

Kidnap, Rape and Sodomy Charges Against Condreay Are Dismissed

In a sudden change of events, Danny Gene Condreay of Schuyler entered a plea of guilty Tuesday in Wayne County District Court to a charge of assault with intent to inflict great bodily injury upon a Wayne State College coed.

Condreay originally had been charged with kidnaping, rape, sodomy and assault with intent to rape in connection with an alleged incident that occurred on or about Nov. 10, 1971.

Defense attorneys Bud Bornholt of Wayne and Jerry Norris of Columbus made the motion to District Court Judge George Dittrick of Norfolk to dismiss the charges of kidnaping, rape and sodomy and asked that their client would be willing to plead guilty to a lesser charge on the fourth count.

Wayne County Attorney Don Reed agreed to the dismissal of the three counts and Condreay, when brought before the bench, made a guilty plea to Judge Dittrick on the assault with intent to inflict great bodily injury charge.

Condreay had made a not guilty plea earlier to all charges.

The case had been scheduled to be heard by a jury, but the panel of prospective jurors was summoned late Monday evening and early Tuesday morning that there would be no necessity for their appearance.

Judge Dittrick deferred sentencing until an investigation by the probation officer could be completed, setting the date of Friday, Apr. 28, at 1 p.m., as the tentative date for sentencing.

The charge, if a sentence is pronounced, carries a minimum of one year and a maximum of 20 years in the state penal complex.

Statutes allow penalties of from three to 50 years imprisonment for kidnaping and rape, not more than 20 years imprisonment for sodomy charge and not less than two years nor more than 15 years imprisonment for assault to commit rape.

Much of the 40-minute court session was devoted to queries from Judge Dittrick to the defendant to make sure that he understood fully all of the circumstances in connection with a guilty plea.

Condreay was asked if his plea would be free and voluntary with duress and without persuasion, to which the defendant answered, "Yes, your honor."

Judge Dittrick then warned the defendant that "the court is bound in no way by any pre-bargaining despite any conversations" with either the defense or prosecuting attorneys.

"The court is free to exact any penalty it deems proper under the facts and circumstances in this case," the judge concluded.

After Judge Dittrick ascertained Condreay was in full knowledge of all circumstances, he accepted a plea of guilty to the lesser charge. He ordered a $5,000 appearance bond be continued in force and effect.

Another defendant in the same case, Gale Gronenthal, 24, of Columbus, will be tried later, but a date has not as yet been set. Gronenthal, also free on $5,000 bond, was charged with kidnap, rape and assault with intent to rape.

The two were arrested in late November and confined to the Wayne County Jail. County Judge Luverna Hilton first set Condreay's bond at $50,000 and Gronenthal's at $15,000. The bond for Condreay, age 26 at the time of his arrest, was reduced to $20,000 and then both defendants petitioned successfully to have their bonds lowered to

The two men were bound over to District Court in mid-December at a six-hour preliminary hearing to determine if there was sufficient evidence to warrant a trial in the higher court. Judge Dittrick later ordered separate trials for the two defendants.

Condreay, after a question by Judge Dittrick Tuesday, said that he had never been convicted of a felony. Answering questions as to his background, he told the judge that he was graduated from Columbus High School, had attended Nebraska University and Platte College and had spent three years in the Marine Corps.

He told the court that he was married last summer. His wife and parents were in the courtroom, the only persons present besides the defendant, judge, attorneys and two persons from the news media.

Dust Bowl Victory

Nebraska could have easily outdistanced any state in the union Monday for the uncasted title of the Dust Bowl victors as high winds turned the farmers freshly plowed soil into fine grains of blowing dust. Here a farmer northwest of Wayne attempts to work in his fields despite the "cloudy" conditions.

Murphy Blasts 'Reckless Government'

J. R. "Bob" Murphy told the Wayne Kiwanis Club Monday night that he is a 17th District candidate for the Nebraska Legislature because "I have watched the country being destroyed by reckless government and the courts enmeshed by laws that are next to impossible to interpret."

The South Sioux City native operates a 400-acre farm in Dixon County, is co-owner of the Tri-State Plumbing Co. and president of the Dakota County Bank.

In his background sketch, he told the Kiwanians that he is a graduate of Iowa University, served four years in the Navy, has had experience in heavy construction, operated a propane business and is the co-owner of a leasing business.

In conjunction with his comments on the courts and complicated laws, Murphy said "the rights of the individual should stop where they interfere with the rights of society."

In the area of taxation, he said that the "extent the government taxes its people depends on how much that government thinks the taxpayer will bear—then it borrows to make up the difference."

