Fire Leaves Finn Family Homeless

Tuesday, for the Pat Finn family of rural Carroll, was one of those days most everyone knows can happen — and every one dreads. A fire destroyed their farm home. Monday, everything was normal. Tuesday, nearly everything was gone. School started Monday for six of the eight Finn children. There just wasn't time for any of them to go to class Tuesday although 16-year-old Alan — a junior at Laurel High School — said he was supposed to have written an assignment telling about the three happiest times in his life. The day the family will not soon forget started off with a bang — then another — and another. The loud noises from the basement — sounding like shots — awakened Mrs. Finn. What she heard was determined later to have been exploding paint cans. By the time the Finns were able to alert their eight children of danger, smoke had already filled the two-story house. Seventeen-year-old Sally, a senior at Laurel High this year, said the smoke was already so thick when she got out of the house, along with other members of the family, that it caused her eyes to burn. Talking about the time when the fire may have started, Sally said, "I remember the alarm clock going off at five minutes to six and we were already getting out of the house." Mary Pat, 19, a sophomore ready to start classes at Wayne State College next Monday, hurried to the Merrill Baler home a mile west of the Finn farm to call the fire departments in Carroll and Wayne. Firemen fought the stubborn blaze for several hours before being able to bring it under control. Most of the furniture was gotten out of the house, but sustained damage, from smoke and water, it was later moved, with the help of the neighbors, to a nearby vacant farm home belonging to Henry Arp. Family clothing was mostly all saved from the fire, although permeated with the smell of

State Board Approves College Budget Boost

The State College Board of Trustees, meeting at Wayne State College Saturday, approved a budget increase for the local college of nearly $400,000 over the current budget — amounting to an increase of 11.9 per cent — for the 1972-73 term.

The 1972-73 budget represents the first time the trustee's executive officer has developed and presented recommendations to the board. In previous years, the state college developed its own budget request for the board. Presidents of the four colleges did make recommendations, but the recommendations of Dr. James E. Todd, executive secretary, were generally accepted and adopted. Several specific requests by the colleges were approved by the board over Todd's recommendation. However, Cramer noted that the average faculty salary is recommended at $11,900 yearly, a 5.86 inflation See BUDGET, page 5

Dahl Wins 5th Club Championship

Ken Dahl chipped within three feet of the cup on the 34th hole of a 36-hole playoff Sunday to clinch his fifth Wayne Country Club tourney championship. Dahl finished three holes up on Tom Keenan with just two left to play in the wind-hampered showdown.

This year marks the fifth time Dahl's name will be inscribed on the George A. Berres Memorial, a trophy bearing the names of the past 14 club champions. He also won in 1955, 1956, 1967 and 1969.

Last year's champ, Chuck Fisher, was eliminated in the first round of competition.

Sunday's results might also serve as unpleasant reminder to the runner-up, Keenan has never won the championship, but has finished in the number two spot twice—both times behind Dahl. The first time was in 1969.

Bob Reeg took third place in the tournament, coming in seven holes up on Jim Strain with six to play in a scheduled 36-hole playoff.

Following are results of the nine flight playoffs:

First flight—Fred Gildersleeve over Les Latt.

Second flight—Randy Rohlfson over George Thorbeck.

Third flight—Jerry Miller and Jim Hein yet to play.

Fourth flight—Dale Gutshall over Dick Berry.

Fifth flight—Morris Vogel over Jeff Backstrom.

Sixth flight—Dale Johansen over Delmar Carlson.

Seventh flight—Warren Bresler over Rowan Wikse.

Eighth flight—Mac Auler and winner of Marty Willers vs. Bill Kroeber yet to play.

Ninth flight—Leroy Turner over Harold Stehwin.

Ken Dahl takes a breather after regaining the champion ship title in the Wayne Country Club golf tournament.

The Wayne Country Club team tournament is scheduled to begin Wednesday night, with the top four teams in both American and National Leagues vying for men's golf league laurels.

Pause for A Thirst Quencher

Wayne High School Blue Devils took a thirst break Friday following a workout on the practice field south of the West Elementary School. Coach Allen Hansen issued gear last week to about 55 boys out for the '71 squad. Assisting Hansen with coaching duties are Ron Carnes and Don Kosmas. Devils will get their first piece of gridiron action this season when they travel to Madison Sept. 10.

