Girls sports, baseball, and a former all-star basketball coach all join this summer's traditional seasonals at the Nebraska Coaches Association's Summer Coaching Clinic in Lincoln.

Clinic director Tom Dineen of Omaha Central said Carol Frost of Götterburg will conduct meetings on girls track and volleyball. Mrs. Frost, formerly a stand-out athlete, will inaugurate the Association's venture into girls athletics.

Dineen, in announcing the clinic staff for the Aug. 16, 17 and 18 affair, noted that actions by the Nebraska School Activities Association, the governing body for Nebraska high school athletics, have opened the way for inclusion of girls into the high school sports scene.

Baseball will also be new to the agenda. Veteran Virgil Yelkin of the University of Nebraska at Omaha has been obtained to conduct these sessions. Observing that there is a need for inclusion of baseball into the clinic schedule, Dineen said Omaha schools alone annually field 20 baseball teams that have one or two coaches each.

Dineen said he hopes that inclusion of the girls sports and baseball into the clinic schedule will encourage more coaches to join the Association. "The more coaches we get to join, the stronger the Association is going to be," he said. Association dues are included in the clinic fee of $15.

Also on tap for clinic participants will be Omaha Cathedral's Roger Higgins who guided last year's North all-star team to its first victory in the Association's all-star basketball game which closes the three-day session. Higgins, who recently announced his retirement from basketball coaching duties at Cathedral, also tutored his Cardinals to the Class B state championship this spring.

Other basketball clinicians include a Omaha colleague of Higgins, coach Tom Hale of Omaha Westside. Hale's Westside Warriors are noted for their defensive ability and he will conduct a session on defensive drills. Heading the basketball portion of the clinic is Villanova's Jack Kraft, a zone defense specialist.

The football headliner is former San Francisco 49er coach Jack Christensen who takes over this fall as head coach of the Stanford Indians, succeeding John Ralston. Also on the football program is Ray Westbay and his staff from Wassen High School in Colorado Springs. Dineen, a football coach, noted that Wassen has a string of over 20 consecutive wins and utilizes the wishbone offense.

In wrestling, clinic sessions will be headed by UNO's Mike Palumbo, head mentor at Omaha for two seasons. Dineen said wrestling coaches may bring their workout clothes and participate on the mat during the clinic.

Summer Changing Angler's Fishing Tactics, Outlook

Nebraska anglers will soon find the state's fishing picture changed by the arrival of summer, and they will have to shift their efforts to different species and adopt new tactics.

A big summer favorite in Nebraska is the catfish, and the state's many rivers and streams are tailor-made for catfishing. Channels cats have just about ended their spawning activities and should be gathering in the deeper holes of the rivers. Here, the eddies and swirls serve them a wide variety of natural delicacies.

Preview of 1973 Little Leaguers, Midgets Given

If next year's Wayne Midgets and Little Leaguers play like they did Thursday night against Pliger, the locals could be pushing for two undefeated teams.

Center fielder Gordie Cook blasted a one-run triple while pitcher Earle Overhurler hurled 13 strikeouts as the Wayne team, composed of players who will be competing as Midgets in 1973, smashed Pliger, 12-1, at Pliger.

Overhurler allowed only two hits during the six-inning contest while Wayne scattered 16 hits, including 14 singles, a double and a triple.

The visitors broke the game open in the fourth with nine runs off nine hits.

First baseman Dave Schwartz was the leading slugger, starting the first inning with a home run, connecting for a double and two single during the remainder of the five-inning game.

Schwartz accounted for three runs, while Pliger totaling four hits in four times at bat.

Pitcher Tom Ginn, who got the win, also hitting log with a triple. Ginn also scored three runs.

Tackle needed to take catfish is usually very basic. All that is necessary is a rod with a stout line, the proper hook, bait, enough weight to take it to the bottom and keep it there. Large single hooks will do the job, most of the time, but anglers using prepared baits or liver will find that a No. two or four treble hook will hold a bait longer.

In Nebraska's reservoirs, catfish generally feed in the shallows and mud flats at the upper end of the lakes. Areas near inlets and feeder streams are hotspots, and good catfishing is often found several miles up from a reservoir.

