

8 Acres Deeded To Medical Center

Wayne's Medical Center got an additional boost last week. The Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State Colleges voted unanimously to deed an eight-acre tract of land on the campus to the Wayne Hospital Foundation for the purpose of constructing the facility.

The action took place at the board's regular meeting in Lincoln and was upon the recommendation of Dr. W. A. Brandenburg, Wayne State president.

Nebraska statute allows the state college board to "acquire real and personal property and dispose of the same whenever any of the state colleges will be benefited thereby."

Among those benefits requested by Wayne State are:

- That the hospital provide office areas for the Wayne State physician, nurse and for the filing of student health records with the college providing custodial service and paying utility costs;
- That the hospital provide four additional beds which may be available for student use;
- That the hospital management will allow the facility to be used for observation and laboratory purposes in so far as its practical should the college after the area of nurses training or allied health programs.

Representing the Wayne Hospital Foundation at the meeting were Bob Carhart and Aden Jeffrey. Alan Cramer of Wayne is a member of the State College Board.

In other action, the board postponed final approval of plans for a new applied arts building on the Wayne State campus.

The 1970-71 legislature had allowed funds for planning the structure at $1.2 million. Planning has proceeded on that basis. It now appears that a $900,000 appropriation will be made. Wayne State is hopeful of obtaining a federal grant to make up the difference in the building cost but the outcome of the federal request will not be known until July.

The board voted to continue discussion at a special meeting in QUILALLA March 27.

Preparation for expansion of the Wayne Retirement Center began Thursday with the clearing of trees from the property. Owen K. Dahl said construction would be in three phases, the building of a two-story section in front of the old Lutgen Hospital; the tearing down of the old building, which was converted to a nursing home in 1948; and the construction of another two-story unit where the old building now stands, with a courtyard and corridor connecting the two new units. The 18,400-square-foot addition is expected to be completed by the middle of December. Ofte Construction Co. of Wayne has the contract.

Construction Underway for NPPD's New Substation in the Bancroft Area

Construction has begun on Nebraska Public Power District's new $277,000 substation about one-half mile southeast of Bancroft.

The sub will provide improved voltage levels for electrical loads in the area, furnish an additional source of power for the 34.5 KV subtransmission network between Oakland and the Twin Creek sub near Emerson and provide back-up for substation loads in the Twin Church-Walt-hill-Oakland area.

The substation will step from 115,000 volts to 34,500 volts to provide an additional delivery point for electricity to loads supplied not only by NPPD but also by the Cuming County Rural Public Power District and the Burt County Rural Public Power District.

Initial installation will include one power transformer with a maximum rating of 12,500 KVA power capacity and one 34,500-volt feeder line each for NPPD, Cuming County Rural and Burt County Rural.

Total area of the substation is 3.58 acres. The sub is being designed to have an ultimate capacity of 56,000 KVA and a maximum of six 34,500-volt feeder lines.

Construction is to be completed by June 1.

Must Display Safety Posters

Businessmen and farmers are reminded that Occupational Health and Safety Act posters must be displayed in a prominent place for the benefit of employees.

Failure to comply with the act, the Wayne Chamber of Commerce said, could result in a $50 fine.

The law pertains to all businesses and farms that employ at least one person.

Hope Daugherty Speaks to Jr. Leaders

Guest speaker at the District III 4-H Junior Leader Conference, held Thursday at the WSC Birch room, was Dr. Hope Daugherty, a program leader for 4-H teens and older youth, with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

In her 9 a.m. session, "Here's Hope," Dr. Daugherty spoke on communication, particularly as concerns what we call the "generation gap." At her suggestion, the audience learned to watch for other than verbal signs of communication in use constantly by those around us.

Dr. Daugherty's afternoon lecture, "Keep Smiling," was on mediocrity. Said Dr. Daugherty, "I like vanilla ice cream, but I don't like vanilla people." In her speech she quoted a businessman as saying of the mediocre: "You can't fire it; you sure can't promote it; you're stuck with it."

