Bedroom Planning: Sometimes the bedroom area becomes the most important part of the home for the elderly or the physically limited persons. Therefore, when planning the bedroom, first consideration should be given to comfort and safety. Furniture arrangement and structural features, like windows and light switches can make a bedroom easily usable or impossible to use. Bedroom windows should be located so beds can be placed where a view through the window is available. To avoid glare, the bed should be placed parallel to the window. The window controls should be placed low enough for someone in a chair to operate. Two-way light switches, one located at the entrance to the bedroom and one easily reached from the bed, should be between 3 and 3 1/2 feet from the floor, providing safety against falls in the dark. For some, an alarm system located near the bed is desirable. For the elderly or disadvantaged person living alone, a telephone near the bed is also a safety precaution. For a person in a wheelchair, the furniture needs to be arranged so he can turn the chair around and have easy access to drawers or shelves used for clothing storage. A carpeted floor is preferred to tiled or wooden floors to cushion the falls which would otherwise result in broken bones or bad sprains. The bedroom should be located on ground level and close to the bathroom.

William L. Wieland, son of G. William and Katherine Roesch Wieland, was born Feb. 11, 1883 in Wayne County, Nebraska. On Aug. 19, 1914, he married Bertha Wieland at Wayne. He had lived on the home farm all his life. He was a member of the Redeemer Lutheran Church.

VA Wants Training Spots for Vets

In an effort to combat unemployment among veterans in Nebraska, the Veterans Administration has launched a major campaign to attract more employers to participate in its on-the-job program for veterans.

C. W. Nixon, director, urged manufacturers, plant managers, personnel officials and businessmen throughout the state to contact the VA for assistance in setting up training programs for future employees.

He said the VA, in cooperation with the national Jobs for Veterans Program, seeks more local on-the-job training locations in order to train and put to work returning Nebraska veterans.

Nixon said a Civilian Job Training program permits the plant operator or the businessman to train a young man or woman exactly as he wants an employee trained.

When they begin job-training, veterans receive from their future employers at least one-half the salary of the jobs for which they are being trained. In addition, the VA pays veterans with no dependents $108 the first six months of (177, $81 the second six months, $54 the third and $27 the last six months of training.

The VA official said the agency is anxious to aid in setting up training programs for as many veterans as it can.

He urged employers in all types of business in Nebraska to contact James C. Smith of the VA regional office staff for assistance. Smith may be reached by telephone at 475-5416 or by writing him at 220 S. 17th St., Lincoln.

Three Area Couples Attend Welsh Coules

Three area couples returned home Tuesday after joining 2,000 people, representing all 50 of the United States, attending the 10th annual Welsh singing festival in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Owens, all of Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Thomas of Concord, left Wednesday for the Gwynedd Inn and attended sessions Thursday through Sunday. The festival was held in the Mormon Tabernacle.

The couples attended a similar meeting of Welshmen held in Toronto, Canada in 1967.

Appearing on this year's program was the 200-voice Mormon Youth Chorus and a 100-piece symphony.

Chores Need Doing For Those Wanting Cool Season Grass

Wayne area residents who want a cool season grass lawn had better act now, according to a University of Nebraska-Lincoln horticulturist.

The best time to seed a bluegrass or K-31 fescue lawn in Nebraska is during the first two weeks in September, but before September several chores need to be done, says Wayne C. Whitney.

"Have you gotten a soil test? What about soap, fertilizers and equipment? Need topsoil? What about establishment of a grade and drainage system?"

Whitney says most people don't do any of the above tasks. Instead they rent a roto tiller, make a few quick passes over the lawn, scatter some "miracle seed" and turn on the water.

"Results—a lush stand of tall, vigorous weeds."

"Soil preparation is the most important part of planting a lawn and the one most often overlooked," declares Whitney.

"The reason for skipping here is that soil preparation is hard work and sometimes expensive. But we've got to remember that the grass we see results from what we don't see—the root system. As roots must have good soil, grass must have good roots."

Proper grading is the first step in lawnmaking; sloping the soil away from the house helps insure dry basements. Sidewalks and patios should be one inch higher than the soil surface.

