'Typos' Deadline Near

Readers have until Friday to submit entries in The Wayne Herald's first "Find the Typos" contest. Aim of the contest: to find the most errors in last Thursday's issue of the newspaper. Prize awaiting the winner: a $25 savings bond. Purpose of the contest: to find out how many errors actually occur in one issue of the newspaper and to give readers a chance to have some fun searching for them. "If the winner finds more than 20 or 25 errors, it's going to surprise me," said Norvin Hansen, editor of the paper.

Local Firm's Bid on Work At WS Gets Exon's Okay

Governor J. James Exon has given approval to a construction contract for renovation and remodeling of the physical education facility at Wayne State College.

Bids for the project were received on May 1 at the public bid opening in Wayne.

Wayne State College proposes to award the contract for general, mechanical, electrical and fixed equipment construction to Otte Construction Co. of Wayne, in the amount of $80,378.

Based on the low bid contract award, the revised budget breakdown is as follows: general, mechanical, electrical and fixed equipment (111 lockers) contract work, $80,378; architect's fee, $56,23 and contingency, $4,049, for a total cost of $90,000.

The proposed project will provide better accommodations for the instructional physical education classes, outdoor athletic sports, intramural sports and general recreation at Wayne State, according to college officials.

The remodeling and renovation will be accomplished by converting 7,460 square feet of unfinished (dirt floor) area located in the basement of the existing addition into men's locker and dressing area for the instructional physical education program, a separate locker and dressing area for the football program, an equipment and laundry storage and check-out area (open cage and portal systems) for both men's and women's physical education programs and converting the existing equipment room into an "adaptive physical education area" for handicapped students.

Plant Science, Foods Topics Of 4-H Camps

Plant science and foods will be the topics of the two 4-H project camps at the University of Nebraska, Northeast Station near Concord in June.

The plant science camp June 4-8 is designed for 4-H members of all ages who are enrolled in projects such as lawn and garden, forestry, crop production, conservation and yard beautification.

Anyone in the Northeast District is welcome to attend, according to Roy Stohler, area youth specialist and camp director.

Activities at the camp will include tree and weed identification, a program on safe use of pesticides, field trips to demonstrate the living world of plants and viewing garden displays at a greenhouse.

Club members attending the second camp June 14-15 learn about barbecued meats, nutrition, time schedules in cooking, table manners and microwave ovens. They will also practice cake decorating and giving foods demonstrations.

According to Joycelyn Smith, area home extension agent, any 4-H member who has completed the better breakfasts 4-H project may attend the camp.

Additional information and registration blanks are available through area county agents.

Car Damaged In Mishap West of City

A car driven by Eugene Jensen of rural Winside sustained about $300 damage in a two-car mishap on Highway 35 two miles west of Wayne Wednesday morning, the Wayne County sheriff's office reports.

The Jensen car was struck on the right side by one driven by Carl Paustian of rural Carroll, officials said.

Paustian was attempting to make a U turn at an intersection when he turned into the side of the Jensen car, according to the sheriff's office. Both cars were eastbound at the time of the accident.

Winside Clubs Planning to Fix Mailboxes

Three 4-H clubs around Winside will pitch in this week to fix up and brighten up rural mail boxes.

The occasion is National Mailbox Improvement Week, a little each year when rural patrons are encouraged to fix up their mailboxes.

Winside postmaster Carl Fischer said the week is designated each year to call attention to the need for improving mailboxes so they protect mail from the weather, are neat in appearance and are conveniently and safely located.

Helping fix up the mailboxes will be the Helping Hands, Charmers, N-Farmers and Modern Misses 4-H clubs.

The clubs and their leaders, Mrs. William Holt, Mrs. Dennis Greunke and Mrs. Paul Danberg, will do the work on improving the mailboxes if rural residents let them know which ones need work. Rural residents are asked to telephone any of the three clubs.

'Wayne Is Flood Prone But Hasn't Qualified for Federal Flood Insurance'

Wayne is one of 38 Nebraska communities which have been declared flood prone by the Corps of Engineers but which have not qualified for federal flood insurance.

"Flood insurance is not available through any other source, so unless a community is approved under the federal flood insurance program citizens are totally without protection," says Dennis Poeschl of Stanton, president of the Nebraska Association of Mutual Insurance Agents.

