Cool Weather Greet's Dixon Fair

It is not often that county fair officials are thankful for rainy weather to hit during fair time. But the members of the Dixon County Fair were thankful this year that cooling rains and temperatures came for the county's three day fair.

Monday night's crowd jammed the grandstand for the playday events. It seems, he said, that the crowd was real enthusiastic about the first night that also featured a free barbecue.

One particular Wakefield family was especially happy about this year's fair.

The Domsch children, including Debbie, Carl and Patty, took over top fair awards Tuesday, winning nine purples out of 12 ribbons.

Laurel Registration Set for This Friday

Registration day at Laurel Public School is Friday, Aug. 25, with a general meeting of all teachers and students scheduled for 8:30 to 9 a.m. at the school gym. Teachers will be introduced.

Grade seven students are to sit in the east section of the bleachers, and are asked to arrange themselves alphabetically.

Safety School For New Pupils

Assistant Chief of Police E. L. (Pat) Harley will conduct a pedestrian safety school for kindergarten children Monday at the rear of the police garage at 115 W. Second.

The school will last approximately 1 1/2 hours and will include the proper methods of crossing through streets, streets with stop signs and streets with traffic signals. The children will get to meet "Sully," the talking traffic signal, and refreshments will be served.

Everyone is requested to stay off the gymnasium floor which is not dry.

Lunch will be served from 11:45 to 12:50. Students are advised to eat when they have a chance. School will be dismissed at 2 p.m. Buses will run at 8:30 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Allen Workshop Set

Superintendent Gail E. Miller, of the Allen Consolidated Schools, has announced that the theme for the fall workshop, to be held Friday, at the school gym, will be "Orientation to Career Education."

Those children with last names beginning with A through H are asked to be at the police garage at 8:30 a.m., those with names beginning with I through N, at 10:30, and those with names O through Z at 1:30 p.m.

Students who will be enrolling in the Middle School, grades five through eight, for the first time should register for classes on Thursday or Friday, Aug. 24 or 25 if they have not already done so.

Allen Classes Begin Monday

Students who will be enrolled in grades nine through 12 at Allen Consolidated Schools are to register at the school gym Monday, Aug. 28.

The workshop will get off the ground with a 7:30 faculty breakfast at the Home Cafe, to be hosted by the Allen Improvement Association. The Career Education session will be followed at the schoolhouse at 9 a.m.

Up'n Coming

Thursday through Saturday, Dakota-Thurston County Fair at South Sioux City.

Monday, 8:30 p.m., 4-H Calf Sale at the Wayne Sale Barn.

$86.46 Donated

A fund to help the Leonard Jones family has reached $86.46, with contributions still being collected at the State National Bank, KTCH Radio, the First National Bank and The Wayne Herald.

Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., City Council meeting.

Police Film Series Ends Sunday Evening

The final week of the 13-week series of films shown by the Wayne Police Department will be held Sunday evening at Bressler Park, 10th and Lincoln.

Wednesday, first day of school at all Wayne schools.

The first of the three films is "Tea, Horse and Crime," meant especially for adults. The 30-minute black and white film discusses the basic narcotic drugs and their relationship to crime. It includes a filmed sequence of an addict undergoing withdrawal and receiving a shot that calms him, pointing out that crime committed by the drug addict is a secondary effect.

The 13-week series closes with a 12-minute color film on the proper use of gun handling. The film "Gay Mayhem," intended especially for those of junior high age on up, dramatically shows the results of improper handling of weapons, both indoors and out.

Nearing Completion

Construction at the site of the new Gibson's building is nearing the Oct. 1 scheduled completion date with the installation of two more brick walls. Working on the present wall is Fritz Brandt, Sergeant Bluffs, (bottom) and Leslie Carr, Emerson, employees of the Paul Bleibenberg Masonry Contractors. According to officials, if weather holds out, the job should be finished by Oct. 1. No date has been set as yet for the grand opening.

Wakefield's Greg Meyer made it two years in a row Tuesday, winning the Champion Pork Producer trophy at the Dixon County Fair.

Tool Firm Site To Be S. Dakota

Stouff Tools, Inc. of Sioux City, Ia., which had considered Wayne as the site for a branch plant, announced Tuesday that a new 30,000-square foot plant would be built at Vermillion, S. D.

City officials and an industrial committee have been trying to land the new industry for Wayne the past several months.

"A decision has been reached to locate a branch plant at Vermillion, S. D. . . This decision was not easily reached as Wayne is an outstanding city and will certainly be considered for future expansion sites. We would like to thank you and the other excellent people who made your excellent presentation."

Mysterious Light

The Floyd Mosers, who live north of Randolph, reported to the State Patrol Office at Norfolk a mysterious bright light near their farm home early Sunday morning, about 3:45. They at first thought the light was a haystack on fire but then, they said, "it kept going out and coming back."

Iowan Dies In Accident Near Allen

Floyd Coulure, Jr., 22, of Sioux City, Ia., was killed Saturday night when the westbound pickup he was driving left the road about four miles southwest of Allen, hit a large tree and went into flames.

Exchange Students on Campus

Exchange students are now enrolling at Wayne residents who have hosted several high school participants in the American Field-Service program in past years. But this year—the local welcome mat will in addition go out to two college youths, placed in Wayne by the Youth For Understanding Program.

Esther Bagger

Benny Schuster

The accident occurred about 2 1/2 miles south and 1 1/2 miles west of Allen. The Dixon County sheriff's office said the victim was burned so badly that identification was made through the vehicle's license plate.

Esther, who is making her home with Mr. and Mrs. David Ley, was graduated from high school in June, and upon her return home will possibly enroll for 2 1/2 or four years in a teachers college. Her year of studies in the United States will not count toward college credit in Denmark.

Benny, 19, is the daughter of a farmer and has a sister, Ellen, who is 17, and a brother, Jerry, who is 13. She became interested in the YFU program through her acquaintance with a fellow student in Denmark who had been an exchange student in Detroit, Mich.

Benny Schuster, who is from Silkeborg, a city of 26,000, in Denmark, will be at home for himself to teach History and English at college level. Youth For Understanding will have about 3,500 foreign exchange students placed in the United States this year. There are approximately 70 in Nebraska, of which 30 are college students. Mrs. Del Cross is area director for the program, which has been in operation the past 21 years.

Mishap Caused By Rough Road

A car driven by Kevin L. Brockmoller, 21, of Wayne, was extensively damaged about 11:30 p.m. Thursday when he went into a ditch, through a fence and into a field four miles north of Wayne on Highway 15.

Miss Bagger, 19, is the daughter of a farmer and has a sister, Ellen, who is 17, and a brother, Jerry, who is 13. She became interested in the YFU program through her acquaintance with a fellow student in Denmark who had been an exchange student in Detroit, Mich.

County Valuation Is Up Half-Million

The assessed valuation from Wayne County real estate, personal property, motor vehicles and "specials" jumped $492,190 during the past fiscal year — from $37,422,995 to $37,915,185 — it was reported Tuesday by the office of County Assessor Henry Arp.

Assessed valuation is figured at 25 per cent of actual valuation, so county's holdings actually are well over $100 million. Real estate, as is always the case, provides the big share of the figure, $28,071,230, as compared to $27,577,035 in 1971.

Wayne had a total assessed valuation estimated at $8,248,810, up from the $7,991,565 of 1971. All other towns in the county showed an increase, Winslow from $559,440 to $568,215; Carroll from $222,410 to $237,440; Hoskins from $312,215 to $314,675; Sholes from $34,140 to $36,470 and Heikes Addition from $146,650 to $154,650.

The school district assessed valuations for 1972, with the 1971 valuations in parenthesis: District 1, $392,255 ($389,240); Dist. 5, $856,685 ($802,725); Dist. 8, $400,390 ($415,550); Dist. 9, $2,254,415 ($2,176,915); Dist. 10, $442,855 ($446,445); Dist. 15, $810,440 ($831,790); Dist. 17, $12,320,930 ($12,000,935); Dist. 23, $317,120 ($282,720).

