

Fifty-bed Hospital Promised Despite Result of Hill-Burton Application

"Fifty beds, do or die." No, that's not an election slogan for 1972 but a cry heard throughout Wayne as the city contemplates its new 50-bed hospital.

"There have been many rumors," said Robert Carhart, president of the Wayne Hospital Foundation, "that Wayne is going to get only a 30-bed hospital. That just isn't so."

Carhart explained that the hospital, to be built on the north end of the Wayne State Campus, will be constructed in two phases.

The first phase, he said, will be a 30-bed section for acute care patients. "We will build this section first in order to comply with the regulations governing the distribution of the Hill-Burton funds," Carhart pointed out that the $300,000

Hill-Burton funds are to be used only for the 30-bed phase stipulated by the grant. If the funds were to be used for the entire 50-bed project, Wayne could lose the grant.

"So that we don't lose this grant, the foundation has decided to build the 30-bed section and then begin the second phase of construction of the 20-bed section as soon as the first phase is completed."

The Hill-Burton funds, a federal grant, will cover just a 30-bed section, said Kenneth Oles, secretary of the foundation. Because the federal board feels that a 30-bed hospital is big enough to meet the area's needs.

According to Oles, the Hill-Burton people feel that an additional 20 beds would be too many extended-care beds in the proposed hospital.

"We still intend to build a 50-bed hospital but we will do it in two phases." With the Hill-Burton funds, the hospital could afford a better sprinkler-fire control system, along with extra hall width.

Oles said that preliminary construction plans are being drawn up now. "We hope to receive word from the State Department of Health regarding the granting of the Hill-Burton funds by the end of this month."

Carhart felt confident that the funds would be granted, noting that the board still intends to go through with the construction of the 50-bed hospital whether or not Hill-Burton funds are granted.

Construction of the hospital is to be known as the Providence Medical Center, probably won't get started until the spring of 1973, Carhart said.

"There are many advantages to waiting until spring before construction begins."

One, the cost of the construction likely will be cheaper in the spring because special chemicals are needed in mixing the concrete for foundation flooring during the winter weather.

Also, special housing is usually required by the federal government to cover the construction area to protect the building in cold weather.

Carhart explained that there are some advantages to beginning construction during the winter, such as lower bids because contractors usually are not busy during the winter.

Once the Center is completed, Carhart believes that Wayne will attract more doctors to this area.

"I have talked with several doctors,"

he said, "and they have told me that they would be interested in working on the hospital staff."

Carhart indicated that present hospital staff ratio shows that there are six patients for every doctor. "Already our ratio is eight patients for each of Wayne's three doctors. We have to bring in more doctors into this area. And with the construction of a new hospital, our chances are greatly increased of getting more doctors."

Getting more doctors is important, he said, "but let's not forget about the sisters who helped make the dream of new hospital possible."

The Missionary Benedictine Sisters, Norfolk, started the program for a new hospital last year. And since then a citizens, along with the Sisters, have shown what cooperation can do.

"Without the Sisters, the whole program would not have gotten off the ground. After all, they arranged getting the Hill-Burton funding program as well as supplying the $500,000 matching fund."

Carhart pointed out that some people believe that Wayne is building the hospital just for the Sisters. "A lot of people seem to have a short memory. The Sisters will take over administering the hospital because that is their specialty."

Through the "cooperative attitude" of the Benedictine Sisters and the Wayne citizens, he noted, the community stands to benefit from the new hospital. "This is not an independent project. We must work together."

Summa Cum Laude Scholastic Honors To Four Wayne State College Graduates

Mary Stecher of Hooper ranks first scholastically among the Wayne State College seniors who were graduated Sunday. With a grade-point average of 3.95, she was among four honored as summa cum laude. Miss Stecher majored in elementary education and minored in physical education.

Also graduating summa cum laude were Connie Halquist of Spencer, Ia., 3.88; John Gustafson of Lyons, 3.84; and Judith Nissen of Plainville, 3.83.

Sandra Tjellander, Ewing, Mo., was graduated magna cum laude, 3.52, with high honors in home economics, one of her majors. Her other major is business.

Twelve others graduating magna cum laude: Jan Felster of Norfolk; Billie Jo Williams, of Beemer; Beverly Deupree of Lyons; Catherine Chevalier of Omaha; Roger Lanser of Allen; Frances Sedlack of Springfield; Kristi Milbrink Wilch of Slaymaker, Mary Jo Cook Jorgensen of Wayne; Brenda Kauwal of Rapa, Hawaii; James Schmelch of O'Neill; Diana Janke of Wayne; and Karen Peterson of Silver Creek.

