Riders Roundup Funds For Crippled Children

The members of Wayne County Hombres rode their hearts out Saturday just to little crippled children could walk.

But the "Hoskins" horseshow wasn't all business as the riders from around this area, including parts of South Dakota and Iowa, participated in rounding up funds for children in the area.

Attention centered on the Hoskins arena where a host of riders scrambled, ear and rode their way to place in the 21 events.

The teams of Roger Langenberg, Louis J. Peterson, Sandy Nelson and Richard Behmer along with Debbie and Cheryl Woodford were among the leading donors to give all their winnings back to the crippled children fund.

The excitement of just participating could be seen in the eyes of the younger set as they strived to win first place.

Gordon Davis and Stanley Langenberg were in charge of the horseshow, assisted by the club members, Elmer Peters, Hoskins, was the announcer and Frank Hermelbrach of Rosalie was the judge.

The results:

Pony Pleasure—44 inches—Won by Tom Kramer, Winside; second, Tammi Kirk, Mowile, Ia.; third, Troy Kramer, Norfolk; fourth, Troy Kramer, Winside.

Two year pleasure (114 years)—Won by Brad Langenberg, Hoskins; second, Gordon Kardell, Laurel; third, Tami

Kramer, Norfolk; fourth, Kevin Davis.

Sr Pleasure—Won by Tracy Kramer, Norfolk; second, Gerri Swinney, Wayne; third, Marli Rueckmann, Norfolk; fourth, Harold Fischer, Verillion, S.D.

Potato Race (18)—Won by David Cunningham, second, Karl Saegren, third, Mike Lang, Hoskins; fourth, Doug Asmus; See RIDERS, page 4

Although Cory Nelson, 3, maybe a little too young to participate in the Wayne County Hombres' sponsored horseshow, he's not too young to enjoy a little popcorn along with the events.

Hippies, Babysitters Share Film Spotlight

Films on "hippies" and tips on babysitting will be shown Sunday evening at dusk at the Middle School east lawn, sponsored by the Wayne Police Department, which will move the films indoors at the police garage in the event of inclement weather.

The first film, "The Hippie Temptation" is a 51 minute color film for senior high students and older.

The film describes the hippie culture and its impact on youth in contemporary American society and provides a study of the life style and behavior patterns of hippies by taking viewers into a typical hippie colony in San Francisco's Haight Ashbury district.

Harry Reasoner narrates and provides commentary on the reasons behind young people becoming hippies, the great dependence of the hippie culture on drugs, particularly LSD, and the sometimes tragic outcomes of the hippies' experimentation with drugs.

The second film, "The ABC of Babysitting," is a 10 minute shorty. The color movie geared especially for those of junior high age through adults, is a story of a teenage babysitter using the safety rules that should be observed and the responsibilities of the sitter to the family.

An insurance and real estate salesman in Wayne for over 40 years, Ringer sold his insurance business to Dean Pierson in 1955. He had served as mayor of Wayne for four terms, from 1922 to 1942, and had been fire chief for well over 25 years. He served as secretary of Redeemer Lutheran Church for over 30 years.

County Budget Over $1 Million

The Wayne County Commissioners adopted a higher budget for the 1972-73 fiscal year, Tuesday, up 85 mills, from last year's 11.72 to 12.57 mills.

The new budget, $1,099,298, passed at the commissioner's meeting, reflects an increase in two major areas of county government: road and relief funds.

County clerk Norris Weible pointed out that the increased budget is necessary for several reasons. The weather, he noted, has caused major road and bridge damage in the area, and as a result, commissioners felt this year's 4.23 mill levy for roads should be raised to 6.45 mills.

The relief fund jumped from last year's 77 mills to nearly double, at 151 Weible explained that the reduction in the use of regional care centers, such as the Beatrice State Home, means that the individual counties must set up "satellite" or similar centers.

Labor Supply Increasing

The labor supply in the 14 county area, including Wayne, Dixon, Cedar, Madison, Pierce and Stanton, rose slightly from last month, and continued to run considerably higher than last year.

A total of 1,095 persons, the Norfolk office of the Nebraska Dept. of Labor reported, were seeking work through the office at the end of July. If past seasonal trends hold true, it said, the labor supply will start to decrease during August and continue to be so until winter weather sets in.

The number of veterans seeking work decreased from 251 last year.

No Word Yet On Lab Report

Police Department Hires Woman Dispatchers

Wayne has had women dispatchers off and on for the past three years. And Chief Vern Fairchild feels, "women can handle the job as well as men."

The members of the police department who were interviewed were very cooperative and informative. But, if you are half an hour late for an appointment it may result in being finger printed.

This report was unavoidably 30 minutes tardy—and she was given the "black-fingers treatment."

By Marylou Schwanz

A feminine look was taken over at the Wayne Police Department with the hiring of three women dispatchers.

Starting their new job on Aug. 1, were Mrs. Robert G. (Rita) McLean, Mrs. Dennis (Patricia) Spangler and Mrs. Eric (Sandra) Ropke, all of Wayne.

Their ages run from 21 to 25.

In order to be considered for the job of police dispatcher, one must first fill out an application. Then in inquiry of credit rating is taken. Applicants are also fingerprinted so the police can check for possible criminal records. (These young women were "clean.")

Mrs. McLean commented that one "must be relaxed and specific" when giving or receiving a call. Each call that comes in on the radio has a specific code number. For example, 1010 would mean a minor detail.

Since Mrs. McLean had no training or experience with radio work prior to this job, she was required to learn the code numbers. At first, it may be confusing, but "if you don't recognize a code number, all you have to do is look it up."

"After you hear them for a while, you just know them," she noted.

Mrs. Spangler had worked with a two-way radio before, but it was "nothing like this."

All fire calls and emergency calls come through on the radio, so you have to "listen carefully and be polite at all times," she said.

Even though Mrs. Ropke has also had experience with a two-way radio, she said one must learn to "stay calm" no matter what comes in on the radio.

Weather

The weather man turned on the sunshine this week but he forgot to do one thing—cool down the boiling temperatures baking the area. In the past week, Wayne residents have felt the mercury rising into the ninety degree range with Monday's high of 96 being the highest temp so far.

The lows for the past week remained near the 65 degree mark with the lowest recorded on Aug. 9 at 46 cool degrees.

In the rain department, the total for the month so far is 1.30 inches with Thursday's recordings showing .73 inches.

NORTHEAST EXTENSION Notes

by Joycelyn Smith

Jelly is made by cooking fruit juice with sugar. Proper amounts of fruit, pectin, acid and sugar are required to make jelly. The product should be firm enough to hold its shape when turned from the jar, yet soft enough to be spread with a knife. Whether jellies are clear or translucent depends on the fruit used and the method of extracting the juice.

Fruit and pit cherries. Chop fine. Measure into very large saucepan. Squeeze juice from raisins; add to fruit with rind, raisins, and nuts. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit in saucepan. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim for 5 minutes to cool slightly and prevent foaming. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with 1/2 inch non-perforated wax caps or about 13 (6 oz.) glasses.

Pectin is the substance in some fruits which when combined with fruit acid and sugar and heated causes the product to congeal or "jell." Some fruits such as apples, plums, quinces, Concord grapes, etc. have enough natural pectin to make jelly. Others, for example strawberries, require a added pectin.

Commercial fruit pectins are in two forms—liquid and powdered. Either is recommended with any fruit when the manufacturer's directions are followed.

Some knowledge of the amount of pectin in a fruit is necessary in order to determine the fruit's suitability for jelly. A second method is to mix 1 Tbsp. fruit juice with 1 Tbsp. denatured alcohol, but DO NOT TASTE because it is POISONOUS. If the pectin precipitates in a solid mass, it is present in sufficient amount to form jelly. Jellies moderately rich in pectin will form a few pieces of gelatinous material. A third method could involve the use of a jellometer. It measures the viscosity of fruit juice and indicates the amount of sugar to be added to it. Or mix 2 tsp. sugar, 1 Tbsp. Epsom Salts, 2 Tbsp. of cooked fruit juice. Stir well and stand for 20 minutes. If the mixture forms a semi-solid mass the juice contains sufficient pectin.

Acid is needed for flavor and for gel formation. The acid content is higher in underripe fruits. Lemon juice or citric acid is commonly added to fruits low in acid. The fruit juice should be as tart as one teaspoon lemon juice mixed with 3 Tbsp. of water. Usually 1 Tbsp. of strained lemon juice added to each standard cup of fruit juice will supply the needed acid.

The amount of sugar to be added is determined by the pectin content of the juice. For each cup of fruit juice rich in pectin add 1 cup sugar. Add only 1/2 cup to one cup of fruit juices poor in pectin. Juice should be boiling when sugar is added. Boil jelly as rapidly as possible.

