8 Bicycles, $1,000 to Be Given Away on Thursday

Wayne merchants pull out all the stops tonight (Thursday) awarding $1,000 in cash and eight bicycles to lucky ticket holders in the annual Christmas Give-away Contest.

As a prelude to the big night, this year's Christmas promotion got underway Dec. 3, with a drawing for $50. Since then, $50 drawings have been held on Dec. 10th, 14th, 17th, 20th, 21st and 22nd, for a total of $350 already distributed to winning ticket holders. In addition, the Dec. 2 Cash Night prize was claimed to the tune of $400.

Participating in the promotion are 52 local merchants. Each merchant buys 4,000 tickets for $35. The next 6,000 tickets cost $15, and if the merchant needs more tickets, the next 6,000 cost $9. Any tickets beyond that total of 16,000 cost $1 per roll of 2,000. The tickets are given away at participating stores, and no purchase is necessary. The entire give-away promotion is financed by the sale of tickets to participating merchants.

If last year's response is any indicator, demand for tickets should be brisk by drawing time Thursday night at 8. During the past Christmas promotion, over 900,000 tickets went out.

The Chamber of Commerce will draw 50 numbers early Thursday. The numbers drawn will be eligible for prizes, and will be posted in participating stores by 2 p.m. Holders of tickets with numbers posted should go to the Chamber of Commerce office to claim the number and have it verified. Chamber manager Lloyd Brackeen stressed that this procedure must be followed, even in cases of low numbers. The numbers must be verified before the 8 p.m. deadline in order to be

Firms Closing Noon Friday

Among Wayne business firms closing at noon Friday, the day before Christmas, are the First National Bank, State National Bank, The Wayne Herald office, and Wayne Federal Savings and Loan.

Those businesses, along with most other business places will be closed Saturday, Christmas Day.

Due to the Christmas holiday, the regular Monday issue of The Wayne Herald will not be published for distribution Dec. 27. The Thursday issue will be published and distributed as usual Dec. 30.

The following week, The Wayne Herald will not be published for Jan. 3, due to the New Year holiday. The first issue of 1972 will be distributed Thursday, Jan. 6.

Living Nativity Scene

The Living Nativity Scene at St. Paul's Lutheran Church has attracted a lot of traffic on North Pearl this week. The scene, with a live cast and live animals, will be near the entrance to the church through Friday evening, Christmas-Eve. The Rev. Doniver Peterson, St. Paul's pastor, said Luther Leaguers are sponsoring the Nativity Scene, with approximately 25 taking part, sitting or standing motionless for an hour each evening from 7 to 8 p.m.

$50 Winners

Monday and Tuesday night winners of $50 cash in the Give-Away Contest are pictured here. Beverly Hansen of Route 1, Wayne, won the Tuesday night prize and Hazel Bud Nelson of Logan collected the $50 on Monday evening. Another $50 drawing will be held Wednesday night as the final "warmup" for the big drawing Thursday evening for the $500 grand prize, five $100 prizes and eight bicycles. The Thursday night drawing will be at 8 p.m. and an additional $350 could be given away in the Cash Night drawing, which will be held at 8:30 instead of the usual 8 p.m.

Up 'n Coming

Thursday (tonight) Christmas Give-Away drawing for $1,000 in cash prizes and eight bicycles. Holders of posted tickets numbers must verify those numbers at the Chamber of Commerce office before 8 p.m. deadline.

Thursday (tonight) Cash Night drawing for $350 in Wayne. Drawing to be at 8:30 this week instead of the usual 8 p.m. deadline.

Friday (tomorrow) Christmas Give-Away drawing for $500 grand prize, five $100 prizes and eight bicycles. Drawing to be at 8 p.m. City Council meeting at City Auditorium.

Mrs. Stanley Wilks, instructor of the adult education classes held each Thursday evening at the WSC Fine Arts Building, has announced that classes will not be held tonight (Thursday) next week, Dec. 30. Classes will resume Jan. 6.

Honey Sunday Proceeds to Provide Area Hostel

Mrs. Jim Russel of Allen, four-county chairman for the 1972 Honey Sunday Campaign, has announced that to date, Honey Sunday proceeds in Dakota, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne Counties, have come to about $2,000, which will go toward the purchase of a hostel, to be opened in conjunction with the workshop scheduled to open in South Sioux City about the first of the year.

Last year's Honey Sunday proceeds went to set up the South Sioux City workshop which is headed by Executive Director

James Shelton. Shelton was appointed by the Northeast Nebraska Office of Mental Retardation Board. The staff will also include a workshop director, two supervisors and a family resource person. Sue Snyder, daughter of the Bill Snyders of Allen, has accepted the position of secretary. She is formerly of Minneapolis.

The workshop will be located in the building formerly housing Gayle's Fabrics, and will provide retarded persons, 18 years or older, with training. See HONEY SUNDAY, page 12.

Children Tell Story of Christmas

By Betty Kavanaugh

Without the story of Christmas there would be no need for Christmas. And no matter what the religious denomination the age-old story of Christmas is about the same Babe in a manger.

The glitter of tinsel, the twinkle of lights, the smell of pine trees and Jolly Old Santa are some of the decorative, visible parts of the birthday celebration.

Yet Christmas and the story of Christmas doesn't seem complete without little children. No matter what their race, creed or color.

And telling the story of the Babe in a manger to little children is exactly what Mrs. Judy Ricketmeyer, Carroll, and Mrs. Deanna Wittler, Randolph, are trying to do.

They are representatives of a non-denominational child evangelism fellowship called Good News Club.

Since September about 30 kindergarten through fourth grade children have been attending the meetings held in Mrs. Ricketmeyer's home every Tuesday afternoon immediately after meetings and for having memorized certain Bible verses.

"We aren't saying that we are doing something that each child's own church couldn't do for them," says Mrs. Wittler, "but we want them to have a personal faith. We work strictly with Bible stories and characters on the children's level."

Object Lessons

The fact that the truth must be made very simple for children and the use of object lessons is a very effective means of accomplishing this.

They use a flannel-graph board and pictures to help them explain the Bible characters when telling a story.

"Thus if the children see a picture of Mary and Joseph with the baby Jesus on the flannel-board says Mrs. Ricketmeyer, "they become a real family to the children and they become interested in what you are telling them."

Of course, she adds, "with See CHRISTMAS STORY, pg. 12

Lutefisk Still Popular Swedish Dish

By Brenda Gustafson

Traditionally, "they" say, the sights and smells of Christmas dinner include ham or roast turkey and dressing, freshly baked mince pie or rich wine pudding. But not in Swedish homes in Wakefield.

Their tradition dictates a menu including lutefisk, brown beans, potato bogarna, salt herring, lefsa, ostkaka with lingonberries. The predominate smell from Swedish kitchens on Christmas Eve is of lutefisk, the most talked about of the traditional Swedish fare.

Steals the Show

The Scandinavian Cookbook talks of Scandinavian "sorcery" with fish. Maybe it is sorcery, or maybe it is skill; but somehow a bland, some say tasteless, white fish steals the culinary show.

The lutefisk sold in Wakefield groceries is a member of the cod family, caught in the fjords of Norway, according to information supplied to Charles Soderberg, owner of The Fair Store. It is dried on racks resembling hay racks in "pure, clean, bacteria-free mountain air," Soderberg says.

When it has been dried to a stage where it resembles cardboard, it is baled and exported, he says.

Up until the mid-1940's lutefisk reached Wakefield in this "cardboard" stage. It was not outside the stores in large barrels.

Shoppers purchased it early and took it home to soak in a strong solution, reputedly made with lime, lime and ashes, or lye.

"People used to start soaking lutefisk early in December," says

Mrs. Silha Johnson, a Wakefield Swede. "It was soaked for at least two weeks," she says.

"You had to change the water twice a day after about the first week to make it fit to eat," says Fred Lundin, another Wakefield Swede.

Lundin tells a story of a neighbor who tried to skip the "soaking step."

"When I was young we had some Swedish neighbors who invited some English neighbors to dinner—and served lutefisk. The Englishman liked the fish so well that he bought some when he saw it outside the store in town. He took it home, saved it into pieces and gave it to his wife to fix for dinner. She cooked it for a whole day but of course it never did get done."

Cured in U. S.

Most lutefisk now enters the U. S. through the Great Lakes area and is specially cured in the Duluth and Minneapolis areas, according to Soderberg.

Wakefield groceries receive the fish cleaned and ready to package or prepacked in frozen packages.

Soderberg and Clarence Baker, owner of Baker's Super Saver, say that the local demand does not do somewhat. "But," says Soderberg, "we have picked up customers from other towns now, especially Norfolk, Wayne and Sioux City."

Lutefisk is usually boiled and filleted. It may be served with a rich cream sauce, a mustard sauce or melted butter. The fish may be cooked in the sauce; or the fish and the sauce may be served separately.

Most families serve boiled potatoes. See LUTEFISK, Section 2, pg. 3

Rolling out "Covered Wafers" for their Christmas cookie plate are Mrs. Bernae Gustafson and her daughter, Jean. Like many Wakefield residents, they are full-blooded Swedes.

Arraignments Are Continued Until Jan. 12

Arraignments for Danny Gene Condrey of Schuyler and Gale Gronenthal of Columbus have been continued until Jan. 12, at the request of the defendants.

The two men were bound over from Wayne County Court to District Court last Wednesday on charges brought against them by a Wayne State College coed. They were scheduled for arraignment Wednesday.

Gronenthal's bond was lowered from $15,000 to $5,000 by the preliminary hearing before County Judge Luverna Hilton and he posted bond in that amount Saturday.

Condrey is still being held in Wayne County Jail when his application for lowering of bond from $20,000 to $5,000 was denied by Judge Hilton.

Herald Announces Coloring Contest

Area youngsters who like to color will again this year have an opportunity to display their artistic talent by entering The Wayne Herald's annual coloring contest.

All area children, up to and including eighth graders, are invited to enter the contest simply by picking a holiday greeting advertisement from this issue of The Wayne Herald, coloring it and sending or bringing it to the Wayne Herald office with a completed entry blank.

