

Open House Sunday at Villa Wayne

The results of a project which began 4 1/2 years ago can be seen by the general public Sunday afternoon from 1 to 3 p.m. when Villa Wayne, low-rent housing for senior citizens, has its open house.

In the event of inclement weather Sunday, the open house will be postponed until after Christmas, possibly until spring.

There are eight buildings, of frame and brick veneer construction, in the Villa Wayne complex.

Twenty-three units are "rental apartments" available to single persons and 15 units are designed for couples.

Each unit consists of a living room, bedroom, bath, kitchen-dinette with range and refrigerator and closet space.

Focal point of the project is the community building, facing Dearborn between Fourth and Fifth. The community building has a spacious activities room, with kitchen facilities available to tenants for parties and other gatherings.

Donations for the activities room are welcomed from individuals and organizations to further furnish the room with such suggested items as a TV set, lamps, stands, etc.

Also housed in the community building are the office of the executive director, Mrs. Elsie Echtenkamp, a laundry room with washers and dryers, a maintenance room and two public restrooms.

Mrs. Echtenkamp was appointed executive director in February. Her office is open each morning, Monday through Friday, from 8 until noon.

Villa Wayne, is a publicly-owned, non-profit project and, as such, is tax exempt. However, payments in lieu of taxes in an amount not exceeding 10 per cent of shelter rent are paid to the City of Wayne to compensate for essential municipal services.

An individual to be eligible for tenancy, must qualify as the head of a household, be at least 62 years of age or handicapped, and have an annual income not in excess of $3,200 for a single person or $3,800 for a couple. Rent is computed at 25 per cent of income and includes all utilities except telephone. An additional charge is made for air-conditioners and freezers.

Management of the project is conducted by the Wayne Housing Authority. George Thorbeck is chairman of the Authority and Frank Pedersen is vice-chairman. Other Housing Authority members are William McFarland, Howard Witt and George Macklin.

The initial step in the Villa Wayne project was taken April 25, 1967, when Dr. William Koerber, Wayne mayor at that time, and the City Council appointed Thorbeck, Pedersen, Robert

Two Businesses at Allen Robbed; Suspect Arrested

According to a report from Dixon County Sheriff Dean Chase, two Allen businesses, Lindahl's General Store, owned by Lawrence Lindahl, and McCord's Garage, owned by Robert McCord, were the scene of robbery and vandalism sometime early Sunday morning. Vandalism was also reported at the Allen School House.

A 20-year-old Allen man was arrested in connection with the crimes, and charges were expected to be filed sometime Wednesday. Witnesses reported seeing the suspect in the area late Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

It is not yet known if other persons may be involved. Entry was gained at both Lindahl's and McCord's by breaking rear door windows. Items at both places were strewn about, and merchandise, estimated to be worth $300 and $500, was taken from the firms, including shotgun shells, insulated coveralls, insulated boots and other sporting goods items from the general store, and two, 12-volt car batteries, two mufflers and several boxes of sparkplugs from the garage.

A plate glass door window and five lower floor windows were broken at the schoolhouse, which apparently was not entered. Investigation is still underway.

Wayne Schools Earn Physical Fitness Honors

The Wayne Elementary and Middle Schools have been named as 1971-72 President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports Demonstration Centers, an announcement received by the schools from Capt. James A. Lovell, USN, consultant to the President on physical fitness and sports.

The schools were among those selected by the Nebraska Department of Education as exemplifying the highest standards of physical fitness programs in Nebraska.

Only three other Nebraska Schools were named demonstration centers—Grand Island, North Platte and Geneva.

500 Children Expected To Attend Annual Party

Well over last year's 500 children are expected to attend the annual Christmas party scheduled for this Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Wayne City Auditorium. The event, sponsored for the third straight year by Tau Kappa Epsilon, Kappa Delta Gamma and Order of Diana, is for area children, aged three to 10.

The program will include carnival type games, with ribbon prizes, a 30-minute movie, four cartoons, a skit, "The Night Before Christmas," the breaking of pinatas, awarding of prizes for the winter wonderland art contest conducted in the Wayne schools, and visits with Santa Claus.

Lunch of hot dogs, potato chips and pop will be served at noon. Plenty of adult supervision is planned so that even three-year-olds will have a safe and happy time while parents are free to Christmas shop.

Driver Charged with Hit, Run Accidents at Hoskins

Rodney Drews, 23, of Pierce, was charged in Wayne County Court Monday on three counts of leaving the scene of an accident, one count involving a personal injury, following accidents on the main street of Hoskins at 12:05 Sunday morning.

State Trooper Harold Nielsen of Norfolk arrested Drews in his parked car behind a Norfolk apartment house at 3 a.m. Sunday.

Drews reportedly was northbound on the Hoskins main street when he hit the left rear fender of a stalled vehicle owned by Wayne H. O'Neal of Pierce.

The Drews car then glanced off to the west side of the street and struck a car in which David F. Stolp of Omaha and Glenda Day of Route 2, Stanton, were about to enter.

Stolp was knocked to the ground, unconscious, and taken by the Hoskins Rescue Unit to the Lutheran Hospital in Norfolk, where he was treated for injuries and dismissed.

The Stolp vehicle was pushed into another car, owned by Leland D. Anderson of Winfield. Witnesses said that Drews left the scene of the accidents and headed north out of Hoskins at a high rate of speed. Some of those witnesses supplied the State Patrol with the license number of Drews' car.

