5-Inch Downpour Washes Fields, Roads

Winside area was among the hardest hit by the torrents of rain which fell during the night Tuesday, 4.18 inches being recorded during the downpour, which lasted about an hour, and an additional .78 inch falling throughout the night for a total of nearly five inches.

Winside farmers were busy Wednesday morning checking out the damage in the fields and shaking their heads over the hours of work piled up with the debris littering their farm places.

According to Mrs. Louie Wilfers, there has never been so much water around their place for a mile and a half south of Winside. Feed bunks and fences were washed away and water was over the top of the road on the bottom south of their place.

On the Robert Jensen farm, two miles west of town, fences were taken out and there was considerable washing in the fields. The old highway running south of their farm was under water for an entire mile, and Mrs. Jensen said lots of telephone poles and railroad ties and other debris were floating around.

In town, the N. L. Dittman apartment house on the west end of Main Street was evacuated about 7 p.m. for about a half-hour. Breakin Occurs In Carroll Bar; Window Broken

A breakin at the V & L Bar at Carroll early Tuesday morning at about 3 a.m. apparently was thwarted by a late-working Carroll resident.

Jack Kavanaugh, whose trucking firm is located across the street from the bar, was putting his truck-tractor into his building when he noticed the large plate glass window in the V & L was broken.

Thinking it could have been blown in by the severe wind earlier in the night, Kavanaugh called the owner, Vernon Schnoor.

Kavanaugh then saw someone climb out of the window and run around to the rear of the building. Kavanaugh tried to chase them with his truck-tractor, but failed to find any trace of anyone.

Investigation by Wayne County Sheriff Don Weible revealed footprints at the rear door. It was not immediately known how the men made their escape.

According to Schnoor, the window was valued at $250. He did not believe anything was missing inside the bar.

In looking over the damage, Schnoor noted that this was the third breakin in seven years.

Travelers Invited To a 'Coffee Break'

Many tragic accidents on Memorial Day are caused by drivers who have become overtired and "foggy" by too many hours on the road.

Signs welcoming travelers to take a driving break and have a cup of free coffee will be installed on Highway 35 coming into Wayne from both the east and west.

Lou Ann Dunklau Valdictorian

Lou Ann Dunklau and Kurt Lesh were named as Wayne High's valdictorian and salutatorian Monday night at commencement exercises at Rice Auditorium on the WSC campus.

Miss Dunklau, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alder Dunklau, and Lesh, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lesh, also were among 11 other honor students cited for their scholastic ability.

During the program, Dr. Phillip R. Heckman, president of Doane College, told the graduates that there is a difference between graduation, and graduation.

"The difference lies in the comma," he explained.

"For many students here, the word graduation will be followed with a comma because some students will go on learning."

"But for others this graduation will end with a period. Some of you will quit trying to learn and just be satisfied with where you are."

Dr. Heckman, introduced by Supt. F. R. Ham, pointed out to the graduates that living is learning and when you cease to learn, you cease to live.

In an example of a Frenchman and a bicycle, Dr. Heckman explained the need to keep striving to learn.

"A French bicyclist once entered a race in Europe. Although he finished last, he still continued to enter various races each year in hopes of winning. But he would always finish last."

The amazing thing, he continued, is that this Frenchman would continue with the same attitude that he would catch up with the group and win the race.

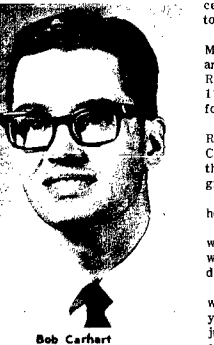

"Even when the Frenchman was hit by a truck and on the verge of death, he still wanted to continue in the race."

You have to keep striving, he told the seniors, for there is no limit to your learning capacity. "Man hasn't yet reached his learning capacity."

Dr. Heckman explained that after high school he caught a "terrible disease" when working.

"That disease was curiosity and I hope I never find a cure."

T. Foote Injured In Tractor Upset

A tractor accident Monday evening on the Melvin Coulter farm, Route 1, Winside, put 66-year-old Ted Foote in the hospital with a broken left arm, lacerations on the arm and neck and bruises on the left leg.

Foote, who was working in the feedlot with the tractor, was pinned beneath the loader when the tractor upset, about 5:30 p.m. Coulter called the Wayne Ambulance Service, and with the aid of Dr. Robert Bentback and neighbors, Foote was freed and brought to Wayne. Dr. Bentback treated the patient, and because of the severity of the crush-type injury to the arm, had him transferred to St. Luke's Hospital, Sioux City.

It is not yet certain what the extent of the injury to the arm will be, though Bentback noted that Foote was in good condition and could be expected home in a week or 10 days.

'A Whole New Ball Game'

The Rev. Robert Haas told the Wayne High School seniors that, for a theme, beginning now, "it's a whole new ball game."

Rev. Haas, minister of the United Presbyterian Church, was the main speaker for baccalaureate services held Sunday afternoon at the Wayne City Auditorium.

"For some of you, it's the end of the line as far as formal education is concerned, for others, it is only another step completed. But for all of you, it is actually only the beginning," Rev. Haas told the graduates, adding "the word 'commencement' used for such occasions doesn't mean the end or completion, but refers to the beginning—it's a whole new ball game."

Rev. Haas chose "Nothing But a Stick" as his sermon topic, referring to the story where Jesus gathered his disciples and told them to go into the villages of Palestine and proclaim the message of good news.

"Take nothing for your journey but a stick," Jesus told them, the disciples to depend on others to feed them and give them shelter and the stick only for support and to lighten off animals. Thus, Jesus put those disciples "on their own."

Making a similarity, Rev. Haas pointed out that "for 12 or 13 years you have been guided and instructed during a time of preparation. Now life offers you a challenge and, as you begin, you really have nothing but a stick, yet this stick is both the limited knowledge and the limited experience of life that you have had to this point.

"Limited knowledge and experience will be broadened. You See NEW GAME, page 7.

Out at second... Wakefield's Shortstop Kevin Peters tries to slide into second Monday but Omaha Gross Second baseman Tom Riha tags him for the out.

Omaha Gross Hits Wakefield En Route To Class B Crown

The mercury in Lincoln was soaring into the high 80's Monday for the second round of State Class B baseball play. But a cool Omaha Gross team scotched Wakefield, 5-1.

The Cougars opened their scoring drive in the bottom of the third inning off three of six Trojan errors that allowed Omaha to make the score 3-0.

Cougar Pitcher Jim Kanor almost eliminated Wakefield's chances for any hits with his fast ball, limiting the Trojans to three hits.

But the visiting Wakefield club managed one run in the top of the sixth to offer the team some hope of victory. Again those hopes were quickly doused when Gross came back to score two more runs in its half of the inning to put the game away.