Some baits are good producers throughout the state, including night crawlers, minnows, frogs, crawdads, liver, commercial baits, cheese, and chicken entrails. Some unusual baits are popular locally. In one part of central Nebraska, veteran catfishermen swear by a certain brand of old-fashioned bar laundry soap as a sure-fire producer.

In lakes and backwaters where there is no current, less weight should be used. Often, slipfinkers are used so that the fish will feel no drag when he takes off with the angler's offering.

Most of the tactics that produce channel catfish also work well on his cousin, the flathead cat. Also called the "mud" catfish or yellow catfish, they are found in some of the same waters as channel catfish and can be caught in much the same way.

Nebraska to Issue Two Types of Permits for Hunting of Coyotes

Hunting coyotes with the aid of aircraft has been limited in Nebraska to holders of special permits from the Game and Parks Commission.

Permits will be issued only when it becomes necessary to thin coyote numbers in an area for the protection of livestock.

Following a public hearing at their regular monthly meeting in Lincoln, Commissioners decided to issue two types of permits.

One allows shooting from the aircraft, while the other permits use of the plane to spot coyotes for hunters on the ground. In both cases, any occupant of the aircraft who serves as pilot, spotter, or gunner must have one of the special licenses. It is expected that the permits to shoot coyotes from aircraft will be largely limited to personnel of the U. S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

The Commission's action stems from a new federal law that makes shooting or harassment of wildlife from an aircraft a felony punishable by a fine up to $5,000, a year in prison, or both. However, the same law also allowed states to issue special permits for hunting predators when they threaten domestic animals. The 1972 Unlawful game the Game Commission authority to issue these permits at $5 each.

The Commission will provide names of permit holders to persons expressing a need for coyote control. However, in areas where there is no substantial evidence of predation or the threat of livestock loss from coyotes, the agency may refuse to issue any of the special permits.

Permits should be printed and available for issuance by September. Anyone desiring one should request an application by writing the Game and Parks Commission, Lincoln. The Commission warned, however, that the law specifically provides that the permits can be issued only to prevent loss of domestic animals. There is no authorization for the use of aircraft in strictly sport hunting.

Five area teams, including Wayne, Winside, Laurel, Randolph and Coleridge, will compete in the Midget action Friday night through Sunday while Junior Legion play will start Saturday.

The Wayne and Winside squads are regarded as top contenders in the Midget division. Last week the Winside club handed Wayne its first loss, dropping the locals, 9-0.

Laurel and Coleridge will open the tourney in a 6 p.m. contest Friday at the Wayne ball diamond. Randolph and Winside will round out the night with an 8 p.m. battle.

