

300 Expected for Farmer-Businessmen Dinner

More than 300 farmers and businessmen are expected to turn out for Saturday night's first annual Farmer-Businessmen Dinner at the Wayne State Student Union.

Special humorous speaker for the stag dinner will be Tom Fouts of LaGrange, Ill. Better known as "Captain Stubby," Fouts is one of the best humorous speakers since Will Rogers, says Paul Harvey, well known news commentator.

Saturday night's free dinner, a smorgasbord affair, is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Farmers from throughout the Wayne area have been invited by local businessmen to attend the event as their special guests.

Asking the men personally to the dinner is one of the things being tried to show that the businessmen are going out of their way to put on the appreciation night.

Any farmers not already invited to the affair are urged to stop at the Wayne Chamber of Commerce office and pick up their free tickets to the dinner.

"We want everyone who hasn't got a ticket to pick one up and attend the dinner," said Lee Footo, one of the two chairmen in charge of the affair.

"Some farmers may not have been invited because they haven't been into town the past few days or because the businessmen forgot to talk to them," Footo explained. "But we still want all farmers in the area to attend."

The other chairman of the dinner is Arnold Marr. The Chamber's agriculture committee of Footo, Marr, Dick Sorensen, John Krasne, Ray Butts and Fred Gildersleeve are working on the dinner.

On the contributions committee which helped raise funds for the dinner were Orville Sherry, Harold Ingalls, Don Koeber, Keith Jech and Felix Dorcy.

Short welcoming talks will be given at the dinner by Bob McLean, Chamber president, and George Thorbeck, vice president in charge of agricultural activities.

"Captain Stubby" has been scratching his head and giving punch lines to his jokes in radio, television, movies and fairs ever since his first performance at the age of five.

He earned the name "Stubby" because he always had to be hoisted up on a piano bench when he was a child performer.

He and a musical group he regularly performs with "The Buccaneers," have worked with such well known performers as Rosemary Clooney, Andy Williams and Doris Day.

"Stubby" works also in making commercials and singing jingles heard on radio and television.

Master of ceremonies will be Creighton Knauf, formerly the farm director for Radio WMAX at Yankton

Judges' Choice

Farmers Take Heart, It Could Be Worse

Area farmers may think the end of the wet weather will never come in time to salvage what looks like the best crop ever, but Ray Butts points out that things could be worse.

Butts, executive director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Wayne County, said at least there has been no washing or flooding of top soils during the past several weeks of damp weather.

Both men agreed that the brief sunshine this week has allowed farmers to get into the fields. "I noticed some farmers working around the Carroll and Winside area harvesting their soybean crop," Butts said.

"It's important, he emphasized, for the farmer to get his bean crop in. "The moisture is causing the pods to break open and the farmer could be losing a very big bean crop."

The soybean crop market, he said, has been edging its way up during the past years. Presently the market price is $3.32 a bushel. See TAKE HEART, page 10

Best Poems, Stories To Earn Cash Prizes

All area third, fourth and fifth grade students are invited to compete in a Christmas writing contest being sponsored by the Wayne Herald.

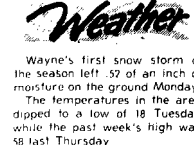

The article, which may be a story or a poem, must have a Christmas theme and should be no longer than 500 words.

A first prize of $15, second prize of $10 and third prize of $5 will be awarded. The winning entries, along with the three winners' pictures, will be published in a special edition of the paper to come out in early December.

Students interested in entering the contest must submit their entries to the Herald office no later than Nov. 30. Entries received after that date will be disqualified.

Judging will be done by local individuals with an understanding of the basics of creative writing. Judges will consider originality, writing skills, appropriateness of subject matter and reader interest. Neatness will not be considered, although it is in the child's best interests to present neat, legible copy.

The contest is open to all third, fourth and fifth graders from Alton, Belvidere, Carroll, Coleridge, Concord, Dixon, Emerson, Hartington, Hoskins, Hubbard, Laurel, Newcastle, Pender, Pilger, Ponca, Randolph, Thurston, Wakefield, Waterbury, Winside, Wisner and Wayne.

Wayne's first snow storm of the season left .52 of an inch of moisture on the ground Monday. The temperatures in the area dropped to a low of 18 Tuesday which was the lowest yet this week's high was 38 last Thursday.

Latest Hospital Progress: Work On Access Road

Negotiations between the city of Wayne and the owner of private land in the northeast section of town are underway as a possible means of providing a second access road to the new proposed hospital, reports Bob Carhart, president of Wayne Hospital Foundation.

The negotiations grew out of a meeting last week between representatives of the foundation, city council, city planning commission and city engineering firm.

City representatives agreed to see if the land could be purchased since it would provide a park as well as another access road to the hospital. Two access roads are required for the hospital to qualify for federal funds, according to Carhart.

Representatives of the foundation, Missionary Benedictine Sisters of Norfolk and Energy Systems of Wayne met Wednesday to discuss access roads and Energy Systems' proposal to provide chilled water for air conditioning and steam for heat at the hospital, which will be built east of the Wayne State campus.

How sweet it is! Honey Sunday, of course. On Sunday Wayne County residents can show Northeast Nebraska what a honey of a deal it is to help retarded children with purchases of containers of honey.

The Nebraska Jaycees and the Nebraska Association for Retarded Children are sponsoring the ninth annual event, with the greatest share of this year's proceeds in the county earmarked for a pre-school learning program for mentally retarded in Northeast Nebraska.

Honey Sunday Is A 'Sweet Deal'

Here in Wayne, the Wayne County Jaycees will be canvassing the area beginning at 11 p.m. to help sell its share of anticipated 140,000 units to be sold in Nebraska this year.

Mrs. Jim Winch, a member of the Northeast Nebraska Association for Retarded Children, said each of the county towns will have volunteers out for the honey drive.

In Carroll, Mrs. Gordon Helgren and 4-H volunteers will be covering the town and surrounding area while Mrs. Willard Kleen sang and a group of high school students will work in the Hoskins vicinity.

In Winside, Mrs. Winch along with The Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Goldberg and the St. Paul Lutheran youth group will be selling in the town.

Containers of honey will sell for $1 each. Mrs. Winch is Wayne County Honey Sunday chairman.

City Council Okays New Business on East Seventh

Another new business will go up on East Seventh Street. The Wayne city councilmen Tuesday night gave their approval for rezoning three lots along Seventh just east of Dearborn to allow construction of a Derby filling station.

The approval, however, came on a 4-2 split vote. In favor of rezoning were Keith Mosley, Pat Gross, Darrell Fuedelberth, Frank Prather and Jim Thomas. Opposed were Vernon Russell and Harvey Brasch.

And it came after considerable discussion about whether the city should allow further business development along Seventh Street.

Mern Mordhorst, chairman of the city planning commission — which earlier voted 4-2 to approve the rezoning request — and a filling station operator, told the council that allowing the filling station in the area would be detrimental.

He said the business would create a traffic hazard, detract from the residential appearance of surrounding property and force down property values in the area.

He said there already are enough filling stations in the community.

The attorney for those seeking the rezoning argued that the business would actually raise property values in the area.

Budd Bornhoff said the council should face the reality that all of Seventh Street is slowly changing from a residential area to a business area. He cited the new discount store just east of the

No School at Dixon

Mrs. Dale Stanley, principal of the Dixon Public School, has announced that classes will not be held Friday following Thanksgiving.

Students will be dismissed at the regular time Wednesday afternoon and will resume studies Monday, Nov. 27, she said.

Wayne Herald Prints Early Next Week

Area persons with news or advertisements for next Thursday's issue of The Wayne Herald are reminded that material must be in the newspaper office by Monday because the paper will be printed a day early.

Because of Thanksgiving falling on Thursday, the newspaper will be printed on Tuesday so rural subscribers will receive their papers on Wednesday.

Persons who receive their newspapers by carrier boy will receive their papers on Tuesday instead of Wednesday.

Area residents with news for their correspondents should give them their news over the week end so the correspondents can send it in by Monday.

Wilder Play Opens Friday

The curtain will raise this week on Thornton Wilder's "Skin of Our Teeth" as the Wayne High School Drama Club stages its 1972 play.

"Skin of Our Teeth" will be printed at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the high school lecture hall.

A serious play, but full of comic scenes, the play illustrates man's battle with the elements, man's battle with moral weakness and man's struggle against social evils.