Work with not more than 6 to 8 cups of juice at a time. It's not recommended to double jelly recipes. Use a kitchen that will hold a 4 to 6 times as much juice as used.

To test for doneness, dip a spoon in the boiling jelly. As it nears the jelling point, it will drop from the side of the spoon in two drops. When the drops run together and slide off in a sheet or flake from the side of the spoon, the jelly is finished. Remove from heat at once. A candy or jelly thermometer may also be used to test for doneness.

Remove the foam from the jelly and pour at once into sterilized dry jelly glasses. Fill within 1/2 inch of the top. As soon as the jelly is cold and firm, seal it with just enough paraffin to cover the jelly cover with a lid, label and store in a cool dry place. Following the above hints may make you a more successful jelly maker.

Hi Temps, Dry Winds Create Leaf Scorch

The expected high tomorrow, will be 90 degrees with southwest winds at 10 to 20 miles per hour.

These conditions over the past month have given rise to a physiological disease of trees known as "leaf scorch."

When these climatic conditions occur, water is lost through the leaves faster than the roots can replace it.

The symptom caused by this rapid loss of water is a scorch appearance, usually beginning on the outer margins of the leaf and progressing inward. Yellowish-brown areas in the tissues between the veins are also evident in severe cases. This area is killed and the leaf eventually becomes brittle and drops.

Other conditions can add to the severity of leaf scorch. Among these are shallow soils, confinement of the root system, roots which girdle the crown of the tree, drought, and a diseased root system.

Trees planted near the south wall of a building may suffer due to the extreme exposure from the sun and reflection from the building.

Most trees are susceptible to leaf scorch. Ash, maple and oak are the most commonly involved species. Beech, dogwood, elm, horse chestnut, and linden are also highly susceptible to scorching. Firs, pine and spruce often show leaf scorch as a brown discoloration of needle tips.

To minimize the amount of scorch, lightly fertilize trees that are low in vigor and keep the plants well watered. Recently transplanted trees should be watered faithfully during hot and dry periods.

It is unlawful to use floatlines with glass floats in Nebraska waters.

All-State Cagers Wind Down Activities for Friday Game

The training camp for the North All-Star basketball squad enters its closing stages as Friday's game approaches. Wednesday the squad, under the guidance of head coach Jack Johnson of Columbus, did participate in its third organized scrimmage at Wayne State's Rice Auditorium.

Laurel's George Schroeder looks like he's going to go inside for a shot but his teammates block his attempt during a Monday night scrimmage.

Johnson and his assistant Fred Northrup of Grand Island Central Catholic plan two workouts Thursday and a light-practice Friday morning. Then the squad will take off for Lincoln in the afternoon.

In Tuesday's sessions, the two coaches worked the boys on defense and the team's halfcourt offense. They also spent some time on methods of defending the South's seven-foot pivot, Mike Heck of Papillion.

In the evening the boys and coaches were guests of several Wayne businessmen and merchants at Bressler Park. There they barbecued steaks and convened in the sheltered picnic area for a two hour affair.

That night the players and coaches were also treated to a movie at the local theater.

The squad is scheduled to leave from Wayne at 2:30 p.m. Friday. A stop is scheduled at Schuyler for a mid-afternoon dinner before heading on to Lincoln. Game time is 8:05 p.m. at Pershing Auditorium.

A crowd of 6,000 is expected for the contest. The South leads in the series, 2-1, with the North having won their first game a year ago.

Ability to Stay Afloat Important

Each year in the United States, some 1200 people die in boating accidents. Over 90 per cent of these fatalities are due to drowning. Thus, the first concern for anyone planning a boating trip is the prevention of drowning.

The Nebraska Medical Association recommends that the whole family be schooled in survival type swimming—the ability to stay afloat—and how to swim, while wearing clothes. This type of training is provided by the Red Cross or YMCA.

Along with the increase in popularity of boating comes the increase in boat traffic and the increase of potential hazards. Safe boating practices must be understood and strictly adhered to. The most basic precautions are simply developments of two cardinal rules. Show proper respect for others, and use common sense. Do not overload your craft; do not stand up or change seats while underway; watch out for swimmers and floating objects; take along approved life preservers and wear them; do not go too far from shore on a large body of water in a small craft; if your boat overturns, stay with it, and, above all, do not go out in a boat if you cannot swim.

Check your boating equipment, and check it before you leave shore. Essential safety equipment should include an anchor, a fire extinguisher, oars, a horn, running lights, a mirror, a first aid kit and, of course, a life preserver for each person aboard.

Since most boating accidents involve faulty operation, negligence, or ignorance, the operator should know his boat, keep his mind on business, and operate the boat according to nautical rules. By all means, stay ashore in threatening weather.

The Nebraska Medical Association points out that there should be at least two persons in the boat when pulling water skiers. The skier must wear a life jacket or belt. In case of a fall, the skier should stay with the skis and signal the observer in the boat that he is all right. Ski only during the daytime, never at night.

Sportsmen Take Front Roll In Conservation Movement

Evidence of the sportsman's contributions to conservation and outdoor recreation in Nebraska is probably most visible in the Law Enforcement, Fish Production, and Resource Services divisions of the Game and Parks Commission. These three divisions establish and preserve wildlife habitat, produce fish and game for stocking, maintain primitive outdoor recreation and wildlife areas, and manage public use of these resources so that all may enjoy them. Sportsmen provide nearly all the funds for their operations, a fact that the public should remember with the approach of National Hunting and Fishing Day, Sept. 23. Wildlife habitat is the primary concern of the Resources Service Division, and most of the more than 90,000 acres it manages is devoted to this purpose. These lands are scattered across the state in 112 tracts that include wildlife areas, refuges, waterfowl hunting areas, waterfowl marshes, Interstate 80 lakes, and other fisheries accessible to sportsmen. Most of these tracts are open to hunting and fishing, while also providing a perfect setting for primitive camping, with access to parks, picnic grounds, and occasionally, drinking water and picnic tables. These areas serve hikers, photographers, bird watchers, nature study clubs, and a variety of others seeking outdoor fun. Habitat development of private lands is another concern of Resource Services. The division administers the Acres For Wildlife program, which encourages landowners on farm pond management, waterfowl marsh construction, and habitat plantings. Its interest in habitat has made it a leader in the state in most forms of plant propagation. The division maintains a nursery and produces trees and shrubs not only for wildlife areas, but for intensively used state parks and recreation areas. Fishing is rapidly growing in popularity, especially among picnickers and campers who throw a line into the water as a sidelight to a quiet weekend out of doors. Chances are, most of the fish they catch were stocked in these waters from Game Commission fish hatcheries, or are descendants of such fish. To keep Nebraska's fishing going strong, the fish production people lake spawn from walleye and northern pike, and netted on Nebraska lakes. Some of the eggs are hatched and the fingerlings stocked in the state, while the rest of the spawn is swapped with other states or with federal hatcheries for other species of fish. Some of the catfish, large mouth bass, and bluegill stocked in Nebraska come from such states as Iowa, Missouri, and Wisconsin. ## Fires 109 Reeg Takes Tourney

Bob Reeg captured the Wayne Country Club Golf Tournament Sunday, firing rounds of 37, 35 and 37 for a 27-hole total of 109. Reeg outpaced area golfer Ron Burkner, Jim Marsh and Ken Dahl, for the title after Burkners finished second with a 111 total followed by third place tie between Ken Dahl and Jim Marsh, who both shot 112. Phil Griess and Reeg shared the low scores of the day, hitting 35. About 80 club members entered the tournament. Along with this year's championship, Reeg also can add his first hole in one on the third hole during the earlier part of the golfing season. Reeg joins an impressive list of previous year winners of the George Berres Memorial trophy, including Larry Berres, 1957-58; Darrel Fuelleber, 1959; Bob Armbruster, 1960; John C. Carhart, 1961-62; Russ Owen, 1963; Don Sund, 1964; Ken Dahl, 1965-67; Jim Marsh, 1968; Ken Dahl, 1969; Chuck Fisher, 1970, and Ken Dahl, 1971. Third flight—Won by Bud Froelich; second, Leo Tietgen, third, Dean Backstrom. Fourth flight—Won by Paul Oliver; second, Delmar Carlson; third, Don Johnson. Fifth flight—Won by Neil Swanson; second, O. K. Brandstetter; third, Harold Ingalls. Largemouth bass can live in a wide range of water temperatures, ranging from near freezing to more than 90 degrees.

Jim Marsh, the 1968 Wayne Country Club winner, congratulates Bob Reeg on his winning the 1972 tournament.