4-H'ers Will Sell Fair Beef

The Agricultural Committee of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring this year's annual 4-H calf sale, Monday, Aug. 28.

The auction will start at 8:30 p.m. in the Wayne Sale Barn, said Harold Ingalls, county extension agent, with about 100 head of cattle (35 individuals and 13 pens of five) to be sold.

School Starts Monday For Wakefield Pupils

The 1972-73 Wakefield Public School year will get underway Monday with the traditional flag-raising ceremony at 8:45 a.m. at the high school building.

Lunch will be served at the school beginning Monday at a cost of 30 cents per meal for students in grades K through six, and 35 cents per meal for students in grades seven through 12. (Single meals are five cents extra per meal). One half pint of milk will be included with each meal and extra milk can be purchased at three cents per carton.

Each member is allowed to sell one sale lot, either an individual or a pen for both. Those selling individuals must have shown a calf at the Wayne County Fair, Ingalls pointed out. But not so for pen lot consignors.

Determination of the levies will be set by County Clerk Norris Weible on or before Sept. 1 by computing budget requests from those agencies and valuation figures from the county assessor.

Seventh grade students are to meet at the high school library at 9:30 a.m. on Aug. 24 for orientation day. The meeting will dismiss at noon.

Classes this year will start at 8:30 a.m. daily for high school students and 8:40 a.m. for elementary students. Kindergarten pupils will meet in the afternoon. School will be dismissed at 3:50 p.m.

The cattle will not be judged this year, he said. Instead, the sale order of all cattle will be based on a scoring system, combining rate of gain plus the packer's appraisal.

If budgets remained the same as those submitted last year, then the levy would be down, but increases in requests for expected expenditures during the next fiscal year often offset the Parents are advised that "reporting of students will be on a ring-week period, that is, a 7 a.m. Down notices will be sent to parents at the end of the third and six-week periods. Parent-teacher conferences will be scheduled during the first week of November."

Superintendent Muri R. Beller, in a letter advised all students of the change which was necessary because of the federal reimbursement which dropped from 15 cents last year to five cents

Water Safety Rules Are Important

Many Nebraskans take to the water for a variety of recreation activities during the summer, whether it be swimming, water skiing, skin diving, boating or fishing.

But numerous accidents occur annually around water environments. Last year, nearly 7,000 drownings occurred in the United States. Nearly 60 per cent of these involved persons occupied with some water activity other than swimming. This includes falling from boats and off of skis.

That's why it is important for everyone who participates in some type of water recreation to be aware of the safety aspects involved.

Water safety means having a general knowledge and appreciation of the water environment.

Many lakes, reservoir beaches and even some motel swimming pools do not have lifeguards.

Seven at Meet

Seven members attended the World War I Auxiliary meeting held Monday evening. Mrs. Charles Sieckman gave the Americanism report and Mrs. Hattie McNutt reported on the Fourth District Convention held in Kearney. The local unit received a citation of merit for 100 per cent membership at the meeting.

Mrs. Charles Sieckman was chairman of the serving committee. Barracks members joined the group for refreshments and a social hour. Next meeting will be Sept. 19.

Club's Supper Out Is Saturday Evening

Eight members of Progressive Homemakers Club, with their families, met at the Black Knight Lounge Saturday for supper out. Cards served for entertainment afterward, with prizes going to Harry Schulz and Mrs. Emma Franzen, high, and Ari Dranselka and Mrs. Ida Moses, low.

Mrs. Otto Saul and Mrs. Julia Haas received birthday gifts from their secret heart sisters.

Students Plan Winter Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Rasmussen, Waterbury, and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Buehner, Valenzuela, announce the engagement of their children, Linda Brudvik and Ron Resser. Both are students at the University of Nebraska.

Plans are being made for a Dec. 22 wedding.

FLAMMABILITY OF CLOTHING

The flammability factor of clothing is considered one of the most crucial hazards in the textile world today. Small children and elderly persons have suffered the most from accidents involving burning clothing.

Sleepwear made of flammable fabrics is the article of clothing most often present in burning incidents involving children. The frequency of injuries and deaths involving flammable clothing has resulted in the issuance of fabric flammability standards by the Federal Trade Commission. After July 28, 1973, any marketed children's sleepwear, or fabric intended for sleepwear, must not ignite and burn when tested by brief exposure to flame. Fabrics must not melt and drop on contact with flame.

Garments manufactured from July 1972 to July 1973, that do not meet the new standards must be labeled: "Flammable (Does not meet the U.S. Dept. of Commerce Standards DOC FF-3-71). Should not be worn near sources of fire."

The new flammability standard applies to ready-made children's pajamas, nightgowns, robes and other sleepwear in sizes 6X or less. Piece goods or fabrics intended for children's sleepwear must also comply to flammability regulations. The flame resistant finish must be permanent enough to meet the standards after 50 washings.

Members of this year's Wayne High School football team got a stiff workout Monday morning and evening as the more than 50 players get ready to defend the league's crown as well as continue the team's undefeated mark. Head Coach Al Hansen said he expects about 10 to 12 more boys to show next week when most of the vacation season is over. The coach noted that the contact drills were scheduled to start Wednesday. Here the boys are going through wind sprints during the early-morning session. On the right, last year's quarterback, Tom Kersine, warms up with a few tosses as he prepares to enter the season, hopefully on a winning note. On Sept. 8, Wayne will host Madison for the first game of the season.

First Day Workouts

Laurel Tankers Sock Pilger in Final Duel

The Laurel swim team closed its season on a winning note recently, drowning the Pilger tankers 552-283, at home. Laurel's Kelly McCoy and Rebecca Kraemer grabbed first and second place in the 12 and under girls diving events with Brenda Young, Pilger, taking third.

In the boys' 12 and under category, Mike Martin and Brad Victor ranked one and two respectively with Brian Shallis, Pilger, rounding out the top three.

In the girls' 13 and over diving competition, Pilger's June Timm took first followed by Kim Matthews and Claudia Mallatt, Laurel, second and third. Mike Dalton finished first for the boys 13 and over slot with Brad Breitkreutz, Pilger, second, and Terry Urwiler, Laurel, third.

During the diving events, the host team piled up 343 points to Pilger's 108 while in the six swimming events Laurel chalked up 209 points to the visitor's 125.

Parasites Plague Bass

Nebraska's best smallmouth bass fishing—at Hugh Butler Lake (Red Willow), north of McCook on Highway 83—could possibly be in danger! The villain—parasites!

Monte Mayes, a Pennsylvania-born zoologist who is conducting a two year study for the Zoology Department of the University of Nebraska, under contract with the Game and Parks Commission, recently discovered the problem. Working at Hugh Butler Lake in one of the initial surveys, he told this writer that he found "a really fantastic number of big smallmouths", far outnumbering small bass. Alarmingly, though, he discovered that 85 to 90 per cent of his small sampling of female bass were loaded with the larval form of tapeworms in the ovaries. So much so, Mayes said, that they affect fertility. This could greatly reduce reproduction.

The Game and Parks Commission has no immediate program for stocking additional smallmouths. It will, however, check the situation further.

Hugh Butler wasn't alone in having parasitized fish. Mayes found nematodes (round worms) in walleyes in Merritt Reservoir near Valentine. He discovered these primarily in the fatty material in the viscera—this is the guts, etc., which are removed when cleaning a fish. Burchard Lake in southeast Nebraska was found to have black bullheads and catfish with yellow grubs, particularly in the flesh.

Other lakes studied to date include Enders, Swanson, Harlan, Atkinson, Johnson, Maloney, and Salt Valley lakes. Bluestem near Lincoln and McCaughy are scheduled to be checked soon, along with select ice-fishing waters this winter.

