Former 'City Folks' Sold on Country Living

By Brenda Gustafson
A visit with Fred and Kay Opegaard of Concord is like watching a television commercial for lemon-fresh dishwashing soap and a "country complexion" or reading a real estate brochure for rural America.

When we moved to the country, our city friends started trying to give us their pets," said Mrs. Opegaard.
"I don't think she had ever been outside until we got her," Opegaard said, pointing to Tara, the family's French poodle, who was at that moment receiving a handout from Jason, the Opegar's 2 1/2-year-old son.

ed up with homemade bread and cookies," Opegaard said.
Mrs. Opegaard said they also like the peace and quiet of the country.
"There we don't have to worry about the sulfur dioxide count each morning. In the city you don't have the clean air and the peace and quiet that goes with it," she said.

Two and a half year-old Jason spends a lot of time outside these days on the Opegar's 10-acre acreage just north of the Concord school. Jason's smile today is caused by the privilege of holding his rabbit, Cindy.

The barn is set up for farrowing. There is a huge garden spot, laid out like a park, with wide paths lined by fruit trees. The three-bedroom house has just been remodeled," he said.
The Opegaard acreage is located just north of the Concord School.
"We like the Concord location because we are close enough but not too far from several larger towns. We are only 40 miles from Sioux City and close to Wayne," Opegaard continued.
Unlike most Americans, Opegaard has chosen the place where he wants to live and is going to try to fit his vocation to his location.
At Elgin, Opegaard was a ward program director for emotionally-disturbed teenage boys at the Elgin State Hospital.
Opegaard programed the treatment for each boy. His duties included determining which psychiatrist, if any, was needed and determining each boy's school program.
"My position required that I be on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week," Opegaard said.
"He thrived on his work," said Mrs. Opegaard. "He didn't mind working 16 hours a day if necessary."

When Mr. and Mrs. Fred Opegaard of Concord lived in Elgin, Ill., their children didn't have any pets. Now they have a dog, a rabbit, a cat, and soon may be getting a quarterhorse. The Opegar's are shown here relaxing with their sons, Darren and Jason, and their French poodle, Tara.

Wakefield High Baseball Team Opens 12-game Schedule at Home on April 6

The Wakefield High School baseball team began full pre-season workouts recently after two weeks of conditioning practices interrupted by wet grounds and teacher conventions.

Couch (Tom Tompach, in his second year at the Trojan helm, is cautiously optimistic over a team that boasts 10 returning lettermen from last year's club that won five and lost five.

In addition, he has gained a starting outfielder from last year's Legion team and a starting first baseman and outfielder from the Midgets to give the Trojans added depth in defense and hitting, divisions in which Wakefield was lacking a year ago.

Top prospects among the returning lettermen are:

Pat Starz1, senior pitcher, who

It was deed transferring and mortgage-burning time Sunday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 421 Pearl. In the top photo, Alfred Koplin turns over the deed to the parking lot to church treasurer Mrs. Harbart Hansen while Pastor Daniver Peterson holds the mortgage. In the photo below, Pastor Peterson burns the $14,000 mortgage while acolytes Rodney Hoops, left, and Steen Anderson look on. The lot was purchased from Koplin five years ago for church parking and possible future expansion.

Certainly Lasso on beans eases weather worries.

Some herbicides work well with lots of moisture. Some do nicely in dry weather.

But certainly you can't predict what kind of year it'll be.

So use Lasso. It works well in most any kind of weather. With a little moisture or a lot. Get giant foxtail, fall panicum — lots more grasses. Many broadleaves, too.

And you can tank mix Lasso liquid for special weed control. And get it without incorporation.

That's what you expect from your herbicide.

Wayne State Swimmers, Diver to NAI A Meeting

Four swimmers and a diver will take Wayne State's colors into the NAI A National Swimming Meet Thursday through Saturday.

Cocher Roger Bentley sees several possibilities for points in the meet at Southwest Minnesota State, Marshall.

His top freestyler, freshman Jim Onstott of Fremont, ranked second on the latest NAI A charts for the 100-yard freestyle. His best time is :49.5. He also is tied for fifth in the 100 freestyle with a 1:51.3, and his :22.6 in the 50 free ranks 15th. He will compete in all three events. Onstott anchors Wayne's 400 freestyle team which appears 10th on the NAI A list with a 3:26.3 time. Since then the four-is unlawful in Nebraska to tow a water skier without either a wide-angle rear-view mirror or an observer.

some cut its time to 3:24.9. Rounding out the team are Doug Krecklow and Jim Bathen of Omaha, and Jim Shores of Fremont. Krecklow and Shores are sophomores, Bathen a freshman. Senior Bob Seymour of Grand Island will represent Wayne in diving. He posted a school and pool record for points in the three-meter event in a home meet this season.

The Wilkeat team elected Onstott most valuable swimmer for the year, Bathen the most improved. Onstott topped the squad in meet points earned, 133, with another freshman, Scott George, 1544 Oakcrest Plaza, Omaha, had the second most points, 142.5. Krecklow ranked third on 137, Seymour fourth, 124, and Shores fifth with 123.5 points.

Elected captains for the 1973 season were Paul Martin of Lincoln and Shores.

Keinast Takes All-Events Lead In Bowling Meet

Val Keinast, manager of the Melodee Lane, took over the all-events lead in the St. Mary's Men's bowling tournament Sunday, registering an 1,895 total. Clayton Harnack of Remsen, Ia., had held the all-events lead with 1,809.

The only other major change among the pace-setters in the next-to-last weekend of action was Emerson Fertilizer roll 2,944 to bump Farmers Co-Op of West Point, 2,914, out of second place in the team division, a category headed by Red Carr Implement of Wayne with a 3,019.

Jerry Hochstein of Hartington, with a 666, still held the edge in the singles division, two pins above Bob Fenske of West Point.

The team of Elmer Freed and Don Kragor of Tekamah still set the pace in the doubles competition with 1,274. Still second place were Al Matteo and Tom McCannahay of Norfolk with 1,269.

The five-week tournament will end Sunday.

short grass. Once they establish a display ground, they return to it time after time unless badly disturbed.

Whether using the public blinds or visiting a display ground in another area, grouse-watchers must be very early risers. Observers should be in position at least a half-hour before sunrise and should be well concealed by the time the birds arrive.

Male prairie chickens and sharpshills open the show with ruffled tail feathers and inflated neck pouches, then dance and strut in competition for mates. They face each other, leap in the air, stamp their feet, emit sounds from the inflated neck sacs, and sometimes pair off for sparring matches.

Sharpshills go through more elaborate gyrations than the prairie chickens, but the chickens are more colorful in appearance.

Prairie chickens are equipped with large, orange-colored neck sacs and special feathers that stand erect during the dance. Sharpshills have smaller, purplish neck sacs. Grouse begin their courtship displays in mid or late March and reach a peak by mid-April.