Dick H. Schaffer Mr. NEBRASKALAND

Twenty-five pound test line and a rod with guts enough to pull a small fishing boat! When Walt Sommerhiser, a railroad brakeman in Lincoln, told me that's the gear we would be using on bass. I took a second listen. Sure enough, my hearing was O.K. Walt's credentials as a bass fisherman are tops. Through early August, he has "strung up 218 good keepers for the year (23 over four pounds), all from the Salt Valley lakes near Lincoln." On one occasion he filled his limit of 10 bass in 22 minutes. Furthermore, he has 18 Master Angler awards. Using heavy casting rod, free spooling reel with 25 pound test braided line, three foot monofilament leader (also 25 pound test), and yellow weighted spinner with rubber skirt—we pried the still waters of Costenoga Lake, 8 1/2 miles west and south of the Capital City. We worked the brush and tree stumps. One tunker socked the bass's scorpion under some brush, and without the heavy tackle, the bass probably would have hung back. We horsed our lures in, between, around, over, and against partly submerged brush, mostly plum thickets, never letting them go deep. Accurate, pinpoint casting is a must. "If you don't get snagged up once in awhile, you're not in the right place or aren't casting close enough to the brush," Walt charged. Lots of things Walt said he has had his lure within a foot of a brush pile or weed bed and got no response, but on the next cast, if dropped right in a small opening, he would get a strike. I observed other tricks while with Walt in his 14-foot aluminum boat with its four-horsepower motor and anglematic drive. He cuts the motor early and paddles quietly to within long casting distance, then shifts close in. His boat is carpeted to further deaden all sounds. "Bass are in their houses," Walt said, which is in cover of some type. "The buckmouths prefer to have food come to them while in their houses. If it's not reasonably close, chances are they'll pass it up." Walt remembers all spots where he catches bass. For they usually produce time after time. This I learned firsthand at Costenoga. Most of his bassing is in three to five feet of water. He concedes that some bass go to deep water, and that if there's bright sunshine, they'll probably seek submerged brush. The keys to successful bassing in Walt's opinion are proper tackle, pinpoint casting, quiet, and most importantly, fish, fish fish. Walt's practices rewarded us with seven bass weighing up to 2 1/2 pounds, and a host of grubs we didn't keep. MISHMASH... Approximately 55 per cent of all Nebraskans take a vacation each year. ### Bracken: There Is No Such Thing as Generation Gap

There is no such thing as a generation gap. Floyd Bracken told the noon meeting of the Kiwanis Club. "There never was and never will be a generation gap," Floyd Bracken told the noon meeting of the Kiwanis Club. The Wayne Chamber of Com merce manager explained that the gap is not between generations but between values. "Each member of the generation was brought up with a different set of values to base its judgment upon. And those values are something that neither you or I should try to change."

Bracken admitted that the existing generations and generations to come may not and probably will not agree on some matters. But, he pointed out, that is the way things will be. Bracken went through a list of four generations from 1910 to the present. One factor, he emphasized, that links all four segments is war. "Each generation was or is now faced with some aspect of war," he said. During the 1910 era, the world had WWI. In 1939, WWII. In 1950-60, Korean War, and from 1960 to the present, the Vietnam war. Bracken noted that television has had the most "profound effect on today's young people. It is bringing the world into our living rooms."

Jeanette Meyer Feted, Norfolk Man With Kuhn's

Two bridal courtesies were held recently for Jeanette Meyer, Wayne, who will be the Aug. 26 bride of David Swanson, Laurel. Miss Meyer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Meyer, Wayne, and her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Swanson, Laurel.

About 35 guests attended the morning pantry shower held Monday at the Laurel Presbyterian Church. Hostesses were Mrs. Paul Schrad and Cheryl Mrs. Ed Gadeken and Resa and Mrs. Glenn Deyloff, all of Laurel. Decorations were in the honoree's chosen colors, orange and yellow, and featured a centerpiece of flowers fashioned of kitchen linens and utensils, palmed in a salad bowl. Matching individual salad bowls held fruit and vegetables.

Julie Swanson, Laurel, registered guests and assisted Mrs. Jerald Meyer, Wayne, with gifts. Mrs. Merlin Swanson, Laurel, poured. Two poems were read by Mrs. Gadeken. About 15 guests were present in the Max Lundstrom home for the Friday evening reception. Mrs. Meyer, hostesses were Elaine Lundstrom and Nancy Ehlers. Decorations were in yellow and orange and entertainment consisted of games with prizes going to the honoree. Nancy Ehlers served punch and Sue Havener registered gifts.

Jerry Nathan, formerly of Norfolk, has taken over management of Kuhn's Shoe Department. He has been in the shoe business seven years as a buyer and salesman.

Bee Sting Is Serious

A Laurel miss, 15-year old Betty Burns, has learned that is a pretty good idea to steer clear of the usually harmless honey bee. Betty, who has suffered severe reactions from bee stings, has become highly allergic to the injected venom and requires immediate medical attention when stung.

Early this morning Betty was dressing and did not notice the bee on her blouse until it was too late. Her cries attracted the attention of her 16-year old brother, Tom, who drove her to Randolph. Her condition was described as critical. Dr. Billerbeck stated that he could find no poison when she was brought into the office. Betty was given emergency treatment and taken by ambulance to the Osmond General Hospital where she remained two days. She was not permitted to return home until exterminators had removed the bees from the Burns home. Betty, who is the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Harold Burns, rural Laurel, is now equipped with a medic alert tag and carries an emergency treatment kit in her purse.

All hawks and eagles are protected by either state or federal law.

State's White Bass Keep Fishermen Busy

Fishing gets a bit slow in parts of Nebraska during the heat of summer, but white bass in the state's larger reservoirs more than make up the slack. Fast and furious action starts when white bass begin schooling in open water to feed on swarms of bite-sized shad hatched earlier this year. Schooling seems to be a bit behind schedule this summer, but action should pick up any day now.

When white bass are schooling, the pace is almost too much for many fishermen. The whites will hit any flashy artificial tossed their way. Heavy, fast-sinking spoons are a favorite. Jigs are also productive.

Often, anglers get a strike on nearly every cast. With no limit, fishermen can take all they need for a big fish fry on a good day. Schools of white bass can be located in several ways, but one of the easiest methods is to watch for flocks of gulls feeding over the water. Feeding white bass drive the shad to the surface, where the gulls gather for easy pickings. In the process, the gulls pinpoint location of the shad and the white bass nearby, especially on the large lakes like Harlan County Reservoir and Lake McConaughy.

Another way to pinpoint white bass involves trolling until a fish is caught. Since they run in schools, it's a good bet that others are nearby. Once located this way, fishermen simply cast or drift fish the spot, using minnows or artificials.

Fishermen working a school should be somewhat cautious, especially when first approaching. A sudden noise or even a glimpse of the boat will often spook the fish and send them diving for the bottom.

White bass are among the most tasty fare found in Nebraska waters. They generally average from 1 1/2 to two pounds, but some over three pounds are frequently taken. The state record is four pounds, 15 ounces. When white bass finally begin to school, anglers with the right technique and equipment will find enough sport to make up for any summer slump in activity by other species.

LABOR

(Continued from page 1) last month to 201 this month, but remained quite a bit higher than 118 registered during July 1971. Although new applications received during July numbered 232, this represents a decrease of 28 from both last month and July of last year. The largest decrease in new applications was in youth seeking summer employment.

In further reports, the department said nonagricultural job openings received from employers during July totaled 216 compared to 177 last month and 222 in July 1971.

Placements made by the Norfolk office during the month numbered 264, showing an increase of 57 over last month and an increase of 43 over July of last year. The largest increase in placements was in seasonal agricultural work.

While properly fitted ear plugs and protective ear muffs provide protection against exposure to excessive sound levels, providing employees with these devices is not as desirable as eliminating noise. Officials point out that even the most effective ear plugs and ear muffs can effectively block only a certain amount of noise.

Netting Protects Strawberry Patch

Losing strawberries to birds? Protect your strawberry patch with netting. Cut hoops of number nine wire and push four to six inches into the ground centered over the row. The hoops keep the netting off the plants. During picking, the netting is thrown back, making the fruit accessible. During growing time secure sides and ends of the netting with bricks or stones. Some gardeners construct wooden frames over the row and cover with one-inch poultry netting.

Change in Attitude Would Help Solve Mental Health Problems

"With interest in mental health problems currently at an all-time high, it is appropriate to examine the extent of those problems and the progress America is making in solving them," Charles Thone, First District Congressman, says in his weekly newsletter.

"It is estimated that 20 million people in the nation have some form of mental or emotional illness. In other words, about one of every 10 people should be receiving psychiatric treatment. Actually, only about 15 per cent of those who need treatment are receiving it.

"Some experts believe that at least half of all medical and surgical cases involve a mental illness or emotional disturbance complication.

"Counting both the cost of treatment and the loss of income, it is estimated that mental illness costs the United States over $20 billion a year.