"That borrowing has resulted in the fact that every man, woman and child is indebted $100—just to pay the interest on that indebtedness."

"We're a nation long since bankrupt, but that bankruptcy was not revealed until March, 1965. We're very poor housekeepers of our money," Murphy added.

Other highlights:

—The pace in which bills are tossed into the legislative hopper brought some comment. "A total of 75 bills were approved or rejected during a one-day session the final day. It is impossible for legislators to give due consideration to that many bills in one day," he said.

—State aid brought another blast. "Thirty per cent of our population now receives some type of government aid. People refer to state aid as something free, but for every dollar given out in aid, $1.10 is collected from the taxpayer."

—Import-export brought the comment of "Over $150 million more in goods are being imported than exported," with high labor costs and the tax structure both receiving partial blame for this imbalance.

In a question-and-answer session following his talk, Murphy said in reply to one query that he would prefer to serve on the budget committee if elected. He added he would like to see a five-year state budget adopted.

On the question of his stand on state aid to education, Murphy said that it is almost inevitable that sooner or later the finances for education would be doled out by the county or by the state with probably two alternatives for financing—pooling of property taxes statewide with districts then reimbursed or through higher income tax and/or state sales tax.

The 17th District includes Wayne, Dixon and Dakota Counties with three others—Mrs. Elaine Schmiedeke of Dakota City, C. Miller of Homer and incumbent LeRoy Pfister of South Sioux City in the race.

Hospital Foundation to See Medical Center Schematic

The Lincoln architectural firm of Davis, Strange and Darling is working on preliminary plans for the Providence Medical Center in Wayne, and representatives will meet today (Thursday) in Norfolk with members of the Wayne Hospital Foundation and the Penitentiary Sisters, to present a schematic drawing of the proposed center.

The State Board of Health Monday approved the amended application by the Providence Medical Center for federal Hill-Burton hospital construction aid for a 30-bed acute care unit.

The original application, in addition to the 30-bed acute care unit, called for a 20-bed long term care unit, which the State Board of Health felt was unnecessary for the Wayne area.

Wayne still intends to proceed with plans for the 50-bed plan, but in order to comply with Hill-Burton regulations, will complete the 30-bed unit as the first phase of a two-phase project.

According to Charles Thomas, administrator of the Wayne Hospital, official word on the exact amount of the Hill-Burton allocation is expected in a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fransen, Wakefield, celebrating their 65th wedding anniversary.

65 Years Is a Long Time

"It's just an awfully long time," said Carl Fransen, Wakefield, speaking of the 65 years he and his wife have been married. The couple, who have lived at 613 Highland, Wakefield, since 1959, marked their anniversary with an open house reception Sunday at Salem Lutheran Church.

Fransen, who will be 89 in July, was born in Sweden, coming to Nebraska in 1902. He and Emma, who was born Apr. 2, 1886 in Essex, were married Feb. 20, 1907, at Wakefield, and farmed until 1940, when they moved to Omaha.

Mrs. Fransen, who proudly states that he has never been in a hospital except to visit, keeps up his yard and takes care of his wife who suffered a stroke 16 years ago.

A daughter, Mrs. Ruth Lampke, who lives with her parents, recalls that her mother used to love to sew; made all the kids' clothes, and sewed for others too.

Mrs. Fransen happily tells of the recent return of her lost engagement ring. The ring was lost about 50 years ago when the family lived on a farm southwest of Wakefield. Paul Olsen, who later moved to that farm, found the ring, put it away, and forgot it, tracking it to Mrs. Fransen only about nine years ago. Mrs. Fransen was so thrilled, she put the ring on her finger, behind her wedding band, and said, "It will never come off again."

The Sunday open house was hosted by the Fransen's children, Mrs. Lempe and Mrs. Gladys Park, Wakefield; Mrs. Blanche Watson, Mrs. Florence Fleetwood and Arnold Fransen, Omaha; Mrs. Dorothy Hubbard, Norfolk, and Verner Fransen, Burke, S.D. One child died in infancy. There are 23 grandchildren and 55 or 56 great grandchildren (Fransen couldn't be sure of the exact number without counting them up.)

Fransen were members of Salem Lutheran Church.

Guests were present at the reception from Burke, S. D.; Morris and Evansville, Minn.; Red Oak, Stanton, Villisca, Elletts, and Council Bluffs, Ia.; Dakota City, Omaha, Norfolk, Wayne, Concord, Emerson, Pender, Wmslow, Hooper and Wakefield, and included Ernest Hyspe of Wakefield and Ivar Fransen, a brother from Red Oak, Ia. Both had been attendants at the couple's wedding.

