

Five Members Seated on Council

Three new city council members and two re-elected council members were seated on the Wayne city council Tuesday night at a special meeting.

Frank Prather, Ivan Beeks and Vernon Russell were the new members on the council while Jim Thomas and Darrel Faelberth were the council members retaining their seats.

Richard Banister, the only member of the council to be defeated in the May 9 city elections, was replaced by Prather while Beeks and Russell are the new additions, expanding the council from six to eight members.

Sherry, the new council members will receive the same salary like as the old council members adopted in the recent council meeting.

"The new council members will receive $1,000 a year with the mayor getting $1,500," Sherry said.

In a unanimous decision last week, the council voted to increase the pay of the council members from $500 to $1,000 per year.

Lightning Hits, Destroys Church

Lightning struck and destroyed the Catholic Church Sunday that served rural parishioners in the area between Ponca and Allen along Highway 9.

Firemen from Allen, Martinsburg, Ponca and Newcastle answered the call but the wooden building was burned to the ground in about an hour's time.

The landmark was built in 1920.

year while the mayor's salary was doubled from $750 to $1,500.

"The main reason for the increase," said Mayor Kent Hall, "was due to the increasing work the councilmen are having to do, both during the day and a lot of work at night."

The city council pay scale does not come under the federal wage and price laws, Mayor Hall explained, because the council and mayor are elected officials. Recently the wage laws were modified.

Sherry noted that this council as well as city councils across the nation are not restricted in the amount of salary increase.

Sherry pointed out that the council cannot raise the pay scale during the old council's present term of office. "The council can only increase the pay scale when it has a change of funds, such as the seating of new councilmen after they have been elected," he is before the members are seated that the council, he said, can vote to increase the salary of the members and mayor.

During the half-hour session, the council also voted to accept Mayor Hall's nominations for the following committees and boards:

County Fair Receives $500 Grant

The State National Bank last week received an Ak-Sar-Ben check in the amount of $500 to be deposited in an escrow account for the Wayne County Fair Improvement Fund. The grant is to be applied to the cost of the new county fairgrounds grandstand which will be known as the Al Bahe Memorial Stadium.

An escrow agreement which accompanied the check, specifies that the money be used for new construction, and that the organization making application for the grant have matching funds available. The grant may be applied for anew each year for a four-year period.

Work is being completed on the dirt mounds now. Cement footings for the proposed board seats will soon be poured. The complete structure will also feature cement steps with guard rails. No roof has been planned. Work began in May and the basic structure is scheduled for completion in time for the Wayne County Fair this August.

Total cost of the completed structure, according to Wayne County Fair Board Treasurer David Ley, will be about $11,000.

Second in Film Series Sunday Night

The second film in the Summer Information Program, sponsored by the Wayne Police Department, will be shown Sunday evening at dusk at Vliken Park, 10th and Walnut.

The first of three films Sunday, a 15-minute black and white, is entitled "A Day in the Death of Denny B," a non-narrative film showing the events in the day of a young heroin addict's life in the ghetto, especially geared for intermediates, junior high and senior high age groups, but open to all.

The second film, "Alcoholism," is 22 minutes in length and presents a case study of three types of alcoholics, tracing the development of the disorder from its origin.

The last film of the evening, "The Critical Hours: Motorcycle Safety," is in color and 24 minutes long. The experiences of a group of young men are shown as they learn the finer points of motorcycle riding. The film watches the development of basic skills and techniques and finally winds through the mountains with the boys as they complete a 200-mile road tour to Lake Arrowhead Boy Scout Camp in California.

The latter two films are aimed at those in the junior high, senior high and adult age groups.

Brandt To Head Board of Education

Irvin Brandt, dean of the school of science and technology at Wayne State College, was elected president of the District 17 Board of Education at Monday night's meeting at Wayne High School, succeeding Lynn Roberts, who resigned from the school board after 13 years of service.

Mrs. Henry (Dorothy) Ley was selected vice-president and Mrs. Jerold (Doris) Daniels was re-appointed secretary to the board.

Roberts and Dean Pierson attended their final meeting as board members. Pierson with 10 years of service, and were commended highly by Supt. Francis Haun and the other board members. The two in turn told of admiration for the caliber of the board and school administrator.

Newcomers on the board, who sat in at Monday night's session but did not become official board members until midnight Monday, were Mrs. Max (Margaret) Lundstrom and Milton Owens, the latter of Carroll.

The board approved an increase in the tuition rate from $1,150 per year to $1,750 per year, reportedly coinciding with the rates charged for each pupil in districts that include Wausie and Wakefield High Schools.

