The "h" hostess knows that table linens must be spotless, and completely wrinkle-free.

While keeping today's linens in this condition is not the problem it was years ago, it still requires some precautions.

Manufacturers give specific washing directions with their linens. It is a good practice to save these care tags and keep them near the laundry area.

Before washing the linens, it is necessary to check for stains and treat for removal to avoid setting the stains of their becoming set and impossible to remove. On permanent-pressed cloths, an all-purpose liquid detergent brushed or sponged on before washing may be all that is necessary to remove the stains. Oily stains that have been left untreated for a week or more may disappear if soaked in detergent half an hour before laundering.

In washing linens use a mild soap flakes or powder. Avoid overloading the washing machine to prevent wrinkling—this is true for the dryer also. It is best to remove the linens from the washer before the spin cycle to avoid wrinkles. If using an automatic dryer, it is best not to use a high heat setting that will bake in the wrinkles and over dry the cloth. Remove the linens from the dryer while slightly damp and iron immediately.

Mental Retardation Show To Be Repeated by NBC-TV

"No Miracle But Love," a documentary on mental retardation at Bethesda Lutheran Home here, will have a repeat showing on network television, according to a recent announcement by the National Broadcasting Company.

The half-hour "special" will be colorcast by NBC-TV at 12:30 p.m. EST Sunday Jan. 23, (check television listing for exact time in your locality).

Bethesda is a haven for more than 450 retarded persons who cannot remain in their own homes and cope with a normal life. For those who live and work at Bethesda, it is not a world of wheel chairs or withered limbs, or misshapen bodies. It is a world of smiling faces which mirror back the love which has been shown to them.

The program points out that almost every state has its institutions for the retarded, but those waiting to be admitted far outnumber those being cared for. At most, every institution is overcrowded and understaffed because of a shortage of funds.

Located on the outskirts of Watertown, Wis., Bethesda has been a "House of Mercy" for over 200 retarded persons since 1904.

Bethesda is independently owned and operated, receiving no direct support from any affiliated church body. Over 90% of its residents receive varying amounts of charitable assistance.

Wildcat Quintet Blasts Doane, 80-55

Wayne State's amazing Wildcat-eggers pulled off another stunning Tuesday night. They went to Crete and thoroughly whipped Doane, 80-55. And again, it was a combination of a stifling Wayne defense plus the sterling performance of Denny Siefkes and scoring by nine other Wildcats that upended the Tigers.

Siefkes earned 33 points, equaling his previous season high and one point more than he scored last month when Doane edged Wayne here, 78-73. The much taller Tigers had only one, Rogi Ho Douglas, in double figures with 18. Seven-foot Bernard Brown hit only eight.

It is strange that Wayne has lost only one road game, the opener at Northwestern. Both of the other losses came at home, including last Saturday's bow to Hastings.

The Wildcats outscored Doane from the field, 28 goals to 22, and from the free throw line, 24 to 11. They also won the rebound tussle by a big 50-35 margin.

A quick 6-0 lead put Wayne on the way to its tenth victory, and the Cats had control all the way through a 37-24 half, then on to the last half, with Siefkes getting 18 of his 33 points and the team hitting 19 of 21 free throws. The charity performance pleased everybody on the Wayne side, considering that freethrows have been a Wildcat weakness in many games.

Next on the slate is a conference clash tonight (Thursday) with Wayne hosting Chadron State at 7:30 in Rice Gym. The Eagles, defending NCC champions, have a 7-4 record but have to be considered a dangerous foe, with two gunners, Rich Brown and Scott Jones, averaging about 24 and 20 points.

The preliminary will feature Wayne's junior varsity against a strong Creighton freshman quint, coached by Jacko Helein, former Wayne graduate assistant who coached the Wildcat JV two years.

Hastings accomplished a win over Wayne on the Rice court for the first time since 1965 when the Broncs broke a see-saw game in the final minutes for an 89-79 margin Saturday.

The Wildcats had 71-of 116 five minutes from the end and stayed closed until a series of Hastings free throws in the last two minutes put victory out of reach.

It appeared the Wildcats were a bit weary from the previous night's tense clash, a 75-71 win over conference rival Kearney. Hastings beat Wayne badly on the boards with 57-40 rebounding margin, and the Broncs shot an amazing percentage from long range. They also outshot the Cats in free throws, 24-11. But in field shooting Wayne had the edge both in number of goals and percentage.

Jim White paced the victors with 24 points while Wayne's point leader, Denny Siefkes, hit 23, a bit under his 26.1 average.