Grouse Signal the Beginning of Spring

LINCOLN—Nebraska's Sand Hill and Partridge will soon be the scene of an annual spring rite, as the state's prairie chickens and sharp-tailed grouse begin their colorful courtship dances. In Nebraska's prairie grasslands, the early morning sounds of the grouse are a sure sign of spring. Warm weather and clear skies are the signal they are looking for, and any such day in mid-March should touch off their antics.

Public blinds will again be set up on sharp-tailed dancing grounds in the Nebraska National Forest near Halsey by the U. S. Forest Service. Other blinds have been erected by the Game and Parks Commission on a prairie chicken-booming ground at Burchard Lake

Special Use Area in southeast Nebraska.

To view the grouse show, anyone may use the public blinds or locate a display ground on their own by driving into grouse country in early morning and listening for the "booming" and "hooting" sounds made by the birds. Grouse seem to prefer somewhat elevated areas of open land with

Teammates Select Monroe As Most Valuable Wrestler

Ken Monroe, Wayne State's national champion wrestler, added a local honor—most valuable on the 1972 Wildcat team—Coach Bob Kruse said Tuesday. Teammates elected the junior 167-pounder most valuable for the third year on the strength of his undefeated 24-0-1 record this season, capped by his second national NAIA title. Monroe, a former Illinois state high school champion while wrestling for East Leyden in Franklin Park, Ill., has compiled a three-year Wayne record of 66-7-2. His home now is in Arlington Heights, Ill. Said Coach Kruse of Monroe: "There really wasn't any question who was most valuable, although Ron Coles was a strong contender all season." Coles, sophomore heavyweight from Indianapolis, Ind., who placed third in the NAIA, shared the honorary season captain honor with Monroe, by team vote. Coles had a 23-3 chart this year, and he led the team in pins, 11. Monroe had seven pins. Kruse, incidentally, is a product of East Leyden High School, who became a two-sport All-American (football and wrestling) at Wayne State. Among other Wayne mat regulars, Tom Luth finished with a 15-4 record. The sophomore 158-pounder from Grand Island narrowly missed a victory that would have placed him among national place winners. He won two, lost two. He had seven pins. Dennis Reid, sophomore 190-pounder from DeWitt, Iowa, ranked fourth on the team in wins on a 14-8 record. Jim Meyer, freshman 126-pounder from Wayne, was 12-4 and missed the national meet because of injury. Frank Juergen, sophomore from Waucoma, Iowa, won eight of nine matches, at 177 and 191. John Kietnick, Park Forest, Ill., the team's only senior, finished with a 12-8-2 mark, spread over weight classes from 167 down to 150. In previous years he wrestled occasionally at 177 and even 190, but overall added up a winning record of 22-18-1. Two from Council Bluffs, Iowa, Kent Irwin and Steve Gregory, divided their action among several weights. Kent Irwin had a 10-12 mark at 175 and 194. Steve Gregory 6-1-1 at 150 and 158.

The Wildcats won 138 matches, lost 85, tied in five as they won seven of 13 dual meets, placed second in three major tournaments, won the Nebraska College Conference tournament for the seventh straight time, and tied for seventh in the nationals. That NAIA placing put Wayne among the leaders for the fifth consecutive year. Only one other team in the country, the University of Nebraska at Omaha, has ranked in the top 10 those five years—the Mavericks were in the top three.

Wills Registers 31 In Intramural Play
Kyle Wills scored 31 points to lead Team 1 past Team 2 by a 71-40 score in the senior division of the Wayne Recreation Intramural Basketball League, Monday night at City Auditorium. Kerry Jech added 18 to the winners' cause, while Mike Ginn, with 16, and Bob Nelson, with 10, paced the losers.

Custodian at Allen Is Injured in Fall
Ernie (Mutt) Roberts, custodian at Allen School, was painfully, but not seriously, injured last Friday when he fell about 20 feet to the floor while replacing a light fixture in the auditorium. The ladder which he was using was accidentally knocked from under him and he hung temporarily from the fixture until it pulled loose, causing him to make the 20-foot drop. Roberts suffered a possible broken heel and bruises. Parents should keep a watchful eye on children when in or near the water, suggests Liberty Mutual Insurance Company. More than half of all pool drowning victims are youngsters under the age of ten. An unattended small child can quickly get into big trouble.

Gun Club Picks Name for Group
The Logan Valley Gun Club was selected as the name for the newly-organized group of shooters who adopted by-laws and a constitution recently at a meeting at HHS Cafeteria.

A committee is seeking a site for trapshooting and rifle and pistol practice ranges. Indoor facilities for both pistol and rifle also are in the club's plans. Another meeting is scheduled tonight (Thursday) at 8:30 p.m. at Les' Steak House, with all interested persons invited to attend.

stands in a row, against Dodge Apr. 19, against Homer Apr. 24, against Bancroft Apr. 27 and against Wakefield May 1. The final home game of the regular season will be at Dodge May 3. The district tournament will be May 8-19, with the state tournament May 22. All games are at 3 p.m., with the exception of the Wakefield games, which are scheduled for 4 p.m.

Top candidates for a starting berth are Bill Schwartz, sophomore, infielder and outfielder; Don Hansen, senior, right field; and Ron Ring, senior, outfield. Mallette has coached the baseballers for six years and has guided them to a state tournament berth the past four years. Wayne High was Class B champion in 1968 and again in 1970.

The baseball equipment was unpacked at Wayne High School last week, the true sign that spring has actually arrived. Over 30 players have been practicing at the City Ball Park under Coach Mike Mallette in preparation for the season opener April 4 at Homer.

Junior High League Begins Intramurals
Larry Creighton's team in the eighth-grade division and Mike Wieseler's club in the seventh-grade section lead their respective divisions in the Junior High Intramural Basketball League. Creighton's club has a 4-2 mark, followed by a tie for second between Paul Mallette's and Rich Workman's clubs at 3-3 and Bob Mitchell's team at 2-4. Workman has a 30-point game average to top that division, followed by Creighton with 24, Mitchell with 17 and Mallette with 13. Wieseler's club is unbeaten in four games in the seventh-grade division. The club captained by Ralph Atkins is in the runner-up slot with a 2-2 mark and teams of Norman Brown and Doug Carroll have 1-3 histories. Wieseler has the top average with 18 points per game. Tim Koll is next with 11 and the only other double-figure man is Carroll, with 10. The shoveller, a duck often found in Nebraska, is easily identified by his large, spoon-shaped bill.

Area Scouts Promote Drug Program

Twenty-seven Boy Scouts and leaders from Wayne, Belden, Walthill, Winer, Pilger and West Point met at the West Elementary School Tuesday evening to discuss Operation Reach, a drug program currently being promoted by Boy Scouts of America in with the cooperation of The National Institute of Mental Health and other public spirited organizations and industries who have contributed the necessary funds.

Operation Reach, which promotes communication between children and parents, is set up with five principal goals: 1.) Reach for the real highs instead of going for a poor substitute like drugs. 2.) Reach for real friends and stand by them. 3.) Reach for warm and open relationships with parents, other members of the family and friends. 4.) Reach an understanding with oneself by taking an open stand against drugs. 5.) Reach others by telling them about operation Reach.

