A closer look...

By Norvin Hansen

An unusual musical number marked Monday night's Wayne High graduation exercises at Rice Auditorium.

Titled "Reflections," the song was a joint effort by graduating seniors Mike Nuss, who wrote the music, and Jill Carhart, who wrote the lyrics. A musical poem describing a high school senior's memories, it was dedicated to the class of 1973.

Is the song any good? Says one of the music teachers at the high school: "I was very impressed with it... both Jill and Mike are very talented musicians."

Mike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jean Nuss of Wayne, has shown his talent for composing music before. He wrote an arrangement of "Brian's Song" for the high school band to play in concert earlier this year. The audience loved it.

Jill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Carhart, has a knack of writing something sentimental without becoming maudlin. One verse of the song is particularly well written and says something about teenagers:

The time of life that's before us is a challenge rare
And to leave such security will cause some pain,
Still I can't help believing when this pain subsides
A greater security will then remain.

The two young people even had a hand in the song's presentation by the girls glee club: Mike accompanied the group on the piano, Jill directed.

And to think my biggest concern when I graduated from high school was jumping in a car and heading to Yankton to buy some 3.2 beer.

When you think about it, Wayne doesn't have anything going for it.

About the only thing that makes this community any more outstanding than a couple hundred other ones in the state is Wayne State College... and there are several other towns which can boast of being the home of a state college. But outside that, just what can citizens of this town be proud of?

We have no special event each year which helps focus the spotlight on our town. About the closest we come in that area is the county fair. And what other county seat doesn't have exactly the same thing?

There's nothing special about the countryside, our history, architecture or anything else which sets us apart. Or if there is, it isn't generally known.

Now look around and see how many other towns — many of them much smaller than Wayne — are strides ahead of us in this area. Verdigris spotlights its heritage each year with Kolache Days. Bancroft makes everybody in the state aware that Nebraska's poet laureate, John Neihardt, spent an important part of his life there. Ogallala promotes its Boot Hill and Front Street. Gothenburg has its annual Pony Express Days. North Platte has NEBRASKAland Days. Ponca has its Little Britches Rodeo.

And what does Wayne have? Not a heckuva lot of anything.

Surely there must be something we could do to make people point to Wayne and say, "Hey, that town's really got something going for it. It might be just the kind of town I would like to live in."

Why don't a bunch of people get together and start throwing out ideas about how we could make Wayne stand heads and shoulders above some of the other towns in the state? There are thousands of ways it could be done. We could do something as simple as turning Main Street into International Flag Street, prominently flying flags from every nation in the world. There are other towns across the country doing much the same thing, but I doubt if there is one in Nebraska.

Or we could host some unusual sporting event. A town in California has the world's wristwrestling competition. Some other town hosts the frog jumping contest. Broken Bow hosts shooters every year to see who can bag the most pheasants. Isn't it a Kansas town which challenges a town in England each year to see which woman can run a course the fastest with a plate of pancakes?

Maybe we could start something like a marathon race for 10 speed bike riders from across the state. Or how about a bareback horse race between Wayne and Winside? Or the state's BB gun contest? Or snooker shooting competition?

When you start thinking about it, Wayne doesn't have much going for it. But it could have... with a lot of work by some people interested in making it a unique place to live.

A four-year-old in Wayne pretty well summed up what Memorial Day is all about... at least as far as kids are concerned. Picking up a bouquet of fake flowers his mother bought to decorate a grave with, he innocently remarked to his dad:

"Look what I can put on grandpa and grandma's grave when they die and get buried for celebration."

A kid's choice of words is sometimes beautiful.

Thanks to Mrs. Otto Field of Winside, we were able to correct an error which appeared in a recent story about an event at Winside.

We're more than happy to correct any errors which appear in the newspaper... if only somebody will tell us about them. We know we make them every week — there isn't a newspaper in the world which doesn't — but too often we never hear about them.

Elsewhere in this issue of the newspaper is a picture of a little pup being kept at Wayne Veterinary Clinic. The pup was picked up by the police and apparently isn't going to be claimed by its owner. It'll be killed in a few days unless somebody with youngsters would like to surprise them with a pet.

A woman suggested we run a picture of the pup to see if a home could be found for it. If we're successful this time, we might start running pictures of each stray animal picked up by the police so all of them won't have to be killed. Now if we could just figure out some way to handle the crass, stupid people who abandon animals.

Credit should be given where credit is due. Those three pictures taken at Wayne High's graduation exercises were the work of Robert Porter, high school teacher who has charge of most of the school's photography work. He bailed me out... after I discovered the roll of film I used to shoot the event with had been ruined before it ever went into the camera.