Ninth Year of Recreation Football Set to Begin; Check-out Thursday

Local gridders too young to participate in high school competition will get a chance to play football when Wayne's Recreation League begins its ninth season Saturday morning. Hank Overin will be program director again this year with the help of assistants to be named later.

According to the Overin, all boys in 8th-11th grades are encouraged to take part in the junior football league. The only requirements are that each player furnish his own mouth piece and have either a physical examination (within the last year) or parents' permission before joining the league. All participants are covered by accident insurance.

Following are equipment check-out and practice schedules for the three age groups:

8th graders—check out equipment today (Thursday) from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Middle Center. Practice will be Saturday afternoon from 3 to 4:30.

9th graders—check out football gear from 4 to 6 p.m. on Friday at the Middle Center. Practice sessions will be from 1 to 2:30 Saturday.

10th graders—meet for practice from 10 to 12 Saturday morning.

Each boy is asked to furnish his own junior size shoulder pads and a sweatshirt. This age group will play tackle-above-the-waist with no roll blocking. Several rules will be in force to guard against injury. All practices will be at the Wayne baseball park. Helmets will be provided the young gridders at each session.

Golfers Sign for Labor Day Tourney

Over 60 golfers have signed up to play in the annual Labor Day tournament at the Wayne Country Club, according to co-manager Roger Madden.

Madden noted that any golfer not scheduled for the two-day event should contact the country club (375-9946) as soon as possible.

All 18 holes will be played in the tournament running Sept. 5-6. The new nine holes were not used in last year's contest, won by Ken Dahl in a sudden death playoff.

Over $2,000 in prizes will be up for grabs in the tourney, which will feature trophies for the winners and prizes for the top four golfers in each flight.

The 36-hole handicap tournament will be played Sunday and Monday. Golfers can qualify 18 holes on either Saturday or Sunday. Low 24 golfers in the Saturday and Sunday competition will make up the championship flight for the final 18 holes on Monday. Entry fee of $15 includes Sunday night dinner at the clubhouse.

Harlan Farrens of Wayne didn't let this big one get away. He says the 40-pound flathead cat measured 41 inches and is the largest catfish he has ever caught. The catch was made Thursday in the Missouri River near Wynot with a net.

Smith Takes Trophy in Laurel Men's Tourney

Rick Smith came up with the low score on 18 holes of medal play to capture the championship trophy in Laurel's golf league tournament Sunday.

Eighty members participated in the handicap competition at the Cedarview Country Club. A trophy and prizes were awarded the first three finishers in each flight. Lee Dahl was tournament director.

Smith, a University of Nebraska student, shot a 75 (91-24) to earn top honors in the first (championship) flight. Six strokes back in second place was Gary Erwin. Gary Newton wound up third at 82.

Following are the results of all flights:

Second flight—Jack Sauser (first), Bob Buss (second) and Virgil Buss (third).

Third flight—Darrrell Dahl and Jim Hirschman tied for first place, Mick Peterson and Bill Norvell tied for second and third.

Fourth flight—Mel Olson, Roy Gibson and Kenny Tuttle.

Fifth flight—Bob Wentworth,

WHS Hosts Grid Rules Meeting

Over 65 area coaches and officials attended a football rules meeting at the Wayne High school Friday night. The seminar was conducted by James Riley, assistant executive secretary of the Nebraska Activities Association.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss changes and rewording of rules which will be in effect during the 1971 gridiron season. Harold Maciejewski, athletic director at the high school, also noted that some of the common rules are often overlooked—were reviewed and re-emphasized.

The ultimate goal of Friday's meeting is to improve the quality and uniformity of high school officiating. A penalty is assessed those officials not attending one of the meetings held in various locations around the state.

The center, a popular meeting place for local youth, will be open from 7 to 10 p.m. on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays this year. It will also be open from 4 to 6 p.m. on rainy Thursdays and Fridays. In addition to the regular evening hours, it will be open from 12:30 to 5 on rainy Saturday afternoons.

Activities include ping pong, table games, light and heavy punching bags, pool, television, BB shoot and pinball.

Bag and possession limit on belt minnows in Nebraska is 100 per angler.

WHS Frosh on Gridiron

Football practice started Monday for 33 Wayne High freshmen. Dan Johnson is the coach with 115-year, assisted by Dan Johnson.

