

Mrs. Jacobsen and Doug Lyman, who owns the building, sign the lease for the Gallery, a new fabric center to be located at 306 Main.

Fabric Center Will Locate At Old Youth Center Site

A new fabric center soon will be "rolling out the red carpet" to Wayne area residents beginning in July.

The Gallery, owned and operated by Mrs. Robert (Marjorie) Jacobsen, formerly of Beresford, S. D., will be a retail fabric outlet with a wide variety of materials from which to choose.

According to Mrs. Jacobsen, the store will be located at the site of the old Wayne Youth Center, 306 Main, formerly Hill's Cafe.

"The store will be decorated with a red carpet and white shag carpet windows," she said.

Mrs. Jacobsen plans to hire three employees.

"I will be dealing with the latest fabric and designs," she said, "with the newest designs and types of materials coming on a month-to-month notice."

Mrs. Jacobsen explained that she will be carrying designs from Vogue-Butterick on a regular schedule instead of one seasonal basis.

"This way our customers will be up to date on the newest types of patterns and materials," she said.

Three Wayne residents, she said, helped to choose Wayne as her home. "A friend of mine told me what a nice town Wayne is, so I came down to look at it."

Mrs. Jacobsen pointed out that the friendly people helped her make the decision to move from her South Dakota home.

"I talked with City Clerk Dan Sherry, Bob Merchant and I. G. Fueberth and they really sold me on Wayne."

Mrs. Jacobsen is married to Alr Force Sgt. Robert Jacobsen, stationed at K. I. Sawyer Air Force Base in Marquette, Mich. The Jacobsens have a son, daughter and two grandchildren.

Mrs. Jacobsen, who will be living at 720 F. 14th, has had extensive training in sewing of knit fabrics, double knits and tulle.

At present, Mrs. Jacobsen admits that there is a lot of work to be done before her opening. "It's going to be the red carpet treatment for everyone."

"I plan to attend several fashion shows in Des Moines so that I can offer better services in the fabric lines," she said.

Area Projects Are Included In Highway Improvements

Installation of two box culverts on Highway 15, just south of the Wayne city limits, will begin June 26, according to S. V. Johnson of Wayne, project manager for the Nebraska Department of roads.

No detours will be necessary for the construction, scheduled to be completed by Aug. 28.

Norfolk Bridge and Construction Co. has the $32,784 contract for the culverts and asphaltic concrete surfacing. The project is financed with state and federal highway funds.

Commissioners Transfer Funds

The Wayne County Commissioners passed a resolution to transfer $3,123.82 from School District No. 25 bond fund to the regular school district fund during their meeting Tuesday at the Wayne County courthouse.

In other business, the commissioners approved the preliminary plat of Malis Acres for development.

Instructed the City Planning Commission that the county will cooperate with the State Historical Society to help clean up the LaPorte cemetery southeast of Wayne as a historical site.

Awarded T. P. Roberts, Wayne County Civil Defense director, recognition for his participation in the state seminar on "Alert and preparedness."

No Apathy Here

Spurred by the actions of Stephen Mendyk, 11-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Lee-Mendyk, Wayne Boy Scouts from Troop 221 conducted a local drive early this week for the Rapid City Relief Fund. Young Mendyk, after watching the TV special Sunday noon on the Rapid City disaster, had donned his scout shirt and collected $10.48 from neighborhood families. His total was boosted to $148.00, when aided by efforts of fellow scouts, said Leader Bob Carhart. The scouts are (back row from left) Roger Niemann, Brian Park, Clint Nelson, Danny Beeks, (front row from left) Mendyk, Bill Carhart, Jeff Backstrom and Scott Carhart. Not pictured were Mark Smith and Gary Glass. Anyone interested in contributing to the Rapid City fund through the scouts may contact one of the scouts or advisor Loren Park.

Half-Million Federal Aid To Wayne State

Wayne State College has received $551,409 in federal aid under provisions of the higher education bill, which may be used by the school at its own discretion.

The aid bill, passed by the House and Senate, still needs the President's signature.

Northeastern Nebraska College of Norfolk will receive $137,203, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. A total of $8.1 million in federal aid will be distributed to Nebraska colleges.

Fire Call 'Re-run'

For the second time in a two-day span, Wayne Volunteer Firemen were called to a fire involving a car owned by Daniel Jensen of Wayne. The car's carburetor caught a fire for the second time Saturday afternoon, the latest time at 11th and Walnut. A fireman used a fire extinguisher he was carrying in his car to put out the blaze.

In a Wednesday morning meeting, Councilmen Keith Mosley and Darrell Fueberth, along with Vern Scholz, street commissioner, and City Clerk Dan Sherry, discussed the possibility of Russell taking over the landfill operations by Aug. 1.

According to Sherry, no final date has been set if Russell decides to take over.

Area Residents Caught up in Tragedy Too

Fingers of the Rapid City, S. D., tragedy spread even to the Wayne area, giving friends, parents and other relatives many an anxious moment as they awaited word of their loved ones who were in the danger area.

Wayne residents Mr. and Mrs. Jim Paige and their two youngsters returned Sunday from what had been planned as a pleasant visit with Paige's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Paige, and their three children at Rapid City. The Wayne family had arrived in Rapid City about 6 p.m. Thursday and had taken pictures of their family at Story Book Island and had visited other picturesque attractions which, hours later, were to be no more than pre-flood memories.

The rain, which accumulated to seven inches in places, had begun Friday evening. The Paiges said, "Families in the Canyon Lake area were warned about 9 or 10 p.m. that there was a danger of the creek, which had gone out of bounds before, flooding. One woman had only a 15-minute warning before the water came."

Canyon Lake Dam gave out some time during that night, causing a deluge of water which swept through the area, leaving over 200 dead, hundreds more missing and thousands homeless.

Of the destruction Paiges noted, "Mobile homes were ripped from foundations and wrapped around buildings; entire trailer courts were flushed away. . . . The water ravaged the main floor of a department store, sweeping it clear of merchandise. . . . a golf course was submerged. . . . a block of businesses destroyed. . . . car lots were emptied. . . . Severed gas lines, lightning and exploding propane tanks caused fires which were allowed to burn themselves out," they went on. "Firemen and other volunteer workers were too occupied with the primary concern of human life to worry about looting."

"One of three hospitals was cut out of commission and another continued to operate as well as possible after suffering a power outage."

