

Leading the Laurel Bears onto the court Thursday night against Norfolk Catholic was Bruce Johnson, bursting through a sign that announced "Bears Number One." That claim was a bit premature, as the Laurel crew fell to the Knights, 77-63 in the opening round of the state tournament at Lincoln High.

Scrappy Laurel Bears Bow To Rangy Norfolk Catholic

By Claire Hurlbert
There had to be a cloud of laurel hanging over the town of Laurel, beginning at 8:10 Thursday night, which slowly dissipated over the weekend.
The staunch Laurel fans had seen their beloved Bears knocked out of first-round action in the Class C division of the state basketball tournament by a skyscraping Norfolk Catholic crew, 77-63.
They were understandably disappointed at being thwarted in their hope for "third time charm" at the big show—but their admiration for their scrappy cagers hadn't waned in the least.

Senators OK Hospital Bill

Final-round reading in the state legislature Thursday yielded a 41-10 vote in favor of a bill which would allow the City of Wayne to channel funds and equipment from the current hospital into the Wayne Hospital Foundation. The bill will become law when signed by the Governor.
Current laws provide that cities can direct funds and equipment into a hospital district or a county hospital, but not to a non-profit organization such as the hospital foundation. The bill, LB 1124, was sponsored by Senator Tom Kennedy of Newman Grove, and provides for the transfer of funds and equipment upon vote of the City Council.

Early Landmark to Remain on Wayne Scene

by Sandra Breitkreutz
Though just 14 years old, its 100th year, one early-day Wayne landmark has still not outlived its usefulness—a rewarding thing to note in an age when the old is replaced daily by new; when the richness of wood becomes only a ghost in the shadows of plastic, and tall structures, sturdy, proud and grand, are taking the back seat to sprawling, faceless, tasteless, ultra-modern and ultra-noisy (they tell us) buildings of the present.
So it is a source of pleasure to see that the old St. Mary's Catholic church is scheduled for a rerun. Built in 1885, just four years after the platting of the City of Wayne, the church was moved in 1896 from its original site at Eighth and Main Streets, to its present location at the northwest corner of East Fourth and William Streets, where a house and three lots had been purchased.
In the two years that followed, the building was enlarged to double the seating capacity and a bell tower, bell, new altars, seats and confessional were added.
Until the completion last year of the new St. Mary's Church, located between Seventh and Eighth Streets on land shared with St. Mary's Grade School, the old building echoed with voices tuned in unison to praises of God.
After this summer's remodeling job, the building, which has recently been purchased by Gerald Lessmann, will once again ring with voices: voices of families, students, children, involved in the everyday process of living, just as were their ancestors who planned the building nearly a century ago.
Lessmann's plans call for the building to be converted to a six-unit apartment house.

This is how the St. Mary's Catholic Church and rectory looked in 1902, just a few years after the church had been moved from its original Main Street location.

The old St. Mary's Catholic Church, as we know it, will soon be a thing of the past. Dormer windows will appear in the roof and new windows and siding will help transform the still serviceable building into an apartment house.

Wage Control Inequities

We can't help but wonder what kind of a stick organized labor is holding over the Pay Board of the President's Economic Stabilization Program Phase II.

Whatever, it is obvious that the unorganized workers are getting "the short end of that stick."

Certain unions have managed to push through 15 per cent wage boosts or more while non-union labor agreements are bound in most cases to the 5.5 per cent limitations.

These inconsistencies have caused mass inequities in the Phase II wage controls.

Organized labor constitutes only 23 per cent of the nation's working force, 19 million men.

In effect, the Pay Board is telling 64 million unorganized workers that the way to get ahead is to join a union and elect a tough bargainer to battle for them.

Inequities such as this certainly are not doing anything to combat inflation, but rather have added to the problems for those persons who are receiving only token wage hikes.

Demands of retroactive pay since the wage-price freeze was put on without warning also has made the freeze nearly meaningless and ineffectual.

One of the consequences of the inequities has brought renewed pressure by Senator John Tower of Texas for labor law reform.

Tower pulls no punches when he says "the major cause of the inflationary spiral that has plagued the nation in recent years is the concentration of economic power in the hands of organized labor. This imbalance came about largely because the basic labor laws under which we operate today are outmoded products of the 1920's and 1930's. These laws have put up a statutory wall of protection for organized labor behind which it can operate with little or no restraint."

