

Local Merchants Mumble Through 'Exchange Week'

By SANDRA BREITKREUTZ
Dresses that are too big, coveralls that are too small, shirts the wrong color, airplanes that don't fly, dolls with two left legs, games with missing pieces, fruit dishes with chipped feet, diamond bracelets that pinch and accessories that are just plain atrocious—it's all part of exchange week.

Merchants throughout the nation annually put down their competitive arms and cry together during the week between Christmas and New Year's when Christmas gifts, which for one reason or another aren't right, are brought in for exchange or refund.

And Wayne is no exception. Although most exchanges are taken care of in that one week, one local clerk noted that last year a lady waited until Easter to bring in a Christmas dress. "Sure, we exchanged it."

Clerks and businessmen in Wayne are pretty much in accord about one thing—exchanges have been easier this year.

"People have been more congenial than in previous years," noted more than one merchant. "They don't seem to have that chip on their shoulders as in some years."

There are fewer actual refunds, with most customers finding replacements for the articles they don't want, the merchants report.

One husband, who had guessed incorrectly about his wife's size, brought the little lady in last week to exchange a Christmas dress and they both had a fine time picking out a replacement. "They ended up with two instead of one," said the clerk.

When asked to recall if there were any really humorous incidents related to exchanges in his store, the owner replied, "I don't see anything humorous about exchanges unless it is watching someone with an armload of returns walking past my door toward another business place. Actually," he continued, "most of our exchanges have to do with factory malfunctions or toys that don't work as advertised."

"Sometimes," he added, "a customer will bring in an article for refund, swearing it was purchased at our store, and only after he has left will we find a competitor's price tag on it."

It's all part of exchange week. One clothing retailer in Wayne is still waiting for a size 40 husband to bring in a sport jacket for exchange. It seems the wife came in before Christmas, found a style and color she liked and said, "Wrap it up."

"But," protested the clerk, "this coat is a size 50. Your husband wears a 40."

"It doesn't matter," she said, "he'll exchange it anyway." And her mind could not be changed, even though the clerk could not guarantee to get that specific article in the correct size even on a special order. The clothing store simply could not please another male customer.

The store refused to refund his money on a shirt which had been purchased out of town, although they did offer to exchange it for one of their own. (The shirt was of a brand they carried, but had not been included in their line).

This arrangement did not suit the customer, and he lingered about the store 45 minutes, trying his pitch on two other clerks before giving up.

It wasn't a total loss for him, however. He did get a refund on the underwear he had brought in.

Two local clerks are still wondering if Housewife X ever found a white dress shirt for her husband. She had come into the store prior to Christmas and said, "I don't know his size, but if you'll open the package and let me try some on, I'll be able to tell when I come to one that will fit him."

She couldn't understand why the store policy couldn't allow such a practice.

Many of the exchanges and refunds are probably made by wives whose well-meaning husbands have thoughtfully picked out a garment which is only three or four sizes off.

"It is fun to watch some of the men try to pick out something for their wives," commented one clerk. "They will say: 'She's about your size (5'11") and weighs about 95 pounds.'" Sure, Mister!

It is agreed that women, who also do most of the original purchasing, get to do the biggest share of the exchanging. Most items are returned because of error in size. A few items are returned because of duplication in gifts. And others came back because of factory error in assembly or packing.

An estimated one-half to one per cent of Christmas gifts are returned or exchanged, according to several Wayne merchants. And that's not too bad, except that if this happens to be a million dollar Christmas, that means $1,000 worth of records to be altered, canceled, rung up and changed by Wayne merchants.

Still, perhaps those involved in the exchange game are not so bad off after all.

Consider the fellow who received the fuchsia angora slippers from Aunt Minnie—and he's allergic to angora. Or Cousin Sue, who two days after having all her lower teeth pulled, opened the six-pound package of homemade peanut brittle. Or Jane, whose cousin Cleo crocheted a bright red bath set for Jane's new lavender and pink bathroom. Yup, it could be worse.

IT'S BACK TO THE SHELVES for local clerk Norma Roland with merchandise exchanged or returned since Christmas.

'My wife says this size 40 is a bit big so can I exchange it for size 12?'

LH Grad Co-Authors Book

A graduate of Laurel High School is the co-author of a new book outlining the history of the Nebraska Democratic Party.

Helping write the 450-page book titled "Shall the People Rule?" was Jim Pedersen, a native of Laurel and a recent graduate from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Assisting with the writing task was Kenneth Wald of Lincoln, also a recent UN-L graduate.

The book tells the story of the Nebraska Democratic Party from its birth in pre-Civil War days up to contemporary times.

"It is the closest we have to providing an up-to-date political history of our party," said Hess Dvas, chairman of the state Democratic Party.

"We feel that Pedersen and Wald have done a masterful job in comprehensively and objectively telling the story of the Nebraska Democratic Party," he added.

The book explores the political growth of the state and the role of the Democratic Party in that growth. A broad focus of national events and their impact is presented but does not overshadow unique local issues.

Among the Democratic leaders covered in the book are the fiery and intense men from Nebraska who rose to national prominence, including J. Sterling Morton, William Jennings Bryan, Gilbert Hitchcock and Charles Bryan. The narrative brings the history of the party up to the present with leaders such as Frank Morrison and J. James Exon.

The authors were both Phi Beta Kappa and members of Innocentis, the senior men's honorary at UN-L.

Pedersen, son of Mrs. Ruby Pedersen of Wayne, received a BA in history and journalism. As an undergraduate he was editor of the Daily Nebraskan, campus newspaper. He is currently a student at Harvard Law School. This book is available from the Democratic State Headquarters in Lincoln.

Keeping Flames Under Control

WINSIDE FIRE CHIEF George Voss, left, directs action in controlling the flames in a house fire which killed Etsei Wilson, 86, of Winside. The retired rural mail carrier was found dead at the east door of the home when fire fighters broke into the burning home early Friday morning. For the story on the fire, turn to page eleven of the first section.

Dig Right In

OH BOY! CHILL! Jeff Coble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Coble of Wakefield, digs right in at the Wakefield chili feed Friday night. Over 500 people joined Jeff during the one-day feed with the $400-plus profit going to the fund drive for construction of the new Wakefield nursing home. The drive has raised some $85,800 to date. Persons working for construction of the facility are awaiting the federal government's decision on the request for a grant and loan to help build it.