It is required by law that tuition rate-setting be made at the June meetings of school boards in Nebraska.

Supt. Haun said that 92 students were included in the tuition rate of $1,150 last year with projected to 84 students for the 1972-73 year at the $1,750 rate.

A report on salaries for the classified staff—cooks, custodians, bus drivers and secretaries—was given by the negotiating team of Brandt and Wilbur Giese. The two will continue negotiations with each department and, if an agreement is reached and those departments ratify the recommended salary schedule, they will be brought up to the board for approval at the July 3 meeting.

Also at that meeting will be a public hearing on a proposed budget for 1972-73. A "work budget" was prepared by the administrator for study by the board but each item on the preliminary draft will be discussed in detail July 3.

That budget could be adopted at the July meeting but if not, a special meeting will be necessary on or before July 20, at which time school district budgets must be adopted.

Wayne Legion, Midgets Score 2-1 Wins Over Wisner in League Season Opener

Rod Cook's double in the sixth inning provided the victory margin for the Wayne Junior Legion team Monday night as the locals slipped past Wisner, 2-1, at Wayne.

Cook's double drove in first baseman Doug Sturm to break a 1-1 deadlock, after Sturm made it to first base on an error by Wisner shortstop Koopman.

Sturm then stole second base, setting up the game-winning score.

Wayne first broke into the scoring column in the fourth inning when Mike Creighton doubled and later scored off Sturm's single.

But the Wisner club came back in the fifth to add its one run by second baseman Jay Luedtke.

A wild pitch allowed Luedtke to 'score' after he had walked and stole second base.

Tom Kerstine opened the pitching duel for Wayne but was relieved in the fifth by Roger Saul who took the win. The chuckers allowed only two hits.

Wisner's Koeblooms was the losing pitcher.

The Wayne club had two opportunities to score with the bases loaded, but the Legion team failed to capitalize.

Wayne Hits Newcastle, 5-2; Sioux City Beats Wakefield

Paul Eddie again received credit for the win as he pitched Wayne to a 5-2 victory at Newcastle Sunday night in a Northeast Nebraska Baseball League contest.

Eddie whiffed 10 batters as the locals tied for the loop lead with a 2-0 mark after two weeks of action. Wayne had beaten Homer, 5-3, at home in the May 29 season intramural.

Newcastle scored first blood, chasing in a run after two first-inning hits and added another in the third inning to take a 2-0 advantage.

But Wayne exploded for a trio of runs in the fourth off three hits and added another pair in the fifth to end the scoring.

Eddie gave up only four hits, two by Newcastle's Beyer. Meanwhile, his teammates gave him six-hit support, a couple of those by Jorgensen.

Wayne State's Monroe Is College Athlete of Year

Ken Monroe, Wayne State's two-time NAIA wrestling champion and three-lettered football player, has a new honor—Nebraska College Athlete of the Year, selected by the Omaha World-Herald.

As a junior Monroe could become the first to win the award twice since the World-Herald began the citations in 1952. Another Wayne Stater, Don Kane, won it that year, and Dean de Bruh was the first to win the award twice since the World-Herald began the citations in 1952.

Monroe, whose home now is in Arlington Heights, Ill., won two Illinois state championships while wrestling for East Leyden High School, Franklin Park, also the alma mater of Bob Kruse, who was Wayne State's wrestling coach the past year.

Both learned their wrestling at East Leyden from Coach Charles Farina, one of the most successful coaches in Illinois prepdom.

Monroe accomplished the remarkable feat of winning his first national title as a freshman. Then he went to the NAIA finals again as a sophomore, but lost a 2-1 overtime decision. This year he reached the championship match a third straight year and found the same foe who had defeated him last year. This time it was different. Monroe won decisively, 6-3, for his second NAIA crown.

MEDICAL

(Continued from page 1) shal said that the plans likely would be approved as far as the state is concerned but the U.S. Public Health Service standards differ and advised the group to get in touch with the Kansas City office of Hill-Burton for further study and to see whether plans should be continued in the area in which they are now progressing.

Pangborn suggested a layout for the surgery department at the Lincoln meeting.

At an earlier meeting in Wayne, William Stulser of the Kansas City office of the U.S. Public Health Service, acted in his capacity as regional architect to make a review of the several stages of the hospital plans.

Another meeting of officials is scheduled for Tuesday, June 13, at Norfolk.

EDUCATION

Resignations of Clarence Lippert, head of the social studies department, and Jay Runestad, science and math instructor, were accepted by the board. Both have been offered assistantships, Lippert at the University of South Dakota and Runestad at South Dakota State University.