Poeschl is urging agents to help alert the 38 communities which are flood prone to the availability of federal flood insurance.

The program is a cooperative effort between the federal government and the private insurance industry, he said.

Poeschl said that local governmental officials have to make application through the federal government for participation in the program, and that a community can be approved for participation six days after application.

The National Flood Insurance Program was established by the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, which was enacted as a part of the Housing and Urban Development Act of that year. Its purpose is to make available specified amounts of flood insurance, previously unavailable from private insurers, available under federal auspices. The act requires that state and local governments adopt and enforce land-use and control measures that will guide land development in flood-prone areas in order to avoid or reduce future flood damage.

Hoskins Man Found Dead Friday Morning

A Hoskins man, John Buethien, 69, was found dead by his trailer home about 1 p.m. Friday reports Wayne County sheriff's office.

Buethien, a bachelor, apparently died of a heart attack sometime after 10:30 Friday morning, officials said. A neighbor had talked to him about 10:30 Friday morning, according to officials.

Jim Rudebusch, who lives in a trailer near Buethien's, found the dead man.

Congressman Charles Thone has released results of a survey of his constituents which he conducted in March. The results: people want spending reductions in foreign aid, space exploration and welfare. And they want more money spent on such things as preventing crimes, combatting drugs and controlling pollution.

They've Been Perfect

THESE FIVE CHILDREN of Mr. and Mrs. Desmond Smith of rural Allen attended school all year without missing any school, earning their recognition at Thursday night's honors convocation at the high school. All six of the Smith children still in school — there are 14 in all — would have had perfect attendance had not first grader Michelle missed about four days with the flu. Standing from left: fourth grader Randy, seventh grader Lin, sophomore Doug; seated: third grader Dennis, seventh grader Marsha. Other pictures and story of Thursday's honors convocation, page 7.

Herald Writer Is 1 of Top 2 in State

Mrs. Breikreutz was one of only two women in the state who earned a total of five firsts in the contest, it was announced at

Russell Wax Earns Master's

Russell Wax, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ora Wax of Wayne received his master's degree in physics from the University of Wyoming at Laramie Sunday.

A 1965 graduate of Wayne High School, he was one of 1,400 students who were candidates for the group's awards luncheon at Hastings Saturday.

The other woman taking five top awards was Mrs. Rhoda Chaloupka, editor of the Callaway Courier.

Close behind with four firsts were writers for the Omaha World-Herald and North Platte Telegraph and Mrs. Eleanor Sberger, columnist and freelance writer from Cozad.

Mrs. Breikreutz, a new member of the state organization, also earned two second places awards, tied for another second place honor, won three third place awards and tied for another third place.

She won firsts for her special articles on education, a critical review headlined "Crowd Loys Comedy Fare," a special edition, a feature picture and a multi-picture layout.

She earned second places for an editorial and page makeup and tied for second with a news story.

Her third places were for an interview story, display advertising and news picture. Her third place tie was for a feature story.

She competed with other women writers on weekly or bi-weekly newspapers with circulation between 2,001 and 5,000.

All winning entries are now being judged nationally, with results to be announced at the national convention June 14-18 at Dearborn, Mich.

Judging the 200 entries in the state contest was the Department of Journalism at Wichita State University at Topeka.

News of Note around Northeast Nebraska

A queen will be named June 16 during Plainview's second annual Tri-County Farm, Home and Auto Show.

Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce event is Richard Hillrichs.

Winner of the contest will receive a $50 savings bond and will automatically be the community's entry in the Rivercade queen contest at Sioux City this summer.

Winner of that event will receive a $1,000 college scholarship.

The Wisner Piaget alumni banquet is slated for Saturday, June 2, at the community building in Piaget. Honored during the event, which begins at 6:30, will be the 1973 graduating class.

Jayne Winter of Pierce is one of 53 high school seniors to receive a Regents scholarship to the University of Nebraska Omaha. Students have to rank academically in the upper quarter of their class to receive the award, which is given out on the basis of scores students receive in the American College Testing program.

The West Point school board voted last week to hike the non-resident tuition rate for next year from $1,750 to $1,800.