During the sixth inning, Wakefield Coach Lynn Tomjack put in Bob Twite to relieve Pitcher Pat Starzl. But Twite gave up three walks to load the bases. Gross wasted no time in making use of the loaded bags to add two final runs off Wakefield's infield errors.

Errors did keep the Cougars running across home plate but five hits also helped, with Cougarsmen Tom Riha and Jerry Jakisch each scattering two hits.

In other Class B action, Dodge beat Superior 6-3, to advance to the finals.

Later a strong Gross team knocked off Dodge, 4-1, to take the Class B title for the second year in a row.

George Schroeder of Laurel, added a fifth-place medal in the shot put Saturday with a 50-3½ throw at the Nebraska state track and field meet at Omaha Burke to give his club a two-point total the only team in the Wayne area to get into the point standings.

Schroeder, on Friday, had placed fifth in the discus.

Keith Olson of Laurel, failed to place in the pole vault, dropping out at 124 after clearing 11-6, and teammate Bill Dalton was fourth in his heat of the 120-yard high hurdles, not good enough to qualify for the finals.

Larry Cleveland of Winslow had a 45-foot best in the shot put and 22 feet in the 180-yard low hurdles, last in his heat. Larry Weible, also of Winslow, ran a 54.5 in the 440-yard dash, but was last in a heat which saw the winner clock 49.5.

John Warner of Allen had qualified for the discus but had to pass up the competition when he was in a motorcycle-car accident Wednesday morning near the Allen school.

The other two area qualifiers were Wakefield's Dave Scheel in the triple jump and pole vault, and Randy Jensen in the high jump. No information was available on their performances.

Allen Girls Take Meet at Wakefield

The Allen Jr. High girls track team took first place in the meet held at Wakefield recently.

To win the trophy, the girls scored 75 points placing first in all but four events. In the contest Winslow was second, followed by Wakefield and Wynot.

The Allen girls placing first were Jay Kjer, long jump; Karl Erwin, hurdles; JoAnn Roberts received two firsts—one in the 50 and in the 100-yard dash; Lori Erwin, the 440-yard dash; Karl Erwin, the 660-yard dash and Grace Ann Lauschen, threw the discus 76 feet to receive her first place ribbon. The relay team of Lori Erwin, Lori Von Minden, Karl Erwin and JoAnn Roberts received first in the 440 relay.

Wildkits Claim Seventh in the World

Seventh place in the world—that's what the Wayne State women's softball team can claim after the College World Series last weekend at Omaha.

This is not to be confused with the NCAA College World Series for major university men's baseball teams next month in Omaha.

The women's World Series brought 16 teams, including one from Tokyo, Japan, which finished a close second to champion Arizona State.

Third-place Western Illinois had beaten Wayne's girls, 12-4, in the first round, Thursday. Then the Wildkits bounced back with a 10-6 verdict over Minot State, N. D., Friday afternoon and a 15-0 trouncing of Keene State, N. H., that evening.

That put Wayne against Central Illinois Saturday morning, and the shutout went the other way this time, the Illinois coeds winning, 10-0.

Coach G. I. Willoughby, far from unhappy, noted that Central Illinois finished fourth, and she proudly believed her girls went about "as far as they could go" in the strong field of 16 teams. Northern Colorado placed fifth, South Dakota State sixth, and Coach Willoughby counted them both strong.

Tom Fulkerson was Wayne's top batter with a .500 performance in four games.

Mary Gerken pitched in all four games, started three of them. She needed relief in the final outing from Mary O'Connor, and she relieved O'Connor in the second game.

Emery Chosen Most Valuable in Tennis

Mich Emery is the choice of Wayne State tennis teammates as most-valuable player this year.

The NAIA Nebraska singles champion, Omaha, also was elected co-captain for next year with Dave Lulow of Bellevue, Ohio.

Emery, a sophomore, and Lulow, a freshman, both went through Wayne's dual season undefeated, 7-0, and they lost only one of seven doubles matches. Lulow's twin brother, Don, had a 3-4 dual chart.

Al Roth, senior from Bancroft, posted a winning record of 4-2 as the team won four, lost three duals and finished second in the NAIA district meet.

Stanton Grad Makes Varsity Rowing Team

Coast Guard Cadet James R. Woepfel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford C. Woepfel of Route 1, Pilger, is a member of the varsity rowing team at the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn., recent first place winners in the Cypress Gardens Regatta in Florida.

He is a 1969 graduate of Stanton High School.

Athletics Vital in College Education

Intercollegiate athletics plays a vital role in college education, Chadron State president Edwin Nelson told athletic officials attending a District 11 NAIA workshop at Hastings College last Thursday and Friday.

Representing Wayne State were Dr. LeRoy Simpson, Del Stoenberg, Dr. Ralph Barclay, Dr. Ed Elliott, Roger Bentley and Dick Manly.

Dr. Nelson suggested several benefits of athletics: citizenship development, promotion of the institution, a unifying focus for the students and alumni.

Financing athletics is a growing problem, Dr. Nelson said, especially with the increase in women's sports. But the answer is not to cut funds for athletics, rather to find new sources of money.

Athletic directors, coaches, faculty athletic representatives and publicity directors attending the workshop about 50 of them discussed ways to strengthen athletics in the 10 Nebraska colleges which participate in the National Association of Intercollegiate.

Charles Morris, from the NAIA office in Kansas City, cited the growth of NAIA from its 1938 origin as a basketball tournament to the present membership of some 555 colleges sponsoring Pitchee Charlie Solano, Sidney, has batted .250, including two homers, while compiling a 5-1 mound mark, 44 strikeouts and 45 1/3 innings and a .278 ERA.

Kevin Peterson of Harlan, Ia., has pitched a 1-1 chart and a 1.35 ERA in 33 1/3 innings. The Wayne pitching staff has a 2.13 ERA and a notable statistic in the low ratio of 109 walks given to 244 strikeouts.

Third baseman Steve Heying of Granville, Ia., rates second in hitting at .355, followed by these regulars: Ray Miller, Omaha, Ia., .283; George Jones, Omaha, .276; Marty Golig, Tekamah, .258; Ray Nelson, Sioux City,

Johnson Speaks to Graduates Sunday At Wakefield High's Baccalaureate

Several hundred persons were present at Wakefield High School's baccalaureate services Sunday afternoon to hear the Rev. Robert V. Johnson speak on "Life's Priorities." Rev. Johnson asked graduates, "Who are you?" and proceeded to list 10 priorities: In life, life, work, graduation, friends, citizens, single-minded, child-parent, white, male-female, believer and finally, person. Johnson explained how each pertained to the graduates and to the audience as well.

The program was held at the elementary school auditorium. Kirk Gardner and Brenda Karsmark, from the junior classes, served as ushers for the graduating seniors. The processional was played by Kathy Bressler, and the recessional by Stullen Sundell. The Rev. Fred Jansson gave the invocation and benediction.

already have experienced the fact of interdependence, realizing that one person alone has an impossible time.

