New Hospital in Wayne Moves One Step Closer

Now that a $384,000 federal grant has been approved, the only thing standing between bidding for the new hospital at Wayne is the completion of drawings by the architect.

The architect's drawings should be finished sometime early this spring, according to a spokesman for the Missionary Benedictine Sisters of Norfolk, who will operate the facility.

A bid letting will be scheduled as soon as the drawings are done, he said, and construction on the hospital should be underway early this year. Construction would take between 12 and 18 months, he said.

The grant in Hill-Burton funds will be used to construct a 26-bed hospital, which is expected to cost an estimated $1,584,826.

Named the Providence Medical Center, it will be built on an eight-acre tract of land just east of Wayne State College. The land has been donated by the Board of Trustees of the Nebraska State College.

The new one-story hospital will replace the existing municipal hospital in Wayne and will offer medical care to Wayne and the surrounding area.

The Hill-Burton funds will be used along with money collected during a year-long drive in the Wayne area and donations from the Missionary Benedictine Sisters.

Approximately $700,000 has been raised in the drive through donations and pledges.

Congressman Charles Thorpe announced approval of the grant Friday.

NP Attorney Now Partner in Local Firm

A new law partnership is now doing business in Wayne.

The partnership is between longtime Wayne attorney Kenneth Olds and Kem W. Swarts, who moved to Wayne from North Platte last year.

The partnership became effective the first of this year, according to Olds.

Swarts, a graduate of the University of Nebraska Lincoln law school, practiced law at North Platte with Maupin, Satterfield and Dent for about two years before moving to Wayne.

The new partnership replaces the one between Olds and Don Reed, who moved to Hawaii last year.

Olds, a graduate of the University of South Dakota law school, has practiced law in Wayne for 25 years.

Course Would Provide Information on Caring For Elderly Persons

A course to provide training in how to care for elderly persons will be conducted in Wayne if enough persons are interested.

Mrs. Connie Bargstadt, a registered nurse at Dahl's Retirement Center in Wayne, said she will conduct the course if she can get a minimum enrollment of 14 students.

The geriatric nurse-aide who works under the supervision of a registered nurse is a valuable aid to the nursing home and nursing staff, Mrs. Bargstadt said.

There are currently 4,500 aides employed in nursing homes in Nebraska, with the number expected to grow to 6,000 in the next four years, according to a state official.

The training course which would be taught in Wayne if there is enough interest is part of an effort to help offset the shortage of geriatric aides and develop the trained personnel to care for the increased number of persons entering nursing and care homes, the official said.

Developed by the state and the nursing home association, the course has been taught at various locations throughout the state over the past three years. It has been well received and very successful in almost all cases.

A $12 fee will be charged for the course in Wayne, which would be taught at Dahl Retirement Center. The charge is for all texts and related materials.

No charge will be made for use of facilities or supplies during the course.

Certificates will be awarded by the Nebraska Nursing Home Association and Vocational Education Department to those who successfully complete the course.

Persons interested in the course should fill out the form appearing in an advertisement in this issue of the newspaper and send it to Mrs. Bargstadt at Winside.

Those wishing more information about the course should contact Mrs. Bargstadt.

Registration At College Is Extended

Registration for winter-term classes at Wayne State College will continue through next week because of blizzard conditions hampering enrollment Wednesday, President W. A. Brandenburg said.

Students unable to register so far for daytime courses may do so through the morning of Saturday, Jan. 13, at the Computer Center in Hahn Administration Building.

Registration for evening courses will continue until the second meeting of each course. The registrar's office in the Hahn Building will be open until 6:30 for evening enrollment on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights through Jan. 16.

Speakers Named for CC Dinner

Speakers for the Wayne Chamber of Commerce annual dinner, scheduled later this month have been announced.

Guest speakers will be Stan Matzke, director of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development, and George Newton, Fairbury, businessman and president of the development corporation in Fairbury.

Also attending the banquet will be Jim Bradley, director of the industrial development division of the economic development department.

The dinner is scheduled for Jan. 29 at 8 p.m. at the Birch Room in the Student Union at Wayne State College.

To be recognized during the dinner will be retiring Chamber president—Bob McLean and retiring board members Phil Gries, Larry King and Don Mangers.

Also recognized will be Troy Vaughn, local businessman who will be given a plaque for the exceptional work he did on the President's Club during 1972. Major aim of the club was to increase Chamber membership.

New Chamber president Dr. J. J. Liska and new board members Dick Sorensen, Rowan Wiltse and Dale Gutshall will be recognized at the dinner, which will be a smorgasbord affair.

The dinner is open to the public.

Major thrust of the talks which will be given during the dinner will be how communities can develop and grow. The speakers will emphasize how towns and cities can attract new industry.

Reader Survey Planned

Readers of The Wayne Herald are being offered a chance to speak out about what they think is good or bad about the newspaper.

The Herald will this week conduct its first reader opinion survey, an effort by the staff to find out what's right or what's wrong with the newspaper.

"The spot survey is an excellent chance for readers to tell us how we can improve the paper and make it better," said Norvin Hansen, editor.

"If we aren't covering certain events or issues adequately with stories and pictures, we want them to tell us about it," he said.

"But if we are doing a good job in certain areas, we want to know that, too."

The spot survey will ask a variety of questions, including how well read are such features as "Sportsbeat," county agent's column, letters to the editor and the like.

It will also ask the readers to name what things should receive more news coverage and what should receive less.

Other questions will concern quality of pictures, use of guest articles on the editorial page, quality of coverage in such areas as youth activities, society and sports and types of articles and advertisements most often read.

Results of the survey will be published as soon as they are compiled.

However, the surveys will not ask for names of those persons filling them out.

$5,000 Bond Set for Coed For Abandoning Baby

Bond of $5,000 was set Saturday morning in Wayne County court for a Wayne State College student charged with abandoning a dead human body.

Being held in county jail is Dorothy Spatz, a WSC sophomore from Bee.

She is charged in connection with finding of a dead baby in the basement of one of the dormitories at Wayne State Thursday.

A college custodian, William Jenkins of Carroll, found the baby's body at the bottom of one of the trash chutes in the basement of Bowen Hall about Friday.