Cast in lead rolls are Janet

Spittgerger as the announcer, Dianne Boden as Sabina, Joe Manley as Mr. Fitzpatrick, Kathy Reinhardt as Maggie Andrews, Phil Kober as Henry, Nancy Proehl as Gladys, Galen Miller as George Antrabus, Gigi Goblirsch as the fortune teller, Bob Skokan as older Henry and Brenda Gaunt as older Gladys.

The play is directed by Jim Heppburn. Don Dutton, Virgil Kardell, Mike Schmoldt, Lori Lesh, Lisa Tooker, Jean Hochstein, Tim Hepburn, Mike Schmoldt and Marvet Carlson.

Mike Schmoldt will also appear as Mr. Tremain. Don Dutton as Fred Bailey, Lisa Tooker as Hester and Joan Hochstein as Ivy.

Ted Blenderman is directing, with Bob Skokan as student director. Joe Manley is stage manager and Dobi Woltske is house manager.

REHEARSING FOR Wayne High's production of "Skin of Our Teeth" are Kathy Rinehart and Phil Kober (in background) and Galen Miller and Nancy Proeff.

proposed gas station, possibility of a grocery store in that same area, the new motel proposed along Highway 35 and a drive-in near Seventh and Logan as proof that the street can no longer be considered solely for residences.

"When an area becomes industrialized, property values don't go down, they go up," Bornhoff said.

The proposed filling station would be open from about 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. and would have about three full-time employees, according to the persons seeking the rezoning.

A decorative fence would probably be built on the edge of the station to separate it from adjoining homes, they explained.

In other action the council agreed to take up two options to purchase about 22 1/2 acres of land east of Wayne State College for road access to the proposed new hospital and for park development.

The land would cost about $86,500 if the city goes ahead with purchase, according to the city attorney, who negotiated privately with the land owners for the options.

Plans Unveiled For New Motel On Edge of City

Plans for a new 36-unit motel with restaurant and lounge to be constructed on the north side of Highway 35 east of the National Guard building were revealed at the Wayne city council meeting Tuesday night.

The project costing approximately $500,000, would be built on the site of the former Pex Way-Golf. The council forwarded the owners' request for rezoning and annexation of the plot of land to the planning commission for a public hearing and recommendation.

The requests could be back before the council for final ruling some time in February, according to Mayor Kent Hall.

A 10-acre plot of land is involved in the project.

If the city approves the requests, the owners would apply for a bottle club license for the motel, according to John Kelly, spokesman for the Denver-based firm involved in the development.

Owners of the motel, which would include meeting rooms and banquet areas, would be Mr. and Mrs. Dan Johnson of Wayne and Dr. Paul Golewski of Lincoln. Johnsons would manage the facility, Kelly said.

If there are no delays in obtaining annexation and rezoning, ground would be broken on the site this spring and the facility would be completed by about July, he noted.

"These projects are like jigsaw puzzles and must be put together one piece at a time," Kelly said. "We have a contract on the land, have preliminary plans for the facility and are finalizing the financing."

The half-million dollar project would employ between 15 and 20 people fulltime.

"Ninety per cent of the people who would be using the motel are not now staying overnight in Wayne," Kelly told the council. "Ability teams, activity groups and parents of students as well as other travelers are being inconvenienced by lack of such a facility," according to Kelly.

The motel would be built in an L-shape. Rooms would be standard size of 12 by 24 feet with carpeting, drapes, color television, individual heat and air conditioning. A swimming pool is included in plans for the facility.

The managers' living quarters would be located on the second level, with rooms and lounge on the first level and a meeting room and another lounge below ground level.

Application for Best Western membership has been applied for, Kelly told the council.

Youth to 'Camp Out' At Wakefield Church

High school age youth from all over Northeast Nebraska will converge this weekend for a Covenant HI League fall retreat at the Wakefield Covenant Church.

The event, the first of its kind at Wakefield, is being hosted by the Wakefield Covenant HI League Society.

Between 80 and 125 young people are expected to attend the three-day meeting which will get underway with supper and registration Friday evening. A treasure hunt and midnight devotions and song test will follow.

Hi Leaguers and their sponsors will "camp out" in sleeping bags in the church both Friday and Saturday nights. All meals will be served by the Wakefield Covenant Church Women.

Saturday's activities will include group workshops and an afternoon of activities at the Wakefield High School gymnasium. A hayride has been planned for Saturday evening and midnight devotions will be conducted by Bob Stromberg from North Park College in Chicago.

Sunday morning the group will provide special music for the church's worship hour. Dr. John S. Gray, instructor at Wayne State College, is to address the morning Sunday school.

The retreat will dismiss following the noon meal Sunday.

The Rev. Dick Lindman of Omaha is coordinator for the weekend activities.

Wakefield Covenant Church is served by the Rev. Fred Jansson. Local arrangements are being made by Mr. and Mrs. Myron Osbahr of Wakefield and Mrs. Bruce Elnaether of Wayne.

Members of the Wakefield Covenant HI League Society will mail them to the newspaper before Saturday's deadline.

Saturday Is Deadline for Christmas List

Persons wishing to submit servicemen's names and addresses for use in The Wayne Herald's Christmas list have until Saturday to submit them.

The information will be printed in the Nov. 23rd issue of the newspaper in plenty of time for friends and relatives to use the list in sending cards, letters and gifts during the holiday season.

Those who have addresses of servicemen and wish them in the list should leave them at the Herald office before Saturday's deadline.

Evangelist Speaking

Evangelist Mel Jennings, Wahoo, is speaking this week and next at the Assembly of God Church, Wayne, according to Pastor Marvin Bramman.

Meetings will be held at 6:30 and 7:30 p.m. nightly, began Tuesday and will continue through next Tuesday. No services are scheduled for Saturday. In addition Jennings will speak at the 11 a.m. worship hour Sunday.

At the 6:30 p.m. meetings, Jennings will concentrate on "The Charismatic Ministry in the Body of Christ." The subject of the second meeting each evening will concern Bible Prophecy. A series of films will also be shown, demonstrating the Mid-East Crisis with regard to Russia, the Arabs and Jews.

NORTHEAST EXTENSION Notes

Does the thought of starting your Christmas shopping get you down? Do you dread catalogue shopping is for you? Catalogues allow you to forget about parking, crowded stores and aching feet.

Do remember, however, that when you write out the check you will be paying for conveniences. And do order early enough to assure delivery in time for Christmas.

Mail order prices often appear to compare favorably with merchandise offered in stores. But mailing costs, shipping and handling, and insurance expenses could add substantially to the price of each item. Packaging and mailing items for exchange or for refund is another possible inconvenience to the catalogue shopper.

To be sure you are getting the best bargain, add up the total cost of an item you want to buy. Most catalogues list handling charges and mail rates on one of the back pages. Compare the price with items available locally.

Catalogues from local stores can still be a time saver even if you don't order merchandise through the mail. You can do your looking in the book at home. Jot down the styles, sizes, and brand names of items you want to buy, including some second choices. Take your list to the store, make your purchases, and take them home yourself. This way you'll save some time, have a chance to see the items first hand, and save all the extra cost of shipping and handling.

400 at Mortgage Burning

About 400 were present at Grace Lutheran Church Sunday for the congregation's mortgage burning ceremony and 10-fold anniversary marking the 45th year since the dedication of the original chapel, the 30th year since the dedication of the permanent church and the 10th year since the dedication of the new addition.

Guest speaker was the Rev. Vernold W. Aurich, Lincoln, who serves the district as executive secretary of missions and stewardship. His topic, "Boy Do They Mean Business," emphasized that people really live their lives as Christians. The Senior Choir, directed by Mrs. Donald Siefken, and the Junior Choir, directed by Saline Berg, provided special music.

Also participating in the service were Al Wittig, anniversary chairman, and members of the building committee at the time of the construction of the addition who were Roy H. Lange, chairman, Adolph Clausen, Carl M. Lueders, Harvey Sorse and Neil Sandahl.

A cooperative dinner followed at noon at the church parlors. Committees from the Duo Club, the Ladies Aid and the LWML served. Pastor Aurich spoke briefly following dinner and Richard Schroeder, a WSC student, led group singing and sang several solo selections. Langemeier gave a history of the church progress through the years.

Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Heller, Pilger, will observe their silver wedding anniversary Sunday, Nov. 26, with an open house reception at the Pilger Community Building from 2 to 5 p.m. All friends and relatives are invited to attend. No other invitations will be issued.