Plans for the third year of a five-year remodeling plan for the Middle School Library were discussed. Renovation planned this summer is shelving, carpeting and lowering of the ceiling. Shelving was estimated to cost between $3,729.40 (metal) and $4,560.10 (wood sides) and carpeting was estimated at $9 per yard, with approximately 200 yards needed.

Supr. Huan recommended the hiring of Duane Blomenkamp for the science and math department. Blomenkamp, 30 and M. and B. Blomenkamp of Wayne, is a graduate of Wayne High and Wayne State College. He has been teaching at Pierce since 1968 and will receive his master's degree in chemistry from the University of South Dakota in August. Other positions remained to be filled include Middle School math, high school social studies and vocal music.

A raise from $25 to $30 per student for driver-ad instructors Mike Bette and Ron Carver was turned down by the board. The two had asked for the increase, contingent on an increase in state funding, but that state funding will not be received for this summer's courses. There are 82 enrolled in the driving courses, with each receiving six hours of behind-the-wheel experience and 30 hours of classroom study. The course lasts approximately six weeks.

A report on lightning damage at Middle School was given, with an assurance that the school was fully covered by insurance. The lightning caused damage, to an extent still undetermined, during an electrical storm May 25.

A review of summer maintenance plans for the high school, Middle School, West Elementary and Carroll School were outlined by Supr. Ham.

Bills of $5,599.06 for May were approved by the board.

Claims Signed By County Board

The County Commissioners approved claims during Tuesday's meeting at the Wayne County Courthouse in the only item of business completed.

The commissioners will meet again Tuesday, June 13, a date set by statute statewide for county board meetings. Tuesday's meeting will be the last one for this month.

Robbette and Bill Hawkins of Winside, the latter driving a semi-owned by Schmode-Weible, were both westbound on Highway 35, three miles west of Wayne.

Robbette said he started to make a left turn and then swung back into the right lane when he spotted the approaching truck. Hawkins took to the ditch to avoid a collision.

Area Feeders, Dairymen Visit Three County Facilities on Livestock Tour

Cattle raising and dairy farming. Both deal with varying types of cattle and both face similar problems.

The main problems, as most farmers and ranchers discussed at the Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association feedlot and dairy operations tour, deal with proper feed solution and the prevention of disease in the stock.

About 250 area farmers and ranchers got a good look at what three Wayne County farmers are doing about some of the problems. In the first stop at the Werner Janke and Sons lots, about eight miles west of Wayne on Highway 35, the visitors heard Janke discuss the different ingredients used in his feed mixture as well as precautionary measures used in treating cattle.

Janke pointed out that he has 1,200 cattle and 1,600 acres. In the second of three stops, Jack Langemeier discussed some of the types of dairy operations he uses for his herd of cows. Langemeier said that he prefers artificial insemination in his breeding due to the variety of choices in the types of Herefords he can produce.

Langemeier also pointed out that he recently began using sawdust as bedding in the stalls to help eliminate different germs and diseases that could produce in a straw bedding.

Some of the advantages, he said, were that the sawdust lasted longer than straw and is easier to clean out.

In the last stop, the Fred Janke lots, the farmers and ranchers got another look at cattle raising. The Janke operation includes about 770 cattle on a 1,000-acre farm.

At the second stop of the feeders tour, the visitors saw the dairy farming procedures of the Jack Langemeier farm. Langemeier farms about a 500-acre spread with 96 cows.

This year Janke has sold more than 600 head.

Janke explained that he buys his cattle when they first weigh between 500 and 700 pounds and sells them at the top weight, between 1,000 and 1,200 pounds.

After the tour, the members of the Janke family hosted a cold lunch dinner, followed by a drawing.

Young Harley Greve, son of Greve guessed the weight to be 635 pounds while the actual average was 636 pounds.

products containing cacodylic acid and arsenates are also available for spot treatment.

Quality Important

When buying your grass and legume seed this year, be sure to check the tag for purity and germination. What looks like a bargain price may turn out to be very costly when you figure it out on the basis of Pure Live Seed, says Wally Moline, Extension Forage Crops specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

It's easy to figure the percentages of pure live seed in any lot of seed. Just multiply the purity times the germination. A seed lot with a purity of 90 per cent and a germination of 90 per cent has an 81 per cent pure live seed content. Another example with 60 per cent purity and 70 per cent germination has a 42 per cent pure live seed content.