Exon Gives Okay for Construction at WSC

Governor J. James Exon has approved a $964,690 construction contract for an applied arts building at Wayne State College.

The building will provide facilities for the industrial education department, home economics department and safety education department of the applied arts division of the School of Science and Technology at Wayne State.

Dr. W. A. Brandenburg, president of Wayne State, said the building should be completed in time for the fall term of the 1974-75 school year.

The building will be T-shaped, with the top of the T one-story and the stem of the T two-story, he said. It will be located on the site of the old commerce and arts building.

The program which will be housed in the building are currently housed in the industrial arts building, according to Dr. Brandenburg. A 1969 engineering study by a state commission concluded that no money should be spent in remodeling that building, he said.

In addition to construction costs, equipment costs, fees and contingency costs will bring the total project cost to $964,690, according to Wayne State officials.

State Forces Hoskins To Close Town Dump

The state has ordered Hoskins to shut down its operation of the town dump.

The dump was closed as of Jan. 1 due to what the state labels as air pollution, said Herman Opler, village board member.

According to Opler, the two-acre tract of land located about a mile southwest of the village was used to burn rubbish. Because of the burning and the lack of a sanitary landfill operation, he said, the town was forced to close the dump.

"A hauler from Norfolk will offer the residents the service of collecting garbage," Opler pointed out, "but it will cost about $3.50 a month." Previously, the dump was open to any residents without cost.

When Hoskins received the warning from the state to start a landfill operation or close down the present site, Hoskins' officials felt that the added expense of purchasing a 10-acre tract of land, buying a bulldozer and hiring a man to do the work would cost the town more than it was worth.

"The present cost of hiring a bulldozer to clean up the dump average $350 a year," said a city official.

"Some may like this new type of service," Opler added, "but on the other hand others may not."

Carroll, Winside Girls Tops in Herald's Annual Christmas Coloring Contest

Two pretty little girls won top prizes in The Wayne Herald's annual Christmas coloring contest.

Winners of the $5 cash prizes were Karen Longe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Longe of Carroll, in the division for youths in kindergarten through third grade and Darla Janke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Janke of Winside, in the division for youths in fourth through eighth grade.

Their coloring efforts on Christmas greeting advertisements which appeared in a recent issue of the newspaper were judged best of 63 submitted by youngsters from Winside, Hoskins, Norfolk, Carroll, Wakefield, Dixot and Wayne.

The 63 entries is nearly double the number submitted last year. Taking second place prize of $2 in the division for younger kids was Alice George, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold George of Dixon. Susan Lindner won the $1 prize for third place. She is the daughter of Wayne residents Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lindner.

Bonnie Halsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Halsey of Wayne, won second prize for the older youths. Taking third prize was a Winside boy, Bradley Thies, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thies.

The contest is sponsored every Christmas by the newspaper, offering youngsters in the area a chance to test their creative abilities during their vacation from school.

Plattsmouth Captures WSC Tourney; Blue Devils Take 3rd in Overtime

By BOB BARTLETT
Four Plattsmouth Blue Devils rolled into double figures Tuesday night to pace their team to the championship win at the Wayne State Holiday Basketball Tournament over a strong West Point-Central Catholic club, 57-44.

Dave Rhylander's 18 points started the cascade and Dan Gradoville (both men placed on the all-tourney team) shot in 13, Scott Linder hit 12 and Joe Peltzmeier collected 10 in what first looked like a one-sided affair.

Plattsmouth jumped out to a 15-9 first period lead, but the West Point club whittled away to cut the lead to two, 26-24, at halftime.

Central Catholic's Joe McGill, also named to the all-tourney team, started rimming the hoop in the first half to power his club from an eight-point deficit to within two.

It wasn't until three minutes into the third quarter that Plattsmouth regained control of the game and fired out to a six-point lead, 40-34, at the end of three quarters of play.

The Blue Devils, playing controlled ball, began to slow things up mid-way through the fourth, forcing the Bluejays to foul to get the ball.

But the razzle-dazzle of the Blue Devils allowed the team to move out to a 10-point lead with a 1:50 left in the game and finally a 13-point bulge.

It was a combination of Rhylander's inside shooting and Gradoville's layups that enabled the Plattsmouth five to take command of the game.

On the other side of the court, McGill became the inside and outside shooter for the CC club, hitting from 20-25 feet out and breaking inside for the easy two-point play. He ended with 16 points.

The only other Bluejays to hit above 10 points was Tom Ridder, choice for the honorable mention team, who knocked in 12 points and grabbed 20 rebounds.

Wayne Takes 3rd
There must be some kind of happy hex about Wayne High and Wayne State teams — they seem to have the knack of winning in overtime.

In the second game Tuesday evening, the local Blue Devils boosted their record to 6-3 with a come-from-behind win over Hartington Cedar Catholic, 61-58, to claim third place in the WSC tourney.

Six-foot three senior Roger Saul put Wayne into an overtime situation when he hit the net from 15 feet out to knot the game at 56-56.

The nearly packed Rice Auditorium lit up when Saul, "praying that it would go in," sunk the shot before the buzzer sounded.

After the jump Wayne gained control of the game when Saul — named to the first team selections — scored two points.

Center Larry Shupe then banged in two more for a 60-56 lead before the Trojans scored. A foul-by-guard Marty Hansen put a doomed look on Coach Bill Sharpe's face, but the 11 conversion attempt by a Hartington player failed and Wayne took over the ball.

Later, Scott Ehlers was fouled, sending him to the line with another 11 situation. This time Ehlers, who also placed on the honorable mention five, dropped his first to put away the game.

"I think our mid-court press with about 3:39 left in the last quarter really helped us," confessed Sharpe. "The team really began to pick up."

Sharpe admitted his offense looked rugged in the first half with the home squad trailing by 10-6 after the first period and 24-19 at the half.

One of the noticeable changes in the Blue Devils' offense during the second half was guards Scott Ehlers, Marty Hansen, Doug Sturm and Tod Bigelow.

"We started using them more often to get the ball in," Sharpe noted as his team proudly displayed the third-place trophy in the dressing room.

Wayne's man-to-man defense kept the club in the game, holding down Hartington's big men, except for Larry Uhling who popped in 26 points for the night's high.

"We just couldn't stop the big man," Sharpe explained. "We could stop most of the other men, but we didn't do the job on him."

The head coach was pleased with his team's performance during all three nights of tournament play. "We got a chance to meet some good teams," he said, referring to Plattsmouth and Hartington Cedar Catholic.

