Christmas Concert Is Sunday

The annual Christmas Concert presented by the choral groups of Wayne State College will be given next Sunday, Dec. 10, at 3:00 p.m. at Ramsey Auditorium.

The WSC Concert Choir and Madrigal Singers, a sixteen-voice group, both directed by Dr. Cornell Runestad, will perform.

The featured work is the J. S. Bach Magnificat. Utilizing the well known text relating the news of the Annunciation given by Gabriel to the Virgin Mary, the work alternates between sections for chorus and soloists.

Four student soloists will be featured: soprano Pat Rabbass, Wayne; mezzo soprano Marcia Schieffer, Crofton; Cindy Haase, a contralto from Denison, Ia., and baritone Richard Palmer, Hartington.

The Madrigal Singers will present Spanish Renaissance carols, traditional and contemporary versions of well known carols, showing how composers of different centuries interpreted these ageless segments of our Christmas tradition.

Concluding selections by the Concert Choir include the familiar "Away In A Manger" with Pat Rabbass as soloist and the beloved "Hallelujah Chorus" from "Messiah." Accompanists are Beth Bergl, Wayne; Sara Bettenhausen, Hartington; Lynette Amunson, Ute, Ia.; and Jeanne Kniffel, Newcastle, Peggy Howe, organist.

Honor Recital Slated

Eight music students at Wayne State College will join in the traditional Honor Recital Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the Peterson Fine Arts Center.

Music faculty members selected the eight as superior performers to present the fall term recital, open to the public. The program includes: Peggy Howe, organist, of Fremont, playing Walther's "Concerto in B minor."

Bruce Linafelter, trombone, of Wayne, playing "Concert Piece No. 5" by Blazhevich. Joel Miller, bass, of Atlantic, Ia., singing "The Trumpet Shall Sound" from Handel's "The Messiah." Paulette Janky, clarinet, of Omaha, playing the molto allegro from Saint Saens' "Sonata, Op. 167." Heather Henderson, cello, of Omaha, playing "Fond Recollections" by Popper. Marcia Schieffer, contralto, of Crofton, singing the andante from Vivaldi's "Stabat Mater" and two Schubert songs, "Raslose Liebe" and "An die Musik." Lynette Amunson, piano, of Ute, Ia., playing "On the Death of a Firefly" by Montani and "Gray Clouds" by Liszt.

Judges Overwhelmed With Contest Entries

Entries for the children's creative writing contest have been turned over to The Wayne Herald's team of judges — all 367 of them.

The response to the request for entries was overwhelming, and we are grateful to the many instructors who devoted class time to help their students with the entries.

Entries, singly and in bundles from schools, came from Allen, Coleridge, Concord, Emerson, Hartington, Hoskins, Hubbard, Laurel, Newcastle, Pender, Pilger, Ponca, Thurston, Wakefield, Waterbury, Winside, Wisner and Wayne.

It is evident that a lot of thought and time went into the preparation of the stories and poems, and it will be difficult for the judges to choose just three winners.

First place winner will receive $15, second place winner $10 and third place winner $5. Winners' names will be announced in the "Christmas Extra," a special edition of The Wayne Herald scheduled to come out next week. We hope to have pictures of the winners as well, and will print the winning entries in the paper for everyone to read.

Some Enjoyed It . . . Some Didn't

It was pretty successful, the opening day of the Wayne Lions Club flea market in the city auditorium Saturday.

Everything from antiques to toys to clothes attracted interested inspection from the large number of people who turned out in the morning. But there were some, like little Amy Tiedtke, who were completely oblivious to what was going on. Only seven weeks old, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Craig Tiedtke of Wayne spent most of the time sleeping on her mother's shoulder.

The flea market ran through Sunday afternoon.

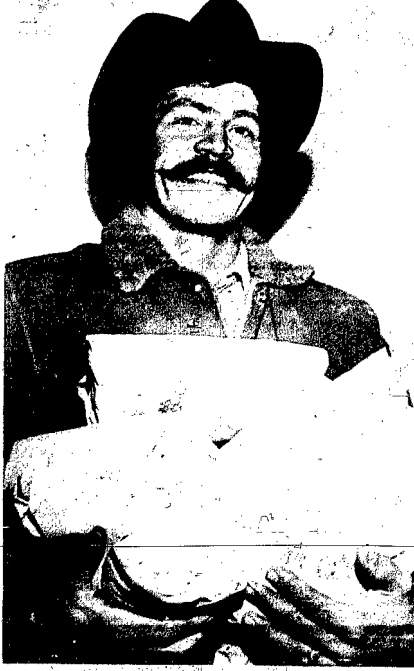

Champ Says Nebraska Beef Is Best

Beef from Nebraska is good anywhere—even at Rapid City, S.D., home of Oakland A's second baseman Dick Green.