"That stick also has another feature, the knowledge of individuality—our talents, purposes and uniqueness. Another ingredient that should be part of this stick is memory.

"Our tendency is to have short memories when it comes to the love and concern of others, who have helped us along the way, memory helps to tell us from where we came, and can help give direction to where we are going.

"The road ahead has many opportunities, many challenges, many pitfalls. You will know which is which after you have experienced each one in turn."

Rev. Haas concluded with "Remember the stick, that it be built strong, and that its ingredients will be faith in God, the creator and redeemer, an individuality that only you can continue to develop, a sense of interdependence, that others are there who can help and whom you can serve, and lastly, memory or a sense of history so that you can determine your future wisely."

Participating in the service, sponsored by the Wayne Ministerial Association, were the music department at Wayne High School and the Revs. Frank Kirtley, First United Methodist; S.K. DeFrees, Redeemer Lutheran; Paul Borley, St. Mary's Catholic; Marvin Bramman, Assembly of God; Robert Swanson, First United Methodist and Doniver Peterson, St. Paul's Lutheran.

Smith-Corona: the graduation gift to help make sure there's another graduation.

Congratulations. It's not every day your son becomes a Freshman in college. And you know, of course, the work is going to get a lot tougher from here on.

Which is why a Smith-Corona makes an ideal graduation gift - it can help for the next few years of school.

With spelling, for instance. Because a typed word that's misspelled looks misspelled and just asks to be corrected.

Our electric portable can save time too, since a student can learn to type twice as fast as he can write by hand. Creative thoughts can't slip away either, because a typewriter really listens to the student - accepts every idea as fast as it's thought up.

This can hold up to organization. When that happens, confidence and self-esteem can't be far behind.

And the right amount of application and ability, your student can be on an easier path toward next graduation.

But why Smith-Corona? Because all typewriters are not the same, that's why. We invite you to compare a Smith-Corona with any other typewriter to prove it.

Compare durability, portability, features. Compare years of experience in making typewriters (especially electric portables).

Then remember that Smith-Corona is the only completely American-made portable, and you'll know why more people in the world buy Smith-Corona Electric Portables than any other.

And why you should, too. Our dealers are in the Yellow Pages.

SMITH-CORONA. We think we make better students. We know we make better typewriters.

World War I Planes Making Comeback

WASHINGTON—The ghosts of aviation's infancy spread fabric-covered wings and ride the sky once more.

After a winter's hibernation, biplanes, triplanes and other relics of World War I resume chasing each other's tails in mock dog fights to thrill weekend crowds at private airfields.

The acrid smell of cordite mingles with the aroma of hot dogs as blank-firing Newport, Fokkers, Spads, Rumplers and Sopwith Camels twist and turn above the picketing spectators.

Wood-and-linen aircraft of the 1915-18 era would no longer be flyable, so the stunting fighters are reconstructions. Original parts, including 55-year-old motors, are used in many of the rebuilt warplanes, the National Geographic Society says.

Ancient LeRhone rotary engines, burning a mixture of castor oil and gasoline, give the air meets a distinctive fragrance. The Old Rhinebeck Aerodrome, in the Hudson Valley some 75 miles north of New York City, has been staging vintage plane shows for the past 13 summers. The Flying Circus Aerodrome, in Virginia about 45 miles southwest of Washington, D. C., first took to the air last year.

In April, the Smithsonian Institution in Washington opened a display of authentic World War I planes with a detailed reconstruction of a wartime airfield. It will continue until the end of this year.

(The exhibit's two Spads include one flown by General "Billy" Mitchell. The prize of the display is a Fokker D-VII, captured intact by three American fliers who interrupted their card game to take its pilot prisoner when he landed at their forward base by mistake.

High point of the aerial displays in New York and Virginia are battles between British Sopwiths and replicas of the blood-red Fokker DR-1 flown by Baron Manfred von Richtofen. The triplane invariably loses, settling below the horizon in a plume of charcoal-dust "smoke."

Able to turn almost in its own length to shoot at any enemy behind it, or stand on its tail and riddle planes passing above, the triplane was deadly in combat. But not many saw action. The Germans stopped making the trikey little craft after it killed their best pilots.

The modern versions, which copy the original plans, also are hard to control. The Ohio man who built the Flying Circus' red Fokker crash-landed it four times. Then he sold it.

Stan Parris, the Virginia lawyer who heads the Flying Circus, describes flying the stubby, three-winged plane: "The first time I tried to turn left in the DR-1, it turned right."

The antique planes have no brakes, so pilots try to land up-hill. The Newport has so little control on the ground that men hold the wings and run it into the wind on takeoffs. Then they scattered around the field to catch its wingtips and slow it down when it lands.

Even the relatively stable Fokker D-VII was not always dependable. Edward P. Curtis, 75 who was one of its captors in 1918, recently told of his experience with the Smithsonian's Fokker.

"I flew, or tried to fly, the plane to Paris," Curtis recalled. "But the engine conked out and I had to land in a field."

NORTHEAST EXTENSION Notes

Sunbathers need to be clock-watchers. That golden tan cannot be acquired during your first day in the sun.

This summer get a suntan without suffering a painful sunburn. Begin the first day with about 15 to 20 minutes exposure on your face and back. Increase sun exposure each day by 5 to 7 minutes on each side. If exposure to sun is less frequent, only increase exposure about one-fourth the original time.

Remember painful burns can be caused by wind as well as sun. Many severe burns are gotten on cloudy days.

Protect yourself. Commercial preparations for protection against sunburn vary in their effects. Some have hardly any protecting effects; others are highly effective but may cause allergic reactions. Some have found baby oils and other products effective protectors.

Know how to treat a sunburn just in case you happen to get one. For mild sunburn cold cream or salad oils or shortenings may relieve pain. (Wash clean hands to apply it.) Medication creams may cause skin allergies. Butter or margarine are not recommended.

Apply a dressing to a sunburn if blisters appear. Medical care is needed for extensive or severe cases. Do not expose the injured area to the sun until healing is complete.

Do clock yourself in the sun. Within a short time you'll then have that beautiful golden suntan!

Socialism No Solution

Arch N. Booth, executive vice-president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, in his newsletter, "The Voice of Business," says that a speech on the national economy by a high-level government official, was largely ignored by the press.

Much of what the government official had to say was familiar to anyone who has followed the current problems of our economy. He worries about capital investment: "The situation in the important sphere of capital construction is improving, but slowly. The terms of construction are still too long."

And he is concerned, like so many others, with improving productivity. "Nor can we be quite satisfied with the results of the year with respect to the introduction of new machinery and the growth of labor productivity. The share of the increment of output due to higher labor productivity was short of the . . . targets both in industry and in construction, especially in the latter."

