They will distribute campaign literature for Sen. Ziebarth's bid in the Democratic primary.

Support Sought For Change in Safety Rules

Floyd Bracken, manager of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce office, stated Saturday he is attempting to gather support from Wayne business people to urge passage of a bill to exempt small businesses from federally imposed safety regulations.

According to Bracken, many small business owners feel the cost of compliance with the law would jeopardize their businesses.

Sen. Carl Curtis has introduced a bill which would exempt small business from the regulations. Bracken suggested that those who wish to urge passage of the bill send a post card, first class, to Sen. Carl Curtis, U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C. 20510. Bracken also urged the sending of postcards to Sen. Roman Hruska and Congressman Charles Thone.

Race Developing For Positions On School Board

An interesting race was developing today for positions on the Wayne-Carroll Board of Education with two filings Monday and another Tuesday.

Mrs. Max (Margaret) Lundstrom of 204 W. 10th is the latest to file with Wayne High Supt. Francis Haun.

Tuesday filings included incumbents Mrs. Henry (Dorothy) Ley and Dr. Irvin Brandt. All are seeking four-year terms on the school board.

Bill Workman had filed for the educational post last week.

The three who receive the most votes in the May 9 election will be elected to four-year terms, with the fourth highest named to a two-year term.

Senior members of the Laurel Bears basketball squad eye the runner-up trophy their predecessors won at the state tournament in 1970. Making plans to bring home the championship award this year are, from left, Gary Chace, Steve Urwiler, Bruce Johnson and George Schroeder. Wayne-Carroll School Board Reminded Of Tax Inequities in School Districts

Dallas Havener of Carroll, a member of the Wayne County School Reorganization Committee, met with the Wayne-Carroll Board of Education Monday night to discuss the vast differential in taxes levied in the Wayne and rural school districts.

Havener proposed that the Wayne and Winside school boards meet to discuss the future course of free high school tuition and a possible plan for reorganization.

The Wayne board agreed to try to set a date mutually agreeable to both boards for that meeting in the near future.

The present school levy in the rural districts is 18.6 mills, compared to 47.52 mills in the Winside (95-R) District and 67 mills in the Wayne District.

At the present time, it was reported, there are 42 attending Winside from out of that district and 94 outside the district attending school at Wayne.

"People in the rural areas are getting mighty perturbed about paying taxes twice as high as their neighbor across the road," Havener said, referring in the latter case as those in rural districts.

A follow-up report on the individualized math program was given by Metteer and Park, who submitted a budget of $8,375 for the first year of the new program, a budget which was accepted by the board.

Lawrence gave the results of a survey which he had conducted among high school students and parents relative to their feelings about the high school curriculum, activity offerings and a solicitation of their feelings about the high school in general.

Eight per cent of the students and 15 per cent of the parents rated the school as "outstanding"; 41 per cent of the students and 55 per cent of the parents gave the school an "above average" rating; 44 per cent of the students and 25 per cent of the parents said it was "adequate"; seven per cent of the students and three per cent of the parents labeled it "below average" and neither any students nor parents filled in the classification box of a "poor" rating.

The board authorized Supt. Francis Haun to advertise for bids to pave the school parking lot. Approximately one-third of the parking lot was finished last summer at a cost of around $16,400. Funds are available in the sinking fund, according to Haun, to take care of the project.

Irvin Brandt, chairman of the committee negotiating teachers' salaries, said that the bargaining is still in progress.

In other board business:

Claims in the amount of $9,745.97 for February bills were approved for payment.

The Hartford Insurance Co. reported that a request for repair and replacement coverage on the Carroll School boiler would have to be rejected since the boiler is 57 years old.

Two Charged In Multiple Drug Arrests

Richard J. Ginn and Randall J. Lutt, both 20, of Wayne, have been charged in Wayne County Court with illegal possession of cannabis (marijuana), and with being inmates of a vehicle in which a controlled substance was being used.

Both men are charged on both counts, and Lutt faces an additional count of possession.

The two were arrested along with three other young men early Sunday, Feb. 27, in a parked car northeast of Wayne. Officers of the State Patrol found what they believed to be marijuana in the car. All five posted $100 appearance bonds.

The other three men had not been charged as of press time Wednesday.

Farm and Home Show Display Space Is Sold

All display space has been sold for the Wayne Farm and Home Show, which will be held Friday through Sunday, Mar. 24-26, at City Auditorium.

The sponsoring Wayne County Jaycees report an upsurge of interest in the annual show this year. In 1971, several spaces were not sold, but this year 25 business firms have leased both or display space.