Friday night, the Blue Devils in another come-from-behind attempt, fell short against Plattsmouth.

It seemed like playing catchup ball became a regular for the home squad as Plattsmouth mauled the locals for a 18-8 first period lead.

Wayne rallied to within seven, 31-24, at intermission before coming on strong in the third period to trail 44-47.

After gaining a 48-46 lead the Blue Devils faltered, allowing Coach Rich McGill's Plattsmouth team to chalk up the win, 61-55.

The first two nights of play when Wayne defeated Walthill and dropped its contest to Plattsmouth weren't without their share of bad moments.

Both guard Randy Nelson and forward Bill Schwartz were put out of action, with Nelson twisting his ankle and Schwartz receiving a hip injury.

"I could have used Randy tonight," Sharpe said after Tuesday's win, "but I wanted to give him more time to rest, especially for the Madison game this Friday."

As for Schwartz, the 6-1 junior still remains in doubt. "I don't know how long it will take for this type of injury to heal," Sharpe said. "I just hope it doesn't take over two weeks."

Tourney Results
In other tournament action Tuesday night, Plainview won fifth place with a 54-53 win over West Point High.

Pirate Jeff Hoffman was the game-saver when he converted one foul shot after the buzzer sounded to end the game.

Tied at 53-all, the 6-2 senior was fouled and sent to the charity stripe with no time left on the clock.

Before the Saturday storm forced postponement of the final day of the tournament, the first two days of action saw West Point CC, Hartington CC, Plattsmouth and Wayne advance.

Wayne toppled Walthill, 64-54, Plattsmouth downed West Point High, 70-51, Hartington edged Plainview, 58-50, and West Point CC hit Laurel, 68-62, Thursday.

Friday, West Point CC nipped Hartington CC, 53-49, while Plattsmouth edged by Wayne, 71-55, to send the winners into the final stage of the tourney.

Over on the consolation championship side, Laurel lost its second game of the three-day meet, 59-50, to Plainview and West Point High nudged Walthill, 55-44, putting the winners in the consolation championship bracket.

The game between Laurel and Walthill for Seventh place was canceled giving Walthill the win.

Laurel was forced to drop out of the tourney so the Bears could compete in the Northeast Nebraska Activity Conference Tournament in Creighton.

Two Wayne Men, Bear Player Tourney Picks

Two Wayne players and a Laurel man were among the 12 placed on the all-tournament team and the honorable mention squad selected Tuesday night during the final rounds of the Wayne State Holiday Basketball Tournament.

Blue Devil Roger Saul was the only area player to make the all-tourney team of seven.

According to Wayne State head basketball coach Ron Jones, the WSC coaching staff, officials and several Wayne residents who picked the teams decided that seven men would be placed on the all-tourney team due to the "abundant talent" in the tournament.

Saul, noted for his team scoring and clutch plays in the consolation championship game against Hartington Cedar Catholic, received a certificate praising his basketball talents.

Plattsmouth was represented by Dave Rhylander and Dan Gradoville, who guided their club to the championship win.

Other men selected to the first team were: Kevin Roach, Plainview; Larry Uhling, Hartington Cedar Catholic; Len Adams, West Point High School; and Joe McGill, West Point Central Catholic.

In second team honorable mention, another Blue Devil, Scott Ehlers, was placed on the five-man squad along with Laurel's Keith Olsen. Making up the rest of the selection were Jeff Gilpin, Walthill; Tom Ridder, West Point Central Catholic; and Kevin Ankeny, Hartington Cedar Catholic.

Laurel Ousted In NENAC Tournament

The Laurel Bears dropped their sixth game against two wins Tuesday night when they lost to Creighton, 71-52, in the first round of the Northeast Nebraska Activity Conference Tournament at Creighton.

Coach Joel Parks' club led by four at the end of the first quarter but fell back at the half by the same margin. From then on, the Bulldogs coasted to the win.

Keith Olsen was the team's leading scorer with 18 points, followed by Gene Sarha with 13. No other statistics were available.

Participating in the tourney were teams from O'Neill, Crofton, Neligh, Plainview, Randolph, Pierce, Creighton and Laurel.

Waterfowl Population Down 170,000 in 1972

Nebraska's December waterfowl population was down considerably from the same period last year, according to surveys conducted the week of Dec. 10 by Game and Parks Commission field personnel.

The Nebraska survey was part of a nationwide effort to estimate goose populations, with similar counts being conducted simultaneously in each state. In Nebraska, the counts were made by both aerial and ground observations and included both ducks and geese.

Statewide, an estimated 205,000 ducks were on hand, about 170,000 fewer than at the same time in 1971. Waterfowl biologists attributed the lower count to cold weather, which was unusually severe and much earlier than normal. The weather caused much of the state's water to freeze early, concentrating ducks on the few remaining open areas. Hunting pressure also focused on these few open areas and pushed the birds farther south.

During the same period, an estimated 11,500 geese were in the state. Comparison with last year cannot be made, since goose populations were on the move during the 1971 survey, making an accurate count impossible.

Largest concentrations of ducks in Nebraska during this year's count were 70,000 birds in Scotts Bluff County, 95,000 on the southwest reservoirs, 16,000 in the central Platte Valley, and 19,000 in the eastern Platte Valley. About 8,500 geese were congregated along the North Platte River.

A similar survey of the nation's waterfowl is scheduled for the week of Jan. 7.

Siefkes' 26-point Barage Paces Wildcats in Tournament Victory

Wayne State basketball players and coaches certainly had cause for a Happy New Year's Eve, for two reasons. One reason was their repeat championship in the WSC Holiday Tournament. The other was the manner of that victory.

The Wildcats battled Culver-Stockton to an overtime 92-83 decision Sunday afternoon after a see-saw struggle which had the score tied many times, including the end of both halves.

In the stretch, superior Wayne bench strength proved the difference. Culver-Stockton lost 10 regulars late in the second half by fouls, and Wayne lost Denny Siefkes early in overtime. But Wildcat reserves rose to the task and for the first time roomed to a big lead.

Coach Ron Jones declared afterwards, "That's the way we knew they could play a full game. Siefkes looked like he did last year, and everybody stuck right in the game all the way."

Siefkes scored a season-high 26—exactly his average of last year—and four other Wildcats rounded out the attack with double-figure points: Tom Erwin and Chuck Collins at 14, Jeff Pilbeam and Jon Harvey at 13. Harvey's points included 11 free throws on 11 attempts, a major factor in Wayne's amazing 24-26 performance at the charity line.