"Dramatic progress has been made in the field. Perhaps, the most important progress has been in the location of treating patients. Up until about 1955, the prevailing attitude was to put all mentally ill patients into institutions. About this time, it was decided that people were more apt to cope with their environment in that environment with the help of their families and friends. It was concluded that people didn't have much chance of adjusting to life when they were taken out of it and isolated in an institution. Today, most mentally ill patients are treated on an out-patient basis either at an office of a psychiatrist in private practice or at a community mental health center.

"Research, that resulted in development of new medicines for treating the mentally ill, contributed much to progress. Use of tranquilizers for emotional disorders began in 1955, the year of peak population in state mental hospitals. In 1958, mental hospitals began using anti-depressants.

"Both private and government research played important roles in developing new medicines and new techniques. Dr. Julius Axelrod, who since 1955 has been with the National Institute of Mental Health, has given the Nobel Prize award for his long-term work on brain chemistry. He found that messages were sent through the brain by the manufacture in one cell of noradrenaline and release of that chemical to take the signal to the next cell. He found that there were three different ways that the chemical could be dissipated so that the message wouldn't get through.

"His work did much to explain how tranquilizers and anti-depressants work.

In 1971, three employees of the National Institute of Mental Health received both the annual award of the American Psychiatric Association and an international award for their studies of depression related to mania, while lithium carbonate works for the manic depressive, tricyclic medicines are best for treating depression.

"Nebraska has been in the forefront in adopting modern methods of treating mental illness. While the average number of patients in the state mental hospitals in the United States was reduced about 40 per cent between 1955 and the present, the decrease was twice as great in Nebraska. During the year that ended, June 30, 1972, the average population in Nebraska State Mental Hospitals was 1,045, compared with 4,826 in 1955.

"The people of Nebraska owe a tremendous debt for Dr. Cecil Wilton's leadership, which contributed so much to Nebraska's progress in mental health. The Nebraska Psychiatric Institute and he persuaded psychiatric personnel trained in the state to stay here. Today, about 75 per cent of those who complete their residency at NPI are staying in Nebraska to practice psychiatry.

"Dr. Wilton, with a hook-up between Omaha and Norfolk, made the nation's first use of closed circuit television for diagnosis and treatment of mental illness and for training residents in psychiatry. He led in establishing six mental health clinics around Nebraska in the mid-fifties. By contrast, the first federal legislation concerning community mental health centers was passed in 1963. Nebraska state has 30 clinics that are visited by a psychiatrist as needed, with a nurse or teacher helping on mental health between visits.

"Today, if 100 people enter a Nebraska State Mental Hospital on the same day, half of them will be released within 25 days and at the end of the year only five of them will still be there. The average stay is 75 days.

"Nationally, scientists are hopeful for more breakthroughs through research. As this is written, the House of Representatives is scheduled to consider the Senate House conference committee report on an appropriation bill that contains funds for the mental health program. For help to hospitals in application of new knowledge, the proposed funding is the same as last year. Research by National Institute of Mental Health personnel and grants to help finance research by others would be increased by about seven per cent.

"At this stage, changes in attitude by the public are at least as important as more research. We have a long way to go before the general public will seek psychiatric help at the first sign of mental illness. Not even the psychiatrists are ready for the era when mental check-ups will be scheduled as regularly as physical and dental examinations."

Accidents Down Over Last Year

The Wayne City Police Department recorded its lowest number of accidents for the month of July, according to a monthly police report.

Traffic accidents that occurred on public streets number three while this time a year ago accidents were up to eight.

Fourteen arrests were made for the month, resulting in 545 in fines. Last year at this time, there were 27 arrests.

The number of criminal arrests totaled one while five were recorded last July.

Social Security Questions, Answers

Q. When I started getting Social Security checks in January, I estimated my earnings at $2,500 for 1972. However, I've just learned that I'll be laid off next month and won't make $1,680 for this year. Should I notify Social Security of the change in my estimated earnings?

A. Yes. Notify your Social Security office right away about the change in your estimated earnings. You'll be able to get Social Security payments for all months this year since your earnings will be less than $1,680.

Q. I'm 68 and get monthly retirement payments, but I just started working again. Since I expected to earn over $1,680 this year, when should I notify Social Security of my earnings?

A. Report your estimated earnings early in the year as possible. Based on your estimate, an adjustment can be made in your checks for the year so you won't be overpaid and have to repay money after the end of the year.

Q. I'm a 48-year-old widow and I have never worked under Social Security. Recently, I started caring for three preschool children in my home while their parents work. I'll earn about $2,500 this year. Should the parents of these children report my earnings and pay the Social Security contributions?

A. No, you're self-employed. If your net profit is $400 or more this year, you must report this income as self-employment and pay your own Social Security contributions.

Your contributions will furnish important protection for you if you should become severely disabled and be unable to work for a year or longer. If you do, your family can get Social Security survivors benefits. Social Security also pays monthly retirement benefits. Medicare protection begins at 65.

If you don't already have a Social Security card, be sure to get one right away at any Social Security office.

'Educating' House Burglar

Today's burglar is often a cool, resourceful professional. It is on record that on a quiet afternoon this burglar will park a van in a suburban driveway while the housewife is out shopping and toad up the valuables in the house...TV, typewriter, stereo players and more traditional targets of burglars such as jewelry and cash.

Skilled, daring thieves like this are hard to stop, but there is help and hope for the householder and through Operation Identification, according to the Consumers Insurance Information Bureau.

And householders and small businessmen do need help. Last FBI statistics show there were over two million burglaries in 1970 up 72 per cent over 1965. The 1970 property losses of $672 million were even more painful because of the low percentage of the loot recovered, most of which could not be returned because police couldn't find the owners.

Operation Identification is a burglar's education program to protect the consumer. First you provide positive identification of your valuables by etching your area code and phone number on them with an engraving pencil; second you place stickers on your windows and doors telling would be burglars your property is marked for Operation Identification; and, finally, the burglars are educated by the public city campaign sparked by the National Association of Insurance Agents' public service agency, the Consumers Insurance Information Bureau.

The most approachable experts on the behavior of burglars, police departments, assure us that burglars do read newspapers, watch TV (on stolen sets?) and listen to radios.

so the task is to convince them that an Operation Identification home is a bad risk for them. If they do plunder an Operation Identification house, they'll have trouble because marked property is too hot. If the thief or the fence is caught with the loot, he'll have a hard time explaining it. The police can check with a phone call to find the rightful owner.

This program does work. It has proven itself in Monterey Park, Calif., where it was originated by Police Chief Everett Holladay in 1963. When the program started, about one half of the 11,000 homes in the community had Operation Identification. Since then, only 23 homes in the identification program were burglarized while the other, non-participating half, reported 2,000 breakings.

Other communities with properly identification programs reported similar results. In Saginaw, Mich., police recovered a stolen car, a guitar, a television and a cooler stolen from a summer cottage even before the owners knew that the place had been rifled.

The Thief had abandoned the marked loot, realizing the owner would be able to identify it because of the statewide Operation Identification program launched by the Independent Insurance Agents of Michigan early in 1971. There were 306 burglaries reported in Saginaw in 1971, but not one in an Operation Identification house.

Early identification programs used the individual's permanent license number to mark property. However, many states lack a permanent numbering system, and many people don't drive. Social Security numbers were considered but they involve a time-consuming tracing effort.

Therefore, the CIIB suggests area coded telephone numbers. It is then a simple matter to telephone the owner of purloined property, whether it is a house, hold TV or an adding machine from a local business.

Now the National Association of Insurance Agents is making Operation Identification a national reality with the help of 1,300 local boards of independent agents throughout the U.S. The consumer borrows an etching tool from his agent.

After the homeowner has marked his valuables, he returns the engraving pencil and its given decals for his home which read "All property of value on these premises has been marked for ready identification by law enforcement agencies."

The burglars, then, assuming they have been properly educated by the widespread publicity effort of the local insurance agents, police forces and news media, transfers his attention to another home, where a skeptic didn't believe that the program it has in Monterey Park, Saginaw, Atlanta, New Orleans, and other cities and towns in America.

Q. Is it necessary for a hospital to post a sign stating the availability of a schedule of base prices and to make that schedule available even if it does not plan to increase its prices at this time?

A. Yes. As of Dec. 29, 1971, all institutional providers are responsible for maintaining a schedule of base prices and all changes in those prices, and must post a sign stating the

This must be done regardless of whether the institution intends to increase prices.

Social Security Questions, Answers

Q. If I have to be hospitalized, will Medicare pay for a private room?

A. Medicare will normally only pay for a semi-private room. However, you can have a private room if you are willing to pay the difference between the private and semi-private rate. You can also have a private room if it is medically necessary.

of young trees, while they can burn over five tons of carbon dioxide and produce four tons of wood. Old mature stands of trees are less effective in purifying air because the amount of oxygen given off is considerably less.