Entries must be in the Herald office by noon, Tuesday, Dec. 28. Winners will be announced the following issue of the paper.

There will be two divisions in the contest: Division I for youngsters through the third grade, and Division II for youngsters through the eighth grade. A $5 first prize, $2 second prize and $1 third prize will be offered in each division.

Contestants may use paint, crayons, pencils, glitter or other media to enhance their choice of holiday greeting ad.

A complete list of contest details appear elsewhere in this issue of the Wayne Herald.

Baker-Meyer Rites Held

In a 7 p.m. ceremony Friday evening at Grace Lutheran Church, Wayne, Doris Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baker, Wayne, was united in marriage to Terry A. Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Meyer, Wayne. The Rev. E. J. Bernthal officiated at the ceremony and both sang "Wedding Song" and "Wondrous Prayer" accompanied by Mrs. Don Siefken.

Candles were lighted by Keo Daniels and Roger Meyer. Guests were ushered to their places by Bruce Roeder and Don Siefken of Wakefield.

The couple were attended by Susan Heitold of Wayne and Mrs. Eldon Heinenan of Wakefield; and Jim Meyer and Doug Nelson of Wayne.

The bride's chosen colors, sapphire blue and pumpkin were carried out in the lace-trimmed floor-length blue velvet frocks worn by her attendants, who wore small, blue tinted sweetheart roses in their hair. They each carried a blue-tinted long stemmed rose.

For her own gown the bride chose a floor-length fashion of velvet with lace accents on the bodice, cuffing the bishop sleeves and on the train. Her veil was caught to a Juliet cap and she carried pumpkin and carnations and blue tinted roses.

The men wore dark suits with gold shirts. Mrs. Baker chose a brown two-piece knit ensemble and Mrs. Meyer wore a pink trimmed navy dress. Both had corsages of pumpkin tinted champagne carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman A. Vahlkamp Jr. seated the 150 guests who attended the reception at the church parlors following the ceremony. Debby Saul registered guests and gifts were arranged by Peggy Barner, Janice Davis and Janet Spence, assisted by gift carriers Jennifer and Lori Johnson.

Mrs. Michael Atkins of Omaha, Mrs. Merlin Saul and Mrs. Larry Johnson of Wayne cut and served the cake and Mrs. Otto Saul and Mrs. Jerold Daniels, Wayne, poured. Barb Daniels served punch.

Waitresses were Lorie Heitold, Connie Baker and Jeanie Meyer. Grace Ladies Aid served and worked in the kitchen.

For her going away ensemble the bride chose a baby blue sweater dress. The bride, a 1970 graduate of Wayne High School, attended Wayne State College. The bridegroom, a 1969 Wayne High School graduate, is engaged in farming. The couple will farm south of Wayne.

Meredith Manley Is Bride

In a 2 p.m. ceremony Sunday at the United Presbyterian Church, Wayne, Meredith Joy Manley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Manley, Wayne, became the bride of Thomas M. McGowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGowan, Dover, Del.

The Rev. John W. Voth of Newton, Ia., officiated at the double rite. The bride's brother, Eric Manley, was soloist, and Antony Garlick was organist.

Attending the bride were Alan Cole of Milwaukee, Wis., who served as maid of honor, Mary Jane Lee of Auburn and Mrs. Terry Hobson of Stuart, Iowa.

The bridegroom's attendants were Richard Hudson of Seabrook, M. D., as best man, Tom Guse of Lincoln, and Joe Mauley, Wayne, a brother of the bride.

The bride's gown was an empire, toe-length fashion of delustered satin, fashioned with Alencon and Venice lace accented with gold shirts. The bride's mother chose a rust brown dress for her daughter's wedding and Mrs. McGowan wore aqua. Both had rose corsages.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Kern, Wayne, served as hosts to the reception which followed at the church parlors. Cheryl Lessman registered the 100 guests.

Mrs. William Mullor, Wayne, and Margaret Gray, Lincoln, cut and served the cake, and Mrs. Eric Manley, Albuquerque, N. M., poured. Mrs. Lowell Johnson, Stanton, and Mrs. John Laudon, Omaha, served punch. Waitresses were Mary Ream and Sue Twiss of Wayne.

Serving were Mrs. Richard Baier, Mrs. John Ream Jr., Mrs. Marie Skokan and Mrs. Raymond Schreiner.

The bride, a 1971 graduate of Wayne State College, has been employed at Love Library on the University of Nebraska campus in Lincoln. The bridegroom, a 1970 graduate of Boston University, was a graduate student at the University of Nebraska prior to entering the U.S. Army in July of this year. The couple will make their home in Washington, D.C., where the bridegroom is stationed.

SEASON'S GREETINGS

Dear Friends,

If this letter were not displayed in the paper and if we had the time to write to each of our loyal friends at this joyful time of the year, what would we say?

We would wish together for the achievement of those goals that man in his wisdom has striven for, and continues to strive for, since time immemorial.

Peace on earth and good will to all men. For unity among us and all the people on earth. For the happiness of our loved ones. For the beauty, faith, hope and joy of life inherent in the human spirit.

It is with these thoughts, and knowledge that we can accomplish all these good things that I personally, and for our entire store force, sincerely extend to you Season's Greetings, good health and good fortune and the wish for an even better world in 1972.

Sincerely,
Troy C. Vaught

Christmas Cage Meet Dec. 29-30

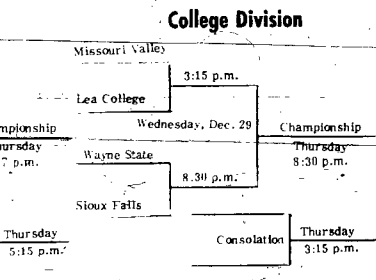

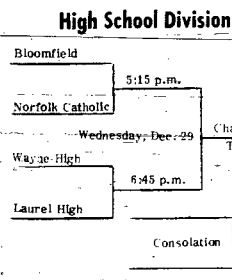

The big sports carnival of Wayne's Christmas holiday season is approaching. That's the annual Wayne State Christmas Basketball Tournament Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 29-30.

appearance in the meet, at 5:15 Wednesday.

Wayne High and Laurel, winner of the 1968 and 1969 tournaments, will go at each other Tuesday Wednesday.

Thursday action will start at 3:15 with the college consolation game, followed by the high school consolation at 5:15, then the high school championship at 7 p.m., and the college championship about 8:30.

Admission prices: $1.50 for adults, 75 cents for college and high school students, 50 cents for elementary students—each ticket good for all games on one day.

Cage Contests

Wildcats' Five-Game Skein Snapped by Doane College

Wayne State cagers found the towering height of Doane College a problem Saturday night, and they ended up with a 78-33 loss that broke a five-game win skein.

But it was not Doane's height so much as a chilly night at the free throw line that beat the Wildcats. They hit only nine of 21 chances. At their usual percentage, they would have scored enough free throws to win.

Mat Happenings

Doane's sizzling center, Dennis Skiffes, hit 23 points for the second time this year and lifted his average to 25.7, among the best in Nebraska. He also maintains a rebound pace of about 10.

Lack of balance in scoring, however, hurt the Cats. Only Jerry Woodin with 14 was consistent while Doane had four hitting 11 points or more, led by Alfredo Mayers and Bernard Brown, each with 19.

The seven-foot Brown probably was the best really tall player Wayne has faced in years, coach Ron Jones said. Quick and agile, he forced the Wildcats to arch shots at higher than usual angles.

Wayne took an early lead in the game, but Doane moved ahead to stay about midway through the first half. Closest Wayne margin after that was the 41-39 half-time score.

Jr. High B'ballers

Nip Walthill 55-46

Wayne's Jr. High roundball squad rolled past the Walthill Jr. High crew Sunday at the Wayne City Auditorium 55-46.

The game was closer than the score would indicate. A bucket in the final seconds of the first half gave Walthill the lead at 27-26, but with one second remaining before the intermission, Wayne got the ball and Rich Workman pumped a desperation shot from mid-court for the 28-27 comeback.

hill 21-16. Top scorers for the losers were Ralph Atkins with seven points, and Mark Brandt with four.

In earlier action, balanced scoring by Wayne led to a 45-33 triumph over Randolph at Randolph Dec. 16.

Rich Workman was the only Wayne player in double figures, clicking for 10 points. Larry Creighton and Rob Mitchell each added nine.

The Jr. High roundballers will take a holiday break and be back in action Jan. 6 at Norfolk Catholic.

Tournaments At Pender, Newman Grove

Two high school holiday basketball tournaments should supply plenty of hoop action for area fans over the Christmas break.

The Pender Holiday Tournament gets underway Monday, Dec. 27, with Allen Squaring off against Wakefield at 7. Pender takes on Emerson at 8:30 in the second pairing. Final action is scheduled for Tuesday, Dec. 28, with the consolation round pitting the losers of the previous night's game at 7, and the championship game spotlighting the winners at 8:30.

Four other cage crews will have it Thursday and Friday, Dec. 29 and 30 at the Newman Grove tournaments. Pairings Wednesday the 29th will see Winside battling Silver Creek at 6:30, with Wolbach challenging Newman Grove at 8.

Second-round action in the tournaments is scheduled to begin at 6:30 Thursday the 30th with Wednesday night's losers competing for consolation honors. The winners of the Wednesday night pairings will battle it out Thursday at 8 for the championship.

Sun Schedule

Rec League Wins For Teams 6, 5, 2

Men's recreational basketball action Monday at the C. G. Auditorium saw Team 6 downing Team 1, 52-31. Team 7 ripped Team 4, 58-48, while Team 2 edged past Team 3, 52-47.

In the first game, Dick Dimaio led Team 6 with 13 points, and John Dorsey added 11. None of the losers scored in double figures, but John Wessel combined for 15. The winners forged ahead with 21 points in the third quarter, will limit Team 1 to 11.