Whitney suggests a soil test to determine if lime is needed. Don't guess, he warns. If lime is needed (in many cases it is not), it's better to incorporate when the soil is prepared than to leach it into the soil after planting.

Also phosphorus should be incorporated at planting, since it does not move into the soil readily. A soil test will indicate if lime and phosphorus are required in addition to nitrogen and potash.

White Elephants Wanted

White elephants—items you wish were out of your way and appreciated by someone else—may be just about any place in your home, garage, basement or attic. Area residents will be able to discard unwanted white elephants and at the same time help a worthwhile cause during a white elephant sale slated from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the city auditorium. Why are members of the local Kiwanis Club going to all the fuss and bother of holding such an event? Among other reasons, they like kids. Kiwanis—a service organization—sponsors various youth activities and programs throughout the year. Among ways used to fund such projects is asking everyone to join in a white elephant sale. Anyone having items they would like to contribute to the sale should contact Don Wightman, general chairman. It is preferred that white elephant items not be junk, but items that you no longer use and would just as soon give to a worthwhile cause. By cleaning out the attic, basement or garage, you can help yourself, help the club and help in local youth activity programs. Don Wightman, Dale Gutschall, Jim Hummel and Keith Mosley would be glad to answer any question you might have about the sale and about getting items to the auditorium. —MMW.

Big Investment

You pull back the curtain on a window in your home and you see your neighbor's little guy, outfitted in his baseball suit, leaving to play a ball game that is the most important thing in the world to him. The reason he can play is because of your gift, and others like it, to the Community Chest. You made an investment and it is paying big dividends. A young man home on military leave walks down the old main drag in Wayne. He finds being home is the greatest. While away from home, he was entertained and provided other services through the USO. Your contribution to the Community Chest helped make a few of his lonely hours a little happier. Maybe you got to see those pretty young ladies—all Girl Scouts—camping at Johnson's Grove northwest of Wayne for several days a month or so ago? They were enjoying some of the benefits made possible by contributions to the Community Chest. Did you drive by Bressler Park this summer and notice all those youngsters actively engaged in creative projects? The program is supported by the local Community Chest. Then there is that uniformed curly-haired Boy Scout prancing his way down the street to manhood. If you contributed to the Community Chest in past years, you have had a part in guiding his life. A $10,000 Community Chest fund goal has been set for the annual campaign this year in Wayne. Kickoff date for the drive is Oct. 1. During these weeks before the drive gets underway, let's give as much consideration to the number of dollars we are going to contribute as we would for any other investment program. Is there any other greater pleasure than watching investments return living dividends? —MMW.

Sideline Sound Off

Do you have those throaty twin tonils all warmed up for sounding off on the sidelines this season? Do you know all the new regulations? Are you in good voice? Remember, if you're going to be a name-caller, don't be an amateur. A few of the pros are always along the sidelines too, so you might do well to take a few lessons. When the referee gets penalized, call the referees blind. If the other side gets the penalty, let the striped-shirt men know that it's about time they opened their eyes. Sometime during the early part of the game when things may not be going so well for your team, by all means yell at the refs and ask them how much they're getting paid. Don't forget to throw in a few boos and "clipping, clipping" chants. A sideline artist always will find some opportunity to jeer and taunt the opposing coach. And then there are those kids from the other town. Surely some of them could be any good or even begin to know how to play the game, so take your nasty pit early and holler at the opposing players. If they get close. If you aren't in good shape for the football season, get underway this week, practice your foul-mouth tactics at home so your wife can see what she's really missing at the game. She may take in the game just to see your marvelous performance. By yelling in the previously described manner, you can let everyone know what an expert you really are—not in the technique of playing football, but in the art of playing the fool. Ah, sportsmanship! —MMW.