Drews was jailed at Norfolk and then returned to the Wayne County Jail. He posted a $300 bond and a hearing date will be set later.

Policies Adopted

New policies concerning married pregnant students were adopted by the board. The policy on married students states that those persons shall be afforded the same basic educational opportunities as any other student and that participation in co-curricular activities will not be prohibited, but neither will it be encouraged.

A pregnant student is directed to notify the principal as soon as the condition is known and shall, within a reasonable length of time, submit to the principal a written statement from a licensed physician, attesting to the advisability of her completing the current school quarter or semester.

In the event the student's pregnancy is expected to reach term near the end of the senior year, approval to participate in commencement exercises must include written permission from a licensed physician.

The previous school policy prohibited married students from participation in any co-curricular activities and students who became pregnant were asked to withdraw from school as soon as their condition was determined and encouraged to complete their course work by correspondence.

A diploma was awarded after successful completion of that course but pregnant students were not allowed to participate in commencement activities.

Extend Bus Route

An additional six miles is to be extended to the school south bus route, along Highway 15. That action was taken following a request by Harold Guthrie, who has land

Girl-Boy Ratio Entices Australia-Bound Youth

Christmas in Australia may well be the theme of Steve DeKalb's first letters home. DeKalb, 20, of Wayne, will be leaving Omaha Dec. 20 for Sidney, Australia, to "seek his fortune."

After a two-day layover in San Francisco, and a total of 16 air hours, DeKalb will arrive in Sidney, where he will meet an uncle, Howard DeKalb, who has been there about 10 years.

The flight over also will include a two-hour stop in Honolulu and another two-hour stopover in Tahiti. Passage is costing the young Wayne man $628.70. He is allowed 44 pounds of baggage with him on the plane at no extra charge, but because shipping charges mount rapidly at $2 per pound, he won't be taking a lot of worldly treasures with him.

Concerning employment in Australia, DeKalb has contacted United Artists Proprietary Limited, who have assured him they can use his talents, possibly in illustrating government immigration pamphlets. DeKalb was put in touch with the government-operated art agency by the Department of Interior Labor and Services who supplied him with a listing of job availabilities.

Steve DeKalb

Among the things prompting him to head for Australia, DeKalb noted with a slight grin, is the girl-boy ratio (2:1). "Also," he added, "the climate is comparable to that of L.A., with 342 sunny days per year." He has also been assured that there are seven jobs per person in Australia.

The Australian Consulate General in New York has prepared DeKalb for lower wages, along with a lower cost of living, 10 paid public holidays per year, free medical care, government housing, attractive retirement and pension plans, and other conditions to be found in Socialism.

He does not expect housing to be a problem, and has hopes of running into another immigrant with whom he might collaborate on solving the problems which confront a man in a new country.

DeKalb, is the son of Mrs. Shirley Darguz, Wayne, is a 1969 graduate of Wayne High School, where he studied art two years. He had an additional year of college art, one semester at Yankee College, and a semester at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln.

He did art work for the high school annual, has worked for Love Signs in Norfolk, and has done some free lance sign painting. He has also worked for the Wayne Herald.

In the event he becomes homesick for an American face and accent, DeKalb can look up another Wayneite, Pearl Hansen, who went to Australia in August on a government-sponsored program for teachers.

Old Violin

Edwin Emmerly, left, of Emerson, presents an old violin to State Historical Society Director Marvin F. Kivett in Lincoln. The violin was acquired by members of the Emmerly family in Sweden. Edwin came to the United States from Sweden in 1912. A label inside the violin reads "Antonius Stradivarius Cremonensis Faciebat Anno 1712." Kivett reported that the family heirloom would be carefully preserved as a gift to the state. He also indicated that research would be carried out to determine its relationship to the famous violin maker Antonio Stradivari of Italy who made an estimated 1,116 instruments between 1665 and 1737, the year of his death at age 93. Sen. Elmer Waltey of Emerson coordinated the donation to the Society.

Diabetics Can Lead Normal Lives by Early Detection

LINCOLN—Though major breakthroughs have occurred in the last 50 years which permit diabetics to lead normal lives, individuals should still have periodic checks to determine diabetic conditions, according to Dr. Roger Mason, McCook, president of the Nebraska Medical Association.

"Many times, diabetes is not detected until middle age, the age group in which it is most common," says Dr. Mason. "Cases have been known in a nine-year-old boy and a 99 year-old woman. Diabetes can develop at any time of life."

Dr. Mason points out that those most likely to have diabetes are relatives of diabetics and people who are overweight or over 45 years of age.

Common symptoms are excessive thirst, frequent urination, constant hunger, loss of weight, itching, tendency to tire easily, changes in vision, and slow healing of cuts and scratches.

Before 1921, children who developed diabetes died within a few months to a year or two and adult diabetics lived on a starvation diet, but with shortened lives.

Since the discoverers of insulin, diabetics can live normal lives. Research continues in detection and control.

Dr. Mason points out that the synthesis of human insulin announced several years ago, was the first human protein ever artificially created.

This allows scientists to attack the problem in insulin resistance and insulin antibody production

All Aliens Must Report Addresses

R. C. Williams of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service stated that the period within which aliens must report their addresses is almost at hand.

The month of January has been set for the address reporting period. All aliens in the United States, with few exceptions, must report their addresses to the government during that period.

Williams said that forms with which to make the report will be available at all post offices and offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service during the month of January.

He urges all aliens to comply with the reporting requirements, as willful failure to do so may lead to serious consequences.