Pastor Robert V. Johnson spoke briefly. Mrs. Marlene Klop, LaMars, Ia., and Gladys Berg, Dakota City, registered guests. A letter was read from the Rev. Ruben T. Swanson, Dresden 55 YEARS. page 8

Concord Church Undergoes Complete Facelifting Job

Remodeling of the Concordia Lutheran Church at Concord began this week with the removal of the old pews and the painting of the sanctuary.

The project was approved in a special congregational meeting held Feb. 27. It will consist of painting and carpeting the sanctuary as well as the installation of new padded pews.

The painting contract was awarded to Finley's of Laurel, the carpeting to King's Carpet of Wayne. The pews have been purchased from the Stoddard Church Furnishing House at Beatrice.

"We are hoping for a May 1 re-occupancy date," says Pastor John Erlandson.

Sunday worship services are presently being held at the Concord school auditorium.

Primary department Sunday school classes continue to be held in the church basement. Other classes have been temporarily shifted to the school auditorium and the parsonage.

The first phase of the remodeling of the Concordia Lutheran Church at Concord was the removal of the old pews, which were installed when the church was built in the early 1900's. The second phase, show here, is the painting of the sanctuary. After the painting is completed, carpeting will be laid and new padded pews installed.

Plan Correctional Facility

Wayne County and seven other counties in Northeast Nebraska are looking into the possibility of building a regional correctional facility in the near future.

Wayne County Clerk Norris Weible said that the County Commissioners, in their regular meeting Tuesday, approved a resolution to be included with Knox, Cedar, Pierce and Dixon Counties in a feasibility study for a regional correction facility.

"The Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice," Weible said, "will pay for the study along with a grant from the federal government."

County Sheriff Don Weible who was appointed to the study's planning committee, will be Wayne County's representative.

"Before the commissioners decided to join the study," Norris noted, "Madison, Stanton and Pierce Counties were the only ones involved."

Before the study can be conducted, Weible said, each county has to approve of the study and place a representative on the committee.

"The regional correction facilities would not only be a jail but a place to offer psychiatric care as well," he concluded.

No definite date has been set for the release of the results.

NORTHEAST EXTENSION Notes by Anna Marie Kreifels. The lowest-priced no-iron bed linens are generally your best buy. The quality of all brands is quite similar, so price is not a true measure of their quality. For the best value in sheets and pillowcases, buy those brands during white sales at department stores or any time of year at discount or variety stores. These conclusions result from a year-long study conducted in New York State. The research was confined to no-iron white sheets and pillowcases of 50 percent polyester and 50 percent cotton. All sheets and pillowcases tested met the same minimum textile fabric performance requirements. Differences were noticed in degree of wrinkling, over-all appearance and whiteness, none of which affect durability. Uniform quality in bedding was not surprising, since a small number of manufacturers produce nearly all household bed

Military Band to Include Four WAC Vocalists for WSC Concert Sunday

A military band with a new concept in concerts—music that appeals to youth—is coming to Wayne Sunday afternoon as an added attraction on the Wayne State special program series. The concert is free—the public welcome.

And when the Studio Band and Soldiers' Chorus of the U.S. Army Field Band go on stage at 3 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center, they will be accompanied by four attractive and talented members of the Women's Army Corps.

The women will be featured vocalists in the band's "Sing Out for America" show, and their appearance will mark only the second time in the band's 26-year history that female members of the Army have toured and performed with it.

Two WACs first performed with the Field Band on its fall 1972 tour when it introduced the "Sing Out for America" tour. Now there are four blending into the band's repertoire of music which features modern pop hits, according to information received by Dr. Robert Johnson, director of Wayne State's special programs.

For one member of the Wayne State music faculty, Jay O'Leary the band's visit here will be especially interesting. He played in the Field Band's concert unit from 1963-66, and he knows some of the musicians who play in the Studio Band coming to Wayne.

Meet the Candidates Margaret Lundstrom Seeks Quality Education

Mrs. Max (Margaret) Lundstrom, 204 West 10th, is one of the eight candidates vying for the four terms on the District 17 Board of Education. At The Herald's invitation, she submitted the following comments for publication:

"Education has always been an important part of my life. My father was a school superintendent, and my husband and I have our degrees in education. With this in mind, I decided to offer my services as a school board member to the students, parents, school staff and taxpayers of the Wayne-Carroll school district.