Congenital Heart Defects Present At Baby's Birth

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska Medical Association. Congenital heart defects are those present at birth. In this situation, the heart or a major blood vessel near the heart fail to mature normally during the period of growth prior to birth. There is an error of development in which the arteries and veins in the heart-lung system are put together incorrectly.

Over 30,000 children are born with heart defects in the United States each year. Mild inborn defects may never cause trouble, but serious ones may interfere with circulation of the blood, slow the child's growth, and reduce his energy.

Because of great progress in heart surgery, most patients with congenital heart defects can be restored to normal or near normal health. Each year medical science is gaining knowledge bringing us closer to the goal of preventing diseases such as this.

Cold Facts About the Common Cold

When an ancient Roman sneezed, his friends cried "Deus te secuit!" If you Latin is rusty, that translates into the modern "God bless you!"

Apparently, the time-honored ritual was as ineffective then as it is now in terms of warding off the common cold. Roman emperors commanded legions of botanists to scour the empire for curative herbs. Two thousand years later medical scientists are still looking for the elusive cure.

The full impact of the common cold on American business and society can't be calculated, but various authorities have provided these interesting guestimates:

Colds account for 40 to 50 per cent of all industrial absenteeism; every worker loses nearly four days a year due to colds. Cost of this lost time could be as high as $5 billion annually.

Each American child stays home with the sniffles about six days a year. Nationally, this means 50 million days lost from school.

If your family is average, you can count on a past experience on dealing with four or five colds a year. What to do about it?

As preventive measures, some general rules are in order:

1. Stay away from anyone who has a cold.
2. Eat a well-balanced diet, with plenty of liquids.
3. Get plenty of sleep and exercise.
4. Avoid rooms that are cold and drafty or stuffy and dry.
5. In inclement weather, bundle up well.

And if you do catch cold — as you probably will — there are things you can do to make the annoying symptoms more bearable.

Aspirin, of course, has long been a stand-by for relief of symptoms due to colds. Today it's available in many forms — alone and in combination with buffering agents and other drugs. Many other medicinally approved non-prescription drugs, available for years, have been modified and improved to fit modern needs.

When you catch a cold, rest in bed is recommended for the first few days. This gives the body a chance to mobilize its defenses and lessens the risk of passing the infection along to others.

Take courage. If you're in an average cold, it will run its course in five to 10 days. A cold that hangs on is a different matter.

Immediate medical attention should be sought if the symptoms are severe. Danger signs include chills and fever, a rapid increase in temperature, difficulty breathing, pains in the chest or side.

A good rule of thumb is: Treat the common cold with respect. You can't cure it, but chances are you will wear it out by exercising persistence and common sense.

Pool Turns up Bones 5,000 Years Old

NORTH POIT CHARLOTTE, Fla. — A rare archeological find which may cast new light on prehistoric Florida and change history textbooks has been brought from the depths of Little Salt Springs in southern Florida.

When General Development Corporation learned that the 220-foot pool on their North Port Charlotte property concealed archeological relics, company president Frederick E. Roach joined forces with the State of Florida to recover the treasures.

The agreement had previously, a research grant and construction totaling $12,000 given by General Development, while the Florida Department of State furnished diving archeologists to probe water as deep as an upended 25-story building.

They found perfectly preserved prehistoric leaves, nut hulls, twigs, sticks and small logs. Also, a "temple" of bones of people from 1 1/2 to 35 years of age.

Word was received this week of the death of Louis Weston, 79, of Emmett, Idaho. He made his home in his earlier years with his sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Patefield, northeast of Lehigh.

At the time of his death, he was making his home with a niece in Emmett.

including skulls, large arm and leg bones.

early radiocarbon tests showed. But experts believe the spring still holds the bones of some 200-300 Indians who lived 5,000 or more years ago.

One of the most exciting finds of State Archeologist Carl Clauson and his team was a skull with material inside which was suspected to be preserved brain matter — 5,000 years old! Samples are now being analyzed by a pathologist.

Ninety feet down, animal bones were found, identified as either mastodon or mammoth, bison and both giant land turtle and ground sloth. Also, the skeleton of an as-yet unidentified creature that died before history began.

Florida Secretary of State Richard (Dick) Stone praised General Development for its "responsible, conscientious efforts" which made possible a discovery believed by archeologists to be the most important one in this hemisphere.

Year-long laboratory study should yield invaluable data because the remains represent a basic population from which evolved later Indian tribes of southeastern U.S.

Also, General Development hopes, future exploration may solve the mystery of why so many bones in one pool?

Social Security

Questions, Answers

Q—My father and mother were collecting monthly Social Security retirement benefits in a single check when my father died last month. We reported his death to Social Security, but when the check came yesterday, it still had both my mother's and father's name on it. What should we do?

A—You or some member of your family should bring the check to the Social Security office. We will stamp it so that it can be cashed with just your mother's endorsement on it. Any adjustments necessary will be made in your mother's next check.

Q—In addition to paying me cash wages, the farmer I work for furnished me with room and board. Can the value of this room and board be counted as wages for Social Security purposes?

A—No. If you work on a farm, only wages paid in cash count for Social Security purposes.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q—I sold my home last December at a $5,000 profit. Do I have to report this as income when I file my 1971 return?

A—Not if, within one year before or after the sale you buy and occupy another residence that costs as much or more than the sales price of the old residence. Additional time is allowed if you construct the new residence or you were on active duty in the U. S. Armed Forces. In such a case, the tax is postponed, not forgiven. Any gain, not taxed in the year you sell your old residence is subtracted from the cost of the new residence giving you a lower basis to be used in the event of a later disposition. If you sell the new residence in a later year, and again replace it, under similar circumstances, any tax on the gain you realize may continue to be postponed.

Q—I won a new car last year in a radio contest. Do I have to pay tax on this prize?

A—Yes. Prizes and awards you receive in goods or services must be included in income at their fair market value.

The sing-along is one of the most popular activities of the senior citizens as they join in singing old-time favorites under the leadership of Mrs. Jociell Bull, Senior Citizens Center director.

There are a few who bury their thoughts at the checker boards. Here, Bessie Davidson, center, is on the way to a win over Maggie Lisle, to even up a four-game series between the two. Quietly observing the match is Christine Dillon at the left.

Senior Citizens Center A Beehive of Activity

There was a wide "generation gap" for some of the dancers. Al Bahe, on the violin, and Mrs. Bahe, at the piano, furnished the music.

Relaxing in a different sort of way by sewing carpet rags are, from left, Augusta Hansen, Bessie Peterman, Sophie Ewert, Amalia Bahe, who was the pianist for the later sing-along and dance, and Ann Nelson.

NORTHEAST EXTENSION

Notes

by Joycelyn Smith

Mothers don't forget it's nearly time for the Easter bunny to be making his visit. Perhaps you'll want a few of the following hints to the bunny who fills your child's Easter basket.