Green, in a brief stop in Wayne last week, went to Johnson Frigten Foods for a sample of Nebraska beef and believes that "this beef is really good." The ace second sacker for the World Series champs got the tip about Nebraska steaks from Willard Lage, brother of Wayne's Orville Lage. "I heard the steaks were good so I decided to try it," Green said.

According to Green, Willard built Green's ranch house at Rapid City and became acquainted with his brother in-

DICK GREEN, . . . hungry for good old Nebraska beef.

Cake Feed At Laurel Saturday

Directors of the Laurel Chamber of Commerce, who met Thursday to complete plans for community Christmas activities, have announced that the annual free pancake feed will be held this Saturday from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the city auditorium.

A drawing for fruitcakes will also be held. Area children are invited to a free movie to be shown at the city auditorium at 2 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 23, and Santa will be on hand to distribute treats.

Bonus drawings are scheduled for each night that Laurel business places are open during the holiday season.

HAVE A HAPPY DAY

Farmers Plowing Mud To Harvest Corn Crop

Although Northeast Nebraska is much better off than the rest of the state, farmers in the Wayne area are still having trouble getting their corn crop harvested.

Harold Ingalls, Wayne County agricultural agent, said harvesting is progressing very slowly because of the wet fields and wet crop.

"Much of the corn left in the fields is wet and drying is required when it is harvested," he said.

About 60 per cent of the corn crop has been harvested in the area, according to Ingalls. That compares with about 99 per cent which would have been harvested by now in a normal year. Several farmers have reported corn molding in the fields, but no agricultural experts have said the corn is being spoiled by mold, according to Ingalls. The harvest is still very good even though some corn is being dropped in fields and some stalks are falling down in unharvested fields, Ingalls noted. Soybean harvesting is about 80 per cent complete now, Ingalls said. However, many farmers have been letting their soybeans stand in the fields in hopes freezing weather will dry them out, he added.

Yuletide Decorations

THE TOWN OF ALLEN got a new touch in Christmas decorations recently with the addition of lighted Christmas bells. Checking over the new equipment, first ever for Allen, is town marshal, Jack Mitchell.

Dixon County 4-H Night Set For Dec. 13

The annual 4-H recognition program for Dixon County will be held at Allen High School on Wednesday, Dec. 13, starting at 8 p.m.

Recognition will be given to 4-H members who were awarded medals and trips in recognition of their hard work. Awards will go to about 30 different 4-H members.

Four-H leaders will also be recognized. Leaders' pins will be presented to 4-H leaders who have completed two, five, 10 and 15 years of service as leaders.

There will also be a period of recreation for the 4-H members, and the 4-H council members will be elected for the following year. The program is open to the public.

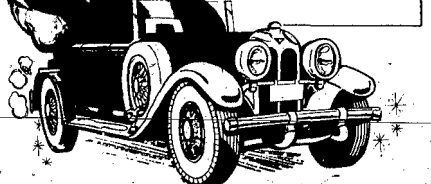

Something New Added For Lighting Ceremony

Something new will be added to Wayne State's annual ceremony of lighting the Willow Bowl Christmas tree this year.

A number of dioramas depicting Christmas scenes are being made by the Faculty Wives and Women to decorate the Willow Bowl through the yule season. They will be unveiled and the Christmas tree lighted at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The dioramas were created by Mrs. Carlos Frey with assistance from members of the organization.

So you think you're a good driver ... let's see just how good

Do you think you are a good driver? If you do, you're not alone — most drivers do.

Statistics tell a different story, however. With 55,000 Americans dying and more than two million injured in highway accidents each year, most drivers obviously are not quite as good as they would like to think.

Winter and the driving hazards it presents are fast approaching, so this might be a good time to check your driving aptitude.

The following quiz was developed by one of the nation's leading automobile insurers. It should give you a pretty good idea of just how much of a driving expert you really are and at the same time provide a few valuable safe driving tips.