"Quality education is a goal not easily attained anywhere. In fact, the mere definition of 'Quality Education' is not always easy to agree on. It becomes the task of the school board to try to define this elusive quantity in terms of community expectations and to translate it into action for the children of the district by hiring and supporting forward-looking administrators and competent, conscientious teachers.

"Another important aspect of the school board is economy. Just as anyone could decorate a home with flair if he had an unlimited budget, any school board could provide quality education if it were able to draw on a bottomless purse. The trick is to provide the best education possible for the dollars available.

"I am not in a position to comment on many of the school-related problems that have come to my attention, for I do not know the underlying details. However, I do feel that in an atmosphere of good will, with lines of communication open in all directions, student, teacher and taxpayer problems can be worked out in a manner that will be in the interest of good education in District 17."

Retired Officer Slated to Speak at Farm Bureau Banquet Saturday

Guest speaker at the Wayne and Stanton Counties Farm Bureau banquet, to be held this Saturday evening at the WSC Student Center, is Paul A. Sledenburg, vice president and sales director for the Farm Bureau Life and Mutual Insurance Companies. Sledenburg is responsible for agency activities of the Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska and North Dakota companies.

He entered the insurance business in 1946, joining the Iowa Farm Bureau Companies in 1949, and since has served as agency manager, division manager, Iowa agency director and regional insurance manager.

Born near Savanna, Ill., where he attended public school Sledenburg studied at Huntington College in Indiana and the University of Kansas, and served as a flying instructor and bomber pilot in the U.S. Air Force during World War II.

He is a Lt. Colonel United States Air Force Reserve Retired, and has served as liaison officer for the U.S. Air Force Academy. He is past moderator of his church in Des Moines, Ia., and is active in community activities.

With his three children, Douglas, 16; David, 15, and Conita, 10, he makes his home in Des Moines.
The annual banquet is scheduled for 7:30 pm.

By 1975, the percentage of young adults—age 25-34—in the civilian labor force with 4 years of high school or more will have risen to 70 per cent—10 per cent more than 1965.

Meet the Candidates Owens Points at Need For Objective Outlook

Editor's Note: Milton Owens, Carroll farmer, who is running for one of the four positions on District 17 School Board, was asked by The Wayne Herald to comment on school board issues. His comments follow—

"The education of our children is important. Because we realize its importance, we all want to provide the best education possible. There are many things that enter into such an endeavor. This would include buildings, curriculum, administration, staff, community cultures, finances, etc. Any one thing or combination of things might be limiting factors.

"Since it is such a complex undertaking, it behooves all of us to put forth effort to make it a success. One way is for our schools to keep an open mind toward new methods and innovations. Just because something has been done one way in the past is a poor recommendation for its continuance.

"However, by the same token, just because something is new does not necessarily mean that it is any better than the old approach. We must have an open mind to keep us objective on such matters.

"Education is also 'big business.' The economic principals of the business world should also be carried over to the educational field. Since public funds are used, it is imperative that every effort is put forth to economize each phase of the operation without jeopardizing the end result.

The Jack Erwin family and Clayton Erwin West Point, spent the weekend in the Darrell Holdorf home, Fremont.

Cyclists' Rules Same As Motorists

More than 55 million persons own and ride bicycles for health exercise. The Nebraska Medical Association points out that bicycle riding can be a life-long sport.

Cycling builds endurance. Cycling uses the leg muscles, as well as back and shoulder muscles.

The main hazard to bicycling is automobile traffic. Adults and youth who cycle must learn and observe bicycle safety. Riders must observe all traffic regulations observed by automobile drivers.

For the exercise cyclist, riding on special bicycle paths, when available, can help avert accidents. Bicycling on streets with little traffic and at non-heavy traffic times of day, can increase enjoyment of cycling, as well as cyclist safety.

Bicycles, like automobiles, must be maintained in safe driving condition. Reflectors are a must to help bring attention to the cyclist. Reflective clothing is an additional safety precaution.

When cycling at night, cyclists should have a good white light on the handlebars, as well as a reflector or red light on the rear. Brakes should always be in good condition.

Most one-bicycle accidents are caused from too sudden stops which can pitch the cyclist forward over the handlebars. Other frequent bicycle injuries occur from hitting an object in the dark.

The Nebraska Medical Association urges safety at all times to make bicycle exercise a healthy, worthwhile activity.

Is it too late to power rake yards in eastern Nebraska?
No, but it should be done just as soon as possible. The sooner this is done, the better the grass will be. The grass is now sending up new shoots, and power raking will damage them. However, they can recover, so get it done quickly.
Should red raspberry bushes be topped?
They should be cut back to where they are alive. If they are alive clear to the ends, cut to about three feet high.