Six games are on tap for the frosh team during the grid season. The opener is a 4 p.m. contest at Pierce Lake, 10.

Scrimmage Set Friday

Wayne varsity football team will add a season scrimmage Friday at 7:30 on the Jeanen stadium. Admission will be a lot of soap-papers-based brands included.

Part-time boys are out for WHS football this year, under the direction of new head coach, Don Kosmas. Tom Tompase is a second year assistant.

The Frosh's first game will be against Wisner-Pfizer Sept. 10 at Wayfield.

continued his objection to granting the beer permit pointing out that if one grocery store gets a permit, "The town will be wide open."

Voicing similar objections to the groceryman's application were Russ Moomaw of Wayne, who said, "If this is granted to this grocery store—it will only be a matter of time until the others apply," and Ray Agler told the council, "We have enough outlets without putting beer into the grocery stores."

Dick Wacker, owner of Dick's Tavern, objected to the application: "They (grocery stores) will use beer sales to promote their livelihood of selling groceries. Selling beer is our livelihood." He also pointed out that if grocery stores were permitted to sell beer, pricing of the product would likely "become a football."

Norris Wellbe told the council that tavern owners do a good job of checking identification and policing themselves. He questioned the ability of a grocery store to police itself.

Wittig said he could—if permitted to sell beer—police his own business and noted that he would be "opening a leg and giving it to everyone without checking ID—like some places."

Several property owners living north of Wayne questioned the council concerning the actual danger of their septic tanks being a source of possible contamination for the city water supply.

Following the discussion, council authorized the city's engineer to make an investigation into the matter and asked him to prepare a map showing the location of present wells and septic tanks north of the city. Mayor Hall asked the water and sewer committee to come up with a proposal as to how water and septic tanks might be handled in the Mads development northwest of the city.

Specifying of the possible contamination of city water, Hall pointed out that the city's big concern is protecting its water supply.

In other action the councilmen: —Received a recommendation from the planning commission that the present zoning of Second Street—mostly residential—remain unchanged.
—Adopted a resolution asking Gov. J. J. Egan to declare Wayne a fire class city.
—Discussed possible legal pro-

Wayne Florist Tells Kiwanians Of New Flowers

"The petunia has to rank number one as the most popular flower in Wayne," Kent Hall told Kiwanians meeting for a noon luncheon Monday at the Woman's club room.

Hall, owner and manager of Wayne Greenhouse, showed colored slides of experimental beds of flowers near Chicago and talked about a variety of new flowers ranging from purple plumb petunias to dahlias.

He said there is a current trend for people to plant annuals—plants that continue to bloom throughout the summer—rather than perennials which bloom only during a brief season.

"Annuals are becoming more and more popular," Hall noted. Speaking of petunias, the florist pointed out that not one of the 50 varieties currently available were on the market 10 years ago.

Kiwanians were shown a small vial containing 2,225 petunia seeds weighing only a fraction of an ounce. Hall said there are 285,000 of the seeds—valued at $500—in a full ounce. Without que in cheek the florist noted that "good sweeze can cost you $10."

Kiwanians will meet on Tuesday next week instead of Monday because of the Labor Day holiday.

It takes a lot of endurance to make up for bad judgment.

DON'T "CROSS" US DRIVE WITH CARE

Bumper Stickers Join Drive for Safety

Slogans alone cannot automatically save the lives of travelers in Wayne County and in the state. They may, however, remind a driver to use added caution. Approximately 100,000 bumper stickers like the one above are expected to appear on thousands of Nebraska vehicles within the next few weeks as part of a safety campaign initiated by Gov. J. J. Faxon. The stickers are being distributed by Javee organizations, the Department of Motor Vehicles and the Nebraska Department of Roads. Little white crosses marking locations of traffic fatalities are also part of the safety campaign to get Nebraskans to drive with added care. Every driver in Wayne County and in the state is urged to join the safety campaign by campaigning for safety behind the wheel of his own car.

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786

Welcome Wayne Staters

In behalf of the community of Wayne—about to become a first class city—we would like to editorially welcome all of you new students on the campus of Wayne State College and welcome back those of you who have studied here before.

Whether you are from Washington, D. C., or perhaps from Wakefield, Windsor or West Point, we hope you will make yourselves at home.

Being comparatively small in population—about 5,400 residents—Wayne takes pride in maintaining the congenial and relaxed atmosphere of a typical small mid-western and mid-western college town.