The show will open at 5 p.m. on Friday, Mar. 24, and continue until 9 p.m. Saturday hours will be noon to 9 p.m. and the doors will be open from noon until 6 p.m. Sunday.

In addition to the booths inside the auditorium, there will be outside displays of farm machinery and cars.

The Saturday afternoon feature will be a Pinewood Derby for Cub Scouts. Sunday afternoon's highlight will be a style show.

County Board Meets Tuesday

The Wayne County Commissioners Tuesday struck from the record a resolution to provide funds for the Northeast Nebraska Board of Retardation at South Sioux City.

The board earlier had approved a motion to provide the funds in the amount of $3,744.22, but upon consideration, voted to strike the resolution pending a meeting with officials of the program. The resolution will be discussed at the next county board meeting.

In other action, the Board members approved two homestead exemptions they had earlier set aside for further consideration.

WSC Chamber Singers Presenting 'The Seven Last Words of Christ'

In observance of the Lenten season, and in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the death of composer Heinrich Schütz, Dr. Cornell Rønstad's WSC Chamber Singers are presenting in area churches to appear on "The Seven Words of Christ on the Cross," possibly Schütz's best known work.

The group was at the Belden United Presbyterian Church and the Laurel United Presbyterian Church on Feb. 27, and will be at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Wayne, for the 10 a.m. Mass this Sunday. The public is encouraged to attend.

Appearances are also set up for Mar. 19, at the WSC Hamsey Theatre, and Mar. 22 at the First United Methodist Church in Wayne.

The Chamber Singers include sopranos Beth Bergt and Paulette Welts of Wayne, Pat Dennis of Wisner and Sylvia Truby of Randolph; tenors Tim Sharer of Wayne, Stephen Johnson of Laurel and Dan Froberg of Norfolk; alto Lynette Amundson of the Iowa, Peg Myer of Woodbine, Iowa, Barbara Pryor of Heinrich Schütz is known as the greatest composer of the middle 17th century. After early study in Italy, Schütz became Master of the Chapel of the Elector of Saxony at Dresden, and, except for a brief period as Court Conductor at Copenhagen during the Thirty Year War, remained there from 1617 to his death in 1684.

His music is unusual in that it includes only vocal compositions, most of them for church use. As far as is known, he wrote no independent instrumental music.

In presenting "The Seven Last Words," narrative portions are entrusted to a quartet of evangelists, while Jesus' words are set in a free, expressive melody, accompanied by organ, continuo and strings.

Cats Honor Teammates

Choice of Wayne State's most valuable basketball player of 1971-72 was easy for Wildcat cagers. Denis Siefke's of Somers, Iowa, dominated practically every phase of the Wayne game to win the annual honor.

Coaches of Nebraska NAIA-member colleges already had bestowed their all-star honor on the 6-7 junior center. He was the top vote-getter among mentors of the ten teams.

Siefke, led all Nebraska collegiate scorers with a 26-point average and also ranked first in field goal percentage at .553. He topped the team in rebounding on an 11 per game average, which ranked ninth among Nebraska players.

Another honor, honorary season captain, went to Jerry Woodin, Pocahontas, Iowa, the only senior starter, and a starter at guard in all games the last two years.

If the MVP choice was easy, Wayne cagers found another decision knottier. Who was the most improved in the season? Freshman Neal Walde of Denison, Iowa, won out—by a close vote over another Denison product, Junior Jon Harvey. Walde played sparingly with the varsity, but was one of the junior varsity kingpins.

Harvey played regularly as a varsity forward, finishing with 183 points, a 7.0 average. His last game, with 17 points, rated his best.

The Future Home maker of America Chapter of Allen Consolidated Schools has planned a benefit basketball game, to be held this Tuesday at the school auditorium. Proceeds will go to the polo drive.

Kearney State scored 126 and collected four firsts plus a tie; Chadron State 97 and one first, Concordia 61 and three firsts.

Wayne's freshman freestyle ace, Jim Onstöt of Fremont, brought home the most honors: two firsts and a tie in individual events plus anchoring two winning relays.

Onstöt won the 200 freestyle in 1:53.8 after setting a district and school record of 1:50.7 in the preliminaries. In the 100 freestyle he swam a district record of 49.8, and he tied for first with Scott Adams of Kearney in the 50 freestyle at 22.7. Adams posted a district record of 22.3 in the prelims.

Wayne's Jim Shores notched another district and school record with a 2:15 in the 200 individual medley.