Swift Action Keeps Damage In Fire Minor

A fire in a basement storage area in Wayne about 7 p.m. Thursday resulted in minor damage, said fire chief Cliff Pinkelman, as a result of some quick thinking by T. P. Roberts, an apartment resident.

Roberts, the chief explained, grabbed a fire extinguisher and started to fight the fire, limiting the extent of the damage to scorched floor joints.

The fire, at the Seymour apartment building at 214 W. Fourth, was caused by inadequate wiring the chief said. A cord from a deep freezer plugged into an extension cord apparently overheated, he said.

Not Very Diplomatic

A Laurel area mother had to have a good sense of humor recently, reports Mrs. Marlen Kraemer.

Her daughter brought home her report card and sprawled over one of the family's chair. After staring mournfully at her low marks she said: "Hey, Mom, how come all the rest of the family is so smart like Dad and I take after you?"

CIP Meeting Changed to This Week

Wednesday's snow storm forced cancellation of several activities in the Wayne area, including the Community Improvement Program workshop at the local city auditorium.

That workshop has been rescheduled for this coming Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Woman's Club rooms of the auditorium.

Dan Sherry, local sponsor of the workshop, said he hopes the workshop will attract a large number of persons interested in improving their towns from across the area.

Major purpose of the workshop is to explain some of the changes in this year's statewide community improvement contest.

The workshop is one of 17 scheduled across the state during January.

Changes in the 1973 CIP

1:30 Thursday afternoon, according to Bornhoff.

College students on all eight floors of the dorm use the chutes to dispose of trash and paper. The material is collected at the bottom of the chutes several times a day and taken to the dormitory's incinerator.

The baby was a newborn girl, according to Bornhoff.

He would not comment on how old the child was, cause of death or how long the baby had been dead before being found.

An autopsy is being performed in Sioux City but complete results of the study have not been released yet, he said.

The arrest of the college coed was made by the Wayne County sheriff's office. Helping the sheriff's office conduct the investigation are city police, campus police and the Nebraska State Patrol, Bornhoff said.

The county attorney said officials are not currently searching for anybody else who might be connected with the death of the child.

Snowmobilers, Driving on Streets Is OK

Snowmobilers in the city of Wayne can mount up their vehicles and ride through the city streets, says police chief Vern Fairchild.

"I was looking in another state book," he said Thursday, "and found out that the state does not have an ordinance prohibiting the operation of the vehicles in the city limits."

City clerk Dan Sherry pointed out that Wayne does not have an ordinance prohibiting the operation of the vehicles in the city limits.

There are still some openings in an industrial welding employment training program offered at Campbell Manufacturing Co. in Walthill in cooperation with Northeast Nebraska Technical College.

Registration will be accepted through next week for the one-month program which began Jan. 2, reports Robert Schirmgen, dean of community services at Northeast Tech.

Enrollees attend class three hours a day and work as a welder for two hours a day, with possibilities for salaried employment as the course progresses.

To register or obtain additional information, contact Robert Matthews, Campbell Manufacturing Co., Walthill, or Northeast Tech at Norfolk.

New to the drive this year will be chairman of the Mothers' March.

Volunteer workers will kick off the 1973 March of Dimes drive in Wayne County this week, according to the county chairman of the drive, snowmobilers to travel in the various cities in Nebraska. In an earlier story, Fairchild said it was illegal for anyone to drive snowmobiles on the streets in Wayne.

Helping Wiltse with this year's drive will be Tom McClain, treasurer; Mrs. Bill Corbit, rural chairman and Mrs. Darrell Heier, chairman of the city of Wayne. Mrs. Gary Pick will be chairman of the Mothers' March.

Chairmen for the drives to be conducted in Winside and Carroll have not been named yet.

The drive in Hoskins will be conducted by Madison County workers, according to Wiltse.

Contributions to the March of Dimes will go to help support more than 100 medical service programs throughout the country.

Some 250,000 infants are born with physical and mental damage each year, many of them handicapped at the beginning of life instead of endowed with a healthy start, according to Wiltse. To meet this challenge, the March of Dimes supports skilled scientists, physicians and health professionals in pursuit of research, medical care and education aimed at preventing and overcoming congenital damage, he added.

Liability insurance for board members and a second consideration of the proposed policy on handling controversial issues in the classroom are on the agenda for Monday night's meeting of the Wayne-Carroll school board.

Also to be considered by the board is a report on the utilization of high school facilities and a list of educational goals for the school district.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the high school.

Senior Citizens Center Might Not Have to Pack Bags After All

It looks like the Senior Citizens Center in Wayne will have a home come the first of February after all.

For a while last week it appeared the center would have to move out of its building at 316 Main St. after city councilmen received an eviction notice from the owner of the building.

But late last week the city was informed that it could continue renting the building for the center on a month-to-month basis.

The eviction notice and then the offer to continue renting the building came from the building owners, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Predoehls of Wayne.

Stipulated in the offer to continue renting the building was that the city pay $150 a month rent beginning last August—$25 more than the old lease agreement.

Also stipulated was that the city publish in The Wayne Herald a retraction saying that the Predoehls did not ask the city to make the necessary repairs on the building and equipment or ask the city to insure the property.

The Predoehls plan on fixing the air conditioning and the leaky roof, according to a letter from their attorney to the city's attorney.

The council will likely discuss the latest proposal from the building owners at Tuesday night's council meeting.

Late last year the council received a proposed lease agreement from the Predoehls which asked for a monthly rent of $175 and asked that the city "keep the premises in good order, condition and repair and clean, sanitary and safe, including the replacement of equipment fixtures, and all broken glass."

Councilmen balked at that lease agreement because they read it to mean the city would

A Double First

MRS. GORDON YUNKER of Wayne scored two firsts when she gave birth to a baby boy Thursday morning. The child, named Christopher Stanley, was the first child born in 1973 at the Wayne Hospital and the first child for Mr. and Mrs. Yunker. The baby weighed seven pounds, seven ounces. Mrs. Yunker is from Osmond. Her husband, from Oakland, is a student at Wayne State College.

Councilmen balked at that lease agreement because they read it to mean the city would have to pay to repair the leaky roof and the air conditioning system.