WSC to Test Strength At NW Mo. Mat Meet

Wayne State wrestlers will have a chance Saturday to test the idea that some teams can do better in big tournaments than in dual meets. They will go to the annual Northwest Missouri State Tournament at Maryville where the entries include several mid-western mat powers.

In their only other tournament this season, the Wildcats gained a strong second place among seven teams in the Western Illinois University meet. But in duals they have won only two of seven.

In multi-team meets, a team with four or five really good wrestlers may score enough to place high or win. However, in duals a win usually takes good balance all through the squad.

So far, the Wildcats have been consistent mainly in the upper weights, but among the little guys only freshman Jim Meyer of Wayne has a winning chart of 4-2 at 126 pounds. Last Saturday in a triple dual at St. Cloud State, Minn., Meyer gained a win by decision, another by forfeit, and lost a close one, 10-8.

Wayne won one of the duals at St. Cloud, 38-14, over the University of North Dakota, but lost to St. Cloud, 24-12, and to Augsburg, 29-14.

Heavyweight Ron Coles stayed undefeated with three wins, one by a fall, and now has five pins among nine victories. Tom Luth, 158-

Winside's Dave Jaeger (visible only from the rear) upends Plainview's Paul Hoyer at the 112-pound level. Jaeger won by a 2-1 decision, claiming the 112 pound title and winning the first of Winside's two championships.

Men's League Has Four-Way Tie for First

The first round was completed in Men's Recreation League play Monday night with four teams—No. 2, No. 3, No. 5 and No. 6—locked in a tie for the league lead.

Team No. 4 is in fifth place with a 2-3 mark and No. 1 is at the bottom with a 1-4 history.

Monday's play saw Team 5 come from behind to defeat Team 2, 69-59; Team 6 won a tough, 57-53 tussle with Team 4 and Team 3 have things pretty much its own way in a 75-59 victory over Team 1.

Team 2 had a 14-point lead over Team 5 in the second quarter of the first game, but scored only 28 in the second half while Team 5 went on a 46-point rampage to pull it out.

Both clubs had a trio of double-figure scorers, Team 5 with Brent Lessman at 16, and George Eynon and Mike Biltrot at 14, and Team 2 with 5-11-Hiller at 19, Bill Workman at 14 and Randy Robins at 13.

The final game of the night was the closest affair, Team 6 leading by slim 12-10, 27-23 and 40-37 margins at the rest stops; Ron Dalton had 22 points to pace the winners' attack, helped out by 11 on the part of Bill Lubberstedt. Losers' high men were Harlan Freese with 15 and Bill Carlson with 12.

Team No. 3 steadily moved out against Team No. 1 in the middle game, resting at the half with a 33-21 advantage after a 12-10 halftime lead and heading into the fourth with a 50-39 bulge. Herb Swan canned 22 for the winners and Don Koerber contributed 15. Mike Clay's 13 and Kelly Dill's 16 paced the losers.

Swan heads the top 10 in scoring with a 24.5 average, followed by Dalton with 18.0, Eynon with 16.2, Freese with 15.3 Ginn with 14.2, Workman with 13.4 Hank Overh, Hiller and Robins with 13.0 and Biltrot with 12.8.

The second half of league play begins Monday night at City Auditorium with Teams 1 and 2 playing at 7 p.m., Teams 3 and 4 playing at 8 p.m. and Teams 5 and 6 at 9 p.m.

Trojans Drop Dual at Plainview

Wakefield's Trojan grapplers came out on the short end of a 49-9 verdict Tuesday night, falling before the Plainview Pirates at Plainview.

The Trojans could manage only three wins, on two decisions and a default. The visitors began on an encouraging note, with Kenny Dalton winning a 6-0 decision over Plainview's Roger Hanemann at 98. Wakefield brought home two victories in a row, with Dave Brouse deciding Gentler, 4-0, in the 105-pound division. That pair of early victories provided the only winning effort for the Trojans, with the exception of a default at 167.

Other scoring, with Wakefield wrestlers listed first:

—112, Devon Fischer was de-cisioned by Paul Hoyer, 4-0.

—119, Wakefield forfeited.

—126, Pat Nicholson was decided by Dale Pongu, 14-4.

—132, Roger Gustafson was pinned by Mark Brookhouser at 1:29.

—138, Steve Sorenson was decided by Mark Hoffman, 6-4.

—145, Kevin Puls was pinned by Hoyer at 3:46.

—155, Don Lindstrom was pinned by Doug Fusselman at 4:27.

—167, Kirk Gardener won by default.

—185, Bud Swanson was pinned by Doug Pellatz at 3:1.

There was no heavyweight match.