The National Labor Relations Board, Sen. Tower believes, is much at fault for the growth of excessive labor power. He cites cases which, in his opinion, show the bias of the NLRB in favor of big unions, and has offered a bill in Congress to abolish the NLRB's authority to hear and rule on charges of unfair labor practices, and give the federal courts jurisdiction in such cases.

The Hillsboro, Ore., Argus recently took a shot at organized labor concerning the Pacific Coast dock tie-up.

"No group, large or small or no matter how powerful, should have the power to tie up the economy, cause economic disaster to any segment of the population, bring about loss of markets and cause suffering to countless others," the newspaper said, adding:

"It is incumbent upon the Congress and the administration to take whatever steps are necessary to prevent organized labor or management from work stoppages or strikes against the public interest. Certainly the outrageous losses resulting to farmers and others dependent on shipping, rail, air and other industries call for compulsory settlements that would be binding on both sides fair to the public and the economic interests of the entire country."

"There is no rhyme or reason for permitting a relatively small number of people to cripple the majority and the economy of the region and the nation," the paper's lay-it-on-the-line editorial concluded.

To this we can only add—Amen.

Chinese Robots

The newsmen who accompanied President Nixon to China all seem to have returned with the same impressions of that vast country.

One reporter stated that it seemed to him Peking came in three colors: brown for the earth, gray for the city and its buildings and blue for the ubiquitous baggy uniforms worn by the citizens.

Two correspondents returned from a visit to an elementary school, shocked by the enforced conformity and regimentation which the children accepted willingly.

Others were amazed at the strenuous efforts of the city-dwellers, who turned out by the hundreds to sweep the sidewalks and clear the streets of snow. Harry Reasoner was so impressed by the community snow removal project, that he decided to try it upon his return to New York.

The Iowa-born journalist stated that he showed up at 4 a.m., shovel in hand to help his neighbors scoop the city walks. Then with the usual wry turn, he noted, "There wasn't much of a crowd."

Another correspondent noted that he walked freely in the darkest parts of the city at midnight, unafraid of being attacked by muggers and junkies. He left his hotel room unlocked, and never even entertained the notion that his property might be missing when he returned.

"Correct thinking" has done a great deal for the Chinese people. It has organized them into an effectively operating society. There is no crime, and you'd never find beer cans, cigarette butts and candy wrappers cluttering the gutters of Peking. The children are uniformly well-behaved, and there are no riots in the streets.

But "correct thinking" has also turned the Chinese into a nation of robots. One young factory worker told a reporter, "The oppressed workers of the United States will soon rise to shake off the shackles of the capitalist system." Little did she know that the working class, if there is such a thing anymore, is the staunchest defender of American capitalism.

Isn't it a pity that the national spirit of unity possessed by the Chinese couldn't be woven into the fabric of democracy? But at this point, it seems to be an "either/or" situation. We can't have the best of both worlds. Diversified thinking leads to independent action, but we'd choose that route over the Chinese system every time.

Frisco's Pride and Joy Is in Famed Cable Cars

WASHINGTON—It's easy to find trouble in San Francisco. Criticize the cable cars.

San Franciscans are fiercely protective about their antique mode of transport, and resent any moves to change or abolish it, the National Geographic Society says.

A storm of protest broke when windshield wipers were installed on the cars a few years ago. "If cable cars had needed windshield wipers," said one old gentleman, "the good Lord would have built them that way."

Bouncing and clanging up San Francisco's steep hills for almost a century, the jaunty little vehicles have been immortalized in songs, starred in movies, and declared a national historic landmark by the federal government.

Aided by federal funds, the city is extending a present cable car line to Fisherman's Wharf, building three new cars, refurbishing others and improving braking and lighting systems.

A gripman works the brakes on the cars and controls their speed by tightening or loosening a "grip" that grabs an electric-powered underground cable pulling at nine miles an hour. He also clangs out a brassy, syncopated rhythm on the "Din-key's" distinctive bell at dangerous crossings or when the mood strikes him.

Gripmen like to show off their bell-ringing skills on special occasions. Passing a wedding party emerging from a church, one virtuoso played a resounding "Here Comes the Bride" as he rolled past.

Another cheered up a lonely rider, headed for a solitary birthday dinner. He broke into a hearty rendition of "Happy Birthday," accompanying himself with the bell. By the time his car reached the bottom of the hill, most of the people in the streets had joined in.

Cablemen are not always so gallant. An exasperated conductor signalled his gripman to a sudden halt after a lady passenger's hat blew off and rolled down a steep hill. "Chase it yourself," he snarled. "I'm sick of being quaint and colorful."