Graduating cum laude: Lois Batenhorst of West Point; Lana Danielson of Omaha; Thomas Hiedrichsen of Wausa; Joanne Erickson of Oakland; Linda Fischer of Omaha; Delores Fritsch of Reighton; Julie Hansen of Graham of Washta, Ia.; Katherine Gross of Norfolk.

Maurice Grojohn of Schaller, Ia.; Karen Grow of Linden, Ia.; Lance Hedquist of South Sioux City; Larry Hilkemann of Pierce; Edward Johnson of Elgin; John Leonard of Logan, Ia.; Marlene Long of Coon Rapids, Ia.; Sally Matling of Sioux City; Monty Miller of Newcastle; Kathy Moore of Long Pine; Janice Myers of Plainville.

Homemade pottery is something that catches everyone's eye. And Debbie Jackman, Louisville, a sophomore at WSC, is no exception.

Wayne State 'Going to Pot'

Wayne State College is going to pot! And it's all because the art students had a pottery sale.

This down-to-earth project included over 100 pieces made by the 24 students in Professor Carlos Frey's pottery classes.

"There are about 18 students in my beginning classes," he said, "with six students in my advanced classes."

According to Prof. Frey, the cost of the finished works is "dirt cheap" but the labor is worth a lot more.

"I was really surprised to see what my students can do," he said.

The many pots and vases that decorated the lawn across from the Student Center turned the area into a veritable pottery garden.

"We would have done this earlier but the weather was too cold. Besides, these projects are the final projects for the classes. And not too many students want to be graded in the cold."

Wayne Girl Staters Chosen

Raneae Knietsche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor L. Knietsche of Wayne, had been chosen to represent Wayne at the 31st Cornhusker Girls State June 10-16.

Raneae has been active in FFA, AFS, German Club, band and Pep Club in her junior year. She also is the treasurer for the Wayne County 4-H Council in addition to being a member of her own club for eight years.

She is a member of Redeemer Lutheran Church where she is an assistant Sunday School teacher and a member of the Luther League.

The alternate Girls State choice is Deb Lutt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Lutt of Wayne. Deb, a junior at Wayne High School, is a member of Redeemer Lutheran Church.

Her activities include: cheerleader for wrestling during her junior year, a Student Council representative as a sophomore, active in sports, honor roll member, and a member of the Pep Club, choir and chamber choir.

The Girls Staters are sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary and the Woman's Club.

Herald to Begin Carrier Service

The Wayne Herald will offer its subscribers another service beginning Saturday, April 15, when newspaper carriers will begin house-to-house delivery within the city limits.

Wayne has been divided into 13 carrier routes, with a boy or girl serving each of those areas.

The Herald will maintain a call list for people who prefer to pick up their paper. Those business places are Sav-Mor Drugs, Safeway Store and Grless Hexall.

Wayne Herald's also may be purchased at Arnie's, Super Valu and the Mint Bar.

At the present, there will be no increase in carrier rates over subscription rates currently charged.

A map depicting the 13 areas and carriers for those routes will be in Thursday's edition of the Herald.

Gals to Play Cage Benefit Thursday

The Wayne High School American Field Service Club and Student Council will be sponsoring a benefit basketball game next Thursday night, starting at 8:15 at the City Auditorium.

Wayne Carroll Schools Faculty Women and mothers of high school girls will play against a team of high school coeds.

Local Officials at Region Crime Meet

County Clerk Norris Weible, County Sheriff Don Weible and Wayne Chief of Police Vern Fairchild attended the meeting of Regions II and 25 Planning Commission for Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice Thursday evening in Norfolk.

Jim O'Dell, probation officer from Norfolk and the group's juvenile delinquent sub-committee consultant, spoke to the group concerning his efforts in meeting with area school counselors to re-establish interest in the sub-committee which was organized about a year ago. A meeting will be held in Wayne in the near future, to which representatives of all area schools will be invited.

Also addressing the group was Mike Lamson of Lincoln, a member of the State Crime Commission staff assigned to the area, who spoke concerning regional jails being proposed by the Federal Government for counties which can no longer meet federal requirements with their existing facilities. Lamson pointed out that federal funds are available for such projects.

Northeast Station Co-sponsoring 4-H Swine Project Camp on April 28-29

A new concept in training youth in the area of 4-H swine projects is being initiated this year at the Northeast Station.

A 4-H Swine Project Camp has been announced by Roy Stohler, 4-H youth specialist, and Bob Fritschen, district swine specialist, both located at the University of Nebraska Northeast Station. The camp will be held at the Northeast Station near Concord and will begin Friday, April 28, with registration at 5 p.m. and will conclude Saturday, April 29, at 5 p.m.

The camp is open to all 4-H swine project members, 12 years of age or older, in Dakota, Thurston, Dixon, Wayne, Cedar, Knox, Holt, Boyd, Antelope, Pierce, Madison, Stanton and Cuming Counties.