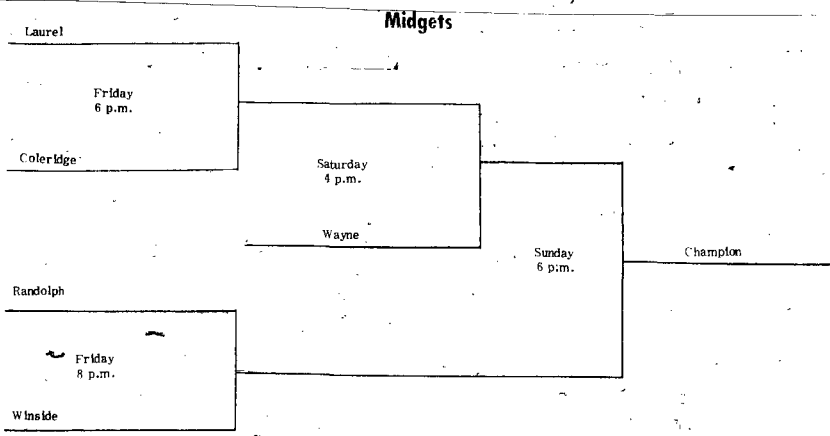

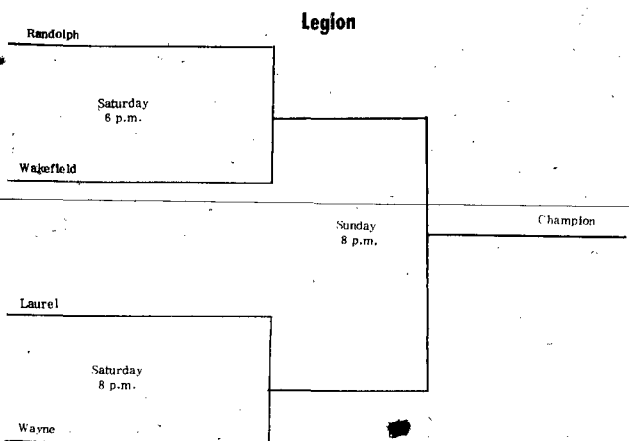

Saturday finds Wayne meeting the winner of the Laurel-Coleridge game at 4 p.m. to end the Midget play until the finals Sunday at 6 p.m.

Junior Legion action will be-

The tournament will come to a close Sunday with the Junior Legion finals at 8 p.m.

The winners of both the Junior Legion and Midgets will then qualify for the area tournament, at Wakefield on July 26. From there the qualifiers will travel to St. Paul to compete for the state title.

Wayne Girls Split Games With Wakefield

Wayne's Julie Overn blasted a booming triple to lead her team past Wakefield, 7-6, Wednesday in a game played at Wayne.

The local 14-year-old and under team squeaked out its victory in the fifth inning via an RBI by Carla Schwartz who singled to drive in Overn.

The home team started out with a 4-0 lead after three innings, but the visitors came back in the fourth to tie the game.

Wakefield's Susie Kober opened the fourth with a walk, followed by a single by Paul Hallstrom socked a double for two RBIs. Catcher Hartig then walked, putting runners on first and second. An error allowed both girls to score.

In the 18-year-old and under class, Wakefield edged Wayne in a slugfest, 18-11.

The visitors' Lueders handled the hot bat for her teammates, slugging a homer, triple, two doubles and a single for six RBIs.

Wayne's Tammy Schultz was the only local player to sock a triple.

Wayne started out with a 4-3 lead in the second and continued with a run in the fourth before the visitors tied the game at 7-7. From that point, Wakefield kept swinging to top the locals, 18-14.

Conn Library Receives Slide Collection

Back in the early 1900's a youngster named Calvin McKim grew up training mules on his family's farm north of O'Neill, near a hamlet called Opportunity.

Later on, Opportunity vanished from the map, but McKim adopted some of the determination he learned from the mules and made his own opportunity.

With no high school education, he enrolled at Wayne State College and after five years took both McKim and his wife earned two-year diplomas in 1924. A war later he had completed a bachelor's degree.

Then after starting a master's degree at the University of Nebraska, McKim and his wife began a career of teaching, traveling, and photographing that took them over most of the world.

Now Wayne State is beneficiary of the McKim career. He has presented thousands of photographic slides that he used in teaching geology, geography and meteorology to college classes.

Housed in Conn Library, the slides are of special interest to students in geology and earth science, Head Librarian Charles Stelling said.

McKim began his worldwide wanderings and photography in the late 1920's when he and his wife spent two years in the Philippines as teachers for the U. S. Civil Service. Besides teaching, he pursued research on his master's in geology.

"It was economic geology," McKim recalled while visiting Wayne State to organize his slide collection. "I found some ways the Philippines could develop some of their resources, gold and other minerals among them."

Numerous photographs came back from the Philippines, starting a collection that McKim has built to about 20,000 slides, from every continent except Antarctica.

"I never took a photograph,

Dr. Calvin McKim cataloging one of several thousand photographic slides he has given to alma mater Wayne State College. The glass slide he holds was taken in the Philippines and later painted in natural colors by a Japanese artist friend. (Photo by Dick Manley) except a few for the family, but I thought how I could use it in teaching," Dr. McKim said.

After finishing master's and doctor's degrees at Nebraska, he taught eight years at Chadron State College (1934-1942) and at Fresno, Calif., State College for 22 years until he retired a decade ago. At Chadron he made good use of his doctoral research on the Pliocene country.