Hope Daugherty has taught all grades kindergarten through college, and the past five years has instructed in the graduate schools of the University of Cincinnati and Kansas State University. She received her PhD in educational psychology and guidance counseling from the University of Oklahoma. Hope has been doing extension work a little over two years.

Other speakers on the all-day program included Associate State 4-H Leader, Dr. John D. Orr, from the University of Nebraska, who spoke on "Youth and the environment," Joyceelyn Smith, area home extension agent from the University of Nebraska North-east Station at Concord, spoke on "Human Relations," and Dixon County Extension Agent, Roy Stonier, chose as his topic, "Attributes of a Junior Leader."

About 135 turned out for the annual meeting, which was sponsored by the Wayne County Junior Leaders. Counties represented were Boyd, Holt, Knox, Cedar, Dixon, Dakota, Thurston, Cuming, Stanton, Madison, Pierce, Antelope and Wayne.

Dr. Hope Daugherty challenges her audience to go beyond mediocrity in one of her addresses at the District III 4-H Junior Leader Conference Thursday.

Feed Grain Set-Aside Has Record Number of Signers

The sign-up period for the feed grain set-aside program ended a week ago, with the highest number of farms in history participating.

Harry Heinemann, chairman of the Wayne County ASC Committee, reported that 1,121 farms are signed up to participate in the program. There are 1,283 farms eligible to participate in the program which results in over 87 per cent of the eligible farms are participating.

Heinemann said that about one-half of the farms signed up to set aside 25 per cent of their feed grain base to a conserving use. The remaining farms chose to set aside more than 25 per cent of their base up to a maximum of 45 per cent. About 60 per cent of the farms setting aside additional acres, chose the high rate option which requires them to reduce their corn and grain sorghum acreage.

Producers are reminded by Heinemann that the even set-aside acres after April 1. Participants will be required to report their acreages to the ASC's office by June 25.

Ak-Sar-Ben Sponsors Laurel Dinner

"Ak-Sar-Ben's goal is doing something for others," Robert B. Daugherty, Ak-Sar-Ben councilor, told those persons attending the Community Service Dinner Thursday night at the Wagon Wheel Steak House at Laurel.

The event was to pay special recognition to community leaders in Ak-Sar-Ben's District 6, which includes Wayne, Dixon, Cedar, Dakota, Pierce, Knox, Thurston and Antelope Counties. Ambassadors in the district, county fair presidents and celebrities, city officials and civic leaders were guests of the Ak-Sar-Ben governors and councilors and their wives.

Daugherty said "Ak-Sar-Ben is truly unique in the United States—nothing quite like it anywhere. We have a close attachment to those things that concern us in the Midwest with stress placed on activities that benefit people."

Backing up that statement was the fact that $178,000 had been contributed by Ak-Sar-Ben in District 6 for 242 college scholarships, totaling $37,350 in value, 4-11 and FFA county fair premiums and other agricultural youth activities, county fair building and spruce-up grants, Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Show, service plans to 4-H club leaders, meetings and camps for 4-H club leaders, Agricultural Achievement Awards and Pioneer Farm Family Awards.

Public donations include a portable kidney machine fund to Wayne County, Good Neighbor Awards and the sponsoring of the annual Coronation and Ball.

Daugherty added that "because of the success of Ak-Sar-Ben's ACE program—Agricultural, Charitable and Educational endeavors—Ak-Sar-Ben has earned a reputation for thinking forward although its name comes from spelling of the name of the state backwards."

The president of Valmont Industries, Inc. pointed out that Ak-Sar-Ben had grown from 500 members when it was founded in 1895 to approximately 97,000 members in 1972.