The Cats also blazed a fine field shooting mark of 53 per cent. That's a welcome change after some earlier games when they shot poorly from the field and the free throw line.

It was a pity that so few spectators—maybe 200—saw the spectacle, played Sunday afternoon instead of the scheduled Saturday night because of the Saturday blizzard.

All high school games on the Saturday chart were postponed. State rules prohibit high school sports on Sunday, and the New Year's holiday Monday dictated the long delay till Tuesday.

However, the consolation college game was played Saturday, and a couple hundred hardy fans witnessed a scoring spree as hot and fast as the wind outside was cold and blustery.

Upper Iowa College of Fayette to knof the score. In overtime Wayne led twice and Culver-Stockton caught up twice before Wayne raced to an 83-77 edge with two minutes left. Before time ran out, the victors had scored four field shots and 11 of 12 throws in the overtime.

In first round college games, Wayne beat Missouri Valley, 107-69, and Culver-Stockton downed Upper Iowa, 82-76. Bushkowsky hit 27 in that game for an all time record tourney total of 89.

Jeff Stolberg of Culver-Stockton combined 19 and 34 points for the second highest total of 53 while Siefkes of Wayne added 19 and 34 for 46. Clarence May of Culver-Stockton 15 and 28 for 43.

The college title game treated spectators to a nerve-stretching fustle. Tied at the half, 34-34, and tied again at the end of regulation time, 73-73, the teams traded leads numerous times.

Culver-Stockton owned the advantage more often than the hosts and opened a seven-point spread soon after the half. Then Siefkes found the range for 16 points while six mates helped balance a catch-up attack.

Culver-Stockton leading 73-71, Wayne's Jon Harvey went to the free throw line and hit a pair

Wanted: Nominations For OYF-R Honor

Want to give some young farmer in the Wayne area recognition for his hard work in agriculture both on his farm and off?

Last year the honor went to Dick Sorenson, a swine producer northwest of Wayne.

Winner of the local competition and his wife will receive a free trip to the state competition, scheduled for Gering on Feb. 3.
Nominations are due as soon as possible, according to Bill Workman, a local Jaycee helping head up this year's competition. Deadline for nominations having names of local entries in Gering is Jan. 26, he said.
Anybody wishing more information about the competition may contact either Workman or Sorenson.

Mexican Fiesta Party

A Mexican fiesta party is fun to give and guests always enjoy the easy, light and mood that goes with a fiesta. This is a good party for the outdoors and Mexican decorations are both inexpensive and colorful. Use brightly colored table cloths and paper flowers for a big, splashy effect. There are also paper plates available in colorful designs which are decorative and also will cut down on your clean-up problems.

quantities to feed large groups. You will want to make a meat filling for the taco shells and then have small bowls of shredded lettuce, cheese and

You might even have one of the Mexican pinatas hanging. For those of you unfamiliar with the pinata, this is a big clay pot covered with cardboard and tissue paper and shaped like an animal, flower or any number of things. This clay pot is filled with fruits, candies and small unbreakable gifts and hung from a rope, possibly from a tree limb. Each guest is blindfolded and given a stick to break the pinata while the other guests try to swing it out of his reach. When someone finally breaks the pinata there is a shower of party favors. These are generally used for children's parties but we think it would be fun for any age group.

TODAY'S TACOS
1 pound ground beef
1 medium onion, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 to 1 teaspoon chili powder
10 or 12 taco shells
2 medium tomatoes, seeded, chopped and drained
Shredded lettuce
1 8-ounce package shredded cheddar cheese

Suggest your guests wear Mexican-type apparel to fit the theme of your party. The boys might wear white pants and perhaps they can devise some sort of serapes, sombreros or even a fake mustache. The girls might wear ruffled blouses and full Mexican-type skirts. Invitations for your party might read, "Come South of the Border to the Hacienda of (Last Name). Bring your guitar or any other type of instrument to add to the festivities. Prizes for all." Address your invitations as Senor for the boys and Senorita for the girls.

SCRAMBLED EGGS CORTEZ
8 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter

You'll want your menu to be typical of Mexico and the main ingredients of almost any Mexican food includes tomatoes, chili peppers and corn. Mexican food was derived from the Aztecs or Spaniards. In fact, did you know that the Spaniards were responsible for introducing eggs from the domestic hen as food? Corn, too, plays a very large part in Mexican cookery as it forms the basis for tortillas, tamales, tacos and all the familiar Mexican foods. Tortillas, we are told, are considered a type of bread for Mexico. Tacos are small tortillas which have been filled with various foods, then rolled or folded with the filling.

TOMATO SAUCE
1/4 cup minced green pepper
1/2 cup minced onion
2 teaspoons butter or margarine
1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce with tomato bits
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Dash cayenne red pepper

Tacos, which have been called the Mexican sandwich, would be a good choice for your menu. They are not strictly Mexican but can be made in

When it comes to crossing the streets, Fairchild added, a vehicle may drive across the pavement but not up and down the street.

The fine for such an act ranges from $10 to $100, he said. According to state law, license plates may be issued to a snowmobile, but it must be registered with the Nebraska Department of Motor Vehicles.

Leon Meyer, Wayne County treasurer, said a person may fill out a license application at the courthouse to be sent into Lincoln. "This does not give the owner the right to drive on city streets," he mentioned. "It is up to the city whether or not it will permit such an ordinance."

Meyer explained that if the state grants a person a license then he is permitted to drive along or cross state highways. The driver cannot drive on the highways, Meyer said.

For a 12 membership for two people, Ak-Sar-Ben will offer more than $75 in entertainment this year with such events as the Wayne Newton Show in March, thoroughbred racing, family shows and the Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Show and Rodeo.

J. Alan Cramer of Wayne, Ak-Sar-Ben district ambassador, said membership in the organization is an excellent way to support a variety of worthwhile efforts across the state as well as take advantage of numerous entertainment shows at the Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum in Omaha.

The agricultural society supports scholarships for students, nurses, county extension agents, school teachers, vocational agricultural instructors, firemen and policemen at nearly every university and college in the state and at Iowa State University. That program alone cost $140,000 in 1972.

Last year the organization handed out county fair grants totaling more than $38,000 and 4-H and FFA premiums totaling more than $28,000.