Among the McKim slides are some early products that became more than photographs. They are works of art. In the Philippines he used a pre-stype camera with glass slide film—black and white, for there was no color then. Later he befriended a Japanese artist who painted the black and white slides in remarkably natural color. The results are exquisite.

The McKims now live in Capitola, Calif., near San Francisco, but still travel extensively, pulling a trailer behind their car. A brother, Lyle McKim (better known as Sandy) lives in O'Neill. Another brother, Orville, is in

Labels Tell If Dog Food 'Complete'

It's easy to feed your dog a wholesome, tasty, nutritious diet these days. Just use one of the good complete and balanced commercial dog foods and provide fresh drinking water.

Scientific advances in canine nutrition and the modern technology of pet food manufacturers have eliminated the guesswork of a decade ago.

There are two kinds of pet foods. One is a complete and balanced food in itself. Providing all the nutrients, vitamins and minerals needed to maintain the adult dog in optimum health and life span, it may be fed as the sole diet. By law, the label is allowed to say so.

The second kind is not formulated with all the required nutrients and is known as a supplement.

Grand Island, and a sister, Opal Engelhaupt, in Gering.

mental food. These are good products but you must add the nutrients they lack because they are not in themselves complete and balanced. Lawfully, these products' label may not claim that status. So it's that simple. Just check the label.

The American Kennel Club's "Complete Dog Book," an authoritative guide to total dog care, says: "Look for dog foods with high digestibility, containing proteins of high biological value. Foods like meat, eggs, milk and cottage cheese (each) have good quality protein, are palatable and very digestible."

For economic reasons, most dog foods, canned as well as dry and the sugar-preserved "burger" types, are mainly cereal. Although dogs can utilize cereal, within limits, they have no need for it as a steady diet. It is not their basic food.

Town Teamers Bow at Homer

The Wayne town team baseballers dropped to third place in the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League standings Thursday night when they bowed to Homer, 8-1.

The loss was only the second in league play for the locals, who now have a 5-2 record compared to 7-2 on the part of runner-up Homer. Slou (By Woods is unbeaten in eight league games.

The hosts had a shutout going until the ninth when Wayne scored its only run on Lessman's single and an error on a ball hit by Fritz Weible.

In between, winning Pitcher Mark Gries had complete control of things, whiffing 17 Wayne stickers.

Homer, meanwhile, took a 2-0 lead in the opening frame, added a run in the third, another tie in the fifth and capped the scoring with two in the eighth.

Weible had two of the five Wayne safeties, but Gordon Jorgensen, Bob Brandt and Lessman credited with the others. Homer had six hits, but took full advantage of a number of Wayne errors.

Dr. Wacker started on the mound for the Wayne club and was charged with the loss.

Wayne's First Passenger Elevator in Use

Something new is arising in Wayne—the first passenger elevator in the city's history, located near the office of Dr. George Goblirsch and the Black Knight Lounge.

"The new elevator," said State National Bank President Jim Hein, "will have a capacity of 2,000 pounds."
Hein said that the bank which funded the building of the elevator, built the elevator to serve businesses on the second level of the building.
"We believe that older people need the elevator instead of climbing the steep stairs to either visit the doctor or to get to the lounge."
According to Hein, the elevator was purchased in January from the O'Keef Elevator Co. in Omaha. "The construction, by Ote Construction Co., started around the first week in February."

As a result of the new elevator, the bank, owner of the building, has done extensive remodeling of the upstairs office facilities.
"We put in carpeting and repainted the area."
Hein admitted that the job would have been finished earlier. But a national strike on elevator companies stopped construction for about six weeks.

One of the features of the elevator is the electric eye that keeps the door open until the doorway is clear of obstruction. "This will prevent anyone from having the door close on him."

New Faces at Northeast Station This Summer

"The home agent in Dawson County, Madeline Petersen (daughter of former Cuming County Agent Joe Watson), got me interested in home economics. She was my idol from the time I was a little girl," said Carol Krause, who has spent the past month as a home agent in training at the University of Nebraska Northeast Station at Concord.

"Working with Genevieve Lawrence in Buffalo County the past three summers helped to confirm my interest," she continued.

Miss Krause is a native of Eddyville, a small town located 40 miles west of Kearney. She was graduated in May from Kearney State College where she studied comprehensive home economics.