Air under a canopy of trees will be 10 per cent to 20 per cent cooler than that outside the forest. Trees give off quantities of moisture through their leaves and are important to the environment from this aspect. They provide wildlife a habitat, erosion and wind control, besides other countless recreational and scenic services to man.

TIME TO SEED LAWNS

Now, Aug. 15-Sept. 15, is the ideal time to seed a cool season lawn. The selection of seed is one important aspect of a seeding operation.

Kentucky bluegrass is one of the most popular lawn grasses in Nebraska. Certified Common Kentucky bluegrass (especially from a local source) is an economically sound investment to medium maintenance lawn. In many cases named varieties which you may pay an added cost for, will not perform as well as common Kentucky bluegrass on a low to medium maintenance program. Some of the new improved bluegrasses are recommended for higher maintenance lawns individually or as a bluegrass blend.

Creeping red fescues can be mixed with bluegrass (65 per cent bluegrass-35 per cent Creeping Red Fescue) for shaded areas. K-31 Tall Fescue (not to be confused with creeping red fescue) should be used in a seed mixture. This grass should only be considered by people wanting a low maintenance, tough, coarse textured lawn grass.

Cattle Feeders Should Remove DES Additive

LINCOLN—Cattle feeders who are using Diethylstilbestrol (DES) in finishing rations should remove the additive from feed prior to 21 days before slaughter to provide an additional safety factor in avoiding DES residue in the liver.

This is the recommendation of Dr. Paul Guyer, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension livestock specialist, in the wake of an FDA ban on the use of the dry and liquid forms of DES effective Jan. 1, 1972.

Previously, it has been recommended that DES be withdrawn from cattle rations seven days before slaughter. However, sophisticated detecting procedures using radioactive tracers, have uncovered minute quantities of DES in livers of cattle from lots where the seven-day withdrawal recommendation was followed to the letter.

Without there is zero tolerance on DES residues under the Detaney Amendment of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, the recommendation was followed to the letter.

4-H Club News

Wranglers

The Wranglers Club met Aug. 8 at the Northeast Station. Final plans were made for the Dixon County Fair and dates were set for clipping calves. Demonstrations were given by Mary Koch, Quetta Stiles, Kathy Sachau and Joni Kraemer.

Next meeting will be the achievement day Sept. 12 at 7:30 at the Northeast Station. Jeff Creamer, news reporter.

Brome Paddies?

This roadside ditch near Winside was mowed and baled in late July. But, before the bales could be removed it rained 3 1/2 inches, causing a nearby creek to overflow, draining into the ditch. One doesn't need to travel abroad to get a taste of the Orient, does he?

Sept. 4-5 Proclaimed As 'Hereford Days'

The Big Red One, popularly referring to a product of Nebraska's university at Lincoln, may easily be the cry Sept. 4-5 as the Nebraska and American Hereford Associations join forces for untangling the 1972 Register of Merit Hereford Show at the Nebraska State Fair, Lincoln.

Recognizing the importance of Herefords, Gov. James Exon issued a proclamation stating, "The Hereford breed is responsible for the majority of the beef industry in Nebraska, and the beef industry is engaged in one of Nebraska's leading sources of endeavor and economic significance." Continuing he added, "The number one position of Nebraska Hereford breeders and commercial producers in establishing national records is sponsored and supported by the commercial Hereford ranchers in the famed Sanantonio homeland of Nebraska. They are offering a grand sized array of trophies, including one for each class winner.

Harold Harms, veteran commercial and registered Hereford breeder from Valentine, has been named to receive honor during the show which is being dedicated to him for his many years of service to the Hereford industry in Nebraska.

Top show stringers from throughout the nation will be on the farm at Lincoln Sept. 4-5, vying for top honors in the second ROM Show of the new season. Hundreds of interested people will be ringside watching Leroy Born, Follett, Texas, select his champions and thousands of others will visit the show bars to view the White faces on display during the fair.

Grain Contest Deadline Set

Sept. 1 is the deadline for entries in the 1972 Corn, Grain Sorghum and Soybean Production Contests. Nebraska crop producers were reminded this week.

Duane Foote, secretary of the Nebraska Grain Improvement Association, said entries for forms can be secured from and should be submitted through County Extension Agents.

The contests are sponsored by the Association, the Lincoln Grain Exchange, the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association and the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service. The Nebraska Soybean Association is an additional sponsor of the soybean contest.

A wheat production contest will be initiated with the 1973 wheat crop, Foote stated.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Dixon Belles

The Dixon Belles 4-H Club met July 31, at 8 p.m. in the Earl Eckert home. Eight members answered roll call by naming one thing they were taking to the fair.

It was decided to have a booth at the fair. Passes into the fairgrounds and fair tags were handed out. A discussion was held concerning how to model garments, and Mrs. Carroll Hirchert examined some sewing problems. Vicki Hirschert called about her 4-H trip to Washington, D. C. taken in June.

Mrs. Eckert and Mrs. Hirchert served lunch. The achievement meeting will be held Sept. 11 at 7:30 at the Northeast Station. All mothers are invited to attend.

'Bugged' by Insects?

If you are "bugged" by insects during good weather, the Nebraska Medical Association recommends bug repellents that are not harmful to the human skin or clothing, but produce an odor disagreeable to insects.

Mosquitoes are effectively repelled by bug spray. Protective clothing is also a good repellent against most insects. Clothing is the best protection against bee stings and chigger bites.

If you live in an area inhabited by ticks, special tick repellents in spray and powder forms, are available to treat clothing. You should inspect hair and skin for ticks at least twice a day. If a tick is attached to your skin, pull it off gently with tweezers, paper or cotton. A drop of turpentine often makes the tick dislodge itself. You should never crush a tick because your fingers or finger nails

Wearing proper clothing and avoiding areas you know are infested with insects that will trouble you are the best ways not to be bothered.

Never scratch a bug bite. Wash the bite with soap and water to help ease the itch away. A paste of baking soda and water will usually soothe a bee sting.

Someone who kindles and makes grow.
Someone who shares knowledge. . . and dreams.
Someone whose greatest joy is to watch a child's mind expand and flower.

A teacher is someone who may very well be doing the most important job in the world. And today, a difficult job, because the world is more complex. How much simpler it must have been one hundred years or so ago to be a teacher, when you taught the same thing in the same way that had been used for centuries. . . when a slate, a primer and a dunce cap were the main teaching tools. But how many fewer children went to school, and how much less they learned! Today's teachers, on the other hand, keep up with the changing world. If you are a parent, you are well aware of this. You need a book on the new math to understand what your children are learning.

We take our teachers for granted 364 days a year. Today, however, is a good day for us to remember—and by this word—honor teachers (today's, tomorrow's and yesterday's teachers).

The State National Bank and Trust Co. would like to say thank you to all of the teachers in Wayne County, Thanks to each of you for the wonderful job you are doing.

You could not do as simple a thing as read this. . . if someone had not taught you!

"Vee" Horse Disease Spreading

Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis (VEE) is back in the news, but a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension veterinarian says no cause for alarm in Nebraska.

Dr. Alex Hogg said the disease has been showing up some 600 miles deep into Mexico, and an extensive vaccination program is underway in U.S. border states.

Recent news reports from Mexico indicate hundreds of horses have died from VEE. These reports also refer to many people suspected of having been affected in four Mexican states.

However, because VEE characteristically jumps long distances, he urged vaccination of Nebraska horses as a safety precaution.

A modified live virus VEE vaccine is now available commercially to veterinarians. Research results have shown it to be safe and highly effective in protecting horses from VEE. But Hogg warned that vaccination for one strain of the disease will not protect a horse against the other.

The NU veterinarian described varying signs of the disease that horse owners should be looking for.

Loss of appetite and depression, general weakness, drooping, chewing movements and retention of grass between the lips or teeth.

The body temperature is elevated to 102-105 degrees during the early stages of the disease.

Localized muscle spasms or quivering of muscles, some animals may circle and others may take a cross-leg stance as the disease progresses.

Diarrhea may be observed in the latter stages.

The course of the disease may vary from five to 10 days or more, and mortality is usually high—many times approaching 80 per cent or more.

VEE infected 1,250 horses in the U.S. in 1971; the disease was contracted by 67 humans. Sleeping sickness was contracted by 1,627 horses in the U.S. in 1968, with 317 fatalities. In 1969, the disease hit 1,767 horses, killing 481. Of the 1,250 VEE-infected horses in 1971, 875 died. "These deaths could have been avoided by vaccination," Hogg said.

While not playing down the severity of VEE, Hogg emphasized the necessity in Nebraska of vaccinating against the more common strain of encephalomyelitis, known as sleeping sickness. Like VEE, it is thought to be transmitted by mosquitoes, and from horse to horse and to man.

