Autos Play Important Role in Wayne County

Automobiles are playing an ever-expanding role in the daily life of Wayne County residents. Today, as a result of the steady increase in car ownership in the area, only a relatively small proportion of local families are now without cars.

They show that Wayne County's auto population is at a high level. As of the beginning of this year there were no less than 4,230 cars in operation locally, equivalent to 131 per 100 families.

Wayne County, people tend to purchase their living standards, particularly with respect to the family car. The growth in the auto population has been of benefit to service stations in the local area.

Age of High Risk

Figures recently released by the National Transportation Safety Board, covering a study of 15-to-24-year-old drivers, are enough to make parents cringe when their offspring use the family car.

Drivers constitute the greatest hazard to survival which American youth must pass successfully to reach adulthood.

NORTHEAST EXTENSION Notes

by Myrtle Anderson

Have you analyzed your home lighting plan lately? Is it adequate? Good lighting plays an important role in helping achieve beauty, comfort and safety in the home surroundings. With the shorter days coming and more time spent indoors, the house lights become more necessary.

Apartments or mobil homes present an unusual problem in lighting since permanent lighting is either impossible to change or too expensive to build into a temporary residence. Portable fixtures, wisely chosen, can enhance the beauty of a well-decorated apartment.

By fastening self-ballasted fluorescent channels under kitchen cabinets you can put light on countertops where you need it in preparing food. Here, warm white deluxe fluorescent lamps are recommended.

A small room can be visually enlarged by lighting the walls. This may be done by building a fluorescent of incandescent cornice or valance. Cornices extend along the ceiling covering the entire wall, and valances extend the length of the drapery.

The study or sewing area needs to be well lighted to avoid eye strain and thus discomfort. Begin by covering the surrounding surfaces in light colors. This may be accomplished by using this area as a tackboard as well. Then this area may be lighted by using a Better Light, Better Sight, (BLPS) study lamp, or a wall shelf using at least one 40 watt deluxe warm or cool fluorescent lamp positioned toward the front of the shelf. Be sure this is well shielded from the eyes and allows for some upward light.

Lighting at both the top and bottom of stairways is essential for safety.

Health Tips

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska State Medical Association:

Halloween is one of those times when extra precautions are needed to guard the health and safety of children.

Motorists should especially be on the lookout, since many children will be on their way to Halloween parties or will be out trick-or-treating.

Parents should remind their children about the dangers of running into the street. In addition, parents should make sure that every child wears light-colored clothing after dark. Children should not wear masks which restrict their vision.

For the Halloween party, be sure that decorations and costumes are fire-proof or fire-resistant if you plan to use candles or torches.

When the trick-or-treat groups come to your door, hand out packaged sweets, not homemade foods. By the same token, instruct your children to eat only commercial foods from unbroken packages. Homemade foods and unpackaged foods can be disease carriers.

Skidding accidents cause 10,000 deaths yearly. Knowing how to control a skid can be a life saver, adds Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies. Never jam on the brakes or step down on the accelerator. VA Q & A -

Q—I draw compensation for a 10 per cent service-connected disability, and have been granted a waiver on my GI life insurance premiums. Recently I received an insurance dividend check. Since I do not pay anything into the insurance fund, I am wondering whether I should return the check.

A—Don't return the check. You are entitled to the dividend. Under the waiver provision of your insurance policy, the insurance continues in force as though premiums are being paid.

Q—I am being transferred to another location and job and am selling my home on which a buyer is assuming my GI loan. Can I be released from liability?

A—Yes, if the loan is current, the purchaser agrees by contract to buy your property and assume your liability, and the Veterans Administration accepts him as a good credit risk. The release from liability does not mean that your GI home loan entitlement can be restored.

Q—I was just discharged from the Army after serving four years, part of it in Viet Nam. Can I get a GI home loan and go to school under the GI Bill at the same time?

A—Yes. There is no bar against participating in each of these programs at the same time providing income and credit requirements can be met.

Feed a hungry lawn this Fall!

To fertilize your lawn this Fall we recommend Scotts TURF BUILDER. It is the prolonged-release fertilizer that gives up its nutrients only as the grass needs them. So there's no spindly surge growth to cause extra mowing. Instead, TURF BUILDER makes your lawn grow thicker, greener and sturdier. TURF BUILDER is a pleasure to use — it's clean, odorless and light in weight. This week end would be a great time

Fall is Nature's time to plant grass seed!

Why not beef-up your lawn by having a "seed-in"?

Best way to add new life to a skimpy lawn is to plant grass seed right into the existing turf. A dependable choice would be FAMILY which, over the years, has been Scotts best selling brand. This is a blend of bluegrass and fine fescues that does well both in full sun and partial shade.

People Ask Us--

QUESTION: Does "medical payment" coverage on an auto insurance policy include funeral expenses?