Next mat action for Wakefield will find the Trojans hosting the Wisner-Pilger Gators, Tuesday, Jan. 18.

Wayne Junior High Splits Twin-Bill

Wayne Junior High basketball teams split a double-header last Thursday at Norfolk. The boys, the local eighth-graders winning by 25-24 after the Wayne seventh-graders dropped a 28-15 decision.

Norfolk had an 18-14 lead going into the fourth period of the eighth-grade game after ties of 6-6 and 12-12 at the end of the first two quarters.

The visitors went on top for the first time with no minutes remaining on baskets by Paul Mallette and Rich Workman. Steve Johnson was fouled with three seconds left, hitting one to give Wayne a three-point advantage. The locals allowed Norfolk to score the final bucket unopposed to shave the margin to one point.

Mallette and Workman led for winners' scoring honors at eight. Bomar had 13 of Norfolk's 24 points.

Mike Wieseler of Wayne and Rulman and Becker of Norfolk Catholic all had six points to share top honors in the seventh-grade game.

The next action for the Junior High eagles will be Thursday against Norfolk Public at the Norfolk Senior High auditorium, immediately following the freshman game.

WSC Tankers In Three Meets

Swimmers at Wayne State will keep limber this week with three meets. They were scheduled for a dual at Concordia in Seward Wednesday, then with eastern South-west, Minnesota State and the University of North Dakota Saturday.

The Wildcats came close to beating a powerful Mankato state team at Mankato, Minn., last Friday. They won three events and scored enough other places for a 51 point score while Mankato totaled 61.

The Wayne wins: Jim Onstott with a 51.3 in the 100 freestyle, Bob Seymour in three-meter diving, and the 400-yard freestyle relay with a fine 3:34.1 by Doug Krecklow, Jim Shores, Jim Baiben and Onstott.

Devils Score Neligh Win

Wayne High's Blue Devil team traveled to Neligh Tuesday night to defeat a tough home squad, 30-21. The Devils used five pins and two decisions for the winning verdict.

Winning by pins for Wayne were Dave Owens at 98, Jim Niemann at 126, Mark Biermann at 138, Arnold Siefkes at 155, and Don Nelson at 185. Ron Ring at 132, and Brad Pfueger at 145 decided their opponents.

Losing by decisions for the locals were Scott Brummond at 105, Rick Kay at 112, Darrell Hanks at 119, and Ken Ott at 167. In the heavyweight division, Wayne's Darrell Alvin was pinned.

The Wayne B Team also scored an impressive victory, dumping the Neligh B squad 39-3. Pining their opponents for Wayne were Dan Marr at 119, Arlan Cary at 138, Tom Frahm at 145, Ken Frahm at 155, and Gordon Cook with a 12 second pin at 167.

Computer SNAFU

The old expression for mass confusion, SNAFU (situation normal, all fouled up) seldom is heard anymore. That's because this is the "computer age."

Heretofore seemingly insoluble complexities were supposed to be simple chores for that human-made, fool-proof know-it-all.

But old never-miss wasn't nearly as reliable as he had been reputed to be.

He's blown a lot of 'em as nearly anyone who has had dealings with him will attest. His is a one-way correspondence. He continues to bill people long after the accounts have been squared and he keeps sending letters, threatening to turn the "past-due account" over to a collection agency—even when the firm has sent notes of apology for the bad conduct of its cold-hearted employees.

Our latest dealing with Old Comp. must have been after he blew a couple of his restorers or had a bad case of indigestion in one of his computers from an overfeeding by a programmer.

It was a simple matter, really. Before leaving Grand Island we informed each utility company of our Wayne address for forwarding of the final bill. One utility assured us that, since we had paid a $20 deposit, there would be no problem—the final bill would be deducted from that deposit and we would receive the balance.

But they obviously hadn't consulted first with Old Comp.

Some time ago we received a refund check from one of those utilities and know not which one. Not foreseeing any future problem, we did not deposit the check, but rather—cashed it, not recording the amount or the firm on which it was written. Could have been the gas company, light and water department or phone company—we don't recall.

Just when we thought all accounts had been squared, we received a check last week in the amount of $13.15 from one utility, making us ponder as to a possible duplicate refund.

The following day things became more complicated when we received a letter from a collection agency that our bill of $6.85 to that utility was long overdue, that we had disregarded past notices (no notices received) and warned us to pay the bill immediately.

It doesn't take a master mathematician to arrive at a $20 total when the two figures are added.