Dear Editor: Lincoln I want to take this opportunity to thank The Wayne Herald for the interest and support given to our All-Star Basketball training camp in Wayne again this year. Support like yours within the community has helped make Wayne the location for our training camp. All-Star Basketball has made great strides in its three years of existence thanks to a large degree to the backing from people in the news media. On behalf of our public relations staff, myself and the Nebraska Coaches Association, thanks again for the interest you have shown in our game and the support you have given it. Wally McNaught, All-Star Game Director

Dear Editor: Wakefield Once again the county and state fairs are over and the 4-H youth are looking ahead and preparing for 1972. We wonder how many people realize these kids not only represent themselves or their club at the fairs but also Wayne County. To come to the point, we were very much disappointed in the lack of local interest shown at the annual Wayne County fair sale. Upon talking to some of the merchants we found some were uninformed and did not understand the fair sale. But we also read that local merchants bought calves in some surrounding counties but never even attended the Wayne County sale. In a town this size no one person should ever have to buy more than one animal (except pens of five) and this should not be an indebtedness to anyone. Figuring some of the prices paid at our sale this year we found an average price paid the youngster above the market price was about $20 to $25. This is relatively low compared to surrounding counties. Most of the youngsters work very hard on their own and the representatives Wayne County very well at the local and state level. Being 4-H leaders we feel our kids need more encouragement from those they represent. These are a good bunch of kids and most of them represent the best at the sale more than most people realize. ## Rewriting Criminal Code Expected to Improve Text

LINCOLN—Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer calls it "a tremendous project to bring Nebraska's substantive criminal law into an orderly form." What it amounts to is a whole new criminal code for the state—new definitions of crimes, new methods for assigning penalties for violations, new wording of acceptable defenses for acts which otherwise would be crimes. The idea, according to Meyer, isn't to create new crimes, just to put the present criminal statutes into more efficient language. Research into the present statutes and possible revisions is being conducted by a retired state supreme court judge, Edward Carter Sr. As Carter completes a portion of the rewrite job, he submits it to an advisory committee which includes senators and district judges, attorneys and five legislators. They review it and, as Meyer phrased it, "brush out the policy and legal questions involved, after which they refer it back to Judge Carter for necessary revisions. This is the preliminary phase and Meyer said the judge is ahead of schedule because he "is a man who gets things done."

Carter is to be finished some time next spring. At that time, the attorney general said, the draft approved by the advisory committee will be printed and distributed across the state for reaction. There will be no attempt, Meyer said, to present anything to the 1972 Legislature. Nearly a year will be used to allow the public and the legal profession to study the judge's efforts. The 1973 Legislature, however, can expect the proposals will bill form. At that time, hearings will be conducted by the senators on the bills. Meyer said the changes to be proposed will be scheduled to become operative about April 1, 1974—or a year after the Legislature has acted on the other bills. This, he said, will provide a new opportunity to get reaction and will allow time for briefings of court officials, lawyers, law enforcement officers and the public. If any oversights are turned up during this period, the attorney general said, they can be corrected by the 1974 Legislature before the effective date of the new statutes. Carter's work is being based upon a Model Penal Code prepared after many years' effort by the American Law Institute. Meyer said, "Forty-two other states—either have completed or are changing similar revisions of their criminal statutes. One change suggested in the model code deals with the penalties for crimes—fines, prison sentences and the like. The way Nebraska's law now reads, each statute which sets forth a crime also carries the penalty for a violation. Under the proposed concept, there would be classes of penalties. The first-degree murder statute, for example, would call for a Class I penalty, which might be death or life imprisonment. Each class would have a range which a judge would use in deciding on a penalty for a specific violation. Meyer said the project doesn't involve procedural criminal law, but he would like to have another project on that subject, he said. The Nebraska Bar Association, he said, is the body which should undertake that.

Teacher Ratings Coming School started throughout Nebraska with many districts still uncertain about what to pay their teachers. The teachers, according to the Nebraska State Education Association, got left out in the cold by original rulings on the wage-price freeze. The NSEA and national teachers' groups—claimed contracts agreed to last spring for work to be performed during this school year ought to be valid. But guidelines issued out of Washington didn't seem to agree with one exception. The NSEA said its research of the anti-inflation effort indicated all the teachers in a school district are eligible for higher salaries if at least one person covered by a basic salary agreement worked under the terms of the agreement prior to Aug. 15. NSEA Executive Secretary John Lynch said he didn't know how many districts would be affected by that, but he guessed maybe half of the teachers in Nebraska might become eligible for the higher pay. Coaches, band instructors, agricultural and home economics teachers and others often show up at the schools before mid-August to begin work on the new year, he said. In cases where they did this year—performing duties for which they are to be paid under the salary agreements for the new school year—all the other persons covered by the agreement also qualify for higher salaries.