Edward Owen, governor of District 6, was master of ceremonies. The President of Paxton and Vierling Steel Co. introduced those at the head table, including Nancy Ann Nurnberger of Omaha, the 77th queen of Ak-Sar-Ben; Ben Cowdery, Ak-Sar-Ben president and chairman of the board of World Publishing Co. of Omaha; J. Alan Cramer, district ambassador and publisher of The Wayne Herald; Eugene Sohler, mayor of Laurel, and Mrs. Sohler, Mrs. Cramer and Mrs. Owen.

Following the introduction of other dignitaries, a film, "Ak-Sar-Ben—Your Good Neighbor," was shown, depicting all of the Ak-Sar-Ben activities.

Alaska Learns Bad Habits

Alaska, which had never known prosperity until being admitted as the 49th state, has now learned something else from its elders.

The "pork-barrel scramble." Two years ago, the state received $900 million from U. S. oil companies for oil leases on the North Slope. In addition to the cash windfall, the state was guaranteed oil royalties expected to bring in a minimum of $7 billion to the state between now and the year 2000, still, Alaska is faced with the threat of bankruptcy.

Promising to set a record for spendthrift government, Alaska has come on a wild spending spree, and in the words of the Wall Street Journal "few see any prospect that the state will tighten its belt to avoid budget disaster."

Alaska, with many of its vast regions completely uninhabited, has a population of only about 300,000 persons, less than the population of Omaha.

But, as soon as the oil windfall became available, Alaska's Legislature began a host of spending programs, raising to $300 million the budget for fiscal 1971. That was 77 per cent higher than the year previous and triple the amount budgeted for 1969. And tax rates remained unchanged.

New state buildings and other public works projects suddenly became high priority, according to the Wall Street Journal.

The speed with which Alaska is spending itself into insolvency should be a lesson to those who always look to government as a superior manager and planner. —Claire Hurlbert

Hats Off to Hair

A Wakefield couple, who regularly find themselves at odds with their three teenage sons concerning the proper length a boy's hair ought to be, had occasion to chuckle recently when checking the youngest's Sunday School work sheet.

The quiz, concerning the story in "First Samuel" of Hannah's promise to God in return for a son, gave a multiple choice of answers concerning what the mother's vow had been. The Wakefield youngster had boldly, emphatically, and apparently without question, circled, "Never cut his hair."

Speaking of long hair, there wasn't a crew cut in the bunch on the day a group of enthusiastic young men, walking across the WSC campus, took a few minutes of their time and a lot of muscle to rock a helpless woman motorist's car out of the water-filled ditch she had blindly driven in to! The woman would have gladly cleaned the mud from all their shoes had she not felt too foolish to say more than, "Thanks a lot, guys!"

Long hair was the rule, too, for the group of males participating in the inspiring presentation by Dr. Cornell Runestad's Chamber Singers, "The Seven Words of Christ on the Cross," heard recently at various area churches. Somehow, neatly groomed and framing healthy, handsome, somber young faces which mirrored the deep emotion of Christ's suffering, the long locks seemed not only unobjectionable, but totally right!

A Prince Valiant, a Sir Walter Raleigh and a Gay 90's handlebar-sideburn combination seemed to help bridge the hundreds of years which have passed from Christ's time to our day, and to draw together the varied peoples who have lived in that broad expanse of time.

Watching this group, which also included some attractive young women, it should be noted, it was natural to recall how many of our great masterpieces—in music, on canvas, in sculpture—have come from the "long hair" or the non-conformist of one age or another. Have we always been so quick to condemn the unusual? Probably it is fortunate, for the sake of the arts, at least, that these non-conformists have been a determined lot.

And you know something else? Now that we've had a little time to get used to the hair look, and now that the men and their barbers have learned better how to style the stuff, it's really not so bad at all.

In fact, in more than one instance, longer, fuller hair is a definite improvement. Consider the guy who has been blessed with a bonus in the way of ears, or the fellow who's gone through the school of hard knocks, and has the scars to prove it. Have empathy with the man of the knobby head or the giraffe neck, and acknowledge what hair has to offer him.