And those four pictures of Mother Imelda breaking ground at the new hospital site in Wayne were the work of Wayne State's news director, Dick Manley, and journalism student, Jim Miller of Fremont. Not a case of ruined film here... just an instance of somebody else doing a better job.

Who's who, what's what?

Questions:

1. Bob Johnson of Carroll received a plaque last week for how many years service on the Carroll volunteer fire department?

2. On what one item did three Winside clubs focus during their recent fix-up week?

3. What three Allen High School seniors tied for salutatorian honors during commencement exercises at the school gym last week?

4. Who is the Rev. A. M. Ramos?

5. Who is the new minister of the Evangelical Free Church in Wayne?

6. When does the Wayne municipal swimming pool open?

7. What times does the annual Memorial Day parade in Wayne get underway?

8. Who is Mrs. Louise Paw?

9. Who was recently reinstated as commander of the Llewellyn B. Whitmore Post 5791 in Wayne?

10. How many attended the 25th anniversary of the Wayne National Guard Unit May 19?

Answers: 1. Twenty-seven. 2. Mailboxes. 3. Brenda Young, Janell Hasler and LaRaye Lubberstedt. 4. Pastor from Custer, S. D., who will arrive June 8 to serve the Logan Center Church near Laurel and the Dixon United Methodist Church, S. The Rev. Larry Ostercamp. 6. Today (Monday). 7. 10 a.m. today. 8. Baptist missionary who spoke in Wayne and Oberlin Sunday. 9. Morris Backstrom. 10. About 130.

OBSERVATIONS

Settling controversy openly will be good

Although public officials would just as soon wash their dirty linen in private, we are glad the legality of firing Wayne's chief of police will be settled openly.

The chief has filed suit in district court, charging that he was fired illegally by the mayor after he conducted an investigation of local liquor establishments. Being taken to court by the chief are the mayor and the city's eight councilmen.

We have already commented editorially on the firing. In our opinion, the mayor was wrong in firing the chief for conducting an investigation which the mayor himself ordered. The mayor, of course, justified his action by saying the chief went about the investigation the wrong way.

How the investigation was conducted after it was ordered seems to use to be up to the discretion of the police chief, who is trained and paid to know about such things. A mayor does not seem to us to be the most qualified person to decide how laws should be enforced.

Now it is up to the court to decide if the mayor acted legally in firing the police chief.

Courts do not concern themselves with the correctness or morality of people's action. That is unfortunate, because in this particular case that is probably just as important as the legal aspect.

Shower, Coffee Given For Hoskins Teacher

Bride-elect Charlotte Kruger of Hoskins was honored Tuesday morning with a miscellaneous shower and coffee held for her at Trinity Lutheran School in Hoskins.

Twenty guests were present from Cortland and Hoskins. The honoree's mother, Mrs. Vernon Kruger of Cortland, was among those present. Mrs. Oscar Zander registered guests.

Decorations were in yellow and white. A floral centerpiece made by Lynne Bruggeman was given to the guest of honor.

Game winners were Mrs. Richard Doffin and Mrs. Lane Marotz. Miss Kruger was presented a kitchen corsage by hostesses Mrs. Bill Willers of Stanton, Mrs. Gerald Bruggeman, Mrs. Kennard Woodckmann and Mrs. Oscar Zander of Hoskins.

Miss Kruger, daughter of the Vernon Krugers, and Lambert Herling of Clarkson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Herling Sr., of Cortland, will be married Aug. 18 at St. John's Lutheran Church in Firth.

Nine at Just Us Gals

Next meeting will be at 2 p.m. June 20 at the Wayne Women's Club rooms.

Concord Cook Surprised

Concord third grade teachers and mothers were host Tuesday afternoon to a surprise party honoring Mrs. Mabel Carlson. Mrs. Carlson is leaving after serving the school 14 years as a cook.

Serving as emcee was Mrs. Bob Fritschen who read a poem, "A Happy Home Recipe," during the program. Students read cards they had made for Mrs. Carlson to show their appreciation for her meals. A corsage was given to the honoree by Sally Ann Luedtke.

Third graders sang "I've Been Working in the Kitchen" to the tune of "I've Been Working on the Railroad" and "It's a Small World After All." A reading, "Mabel," composed by the class, was read by Annita Kay Fritschen.

Teachers Mrs. Phyllis Dirks and Mrs. Nancy Boehme spoke briefly in Mrs. Carlson's behalf and students gave the guest of honor many lovely gifts.

A coffee followed the program with third grade girls and several mothers serving.

Hazel Rolston Surprised With School Dinner

Mrs. Hazel Rolston of Wakefield was honored at a surprise dinner Thursday after closing out her 23 years of teaching at the elementary school.