The board also voted to inspect new textbooks before they are ordered because some have "Communist leanings" and have "tendencies toward pornography," reports the Cuming County Democrat.

FFA members around Emerson are working on a rest area located along Highway 35 between Emerson and Hubbard.

board member Dorothy Ley didn't select the Title III project as one of the top seven in the nation. The U. S. Office of Education did that.

As for the other comments, I can only say that the writer is a heckuva good authority on the Wayne Carroll schools. Since the letter was mailed from Winside, I assume the writer doesn't have children who go to school in either Wayne or Carroll. Wonder where all the facts behind the opinions came from? Wish I had access to those facts, then maybe I would write "another meaningful editorial," as the person suggests.

Can't see how Wayne High's stage band can be called mediocre or boring.

Tuesday night's performance at the college was great. . . loud, but great.

That group, which has been sailing along this year picking up plenty of compliments as well as top trophy in a Midwest contest, is really something to hear. The audience Tuesday night showed its appreciation of the band's talent, breaking into several numbers with applause, clapping along during another number and ending up with a standing ovation.

The proof's in the pudding, the saying goes.

With this bunch, the quality's in the hearing.

Nine youngsters around Meadow Grove who took part in the recent tour to Wayne have written the newspaper and the Chamber of Commerce thanking them for the tour. The Chamber lined up the tour for the grade schoolers, who stopped off for a look at the Wayne State College library, science hall and planetarium and The Wayne Herald. The kids say they really got a kick out of the planetarium show and the skeleton in the science hall.

The Neihardt Center at Bancroft has been doing another booming business — during the spring more than 500 persons toured the center.

Nebraska young people are being called on to help raise $10,000 to turn the center into a collection of Neihardt books, recordings, personal treasures such as his gifts from Black Elk and the like. Heading up the drive is the Phi Mu Sorority at the University of Nebraska Lincoln.

The center honors one of Northeast Nebraska's most famous personalities, Nebraska poet-laureate John G. Neihardt.

That Desmond Smith family up near Allen is quite the family — all 16 of them. Parents having trouble with their youngsters would probably do well to find out how Mr. and Mrs. Smith have gone about raising their 14 children.

One thing about the couple, they have no trouble in getting their children to attend school. Five of the six Smith kids still in school at Allen went through the past year without missing a day. The one who was absent this year, first grader Michelle, missed about four days because of the flu. Those going the whole year without missing any school were Dennis, Randy, Lin, Marsha and Doug.

So far, all the Smith children have graduated from Allen High School. Maybe it ought to be called Smith High.

Back to "Project Success." Ten persons returned recently from the educational fair in Washington, D. C., which highlighted the nation's 25 top federally funded educational projects. The Wayne Carroll project for helping youngsters with specific language disabilities was one of the seven top Title III projects.

Attending the fair were superintendent Francis Haun, West Elementary principal Richard Mettler, board members Irvin Brandt and Dorothy Ley, project staff members Mrs. Marian Rennick, Mrs. Jean Owens and Paul Eaton, teacher Mrs. Carol Edmunds, parent Mrs. Vern Jacobmeier and student Jon Jacobmeier.

Stopping by at the Shoreham Hotel to talk with the Wayne people were Theodora Carlson, teacher at Wayne from 1936 to 1942 who is now with the Office of Education, and the wife of Congressman Andrew Hinshaw of California, who is a niece of Frieda Hahlbeck of Wayne.

Finally, some quotes from a nice letter from Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Johnson of Columbia, Md., who sent a check for another year's subscription to the paper:

"Am late getting this to you so have missed a couple of issues of the paper, and we do miss them. We find that The Herald keeps us up to date with Wayne and all our friends. And as always, the towns in the Wayne area. We did see in the past issues that The Herald received more awards for being an outstanding paper. This we knew already, but congratulations to you anyway."

Commentary on a variety of subjects

Some commentary on a variety of subjects, much of it irrelevant but most of it worth passing on.

North Platte has hired an Iowa man who specializes in providing "new faces for old places."

The man is Al Nelson of Red Oak, an artist and designer who will help the community with its downtown improvement efforts.

North Platte plans on painting old buildings, sandblasting brick fronts, putting in new doors, brightening up windows and removing overhead signs. It's all going to be done at a low cost, the Iowan says.