Sleeping sickness is more dangerous to humans than VEE, Hogg reported. More than 1,500 humans in the U.S. contracted the sickness in 1970, and another 473 were hit through June 1971. Effects of sleeping sickness are usually more severe and longer lasting.

Least-Cost Rations Boost Dairy Farmer's Profits

Dairymen can now save dollars each month by receiving a printout of a computer-formulated least-cost ration for their herds, based on current prices of available feed ingredients in either southeast or northeast Nebraska.

The service is available through the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Department of Animal Science, according to Don Kubik, area Extension Dairy Specialist, Northeast Station, Concord.

Kubik has been explaining the concept of the least-cost ration and its value to dairymen in a series of meetings this winter, including the NU-sponsored Area Dairy Days and the Dairy Fieldmen's Conference and numerous local group meetings.

"The true least-cost ration is the combination of ingredients which at the time the ration is compiled have the lowest total performance of dairy cows in terms of maintenance and or milk production," Kubik explained.

To assure optimum performance through a ration which has been computer-formulated, we must limit certain feeds because they are unpalatable or because they are too dusty in the meal form. However, all or part of this latter limitation can be removed if the ration includes an ingredient or ingredients because they are unavailable, he is reluctant to feed them, or a lack of on-farm storage; a true least-cost ration cannot be formulated; any limitation is apt to raise the cost of ingredients from a true least-cost ration.

Nonetheless, he emphasized, substantial dollar savings can be realized by producers who understand the principle of the least-cost ration and take advantage of the service now in operation to determine such rations.

Using as an example actual figures compiled for January, a least-cost ration would cost $42 per ton; a least-cost ration limited by the auction of urea would cost $46, a ration excluding sorghum would cost $45; and a ration containing by design, no rye, no urea nor sorghum, would cost $52 per ton. None of the rations contained any corn.

The figures include vitamins and minerals, with costs incurred in grinding, mixing and delivering "extra" in each case, Kubik said. The ration excluding rye, sorghum and urea contains oats and barley, and the ration, excluding sorghum contains barley.

In another illustration, Kubik pointed to a least-cost ration using rye (limited to one third of the ration due to lack of palatability), with a cost of $47 a ton, compared to a ration with no rye, sorghum or urea with a cost of $57 a ton.

Reluctance on the part of producers to use rye as an ingredient, and in many instances barley, keeps costs of rations up, Kubik said. Another problem is a reluctance or inability of elevator operators to keep a steady, dependable supply of grains not in previous demand, he added.

Elevator operators have been understandably slow to stock such grains for dairymen, he said, because of several factors:

- If prices go up, they may be stuck holding grains with no ready takers.
- Not enough volume to warrant handling.
- Elevator operators cannot locate supply of grains which can be moved in easily.
- Profits may be cut by selling grains called for in least-cost rations.
- Grains sold for use in least-cost rations may compete with other grains which elevators wish to move.
- Elevator operators cannot locate supply of grains which can be moved in easily.

"Dairymen in an area need to get together and decide what they want in ration ingredients," he advised. Kubik said action by dairymen in one northeast Nebraska community resulted in elevators stocking barley as an additional grain. Some cattle feeders have now adopted feeding barley in feed-finishing rations with the result that the pattern of acquiring and stocking feed grains has changed in that area.

Fears on the part of producers result from no experience in feeding barley and rye and varied experiences with feeding urea, Kubik said.

"Many don't want to go away from feeding corn," he said. He pointed out that any limitation can be given the computer—such as eliminating rye altogether or limiting the ration to 50 per cent corn—and it will come up with the least-cost ration, using remaining ingredients.

"If you don't give it (the computer) a price to consider (for a particular grain), it won't throw it in," Kubik observed.

Some producers are concerned about not being able to obtain grains on a regular basis, lack of storage on the farm, the nuisance of buying and selling various grains, and changing the ration to meet the dictates of least-cost rations computed each month.

However, Kubik noted that "it's less critical to change the grain than the roughage portion of the ration." And, he said it's common practice for formula feed companies to change ingredients often—nearly every week. "If you've been feeding formula feeds, you've been feeding computer-formulated rations and variable rations," he told producers.

Kubik offered this comparison of a commercial feed; 50 per cent corn, no urea ration; and a least-cost ration at the 13 per cent and 16 per cent protein levels of each.

Least-cost rations with varying levels of protein can be compiled on an absolute basis or with various restrictions specified, Kubik said. He cited another illustration, in which varying combinations of ingredients are figured, to arrive at alternate costs for two rations with 13 per cent protein and two with 16 per cent protein.

The least-cost ration, with 13 per cent protein, costing $38 a ton, featured oats, barley and a small amount of urea. The other 13 per cent protein ration, with 50 per cent corn, oats and soybean meal, had an ingredient cost per ton of $46.80. A 16 per cent protein ration with oats, barley, soybean meal and urea cost $42, while the other 16 per cent protein ration posted the highest cost—$53 a ton—on a combination of corn, oats and soybean meal.

The difference in the 13 per cent protein ration ($46.80 per ton) and the 16 per cent protein ration ($53 per ton) is in the varying amounts of oats and soybean meal (more oats and less soybean meal in the 13 per cent ration). The amount of corn in each was the same.

Kubik said the starting place on computing least-cost rations is the current price in a given area, assuming ready availability and willingness to use rations having the highest value per ton. The value of various ingredients is based on the dollars' worth of energy and protein in the form of corn and soybean meal they would replace.

In December, 1971, for example, corn, used as a base for computation purposes, was priced at $1.21 a bushel. Comparative prices of other feed ingredients were oats, 70 cents a bushel; barley, $1.04 a bushel; rye, 90 cents a bushel; hominy, $43.60 a ton, and milo, $1.75 a hundredweight.

Detailed information regarding least-cost rations can be found in the 1969 NU Dairy Progress Report, EC 70-220, or in the 1971 Dairy Progress Report, which will be available soon. Arrangements for signing up to receive a printout of specified least-cost rations on a monthly basis can be carried out through Extension agents, or by contacting Kubik at the Northeast Station, Concord, or P. H. Cole, Extension Dairyman, Department of Animal Science, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebr. 68503.

Mid-Summer Good Time For Strawberry Leaf Spots

Each year, mild and wet periods in mid-summer give rise to a variety of leaf spot diseases on strawberries. If these conditions continue for prolonged periods, the strawberries may be severely injured. The injury manifests itself in the form of low plant vigor and reduced yields.

The three leaf spot diseases found in Nebraska are commonly referred to as leaf blight, leaf scorch and leaf spot. All three of these diseases are caused by fungi and each of these fungi survive the winter on either live or dead leaf tissue. Therefore initial control methods should be concentrated on the removal of as much debris in the fall as possible.

Fungicides are normally used in the crop of strawberries, and they definitely help to control the leaf diseases. The recommended fungicide—Captan—used at 1 1/2 tablespoons per gallon of water. Since two of the diseases—leaf spot and leaf scorch—infect only the under side of the leaves, good coverage on both the upper and lower leaf surfaces is necessary. Spraying should begin at the first sign of the disease and continue as long as necessary.

Various cultural measures can be taken which will help to prevent outbreaks of these diseases. These include planting in well drained soils, keeping weeds and grass under control, avoiding over planting, and selecting plants free of these diseases before transplanting.

Sunflowers — A Cash Crop?

By Marylou Schwanz

Sunflowers, considered weeds, for many years, may now have become a valuable cash crop for farmers.

In May, Harold Fleer, R. R. 1, Wayne, planted 20 acres of these so-called "weeds." He first noticed sunflower fields in North Dakota and thus became interested and curious about raising them as a crop.

When he spoke with other farmers they advised him not even to try because there wasn't any market for sunflowers. But after reading articles Harold decided to go ahead and give them a try.

His seed and purchase contract were provided by Midwest Oil Seeds Inc., Dunlap, Ia. After plowing and applying Trellan for weed control, Fleer planted his sunflowers on set-aside acres where corn had been formerly raised. There are a total of 2600 sunflowers in each of his 30-inch rows, or one plant every eight inches.

Fleer used a hybrid seed that cost him about $3.75 an acre to plant. He needs a yield of 30 bushels per acre to break even. Sunflowers take their requirements from the air, so no fertilizer or extra watering are needed. They need no special care either.

Harold plans to harvest the crop starting Sept. 1, using his self-propelled combine with a Hesston head.

When the heads are harvested they have 20-25 per cent moisture content. Before they are picked up by the Iowa firm, Harold will dry them in a grain dryer to a 10 per cent moisture content.

The Iowa firm will then ship the crop to West Germany where it will be converted into cooking oil.

Hopefully, after the crop is

Clues To Camping Pleasure

If you're still thinking of a vacation this year, but are a little dismayed by the expense it might involve, why not embark on a little spree of "roughing it."

More American families are going the camping route. Motels and restaurants can make a vacation expensive. But camping, together with a little careful planning, can help you save on expenses and still provide an enjoyable outing for the entire family.