GARDEN POINTERS

What can be done to keep worms away from carrots?
There is no effective way to keep worms away from carrots. However, the best method of slowing down damage is the application of Sevin in either the five per cent dust or six per cent wettable powder. This should be applied when the plants are three quarters to one inch high. Be sure to repeat the treatment every seven to 10 days.
When is the "frost free date" in Nebraska?
The "frost free date" for most of the state is May 10.
When should a preemergent for crabgrass be applied?
The preemergent should be applied as close to the germination date as possible. That would be around May 1 for most of the northeastern areas.
How deep should lettuce and radish seeds be planted?
They should be planted about four times the diameter of the seed. Lettuce should be one fourth to one-half inch deep, and radishes about one-half inch. Beans should be planted about two in-

CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

I can't think of a job that is as uninspiring to contemplate yet more satisfying to behold when completed than spring clean-up.
How much soap, water and elbow grease that one chooses to invest in cleaning up is between himself and his time, energy and standards of neatness. But, how much he does in clearing away clutter and unneeded flammables, improving storage space, checking tools and equipment and fixing hazards and other potential injury-makers is very important.
Aside from grooming the old place and doing your part to fight eye pollution, why not include a few safety goals in this year's clean-up, fix-up?
Getting rid of clutter and accumulations of unneeded flammables will satisfy both aesthetics and accident prevention.

Clutter is a real falling and fire hazard as well as a nuisance and consumer of valuable storage space.

Take out those newspapers, magazines, old clothing, broken toys and household items, empty containers, broken or worn equipment parts and pieces. Also, search the stairways, ledges, shelves, cabinets and drawers, nook and cranny for empty or near empty bottles or containers, odd bits of chemicals and medicines, check ladders. Check electrical appliances, power tools and heaters, cleaning and servicing them. Check electric wiring and grounding systems.

What about those steps and stairs? Are there handrails handy, and are they strong and adequate?
Are there loose floor boards anywhere that could trip you, or protruding nails or other sharp objects that could snag your clothing or scratch you? Are the things that are hung up or stored overhead secure so that they won't fall on someone?
These are only a few starters to get you going on your own clean-up for safety campaign. And, while you're at it, you might want to use some personal protective equipment.

'Seed Exciter' Causes Little Excitement

Several companies are promoting in Nebraska a machine which "excites" the seed. Seeds are propelled by a four-inch auger from a hopper through a specified amount of electro-magnetic energy. Claims are made that the "excited" seed will 1) germinate faster 2) make a harder root growth 3) mature earlier and 4) yield more grain of improved quality.
Research results to date do not substantiate the claims that are made for the "energized" or "excited" seed.
Corn yield was 8 per cent less from the "excited" seed than from non-treated seed. The lower grain yields may have been associated with lower stands from the "excited" seed. Stand was reduced five per cent by the treatment. It is likely that some mechanical injury occurred by passing the seed through the metal auger, which in turn resulted in lower stands.
Machines on the market now have a nylon brush rather than a metal auger. This may help to eliminate seed injury. There is still no research data to indicate, however, that grain yield will actually be increased by energizing the seed. There doesn't seem to be much reason to get excited about "excited" seed.

Production Incentive Payment Rates Announced for 1971 Wool and Mohair

WASHINGTON — Quality production incentive payment rate on 1971 marketings of shorn wool has been announced by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The announced payment rate, based on the incentive price of 72 cents a pound, is 271.1 per cent of the national average price of 19.4 cents a pound received by producers. Payment to wool growers are required by the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended.
The higher 1971 payment rate compares with the 1970 rate of 102.8 per cent and reflects a drop in market prices for shorn wool in 1971, USDA officials said. Wool prices were generally lower last year throughout the world and the U.S. average wool price to producers was the lowest since 1938.
A grower's wool payment is determined by multiplying his net dollar return from the sale of wool by the payment rate of 271.1 per cent. The percentage method of payment is designed to encourage growers to improve the quality and marketing of their wool; in any marketing year the higher the price a grower gets for his wool the larger the incentive payment.