"There was no gas, no water. You begin to be aware of the impact when you go to brush your teeth, wash your hair or clothes, take a bath, make a pot of col-

Trailer Court Expansion Issue to Be Decided by the Board of Adjustment

The City Council Tuesday night voted to have the Board of Adjustment decide whether or not Cecil Wriedt, owner of Wriedt Trailer Court, should be allowed to add four more trailers to his court.

In a unanimous decision, the Council moved to have the Board make the decision after Wriedt contended that last year the Council let him add more trailers to his area without the technicalities being placed upon him this year.

Wriedt said that the city ordinance is the same as it was last year. "I don't see why there are so many technicalities this year," he said.

Earlier Wriedt asked the Council for permission to expand his court facilities to accommodate four more trailers.

But the Council, in its May 31 meeting, decided to wait for the results from the Planning Commission as to whether the addition was in compliance with the city ordinance.

The commission, after reviewing the matter, offered the Council and Wriedt two alternatives. But Wriedt rejected them both since the first proposal would allow only two trailers on the same lot and the second proposal would allow three trailers.

Wriedt pointed out that the alternatives were unfair due to the city's lack of consistency in reading and in enforcing the same ordinance from last year to this year.

The Council then decided to transfer the matter to the Board where the members will decide if the alternatives would create a hardship for Wriedt.

If the Board finds that the city rulings do create a hardship, it can overrule the city in favor of Wriedt.

The Council gave the go-ahead for several street and alley pavings in line with the city's one and six-year planning schedule.

The paving projects include the paving of Westwood Road north of Meadow Lane at an estimated cost of $5,500. The city engineers recommended the repaving of the street due to rain damage from the months of February and June which has caused the paving to sink about six to eight inches.

The Council also approved to have a storm sewer built on the south of Sunset Drive to and including Meadow Lane at an estimated cost of $10,000.

Dads Have 34 Chances to Win

Some people might get a gift "a chance of a lifetime." But for Wayne area fathers, their chances to win a gift certificate worth $10 will increase 34 times.

Thirty-four participating Wayne merchants are giving each Wayne father a chance to win a certificate worth $10 in food or drink.

In order for the father to be eligible for a "Night Out on the Town," he must be registered between June 15-17 at one of the 34 participating merchants.

Each merchant will draw one winner Saturday afternoon and notify the lucky dad. He then will have until July 12 to redeem his certificate.

In observance of Honor America Day, flags will be displayed in front of Wayne business firms through July 4th. The observance began on Wednesday, Flag Day.

Third in Weekly Police Films Series

The third-week schedule of films in the Summer Information Program, sponsored by the Wayne Police Department, will be shown at East Park, 11th and Walnut, Sunday evening at dusk.

The schedule:

"Focus on Marijuana," 15-minute color film, geared for junior high, senior high and adult age groups. A combination of dramatization and the stories of people as young as 10 years, encouraging potential "pot" users to look for themselves and to weigh the evidence before making decisions which could affect them the rest of their lives. The film concentrates on peer group pressures that young people often must combat in avoiding drugs.

"Focus on Speed and Litters," 15-minute color film, especially for junior high, senior high and adult ages. Pills are a readily available source of "kicks" for kids and, though not physiologically addicting, repeated intravenous injection of methamphetamine is shown to be far more dangerous than the drugs.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Paige, with Penny, four years old, and Holly, one of the Rapid City, S.D., flood which interrupted their holiday this past weekend. The Paige family had gone to Rapid City to visit the Alonzo Paige family. The Alonzo home is located on a hill about a half-mile from the stricken area, but was not in the path of destruction.

ound Hethold, Route 2, Wakefield, is spending her first summer in a resort area. Her parents were worried when they heard of the devastation in the nearby Rapid City, S. D., area, but received word from Susan that her region was not badly hit. The 10 inches of rain that fell at Sylvan Lake Resort at Custer State Park, where she works in a cafeteria, had all drained off she said. A dirty lake remained to remind them of the neighboring tragedy.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Marr had tried in vain to contact their son through the Highway Patrol. Mike, 20, had begun work June 4 at Rushmore View Restaurant and Motel, Keystone, located just outside Mount Rushmore National Monument in a low valley. Finally, on Sunday, a call came from a Yankton couple (parents of a fellow-worker of Mike's) saying that, though there was mud in his cabin, Mike was all right. The Marrs were told that Keystone was virtually isolated, with communications out and no travel. This was young Marr's third year at Keystone.

Cindy Froehlich, 20, who works in a gift shop at the base of Mount Rushmore, six miles from Keystone, at last got through to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Froehlich, 905 Lincoln, after midnight Sunday. Luster were still down in the resort area, so she had gone to nearby Custer to place the call.

Cindy said she hadn't worked in the gift shop for two days; that everyone's efforts were confined to cleaning up. No lives were lost in the area where Cindy worked.

she noted, though she had heard that Keystone had recorded six deaths.

Scouts Were There

Ironically, Wayne Girl Scout Troop 145, which just returned from a camping trip, had spent May 27 at Willow Creek Camp Ground, three or four miles west of Mount Rushmore. Troop leader Mrs. David Ley said she had not been able to find out if this campground was one of those hit by the flood waters.

NORTHEAST EXTENSION

Notes

by Joycelyn Smith

Plenics can be fun for the whole family, but they also bring the possibility of food poisoning. Precautions and common sense can prevent it. Most cases of food poisoning are a result of mis-handling food.

Staphylococcus, botulism poisoning, and salmonella infection are the most dangerous bacteria that can contaminate food. Staphylococcus poisoning is the most common food-borne illness. It occurs in prepared foods that are mishandled. (Custard filled bakery goods, salad dressings, gravy and precooked ham are the most susceptible prepared foods. Symptoms—nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea—usually appear within three to six hours after eating the infected food. Recovery from staph generally takes 24 to 48 hours.

Salmonellosis is an infection which occurs in the intestines of humans. The contaminated foods don't even have an unusual flavor or odor. Salmonella in food can be destroyed by heating the food to 140 degrees F. and holding it at this temperature for 10 minutes or heating it to a higher temperature for less time. Refrigeration at 40 degrees F. inhibits the increase of salmonella. The salmonella bacteria will remain alive even in the refrigerator or freezer. The rarest and deadliest kind of food poisoning is botulism. It is due to toxins formed by the growth of the botulism microorganisms usually in under-processed home-canned low-acid foods. Use recommended food processing methods to prevent botulism.