If you're thinking of jumping on the camping wagon you might do well to keep some basic points in mind:

If a tent will be one of your camping essentials, you'll want to be sure it's large enough for your family. A 10 x 12 foot tent should make a comfortable resting place for a family of four.

When pitching your tent look for a level spot. A tent pitched on a side hill could mean a "wet bed" in an unprepared summer rain. It's a good idea to place a piece of contractor's plastic on the area where the tent will be pitched. This keeps the grass alive and also gives you a clean area for laying sleeping bags.

What about sleeping gear? Some campers use cots. However, since warmth and comfort are important in a good night's sleep, you may prefer a sleeping bag. An air mattress or strip of polyfoam placed under the sleeping bag will add softness and help retain body heat.

"Keep It Clean!" That's one of the primary rules of camping. It's irritating to pull into a camp site and have to spend time cleaning up after previous campers.

No matter where you go, you'll have to eat. If you're camping, you'll more than likely cook your own meals. And that will mean washing dishes.

That's why you may want to do some thinking about the practicability of paper plates. Packing enough paper plates and cups for all your meals will take up a good deal of space and cost you money. You'll have to wash pots and pans, so why not a few more dishes?

But remember, sanitation is a must, even while camping. Bits of food not completely washed off dishes and pans could mean a sick spell for family members.

Here's one family system for keeping dishes clean and sanitary while camping: Use three ordinary plastic dish pans. Two of the same color are used for dish washing only. The third one

End of Long Summer Means Time to Cleanup Leftovers

Short of living in a climate where trees keep their foliage year round, falling leaves are as certain as Thanksgiving. How to handle them depends a lot on you and your property.

By far, the most popular method, short of hand raking, is to put an inexpensive blade attachment on your rotary power mower. The mower then acts as a leaf shredder with centrifugal force of the mower blades whisking the leaves into your catcher, or if you prefer, dropping the shreds back to the ground as a winter frost cover.

There are also power sweepers which use a rotating brush (much like street sweepers) to sweep whole leaves back into a catcher as leaves the sweeper proceeds across the lawn. These are neat and efficient and particularly adaptable to medium sized lawns with few tight spots. Since the leaves are left whole, it is well to choose a model with a large catcher to cut down on the number of times the catcher must be emptied.

Next on the list is the lawn vacuum. That's right, vacuum. This is usually a push-type unit with a wide nozzle on the front. The vacuum works much like your house vacuum. The nozzle sucks in every leaf it passes over with the blower forcing the leaves into very large catcher bags. The force of the blower tends to compress the leaves in the bag so it has to be emptied less often. An advantage of the vacuum is its ability to suck leaves from under shrubs and high corners. Certain models even have hose attachments to clean garages and workshops.

Just the opposite from the vacuum is the blower. These units are capable of creating winds of almost hurricane force to blow leaves across the lawn at each pass. Equipped with throttle controls to vary the wind velocity, the blower can pile leaves as neatly as you can with a hand rake.

If you're a gardener, you might leap one of the units above with a shredder unit that grinds and pulverizes leaves, sticks, stalks, trimmings, vines. Mix in some manure and or rock phosphate and you're making your own plant fertilizer. These units roll between garden rows or next to plant borders and flower beds to put your compost where its needed.

Use of any of the units listed here tends to create a good deal of dust since leaves are best handled when they are dry. The dust tends to rob the unit's engine of power and can even clog the blower housing air filters and carburetor to the point of engine failure. It's best to choose a leaf unit with a highly efficient air cleaner.

Veterans' Benefits Questions, Answers

Q. If Social Security benefits are increased again this year, will it affect my Veterans Administration pension?

A. Yes, but not during the current year. Any required pension adjustments are made effective the first of the year following the year Social Security increases are received.

Q. If a veteran has provided for a lump sum payment of proceeds from his National Service Life Insurance, may the beneficiary select payment under another option?

A. Yes. A beneficiary may elect payment of all or part of the insurance under one of three monthly installment plans.

Q. My father, a World War II veteran, draws a Veterans Administration pension because he is unable to work. Can he be treated in a VA hospital if his condition is not related to his military service?

A. Yes, if a VA examination confirms he needs hospitalization and a bed is available. Since he is on pension, it is not necessary for him to sign a statement of inability to pay.

POLLUTION IS A MENACE TO ALL AMERICANS ...
NOT JUST THOSE IN THE "WRONG" NEIGHBORHOODS

Out of sight, out of mind. Perhaps ugly scenes like this are never viewed by most of us but they do exist. They are a menace, not just to those who live or work in the vicinity of polluted areas, but to all of us. You can't isolate something like pollution . . . it spreads its insidious filth through every level of society, contaminating our air, water, and land today and threatening disastrous consequences for generations to come. We must all mobilize against the elements that contribute to pollution — beginning with the empty beer can tossed out of a car window, to the conditions that permit rat-infested slum areas. Our environment is a precious heritage . . . let's preserve it for ourselves and for future Americans!

Farm Wife Vies With Henry Field

By Pat Oswald
The hobby of a Winside farm wife, Mrs. Henry Koch, would delight many an ecology fan, to say nothing of being economy-wise and enjoyable as well. Mrs. Koch, like a lot of area women, raises an annual garden and takes pride in the flowers which bloom about her home. But unlike some, Mrs. Koch lets many of the vegetables and flowers go to seed to save for the next year's crop. She feels the vegetables grow better from home-grown seeds because they are climate conditioned to this area.

Mrs. Koch explains to the photographer's son how beet and carrot seeds form and what they look like while ripening.

To raise beet or carrot seeds, Mrs. Koch plants a beet or carrot from the previous year's crop. The carrots develop white flowers and are brownish in color when ripe. Mrs. Koch then scrapes them off and places them in a dry container for storage. Beets branch out and seeds form on the stems. Radishes develop pods of seed and turn brown when ripe. She raises both red and white varieties. Other seeds kept for the following year's planting include bean and onion. Mrs. Koch noted, "I'm thinking of trying to raise my own cabbage seed this year."

Koch recalls the days when many vegetables, canned goods and handwork samples were taken to the Wayne County Fair. One year when her son Lee was small, she remembered they had the car so loaded with exhibits for the fair that there was hardly room for them.

Mrs. Koch also keeps up with reading, quilting, handicraft and participation in the Busy Bees Club which meets monthly during the fall and winter. She is an active member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Winside besides.

The Kochs farm a quarter mile north of Winside.

Vacation Tips for Pet Owners

Vacations are for everyone—adults, kids and...pets? In the hassle of family vacation planning, decisions must be made. Where do we go? What will we see? What do we do with Rover or Mitti? What are you going to do with your pets while you're on vacation? If you answer to a pleading child is "yes, we will take Rover with us," have you thought of everything? Here are some questions you might ask yourself to see how well prepared you are to have a canine companion or a feline friend on your vacation.

- Do you have enough room in a "packed" car for a dog or cat?
- Is your pet a good traveler?
- Are pets allowed at the places you will visit? If they are, are there adequate facilities for the pet to romp and sleep?
- Is your pet a night barker? This is a problem that could keep your family and other travelers awake all night.
- Make Room for Rover

If your pet will be traveling with you, make sure there is adequate space for the animal to lie down and that he is able to have an occasional stretch. The larger the animal, the more space needed.

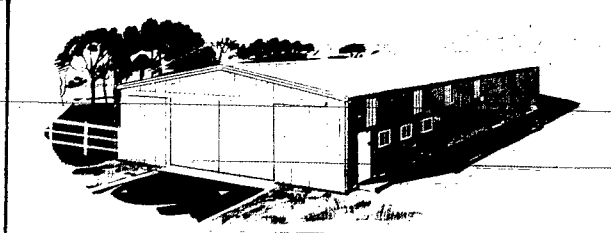

Be sure there is proper ventilation for the animal. It's a good idea to check the exhaust system before starting out on a trip. In a station wagon, don't open the rear window for ventilation, since exhaust fumes could enter the car. Instead, open one of the side windows. For some unknown reason, dogs like to have the wind blow directly into their faces. This is a bad habit for your dog. Foreign objects can get into his eyes or ears and cause pain and distress. If your pet is high strung or very energetic, tranquilizers may help calm the animal and make it a more enjoyable trip for everyone. Your local veterinarian can supply a suitable tranquilizer. One important item to remember while traveling, pets are like children and wives. More frequent stops are usually necessary, so plan accordingly. Most motels now provide a place for animals to stay and an area for them to romp. Don't forget to make reservations ahead of time for these facilities.