The program sponsors urge an early pre-registration as enrollment may have to be limited due to high interest. Pre-registration may be made by contacting your local County Extension See SWINE PROJECT, page 8

New College Directory Is Available

A new directory of Wayne State College alumni is off the press.

Dr. Freeman Decker, secretary of the Wayne State Foundation, said the directory lists about 9,000 alumni from 1910 through 1971, one section listing classes, the other listing all alumni alphabetically.

The 46-page book is available at $3 from the foundation office in Main Administration Building, Room 204.

The new directory adds a decade of graduates since publication of the last directory in 1962.

Medical Center Follow-up Group Finalizes Plans

The Follow-up Committee of the Medical Center Building Program had an organizational meeting Thursday noon at Hotel Morrison, with Bob Carhart, committee chairman, conducting the meeting.

Plans were made on contacting newcomers to Wayne and the area which will be served by the new hospital for pledges and contributions to the facility for which construction is expected to get underway this fall or early in the spring of 1973.

Winside Farmer Still Uses Horses

"I'm not planning to retire as long as I can keep my horses," says 79-year-old Herman Koll of Winside.

Koll's horses have been seen at the Northeast Nebraska Threshers reunion at Niobrara and the Winside Old Settler's Picnic, but are more often seen roaming the pasture on Koll's farm southwest of Winside, or hitched to Koll's spreader, wagon or cultivator.

Right now Koll has seven purebred Belgians, six mares and one stallion.

A 40-year member of the Belgian Draft Horse Corporation of America, Koll also belongs to the Nebraska Belgian Breeder's Association.

"There is good money in colts," said Koll. "He just likes horses," Koll's wife, Evelyn said.

"I have been in the horse business all my life," said Koll. "One time I spent two years looking for the mate to one of my horses."

Prefers Belgians to 'Iron Horses'

smart, it doesn't take much to train a horse."

"I used to farm two quarters and an 80 with horses," said Koll. "It takes longer with horses than with a tractor," said Koll, "but I've got plenty of time."

Koll has a tractor, but keeps his loader on it. "I don't use the tractor in the field," he said.

"It takes longer with horses than with a tractor," said Koll, "but I've got plenty of time."

Koll uses horses on his manure spreader and his feed wagon. He also uses them to sow oats, to cultivate potatoes and to cultivate corn.

"This spring Koll is looking for a two-row John Deere cultivator. "I just have a single-row cultivator, so I use two for four horses and for two." See IRON HORSE, page 8

Herman Koll of Winside says he has been in the horse business all his life. Here, Koll and his wife, Evelyn, show off four purebred Belgians. The Belgians offer, and themselves pulling Koll's wagon, spreader, or cultivator, as Koll prefers to do his farming with horses.

Swing Into Spring

Spring is that time of the year to get into the swing of things. Especially for Steven Karel, eight months, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Karel, route two.

Manipulation of Figures

A perfect example of how the usage of figures can be misleading is noted in a news release from the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D. C. The release makes you perk up quickly in the first paragraph when it leads off with "Fifty-three of the nation's major cities reported an actual decrease in serious crime in 1971, Acting Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst announces, compared with 22 cities showing a decrease in 1970 and 17 in 1969."

like kid stuff with another 17 per cent raise; 1969 saw another 12 per cent hike in lawlessness and, just when it seemed that things could not possibly get worse, there was another jump of 11 per cent in 1970.

Now this year, the Department of Justice appears almost proud of the fact that the 1971 increase in crime over 1970 was "only" six per cent. "The smallest increase in six years," the man said.

J. Edgar Hoover's report says that "violent crime increased in 1971 — by nine per cent over 1970 — but at a slower rate than previous years."

That's like saying the alcoholic drank only 10 more quarts in 1971 than in 1970, whereas he had consumed 15 quarts more in 1970 than in 1969.

The real D. C. chest-popper is in the next-to-last paragraph which says that the nation's capital "reported an overall decrease of 13 per cent in crime, registering fewer crimes in every category, with the one exception that 54 more murders occurred in 1971 than in 1970."

That's great news. Those 54 victims would surely be overjoyed to hear that.

This game of playing with figures and interpreting those figures as you wish prompts this hypothetical case:

Joe Blow earned five per cent more in 1971 than in 1970, the year that he had a 7% per cent income increase going until he got sick and had to miss so much work he lost three per cent of that gain, while at the same time his taxes went up 18 per cent in 1971 over 1970, the latter year which had seen a 10 per cent increase — but the second smallest increase in six years.

Now, how did he finally fare on his finances? We wouldn't have the vaguest idea, but you might write the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the solution.

They might not be right, but they'll make it sound good.

Nearing That Time

Government Expenditures Far in Excess of Revenue

(First of two-part series)
LINCOLN—Three basic questions in providing and financing public services during the 1970's have been identified by a University of Nebraska Extension economist in an extensive paper originally developed for presentation before the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers meeting recently at Richmond, Va.