Select white Grade AA (or Fresh Fancy) or Grade A eggs for the Easter baskets. They have a large proportion of thick whites, which stands up well around the firm, high yolk. Because of their inward appearance Grade B and C eggs are not so desirable for eggs cooked in the shell. The yolk will be off center because the white is too thin to hold the yolk in place. Do remember, though, Grade B and Grade C eggs have lots and lots of uses in which the appearance and delicate flavor are less important. Size and quality are not related to each other. Large eggs may be either high or low quality, or high quality eggs may be either large or small. The USDA classifies eggs according to minimum weight specifications. Egg cartons may carry the size categories Jumbo, Extra Large, Large, Medium, Small, or Pee-Wee.

Following the basic principles of protein cookery will enhance the appearance and palatability of egg dishes. Eggs and egg mixtures should be cooked at low to moderate temperatures. High temperatures will inevitably result in unevenly cooked, rubbery eggs and egg dishes.

Always cook eggs at a temperature below the boiling point. Eggs cooked and held in their shells longer than 15 minutes often develop a greenish discoloration between the yolk and egg white. Hydrogen sulfide in the white combines with iron in the yolk to form ferrous sulfide. Once formed, nothing can be done to get rid of it. Immersing the cooked eggs in cold water will keep this formation at a minimum. The greenish substance is of course not harmful to your health.

Eggs, even red, green, or blue eggs, are one of the most nutritious foods. In fact, the egg protein comes so near to perfection that scientists use it as a standard to measure the value of protein in other foods.

Eggs are second only to fish oil as a natural source of vitamin D. All vitamins, except vitamin C are found in eggs.

For those who are calorie conscious, eggs are also an important part of their diet. One serving of two cooked eggs contains only 154 nutritious calories.

So chase your bunny in on filling your child's Easter basket with colorful, nutritious cooked eggs.

Former Residents Mark Anniversary

Several area persons attended the 50th anniversary observance last Sunday at Amherst, Colo., of former area residents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dehrens, now at home in Amherst.

Mr. and Mrs. Dehrens were married Mar. 15, 1922 at Norfolk and lived for some time in the Altona vicinity. The couple's daughters, Mrs. Wayne Prottzman and Mrs. Dick Burns, hosted the event.

Helpful Advice

Selecting The Right Ring

Q. What are some of the new ring design trends?

A. The newest emphasis is on the bold cluster of small stones — often diamonds alone or combined with bright rubies, emeralds or sapphires. Yellow gold mountings in unusual shapes are also featured in the new ring collections.

Q. How many rings can properly be worn on one hand?

A. This is a matter of personal taste and fashion taste. Some hands can easily accommodate as many as three or four rings on one hand. Your criterion should be the attractiveness of your skin and fingers as well as the type of work you do. For best appearance, rings should be cleaned frequently, nails groomed and skin smoothed for beautiful gems focus the eye on the area where they are worn.

Honorable Mention

Lou Ann Dunklau, who was the local winner of the 1972 Betty Crocker Homemakers of Tomorrow contest, is one of 23 Nebraska high school seniors to receive honorable mention in the state contest, according to results released recently.

Beverly Jean Bohac, Norfolk High School, is first place winner, and Connie Susan Fleming of North Bond Central High School is runner-up.

Miss Dunklau is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Dunklau, rural Wayne.

It married, your wedding and engagement rings are considered "neutral" and can be worn properly with other rings on your right hand.

Mogens Dalsgaard, Popular Concert Pianist

Concerts Will Feature Danish Pianist

Mogens Dalsgaard, the Danish pianist who has captivated audiences at Wayne in two previous visits, is back again and scheduled for several concerts.

One major performance will be Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center. The public is invited, no admission charge.

He also will play Friday morning for Wayne State's Foreign Language Day, an annual event for high school students—about 500 of them expected to attend.

Again this year, Dalsgaard will spend about two months as musician-in-residence at Wayne, with brief visits to other Nebraska colleges. Since he arrived March 13, he already has spent several days at Peru State College.

Besides his various scheduled concerts, Dalsgaard frequently turns his daily practice sessions into impromptu concerts for a flock of students who happen by and hear his music. Every now and then on these occasions his fingers flash through some current pop music, although his formal repertoire draws mainly on the Classics of European piano literature.

In his past two years at Wayne, Dalsgaard performed as soloist with the Kansas City Philharmonic and the St. Louis Symphony when they played on the college's Special Program series. He also has presented several lecture-recitals on Nebraska Educational Television.

Report Cards Out

Report cards for the third quarter at Wayne-Carroll High School, Wayne Middle School, West Elementary School and Carroll Elementary School were sent home with students Wednesday. The nine-week period ended Friday.

Safe Tire Repair Means Longer Life, Both to the Tire and the Motorist

WASHINGTON, D. C.—When a person's tooth develops a small cavity you don't necessarily have to pull the tooth—a minor repair job will enable you to go on munching a long while. And the same principle holds true for the tires on your car.

The Tire Industry Safety Council advises motorists who have suffered a disabled or punctured tire that by having the tire properly repaired they can still receive the use and mileage the tire was designed to give.

"Motorists should realize that if a tire loses all or most of its air pressure, particularly when driving, it must be removed from the wheel as soon as possible for a complete internal inspection by a complete service station," says Ross R. Ormsby, chairman of the Council. "Surveys show that two out of three tires run even short distances when flat are damaged beyond repair."

Best advice for a motorist with a disabled tire is to replace the tire with a reliable spare, and "get thee to a service station."

Motorists and service stations are warned against using temporary repairs made from the outside of the tire, such as externally-applied plugs, seepage sealants, etc., except in an emergency. In addition, never use a tube in a tubless tire as a substitute for a permanent repair.

Industry-approved repair methods include a combination of plug and patch, chemical and hot vulcanized patches and head-tape plugs—all applied from inside the tire.

"Never try to repair tires with tread punctures larger than one quarter inch or any sidewall puncture," says Ormsby, "and no tire worn to 1/16 inch or less of tread groove depth should be repaired and placed back on the car."

Temporary repairs are considered as such because most of them leak air either through the repair or into the ply cords, causing ply separation which eventually results in further tire disintegration which no longer can be repaired. Since they are good for only short distances, at reduced speeds, the tires should be removed from the wheel at the first opportunity and a permanent inside repair made.

Karen Kudera of Osmond has the honor of Outstanding Bandman in the Wayne State College concert band this year. A freshman majoring in elementary education, she was the choice of Wayne's honorary band sorority and fraternity, Tau Beta Sigma and Kappa Kappa Psi. She plays clarinet. At Osmond High School Miss Kudera performed in the band, chair and small groups, was named to the Nebraska Honor Band, and was a member of the Honor Society. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kudera.

Kowtowing Time Over

"What will happen at future meetings depends on what happens as far as the spectators are concerned," University of Nebraska Regent Robert R. Koefoot of Grand Island reportedly remarked following the break-up of a meeting of Regents by a group calling themselves "People's Regents of the State of Nebraska" recently.