Mayes uses shocking, netting, and regular fishing practices to obtain his sample fish. He tries to get at least 10 fish of each species from each lake for study. A more extensive investigation will be needed to substantiate any problem areas.

PARASITIZED FISH NOT HARMFUL
While parasites were found, as they are also found in fish in other states, Mayes assures all fishermen that infected fish are not harmful to humans if the fish are cooked.

Actually, the latter is one of the reasons for the study—to dispel fears people have of eating parasitized fish. Mayes said the Game Commission plans to publish a pamphlet at the conclusion of the study to let fishermen know what parasites are present, means of identifying them, and methods of preparing parasitized fish for the table. He reiterated that no parasites yet found in Nebraska fish are harmful to humans!

Anglers are invited to join in the study by holding any fish with visible forms of a problem. Fish for study can be held up to 24 hours on ice. Too, farm pond owners who think they have infected fish are urged to contact the Game and Parks Commission.

SLOW MARTINS
Mrs. Art Freeman, Grand Island, inquires if it isn't rather late (Aug. 14) to have two baby purple martins at her place that are still being fed. Coincidentally, I also had two young martins in the nest on Aug. 11. Early that morning, as many as 12 martins congregated at my place, working the house over, landing on top, watching from wires, and flying all about, seemingly calling the pair to "come out; time's a wasting!" Most of the day I watched to see if the two would come out.

At 5 p.m., I went out again but all was strangely quiet; not a note, a martin, or even the young in the nest. The young apparently came out, got their wings, and departed, possibly for South America. Only two adult birds have visited the house since. I'm still dumbfounded by the "now they're here and now they're gone" show. One consolation is that the martins stayed eight days longer than last year.

MISHMASH With archery antelope under way and squirrel and cottontail seasons just around the corner (Sept. 1), it's time to begin conditioning oneself for the vigorous hunting ahead. One simple way is jogging which helps build extra lung capacity, provides surplus capillaries for more endurance and oxygen-carrying reserve, and tones muscles which reduces spasms, cramps, and shin splints to a bearable level. Pheasants, which are open game Nov. 4, were long in taking hold in this country. First attempts to transplant this exotic species predated the revolution. Their recognized successful introduction came in 1862, in the Willamette Valley of Oregon. A standard car without trailer option is not designed to tow. It can handle trailers up to 2,000 pounds gross loaded weight with minimum equipment—but it won't do as well as a properly equipped car. Stick to 15-foot trailers with less than 200 pounds hitch weight. At least add helper springs.

PLACES A-GO-GO Water Ama Skiing and boating competition at Lake North, near Columbus, Aug. 27. Preliminary water ski events begin at 9 a.m., boat time trials at noon, and Miss Water Ama at 2 p.m. Regional American Legion Baseball Tournament, Hastings, through 28; Old Fiddlers and Country Music Contest, Brownville; Hobby and Antique Flea Market, Oshkosh; Brainard Old Home Town Festival, and Stapleton Rodeo, all 26-27; and horse racing, Columbus, Aug. 25 through Sept. 25.

Locals Fall, 5-2

Runs, Rain Rap Wayne Town Team

Five runs and some drops of rain ended Wayne's chance for knocking off Northeast Nebraska Baseball League Leader Sioux City as the town team erased the locals, 5-2, Sunday night in a game played at Sioux City.

Wayne, which is in fourth place in the standings, gathered in its only two runs in the top of the fifth via a two RBI hit by Right Fielder Steve Hix. Earlier, Center Fielder Randy Jacobsen and First Baseman Fritz Weible got on as a result of two errors followed by a bases-loaded, single by Third Baseman Lynn Lessmann.

But after Wayne's turn at bat, the weatherman turned on the rain to end the contest.

Sioux City opened the contest with a single in the inning, adding another single in its only two runs in the top of the second and exploding for three more in the third.

Center Paul Eddie started the pitching duties but was relieved in the fourth by Delmar Wacker. Wayne is now 0-1 in the best of three game series which will help determine the league champion for the year. Thursday, the town team will host Sioux City in a game scheduled for 8:15 p.m. at the city ball park.

Drivers Urged To Use Lights

Governor J. James Exon is urging all motorists to participate in Operation Lights On through Sept. 8.

"All state-owned vehicles will set the example by having their lights on during this period," the governor said.

Operation Lights On is part of a continuous campaign to reduce traffic accidents. The Governor's Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee is directing the statewide campaign.

Experience has shown that driving with lights on during daylight hours contributes to traffic safety. The lights increase visibility and are particularly effective on rural roads where backgrounds often make it difficult to see oncoming cars.

Olds Relates Highlights of Trip

Kenneth Olds gave an interesting and informative talk, mixed with some humorous incidents, on the trip to Okinawa, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Japan that he and Mrs. Olds took this summer at Kiwanis Monday noon.

The Olds' son, Capt. Kenneth Olds, Jr., and his wife live on Okinawa where he is an Army doctor in a military hospital, specializing in treatment of drug addicts.

"The drug problem on Okinawa is much worse than in the United States," the Wayne attorney told the Kiwanians. "They have tightened up on marijuana, but have a big problem with heroin," he added.

The trip of approximately 10,000 miles took 21 hours of flying time by jet from Omaha.

"People on Okinawa are much more aware of a war going on," he pointed out, adding that military planes are allowed to refuel over the island, but not allowed to land there.

Like the U.S., Okinawa has a problem with inflation, with 300 yen equal to one American dollar and cantaloupe costing from $14 to $15. The golfing fees for non-residents run $15, plus $2.50 for a caddy, he pointed out.

Okinawa has not progressed to the point where the streets are named or the homes numbered, "but, still, the people have hopes that their homeland will become the 'Hawaii of Japan' with 1,000 miles separating them from Tokyo."

The island, taken by the Allies in World War II, was returned to Japanese control the past May "and the people there apparently welcomed the switchover," the speaker said.

Camp Hansen, a military installation on Okinawa, was named after Dale Hansen of near Allona, who lost his life there during World War II and who received the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously.

The Olds also visited Taiwan, where bamboo scaffolding is still used to erect 10 to 12 story buildings; Hong Kong, "the most unusual and beautiful city I have ever seen," and spent a brief time in Tokyo.

He said Japanese claim that Tokyo crime rate is three-hundreds of one per cent that of New York City and that the city of 11 million has discouraged drug peddlers "simply because pushers almost automatically receive life sentences upon conviction."

The Wayne visitors took in one movie during their three-week trip, "and you can't believe how hilarious it is to see a John Wayne movie with his voice dubbed-in in Japanese."

Nebraska's Donations Near Top

Nebraska gave a total of $352,000 to the March of Dimes during its recently closed 1972 campaign, it was announced by J. Keith Cook, Omaha, chairman of the Nebraska March of Dimes state cabinet. That figure represents a 22 per cent increase over the $289,000 given in 1971.

Cook said that in 1971 Nebraska ranked fourth from the top in the nation in per-person giving, at 19 cents per capita. "This year the per capita was 23 cents, and that is expected to put us third, nationally," he added.

Fifty-seven of the 66 March of Dimes chapters in Nebraska had increased this year. The March of Dimes, created in the late 1930's to fight polio, triumphed over that ancient problem; and now uses its resources to fight the nation's second largest killer, birth defects.

One-third of all net receipts of all March of Dimes campaigns stays in the county where it was raised to be used for birth defects case loads and other local programs.

Business Notes

Leland Foote of the First National Bank and Robert Jordan of the State National Bank & Trust Co. were among 1,548 student-bankers from about 40 states and several foreign countries who recently completed the annual two-week residence session of the 18th annual Graduate School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

The school, sponsored by the Central States Conference, consisting of the banker's associations of 16 Midwestern states, requires attendance for two weeks each year for three years for graduation.

The Nebraska Medical Association points out that parents and supervisors at playgrounds should educate the children about using equipment safely.