Dr. Everett F. Peterson, noting that "fiscal crisis characterizes many local and state governments in America today," listed these three problem areas which must be dealt with:

1. Which public services should logically be provided by local, state and federal governments in sparsely populated areas, in metropolitan areas, and in the country in-between?
2. What level of spending is necessary to provide "adequate" facilities and services?
3. How should the cost of public services be allocated among citizens of the community, state and nation?

"Expressions of concern and proposed solutions come from the nation's president and the man-on-the-street," Peterson commented. "Proposals range from drastic curtailment of public services to greatly expanded state and federal participation in their delivery and financing."

A basis of concern, Peterson suggested, is an increase of 179 per cent in current dollars and 75 per cent in real terms of local and state government expenditures from 1959 to 1970. An additional of withholding tables. Underwithholding has been corrected. The new tax tables overcompensate for some people, resulting in too much being withheld from paychecks.

"Here's information about those likely to be affected and how to correct it. Types likely to have too much money withheld in 1972 are: A single person holding only one job with income of less than $25,000. A married couple with only one job in the family and income of less than $31,000. Any taxpayer who itemizes deductions totaling several thousands of dollars.

"Each employer should have W-4 forms from Internal Revenue Service that can be filled out by such persons. Naturally, filling out a form doesn't change a taxpayer's tax obligation; it merely reduces the amount withheld from each paycheck.

"Now, turning to the matter of simplifying income tax forms, the federal income tax forms and instructions are too hard to understand. They must be made more simple. It is bad enough that the government extracts stealable money from the taxpayer without trying to destroy his sanity too with complicated gobbledegook.

"With other Congressmen, I have joined in a move to simplify federal income tax forms and instructions. We propose that the General Accounting Office, the Internal Revenue Service and a committee from the Senate and House work to make income tax materials understandable by typical citizens. We hope to achieve this before this time next year.

"It is only just and fair that we should all pay taxes to support necessary functions of government. Aside from the pain of parting with our money, however, there should be as little mental anguish as possible in taxpaying by individuals and small businesses.

"If we can simplify income tax forms and instructions, maybe it will no longer be appropriate to tell this joke about the Internal Revenue Service offices. As you enter, there is a sign, 'Watch your step.' As you exit, there is a sign, 'Watch your language.'" tional increase of 25 to 30 per cent is expected by 1975. Local government expenditures in current dollars went up from $36.3 billion in 1959 to $92.5 billion in 1970, including programs financed in part by funds from state and federal governments, Peterson said.

"Local and state expenditures have increased at a faster rate than revenues, gross national product and personal incomes in the U. S. since 1952," Peterson pointed out. Current fiscal crises have resulted because expenditures rose seven to 12 per cent annually in 1960-71 while revenues were growing at an annual rate of four to six per cent.

"Rising local-state government spending has been caused mainly by demands for additional and better public services," the economist analyzed.

He ticked off some factors which have contributed to this trend:

"Better educated citizens expect more from government in obtaining a multitude of public policy goals in an increasingly complex society.

"Greater proportions of younger and older people in a population which grew from 151 million in 1950 to 208 million in 1972.

"Public service needs have expanded in metropolitan counties, whose population has increased by 45 million people in two decades.

"Rural people want, and are getting, improved services in a number of areas, including roads, schools, police and fire protection, water and sewer systems.

"The desire of city dwellers to 'get away from it all' places additional loads on public facilities in rural communities.

"Since 1965, serious inflation has boosted prices of items purchased by government and has necessitated paying higher wages and salaries to public employees.

"The approach to answering these questions in America has been typically pragmatic: all levels of government have been called upon to meet citizens' expanding public service needs, Peterson observed.

He discussed three major problems in public financing:

1. Serious fiscal imbalances exist among the three levels of government — federal, state and local.
2. Proliferation of local governments in the form of special districts.
3. The growing resistance among taxpayers to local and state tax increases and to the imposition of new taxes.

"Speaking to the first problem, Peterson said the role of the federal government has increased as society has changed; local and state governments have often failed to deal adequately with problems associated with these changes."

"The federal government has important advantages in financing public services through borrowing and taxation," Peterson said. "When the economy expands, its main revenue source, the progressive income tax, grows faster than the gross national product. And its elected officials are less likely to suffer defeat at the polls after a tax increase."

He noted the existence of well over 80,000 units of local government in the U. S. Most of the special districts, which have increased by 50 per cent since 1957, were established "to initiate and operate specific programs which local or state governments were not prepared to handle, and to gain access to federal and state grant-in-aid funds."