Mike Blitt, with 15 points, and Hank Overin, with 12, paced Team 7 past Team 1, 53-48, in the second game. For the losers, Darrell Doeschler shined through 21 and Wayne Wessel contributed 13. For the third quarter allowed Team 5 to pull away, scoring 17 points while limiting Team 4 to only seven.

The finale proved to be close, with Team 2 battling Team 3 to a 52-47 finish. Team 2 came back from a one-point deficit at the end of the third period to score 16 points to Team 3's 10 in the final stanza.

Randy Roberts hit on 19 points for the winners, and Bill Workman notched 12 counters. Spearheading the losers' attack were Herb Swan with 19 and Mike Laefe with 11.

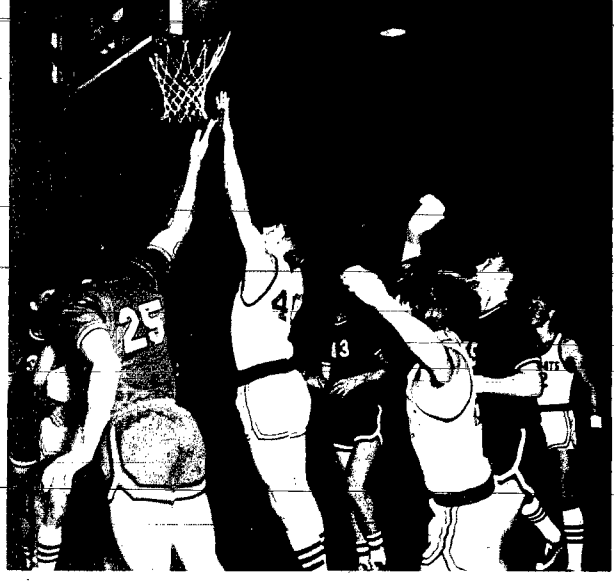

Next action for the Recreational League is scheduled for Monday, Dec. 27. Team 3 meets Team 6 at 7, Team 5 and Team 1 tangle at 8 and Team 2 plays Team 4 at 9. All games are played at the Wayne City Auditorium. There is no admission charge, and the public is welcome.

Blue Devils Fail to Place In Mat Meet

Wayne High School's Blue Devil matmen failed to place in the 15-team Wahoo Invitational wrestling meet, Saturday, at Wahoo.

None of the Blue Devils placed individually, either, though four of coach Don Koenig's charges did manage victories. In the 119-pound class, Rick Kay won his first match by decision, and lost his second by decision. At 155, Ken Frahm won his first match and lost his second match, both on decisions, and at heavyweight, Roger Frahm decided his first opponent and lost by decision in the second round.

The most successful Blue Devil at the meet was Ken Ote in the 167-pound class. Ote won his first two matches on a pin and a decision, and lost by decision in the third round.

Winside's Greg Titterington (40) hits for two of 19 points in Tuesday night's ill-fated venture against the Pender Dragons at Winside. Pender's Barry Mabie (25) tries to thwart the attempt as teammate John Smith (43) and other partisans ready themselves for a possible rebound.

Winside Still Seeking Initial Win After Bowing to Pender by a 68-43 Margin

The winless Winside Wildcats found the Pender Dragons too hot to handle Tuesday night at Winside, as the visitors put through 43 points in the second and third quarters on their way to a 68-43 win.

The Wildcats hit on eight points in the first quarter, holding Pender to 11, as the teams "got acquainted." Both squads picked their shots and played cautious defense.

The second quarter saw Winside remain cold, hitting poorly from the field and playing ragged defense. Pender started to click, with the defense switching to an unbreakable full-court press, forcing the Wildcats into taking numerous bad shots. Under the boards, Pender's John Smith and Craig Merry dominated, sharing responsibilities for much of the Dragons' possession time. The visitors pressed the advantage, passing frequently inside to Barrie Mabie, and exploding for 25 points.

Third-period action was almost as lopsided, with Winside at first appearing to have found the range. The Wildcats outscored their opponents 5-3 in the opening minutes. Pender's press put the pressure on again after the early chill, again forcing bad passes and frequent turnovers. The Dragons, hitting again, canned 18 counters, putting the game out of reach by holding Winside to only seven.

Leading, 54-24, at the start of the final stanza, the visitors relaxed slightly, but still hit 14 points. With about two minutes gone, the Wildcats started to get hot for the first time, as Greg Titterington accounted for nine points, most from inside. Winside cashed in on five of six free throws, and outscored Pender by five with a 19-point final Tim Lake was top scorer for the visitors, with six points.

Laurel Surprised in One-Point Loss To a Sizzling-Hot Stanton Quintet

Stanton was playing on a foreign court, but the Mustangs acted like they owned the job as they handed host team Laurel a real heart-breaking loss, 58-58, Tuesday night.

The Mustangs took only 34 pokes at the bucket but ripped the cords on 19 of those pokes for a fantastic 56 per cent average from the field.

Even then, Laurel, suffering only its second loss of the season, had maintained the advantage throughout the first half, on top by 15-12 at the end of the first period and by 24-22 at intermission, even with 11 of 38 shots finding the mark during that time.

Randy Havens, who scored only six points in the first half, came through with 20, counters in the third- and fourth quarters, his drives too much for the Bears to handle. Thirteen of those points came in the third frame when Stanton took a 42-38 command.

It was a see-saw battle throughout the fourth, the leadership changing hands five times after a 49-49 deadlock.

Laurel had a 54-53 edge when a ball left went into the hands of Havens who scored to make it 55-54. Stanton-Laurel's try from the field missed and, in the melee for the ball, John Wild was fouled and came through with two clutch free throws to give the Mustangs a three-point lead with only 14 seconds remaining on the clock.

Keith Olsen gave Laurel backers another breath of life when he put the ball through the hoop to shave the margin to one, but time ran out before Laurel could again get possession of the ball or call time out.

Dazzling accuracy from the free-throw line by Stanton was another big factor in the outcome. The Mustangs got only 26 charity chances, but meshed all but five. Laurel had the edge from the field, 23-19, but added only 12 of 18 from the stripe.

George Schroeder, Laurel's candidate for all-state honors, was badly hurt by fouls, sitting out a minute and a half in the third with his fourth assessment and charged with his fifth foul with 57 left. Schroeder collected 16 rebounds and an equal number of points before leaving.

The Laurel quint had good scoring balance, Keith Olsen with 17, Bruce Johnson with 13 and Chuck Hirschman with 10. Gary Clarke was absent from the lineup with the flu.

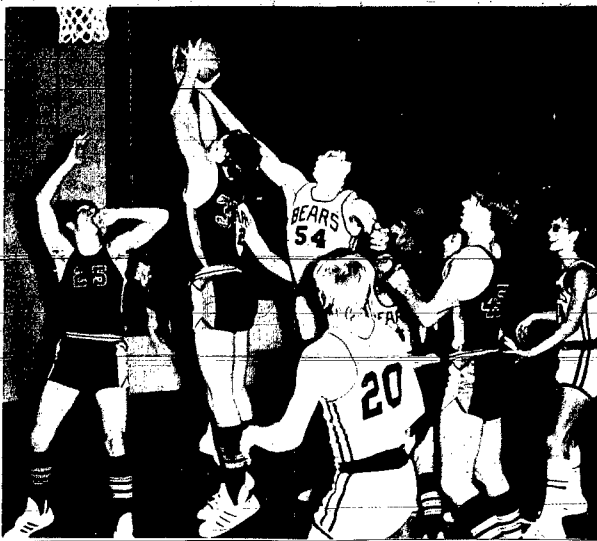

On the other side of the ledger, 44 of Stanton's total was by two players, Havens with 26 and Lennie Pohlman with 18 during the Mustangs' fifth win in six outings this season.

The paddle-like snout of the paddlefish serves no apparent purpose. A fish will continue to live if the "paddle" is injured or even broken off.

"Oh, no you don't!" Stanton's Rand Havens attempts to haul in a rebound, but first he has to deal with the likes of Laurel's 4-4 George Schroeder. The Mustangs' Earl Schwartz (25) and John Wild (45) are ready to help, as the Bears' Bruce Johnson (20) moves in. Exciting play under the boards was just part of the 59-58 heart-stopper that saw Stanton downing Laurel Tuesday night at Laurel.

Economic - Stabilization Questions and Answers

Q.—Are increases in pay resulting from promotions excluded from the 5.5 per cent limitation set by the "Pay Board"?

A.—Bonafide promotions are excluded from the 5.5 per cent annual aggregate limitation, since remuneration goes with the job, not the man.

Q.—May a retailer who does not have the required display of base prices in his store raise his price?

A.—No. The Price Commission specifically requires the retailer to prominently display the base price of all food products unless exempt and either those 40 items in each department which have the highest dollar sales volume or those items which amount to 50 per cent of total dollar sales for the department, whichever is less.

Q.—What businesses are subject to price increases and reporting of their price increases?

A.—Firms with annual sales or revenues of $100 million or more are subject to price increases. In addition, they must file quarterly reports with the Price Commission. Firms with annual sales or revenues between $50 million and $100 million must file quarterly reports with the Price Commission, but they do not need to obtain advance approval of price increases.

Q.—What businesses are subject to price increases and reporting of their price increases?

A.—Firms for price increases and reports are available at the local offices of the Internal Revenue Service.

NORTHEAST EXTENSION Notes

by Myrtle Anderson

It is exciting and pleasurable to have family and friends for holiday dinners, parties and gatherings, and the hostess is entitled to enjoy herself. It takes a little planning to make this possible and it can start in the kitchen.

To keep the kitchen from being the bottleneck and to allow the hostess to spend more time with company, it is important to plan not only the menu and cook-ahead, but also the kitchen aspect.

Looking ahead eliminates some of the pots and pans for preparation. But at party time there will still be plenty of cookware, serving dishes, plates and silverware in no time at all the sink and all counter space can be filled to overflowing.

To keep things as organized as possible, select a few large containers — clean plastic pails and basins are good. These can be filled with hot sudsy water while food is cooking. As pots and pans come off the stove, rinse and soak in the pre-arranged container or floor-based solutions, out of the way.