For example, if a producer got a 10-cent average return, his payment will be 2.711 times 10 cents or 27.11 cents per pound. On the other hand, a grower who produced better quality wool and received an average market price of 25 cents a pound would get 2.711 times 25 cents, or an incentive payment of 67.8 cents a pound.
A payment rate of $2.10 a hundredweight on unshorn lambs sold or slaughtered in 1971 also was announced by USDA. The 1970 rate was $1.46. This payment is designed to compensate growers for the wool they market on live lambs rather than as shorn wool. The payment is based on the shorn wool payment rate, average weight of wool per hundredweight of lambs, and value of lamb's wool relative to the national average value of shorn wool.
The 1971 payment rate on mohair will be 166.4 per cent of sales returns received by a grower. The rate is based on the difference between the support level of 80.2 cents and the average price of 30.1 cents a pound received by all producers of mohair. Payments on the 1970 marketings were at the rate of 105.1 per cent of dollar returns when growers received an average of 30.1 cents a pound in the marketplace.
Payments to wool and mohair growers on 1971 marketings will be about $110 million, up $38 million over 1970. Wool payments are estimated at about $100 million.

Winter Injury to Evergreens May Not Be Evident Until Following Year

Nebraska's erratic and sometimes harsh climate frequently causes damage to ornamental evergreens. This damage, commonly referred to as winter injury, occurs with a combination of dry summer and fall weather followed by cold temperatures through the winter and early spring months.
Winter injury results from the drying and desiccation of needles, twigs, and branches on red cedar, arborvitae, juniper and certain pines. In the early spring, damaged evergreens appear brown and dried out at the tips and will fall to leaf-out normally. In some cases, these evergreens may leaf-out only to die-back within three or four weeks.
Occasionally, winter injury symptoms do not show up until a year or more after the physiological stress occurred. Trees grown in poorly-drained soil or excessively-fertilized ground are more likely to be damaged by winter injury.
Unfortunately, weather cannot

Senator Ziebarth Blames Agriculture Stagnation on Misdirected Programs

According to State Senator Wayne Ziebarth, "agriculture is the logical choice to prime the nation's economy, but other segments of the economy have received the emergency action in our economic crisis. Farmers, especially family farmers, have felt the inflation squeeze more than any other profession."
Ziebarth, running for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate, blames the misdirected programs of the past four years for much of the stagnation of agriculture. "On a short-range basis," he said, "conditions could be improved by raising the loan price on grains and increasing diversion acres allowed for the next crop year. Such programs would let farmers get into the next crop year without the mass need for large amounts of expensive credit.
"Short range relief must be followed by innovative congressional and Department of Agricul-

Here's steel cord belt strength with polyester cord smoothness, in a great long-wearing tire.
Goodyear builds it with two belts of steel cord for long-lasting resistance to impact and penetration. (You wouldn't run over steel drill bits the way we did here) — but the demonstration illustrates how tough the steel belts really are.)
Then Goodyear makes the long mileage easy to take, with a flexible polyester cord body to soak up the shocks.

Crossbreeding Boosts Calf Production

LINCOLN — Production of calves per cow can be increased 20-25 per cent by systematic crossing of Herefords, Angus and Shorthorns, said Dr. Larry Cundiff at the 1972 North Central A. I. Conference at Milwaukee, Wis. recently.

In discussing "How Are the Exotic Breeds Performing?" Dr. Cundiff, USDA animal science researcher stationed at the University of Nebraska, explained that results from Fort Robinson heterosis experiments and others indicate that there are differences in the three breeds and that the major benefit of crossing the three is due to heterosis.

"More than half" of the increased production from systematic crossing is dependent on use of the crossbred cow, he said. Heterosis means a greater vigor or capacity for growth through crossing of straight breeds.

Fort Robinson heterosis experimentation indicates, Dr. Cundiff said, that Angus and Shorthorns "are very similar in most characteristics except that Shorthorns may gain faster in the feedlot but are fatter than Angus."

"Herefords outgain Angus and Shorthorns in the feedlot, are somewhat more efficient in feed conversion and being later maturing, produce carcasses with more lean and less fat at a given age."

"Angus and Shorthorns exceed Herefords in mothering ability and nursing and reach puberty at younger ages and lighter weights than Herefords. Angus are smaller in scale and weight at maturity than Herefords."

"Thus, differences exist among these breeds on the average for specific traits but differences in total net merit appear small. Crossing will combine differences in breeding value in a desirable fashion but the major benefit of crossing Herefords, Angus and Shorthorns is dependent on the degree of heterosis," he emphasized.

In discussing Charolais, Dr. Cundiff said more data is needed to characterize straightbreds and crossbreds for fertility, maternal ability and productive efficiency.

"Data presently available indicate they possess many of the characteristics sought in terminal sire breeds. They improve growth rate and carcass composition in crosses with traditional British breeds while the British breeds improve carcass grade."

Results on the first of three calf crops from the U. S. Meat Animal Research Center Germ Plasm Evaluation Program are "too preliminary" to draw conclusions regarding specific breed differences but some "interesting relationships" are suggested in early results, he explained.