What do you do with life insurance dividends?

Many people just take theirs in cash. But did you know there are other options? You can apply dividends against any premium (if the balance is also paid), use them to buy additional paid-up insurance, or leave them on deposit—withdrawable at any time—to accumulate at a guaranteed rate of interest. Which would be most advantageous for you?

Any time you have questions like these, or any others about your life insurance, feel free to get in touch with me. I'm here to serve you.

Unfinished Business Face State Legislators

LINCOLN—Just around the corner is a Nebraska first—a legislative session with a head start. When the state senators convene Jan. 4, they'll find 109 bills pending on first reading...

Under the terms of that amendment to the Nebraska Constitution, the legislators meet for 90-working-day sessions on the odd-numbered years and for 60 meeting days in the even-numbered years.

Head Start

In addition to having bills "on the board" and ready for consideration—even passage—on opening day, the 1972 session will have another type of head start. Budget bills usually are among the last to be considered by a legislative session.

Overtime?

The limits, however, aren't absolute. In the senators find they simply cannot finish their work within either the 90 or 60 day periods, they can go into overtime—but it takes agreement by 40 of the 49 legislators to get that accomplished.

That means there is a maximum of 490 self-generated bills which can be offered next year. The governor still may have bills introduced for him and committees may offer legislation.

Drop in Proposals

But the outpouring of legislative proposals common to the past few sessions is expected to be drastically reduced. In the 1971 session, there were 1,077 separate pieces of legislation put in the hopper.

There also is to be another change from tradition in the 1972 session. An electric voting board which had been in use since the two-house days is being replaced by an electronic model capable of giving instant totals on votes.

The Agent's Angle

By Harold Ingalls

Livestock need an ice-free water supply. A layer of ice in the water tank may cause problems for all animals, but is especially critical for nursing livestock.

15 pounds of milk a day would need 75 pounds of water just to produce that milk. A high-producing dairy cow may need 200 to 400 pounds, or as much as 40 gallons of water daily. The five pounds of water per pound of milk does not include water needed by the cow for her own daily health. Dairy cattle should have all-day access to water. The greater the access, the less chance there will be for a reduction in milk production. A frozen water fountain or tank can affect milk production, the young animal's health and eventually the mother's own health. Therefore, daily checks of watering facilities are important. Water intake is also influenced by the type of feed being consumed. Dry hay or grass require more water than silage or haylage.

Slightly warm water in zero weather helps encourage consumption and reduces the possibility of lowering body temperature. If ice-cold water is consumed, an animal must use feed units to produce body heat. If warm water is available, the feed units can be used for body maintenance.

The need for adequate water supply applies to hogs, sheep, poultry and any other animals, as well as cattle. A ready source of palatable water free of contamination (from bacteria, minerals or potentially toxic materials) should be stressed.

As an outgrowth of the recent announcement concerning a longer withdrawal period for diethylstilbestrol (DES) in cattle and sheep rations, the United States Department of Agriculture plans to implement a mandatory certification program for marketing cattle and sheep by Nov. 15. This report comes from University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension livestock specialist Dr. Paul Guver.

The proposed seven-day withdrawal for DES was published by the Food and Drug Administration in the Federal Register Oct. 23. This time period is an extension of the 48-hour withdrawal regulations previously in effect.

In the certification program Guver said that feeders marketing cattle and sheep will be required to sign a form indicating the animals (1) have not been fed DES or (2) that they have been withdrawn from DES at least seven days before going to market.

According to Guver, these certificates will probably call for the number shipped, the date of withdrawal of DES, the signature of the shipper, and the date the certificate was filled out. He noted that the use of the certificate is designed to eliminate opportunity for excuses.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension livestock specialist said the positive way to avoid DES violations is to eliminate commercial supplements from the feed the last seven days before delivery. This way you can avoid mix-ups that may occur either at the plant or in the feedlot.

Guver pointed out that in some cases leaving out the supplement could affect the palatability of the ration drastically. "In this case substitute soybean meal or a commercial supplement from a different source for dry supplements or molasses for liquid supplements."

In a feeder's concern to comply with the new regulations on diethylstilbestrol, Guver advises that he shouldn't "forget the withdrawal times on products used to treat sick animals."

He concluded that "a healthy beef industry depends on consumer confidence in our product. Let's all assume responsibility for maintaining that confidence."

Results of Soybean Study Interesting

Soybeans belong to the same plant family as does alfalfa, both being legumes. We know that legumes usually are deep-rooted with a central taproot.

The notion was that soybean root systems consist mainly of a taproot, but people have been digging in the soil to see just what a soybean root system is like. Some interesting things have been learned which may influence how you grow soybeans in the future.

Where the mass of roots is concentrated in the soil is important. Soybean root study has shown several things (1) the central or primary root penetrates about six feet into the soil under favorable conditions (2) the soybean develops lateral roots which extend into the row middles by four weeks after emergence and then turn downward to a depth of six feet or more (3) about 90 per cent of the root weight is in the top six inches of soil and (4) root elongation into the soil continues 100 days after planting, which is during the time seed development occurs.

This information may influence several farming operations (1) how to cultivate—setting the cultivator to cut too deeply will cause root pruning; it is not known how much soybean yields might suffer from this pruning (2) use of herbicides—a good herbicide may be an important tool to reduce the number of cultivations, lessening the root pruning hazards and (3) soybeans in the rotation—the deep and extensive soybean root system probably accounts for the mellow soil condition following soybeans, which usually benefits the next crop.