Other projects of Ak-Sar-Ben are the Good Neighbor Awards, awards for newspapers, radio and television, support of the portable Blomquist and support of 4-H camps in the state.

The membership drive officially begins Jan. 9 and ends Feb. 20. Anybody in the Wayne area wishing to join Ak-Sar-Ben may contact Cramer at The Wayne Herald.

Man Who Carried Mail On Horseback Dies in House Fire at Winside

A man who at one time carried mail on horseback to rural homes around Winside died last week in a fire which completely destroyed his Winside home.

Dead is Elsel Wilson, 86, who carried rural mail for 40 years before retiring in October of 1956.

He was found dead just inside the east door of his two-bedroom home when Winside volunteer firemen broke into the house to fight the fire early Friday morning.

Firemen said he had collapsed against the door and probably died of smoke inhalation or suffocation. He was probably trying to get out of the house when he collapsed, they said.

He is only the second person to die in a fire at Winside, older residents report. The last person killed in a fire was Henry Wacker, who died in March of 1929 when a stove exploded after he poured kerosene on it and started a fire. The explosion threw him about 10 feet across the room and he died before medical help could reach him.

Wilson, who was a member of the Winside volunteer fire department for many years and chief for several, lived alone in the house in the east part of Winside. His wife of 55 years, the former Nellie Kaufle, died in January.

Firemen were called to the fire when a passerby saw smoke coming from the roof before sunrise Friday morning. The Winside firemen called the Wayne volunteer fire department to help battle the blaze.

Firemen left the house burnt to the ground because it was nearly gutted by the time they arrived. Cause of the fire has not been determined, but officials said it may have been started by a gas heater or furnace.

Active for many years in the Winside baseball program, Wilson was buried Sunday in the Pleasant View Cemetery west of Winside.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the United Methodist Church in Winside with the Rev. Robert L. Swanson officiating.

Mrs. Duane Fields sang "In The Garden" and "Rock of Ages," accompanied by Mrs. Warren Holtgreve. Pallbearers were Walter Hamm, Mark Ben-shoot, Andrew Mann, Warren Jacobsen, Ed Waterhouse and Waldon Brugger.

Wilson was born July 23, 1886 near Pender. He moved to a farm west of Winside with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Wilson, when he was 12 years old.

Survivors include a half-sister, Mrs. Rose Neary of New Plymouth, Idaho, and several nieces and nephews.

'Snowmobilers Should Stay Off Streets'

But, cautions the Wayne police department, driving a snowmobile on city streets is against the law.

"Anyone caught driving a snowmobile on the streets can be fined," said chief Vern Fairchild. The other extension, he noted, is when the streets are impassable to other vehicles. "But once the road has been cleaned, all snowmobiles are forbidden to travel on the streets."

When it comes to crossing the streets, Fairchild added, a vehicle may drive across the pavement but not up and down the street.

The fine for such an act ranges from $10 to $100, he said. According to state law, license plates may be issued to a snowmobile, but it must be registered with the Nebraska Department of Motor Vehicles.

Local Utility Is 1 of 2,000 Investing

Wayne's municipal power plant is one of the more than 2,000 local publicly owned electric utilities in the nation which plan to invest nearly $2 billion in the Clifford Neese home, Stanhope, Ia.

The Dave Hay family spent the Christmas holidays in Casey, Ia., with the Tom Hay and Jim Hay families and grandparents.

new capital investments during 1973.

The record investment planned in 1973 was disclosed in a survey reported in the latest issue of "Public Power," bi-monthly magazine of the American Public Power Association, national trade association of local public power systems.

"The 1973 budgeted expenditures will set a new record for investment for the nation's local public power systems," said Norbert Brugger, manager of the Wayne power plant.

The expenditures will be up 17 per cent from the record $1.7 billion in capital investments made during 1972, Brugger said. The new facilities will be added to a total electric plant estimated at $12-billion.

Brugger added, "Every dollar invested in electric plant by a local publicly owned electric utility represents an increase in the net worth of that utility's system and an increase in value in a system owned by the consumers served."

Consumption of electricity by the 30 million Americans served by local public power systems is increasing about seven per cent annually. The rate of increase in new plant investment is greater than the rate of load growth because of the need to replace older facilities and because inflation has increased the cost of building new facilities, the power association says.

The national survey showed that capital expenditure will be up in 1973 in every category—$301 million in distribution, $432 million in transmission, and nearly $1.3 billion in generation. Largest proportionate increase expected in 1973 will be in engine generation, with budget project at $72 million, compared with $17 million invested during 1972. Largest dollar amount increase is expected to come in conventional overhead distribution, up from $82 million in 1972 to a budgeted $189 million in 1973.

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786

A councilman's responsibility

City councilmen are elected and paid to do a job. Their constituents have every right to expect them to fulfill that responsibility. Part of their responsibility is voting on issues before the council. Occasionally a situation arises which forces a councilman to excuse himself from the council or abstain from the voting because he is too involved personally to render a fair vote. Excusing oneself from the council or abstaining on a vote is the right of every councilman; however, that right should not be taken lightly, and it should be used only when absolutely necessary. Vernon Russell, councilman from the first ward in the southeast section of the city, abstained from voting on the request, by a local grocer for an off-sale beer license. He did so because of what he called "conflict of interests" and

Worth Mentioning

It's a downright shame that the newspaper can't give prizes out to every youngster who enters our annual coloring contest. Some of the entries in the contest are amazingly creative... and not just those of the three winners in each division. In fact, we doubt if a good majority of the youngsters' parents could better those coloring efforts. Sixty-three kids put up hours upon hours of work on their entries, coloring, painting, decorating and pasting them to make them look as good as possible. Sure, that's no big thing, and their efforts would probably draw a few chuckles from kids their own age. Still, you have to admire those contestants for taking the time and energy to try to do something well... even though some of their efforts were awkward and not too successful. If we can't give prizes to the contestants who didn't win, the least we can do is name them. So here goes: Division I (Kindergarten through third

Some wishful thinking

It's probably wishful thinking, but wouldn't it be great if a host of communities across the nation told the federal government to keep their revenue sharing checks and reduce the federal taxes accordingly. We wonder what the government would do if it received notices from a thousand towns and cities saying that they could get by on their own and didn't need federal money to operate. If each community were scheduled to receive something like $20 million over the year, that would mean $20 million would be available to pay for essential government functions and wouldn't have to be dug out of the taxpayers' pockets. True, $20 million isn't much when you're talking about what it costs to operate this nation over a year, but it would certainly have some effect when the government started paying off its bills. And, who can say that the thumbs