1. A flashing red light means:
 - A. slow down.
 - B. stop.
 - C. yield right of way.

Petitions deserve answer

Well, the Wayne city council found out officially Tuesday night that quite a few people are unhappy about the way the council picked up two options to purchase 22 1/2 acres of land just east of the site for the proposed new hospital.

Petitions signed by 95 persons were given the council during their regular meeting last week. Consider many people are reluctant to sign petitions of a controversial nature, that's quite a few signatures.

What the petitions said is quite interesting. They asked the council to reconsider its action in picking up the options because of the "lack of study as to the need, location and value of the property" and because of the "impropriety on the part of the city attorney."

That's about as simple, concise and clear as it can be said. The objections are about exactly the ones we had when the council moved to take out the options. The only disappointing thing about the petitions is what the council did with them. They have been filed away for future reference in case any action is ever taken by the council in exercising its right to purchase the two pieces of land some time during the next year.

We would have liked to have seen some discussion about the petitions by the councilmen. It seems that would be the appropriate thing for a council to do if nearly 100 constituents went to that much work to question one of its recent actions.

It seems the petition signers were really asking something like this: "Now, look. We think you made a mistake when you took this action. Here are our reasons for thinking that way. Since you represent us on the council, we would like an explanation why you acted that way so either you or we can be proved wrong."

That's not what happened. The petitions were filed away for future reference. We think they deserved a bit more consideration than that.

The passage of time

Here's an interesting little item we borrowed from the monthly newsletter of St. John's Lutheran Church in Wakefield. It's worth passing on, so here it is:

If you had a bank that credited your account each morning with $86,400, that carried over no balance from day to day, allowed you to keep no cash in your account and every evening cancelled whatever part of the amount you had failed to use during the day, what would you do?

Draw out every cent, of course.

Well you have such a bank and its name is "Time." Every morning it credits you with 86,400 seconds. Each night it rules off, as lost, whatever of this you have failed to invest to good purpose. It carries over no balances. It allows no overdrafts. Each night it burns the records of the day. If you fail to use the day's deposits the loss is yours. There is no going back. There is no drawing against the "tomorrow." You must live in the present — on today's deposit. Invest it so as to get from it the utmost in health, happiness and success.

Have you ever wondered about where all those federal tax dollars go? I can tell you where some of them went.

A good many of them were used to print up a beautiful, detailed nine-page report on climatological data for September for the whole state of Nebraska. In simpler words, that's weather information.

I would hate to guess how much money is spent each month in preparing and sending out those reports, but I wouldn't be afraid to bet that my yearly salary wouldn't begin to pay the bill.

The report gives everything from the average minimum temperature to the greatest amount of moisture recorded at some 165 stations in the state. There is also a daily precipitation and temperature chart for all those stations.

The stations range everywhere from Harborsburg — a little dot on the map in Banner County in extreme western Nebraska — to Enders Lake — a lake just southeast of Imperial. Why, there are even reports from such well known places as Canaday Steam Plant near Lexington, Newport, Madrid and Tryon.

This little gem of some bureaucrats' mind is just what you need beside your armchair if you ever have an urge to look up the amount of drainage for those places or the daily soil temperature recorded at various points around the state.

Just think how you could make every body look up and take notice the next time you had coffee at the cafe if you could suddenly and forcefully say some thing like "The maximum temperature at Brownsie was 81 degrees on September 10th." Or how about this "The daily minimum soil temperature at Sidney on bare ground during September averaged 56.9 degrees at two feet below the surface."

You would soon have the reputation for being a walking encyclopedia. That is, if they didn't put you somewhere for your own safety first.

Maybe I'm being too severe. After all, there may be a good reason for keeping all this information. It probably interests somebody that temperatures at this or that place were such and such during some month.

But I doubt if many newspapers are going to get much use out of these monthly reports. And look how much the government could save if they just started sending the reports only to those persons who could make use of them.

Who would have thought we would have received 367 entries in the newspaper's Christmas writing contest? We certainly didn't expect that kind of success. And the judges who volunteered to read all the entries and pick the top three probably began having second thoughts as those entries kept coming in and coming in.

I would like to thank the youngsters throughout the area — thanks partly to some prodding by teachers — decided to enter the contest for the fun of it. But I'm proud the $30 in prize money offered by the newspaper also figured into the decision. Well, you can't blame a youngster if he wants to pick up a few extra dollars at this time of the year.