Free Study for Adults Seeking More Education

Area adults interested in obtaining their high school diploma or wishing assistance in one or more areas of study are reminded of the Graduate Educational Development (GED) courses conducted one night per week at Wayne State College.

The program, which got underway last year, was until recently referred to as Adult Education Classes.

About 25 individuals took advantage of the program last year, of which over 15 have received their diplomas. Twenty seven are enrolled so far this year, but Mrs. Stan Willis, instructor, notes that students can begin studies at any time.

There is no charge to individuals for the federally funded program. Classes meet from 7 to 9 p.m. each Thursday evening in Room 17 at the WSC Fine Arts Center.

Persons wishing more information are invited to contact Mrs. Willis at 375 1595.

Area Survey To Check On Voting Activity

Did you vote November 7? Were you registered but did not vote?

The Bureau of the Census will ask these and other questions about voting activity in the 1972 national election of persons 18 and older in a sample of households in the Wayne area during the week of Nov. 20-24.

Walter Freeman Jr., director of the Bureau's Data Collection Center in Denver, stressed that no questions will be asked about party affiliation or for whom a person voted. The survey will provide a profile of the typical American voter and non voter - age, sex, residence, education, labor force status and family income, he said.

In a similar survey following the 1968 presidential election, higher voting participation was found among men, persons 45 to 64 years, whites, people living outside the South, those with higher educational attainment, larger family incomes and in white collar occupations.

The voting questions are in addition to the usual ones asked in the monthly survey of employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Bureau for the U. S. Department of Labor.

Results of this monthly survey provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the country. The September survey showed that employment continued to rise, while unemployment was essentially unchanged. The September unemployment

Wayne, Columbus Players Dominate West Husker Conference Selections

1972 West Husker All-Conference Team

By Bob Bartlett

Wayne and Columbus Lakeview High Schools all but wrapped up the top spots in The Wayne Herald's 1972 West Husker All-Conference Football Team by placing a total of 15 members on the squad.

The Blue Devils were the leaders with eight players, followed by the Vikings with seven to lead the eight-school West Husker Conference.

Wayne had a total of five members on the offense, giving the scoring side a strong Blue and White flavor in the running and passing game.

Three local players help make up the offensive line. Six-foot-four Larry Shupe bolsters one of the tackle spots while Dean Sievers takes the center role and Kerry Jech fills the guard position.

"Shupe is one of the best blockers to come out of the Wayne High area," said Coach Al Hansen. "He is big, strong and agile." This year the 210-pound senior had 103 tackles to lead the defensive unit.

Senior Sievers, said the Wayne coach, also is very strong and quick. "One thing—especially not about him—is his persistence. He really helped out the trap plays and made our middle game work effectively."

Jech, second in team tackles with 91, draws praise as a good punting guard as well as "an excellent blocker." At one of the end spots is "the quickest man on the Wayne team," Randy Nelson.

Nelson is an excellent blocking end," Hansen said. This year the 150-pound senior caught 31 passes for 314 yards and returned 24 punts for 328 yards. During the season the 5-10 lad scored 20 points.

Joining him at the other end spot is Wisner Pilger. Tim McMaster, Coach Allan Rowe had high praise for this junior who caught 17 passes for 174 yards and two touchdowns. "He continues to demonstrate fine pass catching ability from his tight end position," Rowe said.

"And his blocking has vastly improved." Bob Wachal, "a consistent blocker" at guard from Lakeview, and 204-pound senior tackle Bob Barbe from Stanton finish out the offensive line.

In the backfield, the all-conference selection from Wayne is halfback Shane Giese.

Hansen labels Giese as a "power runner" who could follow blockers well. The 175-pound senior was second in total yardage for Wayne with 1,082—997 on the ground.

Comprising the other positions offensively are Columbus' Jim Pillen, Doug Zoucha and Wakefield's Kirk Gardner.

Columbus' Pillen was picked by the coaches as the top area quarterback. The junior Viking completed 51 per cent of his passes while collecting a total season mark of 679 yards. "He's a very good leader," said Coach Fred Kobza. "He's strong and quick."

Coach Kobza also has another man in the backfield. Zoucha, a 6-3, 205-pound halfback joins Giese along with Gardner, Wakefield's Mr. Offense who "was personally responsible for over half of our team's total offense this year," according to Coach John Torczon.

A new addition to this year's selection is the kicker. Winning that position is Columbus' Dean Rupp, who converted 25 of 30 attempts during the 1972 season and has been the team's kicking specialist for the past three years.

On the defense, Wayne and Columbus tie with three men each on the black shirt unit. Shupe, the only Blue Devil to make both offense and defense, is at tackle. Not to be outdone, Columbus' Wachal joins him at the other tackle position.

Wakefield's Gardner, the third of the trio of repeaters, fills the middle guard slot. The 180-pounder makes his third appearance on an all-conference team—twice in the East Husker league and now in the West Husker end.

"He's called all defenses," Torczon pointed out, "and he was Wakefield's leading tackler with 78 stops."

At the end are Doug Rider, Wisner Pilger, and another Columbus boy, Doug Inselman. Rider, said Coach Rowe, plays

"every minute with intensity and desire. Aside from being our leading rusher, second leading pass catcher, center for PAT's and punts, and best team leader, Don played middle guard, defensive tackle and defensive end for us and did an outstanding job at each position."

Inselman, said to be "very strong and aggressive," claims the other end position.

The linebacking duties go to Wayne's Mike Dunklau, Mike Glasser of Madison and Keith Schulte, Columbus.

All three players, ranging from 165-190 pounds with Dunklau the only junior, "almost impossible to knock down," weighing the most at 190 pounds.

"Schulte is an excellent pass defender," said Kobza. "He also has great lateral movement."

The defensive backfield includes two area men and one Stanton player. Art Barr, of the Mustangs, fills one of the notches as a "very valuable leader in our defensive secondary," said Coach Ron Bunkers.

Wakefield's Doug Fischer and Tom Kerstine of Wayne complete the defensive team. Fischer, a junior, is in the right place in the right time, according to his head coach, Torczon.

Finally, Kerstine, Wayne's leading ground gainer with 1,253 yards, fills the third backfield spot on the defense. This year, Hansen said, "Tom has made 39 tackles behind the line—excellent!"

The players' fathers are invited to the pork dinner and are being asked to donate $5 to help defray the costs of putting on the special dinner, according to Gutschall.

The Second Guessers would like to have as many fathers attend as possible. "Right now it looks like the Second Guessers will have to foot the entire bill, and we sure could use some donations from fathers to help us with the cost," Gutschall explained.

Anyone interested in attending the dinner may contact Rowan Witte, Bud Froehlich, Dr. Le Roy Simpson or Gutschall.

WS Boosters To Sponsor Gridders' Feed

A banquet for members of the Wayne State and Wayne High football teams is scheduled for Monday night at the city auditorium.

The Second Guessers, a college booster organization, is sponsoring the stag feed to honor both teams.

The informal dinner, beginning at 6 p.m., also will be for high school and college coaches.

"This will be more of a get-together between the players of both schools and the coaches," said Dale Gutschall, president of the booster club.

The players' fathers are invited to the pork dinner and are being asked to donate $5 to help defray the costs of putting on the special dinner, according to Gutschall.

The Second Guessers would like to have as many fathers attend as possible. "Right now it looks like the Second Guessers will have to foot the entire bill, and we sure could use some donations from fathers to help us with the cost," Gutschall explained.

Anyone interested in attending the dinner may contact Rowan Witte, Bud Froehlich, Dr. Le Roy Simpson or Gutschall.

Wayne High School football coach Al Hansen made it two in a row this year, capturing the Coach of the Year award in the West Husker Conference.

Hansen, in his seventh season for the Blue Devils, was unanimously picked as the top head football mentor by the rest of the coaches in the division.

This year, under his guidance, the local team grabbed the West Husker title in convincing fashion with a 9-0 season record before dropping its only contest in 20 starts to Scribner, 12-0, in the Husker Conference playoffs.

In the past seven years while coaching at Wayne, Hansen, has compiled a 53-12-2 mark after starting 1-7-1 in his first year of coaching in 1966.

During the next six years Hansen's record ballooned to 52-5-1, including four West Husker Conference championships and one tie for the crown. His records were: 1967-9-1; 1968-6-1; 1969-9-1; 1970-10-0 and in 1972-9-1.