Don Wagner won Wayne's other individual first with a school record 2:18.9 in the 200 backstroke.

All three relays were Wayne firsts. The 400 medley relay team of Wagner, Don Carney, Shores and Onstöt traveled to a district record 4:01.4. The 400 freestyle relay of Shores, Jim Bathen, Doug Krecklow and Onstöt set a district and school record of 3:24.9. The 800 freestyle relay of Paul Martin, Bathen, Krecklow and George won in 8:06.4.

Hunting Dates Set at Lincoln

Opening dates for all Nebraska hunting seasons except those on waterfowl were set by the Game and Parks Commission at its February meeting.

The only complete set of regulations emerging from the meeting deals with the spring turkey season. The Commission set dates of Apr. 29 through May 8, and shooting hours of sunrise to sunset.

A new feature of the spring season is a provision that hunters 14 and 15-years-old may go after turkeys, provided they are accompanied by an adult 21 or older. The application period for residents began on Mar. 1.

Opening dates for most of the rest of the seasons were also established. These include: pheasant and quail, Nov. 4 through Sept. 16; squirrel and cottontail, Sept. 1; archery deer, Sept. 16; firearm-deer, Nov. 11; archery-antelope, Aug. 19; rifle-antelope, Sept. 24, and fall-turkey, Oct. 28.

Closing dates and other regulations for the small-game seasons and all waterfowl hunting regulations will be set in August.

Wayne State's wrestlers were headed for Sioux City Tuesday, where they boarded a jet bound for the NAIA National wrestling tournament at Klamath Falls. From left: Ken Monroe, Tom Luth, Ron Coles, Frank Kuennen, Dennis Reid, Kent Irwin and Coach Bob Kruse. Four other national-bound teams from Iowa and Minnesota will join the Wildcats on the chartered flight.

Wayne State Wrestlers to Oregon This Weekend for National NAIA Meet

Wayne State, a narrow loser to UN-Omahla Saturday in the NAIA District 11 wrestling tournament at Wayne, turns attention now to the NAIA national meet this weekend.

Coach Bob Kruse will take six wrestlers to the nationals at Klamath Falls, Ore., Thursday through Saturday. Four of them won individual titles and the other three finished second in a tense seven-team district meet which went to the final match before a champion was decided.

Wayne led, 73, to Omaha's 73, when heavyweight Ron Coles of Wayne and Gary Kipfmiller of UNO went to the mat. Last month Kipfmiller had edged Coles, 3-2, in a dual meet here.

The Omahan, reportedly "down" to about 370 pounds, built a 4-1 lead going into the third period, then made it 5-1 on an escape. Coles, aggressive all the way, stepped up his attack and with 46 seconds left, upset Kipfmiller for a two-point takedown. The 215-pound Coles, a sophomore from Indianapolis, tried but could not manage to roll Kipfmiller into a fall. The Omahan won, 6-3, with riding time, and UNO finished with 76 points. Kipfmiller became the fifth Maverick to win a first.

Omaha won the first three final matches: Paul Martinez with a 5-0 decision over Dan Mowrey, Kearney, at 118; Phil Gonzalez, 15-9, over Jim Meyer, Wayne, at 126; and Conrad, 9-2 over Kent Irwin, Wayne, at 131.

Peru then claimed its one first.

place when Ken Doettcher decided Bruce Brooks, Omaha, 5-1, at 142. Quentin Horning built the UNO score on his 9-2 verdict over Don Richert, Kearney, at 150.

The next four matches went to Wayne. Tom Luth with a 5-55 pin of Bill Kruse, at 158; Ken Monroe pinning Charles Mancuso, UNO, in 6:58, in the 167 class; Frank Kuennen with a 6-0 decision over Ed Nelson, Midland, at 177, and Dennis Reid pinning Craig Heldecker, Kearney, in 1:45, at 190. That left it up to the heavyweights.

Third place winners:

- 118—Craig Helwege, Wayne, unopposed.
- 126—Mark Nebel, Concordia, unopposed.
- 134—Chris Wilkinson, Kearney, unopposed.
- 142—Bruce Richers, Concordia, decided Loren Hansen, Wayne, 2-0.
- 150—John Kleblich, Wayne, decided Bob Rendia, Concordia, 13-1.
- 158—Craig Artist, UNO, decided Bob Orsborn, Kearney, 5-3.
- 167—Stan Johnson, Dana, decided Greg Wilson, Kearney, 5-4.
- 177—Dean Anstey, Peru, decided Dale Rubesh, UNO, 7-6.
- 190—Ken Fish, UNO, pinned Armand Ilaak, Concordia, in 4:48.
- 190—Jim Rezac, Peru, unopposed.