Compose these two lots of seed for cost per pound of pure live seed. If the lots containing 81 per cent of pure live seed were 50 cents per pound, then the lot containing the 42 per cent pure live seed has to sell for 28 cents per pound to compare in price based on pure live seed. Also the higher quality seed is likely to be heavier, producing a healthy, vigorous seedling.

Check the seed tag carefully to see if you are buying the high quality seed you are paying for, says Moline. When available, insist on certified seed of the variety you are going to plant. "Certified seed does not cost as much," says Moline. Remember it's the amount of pure live seed, not the total amount of seed per acre that determines how many plants will grow, he advises.

Conserving Land, Water for Future

Gayle A. Sleffen, soil conservationist at Wakefield, said that 125 years ago, before the first settler came to Nebraska, we had what appeared to be an unlimited amount of water and land. Nebraska was covered with grasses blowing in the wind for as far as man could see. The valleys were glittering in the sun from water seeping to the surface. Nebraska was indeed the pastoral garden of the world. After 1850 the population and the economy of the state began increasing very rapidly. There was intensive development of our land and water resources. Soon the symptoms of our basic resources problem began to appear. Our fertile land became less productive, our valleys stopped glittering, and our streams and lakes decreased in purity. Nebraska's past was built from its land and water, and the future of this state lies in its wise development and use of these two natural resources.

Aowa Creek Watershed Project, which has begun between Ponca and Newcastle, is one of the methods used by the people to help conserve land and water. Watershed projects have shown that they can reduce erosion and siltation, halt floods, supply water for domestic and agricultural use when needed, and enhance fish and wildlife.

"For a better Nebraska in the future we must keep on working together. The SCS is one agency working for a better Nebraska. For more information, stop in and see us," Sleffen concluded.

Cankerworm Fond of Elms

LINCOLN—Homeowners and farmers with shelterbelts may want to consider control of the spring cankerworm a "measuring" worm that feeds on many types of deciduous trees, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension entomologist said this week.

Robert E. Roselle said the cankerworms are especially fond of elms, and many elms have been almost completely defoliated in northeastern Nebraska the past two springs.

"If rainfall is normal, elms will stand two or three defoliations, with new leaves forming. When conditions are dry, defoliation may damage trees," Roselle said.

He outlined the following chemicals and methods of application to achieve control of cankerworms:

Trees in shelterbelts can be sprayed by aircraft, using two pounds of 80 per cent Sevin wettable powder in three gallons of water per acre. Trees in cities or on private property can be sprayed with Sevin, methoxychlor, malathion, or diazinon. All will kill cankerworms if diluted properly (read the labels), and applied thoroughly.

A bacterial insecticide is available for those who do not wish to use a synthetic chemical insecticide. Bacillus thuringiensis is sold under the trade names Dipel, Thuricide, and Blotrol. Formulations of this biological control agent vary, so it is very important to follow label instructions. Avoid breathing the dust, and contact with open wounds. Spring cankerworms winter in the soil, with wingless females emerging early in the season. In the past, sticky bands around trees have been used to trap females. This method is effective if bands are in place early, the insect route is completely blocked, and bands are replenished as they bridge over with the insects, or dirt.

Another species—the fall cankerworm—may be present in lesser numbers. This insect is very similar to spring cankerworms, but the females emerge in the fall, and climb trees to deposit eggs on the twigs. These eggs hatch the following spring.

Yard and Garden Tips

Bromegrass, quackgrass and other cool season grasses are the most difficult of coarse-textured grasses to eliminate from fine textured lawn grasses.

In weed research at Lincoln, three pounds per acre of dicamba (Banvel) applied to a mixed Kentucky bluegrass-bromegrass pasture reduced the amount of bromegrass, although this rate of dicamba is hazardous to use on most lawns. It offers best possibilities in open areas where sensitive plants are not present. Three pounds of dicamba per acre is equivalent to two and one fourth ounces of Banvel (four pounds per gallon) per 1,000 square feet.

Little can be done for control of quackgrass although the owner can dig scattered clumps of bunch grasses including tall fescue and orchardgrass.

To kill small patches or clumps of unwanted grass, use Dalapon (Dowpon) as a non-selective grass killer. Add one fourth pound (one half cup) of Dowpon per gallon of water and apply as a wetting treatment. A small pall and paint brush are ideal for handling and applying the mixture to small areas. On larger areas use a knapsack sprayer for application. The treatment will kill unwanted grass in two to four weeks depending on dosage and temperatures.

If excessive amounts of Dalapon are not applied, desirable grasses will move into the treated areas later in the season. Other effective spot treatment

Invasion by Corn Borer Moths Is Likely

LINCOLN—Farmers with early-planted corn—which may represent only five to 10 per cent of the state's corn acreage—are advised to prepare for possible infestation by first brood corn borers.