"I believe," he said, "this year I deserved the coaching honor more than the three previous times I have received it." Last year, Hansen won the award when his Blue Devils took the West Husker and the Husker Conference with a perfect 10-0 mark.

Girls Sports on the Move

The flurry of volleyball action in the area last week awakened this reporter to an interesting fact.

Although none of the area girls' volleyball teams made the district finals, before this week's state tournament in Scottsbluff, it was interesting to note the growing enthusiasm for the sport.

Muri Beller, in charge of the Wakefield tournament, estimated that between 1,200 to 1,500 persons attended the three-day event. Again, it is interesting to note that the sport not only attracted its share of girls but also a good representation of the opposite sex.

"Don't get me wrong, I'm not trying to paint a picture of woman's lib taking over the sports world. Just noting that girls as well as women are becoming more involved in sports."

Two such girls are Cindy Davis and Wendy Shol, both Wayne State College students.

The Iowa natives are actively participating in Wayne State's girls' basketball program plus working as officials in high school and college girls' volleyball.

"Girls' volleyball is really growing in Nebraska," Wendy pointed out, "because more girls are getting involved in sports."

Both juniors at WSC believe Nebraska could produce some very fine volleyball teams in a couple of years. "But right now, the game is still young in the eastern part of the state," Cindy said.

Wendy, of Onawa, and Cindy, of Manson, have served as volleyball officials in the Northeast Nebraska area for the past two years. "We got started when we both decided to come to Wayne because of its active girls' physical education program.

The girls qualified to become volleyball officials after taking a written exam and officiating a college game before a state volleyball governing board in Lincoln.

"It really is exciting," Wendy smiled, "to be an official, because you get to know so much more about the sport and how it is played."

At the same time, Cindy said "you can point out to the players what they are doing wrong so they can improve."

Both admitted that not too many people know what the volleyball rules are, including some officials, and therefore, making the game a little confusing to spectators.

"Some officials obtain a pink card entitling a person to officiate a game, but just attending a volleyball meeting," Wendy explained. "What the sport really needs is good officials who know the rules and who are not afraid to call a misplay."

To overcome the problem of the fans lack of knowledge of the rules, the 52 brunette proposes that the rules be printed on the back of the program.

Both agreed that coaching offers a girl a chance to work in Nebraska, meet people, work with children and get more involved in school systems.

"I will take some time for girls' basketball to develop in this state, compared to Iowa's program," Cindy explained.

"But actually," Wendy emphasized, "girls are not competing with or against men."

Laurel Honors Diediker, Weibelhaus as Co-captains

Laurel's Dave Diediker and Larry Weibelhaus were honored as the high school's football co-captains for the 1972 season Tuesday night at the school's football banquet.

Both boys were seniors on the team which took second in the Northeast Nebraska Conference with a 4-2 mark.

Head Coach Bob Olson praised Weibelhaus as one person "who never let down when he played offense or defense." He was where the action was, Olson said. "He never let his guard down."

Last year Weibelhaus was picked for the all conference team. "This year," the coach continued, "he'll probably make it again."

Diediker, said the head coach, was particularly strong on defense after a bruised thigh eliminated him from his offensive tailback position.

"During his time on the offense, he had several games over the 100 yard rushing mark," Olson said. "I think he'll have a good chance to make all conference this year."

A gathering of about 125 persons at the father son dinner listened to The Rev. Paul P. Schwaab discuss the "Age of TV Entertainment" in regards to football and life.

"They say that high school football is becoming too expensive for small towns," he said. "And that it lacks good competition — the boys are up hurting each other, instead of helping to develop character. Well, I say, who are they?"

Father Schwaab in defending high school football as a sport to help mature and develop the young, said football as well as any other sport can develop a person if he is willing to work in a team effort and not for individual gratification.

"You can develop yourself on the field, he noted, but you must also develop in the classroom. "It is this obnoxious course — education — that can help you to conquer and build a new world."

Father Schwaab warned that if an athlete shows that his abilities are self-centered he is no good to the team or to the world. "You must contribute to the team — to the world — if you want to change and improve as a whole."

During the two-hour affair, the mothers of the football players prepared and served the banquet dinner. The menu, similar to the Oakland A's flight servings, featured Left End steak, Action soup, Upset gravy and Lateral pickles.

Under the direction of Keith Lunde, the Swing Choir provided the music.

Coaches Select Players

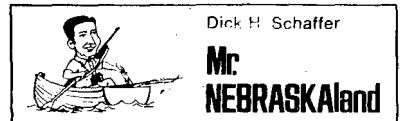

This year's selection of The Wayne Herald's West Husker All Conference Team might leave some questions in the minds of avid football fans.

Like who, what, where, when and how did each player make the squad if some of the teams did not get a chance to play one another?

The addition of two new teams (Hartington Cedar Catholic and Columbus Lake) to the western division during the middle of the season, left The Herald with one choice — let the coaches decide which players would best fit the positions.

Through the help of Wakefield Coach John Torczon, five of the eight schools met in Wayne to figure out the best offensive and defensive teams. Included in the member selections were head coaches from Wayne, Wakefield, Winston Pilger, Columbus Lake and Stanton Schools not voting were Madison, Hartington CC and Emerson Hubbard.

Dick H. Schaffer Mr. NEBRASKAland

Korean Pheasants

"Nebraska's pheasants seem to be a little larger than those in Korea, especially the hens, and their habits are very much the same, although the cocks seem a bit harder."

These observations were made by Commander John Gandy of Annapolis, Va., who was in a group of out of state hunters making its annual Nebraska tour to the Clay Center area. Gandy spent the past year in Korea and averaged three days a week hunting the gaudy ringneck there during the five month long season.

The "hardier" rooster bit was attributed by Gandy to the tougher time the birds have in Korea. He said that if a pheasant survives there, "he's got to be tough."

Pheasants are plentiful in Korea, but only because of the lack of hunters. In Gandy's opinion, farmers there reportedly poison more birds than they shoot. Most farmers live on a rather subsistence type level, just enough to eat and that's all. Few can afford the several hundred dollars required to own a gun.

Most pheasant hunting there is done by people from the cities, and all hunters are welcome, for they reduce the birds that eat their grain.

The area in which Gandy hunted was very hilly, not many trees but lots of grass on the slopes. And as long as there was cover on the mountain sides, that's where the pheasants were. But come winter, the birds moved down to the farms because farmers literally cleared the slopes — clipping the grass almost down to the roots with hand tools and cutting brush and tree branches, all for fuel.

Birds in the Pepper

At this time, Gandy said, you would find pheasants in the strangest of places. They would move in and around the rice paddies when they were frozen over, and in pepper and cabbage patches and barley fields.

Because the farmers are just able to survive, every bit of grain is precious to them, even that which falls to the ground. Much of it is recovered by the farmer's children. And to discourage pheasants from beating the youngsters to the punch, the farmers picket their fields with the mountain side stuff then with poison, and scatter around the fields where the unsuspecting pheasants eat them.

Commander Gandy said his Korean hunting permit cost $27.50 and the daily bag limit was five cocks. Shooting hours were one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset during the Nov. 1-March 31 season. Given his choice on where to hunt pheasants, Gandy picks Nebraska.

Pheasant Fare

In Korea has a knack of practicing lastly pheasant. The recipe Commander Gandy picked up there reads:

Breast the bird and then quarter—two legs and split the breast. Salt and pepper meal to taste. Take vegetable oil (Korean use sesame oil) and massage the breast. Place quarters on piece of aluminum foil and add tablespoon of vegetable oil, paddy of butter, and quarter cup of water. Wrap foil around meal and seal. Then use additional piece of foil and wrap again.

Place in oven at 400 degrees for 1½ hours. Save the juice and use to either baste the meat or use on rice or potatoes. Speaking from experience, Gandy says you can cut the meat with a fork.

Trout On Ice

Ice fishermen in northeast Nebraska can look forward to another good winter go at Grove Lake near Royal. Starting about the middle of December, or when the lake freezes over, adult rainbow trout (about 11 inches) will be released about every two weeks—as long as the supply lasts.

Presently some trout an inch or so shorter, are being released in Verdigris Creek, which empties into Grove Lake.

Fish by Stock

Toward the end of this month trout spawners will be shocked in Nine Mile Creek in western Nebraska, and taken to a private hatchery at Winter Lake. There they will be held in large pipe, egg, stripe, and fertilized, and hatched. When the rainbows reach an inch in length, they'll be stocked in nursery streams in Morrill and Scotts Bluff counties—waters that are suitable for growth but have no evidence of reproduction.