Maybe it's not women's lib, but Gov. Exon is naming plenty of ladies to judgeships

LINCOLN — Women's liberation may have nothing to do with it, but Gov. J. James Exon is setting what surely must be a record in the appointment of women to judgeships. Last week, Exon chose Colleen R. Buckley to serve as Douglas County's newest juvenile court judge. Miss Buckley replaces Judge Seward Hart, who was denied another term by the county's voters in general election. Earlier, Exon had named Elizabeth Pittman to Omaha's municipal court bench and Betty Peterson Sharp of Nebraska City to a district court judgeship. Miss Buckley is a former school teacher who had been handling juvenile cases for the Douglas County attorney's office in recent years. County Court System Starts Speaking of judges, a new county court system becomes effective this week. As directed by the 1972 Legislature, the state has been divided into 21 county court districts with 43 judges to do the work previously done by one judge in each of the 93 counties. Under the new system, a county judge must be a lawyer. The 43 judges were elected last fall for terms which commence Jan. 4. Court still will be held in each county, but some judges will travel to several counties within a district. The new system provides for associate judges who will handle day-to-day affairs of the court in each county. That includes such matters as marriage licenses. The court reform bill also does away with justice magistrates, municipal judges and justices of the peace. Only Omaha and Lincoln will retain their

Who should control public education?

A great debate in public education is raging nationwide—the issue: who's in control, the laymen or the professional educators? But the question is even more basic: Is the state primarily responsible for educating our children, or are parents? The law says parents, but the way the law is bending, parental responsibility seems to end with financing the education. The state wants to take over from there. "The public is losing control of its schools just as it has lost control of many of its other institutions," says Loren E. Klaus, president of Shawnee College in Illinois. "Most citizens are unaware that mass-ively organized and well-financed teacher groups are trying to set school policy under the guise of improving their working conditions." That claim has been voiced, and hotly denied by teacher unions, during teacher contract negotiations throughout the country this fall. And the issue is just as lively in rural areas as in big cities. "The school board has so little real control over how money is spent that it's unbelievable," says Owen Unangst, farmer and board member in Northampton Co., Pa. "But I think it's inaccurate to blame it directly on the teachers union is not an easy one to defend. When I first came on board, we had a very dictatorial superintendent, although he was a good educator. I was amazed at the way the board rubber stamped everything he proposed. But the superintendent we have now is excellent in my opinion, and I happen to agree with him on most issues we are debating now. —Board members don't have the time to do their jobs properly. "There's some truth to that," says Unangst. "Almost all members have other full time jobs. There's talk of making positions on the board salaried, so a guy could devote full time to riding herd on education. But I'm not at all sure that would solve the problem. Who has ever decided just what qualifications a good board member should have?" —Boards operate too much in secrecy. "I've tried to do something about that," says Dennis Barnes, board member in rural Wyandot Co., Ohio. "The times of special meetings were not being made public in our district. That's contradictory to the Ohio law in my opinion, but the superintendent and other board members opposed me strongly in my attempts to get better communication between people, their board, and their school officials." —Board members aren't competent enough to judge whether or how education can be improved. "That's exactly what the professional educators want to be unswayed by the public into believing," says Barnes. "And the typical board member believes it. That is why he will take on faith just about anything the administrators of the school insist is the right thing to do." Adds Klaus, "Boards must realize that educational experts come and go, but the board and the people must live with programs that may be merely fads rather than true innovations." —Board members are afraid to act with the responsibility of their office. "They don't want to make trouble," says Barnes. "For example, most board members are convinced they can't fire an incompetent teacher with tenure. You must certainly care about to do it, you have to take on the whole structure of statism built into the public school system. Boards are afraid to try because they might incur disfavor and lose those nice federal funds." Barnes is a good example of a new kind of school board member emerging in rural school systems. Young (39), well-educated, successful in business, extremely self-reliant after a "root, hog or die"

Penal Reform Hot Topic

A related subject will be hotly debated during the 1973 legislative session, just underway. It is penal reform — a subject which has been under study by an interim legislative committee and a team of consultants. They will recommend to this year's session that greater emphasis be placed on parole and probation and that new physical facilities be built to replace the penitentiary and reformatory in Lincoln. One of two new minimum-medium security (reformatory type) facilities is to be constructed in Omaha and the other in Lincoln. The new maximum security facility (penitentiary type) is to be built in Lincoln. The consultants and state officials have said the new physical facilities are necessary to allow the implementation of programs designed to rehabilitate prisoners. The construction is to be phased over several years, but the 1973 Legislature will be asked to endorse the plan.

Criminal Code to be Studied

Also on the judiciary front during this session will be consideration of a proposed rewrite of the state's criminal code. The key feature in the proposed code — a product of three years of study by a team of lawyers and laymen — will be the classification of crimes and sentences. The way the state's criminal statutes now read, there is a penalty clause

Regional Jails Coming?

Senators studying judiciary matters also are considering a proposal for regional jails. They say the need for this is emphasized by enforcement of life safety code standards which require, among other things, the presence of a 24-hour guard in any jail where persons are locked up overnight. Many counties have objected to the additional expense of keeping an awake guard on duty when the sheriff or his family live near the jail. Lawmakers say the answer may be to have overnight lockups in each county with regional jails supported by several counties available to keep prisoners who must serve longer than overnight sentences.

Under all the plans, a single agency would enforce the laws in all the cities and villages, as well as the rural areas, of counties which vote to adopt the system.

Wind is an invisible, restless act of nature, and only when it comes in contact with another act of nature, snow for instance, can an easily see the results of its restlessness.
Following a violent spell, Mother Nature usually settles down to a tranquil, serene old lady... or until she catches her second wind.
But here again modernization has intruded upon the quiet splendor of Mother Nature. Instead of the quiet, gleaming sleds, almost everyone is motoring uphill and down, across field and through the pasture on snowmobiles.
But you didn't purchase your snowmobile for pleasure. You really needed it. There was no other way for you to feed the hogs and cattle on the south pasture during the winter snows. Or so you told the Mrs.