If you plan to stay at any of the state or national parks, check with the Department of Interior Park Service to see if they are allowed in the park. If they are, abide by the rules of the park at all times. Be considerate of your fellow campers. They're trying to get away from the hustle and bustle, too. When the Pet Stays Home. If you've decided that the family pet will not vacation with you, the other alternative is to have someone—a friendly neighbor or a veterinarian board your pet while you're away. Many veterinarians have excellent facilities to board animals. This is also a good time to check the overall health of your pet and obtain necessary shots if they're suggested by the veterinarian. A stay at the veterinarians may be your pet's first time away from "his family," so take along a favorite toy, bone or sock to help the animal through the adjustment period. Remember, you have a responsibility to your pet. Dogs have feelings and can sense when things are different.

Only Admiral TV Picture Tubes To Carry Exclusive Extended 5-Year Adjustment Warranty

All Admiral television picture tubes will now carry an exclusive Five Year Adjustment Warranty, it was announced by Joseph J. Casale, electronics marketing vice president.

The new warranty will extend Admiral's present color tube warranty for three additional years and the black and white tube warranty for four additional years.

"We are pleased to take the industry lead in extending television tube warranties," said Casale. "This move, made possible by the high quality and dependability of Admiral products, will give the customer added protection and confidence in the product he buys."

The new warranty builds on Admiral's former picture tube warranties. In addition to the standard Admiral color TV warranty: two years on the picture tube, one year warranty on parts and 90 days free labor, Admiral will now replace a defective color TV picture tube with a rebuilt color picture tube of the same size and type anytime within the next three years. During the first two years there is no charge for the tube. During the next three years, the customer is charged the price specified in the warranty certificate.

The standard black and white television warranty provides for a one year warranty on the picture tube, 90 days warranty on other parts and 90 days free labor. In addition, Admiral will now replace a defective picture tube with a rebuilt black and white picture tube of the same size anytime during the next four years. The charge for the replacement tube is specified in the warranty.

Service and labor charges are not included in the replacement price on either color or black and white tubes.

Admiral Presents Cartrivision Video Tape System

Admiral Corporation has introduced its first Super-Solarcolor TV with Cartrivision, it was announced today by Joseph J. Casale, electronics marketing vice president. The new video tape cartridge recording and playback system includes a self-contained solid state video tape deck and big-screen color television receiver, plus a video "instant replay" camera.

"The Cartrivision system presents an all-new, complete entertainment-education center for the home," said Casale. "With Admiral's new Cartrivision model, you can shoot your own instant replay sound movies... record color TV shows on tape, even when you're not there, and play them back at your convenience... and buy or rent prerecorded programs on video tape cartridges that let you enjoy anything from a 30-minute program to full-length movies," he said.

The Instant Replay camera is a compact 2-1/2 pound camera that provides instant movies with sound at a fraction of the cost of conventional movie film. There is no waiting for film to be processed... just shoot and it's ready for showing on the TV screen. The camera offers a zoom lens that zeroes in to enlarge the subject by three times. The tape can be erased and used again, or stored for viewing again and again.

A timed automatic record feature lets the owner record a color TV show on tape when the family is away from home. The unit can be set to record at a specific time, with up to a seven hour delay. At a preset time, the set will automatically turn on to record. At the completion of the show, the timer will automatically turn off the set. The recorded tape may be stored for repeated future viewing. Blank Yellow Label cartridges for recording are available in two sizes: 30-minute and 114-minute.

Two other cartridge types are available. The Black Label cartridges, which the Cartrivision owner buys, offer prerecorded programs and are available in two lengths: 30-minute and 114-minute. The Red Label cartridges are available on a rental basis and offer full-length movies for home viewing.

The first Admiral Cartrivision model is the Orion (5VT5608), a self-contained solid state video tape deck and 25-inch color television receiver. Highlights of the television are Super-Solarcolor black matrix picture tube for the brightest Admiral picture ever, new 5S850 solid state chassis and new Admiral Color Master control, a single pushbutton control that combines Automatic Fine Tuning, color and tint controls.

The Orion is a Mediterranean-styled console with pecan-grained finish on select hardwood veneers. It carries the new, extended five year adjustment warranty on the picture tube, as well as one year warranty on other parts and 90 days free service.

Seven new stereo component systems - four with 8-track cartridge stereo tape players - have been introduced by Admiral Corporation for 1973. It was announced by Edward W. Boba, marketing manager-audio products. The new models include a four channel cartridge tape system.

"Component systems are growing in popularity because they offer mix-and-match versatility," Casale said, "and Admiral's handsome all-wood cabinets with walnut-grained vinyl finish enhance any room setting."

All the new Admiral models feature solid state Instant Play tuner/amplifier and Alnico V speakers for full-bodied stereo presentation. All include FM/AM and FM stereo radio; four feature 8-track cartridge tape player, and two include a four-speed stereo record changer.

Each model contains jacks for phonograph, tape play and record, and headphones, so the owner can build a complete stereo sound system by adding optional plug-in Admiral accessories at any time.

Solarcolor, Extended Warranty Highlight 33 New Admiral Color TV's

Admiral has introduced 33 new color television models for 1973, each featuring an extended five-year adjustment warranty on the picture tube. Highlights of the new models include the exclusive Admiral Solarcolor system and new Color Master control, according to Fred W. Darby, marketing manager - color television for Admiral Corporation. He said the new models include 12, 16, 18, 19, 21 and 25-inch receivers.

"The ever-increasing quality and dependability of Admiral television receivers has made it possible for us to extend our picture tube warranty by three years," Darby said. "In addition to the standard Admiral warranty: two years on the picture tube, one year on parts and 90 days free labor, Admiral will now replace a defective picture tube with a rebuilt picture tube of the same size and type anytime during the next three years," he said. During the first two years there is no charge for the tube; during the last three years of the warranty the customer is charged the price specified in the warranty. This price is determined by the age and size of the picture tube. After the first 90 days, service and labor charges are not covered by the warranty.

"Admiral also offers the exclusive Solarcolor system and new Color Master, bringing viewers the brightest, clearest and truest Admiral color picture ever," Darby said. In the Solarcolor system, a flat, black matrix surrounds the phosphor dots, absorbing ambient light and assuring that the color dots are more fully and accurately illuminated.

Admiral's new Color Master control integrates Automatic Fine Tuning and Color Monitor to lock in the correct signal frequency and preferred flesh tones, plus preset color and tint, with a single control. Adjusting and readjusting color and tint for camera or channel changes is no longer necessary.

Additional features on Admiral color television models for 1973 are solid state remote control, Instant Play, a modular chassis receiver and decorator side panels.

The multi-function remote control, available on five models, allows the viewer to operate the set conveniently from across the room.

Instant Play is featured on all the new color receivers, providing instant sound and picture as the set is turned on. Instant Play also prolongs the life of the set by safeguarding sensitive components against electrical surges and humidity damage.

Super-Solarcolor Offers Brightest TV Picture Yet!

Six new Admiral color televisions feature the new, improved Super-Solarcolor picture tube, according to the announcement made by Fred W. Darby, marketing manager-color television for Admiral Corporation. The new system is available on two 19-inch models and four 25-inch models.

"Super-Solarcolor is a combination of new developments that result in the brightest picture in Admiral television history," said Darby.

In Super-Solarcolor, a black matrix fully surrounds each phosphor dot, so no light bleeds through or around the color dot. The possibility of out-of-register color is minimized. This precise phosphor excitation process is aided by the use of a super-accurate electron gun and shadow mask that focus the electron beam with pin-point accuracy. Each color dot is fully illuminated. In addition, rare earth phosphors are used to yield an even brighter, more life-like picture.

The black matrix coating also allows the use of a special di-transmission glass. This glass allows 84-1/2 per cent of the light generated to pass through the tube face, absorbing room light to minimize color wash-out and reflection on the tube face.

The two 19-inch models are the Colony (19T518C) and the Woodbine (19T511C). These models also feature Color Master, automatic fine tuning, color and tint in one control, instant Play, Super Scope all-channel tuners, and a deluxe wood-veneer cradle base.

The Colony, in genuine pecan veneers and hardwood solids, has a Mediterranean-styled cabinet. The Woodbine is a contemporary-styled cabinet with genuine walnut veneers and hardwood solids.

The new Super-Solarcolor system is also offered on the Governor (5L5565), the Martin (5L5561), and the Capri (5L5568). These models also feature the new modular SS900 chassis, deluxe decorator side panels in richly grained wood finishes on select hardwood veneers, and "Automatic 8" stereo 8-track player/amplifier, as well as Color Master and Super Scope VHF and Varactor UHF tuning system.

One 25-inch color stereo theater also features Super-Solarcolor - the Salerno (5ST5533). It also offers 8-track stereo tape, FM/AM and stereo FM radio, and stereo record changer, all housed in an elegant upright, handcrafted oak cabinet in the Mediterranean tradition.

All six models feature the new, extended five year adjustment warranty on the picture tube, in addition to the regular one year warranty on other parts and 90 days free labor.