Considering that the contest was limited to third through fifth graders, some of the entries are a little far out. One writer either has a pretty mixed up idea about the story of Christmas or else is having considerable fun putting everybody on.

If you didn't know it, that four-page advertisement which was upside down in Thursday's issue of the newspaper was meant to be that way. It wasn't a goof on our part.

The two stores who annually run their ads that way do it to get the reader's attention. It probably does just that, with some readers probably chuckling a little to themselves about how a newspaper can let that happen to so many pages.

Mr. and Mrs. Dinklage were surprised by some 175 friends and relatives when they thought they were attending a family birthday gathering.

Attending the event was one-time neighbor and fellow cattleman William Gaibrath, now under-secretary of agriculture. He read a tribute to Dinklage written by Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz.

Bond was not posted earlier for Kruckman because Supreme Court rulings prohibited bonding a person charged with first-degree murder. A recent Supreme Court ruling raises the question of whether there is such a thing as a capital case, according to Cedar County attorney Pat Rogers.

Dear Editor:

I have been reading with concealed amusement the frantic efforts to have Women's Equal Rights Amendment defeated. The arguments regarding the passage of this bill amazes and completely baffles me.

First, let us discuss whether young ladies and mothers will now be required to enter service.

Frankly, ladies, maybe the men desire your company at their side in all future battles. With the women in the majority in this country and voting as never before, maybe the men feel women should share the responsibility of what they vote for. After all, ladies, this is no longer Eisenhower's war or Kennedy's war or Johnson's war or Nixon's war, this is American people's war now. They voted in an overwhelming majority for the continuation of that war in the last election. Maybe if a few women were in the front battle lines, the last election would have seen the end of that war.

Also, a little common sense should tell one that women are not going to be drafted if they have children in their side. Come on, be sensible. No country has ever done this in the past nor will they do it in the future.

Second, it completely confuses me as to why women would turn down equal rights. Maybe some women do not want to be engineers, soldiers, or clean gutters; but then maybe some do. The equal rights amendment will further the cause of those who wish to enter those fields and also help to guarantee those women that they will have equal pay for equal work with men. What in the world is wrong with that? Women have been second-rate citizens for years—even centuries. Aren't they entitled at last to enter the profession they choose to?

Also, the minute anyone is against anything in this country, they raise the cry of "Communism" and "change those schools." This country has risen to greatness beyond any other country through its school system, and frankly it worries one to hear the too-oft repeated cry of "change those darn schools."

The schools do not endanger the home; only the parents in individual homes can so endanger them. If one prefers to not be home with the children in the evening but at committee meetings and various other meetings—maybe in a meeting at the local tavern—then do not cry "wolf" when the home falls apart at the seams and the children get in trouble. Stay home with those children, know where they are and the home will remain intact and secure. Do not blame others for the inadequacies some parents lack. There are fine schools in this country and it angers one to see them always being degraded for any and all causes. They are not perfect, but neither are the homes from which children come. From secure homes come the children who do well in school.

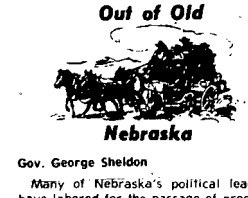

Women's Lib will not topple the family, only the parents in those families can do that. The responsibility remains in the home. Wake up, women.

Gov. George Sheldon

Many of Nebraska's political leaders have labored for the passage of progressive legislation. William Jennings Bryan and George Norris were two giants of the national reform movement. An article by Virginia Speich in the fall issue of Nebraska History, the quarterly publication of the Nebraska State Historical Society, explores the political life of one of Nebraska's lesser-known progressives, George Lawson Sheldon. Miss Speich, who retired this year from her position as professor of history at Chadron State, lives at Stockham.

Sheldon was born in 1870 into a strongly active Republican family in Nehawka, Cass County. He was educated in district school and received degrees from the University of Nebraska and Harvard. After serving in the United States Army during the war as a captain with Trian's 3rd Nebraska Volunteers, Sheldon returned to Nehawka to enter the family business. He entered politics in 1902, twice winning election to the state senate. In 1906 he was elected governor on the Republican ticket, defeating Ashton C. Shallenberger and becoming the first native-born Nebraskan to hold that position.