The spawners in turn will be returned to Nine Mile Creek.

MISHMASH... Many weather and standing crops continue to hold the line on hunters. Only about 38 per cent of the state's corn is harvested less than half of normal. At the time of last year... The distribution of native ponderosa pine is one of primary factors limiting turkey range in Nebraska. Another is the lack of interspersed crops with woodland.

Latest Fish and Wildlife Service figures show there are 33,150,000 fishermen and 14,200,000 hunters. One out of every nine women fish as compared to one out of every 94 who hunt.

In case you didn't know: cottontail rabbits, when pursued, seemingly follow a circular course so they won't become lost outside of their own small home range... Can you visualize a bird weighing about the same as Nebraska's record hog dressed deep? There is such a bird. It's a turkey, the largest of all birds, reportedly weigh up to 300 pounds. What a wishbone they would have!

Colony and mink trapping season opened Wednesday (Nov. 15). Wilson's snipe hunting ends Saturday (Nov. 28) and the rifle season for deer Sunday (Nov. 19).

Recreation Basketball Starts Saturday

City recreation basketball opens this Saturday at the city auditorium, said Recreation Director Hank Overin, and will get into full swing the following week.

The program, running from Monday through Saturday, is open to boys and girls in the third-eighth grades and men interested in forming a men's league.

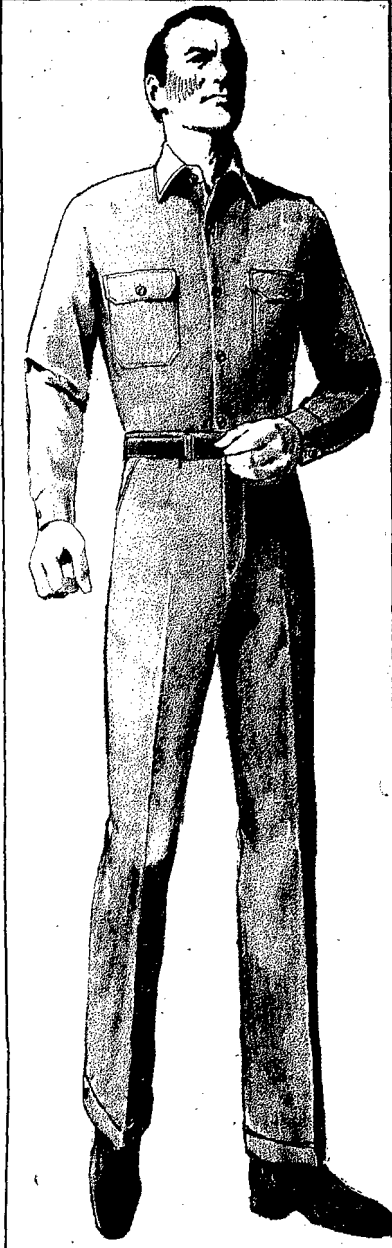

All games will be played at the city auditorium. Overin said, "except on Tuesday and Thursdays, when the games will be at the National Guard Armory." In some cases, Saturday games scheduled for the auditorium might have to be played at the Armory, he added.

The leagues will run through February with the intramurals, beginning in March.

The schedule includes:

- Monday: 8th grade, 5-6:30 p.m.; men, 7:10-9 p.m.
- Tuesday: 7th grade, 4-6 p.m.
- Wednesday: 8th grade, 5-6:30 p.m.; men, 7:10-9 p.m.
- Thursday: 7th grade, 4-6 p.m.; Friday: 8th grade, 4-6 p.m.
- Saturday: 3rd-4th grade, 8:45-10:15 a.m.; 5th grade, 10:15-11:30 a.m.; 6th grade, 11:30-12:45 p.m.; girls 5th-6th grade, 12:15 p.m.; girls 7th grade, 2:15-3:30 p.m.; girls 8th-9th grades, 3:30-4:45 p.m.

In regards to football equipment, Overin said all boys who used the equipment should start turning it in Thursday night at the Middle Center beginning at 7 p.m. The Center also will be open on Friday from 4-6 p.m. and 7-10 p.m. for turning in equipment, he said.

Wayne Jaycees Organizing Athletic Club

The Wayne County Jaycees started the ball rolling this week to form a Wayne Athletic Club for all city business and working men.

The purpose of the club, to be held at the Wayne High School gym, is to make the high school facilities available for various sports and to offer interested persons a chance to work out on the new weight machine, said Jack Manske, project chairman.

Proceeds from the membership drive, $10 for individuals and $15 for couples—will go to help pay for the weight machine.

The Jaycees began canvassing the area for prospective members Wednesday. Club activities will begin Nov. 26 and last for 20 Sundays from 7 to 9 p.m.

Once a person signs up for the program, he is not obligated to attend every session, noted Manske.

Persons wishing further information may contact any Jaycee member.

Interested In Mental Health? Meeting Set

Persons in Wayne, Dixon and Cedar Counties interested in organizing an area association for mental health are invited to attend a meeting at Norfolk Saturday.

The meeting will be at the Villa Inn from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. It will be the second time in two months that persons from 22 Northeast and Northcentral Nebraska counties have taken up the subject.

Among the items on the day's agenda will be the purpose of the association, whether it should be formally organized, establishing an equitable method of representation and whether the organization should be organized.

At the initial organizational meeting in October, a steering committee was established to spearhead the organization of the association. The Rev. Louis Schweppe of Norfolk was named to head the committee.

All persons with an interest in mental health services in the 22 counties are urged to attend.

 bushel.

The reason for the good price is the greater demand for soy beans. Exports are increasing while businesses are finding more uses for the product," Butts explained.

Turning to this year's corn crop, Butts says the market has not dropped violently as it usually does this time of the season.

"It's staying up there real well, maybe it's due to the fact that the weather is so good. But I think it will start dropping from its $1.23 a bushel level once the farmers get their crops in," he said.

Rebecca Sydow, 85, of Wayne, Rites Friday

A lifetime resident of the Wayne community, Rebecca Sydow, 85, died Tuesday at the Wayne Hospital.

Services are set for 2 p.m. Friday at the Redeemer Lutheran Church, Wayne. The Rev. S.K. deFreese will officiate.

Music will be "Beyond the Sunset" and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," sung by Ted Bahr and accompanied by Ted Bahr and William Kugler. Pallbearers are Ed Gathie, Fred Heier, Emil Vahikamp, Adolph Kohn, Herb Kollmorgen and Orvil Brandstetter. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Rebecca Sydow, daughter of Henry and Carolyn Volkman Rath, was born Sept. 18, 1887, south of Wayne. She grew up southwest of Wayne and spent her entire life in the Wayne community.

She was united in marriage to Emil Sydow April 19, 1906 at the Theophilus Church, southwest of Wayne. They farmed south of Wayne until 1927 when they moved into town. She was a member of Redeemer Lutheran Church.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Carl (Henrietta) Damme and Mrs. Ervin (Frances) Doring, both of Wayne; one son, Werner Sydow of Wayne; three grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Preceding her in death were her parents, her husband in 1927, one daughter and three brothers.

The body will lie in state at the Wittse Mortuary, Wayne, until time of service.

Pork pushers deserve honors

Congratulations are in order for two persons cited for their work in improving the pork industry. Leo Lucas, superintendent of the Cedar County Fair and the area pork organization, and Marc Cox, editor of the Sioux City Journal's weekly farm supplement titled "Farm Weekly," was named recipient of the Pork Booster Award for his efforts in promoting the pork industry through stories and pictures in his supplement. Both men have worked hard in helping promote the pork industry, something that is becoming more and more important to this part of the state. They look like good choices for the honors.

Still, it's a bad stretch of road

"I use to say how bad Nebraska roads are. Man, I'm proud of them now." That was what Leo Lucas, superintendent of the North Platte State Fair, told the large crowd that attended the Northeast Nebraska Pork Producers' annual banquet at Coleridge Sunday night. He was talking about the roads in Columbia, South America, where he spent about a year and a half helping Colombians improve their livestock production. Nebraska may have some bad roads, but they apparently aren't as bad as those in Columbia. Some of those roads are mere trails along the sides of mountains, with hundreds of feet of open space only a few feet away. Others are periodically closed by rockslides. Still, the stretch of road between Wayne and Laurel has to rank as one of the worst paved highways in the state. It's been that way for about as long as most people can remember. Now, however, there is talk of the road being improved. We'll have to see it before we believe it.