They noted that it is a rare lease agreement in which building upkeep and equipment repair is not the responsibility of the property owners.

They made a counter proposal to Predoehls, stipulating that the monthly rent be $150 and that the owners make necessary repairs to the equipment and building.

The roof has been leaking since last summer but has not yet been fixed, according to a city official.

The air conditioning unit quit working last summer and a replacement unit was sent back to the company because it was defective, he said. Another unit was never installed, he added.

Although the building is now being offered to the city, the council may have to find another home for the center because the Predoehls said in their letter to the city that they want to sell the building.

Most councilmen agreed that it would be much better if the center would remain at its present home rather than being forced to move.

However, they have discussed possible alternatives if the center is ever forced into another location. Among them are remodeling the garage space in the fire hall, using space in the present hospital when it is replaced with the new facility and renting some other building in the downtown business district.

The center currently has a membership of 413 persons, more than double the membership after the first year. It was in existence, according to Mrs. Eldon Bull, center director.

The center has been in operation about three and a half years. It was started with the help of state funds.

A First and Second

THE FIRST BABY born at the Wakefield Hospital in 1973 was the second for Mr. and Mrs. Marlowe Langmack of Emerson. Named Brenda Jean, the baby girl was born just before midnight Wednesday. She weighed five pounds, 12 ounces. The Langmacks have a three-year-old son, Scott Wayne, at home.

Council Agenda for Tuesday Is Light

The Wayne city council will consider storm sewer and street work during Tuesday night's meeting.

On the council's agenda for the meeting is a public hearing on assessments for work improving the half block of East Eighth Street from Windom to St. Mary's Church.

Also to be considered are specifications on street improvement work on Fairgrounds Avenue and storm sewer work in the southeast part of the city.

The council will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Woman's Club rooms of the city auditorium.

Problems of People Are Meet Subject

The people problems—drugs, alcohol and health—will be discussed during the fifth annual meeting of the Northeast Nebraska Family & Community Affairs Council today (Monday) at Laurel.

The meeting will begin at 9:30 this morning at the city auditorium and run through mid afternoon.

Among the speakers on the day's program are Sgt. Curtis Cockerham of the Nebraska Safety Patrol, who will speak on highway safety in the morning.

Mrs. Jane Ford, public health educator for the Norfolk Regional Center, will speak on the comprehensive health planning programs which are being initiated across the state.

Another speaker will be Dr. Jack R. Anderson, director of medical services for the Department of Public Institutions in Lincoln. He will talk on the outlook for community health services in the state.

Highlighting the morning program will be a panel presentation offering youths a chance to make comments on the problems of drugs, alcohol and health.

About 50 persons registered in advance for the meeting, according to Anna Marie Kreitels of the Northeast Station near Concord. About 70 persons attended the meeting last year, she said.

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786

My aching back!

Workers in Wayne who haven't kept up with recent tax changes were probably unpleasantly surprised when they got their first pay check in 1973. The social security tax has increased again. The tax has gone up from 5.2 per cent to 5.8 per cent. Not only that, the tax will be deducted for a longer period this year than last year. The 5.8 per cent social security tax will be deducted from the first $10,800 earned in 1973. Last year the 5.2 per cent tax was deducted from the first $9,000 earned. And that isn't the whole story. Many people don't realize that their employer pays the same social security tax they do — making the real social security tax rate nearly 12 per cent for 1973. The bad news gets worse. Even if Congress keeps its hands off the tax for awhile — which seems unlikely, judging from recent experiences — the tax will continue to climb because of increases already built into the law. The biggest jump will come next year, when the wage base goes up to $12,000. At that point, the maximum cost to a worker will rise from $631.80 to $702 a year. And that figure will reach $925.65 by 1979 under present law. Certainly few of us would argue about the need for social security to provide for the older citizens of the nation. But how much longer can the taxpayer continue to stand these increases? Increases which are getting closer and closer to a thousand dollars a year.

A closer look...

By Norvin Hansen

Just some odds and ends this week. 'Cause I'm having a tough time shrugging off the lateness of the Christmas and New Year holidays.

George Miner wasn't the fearless Wayne County sheriff as reported in "Do You Remember?" in the last issue of the newspaper. Miner was actually the one and only police force in Wayne in pre-World War I days, says John Bressler. And, on top of that, Miner served as the street commissioner for Wayne.

Our apologies for changing Miner's profession so quickly, but the very nature of the "Do You Remember When?" items make them subject to error. Most of them are contributed by a person who no longer lives in Wayne, but a few of them come from a local lady.

Even though an occasional mistake occurs, they are still one of the best liked features in the paper... especially among our older readers.

That's quite an accomplishment for a person just out of college, helping write a 450-page history of the Democratic Party in Nebraska.

Jim Pedersen, a graduate of Laurel High School and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, is the one who helped write the book. And it's apparently an excellent job, according to the party's state chairman. He called it "comprehensive and objective."

I knew Pedersen had a lot of talent when he was a senior at Laurel and in one of my English classes while I was doing my practice teaching there. I probably wouldn't have guessed then, however, that only a few years later he would have graduated from college, co-authored a book and been enrolled in the Harvard Law School. Looks like he's got a bright future before him.

Workers at The Herald have to remember to bring their own key if they want to come to work a little early those days that Warren Price isn't working.

Price, who went from a full-time employee to working just a couple days each week at the first of the year, is noted for one thing — the almost clocklike regularity of coming to work each morning. Saturday he would be missing here by 7:15 a.m., nearly an hour before most of the other workers. Often he would have one of his job presses churning away before the regular starting time of 8 a.m.

Going to be difficult for the newspaper to get all of its job printing now that he has gone to working a couple days a week. Proof of that is that he had to be called out of "retirement" Saturday afternoon — after his last week as a 40 year full-time worker — to print up some obituaries for an area man's funeral. But he got the job done, even though the weather outside wasn't fit for most forms of life.

Maybe high school teachers don't have such a bad life after all... and students either, for that matter.

The Wayne-Carroll school district students were dismissed at 1 p.m. Wednesday because it looked like another winter storm was in the brewing. They had come back to school after several days of vacation that morning.

Ever wonder who said that life is just one damn thing after another?