That really put us in a quandary. Did we get a double rebate? Did the utility company deduct the final bill from the deposit or was it a coincidence that the two added up to $20? If the latter was the case, how come a rebate of $13.15? Summing it up, we don't know if we owe the company $6.85 as the two pieces of correspondence would indicate, leaving us $6.30 ahead of the game; whether we're squared up, assuming the $6.85 was deducted from the $20 deposit, leaving us $13.15 to squander, or whether we have already received a rebate and must send the last check back.

In that case, we're going to come out on the losing end—we think.

Pondering all these possibilities, we came to the confusing conclusion that we put ourselves at the mercy and bidding of the utility company.

We'll do almost anything they say. We're no match for Old Comp. —Claire Hurlbert

The Pakistan Papers

The parade of "top secret" government documents through the news media continues with the publication of minutes from three White House meetings dealing with the recent India-Pakistan war.

Syndicated columnist Jack Anderson has released the documents which prove the Nixon administration was favoring Pakistan secretly, even to the point of seriously considering arms shipments, while publicly maintaining a neutral stance.

Clearly, the publication of the documents does not imperil national security, but it does entail a good deal of embarrassment on the part of high administration officials, jeopardizing once again the government's credibility.

There are those who would advocate burying all such incriminating material, in order to maintain the public's confidence in its leaders. We feel those people are making an error in judgment, contributing to their own state of misinformation.

The only effective way for any government to retain the confidence of the people is to deal honestly with them. It should be remembered that the government is not a separate entity, operating independently of the masses and conducting its business with impunity. The government is an extension of the people, working for them. As such, it must always be answerable to the people it was created to serve. —Joel Knutsen

Nebraska Meat Detained

CHICAGO—Over 7,000 pounds of meat and meat products were detained in Nebraska by the U. S. Department of Agriculture during December, 1971.

According to Maurice V. Ewing, officer-in-charge of USDA's Meat & Poultry Inspection Program's Review and Compliance Activities in the Central Region, the detentions result from routine investigations made by his compliance officers in cooperation with various state agencies.

The Federal Meat Inspection Act and the Poultry Products Inspection Act authorize the detention of non-federally inspected meat and poultry products found in interstate commerce, and of USDA inspected meat and poultry products suspected of being unwholesome, adulterated or misbranded.

Examples of the latter would be meat or poultry products that have been federally inspected but have become unwholesome or adulterated by inadequate refrigeration or by being involved in an accident where the product became contaminated. An example of misbranding would be where a product's label does not accurately describe the contents.

If a state-inspected product is found in interstate commerce and is in good condition, its disposition depends on the mutual decision of the originating state and the state in which the produce is found.

If a federally-inspected product is detained and further inspection proves it to be wholesome and truthfully labeled, it is released into regular trade channels.

But if an inspected product is found to be unwholesome, adulterated or misbranded, the owner has several recourses: (1) The product may be removed to a USDA-inspected establishment for reinspection and processing for salvage purposes or relabeling; (2) The product can be decharacterized, identified as unfit for human food and sold for use in animal food; (3) The owner can sign a release and voluntarily destroy the product in the presence of a CEMS official.

When an owner refuses to take any of the above steps, the case is turned over to the courts for final disposition. Most cases have resulted in destruction of the product for use as human food.

This is done in the presence of a court official so that there is documented proof of the product's disposition.

Compliance and evaluation staffs continually work with officials from various state agencies and other federal agencies to protect the consumer's meat and poultry supply.

Adjustments of Tax Structure in Spotlight

LINCOLN—The money-minded 1972 Legislature is neck-deep in issues of how to raise funds and how to spend them. Most of the major bills introduced during the early days of the session involved adjustments in the tax structure. And a battle appeared to be brewing over the budget.

Gov. J. J. Exon, who had worked closely with the Legislature's Budget Committee during the 1971 session, appeared to be in close cooperation during the early part of the preparation of the committee's 1972 recommendations.

But the executive and legislative—at least that portion of the legislative branch represented on the Budget Committee—grew apart sometime during December.

Last week, when the committee was about ready to unveil its proposed appropriations, the senators put an embargo on releasing the total-spending figures it was endorsing.

The committee didn't issue a public explanation, but most observers felt it was because they didn't want to tip off Exon before he delivered his budget recommendations Monday.

Reports also circulated out of the committee's hearing room that some statistical information which had been freely shared by the executive departments earlier suddenly was tougher to get.

It did seem apparent, however, that both the governor and the committee were anxious to limit spending to levels which could be financed without increasing the sales and income tax rates beyond the 1972 levels of 2 1/2 per cent and 15 per cent.

Changes Proposed One of Exon's basic platform planks is the elimination of the sales tax on food at the grocery counter—and, consequently, the elimination of the $7 credit allowed on state income tax as a "repayment" of food sales taxes already collected each year.