Although Wayne is small in number, you'll find the community has a big reputation for Wayne State College and its students.

Besides the many businesses that would be pleased to serve you, there are nine churches in the community for persons seeking spiritual enrichment and fellowship.

Regardless of the length of your stay in Wayne, the time you spend here will be filled with memories you'll treasure in years to come.

The great word in Wayne these days is "Welcome." — MMV.

Salute to Hard Work

Why honor something like hard work? Wayne County residents, along with millions of other Americans, will do exactly that this Labor Day weekend, but why?

When thousands of Americans are retired, and millions are not old enough to work, why honor labor?

When labor disputes often grab the headlines; when unions and managements are feuding; when thousands are striking—why honor hard work?

If a person didn't work, what would he do? Have you ever noted how certain individuals work toward retirement, talk about it, dream about not having to get up in the morning and going to work when the day to quit comes—it comes with a job? Idleness tells us we are not useful or needed by anyone—enough to live a person out of his mind.

Labor provides a use for our ability, giving us a passageway of creativity and setting goals, reaching them and going up more. To be happy the mind must be constantly working toward objective.

Labor, of course, provides that which is called money. Happy is that person whose job not only provides an income but also stimulates the mind with resultant satisfaction. Labor keeps our minds busy contributing, not only to our own welfare, but to the welfare of others.

Hard work, and the freedom to choose the type of work one wants to do, has brought into existence an abundance of products and wealth in this great land of ours. Factories, railroads, airlines and private power plants, telephone systems and supermarkets, plus almost any other service facility you can name, have been brought into existence by the past savings of people—hard working people. These things exist because people have been willing to work, save and invest.

One of the best things government can do for us is to protect our savings, through rigid government economy and alertness to inflationary threats wherever they arise.

Let us salute on Monday that which has brought productivity, sanity and peace of mind—labor and its fruit. — MMV.

Crazy Days Are Here Again

Holidays in America might well be termed crazy days insofar as highway travel is concerned.

Millions of people are expected to jam the nation's highways during the coming long Labor Day weekend. Crazy as it seems, some motorists—perfectly normal before entering the car—will turn into murderers.

Screams of horror will echo up and down the miles of concrete ribbon as about 600 blood-battered bodies—once alive as grandpas and granmas, mamas and daddys, sons, daughters, sweethearts and babies—are picked from piles of twisted metal.

These drivers who will turn into murderers this weekend are alive today (Thursday). The thought of killing someone—using a car as a weapon—hasn't even entered their minds. But they will, nevertheless, go out and kill. Strangers will kill strangers.

Victims of those crazy-at-the-wheel motorists look, walk, talk and act much like yourself. You're not expecting to die, out there on the highway are you?

No one else is either. But just as sure as you're holding this paper, many people have only a few days left to live.

Those 600 souls expected to be killed this weekend are likely enjoying themselves today, never suspecting Labor Day will be their last holiday on earth. How could they, know some crazy driver is out to kill them? When Thanksgiving rolls around, an empty chair at the family table will tell the tragic story.

Drink, drive and die. About 10,000 people in the U. S. are murdered each year by criminal action, but about 50,000 are slaughtered on the highways. That is roughly 25,000 lives that sobriety alone could save annually if one is to believe studies that blame half of the road fatalities on alcohol.

Crazy days will overshadow your traveling this weekend. Drivers who do not intend to kill and victims who do not plan to die will think their lives together in a pool of blood.

It doesn't have to be that way. Drive like you planned on living. — MMV.

State's Youthful Voters Slow in Signing Register

LINCOLN—Young Nebraskans apparently aren't breaking down the courthouse doors to register for their newly-granted voting privileges. According to statistics gathered by the state Democratic headquarters, only about 5 per cent of the 18, 19 and 20 year olds now eligible for ballot-marking have registered.

The Democrats sent out questionnaires to all 93 counties August 11 to see how the registrations were coming for the young voters. The returns from 76 counties showed a total of 2,869 had signed up.

Democratic Chairman Heston said party studies indicate a "pool" of about 95,000 potential voters in the age group.

The county clerks and election commissioners responding to the Democratic survey reported 1,406 of the "new voters" had registered as Democrats, 1,192 as Republicans and 271 as Independents.