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

My name - John Coffelt, Home - Minden, Iowa. Profession - cattle feeder, buyer and poor farmer. Problem - write a newspaper column. Reason - Eddie Collins found the technicalities of developing his new stocker-feeder television program in the western states required his personal attention. (That means he found an excellent excuse to return to his home in Montana and friends.)

He asked if I could ride trail on his radio and television programs in the Midwest for him for a few days during his absence. I've long and serious thought as to what problem I could write about that would be of interest to you and finally picked one of the biggest - Ed Collins. Here we go!

I have to go back to 1962, on a cold day in December, when direct buying was just beginning to find a toe-hold in the cattle industry. Had a trucker call (at that time the direct buyers were using them for bird-dogs, then dropped them after they made a contact) and asked if he could bring a buyer out to look at cattle. Told him I shipped to terminals and it would be a waste of time. They came anyway.

Ed arrived and within 5 minutes we were at each other's throats. He told me I was stupid if I did not sell him my 1,200 pound steers for $22 per cwt. with a 3% shrink. (They had cost 27.75 at No. 760 yearlings). I ran him off the place and managed without help to sell the same cattle four months later on the terminal market weighing 1,400 pounds for 16.75.

A few years later, we had another falling-out. He needed cattle. I asked 20.50 for a load of Highlander-Hereford cross steers. He bid $20. The Omaha top then was $20.25. After four hours of bitter argument we agreed that I would sell cattle for the same price per 100-weight that my neighbor - (Bob Anderson, McClelland, Iowa) received for his choice Herefords.

His dad was a conductor on the Northern Pacific Railroad and Ed worked on railroad crews as a fireman. Summers and spare time he worked as a ranch hand in Montana. A fair golfer for a country boy, he captured the junior golf championship in Montana. Attended St. Thomas Academy on a basketball scholarship. Turned into a top athlete in both football and basketball. Then starting at Montana State College in Bozeman, Mont. Next four years he gave to his country, a them.

Next Georgetown University, Washington, D. C. Foreign Service school, worked for Sears Inc. - sold meat to high class restaurants, girls' schools, (that figures) and country clubs. Biggest disappointment had a train load of steers sold on a contract in Montana and could not deliver them! Deal-off.

Had a job with Swift International to go to San Paos, Brazil, to manage a ranch. Mother ill, could not go. Employed by Armour and sent to Sioux City. Bought calves, etc., and learned packing business.

Transferred to Houston, Texas, as a trouble-shooter at the Armour plant. Decided to go on own and shipped cows and bulls to South America. Bought cowboys and calves from drought ridden West Texas and shipped to the Midwest.

Returned to Red Oak, Iowa, as a direct fat cattle buyer for Iowa Beef Packers on an agreement to buy on a commission basis. They wanted him to buy on a salary. Resigned, bought direct independently for Cudahy and Spencer Pack.

Examined a farm show and tractor pull at Sidney, Iowa. Banned out for ten straight days. Bombed out (lost fanny). To placate radio station at Atlantic, Iowa, for debt owed for advertising, he agreed to do a cattle marketing program for several weeks. Good response.

Today the program has grown by leaps and bounds beyond Ed's wildest dreams - (180 radio stations and 29 television stations with the help of Al Nelson's excellent cartoons).

He is a hard-nose that loves a good fight with more knowledge of the livestock business than anyone I have ever met. Oh, by the way - if you'll give him a chance, you'll find him to be a good friend.

Equip all of your farm vehicles with a fire extinguisher. This small investment could save you the price of an expensive piece of machinery.

Contribution to Safety Proven

"If even one person can be saved from accidental death or injury by reading this we'll be very happy."

University of Nebraska - Lincoln agricultural engineering graduate student Dale Baker commented this week. Needless deaths and injuries or damage to life and property on the farm can be prevented, he said, if the farmer will install "roll-over" protection on his tractor.

This was proven recently, he noted, in a mishap at the Northeast Research Station near Concord, as the man involved credits his life to roll bar protection.

Roll-over accidents, Baker explained, are those in which the tractor - often while traveling on a grade, becomes unbalanced, tips and rolls - usually fatally crushing the operator.