Set out one or two plastic bag-lined garbage pails of suitable size. Even a small kitchen can accommodate something for refuse. Before serving, fill one section of a double sink, or a dishpan placed on the counter, with sudsy water. As plates are removed from the table, scrape, rinse and put into the soaking pan.

In this way, much of the cleanup work can be simplified. Later, after the festivities, it is an easy matter to wash dishes and cookware because food will not have hardened on the surfaces. And as added bonuses, your efficiency will make you a more relaxed hostess enjoying the occasion and will keep guests from feeling that they must lend helping hands.

Firemen Answer Call

The Winslow Volunteer Fire Department answered a call to the Terry Thies farm east of Winslow early Sunday morning. Brush, which had been ignited when the wind came up that night, firemen stayed with the fire about three hours to keep it from spreading to nearby buildings and a stack of baled straw. Teenagers passing by the place had noticed smoke and awakened the Thies family. The call for help was made about 2:45 a.m.

May you have a very Merry Christmas and may this season bring much cheer to your home and heart in every way. Very sincere thanks, too.

Tidings of Gladness and Joy

May the spiritual joy of the Holy Season reside in your hearts and bring you outward happiness, inner contentment.

Modern Army Undergoes 'Slight' Change

...you'll never get rich digging a ditch, you're in the Army now..." Those words by Irving Berlin, don't hold much weight anymore.

Not only is the Army developing an automatic fox hole digger, but pay has been increased to the point that a new private makes as much money, if not more, than a young man or woman starting his first civilian job.

Under the new pay bill passed by Congress, which went into effect Nov. 14, privates in the Army start off at $268.50 a month. And, according to Sgt. Don Cleveger, Army recruiter, through rapid promotions, it's possible for a soldier to be promoted to E4 and make as much as $323.40 a month within 12 months of entering service.

And, in addition to the pay, all enlisted men get free room and board. "That's worth quite a bit of money, too," Sgt. Cleveger explained.

The increase in Army pay is part of the government's program to make the Army a more attractive place at which to work. "Basically, we look upon the Army as our place of work," Sgt. Cleveger said. "Each man has a job to do, and when it's quitting time, he leaves his job and his time is his own."

Sgt. Cleveger explained that most of the Army is now on a five-day work week, and that re-entire formations have been cut out. "Now, all a man must do is be at his job on time, just as in the civilian business world."

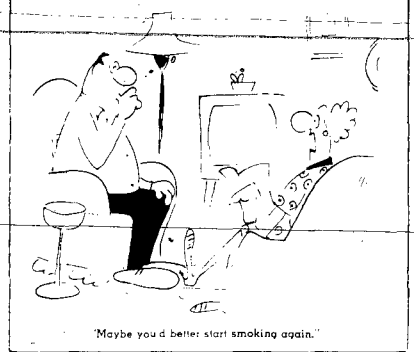

Living conditions also have improved. At many posts, soldiers have semi-private rooms, as opposed to the old barracks of World War II vintage. Dining facilities have changed, too. Soldiers eat at small tables, off dishes instead of trays, and usually have a choice of entree, dessert and appetizer.

Sports and recreation facilities are being expanded, too. Most Army posts have swimming pools, golf courses, tennis courts, full gymnasiums, flying and sky diving clubs, art and crafts centers, and many other recreational facilities. "And, of course, the post exchanges and commissaries enable servicemen and their families to get even more for their dollar," Sgt. Cleveger said.

Sgt. Cleveger also explained that the Army is permitting men to pick locations where they would like to serve. "We have programs where men can pick areas in the United States, and other parts of the world where they would like to serve," he said. "Of course, some of the more popular locations such as Europe and Hawaii are not always available, but most of the time we can accommodate enlistees."

A virtually every man or woman who enters the Army as an enlistee receives a written guarantee of some form, Sgt. Cleveger said. "It might be a guarantee assuring the assignment location, or the training he desires. And, we stand behind that written guarantee."

As Sgt. Cleveger would never recall, World War II veteran would never require today's Army. In 1941, privates only made $21 a month. Today's Army "TSP" what the Army used to be."

Reinforced Roofs Required on Cars

Passenger cars will have stronger roofs beginning Aug. 15, 1973, according to the U.S. Department of Transportation. The DOT has issued Safety Standard 218 which should aid in reducing the number of traffic deaths and injuries in roll-over accidents where the roof is crushed down into the passenger compartment. The new standard requires stronger door, side window and windshield areas which will help preserve the overall structure of the vehicle in a crash and decrease the likelihood of occupants being thrown out. The new standard applies to all passenger cars except convertibles. d25A32

Proposed Park Not Welcomed

Blueprints were placed on the board at the Cedar County Agricultural Society meeting Dec. 14 for a proposed recreational park and camp grounds which would be located adjacent to the Hartington Fairgrounds. A State Parks and Recreational representative was in attendance to note the feelings of the group. Cedar County Commissioner Otto Dendinger opposed the proposal on the grounds of lack of funds necessary to promote the county-wide project. Feeling high against the proposal which was tabled. Though state funds could be made available by leasing the ground, the park would still be tax supported. In other action the society approved a proposal by the Snowmobile Association to lease the fairgrounds for winter parties. The financial report was reviewed and several Cedar County residents were recognized for their services during the county fair. Recognition was also given John H. Stockwell and Associates of Hartington and Logan Valley Construction Co., Inc. of Laurel for their part in the newly constructed hobby stock car race track at the fair grounds. Election of "board" members concluded the evening. Three members retained their positions and one new member was elected, bringing the total to 12 board members. One hundred twelve members and guests attended the meeting which was held at the Wagon Wheel Steak House. d25A33

Rev. Doniver Peterson, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, delivered a Christmas message at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Modas noon. Rev. Peterson used Christmas carols as the theme of his address, the four phases being quietness, faith, peace and joy. He pointed out that quietness is an important part of a person's preparation for the Christmas season—meditation concerning the true meaning of Christmas—as pointed out in a number of the Christmas carols. Faith in God was urged by Rev. Peterson, who said that God had given the greatest gift of all—Jesus Christ. "Peace is absent from many parts of the world today, with man at war against man and individual against individual," Rev. Peterson stated. "But we have this final hope for peace—in God." Joy is mentioned in many carols in conjunction with the Christmas season, Rev. Peterson reminded. "Honder these four things during the Christmas season," he concluded. d25A59

Allen Firemen Launch Campaign

At their annual oyster supper and business meeting Tuesday evening, Allen Firemen decided to launch a campaign for funds with which to improve the present rescue equipment. A financial goal of $5,000 to go toward the purchase of a new ambulance and other up-to-date equipment, was set.

Donations may be sent to the Security State Bank in care of Craig Williams, or to Clarence Jeffrey, chairman of the Allen Rescue Unit.

New officers elected at the Tuesday meeting are Bill Kjer, fire chief; Jerry Schroeder, president; Sam Knipper, vice-president; Jim Mitchell, secretary; and Craig Williams, treasurer.

Honey Sunday

A suitable building for the hostel has not yet been located. It is hoped that a four- or five-bedroom, older home can be found. The hostel will serve as a sort of dormitory for workshop students who live too far away to commute daily. Houseparents will be hired to oversee those living at the hostel.

Wayne's Honey Sunday

drive, completed recently, added $200 to the hostel fund according to Pastor Donald Meyer, who was chairman for that campaign. The Wakefield drive was sponsored by the Wakefield Ministerial Association.

Drawing

The first 14 numbers drawn will have the first chance to claim the prizes. If any of the holders of the first 14 numbers do not claim the prizes within the allotted time, the holder of the 15th number may claim the prize. This procedure will continue until there are 14 winners or until all 50 numbers have been used.

The lowest number from one to 50 will receive the $500 cash prize, with the next five lowest numbers receiving $100 cash prizes. The next eight lowest numbers will receive the bicycles.

In case of inclement weather, the alternate date of Dec. 27 has been set for awarding the $500 cash prize. If the alternate date is used, the time of the give-away will be 5 p.m. instead of 8 p.m. If the drawing cannot be held Dec. 27, the Retail Committee will set another alternate date.

Business owners, managers and immediate families are not eligible to win prizes.

Thursday night's festivities will feature two other drawings.

The Rev. Gail Axen (above) presented three Wayne boys with the highest award in Boy Scouting Sunday at the Eagle Court of Honor. At right, Mrs. Miron Jenness has the honor of naming the Eagle award on her son, Vincent. Vincent's brother, Carl, and Jimmy Brasch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Brasch, also achieved Eagle rank.

Three Local Youths Win Eagle Awards

Three Wayne youths Sunday were presented the highest honor in Boy Scouting. The three achieving Eagle Scout status were Carl Jenness, 14, and Vincent Jenness, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Miron Jenness, and Jimmy Brasch, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Brasch.

The presentation ceremony, known as the Eagle Court of Honor, was held at 2 p.m. in the Wayne High lecture hall. Rep. Charles Thone originally was scheduled to deliver the challenge address, but was unable to be present. In a telegram, Thone expressed regret at being unable to attend, due to bad flying weather, and congratulated the Scouts on their achievements. Thone stated his intention to visit the Scouts personally when next in Wayne.

The Rev. Gail Axen of Carroll, himself an Eagle Scout and troop leader, presented the youths' mothers and fathers with pins marking them as parents of Eagle Scouts, and then presented the coveted awards to the boys.

To achieve Eagle status, a Scout must advance through five ranks, winning 21 merit badges and attaining competence in such areas as first aid, water safety and camping.

Delivering the challenge address is Thone's place, Axen outlined the history of the Boy Scouts, and charged the new Eagles to observe the Scout motto by "being prepared." Axen placed much of the responsibility for the boys' success with their

The regularly scheduled Cash Night drawing will be held immediately following the Christmas Give-Away, at about 8:30 p.m. This week, the cash jackpot has risen to $350.

Miss Wittler accompanies the children's singing with her guitar. "The children really love this," she relates, "and they really sing out." Judy's house isn't very large and sometimes their singing is sort of deafening but it's enlightening to hear.