It appears the only comprehensive statement that can be made at this time, Heston said, "is that there is much left to be done" to encourage young Nebraskans to exercise their new privilege.

Power Hazards Studied

A legislative study committee wants the federal government to help pay for an investigation of the hazards of generating electricity in nuclear power plants.

The committee endorsed a plan to ask for as much as $250,000 in federal funds to underwrite the study.

Chairman Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said that figure was "off the top of my head," but he said the kind of investigation he has in mind would be expensive and "it never hurts to ask" for federal funds—the least they can do is refuse.

Carpenter said too little is known about the environmental dangers of atomic plants, two of which are under construction now in Nebraska.

The Omaha Public Power District is building a plant at Fort Calhoun and the Nebraska Public Power District has one under construction at Brownville.

The Carpenter committee also plans to look into the cost of the two plants and the methods used by the power districts in contracting for the construction work.

During discussions at the committee's initial meeting, the senators said the federal Atomic Energy Commission appears to be ordering constant changes in the plant specifications, requiring constant increases in the construction costs.

Neither the state, the district or the rate payer has any control over the costs, the senators said. They said they didn't like that and they wanted to learn more about it from power district officials during hearings they plan.

About the middle of next month, the committee will spend a day at each construction site to get an idea of what the plants will be like.

Billboard Bill Readied
Another legislative study committee is looking into proposed laws for the control of billboards along federally-aided highways.

Last week, State Engineer Thomas Doyle presented the committee with a copy of a bill proposed for introduction in January.

Nebraska, has been cited by the U.S. Department of Transportation for failing to comply with federal requirements for controls over outdoor advertising.

Unless the state can convince the federal officials its going to comply, a 10 per cent penalty—about $3.9 million—can be deducted from the highway funds allocated to Nebraska.

Gov. J. J. Faxon has requested a formal hearing so the state can present its case. The governor's argument is that Nebraskans intend to comply as soon as the Legislature reconvenes and has an opportunity to pass a new control law.

Under terms of the federal Highway Beautification Act, states must have controls considered acceptable by the transportation secretary.

The draft presented last week to the senators is expected to meet federal requirements.

Search Continues

The University of Nebraska Board of Regents continues its search for three new "chancellors."

The regents have demoted the Omaha campus head, Kirk Naylor; Joseph Soshnik of the Lincoln campuses has resigned, and Dr. Cecil Whitson of the Medical Center is only a few months away from retirement age.

Under a new movement scheme approved recently by the board, the campus heads will be called chancellors and vice-presidents of the university system. The top administrator, Ourward Varner has had his title changed from chancellor to president.

Under a new movement scheme in progress, a more unified system in the three-campus institution, the board says.

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

Declining fat cattle markets are psychologically induced... not supply and demand. Today the dangers are unbalanced, illogical, unnecessary slaughter by most packers and panic escape-selling by some cattlemen.

Every price break since the days of Texas cattle drives were maintained by rumor. The velvet-vested buyer would say, "Longhorn Pete and Shanghai Pierce are just one day down the trail. Take my bid or there won't be another cattle car till spring."

From a Montana boyhood; I remember eastern buyers who wheeled big fatcats down the road, spewing gravel and dust like a caterpillar's tail, coming to save ranchers from starvation. Selling to him still meant a northern beans diet all winter, but he said we could use a bigger pot!

Happy Dan bought by spreading terror and panic. He talked bankrupts, grasshoppers, unemployment and drought. Quality was unimportant. If a rancher planned railroading to South St. Paul, Omaha or Chicago, the reply was always, "The Jews or Al Capone will get you." Of course, he could ship because he had an order and he had a pure and philanthropic heart.

True, if we shipped, we did hit more tusus than the usual bait wears. Too long, too short, too fat, too thin, from too high an altitude, too cold a climate, too much hair, or bone, a scur on one head, too long a feather, a red neck, a wart, brand too big, cattle too spooky.

Odd, after a speculator bought the cattle, the tusus suddenly were cured. Maybe the prairie hay and water or overnight the national economic conditions were mended. While corn farmers never were shown our steers in the commission alley, a dozen prospective feeders appeared and followed the cattle off the scales.

After the cattle were fed a year, again the tusus. Rumors of owners to light if 1,300 pounds and too heavy if 1,000 pounds (!). A three-way sort. Prime, but need 30-60 more days. On 40 head similar as peas in a pod, too dehydrated! Too full—after being marched up and down, jammed into corners, switched on to the water troughs.