The governor and the Democratic Party are circulating petitions to put that question before the Nebraska voters this November.

A bill which would have eliminated the need for the petitions was killed last week in the first big test of strength allowable after Nov. 13, 1971, and the reason for any difference. This information must be made available to any tenant or prospective tenant upon request.

Vinal emphasized that rent increases put into effect since the freeze, which are in excess of the amount allowable under the new rent regulations, must be rolled back.

Anyone needing information or assistance on the new rent regulations should contact the Internal Revenue Service.

between Exon and the lawmakers. Similar legislation was dumped by the 1971 Legislature.

The vote last week—29-15 against Exon—seemed to indicate the petition drive is the governor's best remaining hope. There seemed to be little legislative sentiment for his project.

There is, in fact, a bill before the Legislature this session which would go in the opposite direction.

Waldo Proposal Sen. Willard Waldo of DeWitt has proposed the elimination of the $7 annual food tax credit—without exempting food from the sales tax. In other words, Nebraskans would continue to pay the tax on food, but no longer would get a refund.

Waldo says some people don't pay much in taxes and food is about the only way to get them to provide a share of the cost of operating government.

While he concedes this would put a burden on the needy, Waldo said there are welfare and other programs which can give assistance to those citizens.

Waldo also says the homestead exemption program, adopted in 1969, is costing more than it's worth to individual taxpayers. He has a bill to repeal that program.

He also wants to do away with the optional city sales tax. Only Omaha and Lincoln have exercised the option, but it is available to all cities. Omahans pay a 1 per cent city tax and Lincolnites pay one-half per cent.

Waldo says it is unfair to persons visiting a city—especially farmers, buying supplies—to have to pay the city sales tax.

The senator says the way to help cities finance their needs is by relieving property owners of most of the support of the schools and allowing municipalities to rely more on property taxes.

first $5,000 toward the salary of all teachers.

Sen. J. W. Burbach of Crofton set the stage for the personal property tax exemption fight—certain to be one of the 1972 highlights—by introducing his bill the opening day. Gov. Exon, who has his own plan, promises to veto the Burbach proposal if it passes.

Twice in 1971, the governor successfully vetoed Burbach personal property tax proposals.

State Lottery

Other revenue proposals to hit the hopper in the early days of the new session include Neigh Sen. John DeCamp's bill to authorize a state lottery, with the money going to pay for penal and rehabilitation facilities.

There are at least two new bills dealing with increased state aid for schools.

Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter has offered a constitutional amendment which would turn all the public school operating costs over to the state.

Sen. Nancy C. Whitmy of Chappell has a bill to require the state to pay the

Tax Time Again

Taxes. Taxes. Taxes. You complain about them all year around. You pay them almost all year around. Or you're paying on the

the first of the year. That is to really evaluate the results of your sales and purchases in terms of something other than making your payments. The remainder of the year is spent worrying about making a living and paying your bills. Then comes the first of the year and if you were relatively successful last year, you will no doubt have to borrow more money. Borrow money to pay taxes on money that you don't have. And probably never did have.

off your note at the bank and your feed bill after you sold your cattle last fall, chances are you will have to pay some income tax. Fortunately you have an annual appointment with Mr. James, a prominent tax man in your area. It is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. But you decide that by being there early you might finish before noon. So you and the Mrs. are in Mr. James' waiting room promptly by 9 a.m. You drop the large, bulky, heavy cardboard box containing the invoices, cancelled checks and receipts for last year's transactions on the floor. The Mrs. is holding two medium-sized, badly worn, gray colored notebooks. You spend one long hour packing the floor. Another by snoozing before Mr. James opens his office door. At last... you set up, rub your eyes and start to pick up your box. But apparently he's not finished with the other farmer's insurance claim. And the value of the machinery traded in on his new tractor. And the exact amount of interest he paid at the bank. Then Mr. James told him to ask his secretary for another appointment. From the sound of her response that farmer will have plenty of time to look for all that information. But that's not going to happen to you. You've got everything you'll need right there in that box. Mr. James starts leaving his desk to enable him to work on your report. Just as the Mrs.

opens one of her notebooks on his desk, his secretary barges in. He thoughtfully looks at a couple small sheets of paper that she handed him. "Well," he says, "check with him to make sure this is the entire amount of his income. If so tell him they'll be ready tomorrow morning." Immediately you start mumbling about some people not needing an appointment. "Yes, that's right," Mr. James says, "but every cent he received last year for wages and the exact amount of taxes withheld are on that W-2 form. All he has to show for an entire year of work is on that little piece of paper. Add took what you have to show for a year's work. More cows, newer machinery, simple corn and a little bit paid off on your farm loan." Any other time you would have debated that subject but somehow he made it sound so good that you didn't interrupt him. "Besides," he continues, "that follows employment. Look. Be sure he took out enough. Then I fill out his forms. Did you have any hired labor this past year?"