Kearney finished third with 27 points; Peru had 18, Dana 13, Concordia and Midland 7 each.

Wayne's national meet will include Monroe, going for his second championship after a second-place finish last year. He is a junior from Arlington Heights, Ill., with a 20-0-1 record.

Also tabbed for the Oregon trip: Irwin, Council Bluffs, Iowa, 10-11; Luth, Grand Island, 13-2; Kuennen, Waucoma, Iowa, 8-0; Reid, DeWitt, Iowa, 14-7, and Coles, 19-2.

Missing from the 1972 team is freshman Jim Meyer, 126 pounder from Wayne, sidelined by a shoulder injury. Kruse called it "disappointing that Meyer can't make the trip, but not worth risking permanent injury."

Canvasbacks and redheads are the only ducks placed at 100 season. A hunter's tally bag limit is "filled" when the last duck he takes brings his point total to 100 or more.

Life on Other Planets Topic at Planetarium

It is possible that at this moment there is a message heading toward Earth from a super-civilization residing in the depths of space.

It is possible that beings from another world have already visited the Earth and that others will arrive in the future.

It is possible that Earthman in the future will communicate with a multitude of other civilizations residing in our own Milky Way Galaxy.

These are some of the ideas now being investigated at the Dale Planetarium at Wayne State College.

The current planetarium show, entitled "We Are Not Alone" is a story of life—how it began on Earth, and why science believes it must exist on other worlds scattered among countless stars.

The presentation documents the birth on our own planet, describing the known universe for similar conditions in other worlds. It details the many reasons why science today feels certain that the miracle of life is not unique to our planet, but must have occurred, and is occurring now, on perhaps billions of planets circling distant stars.

The public is invited to attend the planetarium, twice weekly at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and 3:30 p.m. Sunday through March 26. There is no charge. The planetarium is located in Carhart Science Hall on Block east of 12th and Main Streets.

Job Well Done

"Let George do it," is an old saying applied when explanations are made as to why fund-raising drives fail in many instances.

But George, and John, and Jim, and Mary, and Alice all "did it" here when a plea was made for funds to build a million-dollar Medical Center to serve the Wayne area.

There had to be a little hesitancy on the part of total success on the parts of campaign workers when they "started from scratch" to raise the necessary $500,000 to match the offer made from the Missionary Benedictine Sisters of Norfolk.

If not hesitancy, it most certainly would be safe to assume that not a single volunteer, even the most enthusiastic and optimistic, had any expectations that the drive would meet with such overwhelming response financially.

After all, a half-million bucks isn't exactly chicken feed—even to Howard Hughes.

The Feb. 14 issue of The Herald announced that the goal had been topped, but more would be needed to insure a smooth beginning to the operation once the hospital was built.

The sights then were raised to $700,000, which, average, it was stated, would guarantee funds for the purchase of necessary equipment that would turn a "good" hospital into a "first-rater."

Contributions kept pouring in. Donors and volunteer workers "didn't even balk" when they passed the $700,000 second goal.

Campaign chairmen gave an inkling that a surprise was in store for the "Victory Celebration" Thursday night at the Birch Room, Wayne State College.

But even the forewarned were pleasantly stunned when the figures were jotted down on the big board at the conclusion of the drive.

Contributions and subscriptions had totaled $866,027!

That the drive was handled in a well-managed manner is obvious.

It has been estimated that 15,000 persons will use the facilities in Wayne County and the surrounding area.

That averages out at well over $50 contributed by every man, woman and child in this locality.

We aren't going to begin to attempt to mention all those responsible for the resounding success of the drive.

That would be like trying to point out the strongest link in a log chain.

The link can't do any kind of an effective job without the help of all others.

Of course, the biggest tip of ye old hat would have to go to the contributors. A total of $744,208 came from Wayne residents and business firms, with $121,819 collected in the area towns and rural areas.

For those who, for one reason or another, were missed by solicitors, the Hospital Campaign office at 114 E. Third will be open through Friday and then records will be moved to the Chamber of Commerce Office at 108 W. Third until the new hospital is completed at the northeast corner of the Wayne State College campus.

The patient overload for the three Wayne physicians has been an acute problem in the past.

Already, there reportedly has been some interest shown by at least two doctors to bring their practices to Wayne—and more should be enticed by first-rate facilities.

It's a big plus in all departments.

A big bouquet is in order for all those who shared in the experience.