Looking ahead a little, he warns: "Measures for speeding up the progress of science and technology" are of "paramount importance."

So far, none of these comments is particularly startling — the same observations have been made by many American businessmen and economists in recent years. But what really surprises is the official's attitude toward organized labor.

Even though he is not usually thought of as siding with capital in labor disputes, he had some very strong words about unions:

"To be concerned for the welfare of the working people does not mean to reward all workers regardless of their contribution to production. Everywhere wages should be earned, and everyone should be fully aware that the size of these wages depends directly on his contribution to the production achievements . . .

"Trade unions, which have been invested by law with extensive rights in matters of wages, rate setting and payment scales, may help considerably, in particular, to increase the role of payment according to work done, which is a major form of material incentive.

"The delegates to the Trade Union Congress will no doubt be giving proper attention to this aspect of the matter — the need for enhancing labor discipline, for fostering conscientiousness — a working man's conscience, if you like, in every employee.

"Trade unions should also give more attention to the important matter of the mechanization of labor."

In short, here is a man who is worried about lagging capital investment; poor productivity, especially in construction; lack of progress in automation; insufficient spending on research and development; the poor attitude of the union work force, and worker wage gains in excess of productivity increases.

Now, who do you think this high-level government official is?

None other than Leonid I. Brezhnev, premier of the Soviet Union. The speech was delivered to the 15th Congress of the Soviet Trade Unions in Moscow March 20.

"Why have I spent so much time demonstrating that the world's top Communist frets about many of the same economic problems that are bothering the world's top capitalists?" Booth asks, and then answers his own question.

"Right here in the United States, there are people telling us that the cure for our economic problems is more government control of the economy.

"Economies don't come any more government-controlled than in Russia. If government control is the way to straighten out an economy, why hasn't it worked there?"

"It's something to ask your friendly neighborhood socialist the next time you see him."

Mistakes

Mistakes. Even the word sounds bad. And it is.

Not only does it look bad when it appears in print but also makes the person in charge of writing or editing a story feel twice as bad.

Not this is not excuse for allowing or creating a mistake. Although we still don't feel relieved, we do try to put our best foot forward and take the brunt of our punishment.

Deep down the staff of the paper is trying to do the best of his or her potential as a writer or editor. But occasionally mistakes do pop up.

I guess it proves one thing. We're human and fallible. But we still will keep trying to do our best.

State Making Efforts To Keep Drivers Alive

Memorial Day Weekend is a time when we honor and pay tribute to those loved ones who are no longer in our midst. Unfortunately, this particular weekend has also been synonymous with traffic deaths and injuries.

The Governor's Highway Safety Committee has been advised by Colonel James E. Kruger, commander of the Nebraska State Patrol, that he hopes to have an impact on the mounting statistics attributable to motor vehicle accidents by placing 45 additional state troopers on the roadways of Nebraska prior to the Memorial Day weekend. The 45 officers have been training with experienced officers for the past few months and will now begin solo operations.

The additional officers, coupled with the use of all available resources such as VASCAR, radar, helicopters and other fixed-wing aircraft, should play a significant role in dealing with those individuals who fall to accept their responsibility while operating motor vehicles on Nebraska roadways.

Memorial Day traffic on Nebraska's highways is expected to be heavy. Some motorists will have troubles. Knowing this, the Nebraska Department of Roads is prepared to help those who have highway problems during the three-day holiday.

Emergency service vehicles will maintain 16-hour patrol on Interstate 80. These vehicles carry emergency supplies of gasoline and oil, extra water, heavy-duty jacks, compressed air, wrenches, fire extinguishers and first-aid kits. The drivers are in radio contact with the State Patrol and the Department headquarters for help in major accidents, serious breakdowns or sudden illnesses.

A motorist in trouble should raise the hood of his car or tie a white handkerchief to his aerial. He should pull off the road as far as possible and keep his turn signals blinking. Unless a rest area or interchange is within easy walking distance, he should stay in his car. Elderly people or anyone with a heart condition should be extremely careful and not try to walk for help. Help may be slightly delayed, but it will come.

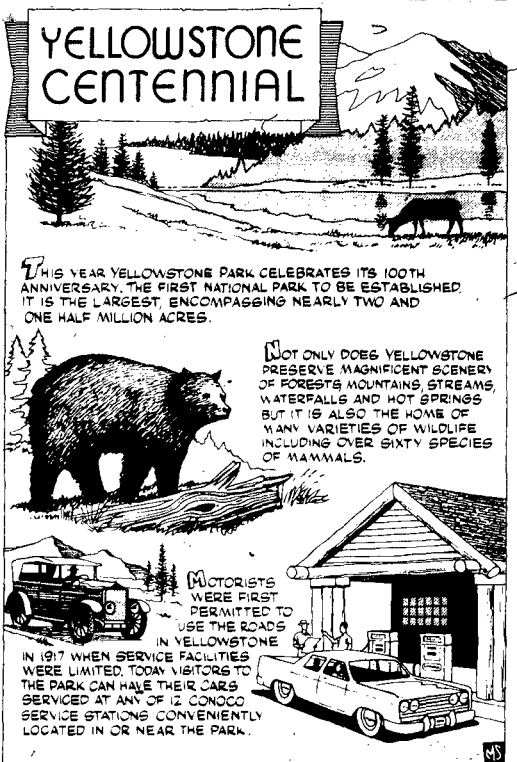

Twenty-five rest areas, plus a goodly number of roadside rest stops, are open to give drivers a break. Traffic safety experts recommend a break after every two hours at the wheel. Safety rest areas are equipped with hot and cold water, telephones, rest rooms, picnic shelters and exercise areas for people and pets.

Roadside rests have picnic tables and trash receptacles. They are usually located in shaded areas.

Several service organizations will serve free coffee and cookies at some of the safety rest areas as part of Nebraska's all-out campaign against traffic accidents. These sites are manned by volunteers who donate time and supplies without cost to the state or to the travelers.

Memorial contributions sent to the Nebraska Heart Association are devoted exclusively to research. Memorials, then, are also a way of serving the living since researchers carry on a relentless search for information that will reduce death and disability from diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

Another type of memorial, or tribute, that serves the living is, in fact, called a "living memorial." Living memorials are sent to the Heart Association to honor a significant event in a person's life. This

Feeders Up in Arms Over Fish Kill Blame

LINCOLN—On the evening of May 4 — about 10 p.m. — Allen Carsons of Norfolk got a telephone call which eventually was going to cause quite a stir. Carsons is the district biologist for the State Game Commission. His telephone caller told him there were a lot of dead fish on the shores of an Elk Horn River backwater area near Wisner called Obermeyer's Lake.