Installation will be Jan. 14.

Guitar Accompaniment

They usually sing religious words to the tune of a song that is familiar to the children. Such as "Old MacDonald had a farm" or "Mary had a little lamb". Mrs. Richtermeier holds the large song cards so the children can see the words while Mrs. Wittler plays her guitar.

But during the Christmas season they sing the familiar Christmas carols. Tuesday afternoon they went caroling and let others hear the Christmas story by their singing.

Several mothers volunteered to serve the hot lunch for the children when they returned from their "concert tour." (Otherwise, Mrs. Richtermeier gives them a candy bar or something they can eat on their way home.)

"Usually the mothers come for the children and sometimes, by prior arrangement, Mrs. Richtermeier takes them home. "My home doesn't have a foyer or enclosed porch," states Mrs. Richtermeier, "so the children come directly into the living room and we hold the meetings in the dining room—1st-30+ children in the wintertime means 60 boots. And it's almost a miracle in itself that each child has one right boot and one left boot, whether they belong to the same pair or not, when they get ready to go home."

Working for God

But then I remember that I am doing something for the Lord by helping the children.

Mrs. Wittler reminds us that the word "gospel" in Greek means good news. And the good news in everyone's faith is that Christ came to earth to die for our sins.

These women are telling the story of Christmas to children of every faith in their community. They are trying to do something about keeping the Christmas spirit and Christmas togetherness all year round.

"After all," Mrs. Richtermeier says, "isn't that the real reason for the story of Christmas?"

parents and with Scoutmaster Rowan Wiese, leader of Troop 175. The three were Wiese's first Eagles in his six-year term as troop leader.

The new-Eagles plan to remain active in their troop, assisting the Scoutmasters and instructing younger scouts.

Two-Day Campout

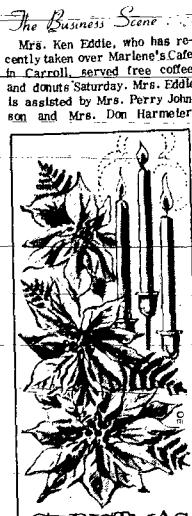

Scout Troop 174 of Wayne will go camping Monday and Tuesday near Martinsburg. The destination is an isolated timber area north of the town and southwest of Forest.

About 10 scouts are planned to make the overnight expedition with toboggans and sleds hauling equipment about a mile and half from road's end.

Dale Tomrdle, senior patrol leader, and Dick Manley, chairman of the troop committee, are in charge of the campout.

Weather

It may not be a white Christmas after all. Precipitation so far for December has been in short supply. The only moisture as of Dec. 22 was 12 inch, coming in the form of 2 inches of snow on Dec. 8.

Annual Supper is Monday—American Legion and Auxiliary held their annual family Christmas supper at the Legion Hall December 13. Fifty attended.

A Christmas program was presented afterward led by Deemette Vond Minden and Marilyn Creamer. Children of Legion families lit candles as the Christmas story was read. Brenda Stalling, Juli and LeEta Keil, Shelly and Barbara Creamer and Donna Stalling lit candles. Scott Von Minden and Jeff Creamer played trumpet solos and duets with Lori Von Minden and Darcy Swanson at the piano. The entire group joined in the singing of carols. A free will offering was taken for the "Gifts for Yanks" project.

Guitar Accompaniment

They usually sing religious words to the tune of a song that is familiar to the children. Such as "Old MacDonald had a farm" or "Mary had a little lamb". Mrs. Richtermeier holds the large song cards so the children can see the words while Mrs. Wittler plays her guitar.

But during the Christmas season they sing the familiar Christmas carols. Tuesday afternoon they went caroling and let others hear the Christmas story by their singing.

Several mothers volunteered to serve the hot lunch for the children when they returned from their "concert tour." (Otherwise, Mrs. Richtermeier gives them a candy bar or something they can eat on their way home.)

"Usually the mothers come for the children and sometimes, by prior arrangement, Mrs. Richtermeier takes them home. "My home doesn't have a foyer or enclosed porch," states Mrs. Richtermeier, "so the children come directly into the living room and we hold the meetings in the dining room—1st-30+ children in the wintertime means 60 boots. And it's almost a miracle in itself that each child has one right boot and one left boot, whether they belong to the same pair or not, when they get ready to go home."

Working for God

But then I remember that I am doing something for the Lord by helping the children.

Mrs. Wittler reminds us that the word "gospel" in Greek means good news. And the good news in everyone's faith is that Christ came to earth to die for our sins.

These women are telling the story of Christmas to children of every faith in their community. They are trying to do something about keeping the Christmas spirit and Christmas togetherness all year round.

"After all," Mrs. Richtermeier says, "isn't that the real reason for the story of Christmas?"

THE WAYNE HERALD

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786

One for the Road

If a friend ere a host you would be, Pay heed to these maxims three: Cut down on the liquor, Bring food on much quicker— And make 'one for the road' either coffee or tea.

The Cornhusker Motor Club has turned to verse form to get across its annual advice to party-givers this holiday season.

And, although the above limerick hits only the high points of its 'First a Friend—Then a Host' campaign, the Nebraska AAA affiliate has some specific guidelines to round out its message.

'Dynamite'

The AAA notes that winter offers extra driving hazards; that the period from 9 p.m. until midnight has an exceptionally high accident rate; and that a tipsy motorist heading for home after a party can add to the dynamite on the road.

Knowing that it's hardly realistic to ask many hosts not to serve liquor at all, the Nebraska motoring organization offers the following "soft sell" approaches to de-emphasizing alcohol:

—Greet your guests with that first drink, then steer them toward a self-service bar. They'll generally make those highballs weaker than you would.

—Guests will hardly notice there's less "hard stuff" available if the bar also includes delicious punches and soft drinks in decorative containers. A warning that many party-goers feel that they "must have something 'drink-like'" in their hand or look out-of-place; and often would select something non-alcoholic if it is available.

—Demonstrate your lavishness with eye-appealing and tasty food served throughout the evening. Starchy foods help dissipate the effects of alcohol quicker than other foods.

Game Time

—Midway through the evening, organize an activity that will involve everyone, focusing the attention away from the bar. (A limerick contest, maybe?)

—About an hour before guests are due to leave, serve coffee or tea. This won't sober anyone up, but it's a fine substitute for that "one for the road."

—If, in spite of your efforts, you wind up with a guest who has over-imbibed, you have two alternatives: Ask someone to drive him home or invite him to stay the night.

If you do these things, you'll prove that you're "first a friend... then a host," says AAA.

Innocent Victim

A national survey indicates that drinking drivers not only kill themselves off at a phenomenal rate, but also are responsible for 44 per cent of the deaths of "not at fault" drivers.

And charts that tell you how much you can safely drink and then drive are not always true, AAA points out. Many of the charts indicate the legal drinking limit and do not take into account that they are a far cry from being the safe drinking limit.

Any man who thinks he has full control of himself and his car when his blood alcohol content is at the legal limit of 0.10 per cent may be the same man who will jump a median strip and hit your car head-on.

Human Element

Typical charts take into account a person's body weight, how many ounces of alcohol he drinks and the time it takes to consume it. But the charts don't take into account the human element. For example, most charts would show that a person drinking two ounces of liquor within the period of an hour would not legally be a drunken driver.

But, after two drinks, most persons will lose most of his inhibitions and one of the first to go is the will to resist further drinking.

The first ability to be impaired is the power to reason, followed quickly, by impairment of vision, coordination and reaction time.

So, think about it the second time when you take that "one for the road."

The Herald can't afford to lose any subscribers.

'We're Everybody'

Sunday night, the editor found a bunch of kids Christmas caroling on Oak Drive. So what if they were a trifle off-key? They were making a joyful noise, and that was the important thing.

Figuring the effort to be adult-investigated and coordinated, the editor asked them, "Do you belong to some church group?"

"Now," came the reply, "we're Lutherans, Catholics, Methodists... we're everybody."

The youngster probably didn't realize it, but that statement, made with such a natural alacrity, distills the Christmas spirit to its essence. Without regard to religious or social affiliations, the kids mounted their own spontaneous smile campaign.

It worked. Everyone who wanted to join in was included. No membership cards were required, because the kids knew no one had a corner on Christmas.

The fact is that human existence should be a basically non-partisan experience. "We're everybody," the kid said. That we are. Let's hope those youngsters don't forget it. Because that's Christmas.

—Joel Knutson

Non-partisan youngsters, shivering, but singing lustily, spread the good news of Christmas along Oak Drive Sunday night.

Capital News

Christmas Spirit -- Or Lobbyists, Pressure?

LINCOLN — Perhaps it was the sprit of Christmas. More likely, it was the result of some hurry-up lobbying—and the threat that unionization of state employees would be accelerated.

In any case, the Legislature's Budget Committee changed its mind and rewrote the policy it had adopted on state salaries for the fiscal year beginning next July 1. This report a week ago told of the committee's decision to base its salary appropriations on a $300-per-year raise for each full-time equivalent position in state government.

There were many employees—the most active of which were on the faculties of the University of Nebraska and the state colleges—who didn't think that was enough. Their raises had been limited to $300, on the average, for the current year, and they claimed they weren't even keeping up with the increase in the cost of living at that rate.

At UNI, faculty members huddled late in the week and plotted strategy designed to show the lawmakers that the educational quality of the university would suffer if experienced teachers began leaving for better pay elsewhere.

Lobbying Aid

They enlisted the lobbying aid of businessmen who were friends of higher education and who accepted their arguments that Nebraska's young people would suffer if the quality of the university declined.

NU President D. B. Varner issued a statement saying the $300 raise would be a serious blow to morale on his campuses.

Deans prepared lists to show the effect of the last $300 hike on their staffs.

Furthermore, there were statements from employee organizations who said collective bargaining—permitted on a no-strike basis under new state law—can be expected soon if the salary figures weren't improved.