On to State

By the time this issue of The Wayne Herald hits the streets, Laurel may well be a ghost town.

It seems the place empties out every year about this time. And for good reason. Because the beginning of March signals the Bears' seemingly, annual trek to Lincoln.

It's been an annual event for the past three years, anyway. Prior to that, Laurel hadn't sent a team to the state basketball tournament for 42 years.

Those long, lean years evidently whetted the appetites of Laurel fans, because they've been very much in evidence all season, through the district wars and at Friday night's last-second triumph over the Neligh Warriors at the regionals in Norfolk. You can bet they'll be there, hundreds strong, when their team takes the floor tonight (Thursday) against Norfolk Catholic on the Lincoln High maples.

It's getting to be something of a habit, this business of cutting down nets. The Bears took runner-up honors in 1970, bowing to Cozad in the championship game, but not before derailing Lincoln Plus X and Fairbury. Last year found a tough Aurora squad dashing the Bears' hopes in the first round. This year, of course, everyone is hoping for a first-place finish. A bit of philosophy now cherished by Laurel backers is the old axiom that "the third time's the charm."

The Bears know it will take more than charms, though, to bring home the state title. And judging from appearances in the last few weeks, they're ready to mount a determined campaign. It's been an uphill battle. Off to a slow start, the bulls managed to shake themselves out of the doldrums amid midseason. They've been gathering momentum ever since. It looks as if they've peaked at about the right time.

When Joel Parks took over as Bears' head coach this year, the pressure was on. The previous two Laurel teams had gone to state. That's a tough act to follow, especially for a first-year coach. But the former Wayne State proved he had what it takes to be a winner.

Park's unrelenting "defense-defense-defense" philosophy is probably the single most important reason the Bears are going south. Another plus is the fact that the Bears are all good shooters. To cap it off, their accuracy from the foul line has been almost eerie. When everything's working right, they appear to be well-nigh unstoppable.

Things to look for in Lincoln: the Bears like to run, and though they had turnover trouble earlier this season, they've matured to the point where they can steal and fast break effectively. Watch also for the outside weave, that climaxes with George Schroeder slashing for the bucket. If the coast is clear, he'll shoot... and he won't miss. If the going is a bit heavy, he'll pass to a teammate on the baseline. That's the play that beat Neligh Friday night, and it usually works.

Wearing Laurel uniforms this season are Schroeder, Gary Chace, Steve Urliwer, Dave Didder, Bruce Johnson, Kevin Gade, Keith Olsen, Chuck Hirschman, Gene Sarha, Greg Anderson, Bill Dalton and Tom Anderson. They deserve a lot of credit.

It's been said that some high school students will do anything to get a day or two off from school. The Bears do light hard work. We wish them good luck.

NSEA Convention March 16-17

Approximately 12,000 teachers are expected to attend the Nebraska State Education Association (NSEA) convention March 16-17 in Omaha. Represented will be the combined membership of Districts 1, 2 and 3, which cover the eastern third of the state.

The convention is a joint meeting with two other groups: the Nebraska State Federation Council for Exceptional Children; and the Nebraska Speech and Hearing Association.

Speakers, workshops and a "bash" are among the items on the agenda. Approximately 150 exhibitors will set up displays at the Civic Auditorium Exhibition Hall and Arena. Entries are running almost 50 per cent higher than last year. Door prizes include four $50 bills.

Dr. Andrew David (Andy) Holt will be the featured speaker at the general meeting, the evening of Mar. 16. Dr. Holt is President Emeritus of the University of Tennessee and has served as president of the National Education Association. Dr. Holt was chairman of the U.S. Delegation to the World Organization of the Teacher Profession at Bern, Switzerland, and was a charter member of the Steering Committee of the Education Commission of the States.

Curriculum presentations will range from science to scuba diving, individualized instruction to environment.

Northern Natural Gas Company will host some economics teachers attending the convention. These sessions are scheduled on the second day and include a three-screen presentation entitled CHEMY (carbon, hydrogen, energy, matter and you). Miss Roberta Ehrlich, representing the American Dairy Association of Chicago, will be guest speaker.

A program on alcohol safety—including an alcohol test demonstration—will be presented to driver education instructors. Four in-service training programs are scheduled for teachers attending the agricultural and natural resources sections of the convention. These sessions will be conducted at the two Rivers School Farm.