Doubter
You shake your head negative but he keeps right on telling you as though he doesn't believe you. He quotes it as though he was reading it from a book. Such as if you had paid any one over $150 for labor you are required to have an employer's number and pay Social Security taxes for the hired man. If you didn't take the 5.2 out of his wages you are required to pay the entire amount. And of course withholding taxes are optional. Finally you agree to file for an employer's number just so he will get on with the business at hand. The more you think about it you decide it wasn't such a bad idea. When June goes to college this fall you will lose your "cheap" help for silo filling and picking. "That's another thing," Mr. James tell you, "when your boy goes to college he can earn up to $675 a year and you can still claim him as an exemption. And he can claim himself also."

Bank Considered
You're sure your banker will loan you the money to pay it. After all, who should know better than him that anyone who has to pay income tax must be making money. You pick up your box and start for the door. Suddenly you realize that not once did Mr. James ask for anything that you had in it. He must have read your mind because he pats you on the back and assures you that he has it all. And he'll have it ready to sign and mail in about two weeks. By gosh, did the Mrs. get all that stuff written in those books before she put it in the desk drawers? Just for that you affectionately tell her you'll treat her to dinner in town today. Not to mention, intentionally or otherwise, that you are famished and it is a long way home.

movement of urban land uses into farming areas, or it can assist in community economic growth by helping reserve adequate and desirable sites for industrial, recreational and commercial use.

On the other hand, rural zoning cannot be effective unless it represents the interests and desires of residents of the community.

Gessaman and Ducey urge communities to start planning for zoning as a means of dealing with present and future problems in rural communities, starting with local people, local government and local concerns. They suggest that the publication could be used to arouse interest in the community, as well as to inform people about the zoning process.

The publication, "The What, Why and How of Rural Zoning in Nebraska," number E. C. 71-844, can be obtained at your local county Extension office.

Another circular, "The Why and How of Zoning in Nebraska," will also provide more detailed descriptions of rural zoning and information on legal procedures for instituting zoning in Nebraska.

Health Hazards
Will increasing use of inorganic fertilizer create a health hazard? Let's take a look at Holland. Holland has the most concentrated use of commercial fertilizer in the world. The Dutch have both the highest average yield of food products and the highest standards of health. They also have the highest birth rate, the lowest mortality and a life span two years longer than ours.

Somehow the idea that organic food is healthier than regular food has been widely publicized, but all available evidence indicates that just the opposite is true.

The specialists also outline several points that can and cannot be accomplished through zoning. For example, rural zoning can help protect agricultural operations by controlling the leasing

Corn Planted into Alfalfa Sod Experiment Conducted
Russell Moomaw and George Rehm, area extension agronomists at the University of Nebraska Northeast Station near Concord, have commented jointly on the planting of corn directly into alfalfa sod which has been chemically killed.

The point of the corn usually follows alfalfa in crop production rotations in northeast Nebraska and answer the often-times-asked question "Is it necessary to plow the alfalfa before planting corn?"

This is the standard practice now, but why not kill the alfalfa with chemicals and plant corn directly into the killed alfalfa with no tillage of the soil?

"We have tried this method of all packers? And chain stores? And the immediate paying for beef by all chain stores?"

Dairymen Confer

Southeast Nebraska dairymen attended a University of Nebraska-sponsored Area Dairy Day at Wahoo last week, one of eight area meetings scheduled by NU around the state. Feedlot Waste Management Necessary

The increasing important issue of feedlot waste control and some of its chief areas of concern are covered in the following question and answer series:

QUESTION: How big a problem is feedlot pollution of water in Nebraska?
ANSWER: If we take all the feedlots in Nebraska and give each animal 700 square feet, it would require 14,000 acres for all the feedlots in the state. It has been estimated that the water that passes Omaha in the Missouri River in a few hours is equivalent to the total amount of the runoff from feedlots. This 14,000 acres is only a fraction of a percent of the total acres of range and farmland in Nebraska. In eastern Nebraska, with a rainfall of 28 inches, about nine to 10 inches of this will run off the feedlot each year. The rainfall will carry off about three to six percent of the total wastes that are deposited on the lot.