ANSWER: With certain exceptions payments of $500 to $1000 for funeral expenses are included in "medical payment" in auto insurance policies. These payments are made to the name of those insured or resident relatives of the household if death results within a year to any one of them injured in an auto accident. In addition, other persons not related but riding with his permission and in his care are also insured.

narrow or tend to disappear. This will happen if a real threat of delivery of cattle in fulfillment of contracts exists. Within the last year there have been significant deliveries of cattle made to fulfill contracts. Plans to make Omaha, the prime delivery point for live cattle futures contracts instead of Chicago will also increase the threat of delivery and hopefully improve price relationships as contracts mature. In addition to some of the above problems, the live hog futures market was also plagued by a lack of interest. The resulting low volume of trade made it difficult to buy and sell a significant number of contracts without adversely affecting the price level. While the volume of trading in live hogs continues to remain low relative to cattle futures, some increase in interest has been shown.

As with most things, livestock futures markets don't work perfectly or as well as we would like. Yet it would be wrong to conclude that they can't be used effectively. To use these market tools right, the livestockman must be a good manager who has done his home work. He must use them with discretion and the right time may not occur too often.

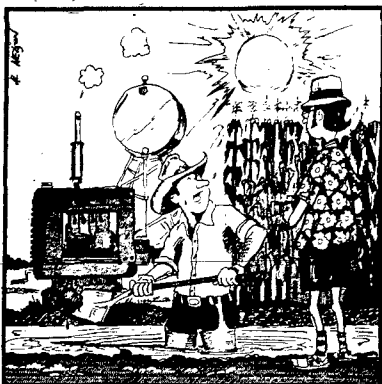

Hedging - Pro and Con
This brief analysis of Livestock Futures markets is provided by Michael Turner, Extension Economist at the University of Nebraska.

"Recently there have been numerous questions regarding livestock futures markets, specifically the live cattle and hog markets. Basically these inquiries have questioned the practical use of livestock futures markets by producers.

"Dr. Glenn Grimes, University of Missouri Economist recently reported on a study of the profitability of hedging fed cattle. His study showed that if a cattle feeder had fed cattle every month for five years and hedged each lot it would have resulted in an average loss per head of about $5.50. Grimes assumed each lot of cattle would be on feed for 120 days. Not of the story, the cattle feeder cannot as a matter of general practice systematically hedge all cattle and expect to profit from the feeding enterprise. Opportunities to hedge at a profit occur only occasionally. By carefully comparing the futures market with the cost of production the alert cattle feeder can identify those opportunities where a profit can be secured through hedging.

"It also appears that too many cattlemen are using futures quotations as a guide in buying feeder or replacement cattle. Thus a high futures price can result in a bidding-up-of-the-feeder-cattle market. Unfortunately a high futures market price for a distant contract month is no guarantee that the cash price will be equally high at that later date. Past history has demonstrated that the futures market is not a reliable price forecasting tool.

"A third problem encountered in hedging in live cattle has been the price relationship between the futures price and the cash price as futures contracts mature. For a hedge to work it is necessary for price differences between the cash and the futures market to

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

Modern math has a definite advantage. It prepares a person for the needed philosophy to accept computers and those who operate them. Doing mother cannot visualize her offspring as the economic advisor to the President as Junior buries himself in mountains of paper while dividing 12 into 144. From this system evolves your cattle, pig and crop reports in triplicate.

In 1968 I had watched our Cousin Orville - Lawyer O. Freeman, THAT IS - ex-agriculture secretary, talk the American farmer into overproducing by his tear-jerking plea that we must feed the world. We did with $1 corn and $1.20 wheat. At the port, that is, I saw 52c high moisture corn in Illinois that Fall. That winter we saw thousands of farm sales. We failed to feed our own.

I watched cattle and feed reports tear the innards out of sound markets. Watched pigs drop $14 a hundred from January to mid-September in 1970 on one-and-one-half million less slaughtered hogs than 1969. Watched corn prices jump 40c on blight rumors while the ag. Department used more tricks than Houdini to squelch increasing prices.

So I was skeptical of Secretary of Agriculture, Clifford Hardin's plea for increased corn production. Later I listened to the price-producing rumors spread by corn seed companies. Most falsehoods originated by whispers in men's wash rooms and spoke of seed crop failures in Hawaii, in South America and in Central America. But seed varieties, thought outdated, were dug out of abandoned warehouses and marketed at gigantic profits.

Crop pathologists, once assigned as office mates of college custodians, became the spokesman for the future of the world. Their gress pronouncements of doom palled even the environmentalists. While none were given the White House latitude of Henry Kissinger, pathologists did command a proto-plate setting higher than ambassadors and senators. But just below winning football coaches.