Conducting Tests For Corn Storage

A new idea in high moisture corn storage is being tested at Northeast Station, Concord. Shelled corn harvested at about 25 per cent moisture has been treated with a mixture of propionic and acetic acid and stored in open bins. The acid is keeping the corn with no heating or molding even though it is not sealed from air nor further dried.

Walt Tolman, researcher, says "Cattle feeding experiments are starting at once to compare this acid treated corn to similar corn stored in sealed bins as feed for finishing cattle. Additional lots of cattle will be fed air dried corn and high moisture shelled corn ground before storing in concrete bunkers covered by plastic sheets. Three years' experimentation with high moisture corn at Northeast Station has shown corn harvested at 22 to 25 per cent moisture and stored whole in sealed bins will produce slightly more rapid and economical gains than the same corn dried during storage with cold air. High moisture corn which was ground before storing has not been as good feed in these tests.

The acids used in corn storage in these tests are the same as some produced in animal digestion and are "cleared" as safe for use in feed storage. The cost of acid storage is near that of warm air drying and acid treatment can proceed more rapidly and with less investment in equipment manufacturers of the acids claim.

Fertilizer, Not Tillage Boosts Bromegrass Yields

When old, established stands of bromegrass become non-productive, they are often referred to as being "sod-bound." This condition is often a complaint of farmers and ranchers in northeast Nebraska.

Experiments were carried out in Dixon County from 1967 through 1969 to see if this condition could be corrected by fertilization, tillage, or a combination of both. Without fertilizer application, neither heavy nor light disking increased yields in any of the three years. Yields from plots which were disced were not greatly different from plots which received no treatment.

The use of 60-pound N and 30-pound P₂O₅ per acre did increase bromegrass yields in each of the three years. When the bromegrass was fertilized, disking actually decreased yields. This reduction amounted to .34 ton/acre in 1969.

The disking did not increase yields. Instead, it cut the root system of the bromegrass and allowed for weeds to grow. An increase in weed growth was not observed in the fertilized, non-disked plots.

This data shows that fertilization—but not tillage—can increase the production from old, established stands of bromegrass.

Cake Stars for Christmas

BY SANDRA BLOOM

Farm and Home Food Consultant

Yuletide gatherings will shine with a coffee cake or dessert cake that you have waiting to "star" in your pantry. Both are an ideal treat for the festivities; for family breakfasts, holiday brunches, or when guests drop in for coffee.

HOLIDAY COFFEECAKE

Mincemeat need not be confined to the traditional pie for the holidays. Enjoy its flavor in this delectable walnut enhanced coffee cake.

4 cups biscuit mix
 $\frac{2}{3}$ cup granulated sugar
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon cinnamon
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup margarine, melted
 1 cup milk

$1\frac{1}{2}$ cups prepared mincemeat
 1 cup chopped California walnuts
 Confectioner's Sugar Icing

Combine biscuit mix, sugar and cinnamon. Add $\frac{1}{4}$ cup melted margarine and milk, and beat vigorously about 20 strokes. Turn out onto floured pastry sheet, and roll to a rectangle about 12 x 16 inches. Combine two tablespoons margarine with mincemeat and walnuts, and spread over dough. Roll up from the long side, using edge of cloth to lift roll. Cut into 16, one-inch slices. Arrange eight slices, slightly overlapping, in bottom of well-greased 9-inch tube pan. Brush with one tablespoon margarine. Arrange remaining slices in a second layer, and brush with remaining margarine. Bake at 350 degrees about 55 minutes, until well browned and baked through. Let stand five or ten minutes, then turn out carefully and drizzle with Confectioner's Icing. Serve warm.

Confectioner's Sugar Icing: Stir together until smooth one cup sifted powdered sugar, one tablespoon warm water and a few drops vanilla.

BRUNCH CAKE

The ingredients of butterscotch and currant in this cake will surprise your taste buds. The preparation is easy with the use of a prepared mix.

2 cups biscuit mix
 1 (6 oz.) pkg. butterscotch chips
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup sugar

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup milk
 1 egg
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup currant jelly, beaten till smooth

Combine biscuit mix, butterscotch chips and sugar; mix thoroughly. Beat milk and egg till blended, add to dry ingredients. Stir just until dry mixture is moistened. Pour into greased 9-inch square pan. Make several deep indentations in dough with back of spoon. Spoon the jelly evenly over the top. Bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes. Drizzle glaze over coffee cake. Serve warm. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Glaze:

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup confectioner's sugar
 1 tablespoon milk

$\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla
 Dash salt

Combine in bowl; stir till blended and smooth.

SEVEN SISTERS CAKE

This popular sweet bread consists of seven coiled buns, each filled with brown sugar and baked together in a round cake pan. The decoration of a dollop of vanilla pudding and candied cherries adds a festive appeal. The rapid mixing of this yeast dough facilitates ease of preparation.

$3\frac{1}{2}$ to $4\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour
 1 cup light brown sugar
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 pkg. active dry yeast
 1 cup milk
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water
 1 cup (2 sticks) margarine, softened

3 egg yolks, at room temperature
 Melted margarine
 21 candied cherry halves
 1 pkg. (regular size) vanilla pudding, prepared according to package directions

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1 cup flour, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup light brown sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast.

Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat until liquids are warm. (Margarine does not need to melt.) Gradually add to dry ingredients, and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add egg yolks and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup flour or enough to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough flour to make a stiff batter. Cover bowl tightly with aluminum foil; chill several hours or overnight.