Children should not be allowed to stand or kneel on swings and should not jump from a moving swing. Swings should be set at different heights for different age groups. Swings should be firmly set in the ground with frames securely braced. Hooks, hangers, clamps, and connections should be checked periodically for safety.

When using slides, children should learn to use the slide ladder, not crawl or run up the slide chute. Sliding down back-

VA Q & A

Q: I need funds to finance my son's college education. May I borrow on my GI insurance for that purpose?

A: If you have provided you have a permanent plan GI insurance policy over one year old. If you do, you can borrow up to 94 per cent of its reserve value. Current interest rate on such loans is five per cent.

Q: I understand anyone may buy a Veterans Administration repossessed home. Where can I get a list of real estate brokers who handle such properties?

A: The loan guaranty officer in the VA regional office in the area where you want to buy will provide such a list if you write or phone your request.

Sunday Parking

Wayne Mayor Kent Hall and the City Council members currently are studying the possibility of providing parking in no parking areas, for church goers during the Sunday or special services. The idea, it was pointed out, is to help alleviate the parking situations around churches. Presently, many of the churches in the city have received a letter from City Clerk Dan Sherry, asking the pastor to designate a certain area or areas on a city map he would like reserved for Sunday church parking. Of course, one thing that must be understood, the council has the right to limit the area open to church parking on city streets. Mayor Hall, in further study, proposed that a cross would be attached to the parking sign, telling the driver that this area is designated for parking during church services only. So far eight churches in the city have responded to the letters. Some have said that they do not wish any special parking sites while the majority have shown considerable interest in setting up certain designated areas. We believe that the mayor and the council are taking a forward step to help the Wayne community and the parking situation on Sundays. The final decision will be made at one of the Council's meetings. As yet, no definite time is set. Whether part or all of the public agrees, is not for us to decide. Rather, the question of such parking remains up to the public. After all, it is your city council representing you. —Bob Bartlett

A Nice Guy

Weekends find many a town family heading for the country to visit, picnic, hunt or perhaps pick up some produce for canning, freezing or just plain good eating. And considering what he gets in return, the farmer is a mighty nice fella. Seems only fitting it should be acknowledged. In spite of the trail left behind of beverage containers, sandwich wrappers, lunch leftovers, run-away pets, litter of kittens and election posters, the farmer still greets his guests with an extra measure of hospitality, heaping upon visitors goodies from his wife's well-tended garden in the summer and jars of homemade jam or packages of home cured sausage in the winter. He may offer you a half-dozen fresh country eggs and his wife will volunteer to start a plant like the one on her window sill for your wife. In spite of his often thoughtless caller, the farmer is usually willing to hitch up the tractor and pull a city driver out of a mud hole—many times refusing pay, on occasion not being offered any. He will leave his machinery and pause during a hot, busy day in the field to give a lost traveler assistance. He nearly always will take time to discuss the crops, the weather, prices, or the guy who's running for president. And he'll give you the best advice on how to get rid of fruit tree blight or where to get some good rock for your driveway. He will saddle up Old Charlie for your kids to ride or give you a tour of his new cooling parlor and milk barn. Then he'll offer you a cup of coffee and put a couple extra ears in the bushel of corn you've just bought, before walking you out to your car and bidding you goodbye with a hearty "Come back again." Nice guy, the farmer. —Sandra Breikreutz

West Point Paper Mill Operated in 1876-77

Early Nebraska had its share of unsuccessful business ventures due to the vagaries of weather, misjudging the availability of raw materials, lack of markets for products, and inadequate transportation. It was also true, no doubt, because Nebraska was young and its new settlers were energetic, often visionary types. When town promoters, chief of whom was John D. Neligh, established a mill to manufacture paper in 1876 at West Point, they held high hopes for its success, but it manufactured paper only a "short time." It is not recorded whether the firm used locally-grown wood for pulp or whether logs were shipped in on the Sioux City and Pacific or the Fremont and Missouri Valley railroads. It is known that in 1877, "10 carloads of wood from Iowa" were imported to fire West Point's brick kiln. The paper mill was only a part of a larger company, the West Point Manufacturing Company (organized in 1874 with a capital of $200,000 divided into 825 shares), which hoped to harness the waterpower of the Elkhorn River to drive its industries. Neligh was its president and E. K. Valentine its secretary. It also proposed to build a woolen mill, a flax mill to produce linseed oil, an agricultural machinery factory, and a furniture factory. The company absorbed a "flouring mill valued at $20,000," which first had been owned by Neligh and Ulrich Bruner. Early in 1875 Neligh, known later as "the father of West Point," began advertising heavily in his town lots in the West Point Republican. Titles of articles preserved at the Nebraska State Historical Society. He offered $60,000 in city lots to persons investing in the manufacturing firm. To the purchaser of six shares ($150) in the company he offered free a $25 lot; his offer became progressively larger, and to those buying 100 shares ($2,500), he gave lots valued at $500. On July 1, 1877, he offered $20,000 in bonds to the manufacturing company to "aid in improving the water power of the Elkhorn River for the purpose of propelling grist mills and the public works." In the spring of 1876 Neligh went East to sell bonds and stock. Paper-making machinery and "water wheels and a portion of a foundry" arrived soon afterward in West Point. By June 2 paper mill "60x120 feet, two stories high" was completed. A photograph of it (date unknown) with its later additions printed in the Republican in 1877 shows a red brick structure, its two tall, gabled wings ornamented near the eaves, connecting the wings was a one-story section, also gabled. Congregated in the photo near the building were Neligh in top hat, civic leaders, and workers. G. W. Cressman of Barré Hill, Pa., "conceded to be the best paper mill builder in the United States" was hired that summer to install the machinery in the building. He said the mill "will be the best one west of the Mississippi River." After completion that fall of the paper mill and a furniture factory, which apparently occupied part of the building, C. F. Bush of the Republic of the Republic observed that "property advanced 50 per cent in value." But it was not until the following year, however, that "the manufacture of brown paper, wrapping paper and other coarse products was commenced." Apparently the paper-making venture was unprofitable, since the mill facilities were soon combined with the more successful and expanding flour-making operation.

Capitol News—

Rural Town Residents Object to Phone Hike

Rural residents told the State Railway Commission last week they're not getting a fair shake from the telephone rate schedules.

The commission fielded some complaints about the prices rural Nebraskans pay for their telephone service when it held a public hearing on temporary rate adjustments granted the Lincoln-Telephone & Telegraph Company.

The bulk of the testimony was presented by Mr. and Mrs. David Hilber of Unadilla who organized the protest against the LT&T rate increase for long distance calls.

The commission has granted the boost in toll charges on a temporary basis, raising the rates to the same level previously set on a permanent basis for Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. and the other telephone firms operating in Nebraska.

The LT&T case was handled separately, the commission said, because its tariffs are different technically than those of the other companies. However, the commissioners told the Hilbers and others protesting at the hearing that it would be chaotic to have one telephone company charging a different set of toll rates than the others.

That would mean it would cost one rate—for example—to call from Lincoln to Omaha and another to call from Omaha to Lincoln.

The Hilbers said that perhaps all the rates should be rolled back, but the commissioners said testimony taken when Northwestern Bell hearings were conducted showed the increases were justified.

Heleny Bert Overcash, representing LT&T at last week's hearing, said new rates would mean only minimal additional revenue to the Lincoln company because Northwestern Bell operates most of the long distance switching equipment and would get the bulk of the money.

Connie Hilber, who is a candidate for the Legislature, said the protest was centered on the new long distance rates, but also involved a much broader complaint. She and her husband, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln English professor, said the latest increase "adds continued insult to a longstanding injury to the rural and small town Nebraska telephone user."

They explained that a city telephone subscriber, whose basic rate is only slightly higher than that of an LT&T subscriber in a small town or on a farm, has thousands of other telephones available to call at no extra charge. In rural areas, a subscriber has available only a few hundred numbers to call, so his potential use of the phone is much more limited—unless he wants to call outside his home area. It's at that point, the Hilbers said, that the increase in long distance rates is felt.