"In two-year-old calves, a strong relationship between birth and weaning difficulty is suggested relative to breed of sire; however, the relationship was much lower in three, four and five-year-old calves where calving difficulty is less."

"A strong relationship was also suggested between birth weight and preweaning and postweaning growth rate. Faster gaining bred crosses tended to be more efficient in feed conversion. Per cent retail product and per cent fat trim were inversely related with per cent bone corresponded more closely to per cent retail product than per cent fat."

It is estimated that over 21,000,000 men and women in the U.S.—or about one adult in six—have some degree of high blood pressure (hypertension), and seven out of every 10 are between the ages of 20 and 64, says the Nebraska Heart Association.

Progressively, during the years, you've learned how to avoid this by contours, round corners and other logical remedies. And you've forgotten how much there was to learn about making round corners until you hired Zeke, a man from town, to help with the plowing.

That is, after you finally convinced him there was such a thing. Then you proudly bestowed your compassion and intelligence on him by telling him that you would plow out the corners while he plowed around the fields.

And the black ribbon widens into a large band, designating the exact boundaries of each specific crop. And the exhilaration gradually develops into monotony.

About midmorning one sunny, warm day you've practically got the tractor and plow operating by remote control. Not much muscle is required to control the power steering. You're setting there with your legs crossed, leisurely puffing on a cigarette. The thin, blue streak of vapor from the tractor gradually grows darker and darker. The tractor is chugging, puffing and pulling its last.

Headed for China

You toss the cigarette, uncross your legs and stand up to see what is going on. One backward glance shows you that the plow is headed for China. Instinct tells you that something has broken.

You stop and try to back out of the furrow. Thus getting the plow about the ground for better inspection. But try is about the extent of it.

You climb out of the tractor and wearily rest your hand on the frame of the plow. Or part of it. The part that has a black, slick substance all over it. At least you now know the source of the trouble. Gosh, you'd have sworn that weather-checked hose would have lasted until planting.

While you're wiping the oil from your hand onto your overalls, the hired man, Zeke, catches up with the other tractor and plow. He pulls out the plow and gives you a ride back to the house.

A fast trip into town and you're on your way around the field again. That is after you make a half dozen turns and plow up the little patch of solid ground left under your tractor while the hose was broken.

Of course you are now behind with plowing out your corners. When you've finished plowing out the second corner you realize that Zeke hasn't been around for quite a while. As you start around the field, muttering to yourself about the hired help one gets now-a-days, you notice occasional piles of stocks and trash piled on the plowed ground.

Before long, the plows are beginning to make ragged, only partially turned furrows. Sort of looks like you should have disked one more before plowing. But you thought the cutters would take care of the stocks.

No Cooperation

And they probably will have if the stocks would stay dry and brittle. That's the trouble with the weather. When you want it dry, it's wet and damp. And when you want it wet, it's dry.

By the middle of the afternoon, stopping to clean the trash from the plows becomes more monotonous than the continuous plowing. There seems to be no other alternative than to remove the cutters and go get them sharpened.

Maybe you should have had them sharpened before you started to plow. Seems like the farmer simply can't save a nickel anymore.

By the time you return it is too late to go back to the field. It's time for chores. That black haze didn't get much wider today. Plowing may be unscientific but it sure isn't uncomplicated.

Well, you've lost most of a day's plowing to say the least. You'll have to have awful good luck to gain back the time lost. At the supper table you're making plans out loud about the acres you intend to plow tomorrow.

Somewhere among your dreaming you hear someone say something about wanting enough garden plowed for a few radishes and onions.

After the trouble you've had today and still have about a hundred acres left to plow and the Mrs. worries about a list of things that. Well, she just as well know right now that you aren't going to plow it tomorrow nor the next day nor the next. Not until you're done plowing in the field anyway.

Funny, but somehow what you think and what you do have absolutely no bearing whatsoever on each other.

Shattercane Infestations Are a Rarity

Shattercane is not a serious weed problem in most areas of northeast Nebraska, but some infestations are known to occur.

A new approach to shattercane control in corn is now available. The treatment consists of applying a dry powder to the seed corn at planting time. The chemical is known as 1, 8-naphthalic anhydride. Approximate cost is $2 per acre.

When using the seed protectant, four pounds per acre of Eptan could be applied to the corn without expectation of corn injury. Without the protectant, the recommended rate of Eptan would be three pounds per acre.

Other promising herbicides for shattercane control in corn are Sutan at four pounds per acre and Sutan plus Atrazine at 3 plus one pound per acre.