Some teachers will receive a little help—from the Helpmobiles. The Helpmobiles are sponsored by the NSEA and consist of teams of teachers visiting schools to help other teachers improve their teaching skills. The Helpmobile program, now in its tenth year, originated in Nebraska. Personnel have worked with groups from other states in starting Helpmobile programs. Teachers visiting Omaha will staff two Helpmobiles during the convention. Presentations will be for elementary teachers. In turn, Omaha teachers will travel, via the Helpmobile route, to Kearney and Scottsbluff this year.

An action lab is on the program for teachers interested in early childhood education. Demonstrations and presentations of innovative programs are scheduled. Specific topics include "Ideas for

Override of Governor's Veto on Tax Bill Fails

LINCOLN—Round One of the Exonators' Burchach rematch went to the governor.

Sen. J. W. Burchach of Crofton failed last week in his attempt to get 30 legislators to agree that his version of personal property tax exemption should be adopted despite Gov. J. J. Exon's veto.

It takes 30 votes to override a veto and Burchach collected only 27.

The very next day, however, the gong rang for Round Two. Another personal property tax bill—this one the Exon version—was given preliminary consideration.

Amendments had been prepared which would change the governor's bill so it would reflect the Burchach plan. Other pending amendments would propose still another method of relieving owners of business and farm personal property from their taxes on those items.

Their was a familiar ring to the whole affair. The same thing happened last year.

In the 1971 session, Burchach got a graduated personal property tax exemption plan adopted, only to have it fall before a veto he couldn't get enough votes to override.

Through amendments, he got another bill written to do much the same thing. It passed, too. But the session was almost over by this time and Exon wanted until the legislators had used all their 90 days before writing his veto message, thus avoiding an attempted override.

Burchach Disappointed

Immediately after the override effort failed last week, Burchach announced his plans to try again. He said he was disappointed the first attempt fell short.

"I thought surely we had the votes," he said.

There almost were enough. Two senators who hadn't been present when the bill was passed, 26-17, the week before showed up for the override ballot and voted with Burchach.

But three lawmakers who had supported the bill on passage didn't support the override. They were Sens. Thom Kennedy of Newman Grove and Wayne Zienbarth of Wilcox, who voted "no," and Ellen

The Agent's Angle

by Harold Ingalls

the net return per farm was about $7,700.

One way to figure the contribution of Nebraska's agriculture to the economy is to calculate the retail value of goods produced. Since farmers get only 40 per cent of the retail dollar, the $2 billion of cash receipts are worth $5 billion at the retail level, adding the $1.6 billion that farmers spend in farm production expense and the $200 million in payments from government farm programs, the grand total is $6.8 billion. This is a tremendous income multiplier.

Food Processing

Fully dependent on agricultural production is the state's food processing industry. Nebraska's 211 meat packing plants produced 3.1 billion pounds of red meat in 1969 valued at $1.4 billion. About 15 major poultry processing plants processed 43 million pounds of poultry valued at $12 million. Nebraska has 18 flour mills which turned out 8 million cwt. of flour and 138,000 tons of mill feeds worth $48 million. The 70 dairy plants produced $88 million worth of butter, cheese, dry milk and ice cream. All told, the wholesale value of agricultural products processed by food manufacturing establishments in the state amounted to $1,588 million. They employed 26,000 persons with a 1969 payroll of $295 million.

Eighty-nine alfalfa meal mills processed 800 million tons of alfalfa meal worth $34 million. The 45 hatcheries produced nearly 10 million chicks and more than 600 thousand turkey poults, worth $3.4 million.

Total Inventory

Nebraska farmers and ranchers have some 106,000 automobiles, 100 motor trucks, 192,000 tractors, 79,000 power elevators, 39,000 grain combines, 20,000 grain driers, 38,000 corn pickers and picker shellers, 21,000 field forage harvesters, 15,000 pick-up balers, 16,000 milking machines and countless miscellaneous kinds of equipment used in farming and ranching. The operation of these machines entails expenditures of more than $350 million a year.

Nebraska's $11 billion enterprise returned $2 billion in cash receipts from farm marketings in 1970 and another $203 million in government payments for farm programs.

Gross income per farm was $30,800. After deducting production expenses, interest, taxes, wages paid, depreciation, etc.,

Producers used about one and one-fourth million tons of fertilizer in 1970. In the early fifties annual fertilizer consumption was less than 100,000 tons.

Changes in technology have greatly increased agricultural productivity in recent years. Crop yields in recent years have been a third higher than 10 years ago. Livestock production has shown a similar rise.