Turn chilled dough out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough into 3 equal pieces. Roll each piece into a 15 x 7-inch rectangle. Brush with melted margarine; sprinkle each with one-third of the remaining $\frac{3}{4}$ cup light brown sugar. Roll up from short side as for jelly roll. Seal edges firmly. Cut each roll crosswise into 7 pieces, about 1-inch wide.

Arrange seven rolls, cut side up, in each of 3 greased 8-inch round cake pans. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about one hour.

Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. To serve, top each with a dollop of prepared vanilla pudding and a candied cherry half. Makes 21 buns.

AMBROSIA CAKES

A busy schedule won't suffer when you prepare this quick holiday dessert. It's richly flavored with walnuts, orange and coconut that give it the "ambrosia" appeal.

1 9-oz. pkg. yellow cake mix
 1 egg
 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup orange juice
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup water

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup finely chopped California walnuts
 Orange syrup
 Walnut halves or large pieces
 Coconut Custard Sauce

Place cake mix, egg, orange rind and juice and water into a small mixing bowl. Beat four minutes on the mixer at medium speed, or beat vigorously with a spoon. Fold in walnuts. Spoon batter into greased and floured fluted molds or large muffin pans about 3 x $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Bake at 350 degrees 15 to 20 minutes. When done, turn out upside-down on cake rack to cool. Then spoon a little Orange Syrup over each cake. When ready to serve, decorate each cake with a small fluff of whipped cream and a walnut half or with large walnut pieces. Serve with Coconut Custard Sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Orange Syrup: Heat $\frac{1}{4}$ cup orange juice, two tablespoons granulated sugar and $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon brandy flavoring in a small saucepan until liquid comes to a boil. Simmer two or three minutes. Cool.

Coconut Custard Sauce: Beat two egg yolks with $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sifted powdered sugar, a few grains of salt and one teaspoon brandy flavoring until thick and lemon colored. Beat $\frac{1}{2}$ cup whipping cream until stiff. Save out just enough to lightly top each cake. Fold remainder into sauce along with $\frac{1}{3}$ cup shredded coconut. Coconut may be lightly toasted, if desired.

PEACHY WALNUT COFFEECAKE

A streusel topping, the bright flavor of peaches and an enticing cake-like texture are the delightful features of this coffee cake. This recipe may also be baked in a ten-inch pizza pan without affecting the light texture.

3 tablespoons margarine
 $\frac{1}{3}$ cup granulated sugar
 1 egg
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon vanilla
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon grated lemon peel
 1 cup all-purpose flour

$1\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoons baking powder
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
 3 tablespoons milk
 1 one-pound can peach slices, drained
 Streusel
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup chopped California walnuts

Cream margarine, sugar, egg, vanilla and lemon peel together well. Combine flour with baking powder and salt. Blend into creamed mixture alternately with milk. Turn into greased 9-inch layer cake pan or 10-inch pizza pan. Arrange well-drained peach slices over batter. Sprinkle with Streusel and walnuts. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes, or until cake tests done. Serve warm, cut into wedges. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Streusel: Blend together until crumbly $\frac{1}{4}$ cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon nutmeg and 1 tablespoon margarine.

TURKEY, AGAIN

BY SHERRY ONKEN

Turkey 'n fixin's are the specialties of many Thanksgiving and Christmas menus. For days afterward, it's left-over turkey n' more fixin's. Hot turkey sandwiches, turkey croquettes, and turkey hash are all old favorites. And then there are the more elegant and novel ways of using left-over turkey.

In a bread loaf croustade with a colorful array of chopped pimiento and green pepper, you'll find the turkey extras rivaling the most epicurean treat. When the remains of your holiday turkey and stuffing amount to about one cup of each, you can prepare a delicious main dish. By scooping out the centers of large onions and filling with a simple turkey mixture, a dinner of Savory Stuffed Onions will be on the table in just one hour. In just fifteen minutes you can turn out Turkey Oriental and serve atop fluffy rice or Chinese noodles. One of the attractive cook and serve skillet is ideal for this recipe.

So, avoid the phrase "turkey again" by selecting one of these recipes for that extra holiday bird.

TURKEY ORIENTAL

2 tablespoons margarine
1 cup thinly sliced celery
¼ cup thinly sliced onion
½ cup mushrooms, fresh or canned
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Melt margarine in large skillet. Add celery, onion and mushrooms, and cook until tender but not browned. Combine cornstarch, soy sauce and water. Slowly stir into vegetables and cook, stirring constantly until smooth and thickened. Add water chestnuts and turkey; heat thoroughly. Stir in walnuts. Serve on hot rice or Chinese noodles. Makes 6 servings.

TURKEY PINWHEELS

1 cup chopped cooked turkey
1 (10½ oz.) can condensed cream of chicken soup
¼ cup chopped parsley
¼ cup chopped drained canned pimientos

Combine turkey, ¼ cup soup (reserving remaining soup for sauce), parsley, pimientos, pickles, salt and pepper; mix thoroughly. Combine biscuit mix and milk; mix lightly. Turn dough out on lightly floured surface and knead 10 times. Roll out dough to ¼-inch thickness. Spread with turkey mixture. Roll up jelly-roll fashion and cut into ½ inch slices. Place cut-side down on greased baking sheet. Bake at 425 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes, or until done. Serve with Pickle Sauce.