Carsons went out the next morning to investigate. He found many dead fish — he later estimated the number at about 2,500. He said he also found the oxygen content of the water in the oxbow area was zero. Carsons filed a report with his superiors in Lincoln. The report included the conclusion that heavy rains had caused runoff from livestock feedlots in the area, dumping organic matter into Obermeyer's Lake. As this decomposed, it used up the oxygen supply and the fish died, according to his report.

The biologist's report on the fish kill was mentioned at a meeting of the State Environmental Control Council the next week and a newsman asked to see a copy. The story published in the daily press caused an uproar among Cumming County feeders.

State Sen. Loran Schmit of David City, chairman of the Legislative Council's interim committee studying pollution, said later he received 50 telephone calls protesting the article because it blamed the fish deaths on feeders and named three of them specifically.

Meeting Called

Schmit called a hurried-up meeting of his committee to gather testimony about the incident. Only three of the eight committee members were on hand, but there was a large delegation of witnesses representing the state's farmers and feeders.

Such publicity, the witnesses said, is damaging to the state's largest industry. They argued that Carsons' conclusion that feedlot runoff was to blame hadn't been proved and the public was given the impression the feeder is "a dirty guy."

Carsons was called to testify and he repeated his opinion that it was runoff from nearby feedlots which killed the fish. Then, the feeder spokesmen took the stand and gave their counter arguments. Carsons was called back by Schmit and asked if he still felt the way he had.

"Yes, sir," Carsons replied. "It was possible, Carsons said, that something else was to blame, but the chances were one in thousands. "If I were to put my money behind something, it would be feedlot runoff. I've never before seen such straightforward evidence," he said.

'Bum Rap'

A parade of feeder witnesses, however, contended it was a bum rap. Mel Murphy, a Wisner attorney, said the three feeders in the area had been "charged, tried and convicted without a trial."

Schmit, who hadn't attempted to disguise his sympathy with the feeders, said at the conclusion of the hearing that he hadn't been convinced by Carsons' testimony.

"I don't challenge your integrity or your sincerity," the senator said, "but I disagree with your conclusions." Schmit said Carsons had shown he was "a man of courage" to appear before the "somewhat hostile crowd" and maintain his stand.

Schmit said the committee would study the three hours of testimony it received and make a decision about what, if anything, should be done. "I think it's clear, however, that the $1 billion livestock industry shouldn't be endangered by $300 worth of fish or even $300,000 worth of fish," Schmit said.

No 'Indictment'

Director Willard Barbee of the State Game Commission said his agency wasn't attempting to "indict" the livestock industry. He said the only intent was to investigate a report that a large number of fish had been killed.

Carsons said he had no idea when he filed his report that the conclusions would make front page news in some papers.

The feeders — including some of the largest in Cumming and Stanton Counties and officials of several farmer and livestock associations — said they were concerned that such news stories could give the industry a bad name and force more stringent anti-pollution standards.

They argued that the costs of building structures to handle feedlot runoff were higher than most individual feeders could afford — or would be willing to pay.

In fact, they testified, the industry probably would just fold up if it were forced to spend the money necessary to build structures which couldn't be guaranteed to do the job.

Bankers told the committee they aren't willing to make loans for such construction because the structures aren't considered good collateral.

Memorials Used Exclusively for Research

The dictionary defines "memorial" as "that which serves to perpetuate the memory of something."

That "something" is usually the memory of a loved one. Friends and relatives send memorials to the Nebraska Heart Association in the name of the departed. This is especially true as Memorial Day approaches.

Memorial contributions sent to the Nebraska Heart Association are devoted exclusively to research. Memorials, then, are also a way of serving the living since researchers carry on a relentless search for information that will reduce death and disability from diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

Another type of memorial, or tribute, that serves the living is, in fact, called a "living memorial." Living memorials are sent to the Heart Association to honor a significant event in a person's life. This might be a birthday, an anniversary or, at this time of the year, recognizing a person who is graduating from high school or college.

Memorials that pay tribute to someone's academic achievement are truly meaningful since they not only recognize the individual's accomplishment but provide funds to a dedicated researcher who may find a clue that will unlock the door to understanding diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

This clue may provide the knowledge that will lengthen the graduate's life and thus extend the opportunity to utilize that education and talent.

Persons living in Wayne County wishing to know more about the Nebraska Heart Association's Memorial Giving Program may find out by contacting Mrs. Ed Kollath at Houtins.

The company adopted the new affirmative action program in compliance with federal regulations requiring government contractors to prepare such plans, and to establish within them definite goals and timetables for progress in equal employment.

The company filed the plan with the Federal Communications Commission, under a separate requirement of that body. Nurnberger emphasized that the com-

Nebraska Has 'Anti-Bald' Tire Regulations

Federal regulations require all passenger car tires manufactured since Aug. 1, 1968, to have built-in tread wear indicators. Commonly called "wear bars," these warnings appear as smooth bands across the tread face when the tire has worn down to 1/16 inch groove depth, and has become unsafe.

"Studies show tires cause less than one per cent of all highway accidents," Ormsby explained, "but in more than half of these cases the tires were bald or worn to the cord. And studies also show a tire in this condition is 44 times more likely to suffer disablement than a new tire."

Ormsby added, "Naturally we hope the other states will consider adopting specific tire safety regulations, following the industry and government guidelines for minimum safe tread depth."

"But I repeat, any state already banning dangerous tires must follow through with more than token enforcement if we're going to have safer highways."

Two Area Students To Receive Degrees

Two residents of Wakefield, Janice Hammer and Marlon Geewee, will receive a bachelor of science in medical technology degree from the University of Nebraska Sunday, May 28. University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner will confer a total of 296 degrees at the ceremony in the Music Hall of the Omaha Civic Auditorium.

The bachelor of science in physical therapy and associate of science in nursing degrees are being awarded by Nebraska for the first time this year. Both degrees required two years of study on the Medical Center campus, with the bachelor of science in physical therapy requiring at least two years of previous collegiate study.

Janice is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Geese and Marlon is the daughter of Mrs. Hans Geewe. Both are 1968 graduates of Wayne High School. Janice attended the University of South Dakota and the University of Nebraska at Omaha. Marlon attended Midland College.

calves on farms all around us where there were none a few years ago.

An Arkansas report shows good returns for what seems to us heavy pasture fertilization. Our agronomists have shown the value of adequate, correct pasture fertilization and weed control. Improved pasture management—which also includes proper grazing rates and systems—offers a good chance for many farmers to increase their profits. Visit with our agronomists and your county agent about this opportunity.

Arkansas reports daily gains of 2.53 pounds with high moisture milo stored whole in a trench silo and ground before feeding as stlage and 2.19 pounds when it was ground before storing in a trench silo; feed conversion was better too, 11½ pounds feed per pound gain with whole stored milo, 12½ with ground. They said, "There was very little mold in the material fed and no visual difference could be detected."