And when you come down to the basics, whether you are a bunch man or prefer the "Tiny Tim look" doesn't matter a lot—does it? As the plain clothes man, working in the city library, might have said, "You simply can't tell a cover by its look." And that may not be the truth, but it's an easy out of the unending debate on "Hair." —Sandra Breitkreutz

The copies, if bought into the staff, would be photographed and returned to their owners. The group, which is encountering financial problems in this endeavor, will charge 25¢ each for the special editions.

Most Accidental Poisonings Could Be Prevented

From one half to one million children, five years of age and under, in the United States will be accidentally poisoned this year.

In Nebraska alone, authorities know of at least 2,630 children in that age group who were accidentally poisoned last year—and they predict the figure will no doubt be even higher for 1972.

"In January and February this year the cases of 523 boys and girls five years of age and under were handled by the Master Poison Control Center in Omaha. And, of course, there were many other cases that were either treated by private physicians or else were not reported to us," Dr. A. J. Lombardo of Omaha told Gov. Elton今日.

Dr. Lombardo, medical coordinator and director of the Master Poison Control Center at Children's Memorial Hospital in Omaha, and Dr. Mattilda S. McIntire, secretary of the American Association of Poison Control Centers, who is also from Omaha, met with the governor to discuss the problem of accidental poisonings in the state.

"The great tragedy is that most of those accidental poisonings would not have occurred if the children's parents and other responsible adults had taken time to poison-proof their homes," Dr. Lombardo told the governor.

After discussing the accidental poisoning problem with Dr. Lombardo and Dr. McIntire, Gov. Elton proclaimed Mar. 19-25 as Poison Prevention Week and called upon all Nebraskans to "be alert to the dangers of misusing medicines and household products" and requested all citizens "to promote efficient safeguards against accidental poisonings."

The theme of Poison Prevention Week is "Poison Proof Your Home."

Dr. Lombardo and Dr. McIntire offered some precautions that should be followed:

- Always store medicine and dangerous household products in a safe storage place out of a child's reach.
- Take medicine only in amounts prescribed.
- Give prescription medicine only to the patient for whom it was prescribed.
- Check medicine cabinets regularly and discard medicines no longer used.
- Flush unused drugs down the drain and rinse containers before discarding them.
- Always refer to medicine as medicine in the presence of children. Never call it candy.
- Always turn on lights when taking or giving medicine.

—If an accidental poisoning occurs, contact your physician, but if he is not immediately available, call the Poison

Control Center in Omaha (402-553-5400).

Dr. Lombardo pointed out that all calls received by the Poison Control Center are answered by a trained poison information monitor or nurse, who obtains full of the needed facts from the caller.

"That information is immediately given to Children's Memorial Hospital emergency room doctor, who will recommend what action should be taken. A reference file which contains information on more than 350 thousand products and plants is at the doctor's fingertips. The file is constantly being added to as new products are marketed, and it is one of the most complete files in the nation."

Nebraska's Master Poison Control Center operates around the clock every day of the year. Besides its own files, Dr. Lombardo said, the center has access to information from the National Clearing House for Poison Control Centers and from the manufacturers of unlisted products.

The Nebraska Master Poison Control Center is one of 500 in the nation. Of the 500, Nebraska's ranks sixth in the number of cases reported.

The Poison Control Center is supported by a grant from the State of Nebraska and by Children's Memorial Hospital.

During Poison Prevention Week, a model home, showing the typical household products that can be poisonous if ingested, will be on display at the capitol.

Railroad Crossing Markings Proposed

LINCOLN - The Nebraska Department of Roads has requested approval from the Federal Highway Administration for the design of proposed projects at all railroad crossings in the state.

These projects involve marking the paved approaches to all railroad crossings with the symbols RRX in compliance with federal highway regulations and the 1971 manual on uniform traffic control devices. The markings are intended to alert drivers to the possibility of a train in the area. No additional right-of-way is required for the work.