Hot fluffy rice or Chinese noodles
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 cup water
1 (6 oz.) can water chestnuts, sliced
2 cups diced cooked turkey
1 cup toasted California walnuts

PICKLE SAUCE:

Remaining cream of chicken soup

¼ cup chopped sweet pickles
Combine all ingredients; mix well. Heat to serving temperature, stirring frequently.

BISCUITS

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup margarine
⅔ to ¾ cups milk

Combine flour, baking powder and salt. Cut or rub in margarine. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board or pastry cloth and knead gently 30 seconds. Roll out ½ inch thick. Add milk or cream and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese and continue to cook until cheese is melted. Combine cheese sauce, turkey and spaghetti; mix lightly but thoroughly. Add salt and pepper. Bake in 3-quart casserole at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

SAVORY STUFFED ONIONS

6 large onions
¾ cup leftover stuffing
¾ cup chopped, cooked turkey
¾ cup thin white sauce
1 egg yolk
Salt and pepper to taste
¼ cup cracker crumbs (browned in melted margarine)

Remove skins from onions; boil 10 minutes in salted water, uncovered; drain, turn upside down to cool. Remove centers of onions, leaving shell thick enough to retain shape. Chop onion, removed from center; combine with stuffing, turkey, white sauce, egg yolk, salt, pepper. Mix together turkey, pimiento, pepper and seasonings. Stir in cream and toasted crumbs. Turn into the loaf shell. Sprinkle top with a few crumbs. Brush edges of loaf with melted margarine. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until heated through and golden brown. Sprinkle with paprika and garnish with parsley if desired. To serve, slice with sharp knife. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Touring "Lucky Lindy's" Boyhood Home

BY MICHAEL W. FEDO

The Lindbergh house at Little Falls, Minn.

Visitors entering the boyhood home of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., near Little Falls, Minn., are greeted by site director John Rivard. "You aren't going to see a museum today," he says. "This is a home. There are no display cases. Everything is as it was when the Lindberghs lived here from 1901 to 1923."

In the foyer, Mr. Rivard offers a brief account of the Spirit of St. Louis flight, then tells tourists they'll be taking a glimpse into the everyday life of one of this State's most renowned families. "What's in the house represents only that period of time when the family resided here. As we go through, feel free to open doors, drawers—snoop about if you like. Nothing's roped off."

The home, which was opened to the public on Memorial Day, 1970, has been completely restored, though the project lagged for many years. The house and surrounding 110 acres had been deeded by the family to the State for development as a museum and park in 1931, but it was not until the Minnesota Historical Society assumed direction of the project in 1969 that restoration began in earnest.

The farm home is situated on the western bank of the Mississippi River, and is located 85 miles west of Minneapolis-St. Paul. It can be reached by taking U. S. Highway 10 to Little Falls, then following Lindbergh Drive two miles west of town.

The land where young Lindbergh used to graze goats and cattle is part of the Charles A. Lindbergh Park (at the family's request, named after the senior Lindbergh), providing picnic areas nestled among primeval white pines and oaks. There is a scenic nature trail, winding along Pike Creek, assumed to be the cattle path used when the farm was operational.

About the house and property are items which point to Lindbergh's early mechanical aptitude. The gas water pump and motor in the basement, still in working condition, were rigged and installed by Lindbergh when he was 12. Also in the basement is the wooden incubator he made for hatching chicks.

The Lindbergh home—a spacious gray two-story, 10-room house, was built in 1907 after fire destroyed the original three-story 13 room mansion in 1905. The present home was rebuilt on the original split-stone foundation which still carries black scars from the blaze.

Charles Jr., who farmed the land as an alternative to compulsory attendance at the local high school during World War I, found his efforts largely unproductive. He left the house to study mechanical engineering at the University of Wisconsin in 1919, and by 1923 the house was empty and ignored.

That is until May 22, 1927. As word of the success of Lindy and the Spirit of St. Louis reached the United States, hordes of souvenir seekers descended upon the site and thoroughly vandalized it. A short time later, when the aviator returned to a hero's welcome, he found the home in utter disrepair.

It was then the family decided to give the property to anyone who would look after it. They accepted the State's offer to turn it into a museum and park.

Restoration of the home has given it a "lived-in" look. All ten rooms are restored and each article throughout the house is labeled whether it is an original or a replacement. Prominent, too, are several baby and boyhood photographs of Charles Jr.

Of the four upstairs bedrooms, the one historians thought belonged to young Charles has been recreated to resemble the room of a typical 12 year-old boy. There are the lead soldiers and Indians he played with, photos, and his license plate collection. But Gen. Lindbergh, on a visit last year, said he didn't actually sleep in the room, preferring instead to "rough it" by sleeping in an old brass bed on the large screened-in porch the year around. The bed—found in the attic—now occupies a corner on the porch.

The large kitchen with two pantries and a wood stove, also has a bullet hole in the door—left from a morning when Lindbergh was practicing a fast draw and inadvertently fired the pistol.

In the garage attached to the basement, the first Lindbergh family car, a 1916 Saxon, has been refurbished. South of the house, Lindbergh constructed a concrete pool for watering stock. It resembles a large bird bath and was called "moo pond" by Lindbergh. Moo in this instance refers not to cattle, but is the Chippewa word for "dirty". Visible on the pond are the inscriptions: 1919, C. A. Lindbergh, Jr., Lindholme, and Wahgoosh—the name of his dog.