Farm Land Value

Farm land values have quadrupled since 1945 and will be close to $7.1 billion in 1971. Meanwhile, the number of farms have been declining steadily from 112,000 in 1945 to 71,000 in 1971. The projected trend is 60,000 farms by 1980. Since the land in farms is changing only slightly, the average farm size is steadily increasing, being at 659 acres per farm in 1970, compared with 427 in 1945. The acreage harvested has shown a downward trend over the year with about 16 million acres harvested in recent years.

Reflecting a declining number of farms and the growth in power equipment, custom work, and labor saving devices, farm employment has declined 38 per cent since 1955. However, the rate of decline has moderated considerably in the last three years.

Nebraska realized gross farm income was close to $2 billion in 1970, a record high and more than double the 1955 return. Net income failed to match 1969 as farm expenditures were larger. It was the second largest at nearly $560 million, however.

Doubling of State's Irrigation Acreage Equivalent to New $4 Billion Industry

LINCOLN—The doubling of Nebraska's irrigated acreage between 1970 and 1980—from approximately four million acres to eight million—would be equivalent to bring a $4 billion industry to the state, University of Nebraska President D.B. Varner said here Thursday.

Varner was the leadoff speaker at the Nebraska Water Resources and Irrigation Development Seminar for the 1970's, in session through Friday afternoon at the Nebraska Center. Some 225 agricultural, educational, governmental and industry leaders attended the seminar, planned by a 35-member committee headed by Dr. Leslie Sheffield, coordinator of the NU Irrigation Development Program.

Varner based his $4 billion figure on NU Bureau of Business Research calculations that the added output due to irrigation results in increased economic impacts of $302 per acre. In addition, it is estimated that the one-time investment impact when non-irrigated land is converted to irrigated land amounts to $712 per acre.

Applying these figures, the additional four million acres put under irrigation in the current decade would have an economic impact of $1.2 billion due to increased output, and one-time investment would add another $2.8 billion in increased economic activity.

Varner referred to the report on the Framework Study for the State Water Plan, released in May, 1971, which states that 19.2 million acres under irrigation in 1970 represented 30.8 per cent of the potential irrigated acreage, Varner pointed out.

Underlining Nebraska's "secret weapon" of water resources, Varner said approximately one million acre feet of water enters the state annually, but between seven and eight million acre feet leave the state each year.

He termed losses from water leaving the state, including flood damages such as the $3.4 million in the Elkhorn River Basin annually, as "not only inexcusable but morally and economically wrong."

Nebraska makes up approximately one-sixth of the geographic area of the Missouri River Basin, but the state has about one-third of the total estimated ground water supplies in the entire basin—two billion acre feet of ground water in storage.

Varner said improvements in irrigation technology and innovations which will come off the drawing board during the remainder of the decade will allow the state to double irrigated acreage by 1980. However, he warned that if the goal is to be reached, and "if this development is to be planned properly, soundly engineered, and economically feasible, it will require

The Many 'Cides' of Today's Farmer

Today's farmer has so many "cides" that it is difficult for him to know which way to turn so the correct "cide" is up. Or down, whichever the case may be.

He has a herbicide, an insecticide, a fungicide, a pesticide, a herbicide, an inside and an outside. Usually he puts the pesticide down and the herbicide up. Then again, he may put the herbicide down and the pesticide up.

Years ago farming seemed to have been so simple. At least the planning and preparation of the corn planting consisted of considerable less 35 or 40 years ago than it does now. As long as the farmer harvested good corn last year, he merely had to select the better ears of corn for this year's planting.

Then on a chilly and perhaps, muddy spring day the entire family hand shelled enough corn for planting. The rubbins were tossed back into the crib. After all, hogs and cows don't seem to be too particular about the size of an ear of corn. They only eat more of the smaller ones.

With the growth of the nation and the vast need for increased production, innovation has become necessary for farmers. And along with innovation has come hybrid seed. And along with hybrid seed has come "hybrid" bugs and weeds. Thus making it necessary for agricultural scientists to produce chemicals to protect the seeds and plants.

Enemy List Grows

Not so many years ago it seems like the drought and grasshoppers were the only destructive enemies of crop plants. Today the entire soil seems to be completely undermined by bugs and germs and weeds. Or the grass that the Mrs. has been trying for years to grow in the house yard grows plentiful in the fields. In fact, she's actually spend good, hard, cold cash for the seed.

Anyone it seems like the farmer needs to have his own scientific lab. Well, he may not have the lab but he sure does have the proving grounds. But unlike a scientist who usually works on only one particular type of chemical the farmer must specialize in all the chemical weed, pest and germ killers or "cides."