QUESTION: Is it necessary to remove the manure from the feedlot at frequent intervals?
ANSWER: No. We have instances where the feedlots have been going as long as 15 years, and little or no manure has been removed. As a matter of fact, it is best to always keep some manure in the feedlot. If the manure is mounded in the feedlot, much of it will decompose and go back into the air as carbon dioxide.

QUESTION: What about odors from feedlots?
ANSWER: This is a more difficult problem to handle. If a lot is shaped so it will drain readily after a rain, odor can be kept down by keeping the surface of the feedlot aerobic. But we do need to keep the subsurface soil anaerobic to change the nitrate to gaseous nitrogen.

QUESTION: How much does it cost to install a waste management system?
ANSWER: It has been difficult to get information on this, but the Soil Conservation Service at Lincoln has indicated that some of the feedlots that they have designed cost about 48 cents a head for one time only. Some estimate the cost between $100 and $250 per acre. The larger the operation, probably the cheaper the cost would be.

QUESTION: Do we have methods now for controlling the runoff from feedlots?
ANSWER: Yes. We have developed two systems as a result of a team effort in Nebraska. One is a settling basin outside the feedlot which stills the runoff long enough for more than half the suspended solids to settle out, and the rest of the runoff is collected in a retention structure below the feedlot.

Another is the use of a broad-based bench terrace inside the feedlot in which the runoff is kept long enough for the solids to settle out; then the effluent is run into a retention structure. The effluent that comes off a broad-based terrace or a settling basin contains about one-half per cent suspended solids. This does not decompose readily. Therefore, it does not create odors. This can be applied to cropland to use the nutrients. The amount of runoff from an acre of feedlot will irrigate approximately an acre of farmland in eastern Nebraska, and irrigation is profitable in Nebraska every year.

QUESTION: What about groundwater pollution from feedlots?
ANSWER: Studies have shown that if adequate stocking rates are maintained on the feedlot, along with some manure mulch, there are no indications of groundwater pollution.

Windbreak a Money-Saver

For anyone planning to establish a new farmstead windbreak or adding to an existing windbreak this year, the Soil Conservation Service suggests immediate placement of orders for trees.

The SCS, which will assist with planning and ordering of trees, warns that the supply is limited this year on some species of trees.

The district also will make available a tree planter. The SCS points out that, although we have not suffered the cold winds and snow which is normal by this time of the year, they eventually will arrive and a well-planned farmstead windbreak will provide protection from the adverse weather.

Change Oil and Filter

Engine oil is the lifeblood of your car. You might call it engine lubrication, there would be no need to change oil, just the filter which traps all the harmful dirt and abrasive contaminants in the oil. But today, a great deal of engine contamination comes from chemical pollution.

Acids, water, varnishes and sludges—all can flow through the filter and the engine, poisoning as they go. Stop-and-go neighborhood driving causes most of this. The engine never reaches operating temperatures and its consistent coldness causes chemical pollution.

Engineers urge you to make your oil change a complete change, possibly every 3,000 miles. If your car is new, follow the factory warranty recommendations. The new high compression engines generate extra heat and quickly break down the chemicals in the oil designed to fight sludge, acid and corrosion.

Whatever oil change interval used, always include a new oil filter. Infrequent oil changes or an incomplete change without a new oil filter can eventually produce sticky oil rings.

Publication Cites Rural Zoning Benefits

Methods by which rural families can better ensure their right to control changes occurring in their communities are outlined in a new Extension circular entitled, "The What, Why and How of Rural Zoning in Nebraska."

The circular, authored by area Extension farm management specialist Doug Ducey and Extension agricultural economist Paul Gessaman, presents basic concepts and principles of zoning in rural areas.

The authors explain that rural zoning is a means of controlling or preventing problems resulting from conflicts in land use. They suggest that these problems come about as a result of economic and social changes and can often be solved or prevented by foresight and planning.

No part of rural Nebraska is immune to change and problems incidental to change. By enacting rural zoning regulations, Ducey and Gessaman believe residents of rural Nebraska can preserve and protect the aesthetic and material qualities of the area in which they live.

Cans, Connors
The specialists also outline several points that can and cannot be accomplished through zoning. For example, rural zoning can help protect agricultural operations by controlling the leasing

Good Morning Feeders & Hi Mom

Mom, who makes the big profit when the USDA errors on the daily (FSI) Federal Slaughter Intentions? The errors happen too often to be coincidental and each time the national dressed market activity shifts violently.

How can the USDA, which has, by law, a representative in every packer's corner, make the buyer feel safe in his buying decision. A 1,000-head order swings both attitude and prices. Meantime all the packers are going broke!

—Lay this... some packer made it to the USDA about their slaughter intentions. And this man and company plays the mercantile future.