George L. Sheldon's campaigns were marked by his opposition to special interests. He fought the influencing of governmental decisions by the railroads which had distributed free passes enabling legislators and officials to travel by rail without charge. He supported the enactment of a direct primary law, and it was during his administration that the first such bill was passed. Because of his political background and administrative ability, he was seen by many as a likely vice presidential candidate to William Howard Taft in his 1908 race against Bryan. Being less than ambitious politically, however, Sheldon waited for the draft that never came rather than campaigning for the nomination.

Conflicts within his own party led to his defeat in the 1908 gubernatorial race. Following the loss to his old foe Shallenberger, Sheldon moved to his plantation near Greenview, Mississippi, which he had purchased in 1902. He became a political leader and was elected as a Republican to the state legislature (1920-1924) in this traditionally Democratic state. He returned to Nebraska occasionally to campaign, particularly in 1932 when he stumped the state for Herbert Hoover who had appointed him Collector of Internal Revenue in Mississippi (1929-1933). Sheldon died in 1960 shortly before his ninetieth birthday.

Morningside, Wildcat Matmen Battle Wednesday at Rice

One of the premier wrestling attractions on the Wayne State schedule is slated for Wednesday night when the Wildcats grapple Morningside at 7:30 in Rice Gym.

College wrestling meets are open to the public—no admission charge.

Morningside has defeated Wayne the past three meetings in duals and one triangular. However, Wayne has proved to be a tougher tournament team on most occasions when the two teams were competing—including the NAIA national.

The Chiefs have five lettermen back, with the main strength at lighter weights. Wayne matches the five lettermen, but the strength at heavier weights.

Judging by Wayne's dual last week with Kansas State University, Wildcats power will be more potent in the lighter range this year. At 126 pounds, Larry Kersten, a senior transfer from Northwest Missouri State, is a formidable contender.

But his arrival appears to have displaced Jim Meyer of Wayne, who had a fine 12.4 record in 1972 before injury sidelined him for season end tournaments. Meyer encounters the problem of having to contend with senior Kent Irwin at 134 or go at 142. He went the latter route against Kansas State and did well before losing, 10-3.

A key factor against Morningside will be the availability of Ken Monroe at 177 and Ron Coles at heavyweight. Both were scheduled for action in the Yankton Invitational Saturday, though Monroe was still some what handicapped by a hip injury.

UNI's Scoring Spurts Shut Out Wayne State

A couple of scoring spurts in each half by the University of Northern Iowa proved disastrous for Wayne State basketball Thursday, and UNI's Panthers fashioned a 75-60 opening game win.

Coach Ron Jones said his Wildcats had control of the game or at least an even break—for about 32 of the 40 minutes. The rest of the time UNI made a romp of it on their home court in Cedar Falls, Ia.

Wayne held an 18-16 advantage in early minutes, then went to intermission with a 41-22 deficit. The Wildcats came back to put a defensive clamp on the Panthers, allowing them only 11 points in the first 13 minutes.

With only 3:20 left, UNI nursed only a 58-52 lead. Then Panther ace Bill McCoy hit 10 of his game leading 18 points, to give Wayne its first loss in three games.

In the process McCoy broke a UNI career scoring record. Denny Siekles led the Wildcat attack with 14 points while Jim Mercher came in at 13. Jon Harvey at 10.

Tuesday night Wayne invades Omaha for a 7:30 clash with UN Omaha. The outcome will be important in season end standings of Nebraska's five state quintets. UNO and the four state colleges will play a double round robin to determine which state school goes into the NAIA district playoff.

Sun Schedule

The following applies to any point in Nebraska that is due north or south of Wayne. For each nine miles west, add one minute. For each nine miles east, subtract one minute.

WAKEFIELD PLAYMAKER Doug Fischer (23) tries to score on a two-on-one situation Friday night while his teammate Keith Siebrandt (33) looks on. Hoping to stop the play is Wildcat Steve Deck. The Trojans went on to win the team's first contest, 56-40.

Wakefield Socks Wildcats

By BOB BARTLETT
It was the one-two punch of Wakefield's Randy Johnson and Dave Scheel that kayoted the Winside five Friday night as the Trojans stepped up to their initial basketball win of the season with a 56-40 skinning of the Wildcats.

Scheel, the team leader, poured in 15 points after his teammate Johnson sparked the visiting Wakefield club with 12 of his 14 points in the first half.