Always remember the following precautions to prevent food poisoning: (1) Always wash hands before handling foods, (2) Keep raw poultry or meat from coming in contact with other foods, (3) Keep cooked foods very hot or very cold, (4) Don't buy cracked or dirty eggs, (5) Sterilize home-canned foods properly, (6) Don't use canned foods if the cans are swelled or bulged or if contents have an off odor, and (7) Be selective in choosing picnic foods.

To correct a too-thin hot sauce: Blend a teaspoon of flour with a teaspoon of soft butter. Beat into hot sauce off heat until smooth. Simmer again.

Twelve homemakers attended the two-session furniture refinishing workshop conducted recently by Myrtle I. Anderson, area extension agent of the Northeast Station. Wayne Team Knocks Off Ponca, 5-2; Wakefield Gets First Season Win, 13-3

The Wayne team, led by Paul Eddie's 15 strike-outs, continued its streak of five runs per game Sunday night as the home squad knocked off Ponca, 5-2, at Wayne.

The win was the third in a row against no defeats, boosting Eddie's record to 3-0 while the Wayne hurler threw a three-hitter.

A single by First Baseman Herbie Swan brought Jacobsen into home for the final run of the inning.

Future Stars Enroll in WSC Cage School

A steamy hot day greeted 38 high school athletes when they began practice Monday morning in the Wayne State Basketball School, but 90-plus temperature didn't faze the boys.

All plunged into a rugged series of drills on fundamentals, which will continue until Friday night. Among the sweating athletes were two returning for their third year at the school—Craig Merry of Thurston and Robb Reed of Osmond.

Seven others are back for the second camp—Greg Anderson, Laurel; Gary Armstrong, Milford; Bob Keating, Wayne; Scott Miller, Newcastle; Gary Noneman, Logan, Ia.; Scott Von Minden, Allen, and Mark Wilson, Orchard.

Coch Ron Jones, director of the school, listed these first-time campers:

Neil Blom, Allen; Tom Moore, Battle Creek; Allan Benson and Gary Meier, Coleridge; Ronald Wergin, Milford; Calvin Stolle, Meadow Grove; Lou Benscoter, Gerry Curry, Kevin Johnson, Kirk Kneiff, Newcastle; Pat Clayton, Bruce Fuelberth, Dennis Kumm and Roger Weeder, Osmond; Jim Lake, Randy Meyers and Brad Novotny, Pender;

Assisting Jones on the coaching staff are his Wayne State assistant coach, Darryl Lehnus; Phil Gradoville, head coach at Omaha Tummel High School, and Rich McGill, graduate assistant at WSC the past year.

One cager, Cal Stolle, is playing under what some folks might think a handicap. His fractured right forearm is in a cast. Doesn't seem to slow him down in any of the drills—even though he is right-handed. He's shooting left-handed now.

Hike in Nebraska's Grouse Population

LINCOLN — Breeding populations of sharp-tailed grouse and prairie chickens in Nebraska registered about a 26 per cent gain this spring over last year, according to surveys conducted by the Game and Parks Commission.

The sharp-tailed breeding population was 44 per cent higher than in 1971 and four per cent lower than the average of the past five years, while prairie chickens were up five per cent over 1971 and five per cent below the five-year average. The combined index of the two species was still eight per cent below the average of the past five years, however.

Spring counts are conducted each year to provide information on the state's grouse breeding population. Other surveys later in the summer provide data on the success of grouse nesting and will give an indication of the grouse population available for the fall season.

Commission technicians conduct the spring breeding survey by counting display grounds and birds along the same routes each year. By listening for the sounds prairie chickens and sharp-tailed make during courtship, researchers learn locations of the grounds. They return later to count birds on each area.

Boone County Given Time to Study Technical Community College Areas

The State Board of Education last week granted the request of the Boone County commissioners to have more time to study possibilities of their county's location in technical community college districts.

The state board also approved a petition from the Dodge County commissioners to include Consolidated School District 46 at Dodge in the Northeast Nebraska Technical Community College area. Other parts of Dodge County will go to the Eastern Nebraska College area and the Central Nebraska College area.

In a Boone County election held in conjunction with the May 9 primary, the countywide vote was 1,192 to 868 in favor of joining the Central area, where the technical college is at Hastings and the academic college at Columbus.

Following that election, the Boone County commissioners petitioned the state board to have the county included in the Central area.

It was not learned until later that counties would be allowed to split, with residents of individual precincts or school districts joining the college area of their choice.

Six northern precincts of Boone County, which had voted by 80 per cent to join the Northeast area, indicated a desire to have those precincts join the Nebraska area and let the remainder of the county join the Central area.

The Northeast area has both the technical and academic colleges at Norfolk, where they are to be merged into one new campus within a few years.

When the commissioners learned of this possibility, they asked the state board to table their previous request and let them take the plan back home and work on it some more, reports Dr. Allen Burkhardt of Norfolk, a member of the state board.

Wayne Doctor To Chairman Curtis Group

Dr. W. A. Koeber of Wayne is chairman for the Citizens for Curtis Committee, according to an announcement by Richard E. Spelts Jr. of Grand Island, state chairman.

Spelts said each of Nebraska's 93 counties now has a chairman and further development of 93 county organizations will follow.

"We are also filling county vice-chairman positions, mostly by women, with 15 of those positions having been appointed to date," Spelts added.

Sixteen counties have organized Curtis youth organizations and nine college campuses have formed groups backing Curtis.

List of other county chairmen from this area:

Dixon, Merle Von Minden of Allen; Cedar, Warren Patfield of Laurel; Cuming, Ray Steffensmeyer of Deemer; Dakota, Tom Weekes of South Sioux City; Madison, Richard Muefting of Norfolk; Pierce, Harold Mauck of Plainville; Stanton, George Benson Jr. of Stanton; Thurston, Tom Witt of Pender.

Learning to swim can be a lot of fun. Just ask Trevor Koch, 8, as swimming instructor Linda Penh, a junior at WSC, helps him. According to Al Hansen, pool director, about 280 children have registered for the swimming classes.

Drowning Takes Life Of Norfolk Teenager

For the second time in a week's time, drowning has claimed the life of a Norfolk teenager.

Daniel Spiering, 17, drowned Thursday afternoon while swimming with another youth and two girls on the Elkhorn River about five miles west of Norfolk.

His swimming companions said the last they saw of him was after he dived off a high bank.

His body was found at 5:35 p.m. Friday in four to five feet of water, at approximately the spot where he had been last seen.