It's much the same thing we've been pushing for in Wayne. We're sure business owners would begin painting their places if they could be shown how much better a building looks by just using bright paint to highlight its distinctive features. The city should take the lead in the project, painting up some of the present drab city buildings. So far, the city hasn't felt the same as us.

The city of Denison, Ia., last weekend finished a project Wayne would do well to copy.

The project: a city-wide cleanup of junk cars.

There may not be many junkers around the streets and back lots of Wayne, but even one or two is one or two too many. City officials could promote the project, offering to pick up the old junk cars at no cost. It would be a good project to undertake.

The Atlanta Braves' home run slugger, Hank Aaron, gets a lot of mail.

But much of it is hate mail — about 60 per cent of it, in fact.

It's a sad country which lashes out at a black man because he is close to erasing one of the greatest records ever achieved in sports — Bab Ruth's 714 career homers.

Says Aaron: "If I was white, all America would be proud of me. But I am black. There are some sick people in this world. Or else I wouldn't get the mail I do. These are sick people who thrive on trying to make other people miserable."

We hope Aaron breaks the record just to make the nigger-haters really mad. . .

Wayne will have to start adding fluoride to its drinking water come 1975. We will, that is, unless a vote says the people don't want it.

The state legislature's decision to make fluoridation of drinking water in all communities in the state is bound to create a lot of furor as 1975 comes rolling around. We doubt if teaching communism in high schools would have as many opponents as fluoridation.

We're glad the state finally got around to demanding fluoridation. It should help cut down the dentist bills.

ART TOPICS

PREPARED BY THE PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE OF ART

Fresco--An Ancient And Beautiful Art

Fresco, which is the Italian word for "fresh," is the art of painting upon damp, fresh, lime plaster. It is a technique which flourished during the Renaissance, particularly in Italy; it was used to decorate the walls of hundreds of churches, chapels and palaces.

No one can say exactly when or where the method of fresco painting originated, but it is known to be a very ancient art. Beautiful frescoes of a high technical competence have been discovered in excavations of Minoan settlements on Crete, and dated at approximately 1500 B.C. Etruscan wall paintings in Italy, notably in Tarquinia, were painted in fresco; and, though no wall paintings from ancient Greece survive, writings of the period suggest that fresco was a standard practice.

It was also widespread in India, the famous cave temples of Ajanta contain large numbers of frescoes, and an isolated group of frescoes, painted between the 5th and the 8th centuries, was found in a Buddhist temple at Kansu, in remote western China.

Roman fresco painting is justly famous, and entire walls of fresco have been uncovered at Pompeii and Herculaneum. It has been suggested that the technique evolved from the practice of drawing preliminary outlines on walls for setting mosaics.

The process of producing a fresco painting is complicated and demanding; it is easy to see why it is not much practiced in this hurried country where time is at such a premium. To fresco a wall, the artist must first apply two coats of specially made mortar containing sand and lime and powdered marble in carefully measured proportions. These two coats are allowed to dry and set. Next, the design to be painted is transferred in outline onto the wall; this is usually done by means of a perforating wheel through tracing paper, much as a woman today transfers a dress pattern. A little colored powder is pushed or "pounced" through the perforation to make the working outline. The final coat of mortar is then smoothed on the wall in only a small area, just as much as can be painted in one day. The painting is then brushed directly onto the damp wall.

A large fresco, therefore is made up of many small sections, each painted in a day. In order to conceal the joinings where one day's work ends and another begins, the painting is planned to begin and end at natural contours and boundary lines.

The paint is absorbed right into the wet plaster by capillary action. As the wall dries and sets, the pigment is cemented with the lime and sand particles; the picture becomes a part of the basic structure, it is not an added layer which may shrink or peel, and thus it has marvellous qualities of color, permanence, and resistance to ageing.

The colors used in fresco painting are made by grinding dry powder pigments in pure water. The ingredients are very specialized; they must be alkali-proof to resist the caustic action of the lime. Long before he begins, the artist must test his colors on an experimental plaster block to check his pigments for durability and consistency of color when dry; this test block must be aged for six months for an adequate check.

Fresco painting was at its height between the 13th and 17th centuries. There was a brief revival in the 1930's as the result of a surge of construction of public buildings in the United States and Mexico. At that time, fresco was taken up by such artists as Diego Rivera, Jose Oroscio, Candido Portinari and other muralists.