She's how old?

It's absolutely amazing, the priceless tidbits of information you find nestled into the columns of a newspaper. For example, where else could you learn that the American male is the most depressed man in the Western world? That's what the author of "The Manipulated Man," who happens to be a woman, contends. Esther Vilar says in her book that women are stupid, that housework is so easy that in psychiatric clinics it is often given by nurses who are unable to do any other type of work, and that the brilliant male seeks the security of the enslaved and married. She also says that her thoughts have a lot of people taking in Germany, where her book quickly became a best seller. Miss Vilar, it should be noted, was divorced from her husband after two years. Wonder why? And where else would you learn that Brigitte Bardot, the woman who epitomized sex to so many millions what seemed like a few short years ago, is 38 years old? Miss Bardot should be nominated for the most quotable woman award, if there is such an honor. She says she hates unfaithfulness because it's cheap. That after her comment that her lovers are now successive and that she never has more than one at a time. A lot of men have apparently gone in and out of Miss Bardot's bedroom over the years. But they have done so probably knowing that Miss Bardot is a very practical woman. Saying it's impossible to live always with the same man, she admits she has to have a new lover in sight before she can let the old one go.

Do schools give public what it wants?

As the nation's educators ponder the growing decline in public support, they may look to a new survey which suggests that schools are not offering the programs the public wants. While educators place a high priority on developing a child's mind and turning out a well-rounded human being, the public is more concerned about jobs and money, according to the new fourth annual Gallup Poll of Public Attitudes Toward Education. A cross-section of 1,614 adults was asked to name the chief reasons why children should get an education. The most common answers were: "to get better jobs," mentioned by 44 per cent of those surveyed; "to get along better with people at all levels of society," 43 per cent; and "to make more money," 38 per cent. Only 15 per cent offered "to stimulate their minds" as a reason. There is no doubt the public places a heavy emphasis on material goals, at the expense of those concerned with intellectual and artistic development," pollster George Gallup says. But this pragmatic approach "should cause no shock," he contends, because "Americans are a practical people who believe firmly that education is the royal road to success in life." But is it? These same Americans may be shocked themselves by a controversial new study which concluded that there is no guarantee of success or financial reward. Do the Gallup findings indicate there is a "wide chasm" between the courses schools offer and those that the public wants, Gallup asks. "Some will view these tabulations as evidence that there is," he says. But strangely enough, when citizens were asked to name the best features in schools, the curriculum ranked first. Gallup suggests that this contradiction may stem from confusion over the difference between a school's goal and its programs. Therefore, citizens were asked to name those programs which deserve more attention in schools. "Teaching respect for law and authority" was ranked first for secondary schools and third for elementary schools. "Teaching students how to solve problems and think for themselves" placed second for both levels. The top concern for elementary schools was teaching the "three R's." And the third spot on the secondary school list went to "teaching vocational skills."

Other findings show that the public again believes that a "lack of discipline" is the number one problem facing schools. Discipline also ranked first in 1969 and 1970, but dropped to third last year behind the financial crisis and integration. The other "major problems confronting the public schools in 1972" are, in order, "lack of proper financial support," "integration," "difficulty in getting good teachers," and "overly large classes and schools." The best features, following the curriculum, were thought to be teachers, school facilities, "equal opportunity for all," and "no racial conflicts." The poll also confirmed the growing resistance to raising taxes to finance schools with 56 per cent opposed, compared to 52 per cent in 1971. In addition,

State's voters become plastic surgeons in legislative balloting

LINCOLN—The voters have put a new face on the Legislature. Not so new, probably, that it will make any drastic changes in direction, but some of the dominating personalities will be missing when the state senators convene again in January. Lincoln voters performed the major plastic surgery. They retired 68-year-old

Fern Hubbard Orme before she was ready and replaced her with 47-year-old Shirley Marsh, wife of the lieutenant governor. Voters in the Capital City apparently put a 22-year-old University of Nebraska Lincoln senior, Steve Fowler, in the legislative lineup in place of Sen. William F. Swanson, 52.

At the deadline for this report, Fowler had what seemed to be an unbeatable lead on Swanson, chairman of the legislative Council's executive board and—before the voters spoke—a possible candidate for speaker of the 1973 session. Tabulation of the absentee and disabled ballots could have returned Swanson to the Legislature before this report is published, but it appeared doubtful. Swanson had reached the state senate floor by appointment—in 1967 by Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann. He had been elected in 1968, but this year the appointment he caught up with him.

Few have survived that hex. Sen. LeRoy Piche of South Sioux City, appointed by Gov. J. J. Exon to replace the resigned Sen. Elmer Walliwey of Emerson, was beaten this fall by John R. Murphy of South Sioux. It was Piche's first test on the ballot.

Sen. Blair Richenditer of Walthill, another on the appointee, apparently beat the hex, but it was close and late returns could have reversed the figures. Richenditer, named to succeed the late Sen. C. W. Brown of Blair in a battle in which all three candidates had to file by petition because Holmquist's death came too late for primaries in the spring. Mrs. Orme, senator since 1959, was a member of the Budget Committee for many years and one of the Legislature's leaders. Mrs. Marsh, her successor, will have the unusual experience of having her husband, Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh, be her presiding officer when she's at work. Marsh, for 18 years Secretary of State before his election in 1970 as lieutenant governor, is known to want to run for governor in two years. Political pundits have been assessing the effect of the family decision to have Mrs. Marsh run for the Legislature on her husband's future political ambitions. Marsh, himself, won't talk officially yet about a try for governor, but he says he doesn't see how his wife's election could affect his race if he makes one in 1974. Falling by the wayside along with Piche, Swanson and Mrs. Orme was Sen. Don Brown of Grand Island, a victim of Ralph Kelly of Grand Island. Both candidates say Elrod's connections with organized labor had the telling effect in that battle—although Elrod claimed after the election that Kelly hadn't played the issue fairly. Kelly said it was Elrod who tried to make the race into a labor-management contest. There will be at least one more new

A new flag was put into service this week at the local post office. Mrs. W. A. Koeber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis, Carroll, received severe bruises Tuesday morning when he fell from a hay stack. Col. District, John Y. McCollister of Omaha in the 2nd and David Martin of Kearney in the 3rd—had easy wins.

It was the seventh time voters in western Nebraska have sent Martin to Washington. Thone and McCollister won second terms. President Nixon, to no one's surprise, crushed Democrat George McGovern in Nebraska—and in every other state but Massachusetts. The President more than doubled McGovern's Nebraska vote total.

On the constitutional amendment balloting, Nebraska decided their legislators should be at least 21 (the minimum age would have been 18 if the amendment hadn't passed) and that they ought not to have the authority to set their own wages—on a per diem basis or any other—and that they must cut their salary if they want to participate in a retirement plan (state contributions to the pension cut against the $400 per month salary maximum now allowed).

Area Pork Association Honors Wolfe, Cox

By NORVIN HANSEN
A Cedar County pork producer, LeRoy Wolfe, was named to receive the Pork Chop Award during an area pork organization's annual banquet at Coleridge Sunday night.

Wolfe was honored during the seventh annual banquet of the Northeast Nebraska Pork Producers Association. The banquet attracted more than 200 persons to the community hall at Coleridge.

Named to receive the group's Pork Chop Award for his work in promoting the swine industry was Marc Cox, editor of "Farm Weekly," a weekly farm supplement to the Sioux City Journal.

Crowned during the banquet as the organization's queen for the next 12 months was Wakefield High School student Judy Gustafson.

Special speaker during the banquet was Dr. Leo Lucas, superintendent of the North Platte Station who recently finished working one and a half years in Columbia, South America.

The latest Pork Chop Award winner was cited for his outstanding record as a breeder of top commercial pigs and a leader in the area pork organization.

Wolfe, who farms a few miles west of Coleridge with his wife and four sons, has shown the champion or reserve champion title hog four out of the past five years of the Laurel Market Hog Show. During the same period either he or one of his sons won top or runner up honors in the carcass division of the show.

He has also shown top animals at hog shows as the past five years of the Laurel Market Hog Show. During the same period either he or one of his sons won top or runner up honors in the carcass division of the show.

Wolfe has been active in 4-H work, serving as a project leader since 1963, and has been swine superintendent at the Cedar County Fair since 1966.