Results of storing high moisture whole shelled corn in a trench have been about 100 per cent failure due to spoilage from air moving through the corn as soon as the trench is opened. There must be enough cracked grain in milo to prevent this free air movement.

Perhaps we could store mixed whole and ground shelled corn satisfactorily in a plastic-covered trench. Another idea, advanced by Lowell Welzenkamp of Scribner, is to mix enough damp roughage with whole high moisture ground ear corn packed well keeps okay and is excellent feed. Please let me know of any successful experiences in storing whole high moisture shelled corn in trenches, bunkers or piles. We found rapid gains of helters during the early growing period were not required to make the cattle grade when finished. The helters we just marketed that were grown on a ration of corn silage and five pounds of about 50 per cent moisture alfalfa haylage and minerals gained 1/10-pound less daily than those grown on corn silage and a protein, mineral, vitamin supplement; 1.74 pounds daily, compared to 1.85.

But after an equal 123-day finishing period, the helters fed the alfalfa during the growing period actually had a little higher quality grade with less waste than those grown faster. Feed required per pound gain for the total time we had them was equal. These light yearling helters growing more slowly (with alfalfa in the ration) were not able to gain enough faster during the finishing period to make their total gain quite equal to those gaining more rapidly (silage and concentrate supplement ration) during the early growing period.

Several of our tests, starting with steer calves, have shown that calves grown with silage and a concentrate supplement have gained enough more rapidly and economically during the finishing period to equal in total gain, of growing and finishing, and exceed in economy, calves grown on the same ration plus three or six pounds corn grain daily.

We are on some "far out" feeding tests. We have found, in three separate tests, the rate of gain and feed conversion of high moisture corn stored ground less satisfactory than with the same corn stored whole. We are trying three "anti-acid" feed additives to see if we can correct the high acid digestion which we think may be the fault of this high moisture corn stored ground. The additives we are trying are bicarbonate of soda, bentonite (a clay) and ground limestone.

Plans and preparations are going ahead for another beef market study this year. The live cattle will be judged for quality grade and yield grade at Iowa Beef Processors' pens at Dakota City, Saturday, July 22. On Monday, July 24, live estimates will be checked against carcass results.

Cattle which show differences have been selected at three feedlots in Thurston County. They were ear tagged and weighed and outcome forecast by owners and neighbor feeders. Similar selection meetings and studies are planned in Wayne, Dixon and Dakota Counties after corn planting. These cattle are returned to the usual feedlot system and then will be brought together July 22 at the market for further comparison and study.

Speed Cuts Down Planter Efficiency

LINCOLN—Nebraska farmers getting back in the field to plant corn following a prolonged wet spell, were urged by University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural engineers this week to avoid trying to make up lost time by increasing ground speed of the planter.

Farmers are caught in a squeeze, College of Agriculture specialists point out, as yield losses can be chalked up for each day of delay beyond optimum planting dates. At one time, May 15 was an "ideal" date for corn planting in many parts of the state, but development of high-yielding, early-maturing varieties has pushed corn planting dates up earlier over recent years. Near-record wet spells in parts of eastern Nebraska are causing some second thoughts by farmers as to whether soybeans or sorghum may be a better bet than corn, they added.

The efficiency of planters or tillage decreases as the ground speed increases, according to Dr. Howard Wittmus, NU agricultural engineer. Plant population is affected because ground speed influences the number of "doubles"—two kernels dropped instead of one, he explained.

Random losses within a row do not greatly affect yields, Dr. Wittmus said, but large "skips" are particularly damaging. "This indicates poor planting techniques," the NU ag engineer said. "Skips in the row are caused by drying out of the seed bed, seed sticking to the packer wheels, crusting and improper planter adjustment. Heavy crusting is likely with high temperatures following on the heels of the wet spell, he said.

Wittmus urged farmers to take as long as necessary to recheck the calibration of planting equipment. While farmers undoubtedly check equipment to see if it is in good working order before beginning the planting operation, it should be rechecked after several days of planting, he advised.

"Most studies show that it is necessary to plant 10 to 15 per cent more seeds than the desired final plant population per acre," Wittmus noted. "Plants are lost in a variety of ways: natural enemies such as worms, birds and gophers take their toll. Torrential rains which bury corn plants, the cultivator and other tillage operations are occasional problems."

Wittmus recommended the use of the planting monitor, a relatively new device which assures more efficient planter operation. It keeps track of seed count and notifies the operator if the equipment is malfunctioning or stopped up. It is now available from most farm equipment distributors, he concluded.

Special Training Program Offered

Youths 14 to 16 years of age are restricted from doing many farm jobs on farms other than their parent's farm. These restrictions have been made by the Department of Labor. Included in these restrictions is the operation of a tractor of over 20 pto horsepower.

However, with special training these youth can receive exemption certificates which will exclude them from these restrictions.

As part of the 4-H Youth Program, the county extension agents in northeast Nebraska will present a training program on June 6, 8 and 9 which will meet these requirements. The course will be given at the Northeast Nebraska Technical College in Norfolk from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Those interested in receiving this training or needing more information should contact their local county extension agent. Registrations should be completed as soon as possible.

There is a $6.25 registration fee payable in advance. This fee covers the cost of three noon meals.

If a boy or girl will be 14 this summer he or she is eligible to take the training also.

Those completing the training will have an opportunity to obtain the Nebraska tractor drivers license as part of the training.

AMMONIA LOSS

When direct ammonia losses from soil occur, generally one of the following is the cause: (1) faulty application equipment, (2) incomplete closure of the injection channel, or (3) application is made too near the soil surface.

Faulty application equipment may be associated with gaseous leaks very near the soil surface—one knife running shallow while others run at an adequate depth, or unequal distribution of ammonia to each knife making the application through one knife excessively high.

Incomplete closure of the injection channel is usually a factor of soil moisture conditions. Optimum soil conditions can be described as a moist, friable soil which readily closes behind the applicator knife with or without the aid of closing devices. Ideal conditions for diskless plowing are also good soil conditions for application. When knife slits do not close properly, often the cause is high soil moisture.

Shallow application will allow some gaseous ammonia to be absorbed very near the soil surface. Some of the ammonia is retained in the soil moisture which upon drying will lose ammonia.

Excellent weather conditions this spring have encouraged any-drous application before soil conditions in some cases became ideal.

DANDELIONS

A few scattered dandelion plants in a lawn can be effectively controlled by digging. However, dig deep—at least five to six inches. The plant will be back if you simply cut at the crown level. Control of scattered plants can be done also by spot treating. Sprinkle them with a few 2,4-D granules or "paint-on" a weed killer using the can and brush method. When you "paint-on" the weed killer, mix the 2,4-D at the rate suggested for spray applications.