A design study report submitted in support of the request for approval and other pertinent information are available upon request to the Department of Roads, P. O. Box 94759, Lincoln, Nebr. 68509.

Fish Stocking Not Always the Answer

Just give an angler a couple of unproductive days on his favorite fishing water, and you are likely to hear him grumble "Why doesn't the Game Commission stock this lake? More fish is what it needs."

But the fisherman seldom hears the valid reasons for and against stocking of any given water, and chances are a good angler of fish on his next outing would make him forget the idea altogether. The fact is that stocking is a valuable fish management tool, but it is not an automatic answer to anglers' prayers.

First of all, fisheries biologists must determine if there is something basically wrong with the existing fish population. A few days of empty stringers does not necessarily mean that there are few fish to be had. As all anglers know, weather and a variety of other conditions will bring on periods when fish will not bite, no matter what lure or bait is offered.

Even if the biologists find that the fish population is below par, simply dumping more fish into the water is seldom the answer. Usually, the problem is more complex than just a lack of fish. Often, the lake is overrun with rough fish or with large numbers of panfish stunted by a population explosion. Or, the lake might not offer suitable habitat for desirable fish, either because of natural conditions or due to pollution.

These situations must be corrected before more fish are introduced. Under certain conditions rough fish or overpopulated panfish can be eliminated with toxic chemicals, and, in some cases, pollution can be abated or conditions improved to support game fish.

Only when these studies are done and after problems are corrected, can fish be stocked. Then, two other factors must be considered—the species the waters in question will support and the lake or stream's priority. In Nebraska, state-owned waters open to public fishing are given first priority on available fish. Second priority goes to quasi-public waters open to public fishing. These include impoundments of power or irrigation districts, city lakes, and streams with public access. Third priority goes to privately-owned waters where the owners will allow adequate harvest of fish.

Most common stocking consists of a combination of largemouth bass, bluegill, and catfish. Other species such as walleye or northern pike will be stocked if specialized conditions are met.

Other factors may also dictate what species are stocked. Cold waters with a good oxygen supply will probably support trout. Several Panhandle streams now receive Game Commission trout to supplement natural reproduction.

Also, if studies indicate that a body of water may support a new species of fish without the newcomer providing undue competition for existing species, the Game Commission may give them a try. Several non-native species have been established in Nebraska this way, including the most recent example, the striped bass at Lake McCaughy.

Quite often a disgruntled angler mutters that a lake should be stocked. But fishermen often are unaware that more is involved than simply backing a truckload of fish down to the lakeside and dumping a few thousand of them into the water.

Troop 175 Boy Scouts Selling Candy To Finance Proposed Eastern Trip

According to Scoutmaster Rowan Wilcox, Boy Scout Troop 175 is still short about $100 for its proposed May 25 trip, and in an attempt to make up the deficit, began their annual candy sales drive Tuesday morning.

The Scouts have 600 boxes of the Nordica mints, caramels, cremes and turtles, which they hope to have sold by Mar. 25. The candy sales are ordinarily conducted in the fall.

Candy sales chairman Mrs. Miron Jennes and Mrs. J. H. M. Shiers.

The Troop 175 Auxiliary, in a further attempt to acquire funds for the eastern trip, will hold a bake sale Saturday, Apr. 1, from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the People's Natural Gas company office. Persons wishing to donate baked goods for the sale are asked to contact co-chairman Mrs. Marlen Koch or Mrs. Paul Rockwell, local office.

Navy Recovery Forces To Cachet Apollo Mail

NORFOLK, VA.—The U. S. Navy's Manned Spacecraft Recovery forces in the Atlantic and Pacific will cachet and cancel philatelic mail for the Apr. 16, 1972 launch of Apollo 16.

The special Apollo 16 covers will be processed through designated coordinators at Norfolk, Va., and Honolulu, Hawaii. From the Hawaii site, first day covers will be forwarded to the recovery ship.

Atlantic covers sent to Norfolk will be processed through the local post office, which will use the standard "U. S. Postal Service" cancellation device.