Hilber said it is a long distance call for him if he wants to reach a doctor, an ambulance or the sheriff's office from his home.

Also testifying at the hearing was Lee Wites, a retired farmer from Bennet, who had agreed to previous increases in telephone rates because "they always had been coupled with improvements in service."

However, he said there is no service improvement involved this time. In fact, he said, many of the customers in rural areas still have six or more other subscribers on their party lines.

The commission took the matter under advisement after listening to nearly three hours of testimony. Chairman Robert Marland of Lincoln said he would expect a decision on giving permanent status to the LT&T increase sometime next week.

TAX COMMISSIONER SUE
Nebraska is involved in a federal court suit filed in New York City by four large corporations. Defendants in the suit are Nebraska Tax Commissioner William E. Peters and the chief tax officers of the other 25 states involved in the multistate tax compact.

The four firms claim the compact—which is being used to provide expert audits of large corporations, for the benefit of all member states—is unconstitutional.

The action was filed by General Mills, Procter & Gamble, United States Steel and Standard Brands.

Peters said the combined auditing effort is an advantage to Nebraska and other small states which can't afford to notch auditors to check the books of huge corporations. The audits, he said, have the potential of uncovering thousands of dollars of additional tax revenue for the state.

Nebraska has been a member of the compact since 1967 when the Legislature voted its permission for the state to join.

To the Editor:
All-Star Basketball 1972 is now but a memory. But, for eight days, All-Star Basketball meant experiencing the hospitality of the city of Wayne and Wayne State College for 12 high school athletes and their two coaches.
Wayne certainly does not have to take a back seat to any community in Nebraska in the manner which the training camp is hosted. The opening camp buffet, the Tuesday night steak fry, and other activities and events do a large job in making the boys and their coaches feel at home.
But more important is the sincere interest exhibited in the All-Stars by the community. The North All-Stars have now won two consecutive games in the series should be no surprise to those who observe the camp. Everything that the city and college does helps the coaches mold each of these boys, each a star in his own community, into a cohesive unit. We're proud of our camp in Wayne and we think Wayne can be proud of the job it does.

Rural Areas Showing New Signs of Growth

WASHINGTON—The move from farm to city may be coming to a halt, a new era of economic and social growth for rural America may already be launched. . . . The data are drawn from various reports on the progress of rural America, from the arid stretches of the Southwest to the green fields of the Southeast. They also are indications that the much talked about goals of rural development are beginning to emerge as realistic accomplishments for an increasing number of communities.

Some signs of the recharged energies within rural areas are: —More jobs: During the 1960's nonfarm jobs increased by 39 per cent in the countryside, a slightly better rate than the 34 per cent increase in metropolitan areas. . . . —Farm exodus ending: The farm population has dropped to fewer than 9 1/2 million persons. With so few people remaining, the rural population is little further decline in the population is possible. As the farm-to-city migration dwindles to a negligible level, continued gains in non-agricultural jobs will have a more visible impact on the overall economy and population of rural areas.

—Greater Federal commitment to rural areas: The government is stepping up its investment in rural America many-fold. For example, funds earmarked for housing in rural areas amount to $2.2 billion this year, four times the 1969 level. . . . —Federal programs: A total of $342 million this year, nearly twice the 1969 level. Total funds devoted to rural development efforts by the Department of Agriculture will amount to $3.5 billion this year—four times the level in 1961 and twice as much as in 1969.

More important than the statistics or the governmental expenditures, however, is the determined individual in community after rural community who resolves to solve the problem on his own, who takes action to set his own neighborhood on the road to progress.

In Tuliz, Tex., for example, local leaders set out to combat decaying businesses, blighted housing. As a result of their efforts, the community has 300 new low cost homes and jobs and increased the number of construction workers in North Carolina, citizens mounted a driver education campaign as a small but vital part of their Statewide effort to connect more rural workers with more better paying jobs.

Rural development is an idea whose time has come up because increasing numbers of local groups are taking upon themselves to make sure that it does.

Area Counties Eligible For Federal Assistance

Twenty-three additional Nebraska counties now are eligible to apply for designation as Economic Development Administration areas, according to an announcement by Gov. J. James Stanton, Cuming and Colfax Counties. . . . The announcement, simultaneously released by the Economic Development Administration (EDA) of the U. S. Department of Commerce, explained that the 23 counties will be able to apply for federal money to finance local economic development activities once they apply for and are accepted as EDA areas.

Governor Exon commented that Stan Matzke, director of the Department of Economic Development met with the regional director of the EDA, Fred Van Renstrel, on Aug. 2, in Denver, to establish guidelines for the two agencies in working jointly toward the designation of the Nebraska counties which desire to participate in EDA programs.

At the Denver meeting two important steps were outlined which counties must take before they will be eligible for federal EDA funds. One is the formation of an overall county economic development planning committee and another is the preparation of an overall county economic development plan. . . . In the past, the Economic Development Association has been unable to participate in most Nebraska counties. Only the Indian reservations, sections of the city of Omaha, Greeley County, Pawnee County, and recently Boyd County have been eligible for EDA funded projects. By far the most ambitious project of this agency in Nebraska has been the South Omaha Industrial Tract. However, other projects of development significance to Omaha and the Indian Reservations have been funded in the past. The most recent EDA involvement in Nebraska has been with projects relating to the Riverfront Development—redevelopment of the 63 miles of river between Blair and Bellevue. Also included in the construction of a "Vo-Tech" installation in the Riverfront Development Project area.

Governor Exon also announced that the Economic Development Administration will establish an area office in Omaha or Lincoln to serve Nebraska and Iowa. "We look forward to working closely with Mr. Van Renstrel," stated Governor Exon. "I have requested that Mr. Van Renstrel coordinate closely with all agencies of Nebraska Government which are concerned with program areas touched on by the Economic Development Administration and have requested that Mr. Remorlet, State Director of EDA staff wherever possible in making these funds available to the areas in rural Nebraska which previously have not had the benefit of federal development funding. We look forward to the expanded EDA role in the State."

Supper guests Sunday evening in the Gotthilf Jaeger home were the Frank Liebs of Illinois, Christ Weibles and Herman Jaegers.

The Christ Weibles attended fund services Saturday in Omaha for George Heyde.

A family picnic was held Sunday at Bressler Park in Wayne to honor Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Schultz of Palmetto, Fla. Relatives attended from Winside, Wakefield and Omaha. Lois Holtgreve, Omaha, spent the weekend in the Henry Holtgreve home.

The Emil Swansons, Winside, and the Larry Swanson family, Blair, were guests Sunday in the Robert Swanson home, Meadow Grove.

Mrs. Emma Siphley, Evans, Colo., and Mrs. Rosie Hoffman were dinner guests Friday in the Mrs. Meta Nieman home.

Mrs. Joe Cahen, Oregon, spent Friday to Monday in the Kenneth Flier home.

The Earl Duering family and the Edward Oswald family held a picnic dinner Sunday at Ponca State Park and a picnic supper at Stone Park in Iowa.

The Jack Brockman family were dinner guests Sunday in the Otto Schlueter home, Humphrey.

Guests Sunday in the John Asmus home for his birthday were the Lyle Thies family, Norfolk, and the Marvin Asmus family, Blair.

The Frank Liebs, Illinois, spent from Saturday to Monday in the Herman Jaeger home.

The Ivan Dierichsen family spent Sunday in the Mrs. Frieda Dierichsen Scribner, and attended the county fair while there.

The Don Pearson family, Evansville, Wyo., spent some time in the Lewis Jenkins home and with other relatives in the area.