Mark Twain is the one who is thought to have made the comment, but it could just as easily be made by some of the people involved in some weird cases handled by one of the nation's large insurance companies.

Consider these claims: A West Virginia man was thrown through a store window by an elephant during a parade one July afternoon... A New York hunter didn't have the last laugh when he left his false teeth on a table and a gaily woodchuck ran away with the choppers... A Florida mother was completely dismayed to find that her young child had flushed a visitor's dentures down the toilet... A Cleveland man browsing in a store got more than he bargained for at the shirt counter when a basketball player slipped out of his cage in the pet department and mistook his leg for a vine...

And possibly the best of all was the Pennsylvania woman who thought the pair of legs sticking out from under the family car belonged to her husband. She announced the readiness of lunch, adding an affectionate wifely pat. The startled mechanic, who wasn't her husband, lurched up, slammed his head against the car and knocked himself cold. Coming to on a stretcher, he began to explain... only to have the ambulance attendants "break into laughter and drop the stretcher, adding a broken arm to the man's fractured dignity.

'Hey, chain gang crew, thanks for your efforts'

Most everybody knows about the Green Bay chain gang, but few ever give a second thought to the other chain gang — the one which makes football games possible. The 1972 football season is over now for high schools and colleges and the suits are already stored away, so it is fitting that sports stories for The Herald when home in the summer from college. A graduate of Wayne High and Wayne State College, he also wrote feature articles for Norfolk and Sioux City newspapers. He is now principal of a North Platte elementary school.

appear in the "spotlight" and it is right that they do so. The spectators come to see the boys in action on the gridiron, and occasionally the coaches draw attention by their antics. But the chain gang is deserving of much credit for the part it plays in the game.

These men, recognized by the coaches for their efficiency, play an important part in the game, and often their sideline yardage would shade the individual yardage made by some of the backline performers. They are agile and do plenty of sprinting onto the field when measurements are needed by game officials. Often, a first down situation may change the game's outcome, so they have to be accurate. Weather conditions are always the same for players as well as officials and chain gang members. The heat lamp and liniments are sometimes needed by the chain gang to care for bruises caused by vicious sideline tackles that bowl them over into the spectators.

These non-praised sideline workers are indeed worthy of recognition for duties well performed.

Wanted: CIP volunteers

We completely agree with the sponsor of the coming Community Improvement Program workshop when he says he hopes the city of Wayne is well represented at the meeting.

Sponsor of the Wednesday night workshop at the city auditorium, Dan Sherry, says there has been a lack of interest locally in the statewide competition the past few years. He hopes that changes this year.

As he says, there are many benefits a community can gain by taking part in the contest. Vacant lots get cleaned up. Store fronts get painted and improved. Park work gets done. The general appearance of a town is improved.

That's what it is all about when we start talking about how our town can be made into a better place to live. Sure, it's nice to get federal and state grants to build this or that and it's nice to just dig into the city till to pay for some improvement that's needed. But it's work by local volunteers who don't ask for pay that can really make a town look bright and friendly.

That's what the CIP idea really boils down to: local work by volunteers to spruce up and clean up. True, towns don't get rich by competing in the program even those lucky enough to win top prizes. But the program is worthwhile even at that.

News of Note around Northeast Nebraska

Readers of the Cedar County News probably thought the newspaper shrunk somewhere between 1972 and 1973.

Actually, the newspaper converted from broadsheet to tabular size with the first issue of the new year. Now the newspaper is printed on sheets of paper about the size of a large magazine rather than on the size The Herald is printed on.

The switch to the smaller size resulted after the surprisingly good reaction to printing one issue on smaller paper last summer, according to the publisher, Rudy Froeschle. Reader reaction was almost five to one in favor of the smaller page size, he said.

Elected during the night will be six new directors to the group's governing board.

A charge of embezzlement has been dismissed against James Brogan, a Madison County attorney who has since been disbarred. Brogan was charged with converting to his own use $500 belonging to Les Rotlier. The charge was dismissed by Madison County attorney Vincent Kirby because of insufficient evidence.

Nebraska Sugar Beet Industry in 1885... The sugar beet industry has become an integral part of the agricultural scene in Nebraska. In recent years when an expansion in irrigation has put more acres into production in the Platte Valley and on upland areas in the western Nebraska, the beet has enhanced its place in Nebraska's economy. But J. Sterling Morton of Nebraska City, who was secretary of agriculture in President Grover Cleveland's cabinet, thought sugar beets were never destined to become a satisfactory crop for Nebraska.

In 1895 Morton wrote to his close personal friend Carl Julius Ernst about the sugar beet industry in Nebraska. His letter is on file in the Ernst Collection in the State Archives, Nebraska State Historical Society in Lincoln. Morton said: "I have yours of the 6th instant, relative to beet sugar manufacturing in the State of Nebraska. Replying thereto, find my views relative to the whole subject briefly stated for your own special consideration."

"The beet sugar factories of Nebraska were started by the Sugar Trust of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, for the perpetuation of that enormous and voracious monopoly. The factories constructed at Grand Island and Norfolk received more subsidies than all the machinery in them cost... Thus far beet sugar factories in Nebraska have furnished to the builders thereof a good profit. Just as railroad construction companies made money in building the lines, so the promoters of beet sugar factories in those two towns made enough out of subsidies to reimburse them for all their outlays and leave a low margin of profit in each case.

"The beet sugar industry in Nebraska will not, in my judgement, reach the magnitude which many people predict for it. More than thirty years ago, in the State of Illinois, near Springfield, larger investments than those in Nebraska were made. For a time all the surrounding country was aroused and beet sugar factories were suggested for nearly every county in southern and middle Illinois. The result was a great collapse financially among some of the best banks and capitalists in the state propinquity. "Beet culture and beet sugar manufacturing will either pay or it will not pay in the state of Nebraska. If it will pay, it needs no subsidy. If it will not pay, the public wastes money by donating to it.

"When Nebraska has a population as dense as that of France, Germany, or Belgium and the women and children of that population will bend their backs over beet plants and weed them all day long at a low rate of wages, it may possibly become profitable to run beet farms and sugar factories in that commonwealth. At present the state has no beet-canning establishments, creameries, and flaxseed oil mills (if they will extend the area of flax culture in the commonwealth), and many other things that are perfectly normal to its soil and climate.