This cancellation will not contain the name of an Atlantic recovery ship, since the Atlantic Recovery Force composition will not include a ship with postal facilities.

To ensure adequate time for handling covers, collectors throughout the world should send pre-stamped, self-addressed envelopes to the appropriate coordinator before Mar. 25.

Current post office regulations require that only United States postage may be used on covers. Cash, money orders or checks in lieu of postage cannot be accepted.

Each recovery force coordinator will accept only two covers per collector. When more than two are received, the extras will be returned unprocessed. Covers received too late for processing also will be returned.

Addresses for the Atlantic and Pacific area coordinators are: Atlantic: Apollo 16 Covers, Task Force 140, Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Va. 23511; and for the Pacific: Chief-in-Charge (Apollo 16) Task Force 130, Navy Terminal Post Office, Fleet Post Office, San Francisco 96610.

Solid Waste Control Needs Cooperation of All Citizens

"More than any other type of pollution, solid waste management requires individual citizen cooperation," Charles Thome, Nebraska's First District Congressman, believes, adding: "The government is fighting air pollution by controlling factory smokestacks and progressively tougher emission standards for automobiles, U.S. laws control polluting of waters, and federal funds by the billions are being made available to aid in building municipal sewage treatment plants. On Feb. 29, in the House of Representatives, we passed the first noise pollution control bill.

"Trash, however, is a problem that doesn't at all lend itself to federal solution. It's a problem that will have to be solved mostly on the local level and to a great extent in the individual home.

"The federal government is sponsoring research in the solid waste field. Several scientific studies are being made of landfill operations to study problems of settlement, development of gasses underground and the possibility of water pollution from rain water draining through landfills.

"Government research is also studying resource recovery and re-utilization. The Environmental Protection Agency, and the Tennessee Valley Authority, joined in an extensive study on composting, proving that, at present, it is practical technically and impractical economically.

"At Hempstead, Long Island, the municipal incinerator provides energy for operating a 2,500-kilowatt electric power plant and a 40,000 gallon-per-day desalting plant. In Maryland, I recently visited a pilot plant that takes the residue from an incinerator and sorts out and recovers various types of minerals and glass at a profit. Cellulose is being manufactured from garbage and paper in pilot plants.

"Demonstration grants are also being offered by the Environmental Protection Agency, so that latest technologies in solid waste disposal can be utilized and widely observed by municipal officials.

"Individual action at the home remains, however, as the only sensible way to conserve our resources and reduce the cost of waste disposal. If every household, or even a high percentage of households in larger communities, would sort their trash, it would be much more economical to reclaim much of it and dispose of the rest of it.

"In 1970, solid waste disposal cost the nation $5.7 billion. That's more than any other public service except schools and roadways! For too long, we have considered our waste as a liability to be disposed of with little thought by the individual. Now we must view our waste as an asset. We must reclaim and recycle as much of our resources as possible. The remainder we must dispose of in a manner that does not degrade the environment."

Nominations may be made by candidates themselves, members of their families, friends or business acquaintances. Names should be submitted to: Pioneer Patrons, Omaha Chamber of Commerce, 1620 Dodge, Omaha, Nebr. 68102. Nominations must be in by Mar. 31, 1972.

Bursitis May Be Prevented By Exercising

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska Medical Association. Bursitis is one of mankind's most painful and disabling ailments. Bursitis refers to inflammation of the lubricating sac about a joint.

The lubricant is located at various places in the body where joints or tissues touch or rub and where without this cushioning there would be friction. Bursitis can affect many places in the body, but most often occurs in the shoulder, elbow or knee. In almost every case the ailment follows unaccustomed strain or overuse of an extremity.

If you get bursitis, no one need suggest you see a physician. The pain is so acute that you will be the first to seek relief.

The best way to avoid bursitis is to begin physical activity of a strenuous nature slowly, allowing the body's joints time to become accustomed to the work you are doing.