He is now serving his second three year term as a director of the area pork organization, served the group as vice president for two years and is now president of the organization.

Mrs. Wolfe is also active in promotional activities, having served as secretary of the Northeast Porkettes the past two years.

Cox was cited for his efforts in focusing attention on the pork industry in the area. His award is given annually to the person outside the swine industry who works hard to promote it.

The organization's latest queen replaces Winside's Pat Danberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Danberg of Winside, Norfolk.

Miss Gustafson, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gustafson of rural Wakefield, was crowned during the banquet after an afternoon of judging.

Others competing for the crown were runner up Janet Neuhalfen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Neuhalfen, Mary Kay Potts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Potts, and Jeanne Milander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Milander. All are from the Hartington area.

They were judged on their knowledge of pork producing and pose, personality and beauty. They had to give a three to five minute speech on one of four topics during the judging.

Serving as judges were Bob Craft, state president, Mrs. Neal Pahlstrom of Stanton and Jocelyn Smith, home economist at the Northeast Station.

Heading up this year's contest were Mrs. Robert Hanson of Wakefield, president of the Porkettes, and Mrs. LeRoy Wolfe.

During his slide presentation and talk, Dr. Lucas explained how important it is for the United States to help underdeveloped countries such as Columbia.

Without this assistance, millions of people will continue starving and the countries will remain ripe areas for communism, he said.

In Columbia, he noted, approximately 10 per cent of the people live like millionaires, while some 50 to 60 per cent live in poverty.

"One man will be riding on a burrow and another will be driving a Cadillac," he told the crowd.

Dr. Lucas worked in the South American country as part of an effort by the American government to help the country produce more food for its rapidly increasing population.

Four new directors were named for the Northeast Pork Producers Association during voting Sunday night at the group's annual banquet in Coleridge.

New directors are Bob Hanson of Wakefield in Wayne County, Earl Hanson of Coleridge in Cedar County, Gordon Eundin of Allen in Dixon County, and Ron Brinkman of Emerson in Thurston County.

Other directors are Richard Longe, Carroll, and Wilbur Urecht, Wakefield, Wayne County; Ken Thorne, Fordyce, Wakefield; and Wayne Lamprecht, Ponca, Dixon County.

Quite often fall growth of hogs in waterways, late growth alfalfa or green feed in government acres is available. These are good sources capable of adding enough protein to meet needs.

Other sources of protein and minerals would be a limited feed of alfalfa hay, range cubes to supply a half pound of protein daily or protein blocks self fed. A mineral supplement should be fed when green feed is the source of extra protein.

It's also important to remember that when cattle get proper protein levels in their ration, they eat more stalks or other low quality roughage than if they are protein deficient, according to the cattlemen.

This is desirable as it is important for cattle to eat enough low quality roughage to maintain their condition or gain weight. However, plenty of stalks have to be available or the benefit of the supplemental protein is wasted.

When stalk pastures are too heavily grazed, cattle need extra energy as well as protein.

Free choice supplements, such as liquid supplements or blocks, will tend to be over consumed in these situations. These supplements can provide the energy needed, but this gets to be expensive. In some cases, urea toxicity can be a problem when urea based proteins are over consumed.

In many cases winter hair growth may be confused with gain of flesh and cattle may be left in stalk fields without supplemental feed until much of the early gains are lost, the cattlemen say. In extremes late in the winter, these stalk fields function as little more than "holding pens" and cattle lose condition rapidly, they conclude.

Corn Borer Damage In Area Is Light

Damage from corn borers in the Wayne area is considerably lower this year than in 1971, reports a University of Nebraska extension entomologist.

Dr. David Keith said that statewide fall corn borer populations are 83 per cent lower than those observed last year, and in Northeast Nebraska, NU entomologists found only 78.5 borers per 100 plants compared to 214.7 found a year earlier.

The survey of corn fields encompassed 25 fields in each of five crop districts. The entomologists observed generally light damage in all but a few scattered fields.

The dramatic decline in the number of borers found on the plants is probably related directly to weather conditions, explained Dr. Keith. The chilly wet weather, that prevailed during peak moth activity in June and August was not favorable to borer development. Cool wet conditions generally reduced moth activity, therefore moths laid fewer eggs and larval activity was also reduced. Many newly-hatched worms were knocked or blown off the plants and were therefore unable to reach the whorls to feed and cause damage.

Although borer populations are generally very low, a few scattered heavy infestations were noted. The entomologist considered the time of the year, stating that, while an early harvest is no longer possible, a very remaining unharvested fields that are heavily infested should be given first priority when weather permits farmers to enter fields.

The longer a heavily infested field stands, the more borer damage it will suffer due to stalk breakage and ear drop.

"No prediction, no forecasts," Keith stated. "Infestations and damage depend too much on the weather. Overwintering levels of borers are little to do with what happens the next season. Last year, we had an extremely large number of overwintering borers, but the first generation of borers was held back by spring weather. Farmers are concerned about lines of corn with some degree of borer resistance or tolerance. Most companies have developed and carry varieties that are resistant to insect attack."

NEN Tech Leases 520-Acre Farm as Laboratory

Northeast Nebraska Technical College has leased a 520-acre farm to provide a laboratory for its new farm and ranch operations course which will begin classes Nov. 27.

The farm, just east of the present Northeast Tech campus at Norfolk, was leased from Norfolk Regional Center, which ceased operation about five years ago.

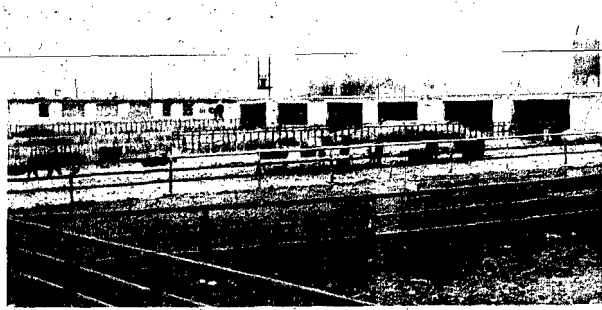

"Tech Farm will give students an excellent opportunity to learn about modern farming techniques and management methods, to actually perform them on the college farm, and then to adapt them to their own home farming and ranching operations," said Dr. Robert Cox, Northeast Tech president.

He emphasized that the farm will be used for demonstration by students of successful agriculture production and management rather than for any experimental work.

"The arrangement for the farm is another example of cooperation between two public institutions for the benefit of the general public," Dr. Cox said.

Dr. Howard Herrick, clinical director, and Dr. C.G. Ingram, superintendent of the Regional Center, said they were delighted with this cooperative venture and will be pleased to see the facility back in use again.

The farm runs north and east from the Regional Center. It has level, sandy soil, with about 300 acres of pasture in native and introduced grasses and about 200 acres of crop land, suited for corn and hay, according to John

THESE BUILDINGS, formerly used for the dairy operations at Norfolk Regional Center, along with 520 acres have been leased by Northeast Tech for a laboratory in its new 18-month farm and ranch operations course. The buildings include dairy processing facility, left, which will become the classroom; livestock loafing sheds, center, and one of two concrete block silos.

Corkle of Tilden, supervisor of agricultural programs at Northeast Tech.

The leased property includes two concrete block silos, a 300 foot concrete block loafing shed and some auxiliary sheds, which will be used for swine and beef cattle enterprises.

Corkle said later developments could include a swine breeding herd, feeder pigs, cow coll operation, artificial insemination, cross breeding and beef backgrounding, so students can experience treating common sicknesses as well as other problems in handling various types of livestock.

"The students will be involved in all stages, including planning, development of the property and when to buy and sell livestock," Corkle said.

"In order to make it more realistic, we may even borrow money to finance some of the operation, perhaps by forming a non profit corporation or foundation, so they can experience what it's like to go down to the banker," he said.

The former daily milk processing and cooling building is well built, Corkle said, with brick ceramic tiled walls and floors well suited for adaptation to a classroom. An adjacent room could even become a lounge area for students to use before and after classes and during break periods.

Adaptation of the dairy facility can also provide practical laboratory experience for such other Tech College programs as mechanics fields and building construction.

Enrollment is still open for the 18-month course, which has a curriculum based on a central core of farm business management, stressing financial records as well as production records.

Classes will include business analysis, farm production economics, crop production, soils, farm machinery maintenance and calibration, farm electricity, concrete work, livestock nutrition and analysis, observation and natural resources development.