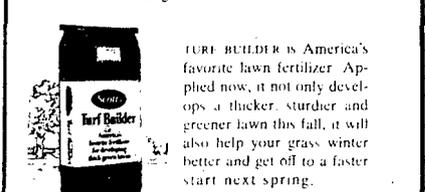

Guests Friday afternoon in the Alvin Longe home for Mrs. Longe's birthday were the Bill Korffs, Mrs. Ted Longe, Mrs. Marcella Wacker and Jean, Mrs. Dennis Evans and Craig, Mrs. Ed Heithold, Mrs. Edward Oswald and Daniel and Mrs. Larry Echtenkamp and children.

Guests Thursday evening in the Walden Brugger home for his birthday were the Harlin Bruggers, the Merlin Brugger family, the Raymond Loberg family or Carroll and the Larry Lindsay family of Wayne.

A birthday picnic dinner was held Sunday at the Laurel Park for Mrs. Verneal Gade, Roxanne Gade, Mrs. Maurice Lindsay and Mrs. Florence Johnson's birthdays.

The best lawns of all are fed both spring and fall!

The biggest single cause of disappointing lawns is underfeeding. All too many homeowners think that feeding in the spring takes care of the lawn's needs for the entire year. But it doesn't. No lawn food feeds that long. For your lawn's sake, replenish its food supply now to encourage fall's natural processes of developing new blades, intensifying color and thickening the weave.

The Agent's Angle

by Harold Ingalls

The feed used to produce beef in America is forage and 80 per cent of the cost of producing beef is feed. . . 60-80 per cent of the feed intake for the production of milk is forage and 60 per cent of the cost of producing fluid milk is feed.

Some of America's most ambitious farmers are doing quite well with forages—some producing 6,000 to 9,000 pounds of milk per acre or 400 to 1,000 pounds of beef per acre from forage alone. . . in a few cases, some are producing as much as a ton of beef per acre from forage alone.

The prime concern of American's Grasslanders is to increase the income from forages (from meat and milk) without sacrificing soil to erosion and contributing to pollution.

Wherever industrial development is promoted, the emphasis is usually on attracting firms from outside the state rather than on promoting the establishment of new home-grown industries.

Addressing himself to this point—the authority on entrepreneurial development has developed nearly all of our industrial promotion efforts to going about the country with a packet full of information trying to sell our region to anticompany corporations.

It is a sad situation that we devote nearly all of our industrial promotion efforts to going about the country with a packet full of information trying to sell our region to anticompany corporations. . . the advantage of home-grown industries? It is not just the advantage of keeping the company dividends in our own state, important as that may be, but rather its advantage lies in the creation of a flexible type of business environment if new companies get started by local people, with local money, and local resources.

FORAGE PRODUCTION
Forage production and use is vital to the total economy and environment of America.

The $8 billion annual income from sale of meat and milk produced on forage crops represents our largest single source of income—greater than the combined income from cotton, wheat, rice, soybeans and tobacco. . . over twice the value of corn, even though 80 per cent of the corn crop is fed to livestock. Forage is grown on a billion acres—800 million of them not suitable for any other crop because of rock, climate, slope, etc. What better way can we use land to reduce erosion than with close-growing vegetative cover? Forage is the prime producer of beef—80 per cent or more of

1973 Wheat Program Includes New Options, Substitutions

Major provisions of the 1973 wheat program have been announced by Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz. They include the set aside required for participation, an option to voluntarily set aside additional acreage and the payment rate for the additional set aside.

To participate in the wheat program, a producer must set aside an acreage equal to 86 per cent of the farm's domestic wheat allotment—the maximum provided by law. Producers will again be allowed to substitute feed grains or soybeans for wheat to preserve allotment history. The Secretary further announced that barley will again be included in the 1973 feed grain program.

In addition to the set aside required for participation, a producer may earn payment for setting aside additional acreage up to .150 per cent of his 1973 domestic wheat allotment—twice the amount of additional acreage allowed in the 1972 program—at a payment rate of 88 cents per bushel. This option is aimed at encouraging retirement of additional land to prevent excessive wheat production.

Loan rate for 1973 will be $1.25 per bushel National average—the same as 1972—and farm-stored and warehouse-stored loans are available to producers who participate in the program. As in past years, producers who elect to set aside only the acreage required for participation will be eligible for certificate payments. However, failure to plant at least 90 per cent of the farm's 1973 domestic wheat allotment to either wheat, corn, grain sorghum, barley or soybeans can result in reduction of allotment by as much as 20 per cent.

Under the Agricultural Act of 1970, if no wheat or substitute crops are planted for three consecutive years, the entire allotment may be lost. All allotments removed from farms will be reallocated to other wheat farms.

Substitution provisions allow acreage devoted to feed grain or soybeans to be considered planted to wheat to prevent loss of history and to qualify for payments. Acreage devoted to wheat or soybeans will be considered planted to feed grains to prevent loss of that base. This enables a producer to plant the combination of wheat, feed grain, or soybeans that best fits his operation and preserve his planting history and program benefits.

The 1973 National wheat allotment is 18.7 million acres. The allotment represents the acreage required to produce the 435 million bushels for which certificates will be issued to participating producers. The National allotment is based on a National average yield of 31.0 bushels per acre. In 1972 it was 19.7 million acres and the National average yield was 29.8 bushels per acre which also resulted in 535 million bushels on which certificates were issued to producers. The 86 per cent set aside applied to the new allotment will give a producer about the same set aside this year as last.

Producers who wish to opt for program benefits need to sign up to participate. Sign-up dates will be announced later for the 1973 program. A producer may participate in the wheat program on any or all farms in which he has an interest, as he wishes.

ASCS county offices will notify wheat producers of their domestic allotment and the applicable set aside for their farms.

Producers will receive preliminary payments after July 1.

Future Feeders

The Future Feeders 4-H Club held an outing July 31 at Ponca State Park. The afternoon was spent swimming with a cookout held in the evening.

On Aug. 14 the group went on a tour. They visited the home of each member to view their projects. Afterwards they gathered in the Verl Carlson home for refreshments.

Iner Petersons and Verl Carlsons were hosts.

Pals and Partners

Pals and Partners 4-H Club held their annual picnic July 14 at the Ponca State Park. The afternoon was spent hiking and swimming. Plans were also discussed for a booth at the county fair.

Five members attended the tractor camp held July 27 and 28 at the Northeast Station. They were Lee and Jerry Echtenkamp, Bryan Ruwe, Alan Jensen and Garry, Roebor.

The annual tour was held Aug. 6. Afterwards the group went to the home of Greg Meyer for a

$6,000 Purse Offered At Fair Tractor Pull

The largest purse ever paid tractor pullers in Nebraska will be paid at the 1972 Nebraska State Fair, State Fair officials announced. A total of $6,000 will be distributed to the pullers with $1,000 per class offered to the six classes.

Billed as the Nebraska State Fair Cornhusker Championship Tractor Pull, the event will be held on Tuesday afternoon and evening, Sept. 5, in front of the Fairgrounds grandstand. At 1 p.m., preliminaries will be held in the Stock Class for 5, 7, 9 and 12,000 pound tractors, the top eight qualifiers in the Stock Class will pull in the finals at 7:45 p.m., along with the modified finals in the 5 and 7,000 pound class. Preceding the evening program will be a garden tractor pull for women only.

A unique feature of this year's State Tractor Pull will enable the top eight pullers who qualify for the evening finals to earn prize money for the preliminary competition.

The 1972 State Pull is open for the first time to out of state pullers along with Nebraska pullers. National Tractor Pullers rules and regulations will be followed.

Any puller desiring entry is asked to write Dennis Garretson, Columbus, or contact the State Fair office at the Lincoln Fairgrounds.

Admission price to each performance is $2 per person.

Careful Irrigation Planning Prevents Rootworm Damage

Yields in cornfields showing rootworm damage can be increased by irrigation particularly if nitrogen fertilizer is added to the water. University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension entomologists advised. The irrigating of alternate rows reduces lodging by encouraging the regeneration of roots damaged or eliminated by corn rootworms, they explained. On dryland corn, little can be done.

