog them into the dust and, finally, halter the panting animal.

Then all that remains is to tug the balky calf across the finish line.

"It's about as easy as stopping a runaway freight train, then dragging it back to the station," one muddy calf wrestler quipped.

Arrangements vary, but often the winners can keep the calves until the next year's fair, when they're sold. The boys are given the proceeds, minus an amount used to buy calves for the next contest, such as this scramble at the Carroll County Fair in Milledgeville, Illinois.

Go get 'em boys!—A calf scrambler must be tougher than a football tackle and as fleet as a halfback. The frightened calves bolt to all four corners of the arena.

And they're off! The calf scramble gets off to a wild start as the calves bolt for the far corner of the arena, farm boys at their heels.

Success, and Failure. As one farm youth puts a bear hug on an Angus calf, another stands glum and empty-handed.

Glorious Moment! A winner drags his reluctant prize across the finish line as a judge looks on.