"The brief period of time—only about nine days out of each year—that a sugar factory employs a large number of hands, is much against that sort of an establishment as a permanent promoter of profitable employment for poor people. In his own hand Morton jotted the following lines at the close of the typed letter: "A man succeeds best in that for which he had the most natural capability and so does a state. Corn and not beets, meats and not sweets, for Nebraska!"

Dear Editor: I would like to thank SWAY (Service Men We Appreciate You) for the $10 gift sent me. The group's thoughtfulness was very much appreciated.

I would like to express my deepest thanks to SWAY for the $10 gift which was sent me. It was very thoughtful of you to remember the men in the service. Even though we are close to home we didn't make it home for Christmas. I was on an alert to aid in the burial of the noble President Harry Truman. However my wife and I had a very merry Christmas down here. Thanks to the thoughtfulness of people like you.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank SWAY for the gift of $10. It truly shows that people do care about our servicemen and are showing it by their efforts. Thanks again.

Thanks for the gift of $10. Money always comes in handy, especially after the Christmas and New Year holidays. Thank you again.

Editor's Note: These four men were among those servicemen and former servicemen who were sent $10 checks from SWAY. Wayne County's unique organization which attempts to show servicemen that their efforts are appreciated by those at home. Approximately 20 checks were sent out by the group before Christmas, the first checks to go out since late 1968. Donations from county businesses and individuals made the gifts possible.

It may surprise you to get a response to Pat Oswald's article in the Oct. 23 issue of The Herald, but stories and pictures have a strange way of getting about. The article, "Look into Winside History," was sent to me by Manfred Wolff, son of Carl Wolff, owner of the harness and shoe repair shop. It so happens that I am the person at the right in the picture. I had recently (September, 1923) come as an emigrant from Germany to work for Carl Wolff. I thought it was an unusually good photo.

Since Winside was my first residence in the United States I like to know what else happened since I left there. In 1925 I left Winside for Detroit, where I had a close friend who had secured a job for me in an orthopedic shoe shop. A brother-in-law of Carl's, Louis Thies, who had left his farm to his sons and retired into town, took my place.

I have had contact with the Wolff family right along; his wife, Maudie is now in the Odd Fellow Home in York, Maryland is in Hastings and Norma resides in Chadron.

In Detroit I had a chance to make up high school in evening courses at the Detroit Institute of Technology. My life then took an entirely different course when in 1929 I enrolled as a freshman at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, where I was supposed to be a course in general education turned into a career in teaching my native language, German. I received my doctorate in 1938 and taught until 1947 at my alma mater. Then I accepted a call to the Pennsylvania State University and held a professorship there for 20 years. When I retired from Penn State in 1967 I did not feel quite ready for the rocking chair and accepted a professorship at Jacksonville University, from which I retired last June.

Now you know why I am interested in Winside and the picture of the harness shop. I was fortunate in having Carl Wolff as my sponsor and first employer. He was one of the finest men I have met in this land. I spoke no English when I landed, but, fortunately, Carl spoke German.

Editor's Note: The article on the history of Winside was written by the Pat Oswald. The Herald's correspondents from Winside. The picture Dr. Werner F. Striedieck refers to was of Carl Wolff harness shop in the early 1920's, showing Carl, Werner and another man.

Peace Corps Volunteer Home from Venezuela

By SANDRA BREITKREUTZ

LEE SHERRY looks over some of the articles she brought home for her parents from Venezuela. The basket on her back is used by persons picking fruit.

A holiday "visitor" in the Orville Sherry home in Wayne leaves today (Monday) to return to her temporary home in Valencia, Venezuela.

The Sherry's daughter, Lee, will take an Omaha flight back to the South American country where for the past 11 months she has served with the Peace Corps, conducting physical education teaching courses for first, second and third grade instructors.

Though the Venezuelans think very highly of education, the only requirement for their teachers is that they complete the grade they are teaching. Thus, when the president instituted a physical education program in 1969, he called upon the Peace Corps to provide training for his teachers in this new area of study.

Miss Sherry's classes are held on Saturdays for ten weeks. On week days she observes Venezuelan holidays often get in the way and the ten-week course may take 20 weeks to complete, Miss Sherry says.

"There are two Saturdays which are holidays in February, three in March and two in April," noted the Peace Corps volunteer.

Special complications arise in the Venezuelan teaching program because of the variety of ages to be found in the first grades. Kindergarten is not offered and children must be able to read, write their names and count before they enter first grade. They may begin school at age seven, but it is not uncommon to find students from age seven through 14 in this first grade.

Venezuelan students expect to remain in a class two years before completing its requirements and it is not unusual for a student to be 19, 20 or even 21 years old when graduating from high school, according to Miss Sherry.

The Venezuelan school week is different from ours in that students go to school six days per week instead of five. Because of the number of students which must be served by the school system, one group of students will attend classes from 7 a.m. to 12 noon and a second group from 12 noon to 6 p.m. An average class is 50 students, though some are as large as 63.

Miss Sherry's teaching classes are limited to 40. Lee lives in a residence, one of many private homes that offers room and board. Valencia is a college town, and the residence arrangement offers parents a maximum degree of protection for their daughters attending the university. There are no dormitories.

The family Lee makes her home with also rents a second room out to a group of three university students.

The family is of middle income class. They have one son in the Navy who spent a year in the United States. There are doctors, one son who is a pharmacist, one son who is an engineer, one son who attends a military high school and a daughter who has been trained for a secretarial position. Her parents won't let her work, however. The parents have been to the United States twice. The house is very old and of cement, as most are in Venezuela. It is located in a modern neighborhood and has five bedrooms, a living room, dining room, kitchen and servants' quarters for two in the rear. Everyone except the very poor have servants.

Servants are treated much like members of the family in Venezuela, says Miss Sherry. Their education, and all their needs are provided for them, and when they are ill they are nursed just as daughters would be.

There are many automobiles in Venezuela, and one is very poor if he does not have a television. Telephones are another story, however, and when a family is fortunate enough to obtain one, they take it with them whenever they may move or offer it for sale to the highest bidder.

The coveted second-hand phone, when on the market, may bring from $100 to $300. There are public phones in drug stores and the like where a call can be placed for 10 cents.