If you treat your entire lawn with 2,4-D for dandelion control, consider the use of non-pressure applicators such as gallon jugs with nozzles, hollow cane tubes and liquid sprayers. They eliminate fine droplet and mist hazards. If you use a pressure sprayer, operate it at low pressure. This assures larger droplets and less drift.

Ready to use granular formulations of lawn herbicides should be used as prescribed on the bag. Two half-rate applications made at 90 degree angles provide more uniform coverage than a single application in one direction.

Besides dandelions, 2,4-D applications made now will control shepherds-purse, plantain, knotweed and thistles. Mixtures of 2,4-D and silvex, mecoprop or dicamba are necessary for chickweed and ground ivy control. TOMATOES

Can a heavy piece of black plastic be used in mulching tomatoes?

Yes, the black plastic works very well in this situation. It helps control weeds, conserves moisture, and allows the soil to warm up better. Use about a three-foot wide piece of plastic over the area where the tomatoes are to be planted. Turn under six inches of the plastic on each side, throw dirt over the edges to anchor it and plant through the plastic.

Ketosis, displaced abomasum or breeding complications may be brought about as a direct result of feeding cows on diets lacking a proper hay ration, according to Dr. Samuel B. Guss, veterinarian with the Pennsylvania State University.

Tree Planting Investment Insurance

After properly planting a tree this spring, certain precautions should be taken to insure your investment. Most purchases made by the homeowner promptly decrease in value as tree increases in value each growing season.

Support a new tree and protect it from prevailing winds. A two-inch by two-inch stake is a steady support when located 6-12 inches from the trunk (avoid roots or root ball) and driven 20 inches into the ground. Discarded nylon stockings, or wire passed through old sections of garden hose can be used to anchor a tree to the stake.

Balled and burlaped evergreens and container grown stock should also be staked to prevent winds from blowing the plant and rupturing the root ball. Stakes cannot be driven in a root ball, therefore, three stakes placed equidistant from the tree should form a triangle around the plant. The stakes should be far enough away from the tree so that guide wires passing through hose around the tree trunks will form a 45 degree angle with the trunk. See TREE PLANTING, page 5

A Harvestore Automated Feeding System Means

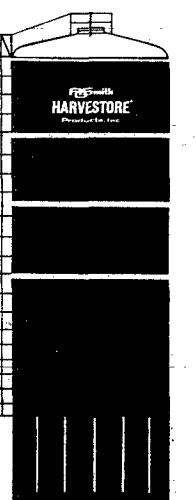

NO MORE HAY BALES

Why bale hay? It's back-breaking labor. It costs you money. And there is a better way. The Harvestore way! Feed an automated Harvestore feed processing system you can harvest alfalfa early in the bud stage, when it's most nutritious.

With Harvestore storage, you can mow and windrow the crop one day, chop it and blow it into your Harvestore the next. You beat the weather. And you save more of the leaves. You get a more nutritious, more palatable feed. Supplement costs may be drastically reduced.

No more hay bales. Less field loss. Less weather risks. Less labor. Less handling. Plus push button, top-filling, bottom unloading feeding. Add it up. Why bale hay?

Ask your Harvestore dealer for details.

Detergents No Herbicide Substitution

LINCOLN—Detergents or wetting agents used in connection with herbicide applications are no substitute for the herbicides themselves in achieving weed control.

This warning comes from University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension agronomists John D. Furrer and Alex Martin.

"The agricultural chemical market is witnessing an unparalleled influx of entries from soap, detergent and cleaning supply enterprisers," the agronomists stated. They said numerous advantages are claimed in the use of each product, including reduced amounts of chemicals required for weed control, improved performance from spray equipment, and combining of normally incompatible products.

"One thing is clear, none of the detergent or wetting agent products will permit a reduction in the amount of herbicide required for pre-emergence weed control," the NU specialists emphasized.

"It users apply less pre-emergence weed killer than the minimum recommended by the manufacturer, results are bound to be disappointing."

The role of wetting agents and detergents applied with herbicides is to facilitate coverage of plants and form a film on the leaves for a residual effect from the chemicals, rather than the materials running off slick leaf surfaces before action can take place.

As protein is not stored in the body, protein foods should be included in every meal

Farmers Have Better Things to Do

Seems like the entire country is in a complete chaos. There are public riots, political assassinations, collegiate unrest and, in general, absolute disharmony. Most of it seems to be caused by the protesting of wars. No one agrees with nor likes war. And there are few, if any, anywhere who understand the situation behind the crisis. Perhaps it's for our own good that we don't understand it.

Nonetheless, we do have war. And we have always had some sort of a war going on somewhere in the world.

Perhaps those who are sitting behind the big desks and issuing all the orders haven't always acclaimed them as a war. Some were called "police actions" or "peace actions." But a war is a war and we still have one going on.

No one in his right mind would want our country to look like some of the pictures that we see of other countries where they are fighting these wars. Why, our little towns wouldn't even merit a very big bomb to eliminate them from the map.

And what are we, the farmers, doing about all this disagreement and protesting? Nothing. That is, besides honorably serving when called, voting, paying taxes and minding our own business while the President tries to run the country.

We're too busy working. Well, a few farmers did go to Washington and had a king-sized fondue. But they had to get home and get to work. They didn't have time to loiter around the parks and federal buildings for weeks.

Nor did they have time to build tents and shacks. Besides, why should they? Those farmers had a far better place to live in at home.

Most farmers have worked too hard for too many years in order to have the best of modern living and conveniences.

A different sign in protesting. And maybe they don't want to either. Perhaps it's a good thing. Their radical way of doing things keeps others more alert toward right and wrong.

Yet, that's part of what democracy is all about too, isn't it? But the fact remains that far too many fine young men have died heroically that we might not know the horrors of war. While most of the rioters, TV newscasters and headlines seem to emphasize that these young men died in vain, they have the facts all wrong.

Memorial Day

And, come Memorial Day, in practically every town in this area, you'll be able to see a few of those from this area who have fought for the freedom and democracy of the land they love.

Perhaps their respective programs won't have the correct protocol as used at the White House or Arlington National Cemetery. Perhaps they won't all be in step when they march to the graves of their comrades.

Perhaps their uniforms won't all match. Perhaps their guns won't all fire in the salute.

Salt-of-the-earth

But then this is a farming, salt-of-the-earth area. We see things differently. This is where men appreciate the soil. And they are willing to fight for it. And most of them have fought for it.

And many of them have died for it.

Just because we live in a "hick" town or on a farm doesn't mean that we aren't part of the democracy or any less a citizen.

It is also a fact that we don't make a very big dent in the total amount of political votes for the nation. This is one of the areas where a second man is usually sent because there aren't enough people or votes here to merit time out for the Number One national campaigner.

But would we want it to be otherwise? Of course not.

Same Aims

But they will all be aiming with the same sincerity, dedication, humility, thankfulness and reverence toward their fellow man.