How and when can boxelder bugs be controlled?

They can be controlled in the fall or early spring when they congregate on the south or west side of a home or during the summer if you can find where they are breeding. During the summer, they're usually on boxelder, maple, or ash trees. Spraying with Sevin, chlordane, or diazinon, will probably be the most effective control measure, although stopping them completely is difficult.

When is the best time to inspect the iron plug in a plow?

Place the iron plug in the trunk of the tree before the leaves begin to set on. This would probably be about the first of May. Should areas of the lawn that had grubs last year be treated with chlordane this year, and will these same areas have grubs again this year?

A treatment of chlordane should be effective in controlling grubs. However, some grubs have three year cycles and may not be completely eradicated in one year. If you had grubs in your lawn last year, they will probably be back this year.

How should a climbing rose be trimmed?

Cut all of the dead wood off the rose immediately, but do not trim it down until after it blooms. How should everbearing strawberries be cared for in the spring? Should they be mulched?

They should be mulched during the winter. However, if they have not been mulched, they should have straw put around them until the berries are off of the ground at least a few inches.

Are there any hardy varieties of boxwood available in this area?

Yes, the Korean boxwood is hardy in this climate.

Time to Declare War on Crabgrass, Foxtail

Many home lawns have been treated for preemergence control of crabgrass and foxtail. The question arises now, is it too late to apply preemergence chemicals for lawn weed control?

There's still plenty of time! Normally, effective applications can be made in south-eastern Nebraska anytime prior to early May, which is usually the start of crabgrass and foxtail germination. In northwest Nebraska effective control is obtained from applications made in mid to late May.

Actually, preemergence chemicals used late in the spring are most likely to give effective control of crabgrass and foxtail during late July and August. Materials applied early could be reduced in effectiveness when needed most.

Proper lawn preparation and application are just as important as chemical choice for effective preemergence lawn weed control. Start by removing all excess dead grass, trash and leaves from the lawn. Next apply the preemergence product as directed. Distribute evenly. Double coverage at half rate in two directions assures more uniform distribution than a full rate applied in one direction. Finally, water the chemical into the soil. Watering moves the material down where it can perform the intended job on germinating weed seeds.

Exhilaration of Plowing First Round

A farmer may have been in the field for several weeks, yet somehow that seemed to be only preparatory and testing work. Only when the black, shiny slabs of sod push the brown axle grease from the plow tays does the field work really begin. From now on there is little time for rest until after harvest in the fall.

You have a great feeling of exhilaration while making that first round around the field. Plowing is to be one of the few uncomplicated, unscientific jobs left in farming. Just set the plow at the desired depth, pull the lever to put it in the ground and open up the tractor throttle. And hope it opens up far enough. Depending on the lay of the ground, some farmers make round corners when plowing and some make square corners. No farmer with any foresight would intentionally make a dead furrow running down a side hill.

Logical Remedies

Progressively, during the years, you've learned how to avoid this by contours, round corners and other logical remedies. And you've forgotten how much there was to learn about making round corners until you hired Zeke, a man from town, to help with the plowing.

Radiofrequency Used To Eliminate Insects

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—A large number of stored-grain insects can be controlled in all developmental stages with high-frequency electric fields, providing a non-chemical means of control. However, research is continuing in an effort to make the process more efficient, to lower costs which currently are higher than chemical fumigation.

This situation was outlined by Dr. Stuart Nelson, Agricultural Research Service, USDA, in a talk delivered before the annual meeting of the Mid-Central Section, American Society of Agricultural Engineers here April 7.

Dr. Nelson, a research investigations leader stationed at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, said the insects are killed when they are exposed to intense radiofrequency (RF) fields; in a technique called selective dielectric heating. Dielectric heating refers to the absorption of energy by relatively poor conductors of electricity exposed to RF fields. (The same process uses higher frequencies, is microwave heating, coming into increased use in institutional and home cooking and baking elements.)

Researchers are seeking to determine the influence of dielectric properties of various grains on the efficiency of RF insect control methods, Nelson continued. The dielectric properties which affect the heating rate of materials in an RF field—have been measured for wheat and for some insects, he reported.

As an example, studies of the dielectric properties of adult rice weevils and wheat have shown tentatively that the most promising frequency range is between five and 100 MHz (million cycles per second). Dielectric properties of grain and insects are also dependent upon moisture content and temperature, Nelson said.

The process does not damage wheat for milling and baking purposes, the USDA researcher pointed out. Germination is not adversely affected by the RF control method, he said.