Dr. David Keith and Robert E. Roselle noted that corn root-worms have been on the increase in the state this year. "Many scattered reports of moderate to severe lodging of corn have been observed in both untreated and some chemically treated fields," they reported.

For the most part, chemical controls have been effective, Roselle and Keith said. But in a few cases, particularly where corn has been treated with minimum application of a t.e.s., problems have cropped up. Corn rootworm beetles are also of concern because they clip corn silks and by interfering with pollination, reduce yield potential, the insect specialists explained.

"It is difficult to determine exactly when to treat for beetles to prevent loss of pollination, but the most important consideration, is the corn variety," the specialists said. If the variety has a short silking period, and beetles have clipped the silks down into the ear tip, control will be necessary.

If however, the silks extend well beyond the ear tip—even if beetles are abundant—pollination should not be reduced significantly. "Once the silks turn brown, the pollination period is over, and controls should not be needed," they advised.

Keith and Roselle pointed to considerable evidence that single accurately-timed application of chemical for beetle control in August, prior to the onset of egg-laying, can reduce the need for soil insecticides the following year. However, to do this, beetles must be held below an average of one per plant through the last three weeks of August.

"Several complicating factors enter into the picture that make this approach somewhat hazardous, however. "For instance, a long season, late-silking hybrid or late planted corn, may attract beetles into the field to feed and subsequently, to deposit eggs. Weeds, which are also attractive to pollen-feeding beetles will also concentrate beetles in a field.

"To be reasonably sure, at this point it would take two applications of chemical to keep the beetles from laying a significant batch of eggs. From the standpoint of cost, this amounts to more than a single application of soil insecticide at planting of first cultivation next year. However, particular factors the large operator, who has a lot of ground to cover at planting time, the saving of time may more than offset the additional expense," the entomologists concluded.

Farmer-Feeder and the Future

The biggest problem facing Nebraska's small farmer-feeder is his efforts to maintain and increase his share of the beef feeding industry. The financing of his enterprise, according to Dr. Paul Guyer, Extension livestock specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, is the key.

Guyer contends that even though the farmer-feeder does face difficulties in obtaining capital, he can successfully compete with larger commercial units in the state if he will capitalize on his advantages and emulate certain practices of the commercial feeder.

Pointing to some of the "built-in" advantages of the farmer-feeder, Guyer said this type of enterprise has lower feed costs, less cash outlay for labor, lower cattle buying costs per hundredweight beef produced, and fewer problems meeting pollution regulations.

With regard to feed costs,

Guyer notes that the farmer-feeder can program his entire cropping operation to fit a sound cattle growing and/or finishing program. He can avoid the transfer costs incurred by the large feeder and can use lowest methods of harvesting, storing and processing feeds to greater advantage than the large feedlot operator.

The NU beef specialist explains that labor costs are usually lower because part of the farmer-feeder labor force is family labor and does not require cash payment. According to Guyer, such labor is often of higher quality than hired labor, since family members are usually willing to work longer hours when needed because of the direct financial interests involved.

Guyer reports the farmer-feeder's cattle costs to be generally lower also. Since most farmer feeders have some roughage to utilize in their finishing program, Guyer said they tend to buy cattle at lighter weights and put on more gain per head before selling as slaughter animals. This, he believes, is a definite advantage over the commercial feeder who must normally feed heavy cattle.

POLLUTION COSTS

Pollution abatement facilities, an important consideration for feeders today, should also require a lower investment on the part of the farmer-feeder as opposed to the commercial feeder, Guyer said. He pointed out that many of the farmer-feeder lots are so located or are of the size that require little or no additional investment for pollution control facilities. Where facilities are required, farmer feeders will often have less cost in distributing runoff on crop land.

Although the small feeder possesses these advantages, to be most competitive, Guyer said the farmer-feeder needs to be as efficient as he can in every aspect of management. Important areas he needs to be concerned with include: keeping feedlot investment low, proper feedlot design, adequate record keeping, sound feed formulation, holding down costs of purchasing feed and cattle, and selling cattle at proper grade and finish.

Guyer advises that maintaining low feedlot investment will involve making a minimal investment including labor in feedlot facilities and equipment which will contribute to low feed costs in beef production.

Feedlot design should also contribute to efficient use of equipment and labor in feeding and handling cattle and, maximum rates of gain. A well-designed feedlot should include provisions for routine treatment of cattle, handling of sick cattle and should be designed with good drainage to contribute to dry lot conditions.

RECORD KEEPING

The NU specialist adds that developing adequate record keeping systems on cattle weight and feeds is desirable.

Other practices that are routine for the larger feeders but which Guyer believes should be adopted by the farmer-feeder include: feeding high concentration rations from 700 pounds to market weights; using high urea supplements in finishing rations; daily checks for sick cattle; keeping water troughs clean; mounds in every lot; and use of night lights.

As another means of meeting the competition of large feedlot operators, Guyer suggests that in the future farmer-feeders may find cooperative buying of both cattle and feed effective.

He also believes that if the small feeder is to maintain competition with the commercial feeder, he should give special attention to carcass desirability of cattle he markets in relation to consumer demand and be well informed on market

Agricultural Credit for the 1970's

A very substantial increase in farm debt seems likely in the years ahead.

Farm size, capital investment per farm, and the value of all assets for the farm sector continue to increase.

For the United States as a whole, the value of all assets for the farm sector increased nearly 50 per cent for the period 1960-1970. During the same period, farm debt rose from $24.8 billion to $38.1 billion, resulting in a farm debt-to-asset ratio of nearly 19 per cent in 1970—up from 12 per cent in 1960. Most observers expect this trend to continue, with perhaps a 30 per cent debt-asset ratio by 1980.

MORE DEBT

Dramatic debt expansion is expected to occur due to several factors:

Average farm sizes are still well below the most efficient size. With cost-price squeezes continually present, farms will continue to expand to take advantage of the efficiency and the lowest cost of production.

For example, using hypothetical cost figures a farm unit of 240 acres might produce corn at a total cost of $1.10 per bushel. At 600 acres, costs might be lowered to 85 cents per bushel, through increased efficiencies.

The alternatives are to be forced out or into expansion; the latter step would involve adoption of new technology with a further increase in capital requirements. Many smaller operations being absorbed into larger units have been conservatively operated over time, with the owner operators using little debt capital.

REPLACING LABOR

Substitution of capital for labor will continue. This trend can be expected to continue as long as changing relative prices of resources and production inputs favor substitution. Problems of attracting and retaining labor in agriculture may well worsen rather than diminish.

Farm firms will continue to purchase more inputs: from horses for power, oats for feed, manure for fertilizer, and home grown seed. Farmers have turned to powerful tractors, seed corn at $30 per bushel and substantial amounts of purchased fertilizer, herbicides and insecticides. And the cost of these inputs rises steadily.

As commercial farms take on more characteristics of traditional business enterprises, the attitude of farmers toward debt changes. Farmers realize that success today is increasingly dependent on the ability to profitably use borrowed capital.

TAKES MORE MONEY

Underlying debt expansion in the farm sector is the greatly expanded capital requirement per farm. As an example, the capital requirements for a 480 acre swine car farm in eastern Nebraska would be $250,000 to generate a $14,000 to 16,000 operator labor and management return. This computation comes from a study by Dr. Phil Henderson of the NU Department of Agricultural Economics.

Another approach to analyzing the future capital requirements in agriculture is to examine the aggregate requirements rather than concentrate on a per farm basis.

Federal Reserve System economists in 1969 projected the capital and credit requirements in agriculture by 1980. One of the emerging ideas is that stock amounts of capital and credit outstanding at a point in time are less meaningful than flows of capital and credit over time.