What's more, Gov. J. James Exon wasn't satisfied with the paycheck formula written by the committee for inclusion in the budget bills it will submit to the 1972 Legislature.

There was behind-the-scenes talk that Exon would force a floor showdown on the salary issue unless the committee became more generous.

The result was reconsideration by the legislative budgeters.

Before they wound up a marathon series of hearings and executive sessions, they revised their salary policy.

New Policies

Under the new policy, appropriations for personal services (that's the budget term for salaries) will be based on a 2.5 per cent increase and an additional $200 for each full-time equivalent position.

No one is to get less than $300 in added salary and no one is to get more than $600.

Here's an example of how the new formula would work: Take an employee making $10,000 now. The 2.5 per cent factor adds $250 to his salary. The $200 factor raises that to $10,450.

Before the revision, the best he could have done was $10,300.

Employees whose present salary is $4,000 a year or less would get the minimum. The maximum would go to those making $16,000 or more.

Under terms of the policy, agency administrators would decide how to divide up the salary appropriations. The formula is merely a basis for determining how much will be put—as a lump sum—into the agency budgets for salary use.

That means some employees will receive different sizes of raises even though they now earn the same amount. It all depends on how the agency chiefs decide to reward their employees.

Inspection Program

Budget-committee members considered erasing funds for the controversial motor vehicle inspection program.

After long debate—during which Sen. John S. Savage of Omaha described the program as "the biggest fraud in the State of Nebraska"—the lawmakers decided to keep the program going, but to make available to the State Motor Vehicles Department all the funds it gets from sticker sales.

Previously, the legislators had put a limit on how much of the cash it got from the 25-cents-per-sticker revenue the department would spend. Director John Kissack had complained that he couldn't monitor the work of the inspection stations because he wasn't able to hire enough field men to get the job done.

The committee decided to take off the restrictions on spending and give Kissack a chance to show what he could do.

But the department was put on notice that the Legislature might knock out the program next year. If it keeps receiving reports that some inspection stations will pass a car no matter what shape it's in and that others will require expensive—but unneeded—repairs from unsuspecting motorists.

Medical Tuitions

In preparing the budget recommendations for the University of Nebraska, the committee decided to tie the cash funds it makes available to the NU Medical Center to increased tuitions.

The rate for Nebraska residents who enroll as medical students will climb $100—from $750 to $850 per year. Non-residents will have to pay $150 more per year—$1,750 instead of $1,600.

Rates for most allied health courses also climbed, but nursing tuition remained the same.

Wayne Holidays -- 1890

By the 1890's, when railroad transportation had brought more consumer goods to most areas of Nebraska and travel from one area to another was easier, Christmas observances began to take on more sophistication and some of the frontier austerity began to disappear. Nebraska paper files of the Nebraska State Historical Society recount the Yuletide celebration of that decade.

At Scotia's Presbyterian Church in 1895 for the Christmas eve program the adults—constructed a miniature ferris wheel on small scale... revolving and beautifully decorated with white and evergreen, and lighted with hundreds of tapers. Impressed children, "determined not to be outdone by their elders," presented the program and were rewarded by gifts.

A "Baby Santa Claus," the Scotia Register editor said, "deserves special mention for the way he entertained the children," but the writer did not say how.

The Methodist Church at Scotia featured a "lastly trimmed tree on which gifts were tied for the children. An elaborate program included numbers by Williams' Cornet Band, exercises by Mrs. Humphreys and Mr. Miller's Sunday School pupils, and recitations by James Cooper, Grace Cooper, Jess Scott, Birdie West, Grace Lindner and Zaida Miller.

Scotians also were tempted to travel during the holidays on Union Pacific Railroad rates at about half price, which were good until Jan. 4 on lines within 200 miles of the ticket-purchasing station. J. D. Watts' Rocket Grocery advertised toys, clothing, and confections for Yuletide giving. Candy was seven cents a pound, nuts up to 15 cents, and trailing 75¢ Counters, oranges and bananas, just received, were available, but no price given.

At Wayne (The Herald reported) three well-planned Christmas services by churches: The Baptists had rehearsed "The Christmas Story," in which children represented their counterparts in Africa, China, Turkey and Japan. The play, given in the evening, was followed by treats brought by the church members.

The Methodists held a religious service and program in the church on Sunday evening, then on Dec. 28 planned another observance, at the Opera House with cake and ice cream (in winter!), a literary program, and games.

The Presbyterians had a church-oriented program Sunday and a Yule program Monday, with gifts and a tree "to add pleasure to the occasion."

In Banner County, where a railroad made travel more difficult, "a general invitation was extended to all to attend the community Christmas entertainment and tree in the (Garrison) hall." An "excellent program" had been prepared, the news reported. The paper's ads indicate little attempt to commercialize Christmas but merely offered "reductions on all Christmas goods."

Nevertheless the rural correspondent at Swede Point worried that the situation was getting out of hand. He wrote News editor A. J. Shumway: "Now, Mr. Editor, Christmas or Yule will soon be here. The Americans think about the turkey and cranberry sauce, the Englishman his plum pudding, and the Swede his lutefisk and loofe ball. But we should not forget Him who was born in the Bethlehem barn. I think it would be far better to tell your children of that time and beautiful story than to fill their innocent minds with Santa Claus stories and other nonsense. A Merry Christmas to you and your readers."

VA Answers to Vets' Questions

Q—I am moving next month. Should I notify the Veterans Administration or the Treasury Department so I'll get my pension check at my new address?

A—You should notify the VA regional office whose your records are filed giving your claim number and your old and new address. Also notify your post office but not the Treasury Department.

Q—I am attending school under the GI Bill, and my wife has given birth to a son. How do I notify the Veterans Administration of this additional dependent?

A—Forward immediately to your VA regional office a copy of the child's birth record. Be careful to write your VA file number on the document. It is advisable to attach a note advising the VA that you are training under the GI Bill. A letter to the VA about the birth will provide an earlier effective date for increased benefits if you are delayed in receiving a birth certificate.

tatoes with the fish.
"We used to serve the lutefisk, the potatoes, and the sauces separately," says Lundin, "but that was too much work. Now we serve the fish in the cream sauce."
"My family used to make the real mustard sauce. It was so strong my uncle used to cry when eating it, but he still loved it," says Lundin.

Smell — or Taste?

Soderberg says lutefisk is "more smell than taste" to him. Mrs. Sina Johnson suggests that it was the soaking solution that caused the strong smell, not the fish.
"Lutefisk probably smells just like other fish," she says. "Some of the substance left from soaking probably caused it to smell when cooking. It isn't as noticeable now."
In the past, lutefisk was often the main dish. Now, as Swedish blood has been diluted in the American melting pot, the fish is often served with another dish, such as turkey or ham.

"When we are alone," says Lundin, "we still have a meal with just the fish. But when we are having company who don't like lutefisk, we also serve something else."
Brown beans are often served with lutefisk and potatoes. These are a special type of bean. "Some people have tried to fix white beans like brown beans, but that just doesn't work," Mrs. Johnson says.

Potato Bologna

Potato bologna remains a holiday favorite. People used to make potato bologna at home.
"We had a room upstairs which was quite cold," says Mrs. Sina Johnson. "That's where we made things like this."
Some people still make potato bologna at home but most is commercially produced.
"We sell approximately 1,000 pounds during the holiday season," says Bob Paul, who operates the Wakefield Locker

Service with his brother, Gene. Potato bologna usually includes potatoes, beef, pork, onions, flavorings and spices. It is usually prepared by simmering in a small amount of water for an hour or more.

Ostkaka

Ostkaka and rice pudding headline the dessert column. Ostkaka is made with curdled milk, eggs and cream. "It doesn't look very promising when it goes into the oven," says Mrs. Robert Johnson.
Mrs. Johnson is a Norwegian who slipped into Swedenland via the Salem Lutheran Church parsonage. She learned to make Ostkaka because of her interest in all Scandinavian food.
"Ostkaka is usually topped with lingonberries or strawberries. Lingonberries are available fresh frozen in pint or quart containers. They are prepared about like cranberries—that is, sweetened and thickened to taste."
"We couldn't get lingonberries the last two years," says Soderberg. "They are grown in Newfoundland which for some reason produced such a small crop those years that it was all contracted to Sweden."

Soderberg and Baker say that lingonberries sell well. "We can sell all that we can get," says Soderberg.

Swedes Like Sweets

"Scandinavians hold and is-puted claim to being the greatest coffee drinkers in the world," and with their coffee they like a bit of sweet," says The Scandinavian Cookbook.
That bit of sweet might be Cardamom Bread (bread) or it might be Covered Wagons (cookies).
Many Swedish people make Covered Wagons, sometimes called Mover Wagons. They are baked on forms to give them a curve. Some of these forms were made from stove piping. (see picture).
Lefsa is another favorite sweet. Mrs. Robert Johnson serves it to her family on Christmas Eve.
"They look like very thin pancakes," she says. "We put lots of sugar on them and roll them like tacos." Lefsa also is eaten plain.
Salt lathering, Bond-ost cheese, fruit soup and breads complement the above.

Annual Dinner

A lutefisk and ham dinner is becoming an annual affair at the Cornhusker Cafe.
"The ham is included for those people who don't like fish," says Mary Dubbs, who operates the cafe with her husband, Don.
"The traditional Swedish side of the menu this year included lutefisk, cream sauce or mustard sauce, boiled potatoes, brown beans, potato bologna, lefsa, rice custard and ostkaka with strawberries."
Approximately 69 pounds of lutefisk and 25 pounds of potato bologna were served, according to Mrs. Dubbs.
"People demanded this dinner," says Mrs. Duggs. "We had no choice."
The Dubbs, who are not Swedish, just acquired the cafe this fall.
"We had a lot of help in the kitchen," says Mrs. Dubbs. "Dorothy Swan made the ostkaka. She must have known what she was doing. (One Swedish lady told me it was the best she had ever tasted)."
There were more older people than younger people at the dinner. "But then our clientele usually runs this way," says Mrs. Dubbs.
Demise Possible
There is some question as to the popularity of Swedish foods with young people and to its possible demise.
Mrs. Paul Eaton's fourth grade class was not encouraging. Although half the class thought they might be Swedish, few of them were familiar with lutefisk or ostkaka.
"Two or three students thought they had eaten lutefisk. As they remembered it, it was served with mashed potatoes and they didn't like it."
Seven students thought they had eaten potato bologna. Three students thought they could remember when potato bologna was made at home. Janet Sierbrandt said they still make potato bologna at her house.