On June 8, following a week's orientation with other agent trainees in Lincoln, she arrived at the Northeast Station where she was under the direct supervision of Anna Marie Kriefels.

"I was real fortunate to have all kinds of experience," said Miss Krause. "I attended a home furnishings workshop, a state council meeting, a day camp, a practice demonstration day, a judging workshop in Lincoln," she said.

"Extension work was an area of learning for me," continued Miss Krause, who has had experience in the 4-H program. Miss Krause' 4-H experience included club membership for 10 years, a mother and a sister who were 4-H leaders, and three summers of work with the 4-H program in Buffalo County.

Beginning today (Monday), Miss Krause will serve as home agent in Cuming and Stanton Counties.

Linda Baier of Carroll is also spending her summer working with the home economics program at the Northeast Station. A sophomore at the University of Nebraska, Miss Baier is participating in the University's work study program. She began work at the Station in May 30 and will continue until the end of August. Joycelyn Smith is her supervisor.

Miss Baier works primarily with 4-H activities, including counseling at the expanded nutrition day camp and Ponca District 4-H Camp, working with the 4-H home economics judging contests, practice demonstration day, and the simplicity show.

Correction

The name of Mrs. Paul Zoffka was unintentionally omitted from the report of the Dale Langenberg silver wedding anniversary in the last Monday paper. Mrs. Zoffka was among the guests in the Langenberg home that Sunday evening.

University of Nebraska sophomore Linda Baier of Carroll works on pre-registration for the 4-H Home Economics Judging Contests. A participant in the University's work study program, Miss Baier is working at the Northeast Station under the supervision of Joycelyn Smith.

Carol Krause and her familiar briefcase will no longer grace the Northeast Station at Concord. As of today (Monday) Miss Krause will be home agent for Cuming and Stanton Counties.

Cables Would Circle World 10 Times

'72 Convention Logistics Are Staggering

When Abraham Lincoln was nominated for president in the third ballot at the Republican National Convention in Chicago on May 18, 1860, it took days for the entire country and the world to learn about it. Communications then were not the best.

By contrast, the most elaborate and extensive communications system ever put together for a political convention has been assembled for bringing viewers and readers a word-by-word account of the presidential nominating conventions in the program.

The telephone officials estimate that if the cable wires installed for the conventions were laid end to end they would encircle the world about 10 times. About 14,300 feet of submarine and video cable has been placed, much of it buried in the floor of Biscayne Bay.

Communications demands have been much greater than before, according to Don Strohmeier, assistant to the general manager of Southern Bell Telephone Co. in Miami Beach.

Strohmeier says that many months before the first convention his office had received requests for 7,000 telephones, 5,000 lines, 335 teletypewriters for newsmen, 40 switchboards, 500 pre-packaged key telephone systems, 40 video channels, 700 audio channels, 10,000 service orders, 200 coin phones and 279 pieces of video gear.

The telephone company has leased a total of 55,000 square feet of floor space. There is a 4,000-square-foot communications center constructed inside convention hall.

The main job of making sure everyone's calls goes through all right and the convention news is carried around the world requires that telephone line and splicing crew put together quickly and accurately a complex maze of wires.

This year a new modular splicing system developed by 3M researchers, is being used by Southern Bell at Miami Beach. With the new system, a two-man telephone splicing crew can make up to 500 pair splices in an hour, according to Paul Knight, Southern Bell instructor supervisor.

And time is an important factor. Southern Bell figures it had to complete about 38,000 of the modules for the convention communication needs.

"When you consider that we had to hook up enough cable and wires for PBX equipment, TV news wire machines, as well as phones nearly everywhere, for caucuses and delegates, it's quite a job," says Strohmeier.

One more interesting note: the Fontainebleau is "the host hotel has more telephones than the town of Key Largo.

Added Emphasis on Technical College Urged by Congressman Charles Thone

"The national ratio of $14 spent to support four-year institutions of higher education for every $1 spent for technical education needs to change," says First District Congressman Charles Thone.