For better or for worse, cablemen serve a system invented by Andrew Hallidie, an Englishman who plied the horses that once had to pull passenger vehicles up San Francisco's sharp inclines.

On the first trip of a "Hallidie's Folly" in 1873, the inventor had to take

He served in the U. S. Air Force nine years and was graduated from the University of Nebraska School of Pharmacy.

Two Nebraska Highway Department employees were not seriously injured in an accident on Highway 13 about 2 1/2 miles west of Foster Monday morning. Robert L. Reed, Norfolk, was driving a truck when the right wheels dropped off the oil. In an attempt to swing the truck back onto the road, he lost control and the vehicle began whipping, rolled once and came to a stop on its side in the middle of the roadway. Larry Lee, a passenger, complained of minor back injury, but the men were not seriously hurt.

It was a busy weekend for Plainview firemen last week with nearly 20 hours of actual fire fighting, plus many more hours of cleanup on fire apparatus from late last Saturday afternoon to Monday night. A Saturday night fire at the DeMar Beltz farm, five miles southwest of Plainview, was followed by a 12:50 a.m. alert Sunday to the Plains Theatre and Paul's GW Store, both of which were completely destroyed Monday about 7:15 p.m. The men were called to a parking lot at St. Mary's Cafe where a 1963 automobile belonging to Don Hetrick of Omond was burning, and about 10 p.m., that evening they were called to extinguish a fire in a row of trees north of the Art Edison farm, seven and a half miles south of Plainview.

Roger Gaster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Gaster of West Point, and a sophomore at Boomer High School, has a working model matchlock smooth-bore shotgun he made himself. It is made according to specifications of weapons used in medieval times. In World History, taught by Mrs. Mary Volkmer at BHS, the class had been studying medieval inventions. Gaster decided he could make a gun to show how they worked, and did. By pouring gunpowder into a little notch, using a special match fuse and lighting it, Gaster is able to fire the gun. It has a semblance of accuracy and propels a load a considerable distance.

Oakland and Craig area residents had an opportunity to help in the fight against muscular dystrophy as members of the Oakland-Craig High School student council conducted a drive Saturday morning. To the Editor: To set the record straight, the acrid odor that has settled around our fair city the past few days is NOT an odor emitted from the city lagoon.

I have, and will take any complainant directly to the area and prove once and for all that the smell is radiated from the removal of chicken manure from the two egg factories located adjacent to the lagoon.

Also, anyone interested is hereby advised that the subject of this problem will be discussed at the City Council meeting March 14, 1972, and hopefully a solution will be rendered.

To the Editor: Many of us are aware of important issues that we never really do anything about. We think about it or talk about it, but then we play the old ostrich myth, stick our heads in the sand and hope it goes away, or maybe someone else will do something.

I would like to say a few words about something that is an everybody's mind, and that something is taxes. It is generally conceded that our present system of property taxation is unfair to the point of being ridiculous and has even been ruled unconstitutional in many states.

We watch our State Legislature play its game of upset the fruit basket and this could be humorous if it weren't so tragic. This is a tragedy because for every comedy there has to be a fall guy and in this case the fall guy is us. By us I mean the taxpayer, the teacher, the parent, society, but most of all the student body of today's schools.

I do not mean to imply there are not many real fine schools in our state, both large and small. I do believe there are many schools that could be better, if they had the extra teachers and/or materials that are available today to districts that are adequately financed.

Our children go through school but once, one time for each grade. If they miss out on the type of education they need, be it from lack of facilities, materials, or personnel, they have been handicapped to that extent for the rest of their lives. One bad year can be survived by some students, depending on their natural abilities and adeptness. Two humpers or three will take the toll of most any student.

I believe there is ample wealth in our state to give every child a fine education, providing this wealth was equitably taxed and distributed. There is a bill presently introduced in our State Legislature, LB 1377, which would do a very good job of achieving this objective.

This bill is certainly deserving of every body's study time and hopefully your support. It spreads the bulk of taxation over many areas, instead of just one. This bill would give everyone a chance to share in the democratic privilege of everyone paying their fair share.

There are some parts of this bill that are perhaps objectionable to some people, but we have to realize it is near impossible to draft a bill that would please everyone 100 per cent. We have to give a little, try to be fair in our consideration of the other person's position and work towards that which is achievable, rather than what most pleases our individual tastes.