23 Enrolled

Twenty-three students are enrolled in the Wakefield Public Schools drivers education program which got underway June 1. Tim Peterson is supervising the classes which will meet daily until June 16. A second session will begin July 3.

CITY COUNCIL

estimated cost of $30,000. The alleyways behind the City Auditorium, between Second and Third Streets, and the Gay Theater, between Third and Fourth Street, will be paved at a total cost of $7,500.

According to the council, 90 per cent of the projects' costs will be assessed to the property owners in the respective areas with the city paying 10 per cent.

In other Street Improvement Districts, the Council decided to table any action on the widening of Seventh and Logan and Main and Fairground road intersections.

Councilmen Keith Mostley and Vernon Russell were the only members to vote against the decision.

According to City Clerk Dan Sherry, July 11 has been set as the tentative date for bid openings.

In other action, the Council approved the state's acceptance of the Airport Hangars with Councilmen Vernon Russell, Ivan Beeks and Jim Thomas dissenting. The motion carried.

Mayor Kent Hall then appointed the Airport Committee of Russell and Councilman Frank Prather to study rental fees for the old and new hangars in an effort for the city to break even.

The Council approved the bondings of the City Clerk—$1,000; Library—$1,000; Treasurer, City of Wayne—$100,000; and Water Commissioner—$20,000.

Voted to set parking restrictions in the Fourth Ward that will allow 24 hour parking only on the north and west sides of the 31-foot-wide streets. The Council also approved of no parking on the east and south sides of the street.

Councilman Thomas pointed out that it would only be fair for the city "to redo the whole town" since the city is making new parking restrictions in the area.

Voted to permit LeRoy Barner and Ed Nieman to set up fireworks stands.

Also voted to give the Wayne Jaycees, represented by Bob Woehler, $150 for the Jaycees' fireworks stand.

Granted razing permits to CVD Architectural Firm, Omaha, and Vakoc Construction. The razing permit will allow CVD, representing Gibson's Discount Stores, to clear an area on East Seventh for the new Gibson Store to be built in the future.

To build shelterhouses at the Lions Club Park near the airport and Bressler Park. The cost of both projects are estimated at $2,800. The shelterhouse at Bressler Park will be built on the southwest part of the park, according to Sherry, at a later date.

Decided to install stop signs at Fifth and Walnut, 10th and Pine Heights and Ninth and Nebraska. The Council approved the placing of a yield sign at First and Blaine. More stop signs will be placed at other streets.

To study making right turns on red lights. The state, effective Aug. 1, will allow motorists to make such turns at intersections of state highways that enter towns unless the cities and towns feel otherwise.

Business Notes

Ray Petersen, meter servicer for the Wayne County Public Power District, attended a three-day electric meter testing school, sponsored by the Nebraska Rural Electric Association, at Central Nebraska Technical College at Hastings. Jack McEnerney, Columbus, with the Cornhusker Public Power District, was coordinator for the school, which was conducted Monday through Wednesday.

Spud

The game is called "spud" and the second grade children in the Wayne area have a chance to join in during the Wayne Recreation summer sessions. According to Mrs. Mike Karel and Mrs. Alvin Eilers, co-directors of the summer programs, the city is sponsoring two three-week sessions for children of grade school age.

Percentages Confusing to Most Persons

Which will produce more income each year—money left at 3-3/4 per cent compounded annually, . . . or an equal amount left at 3-1/2 per cent compounded monthly?

Although it may sound as if you're getting more for your money when you get 3-1/2 per cent interest on, say, $100 compounded monthly, you'd better off getting your interest compounded at 3-3/4 per cent annually; the latter method yields 19 cents more—and over the years it makes extra-good sense to have your money make extra cents.

Check all guarantees to be sure they're not "guarantee." For example, a guarantee says in bold letters at the top "Ten Year Guarantee" you may think you're in good hands. But if it goes on to say, in much smaller print, that the guarantor will fix the product free only if something goes wrong with it during the first 30 days after the purchase, you may find that you will have to pay for labor or even the full repair cost if the product breaks down during the remainder of the 10-year period.

Are you always running out of cash when a credit card or checking account won't do, especially the large amounts you sometimes need for a family emergency or for down payment on a sale item? The next thing to keeping a lot of cash around the house, but a lot safer, is to keep a substantial reserve of refundable travelers checks in a safe place. You needn't leave home to take advantage of this early available financial convenience.

A good rule is to have $500 or at least $200 handy in travelers checks of convenient denominations; these checks can be used in millions of places and are refundable in more locations around the world than any other. Incidentally, if you ever accidentally overdraw your checking account, a supply of travelers checks will help tide you over that embarrassing "deposit gap."

Social Hour to Honor Dames Visiting Here

A social hour for the Danish students and instructors will be held Tuesday evening, June 27, at the Black Knight Lounge.

The event is being sponsored by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce.

dangerous to the user and society than LSD and marijuana combined.

"Help, I'm a Cop," 28-minute color film for junior high, senior high, college and adult ages. Examines the sociological and psychological factors which create the basic makeup of today's law enforcement officer. Discusses the various pressures which come to bear on a policeman and which often contribute to his dehumanization in the eyes of the public. Through an interview with a sergeant in Oakland, Calif., the film attempts to communicate to a non-police audience how the world looks to a policeman. A series of short dramatizations underlines the frustrations expressed by the sergeant.

Nation's Capitol Weathered Two Wars

WASHINGTON—The capitol andoubtedly is Washington, D. C.'s oldest unfinished building.

Construction projects or plans for alteration have surrounded the landmark ever since the first cornerstone was laid on Sept. 18, 1793, the National Geographic Society says.

Studios have been made for a four-level, 1,000-car garage under the capitol Plaza. One recent suggestion called for an outdoor restaurant, with umbrella-shaded tables on the terrace facing the Washington Monument and the White House.

A current proposal to enlarge the capitol's West Front has been sharply attacked by many Congressmen who prefer to have the old wall restored rather than extended.

Early construction of the capitol was hampered by lack of funds and skilled workmen. The building's original architect, Dr. William Thornton, recommended marble walls, but President Washington substituted sandstone as an economy measure. The softer material was cut into blocks near a Virginia quarry and hauled up the Potomac river by barge.

The first Senate and House wings were built after the cornerstone ceremony, but they were badly damaged by fire in the War of 1812.

The cornerstone for the capitol's center section was laid in 1818, and the Rotunda was far enough along in 1824 to be opened for a reception honoring the Marquis de Lafayette.