"We went to Johnson in the first half when Winside stopped Scheel from the inside shots," Wakefield head man Joe Coble said. "But in the second half, Scheel was the open man and then we went to him."

Johnson ripped the nets from 15 feet out with six of his 12 target shots before the Wildcats were forced to come out on the floor and cut him off.

Coble noted he was happy with the Trojan offense which hit at a 47 per cent clip during the first half game for the club.

"I must say that we got a lot of mileage off our bench. Both Larry and Keith Siebrandt and Gary Adlink brought us time during the game," Coble stressed.

Both clubs started out with a sluggish first period, lying at eight apiece before the Trojans moved to a 28-22 halftime advantage.

"The team was only hitting at 27 per cent in the first period," Coble said peevishly. "But they got together in the second quarter for a 77 per cent mark."

Coble's "conservative" ball playing earned the Wakefield five a 40-32 third period edge before the team opened up with 16 points in the final stanza while holding Winside to eight.

Wildcat Center Jeff Farran, with eight points, kept his club in the game as he helped block the center plays against Wakefield. But with a 51 left in the third period Farran picked up his fourth foul and left the game. Wakefield was in the lead 44-36.

Winside kept the margin at eight during the final period before Farran, returning to the scene, collected his final foul and exited with 5:06 in the game. From there the Trojans held on to win the game.

Defense was our biggest problem," Coble insisted. "Winside forced us to go out of our man to man defense into a zone this is the first time in my nine years of coaching that a team has forced my men to make a defensive change."

Coble explained that part of the blame for the faulty defense was his lack of stress on defense. "Last year we kept pushing our defense and we kind of forgot about it this year."

$50 Per Day

"Good hunting, $50 per day per gun." When I heard about such signs posted near Wellfleet, I wondered whether hunting was really that good there, or whether the $50 tag was possibly a scarce device to deter trespassing hunters. The latter proved to be the case.

Grant Remus, who farms near Wellfleet, is one of at least two land owners in the area who use the $50 signs. They are not for the purpose of making money, Remus said, but to discourage hunters or at least prompt them to stop in and request permission. All other techniques he has used in the past have failed.

Incidentally, Remus said two groups of hunters did stop at the house and were given permission, at no cost. But, trespassing continued. He found where two deer carcasses were dragged from a pasture and past one of the signs.

Trespassing, as most land owners in the state are aware, is a pain to do much about.

In Nebraska, regardless of whether an area is posted or not, a person who hunts, fishes, or traps on private land without permission is subject to a general penalty of $10 to $100 or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed 30 days.

Fly In The Ointment

But the preliminaries that lead up to the penalty are the fly in the ointment as far as owners are concerned. If, for example, an owner spots some individual trespassing on his property, he has to get a complete description of the person and all the details—exact time, place, etc.

Then, he has to take this information to the county attorney who in turn determines if there is sufficient evidence to warrant the filing of a complaint in county court. And, if the complaint is filed, the land owner will probably be asked to act as a witness in court.

Unless there are physical damages, some courts are reluctant to prosecute for trespassing.

However, if a property is properly posted with "Hunting by Written Permission Only" signs, the picture changes. Should a conservation officer apprehend a person hunting on such posted lands without written permission, he can immediately issue a summons. Where lands are not so posted, though, the officer is relegated to helping the owner identify the physical damages, and in getting the proper information to the county attorney.

Land owners must post signs that are at least 18 inches square having "Hunting by Written Permission Only" printed in letters two inches high. The signs must be placed at each field entrance, at all property corners, and at 40-foot intervals.

Some hunters are confused on lands posted with "No Hunting" signs but nevertheless seeing people hunt there. This is perfectly legal! The owner or operator has the right to permit or deny access as he chooses or desires.

Some Owners Compound Problem

All problems are not hunter-originated. Some land owners make it difficult for hunters by slaying incognito; they don't print their name, address, or directions on "Hunting by Permission Only" or other similar signs. In essence, they're saying that hunting is possible by getting permission but they don't tell where they can be contacted.

Land owner-sportsman relations don't seem to be improving. They should, for in Nebraska, all people have equal equity in the fish and game of the state, whether they're farmers, plumbers, or whatever they may be.

But, the opportunity to sue that game is the issue. In Nebraska, over 97 per cent of the land is in private ownership, so it is obvious that Nebraskaans, if they wish to continue hunting, must develop favorable relations with land owners.