Meetings of Regents, as well as City Councils, Boards of Education, etc. are open-door affairs and no final decisions can be made during so-called "executive sessions."

But disruptive by unfortunate if repeat performances by what we would consider as nothing more than an ill-mannered bunch would cause any change in past procedures.

But, obviously, no business can be conducted at any meeting if the audience is allowed to participate at will—and even be allowed to move up to the table where those persons elected by the people are seated.

In most cases, individuals or groups are permitted a time to be heard—if they make prior arrangements.

If such was not the case, little could be accomplished outside of back-and-forth bickering.

Koefoot went on to say that the board was forced to adjourn when the din became so loud that nothing could be accomplished.

"I suppose we could have had them (spectators) removed, but it's next to impossible to control 100 to 150 people without the possibility of physical violence," he reportedly added.

Hogwash. Granted, there could have been some physical violence—but isn't it far past time that we junked the "hands-off policies" and quit condoning the violence-inducing practices of the few who understand nothing but a show of force?

And, isn't it past time that we quit bowing to the demands of a few and let those persons who we have elected to the jobs make the decisions?

Next to impossible to control 100 to 150 people without the possibility of physical violence?

It's a good thing the United States and other Allies didn't feel that way when Hitler was flexing his muscles in the late 30's and early 40's.

We certainly aren't advocating any uncalled-for head-knocking—but we are advocating any measures necessary to end the kowtowing to the type of "citizens."

Even a young child knows that when his manners are bad enough that he disrupts a classroom he will be asked by the teacher to quiet down or leave the room.

But the "People's Regents" were not young children. Some were supposedly well-educated people and some were teachers or former teachers—people hired by the "establishment" to educate our children.

The group also included a pre-law student, member of the University of Nebraska at Omaha student senate, member of the League of Women Voters, former leader of the Omaha Black Panthers, member of the Greater Omaha Community Action Board, chairman of the School Community Advisory Board, a semiprofessional in the National Achievement Scholarship Program, an Omaha Tech senior, recently voted Miss Black Tech, etc.

Most forces at work in today's younger generation are on the "positive" side—against war, for more dedication to brotherhood, less materialism and the finding of better ways for all men to share the opportunities of life.

But, if society is to have a new force, it must be more than a force of protest. Protesting the world's ills will draw attention to them, but it will no more cure them than placing hardened criminals in prison will assure making good citizens of them.

We DO need a better world—granted. But it will take more than noise and protests to bring it all about.

—Claire Hurlbert

$2,160 Each County's Share of National Debt

NEW YORK (Special to The Herald)—March 11—What is it that Wayne County residents pay three times as much for, via their federal taxes, than aid to education?

What is it that takes a bigger piece out of their U. S. tax dollar than federal spending for pollution control, aid to housing, price support for agriculture, manpower training and the space program, all combined?

Interest on the national debt, that's what.

Because the ceiling on the national debt, $430 billion, is about to be reached, the Nixon administration, faced with a massive deficit in the next fiscal year, has requested a multi-billion boost in the legal debt limit.

Since $430 billion is a sum too colossal to grasp, it is broken down for better understanding.

If it had to be paid off at this time and if everyone in Wayne County and in the rest of the country had to chip in an equal share to liquidate it, it would require $2,160 from every man, woman and child, or more than $8,000 per family.

Rebirth of the Rolltop Desk Would Delight Granddad

WASHINGTON—In Washington's corridors of power, in suburban family rooms, in mod business offices, one of today's most prized status symbols is yesterday's rolltop desk.

Antique dealers sell every one who can get their hands on, often for many times the original prices of the 1890's.

Home owners are raiding the attics, cellars, and barns of their ancestral homesteads in search of that long-forgotten monster granddad used to love.

Furniture factories are turning them out by the hundreds: "exact replicas" of the real thing in quarter-sawn golden oak and low-lilhouette "hambourns" in stainless steel, smoky lucite, and teak.

Time was when a rolltop desk was an American monument to pluck and luck and nose-to-the-grindstone hard work, the National Geographic Society says.

The age of the rolltop dawned with America's post-Civil War mania for efficiency, order, and gadgetry. Those were the days when one man with one big desk could operate a large business himself and keep all his records in one fat file.

The rolltop obliged, with dozens of pigeonholes, at least eight seemingly bottomless drawers, and maybe a few secret compartments.

Sometimes the rolltop surmounted a now-rare Wooton desk. Standing perhaps five feet square, the Wooton unknicked and rolled apart to produce dozens of drawers—like a fat man unbuttoning his overcoat to reveal countless pockets in the lining.

Sitting on a bentwood swivel chair before a high-backed rolltop desk, facing all those cubby holes, flanked by fat drawers, made the meekest clerk feel like a mighty captain of industry.

The rolltop itself—the sliding tambour

Crucial-Decisions Come Up Soon in Legislature

LINCOLN—The Legislature last week took care of one of its major 1972 assignments by adopting an operating budget.

In a flurry of mid-week action, the lawmakers also sent to final reading a state school aid measure packing a $125 million load.

Earlier, the two personal property tax exemption bills—one endorsed by Gov. J. James Exon and the other condemned by him—had been pushed toward a final showdown.

Also headed toward a final decision was a comprehensive court reform bill. By the time this reaches you, only about a week remains before the lawmakers will have used up the 60 days allotted for an even-numbered year legislative session.

Most of the crucial decisions remaining after last week's action will be coming up shortly.

The operations budget—a measure authorizing $555.1 million in spending during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1973—passed without an opposing vote, despite all the controversy the bill had caused earlier in the session.

Compromise

There were raging debates in January and February over how much flexibility to grant state administrators in spending their appropriations. That was settled by a compromise which loosened up the reins a little, but retained some earmarking.

Disputes this session revolved around such philosophical issues rather than dollar amounts, which have been the major questions in previous years. In 1971, for example, Exon and the University of Nebraska nearly went to the mat over the size of the university's appropriation.

The Legislature's operations budget this year contemplates $195.2 million in spending from the tax-supported general fund. Exon's staff says his general fund recommendations totaled $194.5 million.

The $195.2 million the lawmakers have ticketed for spending in the 1972-73 fiscal year represents a four per cent increase over the $187.7 million appropriated from tax funds by the 1971 Legislature.

Despite the increase, however, the operations budget isn't expected to require another boost in sales and income taxes. The predicted growth in the economy is expected to take care of the spending increases.

In addition to the operations budget, the Legislature still had a capital construction bill to consider. That measure left the Budget Committee calling for about $15.9 million from the general fund.

School Aid

The school aid bill went to final reading in a form which would require the state to pay out about $125 million more than it has been for the support of education.

This would require the state sales and income taxes to increase. Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, the sponsor of the measure, said it would take about 1 1/2 per cent of sales tax and five per cent of personal income tax to generate the necessary state revenue.

But Warner said there would be corresponding decreases in local property taxes.