It was an age of chivalry, notes "We, the People," the official Capitol guidebook produced by the National Geographic Society and published by the United States Capitol Historical Society.

Gentlemen of the House and Senate welcomed visiting ladies to the floors of their respective halls, or, seeing their guests sitting for hours in hot and crowded galleries, passed up refreshments of fruit tied to the ends of long sticks.

In September, 1850, Congress appropriated money for an enlargement that reduced the capitol's original wings to mere links between the additions and central rotunda. The new legislative halls were models of beauty with hand-somely paneled walls and new-fangled gas lighting.

The shiny rooms were overshadowed at the close of the 1850's by rising tensions that would lead to the Civil War.

"Every man on the floor of both Houses is armed with a revolver," observed a senator from South Carolina. When one member accidentally dropped his weapon during a bitter debate, it caused an uproar.

The capitol served as barracks, then as hospital, in the early months of the war. Soldiers called their quarters the "Big Tent," and boasted of portraiture parlors, comfortable sofas, and desks for letter writing. Basement committee rooms were converted into a bakery that turned out enough loaves to feed the city's defense force.

With the return of Congress, the soldiers left and work continued on the capitol. President Lincoln was quoted as saying, "If people see the capitol going on,

Arthritis Is Inflammation of Joints

Arthritis means inflammation of a joint and nothing more specific than that, according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

Therefore, arthritis is frequently a part of most rheumatic diseases, but not the only part. Some form of arthritis or rheumatism is experienced by almost every adult.

The Nebraska Medical Association is a sign we intend the Union shall go on.

Research indicates strong evidence that emotional stress can bring on rheumatoid arthritis. Data based on a study of identical twins, suggests that upsetting experiences have a major role in development of this puzzling and crippling disease. The study minimizes the influence of inherited factors.

The Republican convention will be held Aug. 21 at Miami Beach, Fla.

the amount of active ingredient per acre: Diazinon 14G—one pound; EPN-2G, 0.3 lb., Thimet 15G, one pound; Sevin 10G, two lbs.; Texaphene 10G, two pounds. If a farmer decides to control first brood corn borers, materials can be applied by air or with farm equipment. If the services of an aerial applicator cannot be obtained on short notice, farmers can apply Sevin 80W at the rate of two pounds per acre (active ingredient), or Diazinon Ag 500, one pound per acre sprayed into whorls.

"Use a high volume of water per acre to get coverage," Keith advised. The chemicals must get into the whorls to be effective against borers.

CORN BORER CONTROL

Farmers with early-planted corn—which may represent only five to 10 per cent of the state's corn acreage—are advised to prepare for possible infestation by first brood corn borers.

This word comes from Dr. David Keith, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension entomologist, who noted that the first emergence of corn-borer moths has been observed.

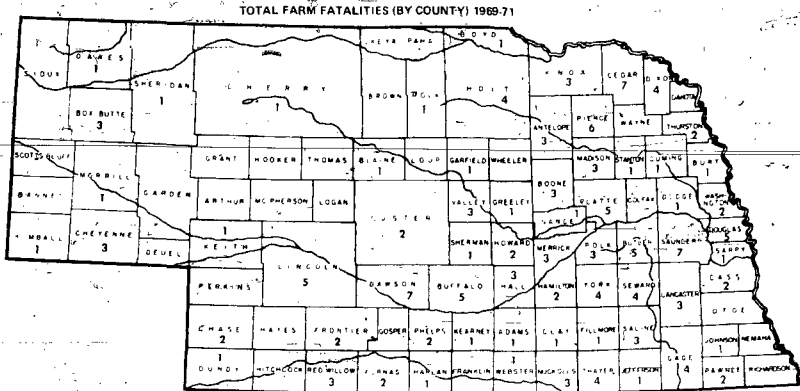

"Moth emergence is likely to peak between June 10-15, and farmers with early-planted corn should look for shot-hole feeding in corn leaves as early as June 15," Keith stated. Early corn that will have an extended height of 20-30 inches by mid-June will be attractive to the first brood, the Extension insect control specialist explained.

"If more than 50 per cent of the corn plants grown for grain show the characteristic holes in the leaves (whorls), or if 25 per cent of seed corn fields show borer activity, control measures should be taken," Keith recommended.

Treatment for borer control before the larvae move from the whorls into the stalk of the plant is crucial, Keith said. When borers are about half grown and appear about a half inch long—they move into the stalk areas. Corn growers have less than two weeks to apply chemicals from the time shot hole feeding signs are observed. Last year, late treatment was a problem in some areas of the state, he commented. "There is no effective control once the borers get into the stalk," Keith said.

For farmers who find controls necessary, granular materials are preferred over sprays, Keith said. For first brood control, they can be applied with the same equipment farmers use for applying corn rootworm materials.

Farm Accidents Can Happen in a Split-second's Time

What problems are associated with farm accidents? Is age a factor? Does the area of the state have some effect? Is the type of farming important in relationship to accidents? What is the ratio of males to females involved in farm accidents?

A look at some answers to these questions is contained in a continuing study of farm-related fatalities gathered by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Data covering 1969-71 pinpointed areas where accidents and fatalities occurred on a map of Nebraska. Many of the counties without fatalities were in areas with less farming activity and therefore not as high a probability for machinery-associated fatalities. Terrain also played an important part.

Machinery-related accidents accounted for 101 of the 166 fatalities, including power take-off, overturn, run over by equipment, and falling from equipment accidents. The tractor overturn accidents accounted for 55 of these fatalities. In all these fatalities, none of the tractors had roll bars or cabs.

In a second study, only three fatalities resulted from 28 overturns in which all tractors had roll bars or cabs. The remaining accidents may have caused injuries but not fatalities.

The three fatalities in this study occurred in two accidents with cabs which were not manufactured before the period when protective cabs were available and so were not considered effective.

In the male-female statistics, males accounted for 149 of 166 fatalities over a three-year period. During this period, three females were killed in 1969 with seven each killed in 1970 and 1971. These statistics may be affected by the newer labor laws, which may force farm wives to be involved in more farm work and therefore more subject to accidental injury or death.

Statistics on age showed that the 10-14 and 55-59 age groups had the largest number of fatalities. A study on tractor overturns showed that both these age groups accounted for the highest overturn fatality rate. In that study, the 10-19-year-olds were going 100 fast while the over-55 range overturned tractors on steep slopes.