But, as the old saying goes, "It takes two to tango—the sportsman and the land owner!"

MISHMASH. Nebraska's southwest must have dropped in the Sunshine League ratings during the recent "no sun" period. Reportedly, the southwest corner of the state has 3,100 hours of sunshine yearly, which is more than any part of Florida receives. The state's most numerous serpent, the bullsnake, is one of the four largest reptiles in North America. Color problem: Most mammals, like deer, are color blind.

Homer Topples Rosalie, 69-55

The Homer Knights opened up their basketball campaign with a 69-55 thumping of Rosalie Friday night.

Stan Coppel helped lead the Knights with 20 points while Rosalie's Gary Anderson guided his teammates with 16.

In reserve action, Homer edged past the Bulldogs, 29-25.

Prior to the organization of the Game, Forestation and Parks Commission in 1929, wild life conservation in Nebraska was administered under the Nebraska Department of Agriculture.

It's Time for Frostbite Again

The frostbite victim is usually not aware of the condition. Hunters and others who work and play outdoors in Nebraska's winter months are especially susceptible to frostbite according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

The symptoms of frostbite are pink skin changing to white or grayish-yellow. Areas most commonly affected are the ears, nose, fingers and toes.

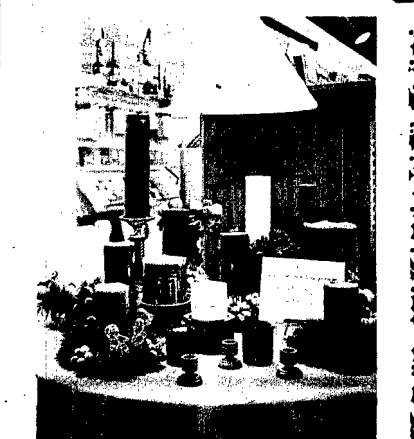

If fingers or hands are frostbitten, have the victim hold them under his arm, next to the body. Get the victim inside quickly and place the frostbitten area in lukewarm water—never hot water—or gently wrap the area in blankets if lukewarm water is not available.

Never, never rub the frostbitten parts with snow or ice as this increases the risk of infection and gangrene.

When the part is warmed, encourage the victim to exercise the affected area. The Nebraska Medical Association says to handle the frostbite tissue with extreme care and contact a physician as soon as possible.

The Nebraska Liquor Commission reported late last week that the operator of Dick's Tavern in Wayne has decided to pay a fine of $250 rather than be closed for five days for violation of a state liquor law.

Dick's Tavern will pay a fine of $50 a day to stay open five days starting Dec. 18, according to the commission.

The fine follows the tavern's selling beer after closing hours, the commission said.

Just Little Moisture in Grain Can Be Costly

"Corn at 20 per cent moisture can be held in a pile five times longer than corn at thirty per cent, and 20 per cent corn will hold for 48 days in a pile at 50 degrees without much damage," says Norm Teter, University of Nebraska Lincoln Extension agricultural engineer.

Corn coming from many combines now has moisture at 30 per cent or higher, Teter said. Available heated air dryers should be running to capacity to take the moisture down to 22 per cent and the corn should then be placed in fan ventilated bins if they are available. This procedure makes maximum use of the dryer to bring the moisture down to more manageable levels.

According to Teter, heating and molding is almost sure to develop in large piles of 30 per cent corn, but cold piles of corn at 20 or 22 per cent may keep for a number of days until it can be dried. "Two methods have proven practical for handling this unusually high moisture grain," said Teter. "One is the existing corn or milo by roller grinding and packing it into horizontal silos or blowing it into oxygen limiting silos. Corn can be artificially ensiled with 15 per cent by weight of propionic acid. Application of acids must be made accurately and especially designed equipment is greatly preferred to doing the job. Ensiled corn must be fed to livestock."

Teter continued, "The other way to handle high moisture grains to obtain maximum use of drying capacity available. Run the heat up high on the continuous flow and batch dryers. Operate them as many hours per day as possible. Remove the grain as soon as possible if ventilated storage is available (ventilation to keep corn cool is important).

Cooperate with your neighbor. If you have capacity to dry over and above what you need, make a deal to get full use of the dryer in some parts of the state, we are going to need all the drying capacity that we can find," advised the extension engineer.