The cost of food in Valencia is comparable on the whole to that in the United States, Lee says. American groceries are available at the Rockefeller supermarket chains which are located in all major cities and many of the native foods can be purchased to offset some of the higher priced commodities such as peanut butter. A small jar of peanut butter costs $1. Coke, on the other hand, is only 15 cents a quart.

Clothes are very expensive, and Lee was anxious to do some shopping when she arrived in the states.

"A pair of blue jeans will run you $15 to $20," she noted. "And anything purchased at Sears is very exclusive."

Lee, a 1967 graduate of Wayne High School and a 1971 graduate of the University of South Dakota, has a major in health and physical education and recreation and a minor in social science.

"I filled out the Peace Corps application as more of a lark than anything else," she recalled. "But when graduation came and I still hadn't found a job I was interested in, I began to think more seriously about it," she added. "Twenty-five applicants were invited for a personal interview and of this group, 19 of us were sent to Puerto Rico in October of 1971 for a three month training period," she explained.

Each volunteer commits himself to 24 months in the country. If his skills are needed, he may be invited to stay on or may apply for another country.

"I love Venezuela," said the enthusiastic Miss Sherry, "and if I don't remain with the Peace Corps, I may decide to stay in Venezuela anyway. There are jobs available now, and I've been told that if I can improve my grammar there would be still further openings. I've picked up what is known as street Spanish," she grinned.

"The Venezuelans are a really friendly people; they are very interested in the United States, very pro-America. If there is anything they can do to help me or any American, they are very glad to do it," she concluded.

Gamble Family Comes Home For Christmas

The family hadn't been together for Christmas for 32 years, and Kenneth Gamble of Miami, Fla., decided it was time to do something about it. Shortly before Christmas he called his mother, Mrs. Lyle Gamble of Wayne, and the two conspired to get as much of the family together as possible for the holiday. In addition they decided to keep the plans a secret from father, Lyle Gamble, who was to mark his birthday on Dec. 21.

Dad wasn't the only one who was surprised however, as the surprise visit of another son, Stanley Gamble and family of Waynesboro, Va., proved to be a surprise for Mrs. Gamble also. Stanley managed to get time off from his job, but at the last minute could not get plane reservations and made the trip in a Winnebago travel wagon.

Gambles were especially glad to have Kenneth with them as he had been in Nicaragua putting a sound system in a government building there and had left that country the day before the tragic earthquake. In newspaper pictures he was able to identify the building he had been working in as one with two top stories demolished.

The Gamble children, who were together for Christmas day and Christmas dinner, included Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gamble and Sheryl of Miami; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gamble and George of Waynesboro, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bronzyski, Cathy, Brian and Kevin of Pochant, Ia.; and Mrs. Bronzyski's twin, Lyle W. Gamble, his wife and children, Ruann, Rachelle, Roger and Rodney of Soward; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Taylor, Lori, Lisa and Jill of Akron, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gamble, Jerry, Jill, Joni and Leann of Broken Bow, and Mr. and Mrs. Loren Ellis, Cindy, Dawn and Julie of Wayne.

The reunion also provided the first meeting between the Gambles and their two great grandsons from Miami, sons of Shirley Gamble Press.

Several grandchildren, who were married and have families of their own, were unable to attend the reunion, but the group numbered nearly 40 for dinner just the same.

THE CREEPING HAND... Blue Devil Larry Shupe tries to snag a rebound from Kevin Kratochvil (with the ball).

Madison Beats Sluggish Looking Blue Devils

By BOB BARTLETT

Wayne's Roger Saul had one of his hottest nights Friday night at Madison. Yet it was one night he probably wishes his team could forget.

The 63 senior, collecting 25 points against the hometown Madison Dragons, saw his team pull itself out from a 19-6 first quarter deficit and came within four points, only to lose the Blue Devils' fourth game, 30-44.

Saul, who converted five baskets and one of two free throws in the first half, pounded the nets for 14 points in the second half to lead his teammates in what looked like another comeback from behind win.

But Wayne could not put it together.

"Our boys were just not ready for this night," coach Bill Sharpe said as his eyes focused on the gym floor. "We outshined them but didn't have anyone on the other end of the court outside of Roger to make the baskets."

In looking over the game, Sharpe pointed out that he should have had Saul do more inside shooting during the game instead of the last part of the third quarter and the final stanza.

Wayne started out like it was matching the freezing temperatures hovering over the town.

Madison, playing a 1-3-1 defense, stopped the Blue Devils from working the ball into Larry Shupe for the inside shots. As a result the locals tried to hit from the outside, resulting in six points at the end of the first period while Madison stuffed the basket with 19.

Saul collected four points and Shupe added an inside shot.

Wayne failed to generate Madison's wall in the second period and generally continued to work on the outside. Saul, knocking in seven points, was assisted by guard Marly Hansen with four while Scott Ehlers also stayed on the outside for three.

Wayne was minus the aggressiveness the Madison club displayed. Dragon guard Joe Ray used the team's pick and screen tactics to hit from the top of the key and maneuvered for the inside layups untouched.

Sharpe noted that his offense was "dead," but the defense kept "our team in the game."

Even so the Blue Devils were kept to the outside, the team managed to pull themselves out of a slump for 18 points and trailed 29-24 at the half.

But another cold spell took Wayne out of the driver's seat. Madison, bettering the Devils 11-8, proved that it could get around Wayne's man-to-man defense through their player shuffling.

Although the Wayne quintet shot 41 per cent to the Dragons' 40, turnovers proved to be the scorner. Sharpe's Shooters lost the ball 17 times, with eight of those losses coming in the frigid first period.

This Friday the Blue Devils will appear at home when they host the Stanton Mustangs.

Overin's 30 Points Aids Reserves To Seventh Win

Earle "The Pearl" Overin pumped in an amazing 30 points Friday night, 16 of them in the first half, to lead the Blue Devil reserves to their seventh win of the season, 67-59 over Madison.

Overin connected on 15 shots from the field to score all his points and to take high honors while reserves maintained their unblemished record.

The Madison team, previously holding a 6-1 mark, trailed the Wayne team 13-11 after the first period and relinquished 24 points to the visitors in the second stanza for a 37-29 halftime deficit.