The remaining 65 fatalities resulted from suffocation, animals, electrocutions, falls or falling objects, crushing, hanging, explosions, poisoning and miscellaneous causes. Although suffocation involves only five fatalities a year, the nature of the accident puts the fatality rate up to 50 per cent, which makes this type of accident significant. Livestock accidents account for three to five fatalities each year with the greatest number involving horses.

Ruth Schneider, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension safety specialist, said, "Farm fatalities need not occur. In almost every fatality case, some safety rule was violated and in a small percentage, equipment failure could play a part. In order to counter this problem, it is necessary for each family or person associated with agriculture to consider the hazards that go with the job. An accident can happen in a split second—don't give it a chance to occur."

Duroc Picnic Held At Northeast Station

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Sorenson, Route 2, Wayne, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill McQuiston of Pender were picnic hosts for the Duroc Breed Association Sunday at the Northeast Station.

Hams were barbecued outside and Cal Ward, superintendent of the Nebraska University experimental station near Concord, conducted tours for the guests.

Specialist Warns of Overfeeding Pigs On Meat and Bone Scrap and Tankage

By Bob Fritschon
District Extension
Swine Specialist
Northeast Station

Often times we receive questions regarding the use of tankage or meat and bone scraps in swine rations.

To some producers, the addition of an animal source of protein seems important. I don't argue with success, however, University of Nebraska research has shown that when over 5 per cent of the diet or 25 per cent of the protein source is made up of tankage or meat and bone scraps, you can expect reduced performance in growing-finishing pigs, so use the above figures as recommendations if you want to include those ingredients in your ration.

Our recommendation regarding protein source still includes soybean meal as the only protein source for pigs 25 pounds and up. We have not been able to show a beneficial response by using a combination of protein sources.

The 1969 Ag Census reveals a marked trend toward a greater commitment to farm swine enterprises. In 1969 Nebraska had 31,157 farms producing swine; this is a 22 per cent reduction since 1964.

In 1969 there were 7,791 Nebraska farms producing 200 or more pigs per year. This represented a 34 per cent increase since 1964. Of the top 10 pork-producing states, only Kansas (64 per cent) and Missouri (35 per cent) can show a greater increase, while South Dakota equaled Nebraska's increase in this category.

During the five years (1964-1969) that we were losing 22 per cent of our hog farms, we still were increasing our output by 9 per cent. With fewer farms producing more pork, we have witnessed increased stability in the market.

In March, while on a trip into Texas, I had occasion to visit about swine production problems in that area. One of the deepest impressions I brought back concerned marketing.

Here in the major pork producing area with large hog markets at our back door, we tend to take marketing for granted. The Texas producers have a real problem in finding any type of market.

One producer stated that in order to sell hogs, he had to make an "appointment" two or three weeks in advance of marketing. Others have hauls of 200 to 300 miles or more. If, and when, the Texans ever solve their marketing problems, they will present some stiff competition to the Midwest producer.

Picnic - Farmer Style

Summer time means picnic time. Picnic time is when the entire family, young and old, spend leisure weekends or Sundays at the dam or lake or state park.

Picnic time is a time for eating fried chicken, sliced tomatoes, grilled steaks or wieners from the coolers and barbecues pits. Usually the picnic food is served on a colorful cloth spread on a wooden or wrought iron table.

There seems to be no end to the types of scenic resorts available where you can take your picnic food. The summer editions of most magazines are full of enchanting pictures showing the exotic and the delicious looking, exciting foods to be served for picnics.

But the only problem is that these delicious looking, exotic, gourmet foods aren't planned nor prepared for a farmer's picnic. Which, during the summer, is held daily in an entirely different environment.

Picnic in Field
The hostess in this case usually serves the picnic food alongside a tractor in a corn, oats or hay field.

Even as unrecrational as this type of picnicking may sound, it has its advantages. At least when she takes dinner to the field in the pickup and parks at the end of the rows where he's working she knows that dinner will be eaten during the noon hour.

That is unless when you bounced out of that last gopher hole, Susie let go of the coffee jar and it broke. And if he hadn't run over the good thermos jar when stacking hay you'd have something decent to put it in.

Instead you had to go back to the house, make more coffee, round up the kids—again—and start for the field—again.

Another advantage of picnics in the fields is that the kids can go as they are. And so can you.

By now the ice in the water jar has melted. The meat loaf and the scalloped potatoes have gone from hot to lukewarm.

When you get just about to where he is working you see him come to the end of the field, turn around and start back across the field.

The potatoes and meat loaf go from lukewarm to cold by the time he returns.

Of course he saw you coming. But he knew it would take you about one minute to get there and another minute to set the food out.

No Time Wasted
And of course you wouldn't want him to waste even half a minute waiting for you.

At noon there isn't much shade anywhere. It's over half a mile to the nearest shade tree. So you just set the once hot dishes on the floor of the pickup cab and the salad and buttered bread on the seat.

At least you took most of the food out of the box.

Although paper plates are very convenient and customary for an ordinary picnic, they are considered almost absolutely uncivilized by most farmers. Even when eating in the fields. So you brought along one picnic plate. And paper plates for you and the kids.

He fills his plate and sets down halfway under the tractor in the cool, freshly-tilled soil.

While over-seeing the kids while they fill their plates, you pour him a cup of the fresh, hot coffee. But he refuses it. He says he'd much rather have a cold drink of lemonade or something.

What's he think you're operating? A catering service of some kind?

Well, he'll have to settle for a plain, melted ice cube drink with a little fresh water mixed in.

Then he wants to know how come you didn't make some of your good homemade buns instead of bringing out this boughten stuff.

You inform him that by the time you'd finished his chores, did you own chores, dressed the younger kids, fixed the breakfasts, washed all the dishes, went back out and told the milkman what he'd said—slightly modified of course—about the test dog last week, washed the milk cooler, put dinner in the oven, went back out and argued with the egg man over the weight of last week's case of eggs, loaded up the food and the kids, it was noon.

He acts like he never asked the question by asking what the milk man had said about the milk test and if you told him that you'd changed the cow's feed? For some reason he never wants to know what the egg man had to say.

The only part of the meal that is still hot is the pie. You give him about one fourth of the pie and split the rest among yourself and the kids. Well, the kids anyway.

Ant Invasion
It's about time you were all getting done eating because the ants and flies have discovered your picnic area for the day. Thus making it an official picnic.

As you smash an ant, shoo, away a fly and yell for the kids to hold their woolly plates with both hands you hear someone say something about how much better the pie would taste with a big gob of ice cream melting on it.