Jimmy Salmon said that his mother eats some of this stuff but he doesn't. A conversation with his mother, Mrs. Gary Don Salmon, confirmed that their family goes—serve Swedish foods at Christmas.
"I guess the kids aren't eating them," she said.
"But then, what kid has time to eat on Christmas—be it beefsteak or be it turkey."

Prepared by Grandma

Two or three students thought that they had heard of ostkaka. They described it as a yellow custard-like dessert. They thought that their grandmother's made it, not their mothers.

Christmas Greetings

As the Christmas season is now upon us, we are being swarmed with gifts, cards, baskets of fruit and other items from a variety of individuals and groups. It is a heartwarming fact that each year produces more and more gifts from these people. We think it show a great deal of increasing concern for the older people. It would be nice if we could thank each and every person or group individually, but, of course, this is impossible. Our heartfelt thanks to all those who have shown they care.

A Beef Comment-

By Walt Tolman

Area Beef Specialist - University of Nebraska Northeast Station

moisture corn kept better in a plastic covered bunker than in an upright silo. We were able to pack it lots better in the bunker, and tear it up less in feeding.

Beef cows often get too fat before calving. Mississippi tests showed as good calf production from cows fed 100 pounds silage and double daily supplement on alternate days as with those fed the same total feed split into daily or twice daily feeds. Alternate day feeding can save labor if feed is to be limited. If bunk space is a problem, it might even be possible to divide the herd into two groups, feeding one bunch each day. If the young, thin and timid cows were in one group, feeding according to need would be possible.

Why grind corn? Whole shelled corn stands weather better. There is labor, power and waste involved in grinding. We have one trial with dry corn whole shelled and one with 24 per cent moisture whole shelled corn. In both cases the shelled corn fed whole produced slightly faster gains with a bit less feed. Our greatest advantage has been early in the finishing period. West Woods had several comparisons between whole shelled and ground corn between 14 and 20 per cent moisture at Mead with about equal gains and conversion. We will be trying high moisture shelled corn stored and fed without grinding or rolling again this winter.

New this winter will be our finishing cattle on high moisture shelled corn which has been preserved by adding acid rather than storing "oxygen free." The acid corn seems to be keeping OK in our open steel bins. We lined the bins with plastic sheet to keep the acid from eating them up. The acid does have a very sharp odor. At Mead the engineers are finding costs, etc. of acid storage of dampfeed. The acid preservation looks good except that several big companies are in a "crash program" of experimentation with it.

Cattle in stalk fields need additional mineral and protein. Self-feeding liquid supplements is becoming popular to satisfy this need. The liquid proteins are usually urea or biuret which are used less efficiently by ruminants fed cattle than the natural protein of blocks or cubes but the saving of labor with the liquid self feeders seems to be the deciding factor.

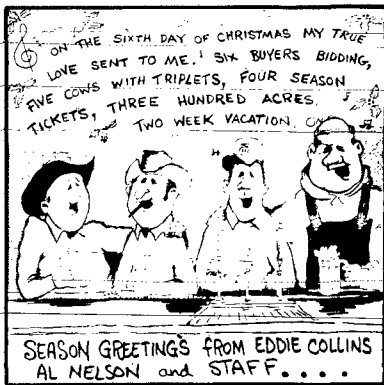

We are running tests again with urea and urea mixtures to supplement corn silage. Again soybean meal is supporting more rapid, economical gains than straight urea or urea containing mixtures. Our only surprise is that corn gluten meal is, so far, outperforming soybean meal. Sometimes corn gluten meal is cheaper than soybean meal.

We continue to like Aureo 5700 in the starting ration of new cattle. Last year we got greater gains, with a feed saving, by using it for the first three weeks. We followed these calves that were Aureo started through a growing test and a finishing test and their early advantage stayed with them all the way. Cattle that were wormed did not gain faster or cheaper at any one of these three stages of their stay, with us.

Dr. O. D. Grace of the University Veterinary Science Department writes of a little known cattle disease, "Haemophilus somni," which may be involved in brain abscesses, but which is also linked to acute respiratory disease, chronic stiffness, hacking cough and chronic pneumonia. He suggests post mortem of dead cattle to pinpoint this disease which can be held in check at early stages by combination sulfa and antibiotic treatment. We may be overlooking diagnostic assistance from our Veterinary Science Department in diagnosing this and other less well known diseases.

Mark your calendar for Jan. 11, the Eastern Nebraska Feeders Day at Wisner.

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

By Eddie Collins

Yes, we have a real cattle market! A light slaughter on Thursday, Dec. 9, through Saturday, Dec. 18, regenerated the carlot beef trade. Twice since Thanksgiving the cattle feeders played Greg, Pruitt and Johnny Rodgers (halfback fantastic). They carried the ball, brushed off the defensive packers and chain stores and ended up last Friday with the most cleaned up beef channels in my memory. Twice dresswise, we had lost $2 a hundred... twice it was regained. The December Chicago Mercantile futures dropped over $1... and I climbed back... Why? How?

The cattle feeders did not panic. At six terminals, the stockyard employees struck, five yards picketed... Fargo, South St. Paul, Sioux Falls, Sioux Falls and Milwaukee. One abstained... Often, packing plant employees refused to cross the picket lines... those terminals, so inflated, dropped from 50 to $1 off the daily pace. Strikes scare me.

Late in 1970, the Monfort strike caused the psychological collapse... and prices were obliterated by $5 a head... but not 1971... hats off to the industry.

Stock Cattle

Stock cattle are unbelievable. I have seen brothers-in-law bidding against each other while sitting "side by side" cattle settling $5 a hundred over the wildest expectation. One group had hit the cow jockey, the sale-to-sale trader. After 100 years of covering an ever-increasing bank float, they will find that a feather-weight head hanging call with pale eyes, running nose and drooping ears... that had cost $50 cwt. fresh... can lose $20 a hundred and at best advance two. Poor odds... a $20 loss to catch $1.

Recollect Mom. When replacement cattle were rumored to be all contracted. Back in August and September every auction owner west of Jonesboro, Ky., sang the blues.

I spoke at the State Cattlemen Conventions in South Dakota, Colorado and Wyoming in June and verbal reports were that each and every valley was being raided... order buyers and the newest competition... the commercial feedlot representative. Buying at from $30-$31 steers, $35-$37 on calves, proven to be now $50 a head cheap.

But cattle turned out to be like fishing in the Great Lakes. According to press propaganda sent out by ecologists, environmentalists and lethologists few fish now exist... yet commercial fishermen do continue to make a living.

Well Mom, these cattle runs came out of the hills and meadows, too.

Daily Contact

I daily telephone many Montana, Idaho, Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota, and Utah cattle buyers... I'll be off in late October but now report their best year ever with runs continuing!

Mom, I daily phone auctions from Texas to Montana to Illinois, plus some dozen terminal markets a day, feedlots in Texas, Kansas, Nebraska and Idaho, at least six beef brokers, chain store buyers and an endless list of packers. Few operators believe there is any way to break this feeder or Stocker Market, except by USDA interference. On that, too, I think you are safe. On beef the same threat prevails. Most feel confident until February.

Iowa First

Accidentally, Iowa is once again in first place with cattle on feed. Highest congratulations should go to the Bankers and Production Credit who had the intestinal fortitude to jump in at the $40 level. Many bankers bled up when calves hit the thirties.

Will someone please write and explain why the Congressional subcommittees were unwilling to subpoena Cargill and Continental Grain who maneuvered the USDA into losing 10 times more monies on Russian-bound oats and barley, than is annually collected and spent on all domestic beef promotions? And, why half the delivered corn was shipped from the Argentine... and why the USDA credibility gap... And,

Fertilizer Advantages

Researchers are discovering more and more each day the only place to put animal manure is on the soil. Its soil conditioning and fertilizing advantages alone help farmers to save on fertilizer costs when this valuable resource is returned to the land.

With a yearly application of 15 tons of manure, corn yields were increased each year by an average of 40 bushels per acre in a four-year trial. Steer manure was plowed down in the fall along with the corn stover. The non-manured check plot areas averaged 88 bushels per acre while the manure plots yielded an average 128 bushels per acre.

The manure treatment alone gave as good a response since yield increases did not go above the 50-bushel level when commercial fertilizer was applied with the manure. On many farms, most fertilizer needs of the corn crop can be met by adequate applications of manure.

Don't forget the very important effects spreading manure in the conventional manner can have on improving soil structure and preventing erosion. A Cornell study shows a farmer who plants a crop of corn each year on the same piece of land finds the soil runoff problem severe if he uses only commercial fertilizer. However, when manure is used, it adds organic matter, stabilizes the soil and retards runoff. The researchers advocate plowing under the manure as soon as possible.

Merry Christmas... every one... Nice to spend my time with you.

able after spreading, or spreading it on fields containing the greatest amount of plant material.

A solution to problems arising from big feedlots and confinement feeding of dairy cattle and hogs is to return the solid waste to the land in sufficient amounts for near maximum production of crops.

Identifying Your Holiday Tree
It's easy to identify pine, fir and spruce trees if you know what to look for.

If the needles are long and in clusters of two, three or five, the tree is a pine—usually Scotch, white or Austrian. These pines will be found in the market during the approaching holidays and are becoming increasingly available from commercial tree growers in Nebraska.

the twig singly, the tree is a spruce or a fir. Needles on most firs and spruce are one-half to one inch long—shorter than pine needles.