The American farmer answered the call and planted a record crop. The old con game . . . three shells and one pea. The seed grew and for the first time in history crop pathologists had a summer supervision job to another. From Pennsylvania to Montana, from Mexico to Winnipeg. College professors who wrote formulas from Beckman to Brewster Hall learned how to fill out their first travel vouchers. But what they saw was disastrous. Not to the corn crop but to their future. Who needed their services if the southern leaf blight failed to materialize?

The effort of the 1971 American farmer produced five billion, 400 million bushels of corn, now worth 90c at the turnrow, or four billion, 960 million dollars. In 1970 he had a crop failure. True. But Mom, $1.40 times four and a half billion bushels, finds six billion dollars bumped. From a crop failure to a fiscal failure. All in one farm program.

USDA urges Uncle Sam to export more and more and more. I would say "great" . . . providing it is at a profitable level. Also, why not arrange USDA employees' salaries to fluctuate with crop and animal prices?

Also, the national carlot beef trade four weeks ago fell $2.50 per cwt., strictly because the USDA put out five consecutive erroneous daily beef slaughter reports at 132,000 a day. Then released the week's kill at 699,000!! No wholesaler would then bid. Why should they? The packers had to bend to losses of $10-$15 a head.

The next week on Tuesday, the USDA made a correction of 17,000. Two days later, the second revision . . . 51,000 head!! Imagine 51,000! Corrected, true but too late. The American cattle feeders lost $15 a head in actual inventory value. Some $60 million dollars. Was it intentional? So who benefits??

Will the cattlemen feed grossly more stock? No, not as long as Besse and Ferdinand continue to have singles. The U.S. cattle population is subject to slow developing changes. Then feed more hogs. Great idea except the profit incentive is already testing negative. More hogs would mean an inability to pay the trucking.

But the corn surplus does exist. So the solution - you guessed it - export! And this is a pity. Imagine, the American farmer producing a crop so unprotected price-wise that it can be shipped to depressed nations. Not a finished product - a raw material! Has agriculture grown that important? The USDA continually brags of the fact that 3 billion dollars in grain is shipped overseas.

Question is, why such reports from those supposedly helping agriculture? If Uncle Sam exports 51,000 head on the slaughter they daily inspect, how far do they miss those reports with probability factors using modern math?

Beavers of prehistoric Nebraska were larger than the modern black bear, reaching a length up to 7 1/2 feet.

Dakota City Housewife To Seek Senate Seat

A 35-year-old Dakota City housewife and mother intends to be the first woman to represent the 12th DISTRICT in the Nebraska Legislature.

Mrs. Harley Schmadeke announced earlier this week that she intends to run for the office of state senator in the spring primaries. The office is presently held by Elmer Wallway of Emerson.

A Nebraskan for 15 years, and a former resident of Wayne, where both she and her husband attended Wayne State College, Mrs. Schmadeke stated that she was prompted to run for the office by her dissatisfaction with the present inefficiency. "A vigorous enough representation in Lincoln" she continued, "we need to have our voice heard."

The past six years Mrs. Schmadeke has campaigned actively for the restoration of Crystal Lake; has taken an active interest in city and county levels, in the environmental problems confronted by Northeast Nebraska residents; has visited both Washington, D. C. and Lincoln seeking to improve recreational facilities for this area.

In working with various environmental problems in the area, Mrs. Schmadeke has discovered that some legislation being passed is worded in such a way that it is not enforceable. Instead of creating new problems for the city and county officials, Mrs. Schmadeke would hope to see that present legislation is amended to fit today's problems.

Concerning taxes, the candidate noted, "I think if priorities are carefully checked, the next legislature should be able to stop or at least slow down the acceleration of spending. If in the future we must increase taxes, I feel it should come in the form of an increase in state sales tax and income tax rather than putting additional burden on the property owner."

Mrs. Schmadeke, and her husband, who is program coordinator for the secondary special education program for Woodbury County and the Sioux City Public Schools, are presently serving

Mrs. Harley Schmadeke

Schmades have three children, Terri, Heidi and Dennis.

"I feel women can successfully combine homemaking and a political career," Elaine explains. "I feel that women sometimes take a more direct and down-to-earth approach... that women should take a more active stand politically either on the local support level or in seeking an elected office."

"By announcing early," she went on, "I hope other candidates will follow my lead in getting out and meeting the voters." Against what she terms "fence-post candidates" whose only effort to contact the public is through the use of posters, Mrs. Schmadeke intends to talk to the people and find out what they want.

And if elected she promises to go to Lincoln to keep a close and watchful eye on the quality rather than the quantity of bills being passed.

Mrs. Schmadeke intends to file for the non-political position in the Nebraska Unicameral Legislature during the next few weeks. Her first test politically will be in the May 9 primaries.