Principal Richard Kunde of the Neligh Public School system, announced last week that beginning today, two new school policies become effective concerning absenteeism from school and make-up slips. Parents must call the school the day their children are absent from school, or as soon afterward as possible. Written excuses will not be accepted except in cases where the family is without a phone. Following absenteeism, students will not be admitted to classes without make-up slips. When a student is absent from class, the teacher will record a zero in the grade book for that day's work. The student has three days for each day absent to make up the work and change the zero grade. The school's recently adopted dress code allows the student to decide for himself what type of clothing is appropriate, stipulating only that it be neat and not attract special notice. Students are required to wear shoes, and may wear beards and mustaches if they are kept properly trimmed. Students may be sent home from school if their grooming is not considered appropriate.

Gordon Gruber has rented a farm near Hartington on which he plans to grow no corn or oats, but lots of pheasant, chukar, partridge, turkey and quail. And he expects to earn a living at it. The idea of a game farm isn't new, but a successful private preserve in Nebraska would be a new experience. There are a lot of game farms in Nebraska, Gruber says, but the only shooting preserve came and went some 10 years ago.

The five children of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wingett, Winnebago, are heartbroken because an unidentified person killed their tiny dachshund Saturday after taking a report sent to the State by another Winnebago resident. The dog was shot at close range in the Wingett's yard with a 12-gauge shotgun. The empty casing was left behind.

At the general election Tuesday, a total of 157 Emerson voters decided to retain the village form of government, rather than converting to a second class city type of government.

Petitions for the mergers of four class 1 school districts adjacent to the Pender School District have been accepted by the Pender Board of Education. The petitions are to merge District 6 (Thurston), 31, 37 and part of 20 with Thurston County District 1 (Pender).

Lou Carow, of the Cosgriff Company, Omaha, will be full time campaign manager of the hospital campaign drive now underway in O'Neill to raise funds for a new medical center.

Jeanette's Health and Beauty Salon in Oakland held a grand opening and open house Sunday afternoon. The basement of Jeanette's Beauty Salon has been completely remodeled to accommodate the spa. Included will be a newly installed whirlpool bath, steam baths, sun lamps and exercise equipment.

Ray Strang, station farmer, was reported in fair condition at a Norfolk hospital following an accident Saturday in which his right arm was caught in power takeoff equipment at his farm.

The Coleridge American Legion and Commercial Club are conducting a drive for new uniforms for the Junior Legion and Midget baseball teams. The uniforms cost over $20 each.

The Bloomfield VFW "Lite A Bike" project was held Mar. 25 at the city hall. Another such event will be held in May to assure that as many bikes as possible are equipped with reflecting tape. The project has been conducted for the past eight years.

Wakefield golfers interested in competing in men's golf league this year have been urged to sign up by Apr. 19. Competition will be on a team basis and teams will be drawn with each team equalized according to talent. Out-of-town teams will not be drawn because of convenience of travel.

Jeff Kinney, All-American I-Back from Nebraska U, will lead the 124th annual March of Dimes Walk-A-Thon in Cumming County Apr. 22. The county walk-a-thon is scheduled to start in West Point, follow Highway 9 to the Beemer Road, go west to Beemer and return to West Point. Walkers are to get their own sponsors who will pledge for each mile completed.

McLean voters went to the polls Tuesday in a special election, deciding by a 31-8 vote for liquor for the drink for their village.

To celebrate the re-opening of most Roadopol stores on Saturday night, a moonlight madness sale was held Apr. 8. Special prizes started at 5:30 p.m. and drawings for $25, $10 and $5 were held at 10:15 p.m.

Funeral services were held in Madison last Saturday for the Rev. George Vavra, 42, and his daughter, Joan, 18, who were killed when the motorcycle they were riding went out of control on a curve on U. S. 275, north of Hamburg, Iowa. The family had moved to Hamburg the previous week.

Today is "E" Day at West Point Public School. The big E stands for Earth, or Environment, or Ecology. Seventh and eighth grade students will pick up trash and haul debris from West Point's streets, alleys and yards. Junior students, aided by senior high school volunteers, will work from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 to 2 p.m. School principal Earl Boyum said trash will be picked up if left out by West Point residents. High school students will plant trees.

A public meeting has been called for Apr. 12 at Beemer for anyone interested in the formation of a rural water supply association for Cumming County. Water districts have been formed in several areas of the state already and area residents visited such districts in the Nebraska City area recently. Several showed interest in such association for this area. Rural water associations are being formed to supply good, clear water in quantity the same way rural power districts supply electric power. Shortage of water or poor water quality have prompted farmers to take this action.

News of Note around Northeast Nebraska

Third of February Traffic Fatalities in 24-hour Period

LINCOLN—One-third of February's 30 traffic fatalities occurred during one 24-hour period. On Saturday, Feb. 26, 10 people died in four separate accidents across the state according to the Accident Records section of the Nebraska Department of Roads. The 1972 February total compares with 16 deaths in the same period in 1971.