If those who are questioning the sincerity of our faith in our country and our support of our boys in service would open-mindedly attend one of these services, maybe they would view things from a different viewpoint. Maybe they would carry

Rigamarole

Why be bothered with all that false rigamarole and promises that we've already heard a dozen times before? Besides, didn't we get to vote a couple weeks ago? At least we had the chance to. And that's what the whole battle is about anyway.

The chance to do things. To worship, play, work, vote, campaign, argue, agree or to do practically anything so long as it doesn't bother Neighbor John's rights.

Or so long as it doesn't interfere with or destroy the democracy that our servicemen have fought and died for.

Then we, as farmers, might begin showing drastic signs of unrest, rioting and who knows what else.

But then we'll just stay home and work. We've got farming to do.

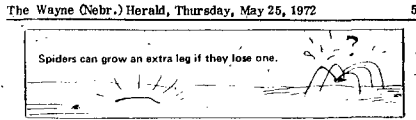

Except for a few hours on Memorial Day, that is.

Producers Abandon Separated Cream

LINCOLN—Nebraska farmers have greatly increased their gross return from the marketing of milk and cream, the increase being due, in large part, to a change from the marketing of farm-separated cream to the marketing of whole milk.

Writing in "Countryside Economics," a University of Nebraska Department of Agricultural Economics publication, Prof. T. A. Evans, Extension economist (food marketing), notes that Nebraska farmers received $5.09 per cwt. in 1971, an increase of 75 per cent over the $2.90 received in 1962.

Prof. Evans points out that this

Apple Scab Controlled by Fungicides

Over the past several years the flowering crabapple has emerged as a common tree in household plantings. However, this very beautiful ornamental is subject to a disease known as apple scab. While normally associated with apples, the disease is capable of causing severe injury on flowering crabs.

This disease is relatively easy to recognize although symptom expression will vary with the variety of tree. For instance, certain varieties will have only slight blemishes on the leaves while others have large gray spots which coalesce and cause the entire leaf to die. The fruits of these trees may also be infected which results in gray to brown, scab-like lesions. Severe infections can cause partial defoliation which weakens the trees and makes them more susceptible to winter injury and other environmental stresses. Young trees are especially prone to injury by this disease.

Control of scab should begin in the fall with removal of all plant debris. The material allows the fungus to survive the winter and then infect the tree the following spring. Early spring rains and cool weather, such as we've recently experienced, will help to spread the disease from the debris to the leaves.

Scab may also be controlled with the use of fungicides. Recommended chemicals include maneb, zineb and captan. Applications should begin in the spring, just as the leaves start to emerge and continue at 10-14 day intervals until early July. Shorter intervals may be necessary during rainy periods. The addition of a commercial wetting agent will help to insure proper coverage. If unavailable, the addition of a cupful of household detergent per gallon of water may be used.

$12,000 for House Built by Students

The house that Northeast Nebraska Tech built was sold at public auction Sunday afternoon for $12,000.

The house was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Olson, of Norfolk, who said they plan to move it to a farm northwest of Norfolk, reports Dr. Robert P. Cox, president of Northeast Nebraska Technical College.

The three-bedroom house, built by students in the construction technology class, was toured by about 200 persons during a two-hour open house. About 125 persons remained for the auction.

The proceeds from the sale will be used to buy materials for next year's construction classes, which will build two houses—one inside their present building and another on a jobsite lot.

of the tree. These should remain in place until the tree is established in its new location (1-3 years).

Most newly planted trees should also be pruned to enhance chances of survival. This is especially true for transplanted trees or bare root stock. Usually removal of at least a third of the top is necessary to balance the loss of roots. Young shoots low on the trunk, limbs growing straight up, one of two limbs growing parallel with each other, limbs growing back into the tree, and narrow angled crotches should be removed first.

A commercial tree wrap, available at most garden centers, can be wrapped around the trunk to prevent sunscald and possible borer attack. Be sure to check wrap yearly to see if it is cutting into the trunk.

Kiwanians Told of Recent Progress In the Area of Mental Retardation

Dr. Charles (Bill) Falls, state director of the Office of Mental Retardation at Lincoln, told Kiwanians Monday noon that the community-based programs, set up by LB 855 in 1968, "is an alternative to institutionalizing mentally handicapped persons with the hope of bringing those persons back into the community's mainstream."

Falls said that the community programs have "lessened the number of persons in those institutions, which are both expensive and dehumanizing, but additional centers and trained personnel are needed to reach our ultimate goal."

A budget of $1 million was appropriated this year to serve the mentally retarded and those afflicted by related disorders—pre-schoolers, school-age children who do not meet the criteria for special education and adults.

Services provided include children developmental centers; the adult level, with stress on vocational activities; residential services, including children and adult hostels; social services of case workers and counselors; manpower and in-service training, genetic counseling and research.

Falls said between 1,200 and 1,300 persons are being served by community-based programs, which in this area are located at Columbus, Norfolk and South Sioux City, with the Wayne vicinity a part of the South Sioux City region. Services are free to needy families.

Jim Hummel, Kiwanis program director, introduced Elmer Wolff, former 17th District state senator, now director of Region 4 Office of Developmental Disabilities headquartered in Wayne. Wallwey, in turn, introduced the speaker.

During the earlier business meeting, Dave Theophilus received a seven-year perfect attendance pin and new bylaws set up by Kiwanis International were adopted by the Wayne club.

Next week the Kiwanians will meet Tuesday noon because of Memorial Day, with the meeting place to be Bill's Cafe.

House Paint Problems?

NOW YOU CAN END HOUSE PAINT PEELING PROBLEMS with BIRD SOLID VINYL SIDING

Tired of Having to Repaint Your House Every 3 to 5 Years?
Colors Fade? Paint Peels?
Here's How Bird Solid Vinyl Siding Can Set You Free!

Bird Solid Vinyl Siding is truly a low-maintenance exterior surfacing. It requires no painting because it is solid color throughout. It cannot blister, peel, flake, or warp like wood... dent or corrode like metal. It is resistant to fungi, termites and vermin. It won't show scratches, won't conduct electricity and does not support fire. Bird Solid Vinyl Siding cleans easily too. Bird Solid Vinyl Siding is pleasing to the eye. Available in white, gray or green, it helps create comfortable interiors by minimizing heat penetration in summer, cold in winter and exterior sound all year 'round. The material itself is easily, quickly and safely worked with ordinary tools of the trade. The backing for Bird Solid Vinyl Siding — foam polystyrene insulation — is cemented in place. No installation delays from handling loose pieces of insulation.

● Bird Solid Vinyl Siding meets FHA requirements for exterior walls.

● Looks like Conventional Sidings - Choose from 3 Styles — Regular (Horizontal) - Vertical or Shake ● 20-Year Written Guarantee