Rumors include that the eastern dressed market was obliterated; plant strikes; steamship orders were cancelled; Armour and Swift coolers were loaded; no refrigerator cars. Rumors to change the confidence and psychological attitude. No supply. No demand. Rumors.

Today rumors continue to dominate. Confidence was shaken by the Presidential freeze. Earlier, cattle buyers were begging for a look. Loose talk at the coffee shops ran to $40 cattle. Also laughing comments on the 40-28-42 waitress. There was back slapping and aggressive talk. There were bold plans. Even the shop... at his prices! This way!

There still existed a shortage of finished cattle. Feedlots were current, weights were light. But cattlemen needed a two-day moratorium, a stoppage, a breathing spell. Instead, many panicked. Opened the gates.

The packers took control—spread rumors. Like the west coast and Gulf coast dock strikes, Spencer strike, Beefland International to collapse. Joliet prices were penny. Incidentally, Joliet has evolved into a strong, strong market over $2 above the nation and never topped since being opened.

New York housewives passing beef, poor profits, no yields, blind graders, no piggy banks and despite the fact the yellow sheet showed that packers ceilings were 32 over previous admitted sales, farmers let packers get three-four-five days in front with advance bids. Then laid down—54.50 beef bids turned to 52.

Next the game of chain store markets: one packer, strike-bound and finding secondary buyers in the east, dumped meat $1 below the sheet. A crack in the dikes of Holland, world's stress damage. Now, like rats leaving a sinking ship, the beefmen emptied coolers.

Now, here is my message. Any time the dressed market is week. From dominating Mr. Nice, Dan, Dan, Illinois Slim, Cupey, Doll, the Kansas Kid and the other hundreds of throttle-pushing country packer buyers, the cattle feeder became as mean as a cotton chopper in front of a Georgia judge. From resisting to surrender.

Packers who had been hurting for minimum hours began hitting slaughters of 620,000 head per week. Buyers who had driven six days a week in six directions, who had daily called the plant for additional grants, money, and who had been on the phone from sunrise until long after dark, buying the next day's kill, suddenly could fill his week's needs at the gas station coffee collapsing and packers push to buy and slaughter 122,000 head a day and use a Saturday kill, they are not friends of the cattleman.

You cannot shovel corn into a jammed grinder. Packers who delighted in saving $1 a head in plant efficiency always, but always, cost the industry $10 a head in price collapse.

As long as "Uncle" projects for the eastern beef outlets, the daily inspected slaughter, we are slaves to rumors. Corporate packers make money on price breaks. Rumors rule the game. Please do not follow a packer down hill. When a packer is working more than three days ahead, you are dealing with mediocre bidding or someone on a bank float.

'Damaged Grain Can Make Good Feed'

Wayne area farmers with grain being damaged by the dry weather can still make good use of it as feed, according to two University of Nebraska Lincoln extension livestock specialists.

Dr. Paul Guyer and P. H. Cole of the N-1, College of Agriculture note that corn and grain or forage sorghum damaged by the drought conditions can make good feed if properly handled.

Deadly crops should not be harvested until additional growth is impossible, because additional growth will increase the tonnage of feed, may increase the feed value per ton of dry matter and may reduce the nitrate content of the harvested forage, they explain.

A lower plant moisture will also result, yielding a more acceptable silage, and even though leaves may be near shattering stage, the stalk could still contain too much moisture for making the best silage.

They note that if the crop is near maturity with little or no

Rate Increasing

You may be in for more feed and grain losses to rats this fall unless you start an effective campaign to eliminate them now. If anyone were stealing or spoiling as much feed and grain as rats and mice on your place, you would probably call the sheriff. Now is the time to mount an all-out attack on these thieves.

Rats are social animals and live in colonies. The rat is a driven animal—driven by teeth. Its chisel-bladed incisors, which appear eight or ten days after birth, begin to grow immediately at a rate of five inches a year. They must be continually filed down by chewing. If an upper tooth is lost or knocked out of line, the bottom one opposite the gap may grow through the upper jaw and pierce the brain. On a gnawing spree in a warehouse, a rat may tear into and burrow through dozens of sacks of feed.