The Department needs a housecleaning! ... When will all Livestock and Farm Organizations and Associations quit wasting two to three days of each convention arguing about membership divisions, budgets, office costs, working of the rejection of the school proposals, the convention site of the following year, the annual raise to the secretary, the ceremonial appreciation speeches glorifying those outgoing officers and the expectation of the newly elected?

When? And tackle more nourishing problems... Such as: Total restriction of any packer, chain stores or commission company or personnel thereof from playing the Chicago Mercantile futures? And the total bonding of beef-hanging in every packer's corner; the retail store buyers found empty racks. Upshot: The cash trade flew skyward $1 by Thursday. A complete reversal.

My point is... why even have a USDA slaughter estimate that has about the same credibility and reliability as the Pentagon reports of the Viet Cong casualties? Why show that Eastern buyer the actual packing plant

Male Student Turns Tailor, Cook

By Sandra Breitkreutz
If women's liberation is here to stay, doesn't it seem only fair that there be something in the way of liberation for men, too? One young man, Ron Rieker, has taken it upon himself to fashion the "costly" first or, dearly outline man's domain. Twenty years old and a junior theater major at WSC, Rieker hails from Pennsylvania, but proudly announces that he has recently become a Nebraskan. His activities, some of which are rather unorthodox for the not-so-fair sex, include sewing and cooking. Most of his hobbies, though, he confesses, stemmed from necessity.

A couple of years ago, Rieker, who was from Lancaster, Pa. (population about 80,000) spent a quiet summer with relatives in nearby Newcastle, a hamlet of about 350 persons. Desperation, he said, sent him to a fabric shop for pattern and material from which he fashioned his first garment, a pant and vest ensemble. Prior to that his sewing experiences consisted of sewing on buttons, but he staunchly denies having received any help other than the loan of a sewing machine.

Since that summer Rieker's sewing accomplishments have grown to include a jump suit, a matching coat and pant suit (which turned out to be too loud to wear together), a tank top and pants and a couple of shirts, one of which he is doing by hand. His girl friend has the privilege of lending Ron her sewing machine now that he is back at school.

"At first, some of my acquaintances razzed me," Rieker admitted, "but lately I've had requests from some to sew for them also."

"And looking at it from a practical point of view," he continued, "being able to sew is a definite asset if you are planning to teach drama, especially in small schools where funds and storage of costumes are limited. After their use, the costumes can be rented or sold to other schools," he added.

Though he also enjoys swimming, photography, target shooting, reading, singing and dance (preferably stage and ballet), his interests also extend to cooking—extend in fact, to the point that he is planning a four-tier wedding cake for his roommate and his roommate's fiancée, who plan to marry in the spring.

"This jacket, fashioned especially for a trip to see 'Jesus Christ, Superstar,' has matching trousers for a really loud effect."

Ron Rieker can turn a fine stitch as well as an omelet, as is evidenced by the jump suit he fashioned for himself.

Christian Ministry Program Explained

The Rev. Robert Swanson, who serves Methodist churches at Winside and Carroll in addition to his ministry services on the Wayne State College campus, explained the Cooperative Christian Ministry (CCM) during the weekly meeting of Kiwanians Monday noon at city auditorium.

The CCM Center, located east of the WSC Student Center on East 13th is a center for Thursday night Bible study, the showing of religious films and Sunday night discussions, the latter which, Rev. Swanson said, is attended by anywhere from 20 to 100 students.

"We are not concerned with denominational affiliation in the ecumenical ministry," Rev. Swanson said, adding, "we have a variety of students—from the far-left to the far-right, each with a unique contribution to life and church."

Five local churches pool resources and several furnish ministers on a part-time basis to aid in the CCM project.

Employment Survey to Be Conducted

Information on employment and unemployment will be collected in this area by the Bureau of the Census during the week of Jan. 17. Guy A. Lutz, director of the Bureau's Data Collection Center in St. Paul, announced today.

The sample of households in this area taking part in the survey are among 50,000 across the country scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all households in the nation.

The survey is taken monthly by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor. Statistics on conditions in the labor force, especially on the unemployed, are prime indicators of economic conditions of the United States.

For example, the Labor Department reported that the November survey showed there were 4.3 million unemployed persons. After allowance for the usual seasonal changes, this was 210,000 more than in October, with virtually all of the increase among young adults. However, the November survey also showed that employment continued at an all-time high, with 80 million persons employed.

All information about individuals and families provided the Bureau is held confidential by law and can be published only as statistical totals.

Interviewers who will visit households in this area are Catherine Moeller of Wisner and Ruth Koehler of Norfolk.