He must not be thinking about lunch this afternoon or he wouldn't be pressing his luck.

He decides if you still have some of that coffee, he'll have a cupful. Just as though the kids drank it. So you pour him a cupful. Again.

You change the subject for the kids from paper plates to silverware as you loudly, clearly remind them to put their forks and spoons back into the box in the pickup.

Leftovers for Mom
Then you fill your plate and eat whatever. If any, food is left while he is refueling the tractor from the cans in the pickup and counting each shot of grease put into each zerk.

You assure him that you won't be late with lunch and he starts back across the field. The kids know this is a sign that the picnic is over. Either they make a run for the pickup or walk back to the house.

They've never had to walk, unless they wanted to, but a few times you've sure driven slow for quite a while until they caught up.

As you enter your hastily left kitchen, plop the box of dirty dishes down on the table, someone plops on your arm and says "Hey, Mom, when are we gonna eat?"

The total mineral intake for cows from both forage and grain supplement should not contain more than twice as much calcium as phosphorus, according to Dr. Samuel B. Guss, Penn State veterinarian.

Move to Give 'Fourth Class Service' To Small Towns Opposed by Thone

(This is a statement by the Honorable Charles Thone in the U. S. House of Representatives on June 7, 1972.)

"Mr. Speaker, fourth-class treatment for Nebraska farmers and residents of small towns is proposed with the announcement that the U.S. Postal Service plans to discontinue Sunday deliveries to third- and fourth-class post offices in my state.

"The proposed move will delay first-class letter delivery and will make it difficult or impossible for many farmers and people who live in small towns to get a newspaper on Sunday. When mail is not delivered to a post office on Sunday, it isn't sent to reach homes on Monday. Many rural Nebraskans subscribe to Sunday newspapers by mail. They go to the post office to pick up their papers on Sunday. Without Sunday deliveries...

"The U.S. Postal Service is attempting to convey the idea that it is newly efficient. The high-priced image-makers, however, cannot conceal the fact that mail service is still deteriorating, while rates go higher.

"Today, Postmaster General E. T. Klassen declares that it is unprofitable to make Sunday deliveries to third- and fourth-class post offices in Nebraska. Tomorrow, at the rate he is going, he will declare that all rural free delivery is unprofitable.

"Within the next few weeks, Congress is expected to pass new legislation to aid in the re-development and revitalization of rural America. I, of course, will support this legislation. Does it make sense, however, for one arm of Government to provide millions and millions of dollars to make rural America liveable, while another arm of government, the Postal Service, tries to cut off farmers and small town dwellers from information and service through the mail?"

"The cost of Sunday delivery to Nebraska third- and fourth-class post offices compared to the cost of contemplated increases in postal rates is similar to the difference in size between a gnat and an elephant.

"The new entity to deliver the mail added service to its name. I think it is about time to place service foremost in the management philosophy of the U. S. Postal Service. I am again calling on Postmaster General Klassen to rescind his order to end Sunday Service to small Nebraska post offices as of July 1st."

Feeders to Pick Cattle to Grade Tuesday Evening

Selecting cattle which will produce the kind of beef consumers enjoy most is an important part of cattle feeding. Dixon County feeders will join Tom Gustafson at his feedlot north of Wakefield at 6:30 Tuesday evening in selecting heifers with this in mind.

The group of cattle from Gustafson's feedlot will be judged by the feeders—as to how easy will grade "in the beef" about five weeks later at the Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Market Study. These cattle, along with cattle selected and finished in Thurston, Wayne and Dakota Counties, will be brought together at Iowa Beef Processors yards at Dakota City, Saturday, July 22.

There feeders again will estimate and discuss the quality or "eating desirability" grade of "prime," "choice" or "good" for each animal and the yield or cutability grade as to per cent of tender, red meat they will produce. The cattle will be slaughtered, and on Monday, July 24 the carcasses will be graded by USDA graders so the live estimates and the actual meat produced can be compared.

This is the third Beef Market Study of the Northeast Livestock Feeders Association and a great deal has been learned about producing top quality beef George Olson, chairman of the event, believes.

Veterans, Students Seek Job Openings

A representative from the Nebraska Department of Labor, Division of Employment, will be at the Wayne County Courthouse basement Wednesday, June 28, from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Kenneth Bower, manager of the Norfolk office, says 1,188 job-seekers registered at his office during May, with 273 veteran applications on file.

Non-agricultural job openings totaled 172, with only 14 unfilled at the end of the month.

Bower points out that many young people and veterans are seeking summer or permanent employment and urges all employers to contact the Norfolk office or the representative who visits Wayne twice monthly.

Gary Bleasdel of Norfolk, son of Mrs. Nina Lamphear of Randolph and Gale Bleasdel of South Sioux City, was one of two Northeast Nebraska Technical College graduates who received straight A's for the 12-week spring quarter. The other honoree was Gene Kander of Clarkson.

Gary, in the electronics division, was the only student at the college to receive A's in all courses taken for three quarters of the 1971-72 school year. Forty-two students were on the Dean's List, which requires a 3.5 average on a 4.0 scale. Area students included:

LeRoy Koepke of Hoekins, Dennis Harmeler of Carroll, Kenneth Rabe and Donna Nissen of Wisner, Larry Magee of Bancroft, Janet Harrison of Ponca and Richard Lind of Pierce.

VA Administration

Questions, Answers

Q—I am a 20-year-old child of a veteran who was totally disabled during World War II. Am I eligible for educational assistance from the Veterans Administration?

A—Yes, provided the total disability has continued or is otherwise established as permanent.

Q—When do GI loan benefits for World War II veterans expire?

A—Under current law, there is no expiration date for any eligible veteran who has not used his entitlement.

Q—My mother receives a pension from the Veterans Administration because of the death of my father, a World War I veteran. She has been in a nursing home for the past four months. I recently learned that she may be entitled to an additional $50 per month because she is in a nursing home. Is this correct?

A—Yes. Have your mother submit evidence that she is a patient in the nursing home, and the VA will be able to make the additional award. On fact, if VA determines such a person requires the aid and attendance of another person, she will be eligible for this payment even if she is not in a nursing home.

Learning Disability Tests Prove Students Benefitted

Don Koenig, in charge of the "motor perception" division of the Title III learning disability program at West Elementary School, told the Wayne Kiwanis Club Monday noon that, after a year's operation, the LDP has shown that of 12 first-graders, 11 with the most progress in motor perception also had shown the most improvement in the classroom.