Under his bill, a lid of 14 mills would be put on local property levies—unless the school board votes unanimously to increase them or the voters give specific approval.

School districts in Nebraska now are levying an average of 43 mills for operations.

The Warner bill, LB 1377, will collide with an Exon veto if it passes.

That puts it in the same position as LB 1241, the second measure proposing personal property tax exemptions along the lines endorsed by Sen. J. W. Burbach of Crofton.

Although LB 1241 is based on the mechanics proposed by Burbach's LB 1101—which fell before an Exon veto—it has reduced exemptions of the tax on business and farm inventories and equipment, but the limit on LB 1241 is 6 1/2 per cent.

Flaws?

The governor has said he is convinced LB 1241 has constitutional flaws, even though the attorney general's office has okayed it. Exon has urged the Legislature to pass his bill, LB 1475, instead, despite an attorney general's opinion that it may be unconstitutional.

Before passing his LB 1475, however,

Withholding of Federal Income Tax By Students May Not Be Mandatory

OMAHA—Working students may be exempt from federal income tax withholding on their wages this year if they notify their employers, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Those who did not own any tax last year and expect to own none in the current year should so certify to their employer, the IRS said. This would eliminate the need to file a tax return next year unless there has been tax withholding and the student wishes to recover it.

Students who qualify for exemption from withholding should fill in and submit a Withholding Exemption Certificate Form W-4E to their employer, the IRS said. Those who wish to renew their exemption should file a new form because exemption certificates filed for 1971 expire Apr. 30.

Single students with income of less than $2,050 and married ones filing jointly with income of less than $2,800 will generally not owe any federal income tax for 1972, the IRS said.

However, if a student is a dependent of another taxpayer and has income such as dividends or interest that is not compensation for services, he may still be required to file a return and pay tax on income less than $2,040. The IRS advises students who may be affected by this new provision in the law to check for further details with their local IRS office.

medium; a 55-65 degree F. room temperature; a room which receives filtered sunlight; a method of watering so as not to disturb the seed or seedling; a cover for the seed flat until germination occurs and a constant vigil by the grower.

Advantages of this procedure include the inexpensive nature of propagating plants (except for the grower's time), the wide selection of annual seeds to choose from and the challenge and satisfaction of growing your own plants.

Another possibility is to purchase the quality transplants offered by your local retail garden outlet. Transplants are usually a little more expensive but the grower has spent time, money and materials in producing these transplants.

The selection of transplants available from your garden retailer dictates the variety you will have in your garden. With transplants, the amount of time required by the home gardener is minimal.

The other alternative for the home gardener is to prepare a good seed bed outside. Many annual flowers and vegetables can be sowed directly in the prepared ground bed. Naturally, the advantages are ease of operation and economy of time and money. The drawback to this procedure is mainly a shorter growing season. These plants usually start later, bloom later and fruit later than transplants.

USDA Safety Program
The U. S. Department of Agriculture is initiating a year round safety drive designed to encourage special activities and timely safety practices beginning this month.

The new program is being coordinated with the National Safety Council and will place special emphasis on the Occupational Safety and Health Act provisions. In previous year, USDA has promoted National Farm Safety Week during July, as well as Fire Prevention Week in October.

The first monthly observance in March will emphasize safe use of agricultural chemicals. As many as 3,000 farm lives have been claimed in a single year in farm work and home accidents, along with some 400,000 disabling injuries. In addition, farm people annually suffer a $2 billion loss because of farm and home mishaps. It is hoped the new coordinated safety effort will help reduce this toll.

The northern grasshopper mouse is found throughout most of Nebraska, but is more common to the western part of the state, where the upland grain fields and undisturbed prairie are more to his liking.

Area Swine Specialist Speaks on Swine Housing During American Pork Congress 4-H Club News

KANSAS CITY, MO.—"Evolution of research conducted at the University of Nebraska's Northeast Station clearly demonstrates that a modified open front type building, properly managed, will support equal performance by swine on a 12-month basis when compared to an environmentally-regulated unit."

This is the conclusion drawn from seven studies at the NEU facility near Concord, Nebr., as reported by Robert Fritschen, area swine specialist, during a workshop on growing and finishing swine housing research at the American Pork Congress here.

Fritschen described the MOF building as being completely under roof with the south side having hinged panels that may be raised for summer and lowered for winter. Small doors located in the rear of each pen allow cross-ventilation. The MOF units are uninsulated with no mechanical ventilation.

The environmentally regulated unit is insulated, mechanically ventilated and supplementally heated and is sometimes referred to as a "totally environmentally controlled" unit.

Fritschen pointed out that a modified open front building costs from $2 to $2.50 less per square foot than the environmentally regulated unit. Noting that all but one study was conducted during all or part of the winter months, Fritschen conceded that "unless pigs in the MOF unit are given supplemental zone heat in the winter, the feed requirement per unit of gain may be slightly higher." But he added that "even with zone heat, the utility cost is no greater for the MOF unit and performance is equal to the EIT unit."

Another advantage of the MOF is less odor, Fritschen said, while a disadvantage is the fly problem "which can be reduced by baiting stations."

The labor requirement in a MOF unit tends to be less than the environmentally regulated unit because there is less equipment to regulate and check. In one summer study, the Nebraska researcher said, MOF-reared pigs gained about five per cent faster and weighed nine pounds per pig more than the EIT-reared pigs at the end of the test.

Turning to other facets of the research study, Fritschen said that studies attempting to relate the amount of slatted floor in a confinement structure to feed efficiency have consistently shown that "as the amount of slatted floor increases, so does the feed requirement per unit gain."

There has been no trend associated with amount of slatted floor and daily gain, he added. A floor that is from one-third to one-half slatted is optimum, Fritschen advised. Feed efficiency on the 25 per cent slatted floor is excellent, he reported.

but it is generally felt that this amount of slatted floor will not give enough pit capacity.

"We feel that the effect of slatted floor on feed efficiency is real and not remotely associated with feed wastage," Fritschen declared.

Fritschen urged producers considering decisions on building or remodeling to consider results from experiment stations but that visits to farms experienced in using confinement as a production tool is a "must."

"The perfect building is yet to be designed and built," Fritschen warned. And he concluded that "success in the swine business is a function of management and not necessarily building design."

Dairy Specialist Believes the 'Super Cow' Production System Will Fit Into Future

LINCOLN—Will high-producing cows fit into tomorrow's highly mechanized and automated milking systems?
This was the question asked by Dr. Nathan E. Smith of the Cornell University Animal Science Department, in an address at the annual meeting of the Nebraska Dairywomen's Association.

Dr. Smith answered the question with a tentative "Yes," along with some qualifications and an observation that "much more is to be learned before we have all the answers to problems associated with managing and feeding cows for high levels of milk production."

The New York dairy Extension specialist and researcher set the stage for his remarks to Nebraska dairymen by noting parallel trends of increased milk production per cow, coupled with constantly increasing herd size, necessitating special management arrangement in feeding and handling.