The Mrs. casually reminded it.
It looked very simple to run while Junior was giving all the younger kids a ride. So, with the entire family for an audience, you began your solo flight.
For years to come the kids will tell what happened. The Mrs. will be a little more direct. The only way you can retaliate it is by repeating the exaggerations of the kids because you haven't the faintest idea as to what actually happened.
The last thing you remembered before getting out of the snowbank was accelerating the gas and looking for the clutch. Then you and the snowmobile went flying through the air. It went forwards and you went backwards.
As the snowmobile has "dead man" controls, it stops the instant you release the accelerator. Otherwise you might really be a dead man, for you certainly released it.
As Junior helped you out of the snowbank he explained that the gas accelerator also acts as a clutch. No wonder you couldn't see the clutch.
The little ski monster sat there chugging and idling as if they were laughing at you.
The next time you were ready for any sudden mechanical maneuvers. You had a very firm hold on the snow-sliding, man-dumping hot rod.

The Wayne (Nebr.) Herald, 3 Thursday, Jan. 4, 1973

So with almost all of the confidence in the world you started around the yard. Well, you knew it went faster than a snail so you just hung on. All went well until you tried to turn around. You leaned one way and the overgrown sled went the other.
There you were in a snow drift again... and the snowmobile chugging on the other side of the road.
Just then you heard neighbor John's snowmobile coming down the road. You hurriedly brushed off the snow and "grabbed the bull by the horns." You saw the family wave to neighbor John as he went by and hoped he forgave you for not turning around to wave. He probably thought you were high-hatting him because you had a new snowmobile. If he only knew the truth.

Yup, with a little determination and practice you were skimming over the snow like you were competing for the Olympics. The next thing you knew the kids had their sleds tied up behind the snowmobile.
These kids nowadays, can't even pull their own sleds up the hill. Why? When you were a kid you didn't even have a sled. You used a shovel or an old piece of tin. Yup, these kids nowadays have really got it made. Or so you think as you pull them up the hill with your snowmobile.

Veterans' Benefits

Questions, Answers

Q. I was recently discharged from service and am now working for a tile setter, learning the business. Is there any way that I can qualify for on-the-job training under the GI Bill?
A. From your nearest Veterans Administration office obtain application form 21E-1990. Fill it out completely and return it to that VA office along with copies of your separation papers from the service (DD Form 214) and birth and marriage certificates (if the latter applies). Your state approving agency (usually the Department of Education) for such training will take it from there and determine whether or not your job qualifies. If it does, the VA will send your benefit checks allotted for such training.

YOU WON'T GET RID OF HEROIN BY PUTTING ANOTHER LOCK ON THE DOOR.

Locks don't make the fear of going out after 10 disappear. They don't stop your kid's bike from being stolen. Or the higher prices stores have to charge to make up for what junkies steal. Get rid of the pushers and maybe you can get rid of some of the locks.

If you have any information about anyone who deals in heroin—a description, street corner, license plate, anything specific—call The National Heroin Hotline. It's run by the Federal government. It's a free call from anywhere in the country and you don't have to give any information about yourself.

The Agent's Angle

by Harold Ingalls

over pesticides — right down to the actual application on public or private land — is the major effect of the new law signed by President Nixon in October.

John Furrer, University of Nebraska extension agronomist, says that although the law provides for licensing of applicators, Nebraska farmers will probably not be required to get a license until 1974.

He predicted that the state legislature will use 1973 as a "get-acquainted" year with the new federal legislation.

"I do not anticipate seeing any (state) legislation requiring licensing of applicators during 1973," Furrer said.

One of the reasons for the delay, Furrer said, is that while the federal law designates definite classifications of "restricted" and "general," definitive classification of all pesticides on the market will take awhile.

Also, the new law provides for state licensing of applicators and there are yet no guidelines set for such certification by the Environmental Protection Agency, the administrative agency in charge of the pesticide regulation.

Each state, Furrer said, will have to submit a licensing plan to EPA for approval, but first the EPA must tell the states just what should be covered in the licensing procedure.

There will be two categories of licenses, commercial and private, and farmers will be qualified under the second category.

In addition, the pesticides themselves must be registered with the EPA and registrations must be reviewed every five years. At any time, the EPA can suspend or cancel the sale of a pesticide if evidence is presented showing that it is dangerous to humans or the environment.

But indemnities will have to be paid to farmers or distributors owning pesticides whose registration is suspended.

Pork Producers To Meet Tuesday

The Nebraska Pork Producers and Porkettes Association will hold their annual meeting at Grand Island Tuesday.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. at the Yancey Hotel, according to Terry Schrick, NPPA secretary, Lincoln.

Included on the agenda for the men's group will be a report on the activities of the National Council by Marvin Garner, executive vice-president of the National Pork Producers Council.

Election of 1973 officers will highlight the business meeting of the Pork Producers.

The women's Porkette group will share Pork promotion experiences with Miss Ann Norman, consumer relations director of the National Pork Producers Council, and Billie Oakley of Goch Milling Co. in Lincoln.

70,000 Bushels

ABOUT 70,000 bushels of grain were being moved from Hanson's Feed Elevator in Dixon last week to nearby wet bins. According to the owner, Dick Hanson, the bins will protect this year's corn harvest from spoilage by keeping the grain stored in air-tight bins.

Fritschen to Discuss Station's Experiments At Area Swine Days

Dr. Robert Fritschen, swine specialist at the Northeast Station near Concord, will present an update in swine housing studies conducted at the Station during three area swine days later this month.

The swine days will be held Jan. 23 at Humboldt, Jan. 24 at Norfolk and Jan. 25 at Ord.

Dr. Alex Hogg, University of Nebraska extension veterinarian, will review the various types of infectious (disease caused) arthritis and their prevention and control during the series.

Fritschen will tell about the Station's studies, including a detailed examination of injuries to the pig's claw on slatted floors and a comparison of the modified open front building with the higher priced environmentally regulated units for growing finishing swine.

Results of the comparison showed that the modified open front building will support performance at least equal to an environmentally regulated building, allowing the producer to enjoy the technology of confinement production at a modest cost.

Swine arthritis is the second greatest cause of pork carcass condemnations in packing plants, according to Hogg. Swine arthritis is also responsible for baby pig losses, decreased pig performance and unnecessary expense in growing swine, he says.

Hogg notes that there are four general causes of swine arthritis: nutrition, disease, inheritance and environment management. Two or more of these factors may be operating at the same time, making diagnosis difficult.

Other NU program participants are Dr. E. R. Poo Jr., animal science professor, speaking on "Pigs and Protein," and Dr. Warren Sals, supervisor of the NU Field Laboratory at Mead, on "Agronomic Properties of High Lysine Corn."