The 30 deaths represent 22 accidents. Seven accidents occurred on city streets, nine on state roads and six on county routes. There were no fatal accidents on the Interstate Highway system for the months of January or February.

Saturdays in February were the worst days for motorists with seven fatal accidents on Mondays, next with five and then Sundays with three.

Douglas led counties with nine fatalities. Platte County had five and Phelps County had three.

During February, 17 people died during daylight hours while 13 died after dark. Twenty males were killed on Nebraska roads in February while 10 females died in that same period.

The yearly total of state-wide fatalities through February, 1972 was 56. This compares with 37 for the same period in 1971 — a record year for Nebraska traffic fatalities.

Simpler Style Tax Forms Sought

"If the people who threw the Boston Tea Party thought taxation without representation was bad, they ought to come back to see how it is with representation," Charles Thone, First District Congressman, says.

"As the federal income tax deadline approaches: April 17 this year, since the 15th is a Saturday) I hope to offer you some encouragement. Perhaps too much money is being withheld from your 1972 paychecks, and you can reduce this if you wish. As you work on your income tax return, you may find some consolation in the fact that some of us in Washington are working to make future tax returns easier to fill out and understand.

"First, let's take up your tax withholding. Action by Congress last December did cut the federal income taxes for 1972 of 47 million individuals to the tune of $3.5 billion. Yet, some employees are not seeing much reflection on this in their paychecks.

"For a number of years, underwithholding has been a problem. What is, many individuals haven't had enough taken out of their regular paychecks and have had to cough up additional cash when they filed their income tax returns.

"With the tax cut came a new set

'Space Stowaways' a Child's Delight

by Sandra Breitkreutz

Each year several thousand area children are bussed to Wayne State College where they spend a little over an hour in a fantasy world created by the WSC Theater Department's annual children's play.

This year's offering, "Space Stowaways," was an original play, co-authored by Dr. Helen J. Russell, professor of theater at WSC, and Vernelle Daberkow, a WSC native now residing in New York. The play was presented last week at Ramsey Theater.

The story, set in a space-oriented future, seemed to thrill the youngsters as much as did the traditional Peter Pan, Alice in Wonderland and Pinocchio of past years. And if a parent or two thought the acting not quite up to par for the generally proficient WSC thespians, the children did not seem to notice.

Most outstanding features of the production were the beautiful scenery and costumes and magnificent sound effects. Glorious, vivid colors and fanciful shapes, spattered with glitter, constituted the mountains and rocks on Planet U-9, where much of the action of the story takes place, and equally vivid colors, almost fluorescent, made up the space age costumes of each of the earth persons.

The spaceship was constructed with exactly the right amount of realism and an equal amount of that stuff dreams are made of. The little people of U-9 were perfect, nestled in their rock shells, and emerging like bright, scurrying versions of our drab earthly turtles.

The cast of "Space Stowaways" included John Pegg as Lt. Michael Freeman; Barbara Ryan as his wife, Barbara; Tom Bruner as his son, Mike Jr., and John La Puzza as his nephew, Milton, a funny, fat little boy. Mark Hamm played Commander Robert Porter; Jon Voss, Mike Hamm and Dennis Souba were mechanics; Albert Kirtley was the co-pilot, and Ed Havlovic was Navigator Clark.

U-9 residents, with the delightful names of Plinke, Danko, Gloopin and Funko, were portrayed by Linda Johnson, Kathy Mills, Norfolk Trausch, and Kristy Maxwell. Martin Torry was the not-so-frightful monster, Därv.

The play was directed by Dr. Russell, assisted by Nancy Wachholtz. Set designer and technical supervisor was Ron Wachholtz.

Meets Wednesday

Twenty-eight members attended the United Presbyterian Women's Association meeting Wednesday afternoon at the manse. Mrs. Jessie Hamer presented devotions, "Through Love-Colored Glasses," and the women's lib program was conducted by Mrs. Dean Metz, Mrs. Max Lundstrom and Mrs. Al Kern. Hostesses were Mrs. Adon Jeffrey, Mrs. Dave Hamer, Mrs. Robert Benthack, Mrs. Pearl Griffith and Mrs. Willis Johnson.

Mrs. Cal Ward will present the program, "Expanded Nutrition" at the Apr. 19 meeting.

About 150 persons turned out for the WSC Home Economics Department's fashion show Thursday evening at Rice Auditorium. Proceeds from the event, expected to be about $100, will be donated to the Wayne Medical Center fund.

The show featured 50 students from the three clothing classes instructed by Mrs. LaVera Roomhildt, assistant professor in home economics; 12 students from the clothing construction class; 14 from advanced clothing construction, and 24 from the clothing design class.