More and more cows are producing in excess of 20,000 or 30,000 pounds of milk per lactation, he said. And the large herds, dictating group handling and feeding, "have caused a swing away from the traditional method of handling and feeding each cow individually," to make efficient use of labor and equipment.

A host of questions have been unleashed by the interaction of these two trends, Dr. Smith said, all pointed to the "864 question" as to whether the "super cow" will fit into dairy production systems of the future.

Are high-producing cows more susceptible to problems related to reproduction, off-feed, and other disease and health disorders? Can we meet the needs of high-producing cows and still carry out an overall herd feeding program? How far can we go with increased production and/or efficiency—were questions posed by Smith.

Smith reported on a University of California, Davis, experiment in which high producing cows were assembled and placed on trial with cows of lower production ability.

Results indicate that lactating dairy cows regulate their feed intake according to requirements when fed a complete, mixed ration, Smith said. "This is quite surprising since it has been considered that low-producing cows will tend to overeat, gain excess weight and become overly fat if fed a high energy ration free-choice over the entire lactation," he added.

Although high producers, consumed more feed, they also were more efficient in converting feed to milk, Smith reported.

"Other factors being equal, breeding and feeding dairy cattle for higher levels of milk production will result in greater efficiency in converting feed to milk," he commented.

There will be a point, he said, where further increases in milk production would result in no further increases in efficiency of producing milk from feed.

Maximum net efficiency, as projected for high-producing cows in the California experiment, would occur at approximately 39,000 to 40,000 pounds of solids-corrected milk per cow, he said.

"If we assume that this group of cows is similar to the population of dairy cattle as a whole, it means we have quite a bit of room left for improvement before this maximum is reached," Smith noted.

Most state DHIA averages for Holsteins, a high producing dairy breed, are between 12,000 and 14,000 pounds of milk per year.

"We seldom find herd averages much over 20,000 pounds of milk per year. In fact, 39,000 to 40,000 pounds of solids-corrected milk is about the maximum level of production that has been attained by any cow to date, and very few cows have approached this level," he said.

Increase Expected in Soybean Acreage

LINCOLN—As average soybean prices reach near-record levels and domestic supplies remain below demand, American soybean farmers have responded with plans to increase soybean acreage. However, the extent of the projected increase varies considerably around the country, as producers' intentions become known.

According to a USDA farm planning survey conducted in January of this year, American farmers showed intentions of planting some 45 million acres of soybeans in 1972—a four per cent increase from 1971.

Nebraska farmers have indicated that they will plant nearly 750,000 acres this year. This is less than a one per cent increase over the 650,000 acres planted in 1971, which was the smallest soybean crop since 1965. The 1971 acreage of 650,000 was also a 21 per cent reduction from the 1970 record of 824,000 acres.

The USDA has recommended a national soybean acreage increase of some five million acres for 1972. Recent USDA crop regulations will permit farmers to plant any combination of their allotted acreage (after allowing for required set aside) to soybeans without losing their planting history for their respective cropland or farm program benefits. Looking at the soybean situation in Nebraska, Dr. D. G. Hanway, chairman of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Agronomy, believes that Nebraska could substantially increase the soybean acreage beyond what has been intended for 1972.

According to Hanway the ADM processing center in Lincoln has the capacity for more soybeans than are now being produced in the state.

However, some feel that a substantial increase in soybean acreage would not be in the best interest of the American soybean farmer. Harold Kuehn, president of the American Soybean Association, has voiced his hopes that soybean farmers will refrain from increasing acreage more than six per cent.

According to Kuehn, although market development efforts have been highly successful, "there is no way to develop enough markets to dispose of additional production on five to eight million acres without the price of soybeans dropping significantly."

In 1971, farm sales of soybeans totaled $3.4 billion, matching the value of corn sold by farmers. Soybeans are expected to average nearly $3 per bushel for the entire 1971-72 marketing season, the most since they averaged $3.33 in 1947-48.

This year, Nebraska soybean producers are receiving an average season price of $2.86, an 18-cent increase over last year's average. Some NU economists have predicted that at this current price, total gross returns to Nebraska producers could pass the $46 million mark.

George W. Kromer, Economic Research Service analyst for USDA, says that the current reduced supplies will limit the use of soybeans to 1.2 billion bushels—a four per cent drop from 1970-71.

Programming the Soil

Nowadays everything from parthenood to cornfields seems to need planning and programming in advance for best results. No doubt every farmer who tills the soil and plants a kernel of corn does it with visions of harvesting 150 to 200 bushels of corn per acre.

But without a "guaranteed rainfall" apparatus sometimes even the best made plans and programming won't produce 50 bushels per acre. But you shrug off those kind of thoughts in the spring by planning and programming Mother Earth for her utmost output.

Figuring out the fertility of soil and what is needed to make it produce a specific amount of grain almost requires the expert brain of a computer. But you have the brain of a farmer. It may take you longer and a little more short circuiting but eventually you figure it out.

After all, a human being had to program that computer, didn't they? And old Mother Nature and the school of experience has done a fairly good job of programming you.

But last year your fields failed to yield anywhere near what Neighbor John's fields produced. So, last fall you followed his advice, given several years ago, by sending a soil sample to some of those chemical experts. You sent them a sack full of that yellow dirt from the hill over on the south 40 and all they sent you was a little sheet of paper.

Search Begins
And thinking about that piece of paper, you'd better see what was written on it. You make another of those famous verbal rituals and intensive searches through the desk and cabinet drawers before finding it. Now to see what it says.

You instantly recognize it as a masterpiece of computerized literature. The only thing you can understand is the intended crop and the yield goal. You know that when you sent them the soil sample, that's what you get for having someone else figure things out for you. On second thought, if you're going to have is doing good you can plow under the old hay field. That ought to make good corn for a year or two. Then by using some commercial fertilizer along with some from your own natural sources in the barn yard for the other fields you'll be making it easier for tired, old Mother Earth and yourself. But then, you and Mother Earth can't take it too easy or how will you pay Junior's tuition at college so he can learn all this programming and planning. Now what did that soil test report say you had to do?

Alfalfa Grouped in Three Varieties

Seeding alfalfa this spring? The alfalfa variety picture is a rapidly-changing one, according to George Rehm and Russell Moomaw, area extension agronomists at the University of Nebraska Northeast Station.

Alfalfa varieties can be placed in three general groups:

Standard—Vernal, Ranger, Dawson type. Winter hardy, will resist winter with slower recovery after cutting.

Flemish—Introduced French types which are well susceptible, less winter hardy but quick recovering after cutting.

Modified Flemish—Will resistant, acceptable winter hardiness with a good potential between the standard and Flemish types.

Flemish types are suitable for short-term studies in Nebraska, but yields have not been better than those produced by Dawson and Vernal.

Forage yields from many of Veterinarians Pick Winside Man as VP

Dr. Donald Vrbka of Winside was elected vice-president of the Northeast Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association at a meeting held last week at Norfolk.