The Baltic (S.D.) Beacon tells about the father who said of his son: "Everything he eats turns to hair."

Presenting the case against rough weather:

the new Remington-Peters "Power-Pak."

100 pocketproof powerful "golden" 22 long rifle cartridges in a specially designed plastic case that really earns its keep... even when it's empty.

First, we made our 22 long rifle cartridges "pocketproof" with a special high-temperature lubricant that resists lint, dirt and grit. Now... thanks to a specially designed, golden plastic package our 22s are just about everything-proof. The case keeps the cartridges securely in place and bad weather, moisture and dust out. And it was designed to fit neatly in the breast pocket of a hunting shirt or jacket. The lid of a "Power-Pak" slides back with a series of positive "click" stops... you can dispense 5 cartridges (or 10 or 15 or however many you need) without fumbling with loose cartridges or packages that are more than a handful. And when the "Power-Pak" is empty, just flip the tray out, and you've got a great place to keep small spare parts, larger cartridges, trout flies, fishing lures, whatever needs keeping. We think the "Power-Pak" is right on target... worth looking for wherever you buy your ammunition.

"PUNCHING" PUBLISHER

BY IRVING WALLACE

There are many men who will walk up to a punching bag and sock it several times and listen to it smack against the backboard. However, not many can keep a bag going in rhythm. Let alone more than one.

There is at least one man who can punch as many as five of them at one time. And all of them going rhythmically. He is 77-year-old Ferdinand E. Stefonowicz of Wildrose, North Dakota.

In Northwestern North Dakota, Stefonowicz is not a professional athlete. But punching bags has been his hobby and his personal "fitness program" long before the term came from the White House.

Ferdinand E. Stefonowicz's life-long vocation has been that of a village newspaper publisher. This means he not only is a publisher, editor, type setter, writer, advertising salesman, but sweeps out the place.

He has been doing this for over 60 years as owner of the "Wildrose Mixer" at Wildrose. Stefonowicz was born at Minnesota, Minn., then one of the largest Icelandic communities in the United States. He had no special trade. To the boy, the life of a traveling printer sounded adventurous.

His first job paid 50 cents a week with board and room. He found work at St. Peter, Ortonville, Glenwood, Minneapolis and his home town, Minnesota, all in his native state.

He next ventured out to South Dakota, working at Milbank. North Dakota was next. After working briefly at Kulm he arranged to purchase the Williams County Mixer at Zahl. This was in 1910. He paid $300 for the printing equipment and the building. The building was a 10X12-foot shack. In three months time he decided to move his shop into Cottonwood Lake. "It cost me $10 to move the shack and equipment," he recalled. "I needed two wagons and two teams."

Stefonowicz is publisher of the only remaining handset newspaper in North Dakota. In fact, there are but few in the United States. Each week he sets up the stories he writes, the headlines he creates, the advertising copy he solicits. Sometimes he uses mats in the casting box in his shop for ads, and occasionally he will publish news pictures from mats. The Wildrose Mixer is printed on an old fashioned flatbed press, and the sheets are folded by hand.

During the years Stefonowicz scheduled at least one hour daily as a workout period with the punching bags. It has not only improved his health but his technique. His timing is so perfect no other person is known who can duplicate his multi-bag punching. At the age of 77 he has the physique and stamina of a village blacksmith.

All during the years he has placed himself on call when his "act" was needed to help charity affairs.

Even back before television Stefonowicz demonstrated his bag punching technique on a radio program which spread his fame over a four-state area. Even without being seen he was able to impress the listening audience by the sound.

Later he was to win national fame when he was a guest on Garry Moore's "I've Got A Secret" television show.

For his routine exhibition he will start punching a bag hung up in the usual manner with his fists—such as the average gym bag puncher does. Then he will get his elbows in action and he can keep the bag going with his head. If you would play a waltz while he is punching the bag he can keep the bag going in time with the music as well as any professional drummer in an orchestra.

That is how Ferdinand E. Stefonowicz keeps fit—and enjoys doing it. He is happy in the small town on the rolling North Dakota prairie. The editor-publisher has served as Wildrose justice of the peace, city auditor, and secretary-treasurer of the village fire department.

When 77-year-old Editor Stefonowicz was asked about retiring he said he could not be happier the way things are. And with a boyish grin he added, "I've got a lot of things to do yet!"

Downtown hotel turned cultural? Not quite, but we do have a great new work of art.

Henri Azaz did a sculpture for our lobby. And when he creates—he doesn't kid around. We ended up with a wall.

But not just any wall. Some people call it the Great Wall of Sherman House. Why not come see why?

And while you're there, stop in at any of our Nightspots—the College Inn, Well of the Sea, The Scuttlebutt, The Celtic and the Dome.

So come to Sherman House for entertainment and fun. And we'll throw in a little culture at no extra cost!

Made with the high-price spread?

No; made with Blue Bonnet Margarine.

Make any dish with Blue Bonnet, and you make it great. Because Blue Bonnet has the same great taste as the high-price spread. But Blue Bonnet fries better. Browns faster. And when you spread it on bread, Blue Bonnet's closer to the high-price spread than any margarine. It releases its flavor almost instantly—just like the high-price spread.

Everything's better with Blue Bonnet[®] on it (or in it).

Christmas Carol Serenade

A True Story

BY JAMES ALDREDGE

One hundred and one years ago there was heard at the gates of Paris about as memorable a carol serenade as ever took place on Christmas Eve. The French capital at the time was under the siege of guns of the Prussian army, this being the final turn of the Franco-Prussian War of 1870.