Investigating the Station accident as part of a study aimed at designing equipment that will prevent such mishaps, Baker emphasized that because of the roll bar and seat belt safeguards, no damage was done to the operator or the machine.

According to Baker, the farmer can equip himself with adequate defense to avoid this type of injury through the use of protective bars (tubular Unshaped steel frames), sunshades or tractor cabs.

Eleven tractor upsets have occurred in Nebraska this year, and of these, Baker reported seven to be fatal and two "serious." None had the safety protection, he added.

Roll Bar
Contributing, he pointed out that of the two non-fatal accidents, one man escaped injury "purely through chance" and the NU employee because he was shielded by a frame.

Statistics show that on a national level, machinery-related accidents account for 42 percent of all injuries and deaths among farmers. Nearly half of these accidents involved tractor upsets.

Safety Pays in Farm Operations
No farmer or rancher can afford not to have all the protection he can get.

Even though a farm or ranch presents a unique environment, many safety basics called on by industry can be applied. Accidents killed nearly 115,000 people in the U. S. last year at a cost of $25 billion. This is especially unfortunate because persons involved are needlessly being killed or left suffering. More COUNTY AGENT, page 5

OKAY BOY'S, HERE'S SOME REPUTATION CATTLE RIGHT OFF THE WESTERN SLOPES!!

On the terminal market that day. (Ed expected the price to be $20.25).

Bob hit a barn burner on a red hot market, and received $22.50. Ed honored the contract and then I decided maybe I had better take another look at this Montana born horse trader.

Over the years from conversation - mostly argument - I picked up the following information and I believe it will be of interest to you as to why he has become the largest farm and Navy pilot during World War II. (Here I must skip briefly for his escapades - night life - in the Navy work more than fill a book, let alone a newspaper column).

After the war, he returned to Montana State and met Winifred who was working in a veterinary research lab. Order-bought cows for her dad in Wyoming. Ed said they were the worst cattle he had ever had on the place and kept them hidden in the back of the ranch so as not to be embarrassed when the neighbors saw Leading companies are sold on accident prevention. It slashes insurance costs, cuts time losses and keeps production levels up above and beyond humane considerations. These advantages are also applicable to farms.

The farmer or rancher can't afford to omit proven accident prevention practices from his operation. Recognition of this fact and action taken, is a fine way to support National Farm Safety Week.

Yard & Garden Tips—
Q. An apple orchard with apples of a late-maturing variety has been in a regular spray schedule all summer. How long should the spraying be continued?
A. An all-purpose spray can be continued up until two weeks before the apples are ripe and ready to pick or at least until it is close to frost time.
Q. Should azaleas and dogwood be fertilized now?
A. At this time it is best not to fertilize anything in the garden, with the exception of grass. Fertilization now is apt to force late growth which will lead to winter kill.
Q. When should the butternut squash be picked and how should it be stored?
A. The squash should not be harvested until it is fully mature. Maturity can be identified by a fading of the green stripes and the squash turning to a deep tan color. The local county extension agent will have a circular on the "Home Storage of Fruits and Vegetables" that will give information on proper storage methods.
Q. Should a newly sodded lawn be aerated this fall?
A. The lawn need not be aerated this fall and probably won't require it for about two years.

Seniors Urged To Apply Soon For AF Academy

High school seniors interested in entering The United States Air Force Academy upon graduation are reminded to apply for a nomination as soon as possible, said Lt. Colonel F.H. Mares the Academy liaison officer in the Nebraska First Congressional District area.

Qualified states senators and representatives are interested in nominating successful high school students to be considered for Academy appointments from their states and congressional districts. A good scholastic standing, participation in extra-curricular activities, and physical fitness are the most important factors considered by congressmen in choosing their nominees.

Col. Mares is a member of the Air Force Reserve, not an active duty, who represents the Academy in high schools in this area. To obtain information about the Air Force Academy, a student or guidance counselor may contact him by writing Lt. Col. F.H. Mares, 1722 East 19th St., Fremont, Nebraska 68025 or by calling 402-721-9553.

A copy of the Air Force Academy catalog may be obtained by writing to the Director of Admissions, United States Air Force Academy, Colo. 80840.