This word comes from Dr. David Keith, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension entomologist, who noted that the first emergence of corn borer moths has been observed.

"First emergence is likely to peak between June 10-15, and farmers with early-planted corn should look for shot-hole feeding in corn leaves as early as June 15," Keith stated. Early corn that will have an extended height of 20-30 inches by mid-June will be attractive to the first brood, the Extension insect control specialists explained.

"More than 50 per cent of the corn plants grown for grain show the characteristic holes in the leaves (whorls), or if 25 per cent of seed corn fields show borer activity, control measures should be taken," Keith recommended.

Treatment for borer control before the larvae move from the whorls into the stalk of the plant is crucial, Keith said. When both

Agribusiness Seminar June 30 at Lincoln

LINCOLN—Some 150 agribusiness leaders, consumers, farm producers, educators and governmental representatives are expected to attend the third annual Agricultural Communications Seminar here June 30.

The day-long conference at the Nebraska Center is sponsored by the Nebraska Committee on Public Relations for Agriculture, and will focus on the wide gap of misunderstanding between the consumer, farmers and agribusiness interests on prices received by farmers and the price of food at the market place. Addressed to deliver the keynote address is E. E. Hatcher, owner, Colo., chairman of the board of directors, National Agricultural Institute. Hatcher was associated with the National Farmer-to-Consumer Tour of the U. S. in April. Several other speakers and panels are scheduled.

corn borers are about half grown—and appear about a half inch long—they move into the stalk areas. Corn growers have less than two weeks to apply chemicals from the time shot hole feeding signs are observed. Last year, late treatment was a problem in some areas of the state, he commented. "There is no effective control once the borer gets into the stalk," Keith said.

"For farmers who find controls necessary, granular materials are preferred over sprays, Keith said. For first brood control, they can be applied with the same equipment farmers use for applying corn rootworm materials. Recommended materials and the amount of active ingredient per acre: Diazinon 14G—one pound; EPN 2G, 0.3 lb.; Thimet 15G, one pound; Sevin 10G, two lbs.; Toxaphene 10G, two pounds.

If a farmer decides to control first brood corn borers, materials can be applied by air or with farm equipment. If the services of an aerial applicator cannot be obtained on short notice, farmers can apply Sevin 80 WP at the rate of two pounds per acre (active ingredient), or Diazinon Ag 500, one pound per acre sprayed into whorls.

"Use a high volume of water per acre to get coverage," Keith advised. The chemicals must get into the whorls to be effective against borers.

Current concern on borers is based on a larger than normal overwintering population of borers. Surveys last fall showed especially high borer populations in the east, central and southern cropping districts—459, 526 and 509 borer per 100 plants, respectively. "This is the highest overwintering level of borers we have observed in the past six years," Keith commented.

"The weather holds the key to potential damage from borers for both the early-planted corn and for second-brood damage on the much greater acreage of late-planted corn later this summer, Keith emphasized. "Weather extremes—either cold, wet spells, or hot, dry spells—will adversely affect both the activity of the moths and the survival of young borers on the

Watch Out For Windstorms!

Windstorms—from hurricanes to severe thunderstorms and high wind gusts—are among the most common and most dangerous weather phenomena.

Windstorms lash at everything in their paths, and every one should be familiar with safety precautions for those common to their area. However, windstorms are particularly dangerous to mobile homes. Statistics show that almost 13,000 mobile homes will suffer more than $1,000 each in damages from hurricane winds alone in an average year.

According to the Mobile Living Communications Center (MLCC), one of the most effective means of reducing mobile home wind damage is to install tie downs. Tie downs are a system of steel straps or cables which connect the mobile home to anchors installed in the ground. A combination of over-the-top ties, which pass over the home, and frame ties, which attach to the I-beam of the frame, is usually used.

The Allen Postcard National Severe Storms Forecast Center, says, "Almost any time a windstorm strikes, the mobile home court or park where preparations have been inadequate becomes a scene of utter devastation. And it's unnecessary. I believe that 90% of all wind damage to mobile homes could be prevented by solid construction and proper tie down."

To encourage mobile home owners to tie down their homes, the Allen Postcard National Severe Storms Forecast Center has designated June as the Tie Down Month in thirty-six states registering high windstorm damage to mobile homes in the last decade.

The down equipment should be selected according to the size of the mobile home and to soil type and windstorm conditions in each area. It can be installed by contractors or by mobile home owners. Cost for equipment ranges from $90 to $150 in most states. Contractor installation costs vary with location.