Two pork producers will also be included on the program. Roy Keppy, Davenport, Ia., will discuss pork promotion and the National Pork Producers Association, while Don Marlice, Elwood, will talk on management for large litters.

The programs are sponsored cooperatively by the NU Extension Service and local county extension services and pork producers associations.

Scholarships Now Available

The Department of Food Science and Technology at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln invites qualified high school seniors to apply for scholarships for the 1973-74 academic year.

Scholarships valued at $500 are available on a national competitive basis for the freshman year. In addition, several $200 freshman scholarships are available on a statewide competitive basis.

The national scholarships are made available by the Institute of Food Technologists (IFT) to encourage young men and women to enter the new and growing field of food science and technology.

Food science and technology is a field that ranges from feeding the world masses to leading man in space. Career opportunities for food technologists continue to grow yearly. Jobs exist with food processing and manufacturing companies, governmental agencies and institutions of higher learning.

Any graduating high school senior interested in studying food science and technology is eligible to apply. Application forms can be obtained by writing to Dr. T. E. Hartung, Department of Food Science and Technology, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Nebr. 68503.

Deadline for requests is Jan. 26.

NE Station Tests Show High Moisture Corn Value

High moisture shelled corn stored whole has shown advantages over dried corn in cattle feeding trials conducted at the University of Nebraska North East Station near Concord.

Improvements in gains and efficiency were reported by Walt Tolman, beef specialist at the station, during a two day large feeders short course held at Lincoln Tuesday and Wednesday.

Tolman noted that the degree of improvement obtained with high moisture corn differed when the corn was stored whole and ground before feeding and when it was stored whole and fed whole.

"When stored whole at about 25 per cent moisture, high moisture shelled corn produced an average of two per cent greater gains and two per cent greater feed efficiency than the same corn dried in storage when both grains were rolled before feeding in live cattle finishing trials," he said.

"When the high moisture corn was stored whole and fed with slow rolling or grinding, its rate of gain advantage over dried corn increased to nine per cent and its feed saving to six per cent in an average of four comparisons. Most of this extra performance occurred early in the finishing period," he added.

Plans for a finishing test this winter were told by the NU beef specialist.

"Whole shelled high moisture corn has been mixed with ground high moisture corn in one bunker and with alfalfa haylage in another. It is hoped that one or both mixtures will combine the keeping quality of ground high moisture shelled corn or that of ground ear corn with the feeding advantages of whole stored corn."

a preliminary test with the addition of fine ground lime stone or bentonite, and further studies are planned in this area, he said.

Tolman mentioned heating and molding in storage as a possible problem with high moisture corn.

"In two of the trials conducted during the summer, the high moisture corn was at a disadvantage because it was heating and molding in storage due to slow feeding to a few cattle," according to Tolman.

Trees Grow Everywhere in Dixon County

Dixon County farmers planted an average of 10,000 to 15,000 trees each year for the past 15 years, reports William Yost of the Soil Conservation Service office at Wakefield.

The trees have been planted for a variety of reasons; he said, such as providing lumber, fruit, shade, wildlife habitat and beautification.

Major reason for the Dixon County plantings, however, has been to provide wind and snow protection to farmsteads, he added.

Trees again will be available to farmers in Dixon County through the Clark McNary program in 1973 and can be ordered through the county agent or the SCS office at reduced costs.

Early orders are recommended for farmers wishing to get a variety of trees, according to Yost, and plans should be made during the winter months for spring plantings.

Solve Freeze-Up

Frozen water pipes cause damage and cut profits. Copper, iron or plastic pipe can be protected by thermostatically controlled heat tape. Insulation over the heating tape saves electricity and lowers installation costs.

Pipe protection tapes have pre-set thermostats wired to start heat at 38 degrees. Tapes with a wattage of six to seven watts per foot of length can be installed straight down the pipe, wrapped with insulation and tape to give a trouble free operation at temperatures down to 10 degrees for one inch pipe.

One special precaution in the use of heater tape is to be sure that heater wires do not overlap or touch.

A great variety of lengths are available, from three feet to 100 feet, and tapes must be used in the length as fabricated. They must not be cut, for this upsets the designed resistance.

First National Contributes to 4-H Drive

First National Bank of Wayne is one of 34 banks in a state which have helped "make the best better" by supporting the 4-H program.

The banks contributed $2,410 in the 1972 Nationwide Bank Campaign.

Money received through the annual campaign is used to support and expand citizenship and leadership training programs for 4-H'ers at the National 4-H Center.

Les Curran, retired vice president of the First National Bank and Trust Company, Lincoln, headed the annual bank drive in Nebraska, in which 20 of the 34 supporting banks contributed $100 to the fund.

Funds secured through the nationwide campaign are used at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D. C., for development of programs involving 4-H'ers in all 50 states and Puerto Rico.

The 4-H Citizenship Short Course is one such program in which 450 Nebraska 4-H'ers participated last year. Each year, several Nebraska 4-H'ers also participate in the National 4-H Foundation-sponsored International Farm Youth Exchange (IFYE).

Reservations For Jamboree Still Open

L. M. Wicks, an interviewer for the Department of Labor office in Norfolk, will be in Wayne twice during January to help any area residents with employment problems.

He will be in the Wayne County courthouse basement on Jan. 10 and 24 from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

Boy Scouts in the Wayne area still have an opportunity to make reservations for the National Jamboree scheduled in 1973.

For the first time, the Jamboree will be held at two locations - at Moraine State Park north of Pittsburgh, Pa., and at Camp Farragut near Coeur d'Alene, Idaho. The Jamboree will be held the first week in August next year.

Reservations for the event scheduled for Idaho are still open, according to E. A. Jaksha of Omaha, national Jamboree chairman for this area. Boys and leaders may contact the Scout office in Omaha or local Scout officials for more information about the Jamboree, he said.

Arrangements for the event must be completed in January, he added.

The next national Jamboree will take place in 1977.

Mayor Issues Warning to BB Gun Owners

A BB hole in a Winside post office window has prompted Mayor Vernon Hill to issue a warning to anyone with a BB gun not to use it in the city limits.

"There are probably a lot of kids who received BB guns or air guns as Christmas presents this year," he said. "But I want to caution these youngsters not to fire them while in Winside."

The mayor pointed out that if anyone is caught, he can be fined and have his gun confis-