Among the French soldiers stationed on one bank of the Seine, facing the Germans on the opposite side, was young Henri Regnault. He had won recognition as an artist of great promise, but when France declared war, he laid down his palette and brushes to go to the defense of his country.

It was on this night—December 24th—that he found himself in the most forlorn of all situations. The air was chilly, and a wet snow was falling—enough to dampen the spirits of the entire platoon at that outpost, where they lay, two or three yards apart, in trenches.

Just across the river, the heavily fortified line of the Prussian besiegers could be made out. With the enemy a continuous small-arms fire was being carried on by the snipers in the French ranks, and their shooting was briskly returned whenever the Germans could find a target.

No Christmas Eve could have been drearier or more miserable. As the snow continued to fall, the landscape became more sodden and wretched for the city's defenders.

Amid all that gloom Regnault had reason to contrast his present surroundings with his happy situation of just a year ago. Then, he had been moving in the most fascinating, cultured society, and in his own field his future seemed assured.

Slowly the hours dragged on, bringing a more penetrating chill to these soldiers who had to endure the endless vigil in the bleak outpost. The falling snow deadened all sounds—except for the occasional rattle of the German musketry and the replies of the French sharpshooters.

Then, suddenly, a church bell in the suburb of Suresnes began to sound the hour. In the distance, another began to ring, and another. A fellow in uniform groaned aloud as the ringing continued. He was right alongside Regnault:

"Midnight! And it's Christmas!" he exclaimed in a dismal voice. "But what a Christmas!"

But Regnault seemed moved by other thoughts as he heard the church bells. He had forgotten all about his grim surroundings—the lonely outpost, the guns of the Prussians, the horrors of war. He remembered what Christmas stood for.

Before his comrades could drag him down, he had climbed up on the barricade—in full sight of the enemy. Bullets began to spatter around him, but no thing daunted, he began to sing.

It was the old familiar carol of Adolphe Adam—O Holy Night. Regnault had always heard it sung on Christmas Eve, so he knew the words and tune perfectly:

"Midnight, Christians,
It is the solemn hour . . ."

As the artist had a splendid baritone voice, it carried far into the darkness. Across the Seine, in their trenches, the Prussians could hear him perfectly.

With those beautiful words, Regnault seemed to be defying the enemy with a different kind of challenge. His song carried the everlasting message of "Peace on earth, good will toward men." It made it clear that, in spite of hatred and war and death, there would always be love and beauty on this earth.

When Regnault had finished his singing, he discovered that not a shot was being fired on either side. A solemn hush reigned over both shores of the Seine. His comrades had stopped fighting to listen—and so had the Germans.

Then, from across the river, another voice broke that strange stillness. A young German soldier was singing a carol of his native land. As words of Silent Night rose in the darkness, the French listened as respectfully as their enemies had listened to Regnault.

When the singer's voice finally died away, there was complete silence for several minutes—a reverent hush to commemorate Christmas.

But all too soon the guns took up their former exchange. It was not long after this that a sharpshooter's bullet found its mark and the heart of Henri Regnault was stilled forever. When he laid down his life, all France mourned the passing of one of its most gifted young artists.

His old comrades never forget how his noble nature found full expression in that lovely carol he sang on Christmas Eve in the dreariest and most dismal of surroundings.

WHAT IF YOU should wake up to find yourself flat on your back in a hospital, facing a stay of weeks—even months? Check the ways you could use extra spendable cash (see panel at left). Think what $2,000, $8,000 or $13,000—on top of your hospital insurance—could mean to you, regardless of your age or family circumstances:

If you are under 35, you may be just getting a good start in life. With small children, rent or mortgage payments, new furniture and all the other expenses young families have, a serious injury or illness might "wipe you out" financially.

If you are 35 to 65, your children now may be at the costliest stage of schooling; living expenses probably are higher than ever; and chances of hospitalization are increasing every year. This is certainly no time to be in a financial bind!

Even if you are 65 or over, and eligible for Medicare, you still will have to pay part of your hospital bills—and you also will have other bills. Everyday expenses, private room, private nurse, other medical costs—bills that Medicare does not cover.

Regardless of your age, the American Republic® "Direct Cash" Plan can pay you badly needed cash every week you are in the hospital...for up to one full year.

NOW! PAYS UP TO $262.50 A WEEK!

Protection under the "Direct Cash" Plan is available in individual protection "units." Each unit pays you $52.50 per week actual cash (at the rate of $7.50 a day) for every week you spend in the hospital due to illness OR accident...as much as $13,687.50 for a full year if you have the "5-Unit" Plan.

COMPARE ALL THESE ADVANTAGES:

- Pays cash direct to you in addition to any other insurance carried with any other company. Even pays in addition to Workmen's Compensation, Medicare, or any group plan. Cash to spend as you like.

- It is LifeGuarded™ Protection and is Guaranteed Renewable. It is YOURS FOR LIFE as long as you make timely payment of the current premium. It can NEVER be cancelled by the Company because of age, health or number of claims. The Company can change applicable table of premium rates.

- You are covered during any hospital confinement for any accident sustained after your policy is issued, and for any sickness that first manifests itself after 30 days from the date of issue.

FXCEPTIONS: You are not covered for hospital care due to war, mental disorder, maternity, dental work, or when you are in a U. S. Government or Veterans Hospital.

- No medical examination, regardless of your age—and there is NO AGE LIMIT.