Dragons Koenig and Oswald hit the rim for 18 points each to share the team's scoring honors, with Freudenberg putting in 11 points.

In the remaining two quarters both teams tied at 16 and 14 points respectively.

New Handicap System Gives More Area Keglers Better Chance in City Bowling Meet

Many area bowlers may take a look at the three Wayne men's leagues at the Melodee Lanes and feel that taking a chance in the city bowling tournament Jan. 8-14 wouldn't be worth the effort.

Boy, are they wrong.

Beginning this year the Wayne Bowling and Recreation Association is revamping the handicap system for this tournament to enable the 125 average or above bowler to compete with those who have a 180 plus average.

And the chances are better than ever that such a kegler with a 125 average could win the singles, doubles and maybe even help his team win the team championship.

"We changed the present handicap system of 75 per cent difference of the average from 200 points," said association secretary Harold Murray, "so that every qualified bowler will receive 100 per cent difference of his average from 200 pins." In doing so, he explained, the chances will greatly increase for the bowler with the smaller average to be a winner.

"We did this," Murray went on, "this year in order to attract more bowlers to the tournament."

The association got the idea from the Norfolk area where the bowler started the handicap

Cats' Defense Scares Ponca Before Indians Take Win, 50-33

Winside's shuffling defense put a scare into the undefeated Ponca five during the second round of Coleridge invitational basketball tournament Thursday night before the Indians knocked off the Wildcats, 50-33.

Winside coach Jim Winch saw his club take an 8-5 first period lead with the aid of a switching defense. "We kept Ponca confused for a while," Winch said, "when we continuously switched from our man to man to zone defenses."

Ponca then ripped off 17 points in the second quarter on the inside shooting of Indian center Don Mohr to take a 22-12 halftime lead.

"We continued our switching throughout the first half but they (Ponca) figured out what we were doing in the second quarter," the coach explained.

Both teams started out in slow fashion again in the third quarter with Ponca scrapping out 11 points to Winside's nine.

"We were shooting a lot better this time," Winch noted, saying that his smaller club was still forced to shoot from the outside. The Cats hit 13 of 40 shots for 32 per cent. The Indians connected on 22 38 for a blazing 58 per cent.

Team 2 Captures Tie for First; Beats 3, 64-62

A long half-court shot by Team 2's Don Koeber at the sound of the buzzer gave his squad a 64-62 victory over previously undefeated Team 3 Wednesday, knocking both teams for first place in the city recreation basketball league standings.

Team 2, paced by Bob Nelson's 26 points, trailed by a few points throughout the first three quarters of play before they caught up and grabbed their third win against one loss.

Helping out on the scoring was Kent Lingenfeller with 18 points.

Team 3, also sporting a 3-1 mark, was aided by three men in double figures. Denny Paul had 20 points, followed by Breck Giese's 19 and 13 for Sid Hillier.

In the early game, Team 5 knocked off Team 4, 43-41, to tie both teams for the cellar place in the five team league.

Bob Weisenberg pumped in 23 points for team high while Dick Tietgen added 12 for Team 5's first victory. Both teams hold a 1-3 record.

For Team 1, Dennis Spangler and Mike Creighton had 13 and 10 points respectively.

The first half standings:

Team 2	3	1	1	1	3
Team 3	2	2	2	2	2
Team 4	1	1	1	1	3
Team 5	1	1	1	1	3

Beginning this Monday night, the A League will start the second half action with Team 3 vs. Team 4 at 7 p.m. in the city auditorium. Teams 1 and 2 will compete at 8 p.m., followed by the B League at 9:15.

Freshmen Lose First Contest

The Wayne High freshmen lost their first game of the season in six starts Friday night in overtime at Madison, 55-54.

Madison outdistanced the Wayne team 39-18 in the first half before the visitors stormed back to knot the battle at 51-51 and send it into overtime.

Wayne's Rob Mitchell scored one basket while teammate Ritch Workman hit one of three losses for Wayne's three points in overtime play.

But Madison's Robert Henry netted two baskets for four points as his club slipped past Wayne.

Paul Mallette guided his team mates with 28 points for the only Wayne man in the double figure column.

Strong Oakland Team Hits Wakefield, 67-62

Wakefield head coach Joe Coble forecasted that Oakland's basketball team would be tough. Friday night his prediction came true.

The Knights, backed by two 6-4 men with 18 and 20 points respectively, gave the visiting Trojans their third loss, 67-62.

"They were quick," Coble said, pointing out that the home team jumped out to a 12-2 lead in the opening minutes of the first quarter.

"They could have blown us right out of the tub with their press," Coble admitted, "but our offense adjusted and was able to give them a good battle in the first period."

Wakefield went into the second quarter trailing by 24-19.

Trojan star Doug Soderberg, who scored 19 points for the game, began warming up during the first half as he poured in the points.

Two Trojan big men, Gary Addink and Sam Utecht, helped Wakefield on the boards until both men ran into foul trouble in the second quarter. At that point they had three fouls with Dave Scheel also collecting his third personal.

"Our big men were about to fade out on us," Coble said. "We were running into foul trouble so I needed to pull them out."

The Trojans managed to outscore the hosts by 16-14 in the second period, but the second half proved to be fatal.

Both Addink and Utecht fouled out, leaving Wakefield without any board protection. Their double post men, Doug Waldemar and Jeff Willnerd, just moved in during the last period.

The Knights opened up with a 20 point spurt in the fourth while the Trojans hit 17.

Two other Wakefield men were in the double figure mark. Randy Johnson had 12 points and Dave Scheel, the leading rebounder with 15, had 11.

In the preliminary game, the Trojans were wiped out by a pressing Oakland team, 47-20.

The junior Knights took a 17-7 halftime lead and continued their full-court press throughout the contest to hand the Wakefield team their fifth loss against one win.

High scorer for Wakefield was Chuck Lindstrom with four points.

This Friday the Trojan teams will host always tough Tekamah-Herman before facing Pender Saturday night at the Pentagon court.

Dick H. Schaffer
Mr. NEBRASKAland

Possibly no one thing has generated as much enthusiasm among NEBRASKAland fishermen in recent years as the Master Angler award. This program recognizes anglers for their prowess in catching fish that meet or surpass minimum established weights.