"We have a Tie Down kit to help you outline the down equipment and procedure, is available from MLCC at P.O. Box 3431, Chicago, Illinois 60664

The result of the learning disability program, Mrs. Owens added, "is happy, successful boys and girls and has cut down disciplinary problems among the hyper-active child."

"We have 'dropouts' as early as the first and second grade," Mrs. Owens concluded. "They have to stay in school until they are 16 but have 'dropped out' much earlier as far as learning progress is concerned."

WSC Graduate To Be in Band At West Point

John Leonard, Logan, Ia., an April graduate of Wayne State College, has been accepted as a musician in the United States Military Academy band at West Point. He left June 2 to begin basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Leonard, Route 1, Logan, he was graduated from Woodbine Community School in 1968. At Wayne State Leonard majored in music and earned the bachelor of fine arts in education degree, cum laude.

He was active in the college, band, orchestra, choir, performed in several honor recitals, served as president of Kappa Kappa Psi, national bandmen honorary, and was state student membership chairman of the Nebraska State Bandmasters Association. He also was president of Bowen Hall, secretary of Beta Kappa, national honor society, college member of the Student Senate and of Music Educators National Conference.

First-year Milestone For Learning Disability Program

Mrs. Orvid (Jean) Owens, explained the Title III-sponsored learning disability program to the Wayne Kiwanis Club members Monday noon at the organization's weekly dinner-meeting in the Woman's Club room of the City Auditorium.

The program, which has been in operation for a year at West Elementary School, provides for three separate components—language arts, motor perception and curriculum modification.

Mrs. Owens explained that language arts—work in the classroom, and motor perception—physical activities, are closely related and actually overlap.

Mrs. Owens, the curriculum modifier, helps in planning all areas of study outside of the first two.

The federally-funded program, in which stress was not applied nationwide until the past two to three years, was first geared for those with brain damage, then to the dyslexic, later referred to as learning disability program and lately the term "learning differences" being favored.

"Our students are not in the least 'retarded,'" Mrs. Owens stressed, "but are those who average or higher intelligence whose learning ability is impaired."

All children are tested to determine what learning ability should be, then Mrs. Owens consults with the teacher and other

Wayne Is Included in New Regional Check Processing Set-up for Area

Nearly 200,000 checks drawn on 174 eastern Nebraska banks are now being cleared each night, Monday through Friday, at the Omaha Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, following implementation in mid-May of the Omaha regional check processing arrangement.

According to Robert D. Hamilton, vice-president in charge of the Omaha Branch, it is anticipated that the check volume may rise to about 250,000 items each working night. The Federal Reserve facility already processes about 300,000 checks during a normal working day, Hamilton said.

The regional check processing arrangement works like this: couriers traveling specific routes begin picking up checks at banks at the edge of the area early in the evening, then funnel toward Omaha and Lincoln where they deliver checks to the larger downtown banks and to the Omaha Branch. The Omaha and Lincoln banks sort out checks drawn on the participating banks and deposit them at the Omaha Branch. Employees there work through the night, using computers to process the checks, debiting or crediting the appropriate bank's account or the account at the bank's correspondent. Early Tuesday morning, couriers head back outstate, delivering checks to banks on their routes by 9 a.m.

The regional check processing center in Omaha was developed by the Federal Reserve and area bankers in response to the Federal Reserve Board of Governors' call for renewed efforts to streamline the nation's payments mechanism. Improved movement of checks in the Omaha area and elsewhere is vitally important because about 90 percent of the money transfers in the United States (wage and salary payments, payments for goods and services, etc.) are made by check and the number of checks is mushrooming. In 1971, about 24 billion checks were written and some recent estimates indicate that this number will double within 10 years.

Regional centers such as in Omaha are designed to make very berry pie

- 1 packet Honey Maid Graham Crackers, finely rolled (about 1 1/2 cups)
- 1 1/4 cups sugar
- 1/4 cup margarine, melted
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, separated
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 1/2 pints heavy cream, whipped
- 1 (3 oz.) pkg. raspberry flavored gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 3/4 cup cold water
- 1 cup whole strawberries (halves if very large), chilled
- 1/2 cup blueberries, chilled