An innovation for the WSC Home Ec Department, the fashion show was also a first for Associated Textiles in St. Louis, Mo., who with the cooperation of McDonald's Store in Wayne, furnished all the fabric for the original creations by design class members. A representative of the textile company, Boyd Reedy, was on hand to present engraved trophies to the four first place winners from the original design class, and to assist with judging.

Reedy noted his pleasure with the success of the show and indicated that the textile company may go nationwide with the program.

Trophy winners were Mrs. Lawrence Reiling, slacks coordinate division, and Mrs. Larry Meier, hot pants division, both of Wayne; Mary Nygren, casual long dress, St. Edward, and Donna Parle, casual short dress, Humboldt, Ia.

Other judges were Mrs. Marle Mohr, home economics instructor at Wayne High School, and Mrs. Betty Anderson, Concord, home economics instructor at Laurel High School.

According to Don Mangers, manager of McDonald's Store in Wayne, about 135 yards of material was donated by Associated Textiles, averaging about $15, worth of fabric per girl. He added that if the completed garments were to be purchased from the rack, they would cost about $45, each.

Refreshments for the show were provided by Mrs. Eena Adams' food classes, and floral decorations were provided by Wayne Greenhouse. Wilse Mortuary furnished artificial turf. Assisting with the show were members of the WSC Home Economics Honorary.

Boyd Reedy, representative of Associated Textiles, presented the four models first place trophies for their original designs at the WSC home economics department fashion show Thursday evening. The students are (from

Sherry Verplank Is Saturday Bride

Sherry Lynn Verplank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Verplank, became the bride of Steven Kent Oswald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Oswald in 7 p.m. rites Saturday at the Wakefield Evangelical Covenant church. All are of Wakefield.

The Rev. Fred Jansson, Wakefield, officiated at the double ring ceremony, and Barb Brownell, Wakefield, and John Hicks, Gordon, sang "Wedding Song," "Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Suelen Sandell, Wakefield.

The bride appeared at her father's side in a gown of white embossed linen. Her silk illusion veil was caught to tailored bows of peau and she carried white daisies and blue carnations.

Virginia Verplank, Wakefield, who served her sister as maid of honor, wore blue crepe and carried white daisies centered with blue carnations.

Best man was Mike Oswald and ushers were Kirk Gardner and Doug Backstrom, all of Wakefield. Candles were lighted by Doug Verplank, the bride's brother, and Lowell Kaufman, both of Wakefield. Jeff Verplank, Wakefield, brother of the bride, was ringbearer. Rice bearers were Julie Oswald, Wakefield, sister of the bridegroom and Ham and Machele Buss, Norfolk.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Verplank chose a blue crepe dress. Mrs. Oswald wore beige, and both mothers had corsages of white carnations.

Mrs. and Mrs. Norman Hicks of Gordon served as hosts to the reception held at the church parlors following the ceremony. Mary Kaufman, Wakefield, registered guests and Linda Johnson of Wakefield, Teri James of Lincoln and Jeanne James of Omaha arranged gifts.

Mrs. Steve Buss, sister of the bride from Norfolk, and Mrs. Bernice Kaufman, aunt of the bridegroom from Wakefield cut and served the cake.

Home Economist Asks: Is Meat Too High?

"Are you really spending too much money for food, meat in particular?" Let's take a look at some facts before jumping on the bandwagon against eating meats," says Jocelyn Smith, Extension Home Economist at University of Nebraska Northeast Station, Concord.

Everyone agrees that food prices are climbing painfully fast. Beef prices rose 3 per cent in January and 4 per cent more in February. The average retail price of a cut of beef is at a record $1.15 a pound, 14 cents higher than one year ago. Pork prices jumped a whopping 9.3 per cent last month, and at the produce counter, lettuce prices rose 13.8 per cent, green pepper prices increased 17.8 per cent and cucumbers jumped 22.6 per cent in February from the January price levels.

The basic reason for the increases is that demand exceeds supply. However, a break is in sight. Cattle and hog prices have declined in recent weeks as more animals are being marketed and as consumers have switched to chicken, eggs and other substitutes. And the declines should begin to show up on the retail market this month. Fresh produce generally becomes less expensive in the spring, and should again this year. But economists warn that demand for beef, pork and produce will get stronger as the economy picks up momentum, so even a temporary slack in supplies could send prices shooting back up.

Because of the nature of the food industry, the increases in the prices of raw food are magnified by the time they reach you, the consumer. The food industry is the nation's biggest, moving nearly $120 billion of foodstuffs and related products on the retail market a year. It is probably one of the nation's most inefficient industries in getting its products to where people can buy them. Some items change hands a dozen times before reaching your grocer's shelf. In comparison, auto makers directly sell their cars to dealers who in turn sell them to the consumer.