"There is a definite correlation between those with perception problems and those with problems in the classroom," Koenig said.

Perceptual motion was defined as the manner in which a child perceives the different stimuli—seeing, touching and the ability to learn. "Somewhere along the line, some have not been able to put it all together," the speaker pointed out.

Motor perception includes five areas—application of muscular strength; dynamic or moving balance—learning right from left; body awareness, with some children having no idea where body parts are located; space awareness, where others seem to have little judgment as to how much space is required for movement, writing, etc., and temporal awareness, where some have no "beat or rhythm," a sequence by which to live.

In the application of strength, the instructor watches whether a student can adapt and think out what he is doing while using a balance beam. A pre-test and post-test is made of each child.

Projecting the program into the future, Koenig said that motor perception will be compulsory for all those entering kindergarten in the fall. At present the program includes first through fourth grades, after which time the children are enrolled in regular physical education classes at Middle School.

"Nationwide tests have shown about 15 per cent of students have a learning disability to some degree and it has also been proven that an individual's IQ has been increased by as much as 45 points in one post-test.

Federal funding for the Title III program is on an increasing basis for the first three years, then it must be financed by the school district.

"It could be worked into the regular physical education program," Koenig said, adding "there have been some problems from other students' egotism."

Their classmates have accepted "Parents have reacted with no problem," he concluded.

Five minutes before baking time is up, remove pans, paper and rice and put shells back in to get crisp. The rice can be used again.

Rally at Wakefield Church on Sunday

A "God and Country Rally" will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at the Wakefield Christian Church, according to Pastor John Epperson.

Evangelist John B. Book of Maitland, Fla., is the son of Morris Butler Book, well-known evangelist, and grandson of William Henry Book, pioneer preacher and restoration evangelist.

John Book received his ministerial training at Cincinnati Bible Seminary and has been active in public affairs to the extent that he was nominated to run for governor of Virginia and also asked to run for the office of lieutenant governor.

He has his own weekly radio and TV program, "Christian Viewpoint."

Singing during the program will be the Revivalaires' Gospel Lads Quartet, who appear coast to coast on television and who have recorded five stereo albums.

The Lads became associated with the Revival Fires in January of 1971 at Joplin, Mo., where the group's international headquarters are located.

Pastor Epperson stressed that everyone, regardless of religious affiliation, is invited to take part in the non-denominational rally.

Begonias, especially the angel-wings, may give you trouble by dropping lower leaves. If so, the only thing to do is take cuttings of tips that still have foliage and leave the old stems. They'll soon sprout new leaves, sending up stems from base for more compact growth.

Famed Clocks Are Back Into Production

World famous Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Mich., has announced that a group of outstanding clocks from its vast collection is being reproduced exclusively by Colonial of Zeeland, Mich.

Initially, six clocks were produced representing the fine craftsmanship of the early years of American decorative arts. In the near future, two more are to be added. Colonial designers spent almost two years in re-producing as authentically as possible time-pieces originally made by such famous clockmakers as Aaron Willard, Joseph Doll, Brewster & Ingrahams and E. N. Welch.

To ensure the authenticity of the reproduction of the spirit as well as the appearance of the originals, Henry Ford Museum officials periodically reviewed progress, inspecting every detail of design, construction and wood finish before approving them for manufacture.

Two clocks of Aaron Willard, the notable clockmaker of Boston, are included in this group.

One, reproduced from a Tall Clock made about 1795, has an unusual dial with a ship that rocks with every stroke of the pendulum. The reproduction has been reduced to 85" from the original 94" with all parts sealed accordingly, to be suitable for today's interiors. The second Willard is a one-of-a-kind Bang Clock with painted tablets originally made in his Boston shop around 1802.

Colonial's Joseph Doll Tall Clock is reproduced from one made by this outstanding cabinetmaker in Lancaster, Pennsylvania about 1820. It features intricate hand-marquetry on the head, waist and base.

The maker of the original Lancaster County Painted Clock in the group is unknown. Some of its unusual features, however, suggest J. P. Tower and F. Swomey, who worked in the area in the late-18th and early-19th centuries. It stands 79" high, scaled down from the original 100".

The final two clocks in this initial series are a rosewood School Clock originally made by the E. N. Welch Company about 1884 and a reproduction of a Steeple Clock made by the Brewster & Ingrahams Company of Bristol, Connecticut between 1844 and 1852.

The two reproductions which are now being readied for distribution are both tall case clocks. The first is from a clock made by Thomas Jackson of Preston, Conn. in about 1805. The other is by John Warren of Ockhampton, England and dates from about 1700.

Only a limited number of each style is being made. They are available only in selected, quality stores throughout the country. The Henry Ford Museum Seal is burned into the back of each case with an individual registered serial number to assure authenticity.

Most patients are able to continue with their usual job once they have recovered from a heart attack, notes the Nebraska Heart Association. Some may have to make job adjustments and changes in their manner of living.

Two of the types of historically famous clocks of the Henry Ford Museum being reproduced are shown here.

Something to Sneeze At

If you think farmers and hay fever victims are the only ones who suffer from weed problems, you're likely still smelling the blossoms and haven't yet discovered the thorns.

That's the message of a new educational slide film just released by the Weed Science Society of America. Titled "The Wicked World of Weeds," the film is aimed at informing farm and urban audiences alike that they both share the cost and discomfort of weeds whether they see them or not.

According to the film, weed losses to agriculture alone are estimated at $3.7 billion each year, a cost which follows food right to your table.

It takes millions of tax dollars to control weeds along streets and highways, in lakes and streams, in parks and other public lands. Industry spends additional millions to control unwanted vegetation around factories and stores, airports and railroad tracks, pipelines and highways. It's another expense of doing business, and another cost the consumer must bear when he buys any product or service.

Many people are affected more directly. The film states that 13 million people in the United States suffer from hay fever and asthma, much of it complicated by weeds. This leads to nearly 100 million days of restricted activity and about 40 million bed-disabled days every year. This is lost production that, again, the ultimate consumer must absorb.

While some of the facts presented in the film are more painful than a good case of poison ivy, the cartoon treatment used is light and entertaining.

The film was produced by the Weed Science Society of America in cooperation with the Vocational Agriculture Service of the University of Illinois. Copies of the slide series are available for $8 to schools, garden clubs or any other interested group or individual. Simply write to: University of Illinois Vo-Ag Service, 434 Mumford Hall, Urbana, IL 61801 and request "The Wicked World of Weeds."