Rats do billions of dollars worth of damage in the United States each year. They carry diseases, cause fires because of their gnawing, ruin structures and attack poultry and livestock. Everywhere he goes, the rat spreads contamination. Although the rat does have dietary preferences, he will eat an incredible variety of food. On the other hand, naturally equipped him with a special characteristic which aids greatly in his survival. On his own hunting grounds anything new, such as poison bait, is instinctively avoided. After the strange food has been ignored for a while, however, it becomes familiar and the rat samples it in minute amounts. Rats require a minimum of about an ounce of dry food and one and a half ounces of water a day.

A rat will follow definite routes of travel in his own territory. The question we must ask ourselves is, "Do we have rats?" As a rule of thumb for use in estimating the number of rats on a farm, if rats are never seen but occasional evidence of rats is at hand, there are from 1 to 100 rats on the premises. If rats are never seen by day but seen occasionally at night, there are 100 to 500. If rats are seen occasionally by day and are more numerous at night, there are 500 to 1,000. If they are seen in large numbers by day and night, there may be as many as 5,000. Each rat on the farm feeds itself 53 worth of food and feed yearly and spoils 10 times as much.

Let's start our campaign against rats now by rat proofing structures, cleaning up the areas and using a rodenticide.

Rat proofing: Use sheet metal to protect gnawing edges of buildings. Cement all holes in foundations, cover lower portions of bins with sheet metal or one-fourth inch mesh hardware cloth at least 24 inches from the ground or foundation level. Rats can squeeze through one-half inch or larger.

Perimeter areas: Keep areas free of weeds and unused materials in the yard. Basic essential structures, such as posts and buildings without foundations at least 18 inches off the ground.

Prevent feeding: If rats cannot find food they either leave or starve. Rat proof feed bins and other sources of food supply for the rat.

Poisoning: Because rats require dry food and water, since water is not always as readily available as food, incorporate both in your baiting program.

Small Business Program Gains More Interest

A 1968 amendment to the Small Business Administration's lease guarantee program has increased interest in the program, although slow at the start, appears to be increasing greatly in recent months, according to Rick Budra, district director of the Nebraska Office of SBA.

A Lease Guarantee is an insurance policy issued to a small businessman, guaranteeing to the landlord that rent payments will be made. It is, in effect, a new type of credit assistance by the Small Business Administration, in cooperation with private insurance companies, to help small businessmen obtain leases in choice business locations.

For several years the Senate Select Committee on Small Business has been concerned about the difficulties of small businesses in securing leases of prime industrial or commercial space for business operations. During public hearings, witnesses repeatedly testified as to the national preference which lessors or landlords hold for a tenant with a background of successful business experience, a high credit rating, and a strong financial statement. This preference has been detrimental to the small businessman in competing for rental space in new developments, especially in large shopping centers in suburban areas and industrial parks. Frequently, the present financial treatment of the financially strong prospective tenant meant the loss of the premises or the payment of higher rent to the small business.

Since 1968, the most lease guarantee policies have been written by the SBA's insurance companies. A number of insurance companies are now participating in the program. Where private participation is not available, the SBA will guarantee leases directly.

Inspections Change

In Area Meat Plants Starting in October

Meat plants in Wayne, Wadfield, Winside and Laurel will soon be inspected by Federal inspectors. Previously the plants were inspected by state officials.

Plants operating wholly within Nebraska will be subject to Federal inspection effective Oct. 1, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The action will affect 109 intrastate meat plants that are under regular inspection, as well as 119 exempted plants that are subject to sanitary reviews including product wholesomeness and labeling requirements.

The Federal Meat Inspection Act authorizes USDA to inspect intrastate plants upon 30 days notice to the governor if it is determined the state is not effectively enforcing the Act's requirements.

Nebraska is the first state in which USDA has had to assume meat inspection responsibility after having previously declared the state equal to Federal inspection. Three other states—Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota and Puerto Rico have Federal inspection in intrastate meat operations, but none of these states were ever certified equal to Federal inspection.

You can beef-up a skimpy lawn by "seeding-in"

Best way to add new life to a thin lawn is to plant grass seed right into the existing turf. And Fall is the ideal time to do it.

Scotts FAMILY Brand lawn seed is America's longtime favorite. Why? Because it is a versatile blend that does well in sun or moderate shade. And it's priced right too. So if your lawn needs "beefing-up," get a box of SCOTTS FAMILY seed this week end.