Yet how in the world does anyone, except a scientist, know which one is what and where it goes? Well, you're a farmer, not a scientist, so you have to attack this from a logical, down-to-earth point of view.

Take the word herbicide, for instance, herb meaning a plant. In this case a worthless weed or something entwining, flowered vine or unwanted, sodding grass. And since the word "cide" means, in combining form, killer, you know that a herbicide must be the chemical killer for weeds and grass. Now, that seems very simple.

As most insects are pests, a pesticide and an insecticide must be about the same. Bug killers. Then there is the fungicide. And almost every farmer has his own definition of a fungus. Webster explains it as some sort of a parasite. Something that thrives on something else.

And no farmer wants anything but long, golden, kernel-covered cobs thriving on those tender, green corn stalks. Or nothing but the copper-colored beetles thriving on a grain sorghum stalk.

Knowledge a Must

Today's farm magazines and TV farm commercials contain many facts about the many "cides" of the farmer. Today's farmer must know all there is to know about each chemical available to him. And why some aren't available to him. Or at least try to know about them. He must know which chemical precedes or accompanies or follows that little kernel into the soil.

When cramming for this year's "finals" you find, listed under the title of herbicides, such names as atrax, atrax and susso, atrax and princep, atrax and sutan, atrax and tribac, amiben, alanap plus amiben, amitril and ansar and avadex. Then there is avadex E.C., avadex T.V., amilne and aminofalols. Goodness, those scientists sure do their utmost to confuse a simple little thing.

And these are only a few of the ones beginning with the first letter of the alphabet.

Well, it was simple enough until you tried to decide which herbicide to use on which weed in which crop. To say nothing of the next year's crop in that same field. And you haven't even started on the bug and germ "cide" of things.

There are just as many or more pesticides and insecticides and the names are just as confusing. And each one kills a certain kind of bug. Now, how do you know which bug is going to be in which field?

But it doesn't take long for you to know they're there.

A farmer's fields could become the playground for cutworms, wireworms, rootworms or grub worms. They might be imposed upon by weevils, aphids, beetles or some other little, costly, aggravating bug.

The bugs invade the farmer's corn fields almost like the four winds. There are northern, western and southern corn rootworms. Surely there is an eastern rootworm, too.

No wonder there are so many kinds of insecticides and pesticides. Now if you can figure out which bug is going to eat your corn this year, you'll be able to figure out exactly what kind of insecticide to use.

Or if you know which blight is going to weasel its way into your corn and sorghum fields, you'll know which fungicide to use.

If every farmer doesn't have a degree in chemistry by the time he gets all this figured out, he should have. It won't be written on a scroll from some University. It will be visible to those additional bushels of grain at harvest time.

Yep, gone are the days of simple farming. If there ever were any. Bugs and germs are only a few of the many chances a farmer takes each year. He's almost certain of the weeds. Thus the greater need for the herbicides.

Years ago there was a simple solution for the weeds, too. It was called cultivating.

AFS Student Guest Speaker at Kiwanis

Rosa Mery Costello, of Venezuela, the American Field Service exchange student now studying at Wayne High School and living with the Max Lanstrum family, told members of the Kiwanis Club at their regular Monday noon meeting that the educational systems of the two countries differed greatly.

"Few go on to college," she said, adding the main reason was lack of finances and the few job openings for college graduates. "There are far too many candidates now for teaching positions," she added.

Venezuelan school children wear uniforms to school and have soccer as the top sport. She saw her first football game at Wayne and also was impressed with snow, a rarity in her native land.

Rosa Mery, who "loves Wayne," proved herself to be one of the city's top ambassadors when her flowing praise of her adopted country and family, "I love it here and don't want to leave," she sadly commented.

"Venezuela is a poor country with poor people," she concluded, "and the people need help badly. Because of the lack of money, most live in apartments, few having the money to live in houses."

Final plans were made for the 49th anniversary banquet of Kiwanis and wives Saturday night at the Wayne State Student Center.

Certainly Lasso on beans can save incorporation time.

—All of it.

If you're really sold on making an extra trip with other soybean herbicides (and spending an extra buck or two per acre) you can incorporate Lasso, too. But why bother?

Simply apply the liquid or granular form, preemergence. Without trailing a disc. Or making a special trip to work it in.

If preplant application with incorporation is your style, that's fine, too. Do it with Lasso liquid. Simply preplant and lightly incorporate.

Either way, you get rid of grasses and broadleaves. Which saves headaches at harvest time.

That's what you expect from your herbicide.