Each of the many middlemen, from grain elevator operators to processors to wholesalers to retailers, must rightfully earn a profit—not an exorbitant profit, but even a run-of-the-mill gross profit for each can turn the price of a raw food product into runaway inflation by the time the consumer purchases it.

Suppose for example, a raw food product which a processor buys goes up two cents a pound to 52 cents. Disregarding the value a processor may add to the product, a 5 per cent gain on top of the extra two cents boosts his price to 54.6 cents. Likewise, the regional distributor, the local distributor and the retailer each pass along the two-cent increase and each add 5 per cent to the larger amount. Eventually the price increase can end up at a 15 per cent jump at the check-out counter. Still, no individual middleman can be charged with gouging the consumer.

The "middleman's" share of the retail food dollar rose from 59.9 per cent in January to 60.3 per cent in February. Over a longer period this can amount to a dramatic upsurge. Farmers get 7 per cent more for their foodstuff products than 20 years ago. Note here that the total net farm income has risen a bare 3 per cent over the last 20 years. Wholesale food prices have increased 22 per cent and the average retail prices of food are up 4 per cent. The average annual food bill rose $21 last year in the U.S. According to government estimates, all but $1 of the gain went to the middlemen.

Rent is now figured to be 5 per cent higher than 20 years ago; medical care is now 128 per cent higher. Actually, whereas people 20 years ago spent 23 per cent of their take-home pay for food; they only spent 16.3 per cent of their take-home pay for food last year.

Wage earners are now making 4.9 times more than 20 years ago without considering the several-fold increase for wage supplement and fringe benefits. Government employees are getting 4.9 per cent more pay with three times the dividends, and business and professional income has doubled. Yet, as mentioned earlier, the farmers' income has increased only three per cent in the last 20 years. The hourly wage of non-agricultural employees in the private sector increased 2 per cent from July to December of 1971 alone.

The food we're now eating is of better quality, of wider diversity and is better packaged. Plus, it is now the safest in the world.

After considering the above facts, it's obvious the American food consumer is getting a good buy. Still in doubt? Then jump on the bandwagon to make the food industry itself more efficient in getting products to you—the consumer!

FHA Extends Loan Minimum

The Farmers Home Administration may now take rural housing loans to families whose adjusted income does not exceed $9,500, according to County Supervisor Ostendorf serving Wayne and Stanton Counties.

The limit previously had been $9,000, adjusted family income. This change will allow assistance to many families previously unable to obtain credit for purchase or construction of homes.

Farmers Home Administration housing loans are available in rural communities of not more than 10,000 population. Eligible families must be unable to obtain the necessary credit from conventional sources.

Present loan rates are 7 per cent interest with a maximum repayment period of 33 years. For low-income families with not more than $2,000 income, additional assistance may be available with a reduced interest rate. (The interest rate may be reduced as low as 1 per cent, depending on the income level of the family.)

The agency's local office is located at 112 W. Second, in the Professional Building, at Wayne.

Cancer Crusade Underway

The Wayne County unit of the American Cancer Society had its kick-off meeting at the Wayne Woman's Club rooms at the City Auditorium Thursday evening.

Mrs. Rudy Longe, county chairman, presided and gave a report on the new National Cancer Institute Act of 1971 and its implications for the Society. "It will become necessary," she said, "to keep pace in public education, research and in research support of personal grants, such as research and clinical professors, offered only by AMS."

The new Act calls for 15 new cancer centers, which will carry on advanced research and the latest in treatment for cancer patients. Currently there are six cancer centers, one of which is the Eppley Institute at Omaha.

Mrs. Longe said that it is expected that each of these centers will become a hub for a regional network, radiating out first to large medical centers, then to area hospitals. "We hope that our new medical center will be a recipient of such services," Mrs. Longe added.

Each unit member gave a report of the past year's work. Mrs. Clifford Johnson, city chairman, said that her drive was to begin today (April 10). There will be no downtown appeal this year because of the Medical Center drive, she said, adding she aims this year is to have every woman over 20 years of age to have a Pap test.

Ann O'Donnell of Wayne, affiliated with the Nebraska Family and Family Planning Service, explained that her office offers free Pap tests to anyone who cannot afford the regular fee.

The rural drive, with Mrs. Lester Hansen the chairman, also began today. Jane Macklin of the State National Bank will serve as crusade treasurer.

Mrs. Fred Gildersleeve, memorial chairman, reported that $100 had been given in memorials since Sept. 1.

Mrs. Hansen received a rhinestone Sword of Hope pin for 10 years of service and a certificate for 10 years as precinct chairman. Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Gildersleeve received pins for unit service.

Films were shown by Mrs. Alfred Slevens on "The Talmis Story" and "A Woman in Question." The meeting adjourned after refreshments.