Stock assets in agriculture have been projected to range between $300 billion and $400 billion by 1980, up from about $300 billion at present. From this, annual capital flows into agriculture of $13 billion to $19 billion were projected for 1975-79, compared to $7 billion per year during the 1960's and an average of $11 billion per year during 1965-68.

SOURCES OF CAPITAL

Broadly speaking, farmers, like all businessmen, have only two sources of capital: equity capital and debt capital.

Under the traditional single proprietorship form of organiza-

Careful Watch Needed Wetting Beef Animals

Wetting the hides of beef animals may help to alleviate heat stress. Very little is gained by applying more water than needed.

The excess, either runs uselessly away or creates a mud hole in the lot. Often the water system is over taxed by trying to operate too many high output lawn type sprinklers. Fog type sprinklers may, on the other hand, cause respiratory problems with beef cattle.

Low gallonage rotary impact sprinkler heads will do a good job of wetting the cattle yet not waste water. The smallest size with a 1/2 inch nozzle opening puts out 62 gallons per minute and covers a 37 foot diameter circle when operating at 30 pounds pressure per sq. inch.

The nozzle sizes increase by 1/64 inch increments. Output however is increased by 50 per cent from one size to the next and diameter of circle changes much less proportionally.

A common lawn sprinkler usually puts out more than five gallons per minute. At this rate two or three sprinklers will virtually use all of the capability of most farm water systems. Ten of the small rotary sprinklers would demand much more water than one lawn sprinkler.

A time clock or thermostat could be built into the system to open or close electrical solenoid valves. This type of equipment would be available through established irrigation equipment dealerships. The cost of individual nozzles should not be any greater or as great as most lawn sprinklers.

U. S. Forest Service Cuts Smokey Dolls

The U. S. Forest Service has cut off the supply of Smokey Bear Dolls at the manufacturers in complaints from the public concerning home fire alarm salesmen using Smokey Bear Dolls as "door openers."

"When many parents signed cards of fair booths to obtain a free Smokey Doll for their children, they unintentionally signed up for a door-to-door sales pitch. This emotion-packed scare talk from rude and businesslike salesmen resulted in some resentful parents," reports Joseph Range, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Forester.

With the fair season coming to full swing, some fire alarm salesmen will again try to use Smokey Bear Dolls and fair booths but Range assures parents that the misuse of Smokey in the promotion of the sale of fire alarm systems is unauthorized.

Adds Range, "A good dependable fire alarm system is good security but Smokey Bear does not endorse or condemn any specific fire alarm system."

State Hunters Turning Orange for '72 Season

Nebraska's autumn landscape has always been a kaleidoscope of colors, but a bright new hue will be apparent this fall when the state's deer and antelope hunters take to the field.

The new color is hunter orange, which has become required equipment for all big-game hunters using firearms to take their quarry.

A new law passed by the last session of the Unicameral prescribes at least 400 square inches of the fluorescent material to be worn on the back, head, and chest. According to the Game and Parks Commission, whose conservation officers will be enforcing the law, the headgear must be either a cap that is made entirely of the material, or a hat with a three-inch wide headband of hunter orange.

The hunter orange law was prompted by a pair of fatal accidents during last year's deer season, when the victims were shot by gunners who mistook them for game. It became apparent that, for safety's sake, hunters should be as visible as possible when afield, and the material prescribed by the law is almost impossible to miss in the field.

Prior to 1971, Nebraska had never experienced a fatal firearm accident during its deer or antelope season. Nebraska's firearm antelope hunters still have plenty of time to get their new orange gear for the season opener on Sept. 23.

WHS Hosting Two-Day Teachers' Workshop

New in Our School

Following lunch, there will be departmental meetings and room preparations, conducted by the principals, beginning at 1:15 and lasting until workshop adjournment.

A two-day Professional Staff Workshop will be held Monday and Tuesday at Wayne High School, with the opening of all Wayne schools, public and parochial, to be Wednesday.

The school building will be open at 8 a.m. Monday for the workshop with a general session in the high school lecture hall an hour later. Coffee and rolls, courtesy of the Wayne Education Association, will be served at 9:45.

At 10:15, teachers will meet with administrators in their respective buildings, West Elementary, Middle and High School. A scheduled "Know Your Community" panel with a cross section of local officials explaining their role and function has been postponed and will be held at a later date.

An all school dinner will be served at noon at West Elementary School, sponsored by the Wayne Education Association, with spouses of new teachers invited.

A "Know Your Profession" theme will be used in the first of the afternoon sessions, at 1:15, in remarks by Dr. Irvin Brandt, president of the Board of Education, followed by a review of board policies by Supt. F. R. Haun.

Max Dreier, Lincoln, executive director of the Professional Practices Committee for the State of Nebraska, with offices in the State Department of Education, will address the group at 1:45 on "Your Professional Practices Commission."

The Wayne Education Association will explain "Your Organization" at 2:15, with the WEA serving refreshments at 3:15 and the time between 3:30 and 5 p.m. devoted to conferences.

A faculty family picnic will be held at Bressler Park, beginning at 6:30 p.m., with each family to bring food for a pot luck and hibiscus service. Liquid refreshments to be furnished by the WEA.

The Tuesday session will begin with new teachers meeting with Supt. Haun in the board of education room at 9 a.m., followed by a meeting with the three school principals.

A coffee hour in the high school commons will be at 9:30, courtesy of the FHA.

Principals, department chairmen and staff will have a 10 a.m. general session on "What's

GAIN!

With an automated Harvestore feed processing system, you can harvest your grain early, at peak nutrition, before weather and lodging take their toll. There is less handling. Grain goes direct from field to structure. There is less storage loss. And, drying is eliminated. Livestock get a more nutritious and palatable ration, too. To feed more cattle without additional land and with less labor, the name of the gain is Harvestore and high moisture grain. Make us prove it.

Two Accidents Occur in City

Two accidents were reported to Wayne Police the past few days.

One occurring at 11:35 a.m. Saturday when cars driven by Darrell Eubert, 408 Hillcrest and Arlene M. Olsen, 311 S. Main, collided in the 200 block of Pearl.

A parked car in the 100 block of West Ninth, owned by Conroy T. Munson, Wakefield, was struck about 10:30 a.m. Monday by a car driven by Ricky D. Kral, also of Wakefield.

On Sunday the Wayne Police Department received a report that a car was taken from a car lot on the C. C. Wix of Emerson, last night during the night.

Monday morning Morn Mordhorst reported to City Police that an unknown woman motorist had purchased a tank of gas and a new tire, total bill of $26.16 from the N. & S. Service Station Sunday afternoon with what turned out to be a cancelled credit card.

The woman, driving a blue sedan with Massachusetts license plates had used a Getty Oil Co. credit card with the name M. S. Perkins and headed south after the purchase.

The next morning Mordhorst was notified that the card had been cancelled because of a previous purchase over the maximum $200.

Students Should Check Benefits

George Reed of the Norfolk Social Security office reminds college students that Social Security benefits terminate for a student when he or she reaches the age of 22, marries or has a reduction in attendance to less than a full-time basis.

Reed will be at the Wayne County courthouse Tuesday, between 9 and 11 a.m., to answer any questions that persons receive. Social Security benefits may have.

Wage-Price Regulations

Q If an employer who previously did not qualify for the small business exemption fires some employees to bring his total employment level below 60, does the employer gain exempt status?

A No, the employer does not gain exempt status because for purposes of the exemption, stabilization regulations look toward the number of employees in past pay periods. Similarly, if an employer who previously qualified for the small business exemption hires more employees to bring his total employment level above 60, he does not lose his exempt status.

Q When an individual "rents" beach cottages on a weekly basis, may he qualify for the small business exemption?

A Yes, the small business exemption does not apply to landlords who rent real estate. However, service organizations such as hotels, motels, and beach cottages, etc., that "rent" to transients may qualify for the exemption if they meet the other requirements.

Walleye are members of the perch family.