Evidence of the popularity of Master Angler Awards is the total of 1,570 awards issued during 1972. To be eligible for an award, the fish must be caught in Nebraska waters, be taken with pole and line, and hooked, played, and landed by the applicant for the award. Of course, all fish must meet minimum weights and be verified.

Largemouth bass produced the most awards during the year, 341, followed by walleye, 165; northern pike, 159; rainbow trout, 154; perch, 105; striped bass, 104, and channel catfish, 101. Sacramento perch and kokanee salmon are lowest on the totem pole with only one each.

The large number of awards for some species and low number for others can reflect popularity of the different fish or possibly indicate that some weight standards are too low and others too high. The minimum weights for the various species are based on the relative abundance of the respective species, their general weight range, and the degree of difficulty in catching them.

Here are 1972's top Master Angler Award winners, by species:

Blue catfish, 22 pounds, by Ray Volmer, Wisner (Lewis and Clark Lake); bluegill, two pounds, three ounces, by Watly Collier, Dunning (Dunning Lake); brook trout, 2 1/2 pounds, Gary Bergelt, North Platte (North Platte River); brown trout, five pounds, 13 ounces, by Denny Doolittle, no address (Snake River); buffalo 15 pounds, nine ounces, John Strohmeier, Lincoln (Johnson Lake).

Bullhead, two pounds, 11 ounces, Chris Kraus, Chadron (Whitney Lake); carp, 21 pounds, Dale Jennings, North Platte (Maitney Lake Outlet); channel catfish, 37 pounds, James E. Muller, Council Bluffs, Ia. (Fremont Lakes); coho salmon, four pounds, 15 ounces, Harold Rhoades, Lincoln (McConaughy); crappie, 4 1/2 pounds, Joseph Ferro, Omaha (Wagon Train Lake); freshwater drum, 19 pounds, 1/2 ounce, Duke Illich, no address (Victory Lake, Fremont).

The remaining top Master Angler Award winners will be listed in next week's column.

Falls Falling Back
The rock base of Snake River Falls, 22 1/2 miles south of Valentine one Highway 16C, has broken back 10 to 15 feet in the last 20 years, according to Dave Kime, whose father's ranch parallels the falls and river. There's no cause for concern, though, for the rock base, several feet thick, underlies the river for a considerable distance.

For those with a winter year for travel, schedule a stop at Nebraska's largest falls, for the frigid temperatures, snow, ice, frost, and the mist produced by the tumbling waters turn the falls into a winter wonderland.

Since August 1967, when the blacktopper 16C was completed, visitors have mushroomed annually. Some 30,000 people from throughout the United States and the world have been through visitors.

Social Security Benefits Rise This Month

About 140,000 retired workers and their families will get higher social security payments starting in 1973 under a special minimum benefit provision of the new social security law, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk.

People who worked over 20 years in jobs covered by social security but who had relatively low annual earnings may be helped by the special minimum provision, Branch said.

The special minimum benefit ranges up to $170 a month for workers who retire at 65 with 30 or more years of coverage under social security. A couple can get up to $255. Benefits for people who apply before 65 will be reduced because the benefits will be paid for a longer time.

The new provision is effective this month.

Retired people who will get a benefit increase under the new law don't have to apply for it. The increase will be paid starting with checks delivered in early April, Branch said.

People already getting more than the special minimum will continue to get their regular checks.

Additional benefits to be paid under the new provision will amount to about $18 million in 1973 and $20 million in 1974.

Medicare Help Coming for Elderly Persons

People 65 and older who didn't qualify before for Medicare hospital insurance coverage will be able to get this protection starting in July by paying a monthly premium, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk.

Coverage under this new provision can begin on July 1, 1973. Initially, the premium will be $33 a month for Medicare hospital insurance protection. The premium may be increased later as hospital costs rise.

"People buying hospital insurance under this new provision also will be required to enroll for medical insurance coverage," Branch said. The basic premium for medical insurance is now $5.80 a month. The government pays an equal amount.

People who worked enough to receive social security or railroad retirement benefits when they reach 65—as most people have today—are covered automatically by hospital insurance. These people don't pay hospital insurance premiums, because costs of the program are paid from social security payroll contributions of employees, their employers and self-employed people during their working years.

The new provision on hospital insurance is designed to extend this coverage to people 65 or older who have little or no work credit under social security and are unable to obtain comparable insurance through private companies," Branch said.

March of Dimes Proclamation

Whereas, The National Foundation-March of Dimes seeks to give every body the right to a healthy start in life; and

Whereas, prevention of birth defects is the Foundation's paramount goal; and

Whereas, the generosity of the American public has supported this goal with millions of dollars in contributions; and

Whereas, these funds help support a broad range of programs that include prenatal care for mothers with pregnancies at risk, genetic counseling, intensive care nurseries and rubella immunization drives; and

Whereas, the Foundation supports basic and clinical research which probe the causes of birth defects; and

Whereas, even more help is needed, because each year some 250,000 American babies are born damaged in some way.

Now, therefore, I, Kent Hall, Mayor of Wayne, do hereby proclaim January, 1973 as March of Dimes Month. I am certain the citizens of Wayne will do everything in their power to support the March of Dimes in its efforts to guarantee a healthy birthright to every child.

Deadline Extended For Commenting on Discharge Forms

Jerome Svore, regional administrator of the Federal Environmental Protection Agency, has announced an extension until Jan. 20 for public comment on the forms proposed for obtaining wastewater discharge permits by agriculture.

Farms for obtaining the permits were proposed on Dec. 5, with a 15-day period for public comment for agriculture, forestry and fish farms, industry, municipal waste treatment facilities and for wholesale and retail trade services.

The EPA is especially inviting comments and information from persons in agriculture whose operations may have only an intermittent, infrequent or small discharge with little or no effect upon water quality.

Svore said all comments should be submitted in writing to the Office of Enforcement and General Counsel, Environmental Protection Agency, Washington, D.C. 20460.

The Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 require each discharger to apply for a permit, within 180 days of Oct. 18, 1972.

The 30 day extension for agriculture does not apply to the other application forms.