When you have decided whether the tree is a spruce or fir, strip the needles from a small branch with your thumb. If the needles leave small bumps on the twig, the tree is a spruce. If there are small depressions on the bark where the needles were, it's a fir. Fir needles are flat compared with spruce or pine needles, which are square or oval.

Scotch, Austrian Red and the white pine are the trees you will see most often for sale in Nebraska.

Certain trees hold their needles better than others when placed in a warm room. Pine hold up best, followed by fir and then spruce.

Merry Christmas

Home is where hearts are... especially during Christmas. Our hope is that every home is filled with the warmth of the true Christmas spirit. Many thanks to everyone.

State-National Farm Management Co.

Rural Ramblings

Well, Christmas time is rolling around again. And the kids are yelling for joy each time another snow covers the few recently-scoped, barren spots around the farm.

Boy, if they had more to do than a few measly chores and just go to school, they'd be yelling the other way.

The kids go sliding down the pasture hill while you go riding down the feed bunk.

The Mrs. says that with a little snow she at least gets in the "Christmas mood."

"Money spending mood" you call it. Nothing but a commercial holiday any more.

She keeps saying not to buy her anything but every time she cleans the milkers or lets the sows out of their pens she thinks out loud about something she needs. Like a new automatic washing machine so she would have more time to spend outside. Or a new dress made out of that no-iron stuff.

Now how does she expect you to know anything about a washing machine? The only way you know of to save suds is to use less soap. And how does she expect you to go into a ladies' department store?

Why, you never go to town unless it's for repairs, feed or some such thing. And you sure never put on your Sunday suit to do that.

Maybe when you take that old hog to the sale barn you should do some shopping.

Wouldn't the sales ladies love that "perfume" instead of Chanel No. 5 it would be Pen No. 5. But the day inevitably arrives when you are scheduled to go shopping. All excuses have failed and you finally consent to at least drive the family to town.

Even the Mrs. who has been shopping for a month has something else to buy!

But a lump sticks in your throat and you have to weaken and admit the street and store window decorations sure are a sight to behold. Well, if it comes handy maybe you will buy a gift or two.

Suddenly everyone but the oldest youngster has some placetogo or something to buy. But it doesn't take you long to figure out that the youngster left behind has been well trained.

Well trained to help you pick out exactly what the Mrs. "didn't want" for Christmas. One good thing, it didn't take you long to know what to buy or where to buy it. Well, honestly, you'd probably spent more money on something that she would have probably taken back the next day. Like she has done for umpteenth years.

And as usual for umpteenth years, no one is ready to go home when you are. The girls can't decide which dress to buy for the Christmas program. You can't understand why they want a new dress for that. They'll probably have their coats on during the entire services and no one will know if they have on a new dress or not.

And the Mrs. can't get the boys out of the toy department long enough to try some new coats on them.

So you mosey over to the dime store and buy a sack of candy. When you hand the tired looking saleslady the 50 cents you wonder why it is called a dime store.

You walk over to a corner near the door where you can be seen by any of the family if perchance they ever come looking for you. About the time you're mauling on the third piece of candy you recognize an old neighbor standing by the other door.

By gosh, it's been years since Joe moved out of your neighborhood. And he's just as glad to see you.

After you've exchanged a few pieces of candy with Joe and you are amidst reminiscing the good old days, the family arrives and is ready to go home.

It's hard to believe that Joe's oldest son is away at college this year. But then you hope that your son will be in college next year.

You bid him farewell and a happy holiday season and are really feeling good that you came shopping.

That is until you try to get everyone and everything in the car. Why in the world didn't you bring the pickup?

The rustle of sacks and the limited elbow-room to drive on the way home make you feel like Old Santa himself. Except that you have Mrs. Santa and the kids along.

On Christmas eve when you're in a hurry the chores seem easier to do than usual. For once.

Old Bossie isn't covered with lights and tinsel but her quietness and complete co-operation assures that everyone and everything can have the Christmas spirit.

Even old Mama Pig was quietly nestled in her pen rather than roaming in the fat cattle yard.

Perhaps the Good Lord sent his message to the animals with the white, fluffy, softly falling snow. You lean on the fence and humbly wonder if you have really counted all of your blessings.

Suddenly loud, shrill, anxious sounds break through the tranquil evening.

"Dad, Mommy wants to know if you are going to church or not."

Well, you grin toward the Good Lord, "there's one of them. See ya in church."

Cattle Feeders Days at Wisner Jan. 11

LINCOLN—Cattle feeders too often have looked for the "miracle additive" to solve problems and here wanted time and money expended on worthless or over-priced products that may reduce profits, a University of Nebraska Extension livestock specialist said last week.

Dr. Paul Guyer, coordinator and a speaker at the upcoming Extension Beef Cattle Feeders' Days, said "real progress can come from the personnel involved in a feeding operation doing their jobs with greater knowledge, skill and dedication."

"Let's put our effort in upgrading feedlot performance with management and quality control programs which will let the cattle and the feeders feel fully express their merit," Guyer suggested.

The NE specialist, who will speak at Wisner Jan. 11 and at Lexington, Jan. 12, noted that the recent period of years has been devoid of major breakthroughs in beef cattle nutrition and management. But he stressed that feeders who give "due attention to the little things as well as the big things" have been improving rate of gain and decreasing cost of gain during this time.

Guyer and other NE specialists and guest speakers will appear on both programs, scheduled at the earliest date in recent years.

Another speaker scheduled at feeders day, Dr. Terry Klopfenstein, NE beef nutritionist, commented this week that while the proper use of urea in cattle rations may be the most consistent means of decreasing feed costs, many factors affect urea utilization in both high roughage and high grain rations.

Dr. Klopfenstein noted that in most cases, it appears that urea is not as well utilized when cattle are introduced to finishing rations as later in the feeding period.

Other feeders day speakers had these capsule comments regarding remarks they are preparing on assigned topics at the sessions at Wisner and Lexington:

—Dr. Stanley Farlin, NE Area

Extension livestock specialist, South Central Station, Clay Center (speaker at Lexington only): Of the many reasons for processing grain, the overall objective of the cattle feeder is to improve profits. Processing methods do not necessarily need to improve animal performance to be worthwhile. However, any process which inhibits performance must have other advantages to offset this effect. In the final analysis, the advantage of processing grains must outweigh the cost to make it worthwhile.

—David Garst, Coon Rapids, Iowa, will discuss at the Lexington session the need for more cows in the Corn Belt and the new technology relating to feeding, breeding and cropping practices that makes them an exciting profit opportunity. Garst draws his thoughts from personal experience with perhaps one of the largest cow-calf operations in the Corn Belt.

—Dr. W. C. Burnett, District Veterinarian, Kansas City District, Federal Food & Drug Administration: "There are many who have a responsibility to the livestock producer for furnishing wholesome and safe food for his animals. Likewise, the livestock producers have a particular and distinct responsibility for producing from these animals wholesome and safe food for man."

"I believe that most will agree that we 'egotistical beasts' are at the top of the food chain and are entitled to top quality."

—Walter Tolman, beef nutritionist, Northeast Station, Concord, (appears at Wisner only): "In two experiments at the Northeast Station, whole shelled corn supported slightly more rapid and economical gains than the same corn rolled before feeding. Corn in one of these tests was 18 to 20 per cent moisture; the other 24 per cent moisture."

Also at the Wisner meeting, James Higgins, Director, Nebraska Environmental Control Council, will discuss the control of feedlot wastes. Dr. Hudson Glimp, nutrition investigations leader, U. S. Meat Animal Research Center, Clay Center, will talk about performance of new breeds of cattle in the feedlot at both Wisner and Lexington. Dave Johnson, vice-president, Omaha National Bank, will talk about livestock development efforts in Nebraska at both sites. Both programs will get underway at 9:30 a.m. and adjourn Yard & Garden Tips . . .

Q—Chokecherries are turning black and falling off. What is causing this?

A—This situation is due to weather conditions—not disease. This bush was possibly damaged by a late frost in the spring. This is now inhibiting pollination and causing the berries to fall off. Nothing can be done at this time and the best solution is to wait until next year.

Conservation Progresses During 1971 in Dixon Co.

The Dixon County Soil Conservation Service Office at Wakefield reports that 1971 has been a very productive year for conservation work.

Especially high in this year's earth-moving practices was the conservation of dams. Thirty-six dams were built this year on 31 farms. This high request for dams was probably the result of the intense rains received this spring.

Terraces and diversions were constructed on 27 different farms. On farms where terracing was done, 11 had parallel terraces constructed to eliminate plant rows, thereby making the farming of these terraces much more convenient.

Farmstead windbreaks were planned on 29 farms this spring. Some excellent tree plantings are now visible around the county. They are providing good protection to livestock, farm buildings and the house, in addition to adding beauty to the countryside. Wildlife also the protection provided by these farmstead windbreaks.

Farms being operated without soil and water conservation practices can never reach their potential in production, the SCS advises, adding that holding the water where it falls should be the goal on every farm. Many farms in Dixon county use some form of conservation, as evidenced by work accomplished each year.

Sioux City Plans Beef Marketing Program

SIoux CITY, IOWA—The 4th annual Siouland Beef Marketing Program is being planned for July 12 and 14 at the Sioux City Stockyards, Gary Chapman, program chairman, announced.

"This program," sponsored by the Sioux City Livestock Market News Foundation and the Extension Services of Iowa State University and the University of Nebraska, "is quite unique in the nation," Chapman said, "since it is open to both 4-H and FFA members."

"It is designed to provide exhibitors actual buying, feeding, butchering and marketing experience under conditions that prevail in the livestock industry," he added.

Both a live and a carcass show are incorporated in the program with U. S. Department of Agriculture, Consumer and Marketing personnel in charge of the grading. The cattle will be sold at the "yards" by professional market agents and individual projects will be displayed in a local packer cooler for the carcass show.

Awards will be made on both live and carcass judging, with trophies presented to top winners.

Four-H and FFA members are being notified early so they may purchase feeders and begin their feeding program to insure their projects will be complete for the show. Also, those who are interested in participating should contact their Vocational Agriculture instructors or 4-H leaders.