Most school districts are faced with high mill levies. I don't know of any school that is paying its employees too much. I am sure that most school boards would like to be able to assure their employees of at least a cost of living

The property tax can no longer supply these necessary funds. If you don't think our present tax system is hurting, just take a look at the sale bills hanging everywhere. And this has been going on for years. Most people do not leave the farm or countryside by choice.

That farmstead was built with lots of hopes and lots of dreams, but with low prices and the drain of taxation, the farmer has hung up his sale bill and moved to the city to compete on the already over-crowded labor market and add his children to the overcrowded streets.

Taxpayers Swamp IRS with Queries

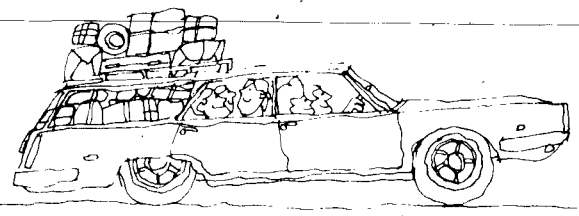

OMAHA...Nearly 28,000 taxpayers called the Internal Revenue Service in Omaha with questions about their federal income taxes during the month of February. The IRS has installed a new toll-free long distance service for taxpayers in all parts of Nebraska to meet the public's need for increased service.

Richard P. Vinal, district director of the IRS for Nebraska, said that during the first two weeks of February some people may have had difficulty getting through to the IRS representatives in the Omaha office where all of the calls are handled. On the heaviest day, 1,891 calls were received.

He suggested that these people who do experience some difficulties should try again. The first hour of the day has been the lightest up to this time and the last days of the week have been lighter than Mondays, for example.

Anyone in Nebraska can reach these tax specialists by calling 800-642-9950.

Scrappy Bears Bow to Rangy Norfolk

 closely the two teams were matched.
 In the end, it was just a case of too much height for the Bears to overcome—opposing a front line consisting of 6-6 Joe Mueing, 6-5 Ken Throener and 6-3 Brad Merchant and a couple of capable ball-handling guards in 5-10 Larry Sock and little 5-7 Dave Hermesen.

Laurel, which gave up 2 1/2 inches per man, stayed with the starting five of Gary Chase (6-1), Gene Sarha (5-9), George Schroeder (6-4), Steve Drivler (6-11) and Bruce Johnson (5-5) until there was no possible chance for a comeback, the subs taking over for both clubs with 31 seconds remaining and Norfolk ahead by 75-63.

Up to that time, the Cedar County quint had represented its area well and had a number of bright moments to recap for the scrappy book.

Schroeder fully lived up to advance notices of being one of the top-notch prep players in the state.
 "Papa Bear" had given tournament-goers and his foe a first-rate lesson on how the game of basketball should be played in the first half as he outfoxed, outjumped and outmaneuvered his defenders to pour in 22 points by halftime, 14 of those in the second quarter.

Rig George squirmed in for lay-ups, hit turn-around jumps, used the boards to corral in shots from the side and swished the nets from outcourt as he was unstoppable in the first and second quarters, four of seven shots on target in the first and six of 11 finding the mark in the second.
 Merchant was assigned to guard Schroeder man-to-man, in the third, George reverting from the gunner status to a feet man. But the defensive switch from a 2-1-2 zone ordered by Norfolk Catholic Coach Allen Zabawa paid off as his Knights opened a 36-

This George Schroeder hook shot was good for two points Thursday at the Nebraska State meet. Schroeder added another 33 points for the night, but that wasn't enough to beat the taller Norfolk Catholic Knights, who prevailed, 77-63. Too late to block this shot was Brad Merchant (40). Fellow-Knights Joe Mueing (44) and Ken Throener (32) flank the bucket for a possible rebound. Laurel's Gary Chase watches from the outside.

29 halftime advantage to 55-40 to begin the fourth.
 Schroeder was limited to a lone fielder in the third but shook his defender loose in the fourth quarter to get back on target for 11 more points to lead a little-too-late rally.
 Laurel displayed a brand of coolness not typical of first-night stands at basketball's big show in the early going, either tied or holding a slight edge for the first 5 1/2 minutes of action.
 The Norfolk quint appeared tight at the start but shook off the nervousness before the end of the first period, taking its first lead at 12-10. Laurel, which had enjoyed its biggest lead at 6-2 with only 2:22 gone, forged a 12-12 tie but a short jumper by Mueing put the Knights in a lead they never relinquished.