"By 1980, it is estimated that nearly all the jobs in the labor market will require some job training that most high schools are not equipped to give. Yet, the projections are that less than 20 per cent of these jobs will require as much as a baccalaureate degree.

"The best answer to this situation is the two-year technical college. The Nebraska (TV) camera has shown leadership in this field by providing for eight technical community college districts in the state and also providing money to finance them.

"On the federal level, the higher education bill of 1972, for which I voted, provided a new program to help states design, establish and operate such technical colleges. The same bill also provided for aid in helping elementary and secondary school systems to gear their courses more toward vocational selection and experience.

"Every year, about 800,000 college students drop out. Most likely, the vast majority of those students shouldn't have started university. Many of these students were in college only because their parents demanded that they go. Most of them, I believe, would be much better motivated in a technical college.

"As we devote more financial resources to technical colleges and give more encouragement to young people to attend them, the numbers in universities should drop. As the number of students decrease, the quality of students will increase tremendously. As our four-year schools become restricted more to those who have an intense desire to be there and the ability to do so superbly there, we must make certain we have university facilities of increasingly superior ability.

"As we provide more technical education, we must make certain we are offering education for which job opportunities will be available. Nebraska probably has too much vocational education in agriculture, when we consider the national prediction that between 1968 and 1980 the number of people working on farms is expected to decrease by a third. Similarly, the number of set up competing lemonade stands along a highway jammed with Memorial Day traffic. While sampling each other's product they discover that each has laced the drink with gin. Waiting for customers who never appear, Edith and Mabel gradually lower their inhibitions to the point where they can honestly reveal to each other the disappointment and disillusionment with life.

Continuing as a spotlight for cultural achievements, Monday at 7 p.m., the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) "Special of the Week" features an innovative interpretation of the classic ballet "Swan Lake."

The famous dancer-choreographer Erik Bruhn re-staged the Tchaikovsky work especially for a performance by the National Ballet of Canada. Prima ballerina Lois Smith dances the part of the Swan Queen, and Bruhn himself dances the part of the prince.

Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., public television's "Film Odyssey" gives viewers an invaluable opportunity to see great films they've probably only read about before. One such classic is Russian director Sergei Eisenstein's "The Battleship Potemkin." Produced in 1925, it was the recreation of an actual event: the revolt of the sailors aboard the Potemkin as it was anchored in the harbor of Odesa in 1905.

"Potemkin" was a revolutionary film, and several western countries banned it as propaganda when it was first released.

A surprising phenomenon of 1972, is the emergence of the "Jesus freaks" throughout youthful America.

Two groups, one inner-directed and the other oriented toward re-making society, will demonstrate separate quests for religious meaning when "The Devout Young" studies "Two Communities" Friday at 10:30 p.m.

The Mount Baldy Zen Center, 60 miles west of Los Angeles, attempts to bring the discipline and structure of Eastern Buddhist religion to American youth. Students are introduced to silence and meditation in order to increase their understanding of their own principles.

The Community of the Agape, in the heart of San Francisco's Mission District, attempts to bring young men and women together in a religious family reminiscent of the early days of Christianity. They pronounce their vows of poverty, chastity, and obedience before the Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California.

Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. top pianist and pianist Roberta Fleck joins conductor Arthur Fiedler for an "Evening at the Poppy." Miss Fleck is perhaps most widely known for her smash-hit record "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," which she will perform on the program.

Social Security Questions, Answers

Q. I'm starting my own selling business and my wife will be working as my employee. If I pay her a salary, are her earnings covered under Social Security?

A. No. This is considered family employment and is not covered by Social Security.

Q. I'm a farm worker. I travel and work in several nearby states, but I'm not part of a farm crew. I report to the State Employment Office in each area to get my work. How much do I have to make before my employers must report my wages for Social Security?

A. Each employer must report your wages and send in the Social Security contributions if he paid you cash wages of $150 or more during a calendar year of if you worked for 20 or more days for him during the year for cash wages of any amount figured on a time basis rather than on a piece-rate basis.

Q. I work on a farm, and I sometimes get paid in produce, such as milk, eggs and butter. Should this produce be reported as wages under Social Security?

A. No. Only cash pay for farm work counts as wages under Social Security.