1/2 cup raspberries, chilled
Blend together graham cracker crumbs, 1/4 cup sugar and margarine. Press firmly against bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate. Bake at 375 degrees for 8 minutes, cool. In top of double boiler, combine 3/4 cup sugar, gelatine and salt. Beat together egg yolks and milk; gradually add to gelatine mixture. Heat over boiling water until gelatine is completely dissolved, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; add lemon juice, rind and vanilla. Cool to room temperature. At high speed, beat cottage cheese until light and fluffy (about 5 minutes). Reduce speed; gradually add gelatine mixture, beating until smooth and well blended. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture is thick (about 30 minutes). Beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add remaining sugar and continue beating until stiff but not dry. Fold whipped cream and then beaten egg whites into gelatine-cheese mixture. Pour into pie crust, mounding cheese around the sides to form a slight depression in the center for the fruit topping (about 6 inches diameter). Refrigerate 2 hours. Dissolve raspberry flavored gelatine in boiling water. Add cold water and chill until the consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Add 1/2 cup gelatine to fruits and gently spoon into center of pie. Chill until set (about 1 1/2 hours.) Makes 8-10 servings

Grassroots Cleanings

By BILL STOKES

The minister was asked to pray for the opening session of a state legislature, reports The Review of Plymouth, Wis., and before doing so he advised the lawmakers not to try to do too much for their constituents. "There are certain things a man must do for himself," the minister said, "such as blow his own nose, make his own love and say his own prayers."

"An obedient wife is one who obeys her husband when he tells her to do things she wants to do anyway," comments the Janesville (Minn.) Argus.

The Cavalier (N.D.) Chronicle tells about the two fellows who were traveling between Cavalier and Fargo, but it took them 12 hours to make the trip instead of the usual three because they saw "Clean Restrooms" on various service stations along the way, and they cleaned ten of them between Cavalier and Fargo.

"Man has made 32,800,000 laws and hasn't improved much on the Ten Commandments," says The Ogden (Iowa) Reporter.

"The wonderful thing about having a teenager in the family is that you get to know your faults," laments The Spencer (Neb.) Advocate.

The Jamestown (N.D.) Sun defines a monologue as a talk with the boss.

"A diplomat is a man who remembers a woman's birthday but forgets her age," says the Renville (Minn.) Star-Farmer.

"You can't judge a girl by her clothes anymore, because there isn't enough evidence," complains The Wishek (N.D.) Star.

"A wife is just the opposite of a fisherman," says the Chaska (Minn.) Weekly Valley Herald. "She brags about the ones that got away and complains about the one she got."

The New Ulm (Minn.) Journal says, "A certain amount of incompatibility in marriage is not bad — especially when the man has the Income and the woman has the patibility."

The O'Brien County Bell of Primghar, Iowa quotes the young man who sighed and said, "I never knew what happiness was until I got married—and then it was too late."

"A politician is one who can get money from the rich and votes from the poor, and make each think he is protecting them from the other," says the Buffalo (S.D.) Times Herald.

The generation gap is that distance that a teenager has to reach to accept his allowance from Dad," says The Houston (Mo.) Herald.

The Winner (S.D.) Advocate reports the following sign in a farmer's henhouse: "An egg a day keeps Colonel Sanders away."

Ask the Lindsay Lady

Q. What do I do? My husband doesn't like my coffee.

A. Just for review, the coffee maker's pledge: "A clean pot, fresh cold water from the tap, accurate measurements." Now, the next question—are you using hard or soft water? It's surprising how soft water, with the minerals removed, can enhance the taste of coffee. Likewise many other water-based beverages. A small price to pay to keep a husband happy.

Q. How much soap is needed for washing clothes in soft water?

A. Here's where the savings really show! If with hard water you use one full cup of soap or detergent per washer load, with soft water you can cut down to a scant coffee measure full. It isn't easy to break old soap habits at first, but experience will show that this small amount does it in most cases. Soft water not only pays its own way by cutting soap costs, but it leaves clothes soft, fluffy and comfortable—because they're free of soap curd. And, with less pollution going down the drain, think what you're doing for ecology!

Q. Does it matter how often I shampoo my hair each week?

A. Not if the conditions are right. If you wash and rinse your hair in soft water, you can shampoo daily if you like—and safely. The recommended treatment is soft water and a mild non-alcoholic soap shampoo which won't dry out the hair and scalp. If you pay to have your hair done, be sure the beautician is using softened water.

Ohio's "Down-on-the-Farm Country Flavor"

by BILL THOMAS

It's that down on the farm country flavor. That's Bob Evans' motto. He sells sausages by it and he lives it and each autumn, when harvestime has come, the Ohio sausage man invites the public to his farm for one of the biggest free farm festivals in America. It's like turning back the pages to the turn of the century when farming was virtually the only way of life.