Dr. Harold Lange of Columbus was chosen president by the group, moving up from vice-president.

The featured speakers were Dr. Norman Kruse of Lincoln, Nebraska state veterinarian, and Dr. Russell Frey, from Kansas State University.

Lacking Components
According to the report the old wormout hill needs sulfur, zinc, manganese, magnesium, boron and a couple other abbreviated chemicals. Some of these should be put on as starters and some should be broadcasted. Well, the best starter a farmer ever saw was a good inch of rain about two days after planting.

Ah, at the bottom of the report seems to be a few words of plain English. Under the special comments you read that this report as determined by addition may be higher than the true value due to high excess lime. In other words, those experts aren't sure of all those very highs and very lows. And just in case you don't apply all that stuff there's a small chance that you might get a good crop after all.

But they are sure of one thing—if you don't put some nutrient elements back into that yellow soil even a wet summer won't help. It's sort of like getting a fat hog fat. Used to be the fatter the hog was the better and more you got paid for him. Now you have to feed a hog so it gets big but not fat.

Used to be as long as you got a good rain every week or so you could count on a good crop. Old Mother Earth must be getting tired, too.

When you stop to think about it, years ago you didn't need to raise 200-bushel corn, either. And then you rotated your corn, oats and hay crops. Maybe that's what you should do this spring. The old hill is getting pretty yellow and the corn on it last year wasn't the best. Then you remember it has been several years since you plowed under that alfalfa. What little nitrogen it provided has been gone a long time.

Long-range Plans

Boy, oh boy, will you be glad when Junior is through school, so he can manage this end of the farming. By sowing alfalfa on that hill this spring you're doing a little long-range planning for yourself. Junior should be through college before you plow it up again. That way he'll be here to read the soil sample report.

But what are you going to do about all the other fields in the meantime? Well, you came up with a solution for this one and maybe you can use this soil test for some of the others. Next year when this alfalfa is doing good you can plow under the old hay field. That ought to make good corn for a year or two. Then by using some commercial fertilizer along with some from your own natural sources in the barn yard for the other fields you'll be making it easier for tired, old Mother Earth and yourself. But then, you and Mother Earth can't take it too easy or how will you pay Junior's tuition at college so he can learn all this programming and planning. Now what did that soil test report say you had to do?

Kiwanians Briefed On Coop Education

Nell Swanson, head of the de- partment of business at Wayne State College, briefed Kiwanis Club members on the cooperation education program started within the past year at Wayne State during the club's regular Monday noon meeting in City Auditorium. The cooperative education pro- gram, is a means whereby busi- nesses provide juniors with on-the-job training and pay that stu- dent a salary.

Those businesses wishing to take part in the program outline the course of duties and this out- line is either approved or rejected by the school.

If approved, the firm's repre- sentative screens applicants for the job, for which 12 semester hours of credit is given. The student is evaluated by the coun- selor and work-station coordina- tor throughout his employment.

Swanson said many benefits derive from the program, includ- ing the means for colleges to keep up with what is going on in business and industry and enabling students, in addition to a mini- mal wage and on-the-job experi- ence, to make changes in their career objectives if they desire.

Social Security

Questions, Answers

Q—I get Social Security payments as a widow. I do not work, but I own a small apartment building. Does my rental income count toward the $1,680 a year that I can earn before Social Security payments are reduced?

A—No. Only wages and self-employment count as earnings for Social Security purposes. Rental income will not affect your cash benefits unless you are a real estate dealer.

Q—I have hired a woman to stay with my mother as a companion while she is recuperating from an operation. Should I report her earnings and pay the Social Security contributions on the wages I pay her?

A—Yes, if you pay her cash wages of $50 or more in a calendar quarter (three-month period of the year.) For more information, get in touch with any Social Security office. Ask for the free leaflet, "Social Security and Your Household Employee."

Q. Why are intersections more slippery after a rain than other parts of the street?
A. Because automobile wheels literally polish the surface of the road at stopping, starting and turning points.
You can see the same principle at work in winter, when streets near intersections and on curves and hills become "more icy" than in other places.

For safe wet-weather driving, the American Trucking Industry suggests you follow these tips relayed by Clark Equipment Trailer Division and the ATA Foundation. They're based on the experience of professional truck drivers who must drive in all kinds of weather to deliver the goods on time.

Remember all pavement surfaces are slippery when wet! Avoid sudden starts, stops or changes of direction.

Slow down when driving through large puddles of water. The resulting deluge can soak wiring and other vital parts of your car, causing it to stall.

Remember that water on your brake linings will cause uneven braking, and maybe complete loss of stopping power.

—Afraid of lightning? Don't be. If you're in your automobile, Your rubber tires insulate you from the ground so that lightning charges will have to seek another path.

Q. I get fruits and vegetables from across the country that seem as fresh as those from my own garden. How can that be?

A. The secret is in the way they are shipped. For example, did you know the "right" temperature for shipping lettuce is 34 degrees? Florida grapefruit should also be stored at 34 degrees, but grapefruit from California is best at 45 degrees. The ideal temperature for sweet potatoes is 55 degrees, while apples retain their flavor best at 32 degrees.

The trucking industry maintains these critical temperatures between farm and table by shipping fruits and vegetables in special refrigerated trailers called "reefers." It's their way of providing you the best quality of food for your family.

Certainly Lasso is the two-crop herbicide: Gets grasses (and more) in corn and beans.

You'll find plenty of corn herbicides. Plenty for soybeans, too.

But why mess with two, when one'll do?

Especially when Lasso does such an outstanding job of controlling giant, green and yellow foxtail, fall panicum and other grasses. As well as many broadleaves.

Yet Lasso's gentle to both corn and beans. And after Lasso controls the weeds, it leaves no carryover. Next year's crop won't be affected by this year's Lasso.

So make things easier on yourself, yet tougher for grasses and broadleaves. With Lasso—in both corn and beans.

That's what you expect from your herbicide.

A—For purchase of a mobile home only, $10,000 to be repaid over 12 years and 32 days.

Q—I am a veteran with an ordinary life National Service Life insurance policy. May I surrender it for paid up insurance and still draw dividends?
A—Yes, but your dividends will be smaller.

Q—I am 100 per cent disabled from service-connected injuries, and wonder if the Veterans Administration will treat me for a disability I suffered after leaving the service?
A—Yes. Veterans permanently and totally disabled from service-connected causes can be treated at VA outpatient clinics for non-service-connected disabilities. You should apply for treatment at the nearest VA office.

This Little Pig...

Questions, Answers

Q—I am 64 and will be retiring soon. My 66-year-old husband, who has been ill and unable to work for the past several years, collects a small Social Security benefit. I have been supporting him for the last several years. Could he be entitled to a benefit on my record?

A—Possibly. If he has been dependent on you for at least one-half of his support in the year immediately before you become entitled to Social Security retirement benefits, he could qualify as a dependent husband on your Social Security record. He can collect the larger of the benefits, either on his own record or on yours. He cannot collect both benefits.