Bought Guest Speaker At Lions Club Meeting

Guest speaker during the Laurel Lions Club initiation ceremonies Tuesday evening at the Wagon Wheel Steak House, was Zach Boughtn. Boughtn spoke about the fighting men in Vietnam, "The Forgotten Men of America."

His address was an attack on the senseless slaughter of our troops since 1965 because of what he felt to be idiotic political and diplomatic restrictions placed upon our military by the government. "This is certainly one of the strangest wars we have ever fought," he said.

"Religious groups demand a complete withdrawal from Vietnam, a halt of civilian massacre, yet these very groups never mention the barbaric, criminal acts committed against our men and Vietnamese by Russia, Red China and North Vietnam," said Boughtn.

"Cries of amnesty can be heard throughout America for deserters, draft dodgers and evaders. Eight million men did not turn coat on America, but faced their responsibilities. But America has forgotten. Fifty thousand men gave their young lives for America's freedom since the Vietnam war began, but America has forgotten," he continued.

Boughtn told of a former student raised in northeast Nebraska. Drafted into the service shortly after his eighteenth birthday, the young man was granted a ten day furlough before leaving for Vietnam.

A visit was paid to the Boughtn home where several hours were spent reminiscing about his youth. As the young soldier was

Truck Strikes Utility Pole

A truck driven by Jerome Schmidt of Norfolk sustained minor damage Thursday morning when Schmidt was backing out of an alley between Main and Pearl on West Second Street.

The outside mirror, stated the Wayne Police report, was broken when it struck a utility pole. In other police action Thursday, a car owned by Clifford V. Melba C. Wait, 913 Pine Heights, was struck in the left rear fender while parked at a parking lot at Seventh and Dearborn.

The driver of the other vehicle with the scene of the accident.

leaving he turned to call, "Good-bye, don't worry, I'll be back soon." Months later the soldier, under enemy fire, went to the aid of a fallen comrade only to give his life to his country.

Ended Boughtn, "These are the forgotten men of America." During the business meeting, new members pledged and received Lion pins included Jim Borfoltson, Rollie Granquist, David McElroy, Archie Lindsay, Jim Hoslin, Rev. Doug Potter, Lloyd Wendel, Don Jacobsen, Kieff Lynde and Roger Heitman.

Lion president, Gary Smith, presented special awards to past president Gaten Hartman, district officer, Duane Purcell, and

Staying in School for Area Youths Adds Up To $ and c in Future

From a purely dollars and cents standpoint, what is the value of an education to a young man living in Wayne County?

How much is it worth to him, in annual and lifetime earnings, to go through high school and college?

On the strength of national studies conducted by the Department of Commerce, the Research Institute of the University of Michigan and others, the answer is "plenty."

The figures show that there is a close connection between education and income. With each added year in school the average person's earning prospects rise considerably.

Apparently that fact has registered with the young people in the local area. They are staying in school longer than those in many areas of the country. The latest figures show that Wayne County residents, by the time they reach 25, now have a median of 12.3 years of formal education. It compares with 12.1 years in the United States and with 12.2 years in the West North Central States.

As detailed by the Department of Commerce, some 48.6 per cent of the male population in the local area and 59.8 per cent of the female, age 25 or over, are high school graduates.

Not just how much the added years of schooling are producing at the present time, financially, is indicated by the general findings. They show that the median income received by a man who has attended college, for four years is approximately, 45 per cent greater than is paid to a high school graduate.

The high school graduate, in turn, has a 27 per cent advantage over one who has no more than an elementary school diploma.

For those who did not finish elementary school, the wage scale is 26 per cent lower on the average.

The differentials, over the 40 to 45 years that a person usually works, add up to an important sum.

Because elementary and secondary schools in the United States are handling more pupils, necessitating bigger expenses, for salaries, supplies and maintenance, their operating costs in the past year reached $47 billion, which was 161 per cent greater than 10 years ago.

Two Cars Collide On Highway 15 Two vehicles, operated by Barbara M. Meyer of rural Wakefield, and Hilda Mittelstadt of Laurel, collided Thursday afternoon about two miles north of Wayne on Highway 15.

According to the Wayne County sheriff's office, the accident occurred about 5:15 when the Mittelstadt auto struck the rear end of the Meyer car as it was preparing to make a left turn. No one was injured in the accident, according to the sheriff's office.