The six quarter schedule has been set to allow students to receive credit for work experience.

Mrs. Corbit Gets Award From MOD

Mrs. Bill Corbit of Wayne has received an award from the Nebraska March of Dimes in recognition of the increase in donations during the 1972 Wayne County March of Dimes drive.

The county chapter increased its donations from $2,100 in 1971 to $2,400 in 1972, helping keep Nebraska in the top six states in the nation in per person giving to the March of Dimes.

The drive is held annually to raise money to fight birth defects, and more than one third of the net receipts each year stay in local chapters to fight birth defects and for health education.

Mrs. Corbit was the rural campaign chairman of the Wayne County drive this year.

experience on their own home farm operations, especially during unfavorable weather in the busy seasons.

Corkle, 31, was born and raised on a grain and livestock farm. He has a bachelor of science degree from the University of Nebraska, where he majored in agricultural economics and agricultural education. He was employed in a market research study in 22 southern states and was an Iowa Farm Business Association consultant at Cedar Rapids. He taught high school vocational agriculture three years at Scribner and Eaton, Colo.

Three years ago he returned to farming near Tilden. While farming, he has been teaching veterans agriculture classes at Tilden, Dodge and Norfolk.

In addition to Corkle, the course will be taught by two other instructors, perhaps hired on a part-time basis the first year. One will be a specialist in crop science and the other a specialist in animal science, with both teaching experience and actual work experience in their fields.

The cost of the program is $84 per quarter. Additional costs for materials are estimated to be not more than $50 for the entire 18-month program. Corkle said.

Persons wishing additional information on the curriculum, work study plan or registration forms should contact Northeast Tech.

Plans are underway to develop a separate farm business management course for adults, using off campus sites, as well as teaching farm operators in various Northeast Nebraska communities.

livestock waste control facility, it will send the operator a letter of formal approval and certification form to be completed, affirming that construction has been completed according to the approved plans and specifications.

Any operator whose operation does not cause pollution may, upon certification by the director, apply for and receive a permit also qualifying him for the protection afforded by Rule 8 of the Nebraska Rules and Regulations Pertaining to Livestock Waste Control.

Rule 8 states: "When a livestock operation is conducted in accordance with these rules and regulations and the best practicable technology is applied to eliminate offensive odors and other objectionable conditions, it shall be deemed prima facie evidence that a nuisance does not exist."

Any livestock waste control facility proposed for dairy farms must have the location reviewed by the Bureau of Foods and Dairies, Department of Agriculture, which must note plans before they are submitted to DEC.

A livestock waste control facility will not be approved for any existing or proposed facility which is operated in violation of zoning regulations of any local governmental body. It is the responsibility of the operator to determine whether zoning regulations exist.

In the event an existing feedlot operator with approved waste control facilities wishes to expand approved operations, information regarding livestock waste control for expansion must be submitted to DEC for approval.

Veterans' Benefits Questions & Answers

Q. About two years ago, I received Veterans Administration outpatient treatment for an injury sustained in service and verified by the VA. Can I receive treatment again from the VA?

A. Yes, if you have established a service connection with the VA. We suggest you apply for treatment again.

When controls are required, a compliance schedule for preparation of plans and completion of construction will be sent to the operator. These plans can be designed by the United States Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service, registered professional engineers or other qualified persons so long as they meet requirements set forth in Section 4 of the Nebraska Rules and Regulations Pertaining to Livestock Waste Control.

Minor runoff of wastes onto adjoining property will be allowed if the operator has obtained the permission of the owner. Information regarding livestock waste control facilities must be submitted to DEC for approval on the application form, "Data Sheet for Livestock Waste Control Facilities," furnished by DEC.

The operator of any proposed or existing livestock operation which requires or will require waste controls must apply for a permit and complete construction of such controls no later than Dec. 31, 1974 with earlier compliance where deemed necessary. A permit must be obtained prior to operation of any new feedlot after Dec. 31, 1974.

Rural Ramblings

Through the years modernization has extended beyond human dwellings to animal dwellings. If you don't think so, just look where Old Bossie spends her time. She is kept in a clean, comfortable shed, and her milking parlor has to be scrubbed more often than the Mrs. scrubs her kitchen floor. That is, if you want to sell Old Bossie's milk.

There has always seemed to be a little extra pocket money in milking, but somehow even milk has become commercialized. About the time they made a self-washing separator, you decided to sell whole milk.

For years it had been a daily chore for the Mrs. to wash the separator after breakfast. Sometimes before the dishes were done she would take two buckets of hot water to the barn. When the separator was washed, she would cover it with a clean, white cloth. Of course, the flies usually "rested" on the cloth all day so it didn't stay clean very long.

But after you purchased the new self-washing separator, the Mrs. carried water to the barn before breakfast; in fact, before you had finished milking. Then while you fed hogs, she washed the separator, covering it with a nice, white muslin cloth. Sometimes you had to wait on breakfast, but she had the separator washed.

Before long, Old Bossie was giving too much milk for the hogs, so you decided to sell whole milk. That would eliminate washing the separator for the Mrs., and she could wash the bulk tank.

But the minute the bulk tank was installed, the government sent an inspector around like the "revenue" looking for Grand pa's still.

The first thing he did was investigate the milk room. Gosh, that shouldn't have been any problem. Shouldn't, but it was.

You had worked a long day fixing up that old horse stall in the barn before the new stainless steel tank arrived. You had thrown out most of the old harnesses, foot-filled buckets, empty feed sacks, steel posts and other junk.

You had even swept and scooped out most of the debris on the floor so you could see some of the wooden planks. The Mrs. even swept down all the cobwebs from the rafters.

So you proudly escorted the inspector to the barn. There, fit snug in that little stall was your shiny bulk tank. The Mrs. had spread a freshly washed cloth over the top of the tank. That should have really impressed him.

He just stood there speechless. He didn't think you had such a nice tank, so you showed him how close it was to the milking area, making it very handy. You explained how you planned to make a better door between the milking area and the tank as soon as you got another day off from field work.

He was still speechless. Then he walked over to the other barn door and looked out. Bet he never saw such contented cows. Even Old Bossie was standing near the feed rack chewing her cud.

Well, the feed yard didn't look so nifty as the milk room but you told him you intended to get it all hauled out as soon as you got around to it. Then he humbled something about taking a look at your well.

You couldn't understand what that had to do with selling milk, but you showed it to him.

While he looked down into the well, you explained that it always had been a good well. Couple of years ago you put a new motor on it, but otherwise it never gave any trouble.

Then he sauntered back to his car, took out a notebook and began writing. He continued to write while he asked how long you had been selling milk and how long you planned to continue.

Now that was a silly question. He must have some idea of how much money you invested in that herd and bulk tank. But you

He started by telling you your well can't be a pit well if you intend to sell Grade 'A' milk. Wonder what happened to Grade B? You don't get a chance to ask him.

He said you must have a drain and running water in the milk room. Not only that, but your plank floor is absolutely prohibited. You must also have walls and a ceiling you can wash and gaint. And there has to be screens on doors and window.

Now, how in the world would Old Bossie know if there was running water in the milk-room or whether the floor was plank or carpeted?

His explanations for all this were still soaking in when he began telling you the bulk tank must be at least three feet from the wall. You asked him how he expected you to move the tank away from the wall in that small stall. "Simple," he said. "All you have to do is build a new, larger milk room."

Before you even began to comprehend the cost of something like that he told you that wasn't all you had to do. You'll have to fix the yard so there won't be any water pools standing anywhere. And one other thing, to begin with that, if you'll have to fence it so hogs won't get in.

Well, so much for modernization. You can bet the Mrs. will say so when she hears the remodeling money will go into the milk barn instead of the new kitchen she's been planning.

But think of all the money you're going to make selling Grade 'A' milk. Why, she'll be able to remodel the entire house next year.

On second thought, that will never work. She has been told that too many times. You'd better come up with a better story than that. She'll understand... she always does.

Manor House, USDA Grade 'A' TURKEYS

Exceptional is the word for your Manor House turkey. It's a special kind of turkey, brought to full-plump maturity while its age is still measured only in weeks. The thickness of its broad expanse of white meat is measured in inches. And you never had meddler drumsticks! U.S. Government-inspected and USDA Grade 'A'; of course, the Manor House label assures you of tender and flavorful meat, backed by Safeway's famous guarantee.