The media director was presented a gift from the faculty.

Q. I keep reading and hearing that World War II veterans received full tuition and $75 a month for GI Bill training. Is this true?

A. World War II veterans received up to $500 for tuition, books and supplies for a full school year. All expenses beyond that, they had to pay themselves. The single full time veteran student did receive $75 per month, but he was restricted to a maximum wage earnings of $210 a month, including the $75 GI Bill entitlement.

Q. Is it true that the Veterans Administration is planning to close some of its hospitals?

A. The VA has no plans to close any of its hospitals. In fact, several new ones were opened last year and more are under construction this year.

Blowing in the Wind

IT TOOK Carl Mellick of Wayne about 60 hours to construct this Dutch windmill from pieces of wood, a few nails, lots of glue and leftover pieces of roofing. But to the Wayne State custodian, it was well worth the time during the winter months. Building windmills is nothing new for Mellick, who already has one miniature farm windmill in his back yard and a smaller version of a Dutch windmill in his house. According to Carl, who lives at 921 Windom, working with wood is one of his favorite pastimes. He isn't quite sure what his next project will be, but he probably has another plan for a different windmill stashed away in his workshop.

UN-L Expert Advises Farmers to Plan for Fuel Shortage in Fall

Farmers should look ahead to a possible shortage and high prices of fuel next fall in planning for grain crop handling at harvest time, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension beef specialist said this week. "We hope fuels will be available in adequate quantity but even if they are, cost of drying will probably be two to three cents a bushel higher because of higher fuel costs and inflation," pointed out Dr. Paul Guyer. Guyer said cattle feeders have alternatives to drying grain. They are field drying and acid treatment and storage as high moisture grain. High moisture grain has the advantage of low field losses, low harvest and storage costs, and an early start in harvesting the grain crop, said Guyer. Work at the Northeast Station near Concord indicates excellent results when the corn is stored whole in oxygen limiting silos and fed either whole or ground - comparable or superior to dry corn. In some farmer feedlots, investment in oxygen limiting storage may limit financing for cattle in these, Guyer recommends consideration of horizontal silos for storage of high moisture grain. Filling quickly. Packing well. Covering quickly (fill one end as quickly as possible and cover while continuing to fill). Covering with weights to minimize air leakage.

MEMORIAL DAY

We Pay Tribute to Those Who Gave Their Lives...

Today we pause to remember...with gratitude and respect... the men throughout this nation's history who answered the call to arms and lost their own lives so that we can live in freedom and dignity. Today we count our blessings; we also consider their cost. Nobody ever said it better than Abraham Lincoln: "...from these honored dead we take increased devotion...to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion." Today let's pledge ourselves to just and lasting peace.

Fremont Girl Candidate for State Title

Alice Licht of Fremont is Wayne State's candidate for the title of Miss Nebraskaland this year.

She was chosen by the Student Activities Board to compete with representatives of other Nebraska colleges in the annual Nebraskaland Pageant June 17 at North Platte.

The reigning Miss Nebraskaland is another Wayne State coed, Tammy Conyers of Columbus.

Miss Licht, a senior majoring in business, has been secretary of the Student Senate the past year, president of Neihardt Hall, secretary of the Young Republicans and a member of Cardinal Key, national honor society for women.

Miss Nebraskaland candidates will appear in western and evening apparel and in a costume depicting vacation activities in their home locale.

Project Evaluator Is Speaker at Tuesday Project Success Meet

About 25 community council members, parents, students and staff members involved in Wayne Carroll school system's Project Success attended the potluck supper Tuesday at West Elementary School.

Mrs. Florence Schmerler, project evaluator from St. Paul, Minn. who had spent two days in the school, noted in her evaluation report for the year that students involved in the project are making good progress and have positive attitudes toward school and toward themselves.

Mrs. Schmerler reviewed the curriculum modifications which have been implemented in various classes in the elementary and middle school. Instead of making a personal award to one teacher in each school for the best ideas, she suggested that the two $50 awards be used to purchase more materials for the curriculum modification program.

Superintendent Francis Haun spoke briefly to the group on the role of Project Success in the school system. Elementary principal and project director Richard Metteer recognized various groups involved in the project and expressed his appreciation to St. Mary's Catholic School for their involvement.

Metteer noted that plans have been made to implement the Project Success program at the high school level next year and to make additions to the program in the middle school, subject to approval of funds for the coming year.

Application is still being reviewed by the state title III council in Lincoln," he noted, "and we hope to hear from them within two weeks."

Following the meeting, Mrs. Jean Owens, curriculum modifier, demonstrated some of the curriculum modification ideas which were on display.