Among the most famous and important frescoes ever painted were those which Michaelangelo made for the ceiling of the Sistine chapel in the Vatican. The ceiling took four and a half years to complete and consists of 343 figures arranged in scenes from the Book of Genesis, bordered by large seated figures of prophets and sibyls and pictures representing the ancestors of Christ.

Thone's Constituents Want Reductions in Foreign Aid, Space Exploration And Welfare

Foreign aid, space exploration and welfare are the federal programs residents of Nebraska's First Congressional District would most like reduced, according to a poll taken by Representative Charles Thone.

Over 20,000 returns have been received by Thone from the questionnaires he mailed in March. About three of every four reply cards bore opinions from more than one person, Thone said, so he estimates that he heard from 35,000 constituents.

"My intention was to send a letter to everyone who signed his name and address to the questionnaire, but my staff has been so busy that only a few have been written. I still plan to send acknowledgements when some college student interns join my staff in June," Thone said.

The poll revealed that of those district residents who had made up their minds, 82 per cent oppose any aid to North Vietnam.

Again excluding the undecided among those replying, 80 per cent believe the federal government should turn over more of its responsibilities and financial resources to state and local governments; and 73 per cent favor adopting the President's ceiling on expenditures even though it means cutting existing programs.

With current farm programs expiring this year, 28 per cent of Thone's constituents prefer extension of present programs, 26 per cent desire more rigid support programs and 46 per cent wish more flexible support programs. Among respondents who live on rural routes in Thone's district, 40 per cent prefer extending present farm laws, 16 per cent want more rigid-price supports and 44 per cent favor more flexible programs.

Thone's questionnaire listed 18 federal government activities and asked each respondent to list no more than three activities for which federal spending should be reduced and no more than three activities for which spending should be increased.

In tabulating a vote for a reduction and a vote for an increase canceled each other. A net 70 per cent of the respondents asked that foreign aid be cut. Crime prevention received the support of 48 per cent of the respondents for additional funding.

Other targets of Nebraska voters for budget cuts and the net percentages favoring reductions are: space exploration, 40; welfare, 38; defense, 22; civil rights, 17; public housing, eight; and anti-poverty programs, seven.

Other programs supported for additional funding and the net percentages in favor: combatting drugs, 40; pollution control, 29; education, 23; health and medical care, 18; consumer protection, 15; elderly programs, 15; highways, 14; rural development, 12; job training, 11; and farm programs eight.

The most significant difference in voting between men and women, Thone said, was on the subject of space exploration, with 48 per cent of the women favoring cuts in funding, compared to 38 per cent among men. More men than women voted and more women than men marked the "undecided" boxes.

Rural voters opposed aid to North Vietnam and favored returning government activities to local levels more strongly than did all the residents of the district. Excluding undecided voters, 91 per cent of those living on rural routes oppose aid to North Vietnam, and 88 per cent favor turning over more federal responsibilities and financial resources to state and local governments.

Residents of Lincoln held the same views as the district at large but by smaller majorities. Excluding undecideds, 76 per cent of the residents of Lincoln oppose any aid to North Vietnam and 72 per cent favor turning over present federal responsibilities to state and local governments.

University of Nebraska-Lincoln students participating in the poll did not differ too much from the district as a whole in their answers to the main poll questions. Excluding undecideds, 80 per cent oppose aid to North Vietnam, 79 per cent favor more power for local governments and 62 per cent favor adoption of the President's ceiling on spending.

The programs for which more funding is desired by students were, with the most popular first, pollution control, education, crime prevention, combatting drugs, rural development, highways, farm programs, job training and elderly programs.

Among UN-L students, there were about as many votes to increase funding as there were to decrease funding in the fields of anti-poverty programs and consumer protection. The programs the students wanted reduced are, with the highest percentages first, foreign aid, welfare, space exploration, health and medical care, defense, civil rights and public housing.

Three high school classes — at Lincoln East High, Falls City and Douglas — answered the questionnaire. They favored more funds, with the most popular programs first, for crime prevention, combatting drugs, anti-poverty programs and highways. The programs they most wanted to see cut were foreign aid, space exploration, welfare and defense.