It still is a way of life for Bob Evans and the folks around Rio Grande, Ohio, in the southeastern corner of the state. A land of rolling hills and picturesque meadows, this corner of the Buckeye State has been home to Bob Evans for more than half a century. During that time, he's built a 2,000-acre showplace outlined in white-panel fences and spotless white buildings.

He's accumulated animals and fowl from practically every part of the world on his farm, even a chicken hen that lays multi-colored eggs. Also on display at the Evans farm is a zoo of wildlife—deer, pheasant, and wild mustangs, the genuine offspring of the great horses of the Spanish Conquistadors which first explored the western United States. And among the farm buildings is a farm museum, housing the tools and machinery that were an integral part of the farm picture a hundred years ago.

Some say the farm harvest festival is for the farmer, for those interested in the grass roots of America. It is for the public and, in actuality, those from urban areas may well enjoy it more than those of rural America. For it is an educational as well as an entertaining and nostalgic event.

Oldtime fiddle playing, banjo picking, square-dancing on stage and folk singing are but a part of the entertainment. During the afternoon, there's sky-diving exhibitions, pony and horseback rides for the children, an ox-cart ride drawn by a working yoke of oxen, perhaps a demonstration by an expert farm dog such as the Border collie or shepherd, working a flock of sheep or a gaggle of geese.

In 1971, a feature attraction of Bob Evans Farm Days was a demonstration twice daily for the three-day event of a famous pair of Border collies. The two, owned by Ohio State University professor Carl Bradford of Wooster, had just returned from a summer's engagement filming on location a Walt Disney TV movie called Mountain Born. Evans hopes to make this an annual attraction.

There are other attractions at the farm, too, during the year — big ones — but none match Bob Evans Farm Days in October. Earlier in the year, the annual Rio Grande Bean Dinner is held in mid-August; a songfest, sometimes with such noted groups as the Welsh Eisteddfod, a 30-member women's choir from Wales, providing the entertainment; a quarter-horse trail ride with the crowning of a queen in mid-September. All of these attract a considerable gathering. And the farm is open to the public year-around with visits encouraged.

But the harvest festival is greatest — and people from all over southeastern and central Ohio as well as parts of West Virginia and Kentucky gather to help celebrate Bob Evans Farm Days.

Evans, a modest mild-mannered man who claims he's grubbed more bushes than any other man in the Buckeye State, is best known to mid-westerners for his sausage products, restaurants and purebred Charolaise cattle, but he is also dedicated to conservation and preservation. For example, he uses his own farm as an impetus to the surrounding countryside to conserve the open lands while putting them to good use.

The Homestead House, in which the Evans family lived for a good many years, is now open to the public. It was a stagecoach inn in the 1800's and today has been handsomely maintained in its tradition with the parlor filled with antiques. The kitchen is an old-time country store. Out back is a smokehouse and there's also a woodshed and a fenced-in garden of Indian corn, pumpkins, melons and gourds. And in the late summer and autumn, tobacco leaves hang from the rafters in the garage, curing before stripping for the market.

Across U.S. 35 from the Homestead is a restored free-slave cabin and a refurbished Revolutionary War cemetery. And during the festival, a horse-drawn sorghum mill grinds sorghum and it's made nearby and sold to those who wish to take some molasses home. Other working displays at the farm festival show women dressed in long calico dresses and sun bonnets making apple butter while another location displays the rendering of lard. A native of this land makes hemp rope, twisting the strands before your eyes. And at an old-fashioned cider mill, boys turn freshly picked apples into jugs of tasty cider.

A peacock struts through the barnyard, a gaggle of geese swim on a nearby pond, sheep and horses and prize-winning cattle graze side-by-side. A two-sided glass beehive display allows visitors to see exactly what goes on inside a beehive. There's an egg incubator and a catfish tank which provide interesting pauses among visitors.

Evans started ranching after he came home from World War II and soon became a soil and water conservationist as well as a rancher and businessman. In addition to 20 water ponds, Evans has five spring developments supplying water. On some of the spring streams, beaver work, building little dams.

The stocked fishing ponds and a hiking trail add enjoyment to a family visit to the farm. It's a great place to take the family — and that's what Bob Evans likes to see most — youngsters enjoying and appreciating something of their rural heritage.

Upon many occasions, Bob Evans himself, in his traditional white LBJ hat and string tie, is there to personally greet visitors himself, both during the festival and at various times of the year. He's a friendly, rotund, hand-shaking man with a big genuine smile that wants or expects nothing in return except friendship. Bob Evans is that kind of man — and when you leave, you'll hear him say good-bye with another invitation — "Y'all come back down to the farm — anytime!" And you know he means it.