 One of the most unbelievable shots seen by most veteran state tournament spectators was pulled off by Schroeder just as the halftime buzzer sounded. Mueing had called a two-pointer with three seconds to go before intermission.
 But, Laurel, which had proven it "had come to play" and to take advantage of every scoring opportunity, passed the ball into play and Schroeder, at the center line, whirled and threw the ball in the direction of the basket. Still, luck, instinct as to the location of the basket—whatever—the ball sailed about 50 feet and swished the nets apparently without even touching the rim.
 An earlier oddity had seen a Norfolk shot come to a dead standstill on the basket rim, perfectly balanced. A Norfolk player tipped in the shot but referees Neal Mosser of Omaha and Orv Oulsett of Grand Island ruled the ball dead and awarded it on an out-of-bounds play to Laurel.

 The Knights, with many of their two-pointers coming from rebounds and easy lays, wound up with a fantastic 58 per cent shooting average, according to the official shot charts. Laurel shot well enough to win most games, 41 per cent on 28 of 69 tries.
 Norfolk cleared the boards 39 times to Laurel's 21 according to the state tournament statistics-keeper. Schroeder picked 13 off the boards, two below the Knight's Throener.
 The town of Laurel had to be nearly deserted Thursday night—assuming that all those who rose during the "two bit, four bits..."

chant actually were Laurel residents.

Nearly the entire west side of the Lincoln High seating section stood up en masse during the Bears' brighter moments, and when the players broke through the "Bears—No. 1" paper banner. The Laurel High band was given the honor of playing the National Anthem before the game began.

Deadline Nears For Spring Turkey Permit

Nebraska hunters have until Wednesday, March 15, to get their applications to the Game and Parks Commission if they want the best chance of getting a spring turkey permit in their favorite unit.

March 15 is the end of the initial application period, which is reserved for residents only. All applications in the hands of the Commission at that time will be eligible for drawings to distribute permits in oversubscribed units. Licenses remaining after the drawing will be issued on a first-come, first-served basis, and nonresidents may apply starting April 11.
 Six turkey units, with a total of 1,325 permits, will be open for the 1972 spring season. These include: Halsey, 25; Nobara, 300; Round Top, 850; Southwest, 50; Verdigris, 50, and Wildcat, 50.
 For the first time, 14 and 15-year-olds may hunt wild turkeys. However, they must be accompanied by a licensed hunter over 21. In previous years, individuals had to be 16 by opening day to go after turkey or any big-game animal in Nebraska.
 Application forms for the April 29 through May 8 hunt are available from conservation officers, Game and Parks Commission offices, and some 1,200 permit vendors across the state. Fees are $5 for residents, and $15 for nonresidents.

A pair of close contests marked the climax of the Dixon junior basketball tournament Wednesday night at the Dixon auditorium.

Certainly Lasso on beans can save incorporation time.

—All of it.

If you're really sold on making an extra trip with other soybean herbicides (and spending an extra buck or two per acre), you can incorporate Lasso, too. But why bother?
 Simply apply the liquid or granular form, preemergence. Without trailing a disc. Or making a special trip to work it in.
 If preplant application with incorporation is your style, that's fine, too. Do it with Lasso liquid. Simply preplant and lightly incorporate.
 Either way, you get rid of grasses and broadleaves. Which saves headaches at harvest time.

That's what you expect from your herbicide.

All dashed white center stripes on two-lane, two-way roads will be replaced with dashed yellow center stripes. The new yellow center stripe will tell the motorist that he is on a road carrying two-way traffic. Dashed white stripes will still be used to mark the traffic lanes on one-way roads, such as the Interstate.

The dashed yellow center stripe permits passing, but the solid yellow line still means "No Passing."

Also, the Department of Roads will be white edging all of hard surface roads on the state highway system.

Joint Meetings
The Allen American Legion and Auxiliary will hold their regular monthly meetings at 8 p.m. Monday (tonight) at the Legion Hall.

If you were disabled and unable to work... where would the $$ come from?

Your income depends on your earning power. So give some serious thought to this unfortunate possibility: you become sick or disabled and suddenly there's no income (or it's greatly reduced).

To help you meet such an emergency, New York Life has a whole line of "INCOME PROTECTION" policies with special features, which can be tailored to your individual needs.

I'd like to tell you about them. You'll find these plans attractively priced, too—probably lower than you'd expect. Some time soon, let's talk about current developments in health insurance, and give me the chance to make sure your family is adequately protected against financial loss when disability strikes. Why not give me a ring?