Top Tracksters

WAKEFIELD'S Susie Kober, left, and June Pearson of Laurel, were the only high school girl tracksters to finish in the state track meet in Grand Island May 12. June was second in the shot put with a heave of 37 1/2'. That gave Laurel eight points and a tie for 14th place among the 37 Class C schools. Wakefield scored one point on Susie's sixth-place showing in the 50 yard dash. She clocked a .06 5 in that event. Wakefield tied for 20th spot.

Cats Win District Title

Enid, Okla., here come the Wayne State Wildcats! Defending champion Wayne State did it again Friday night, capturing the district 11 NAIA baseball title with a 13-7 ripping of Dana at Papillion to win the right to represent the area in Oklahoma Thursday.

Three other teams—one from the North and South Dakota area along with representatives from Oklahoma and Kansas—will be vying for the trip to the NAIA nationals in Arizona the following week.

The Cats got great pitching help from Greg Kamp as he whiffed 12 consecutive batters, including nine from the first game with Dana, Thursday. Dana won the right to meet Wayne in Friday's finals after defeating University of Nebraska Omaha, 10-5, Thursday.

In the teams' first matchup with Dana, Wayne rapped a 9-3 score. Earlier, the Cats bounced Peru State, 7-1, on the handy performance of Jack Shupe with a triple and home run.

Those three wins boosted Wayne's standings, going into the area finals 2-1.

Another happy note for the team was the selection of coach Fred Pierce as the District 11 Coach of the year. That makes it three out of four years Pierce has won the honor while at Wayne State.

Allen High's Top Athlete

STAN PERRY holds the plaque he will have his name added to for being named the outstanding athlete at Allen High School this year. The senior was a standout in basketball for the Eagles. With him is Chuck Peters, another basketball star. Both were recognized during Thursday night's honors convocation for being named all-conference in basketball in the east division of the Lewis and Clark Conference.

Illinois Teams Prove Fatal For Wildkittens

A pair of Illinois teams put the final blow to the Wayne State girls' softball team Friday, knocking the locals out of the double-elimination Women's College World Series in Omaha.

After dropping South Dakota State 11, coach G. L. Willoughby's crew found Illinois State and Western Illinois to be a little tough to handle.

The state team bounced the Wildkittens 10-0 in the second game Friday before Western ripped the Wayne girls, 15-4 in the nightcap.

Mary Gerken got credit for the first out after she belted the team's only homer. Susie Schell, who pitched the second and third games, had to get help from Gerken in the second frame of the second contest before going live of the seven innings in the second.

This year the Wayne team finished in the 11th spot after taking seventh last year.

Flooding Reports Deter Tourists

Niobrara State Park in Northeast Nebraska still offers good recreation opportunities, but reports of flooding in past years have apparently deterred people from using its facilities.

"Cabin reservations are down this year," said Willard Barbee, director of the Game and Parks Commission, "and we suspect that many people believe the park is not serviceable, since there are still openings for cabins this season."

"The cabins, swimming pool, camping area, horseback riding, and other facilities are still in operation, and they can still fill much of the demand for outdoor recreation," Barbee said.

English Teachers Offered Survey of Literature Use

English teachers in Nebraska elementary, junior high and senior high schools will have an opportunity this month to take part in a study on the use of Nebraska literature in their classes.

The study is being conducted by Emily Jane Uzenoski, research associate at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, as a means of stimulating interest in the state's cultural heritage.

Miss Uzenoski also would like to assess the interest among school teachers in a workshop or institute organized for the purpose of disseminating ideas about Nebraska and Plains Literature which might be utilized in the classroom.

Any teacher who wishes to participate in the study and does not receive the questionnaire should write her in care of the Department of English, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The study is part of community service project entitled "A Reference Book of Nebraska Writers and Their Writings" which was financed by the Nebraska Department of Economic Development with federal funds.

"Through this project, we hope to stimulate interest in the Plains literature both in this region and in other parts of the nation and world," Miss Uzenoski said.

Many people in Nebraska and across the nation already are aware of Nebraska writers such as Cather, Neihardt, Eiseley and others she said.

"Stories of the settlement of the Plains region capture the attention of many people because they portray an epic quality which transmits the concepts of conquering the ele-
