Thomas Fails in Attempt To End Engineer's Contract

Wayne councilman Jim Thomas failed Tuesday night in his attempt to have the city tear up the contract it has with its consolidating engineering firm. Failure came when mayor Kent Hall broke a 4-4 tie to table the motion by Thomas to terminate the contract.

Without comment, Hall voted to table the motion, keeping the council from voting on whether to end its contract with Consolidated Engineers. Thomas, citing several reasons for terminating the contract, said action by the council "is overdue."

Among reasons given: —If a full-time administrator is hired, as the council is considering, an engineer would be needed less and less because "a lot of duties that we give the engineer could be handled by the city administrator." —Engineering work in the city should be handled on a "piece work basis," permitting the city to hire different firms and make savings of from one to two per cent on costs of projects.

—There is possibility of "conflict of interest" when the engineering firm works for the city as well as private individuals. —It is not necessary to have an engineer present at all council meetings. —The city could get a better idea of projects needed since the contract has been in effect for several years. —The engineering firm "may be over spending for certain projects."

Taverns Get Council's OK To Stay Open Until 1 a.m.

All taverns in Wayne will be able to sell beer until 1 a.m. starting sometime next week. The city council Tuesday night voted 7-1 to permit taverns to close at the same time as bottle clubs and non-profit clubs.

Casting the lone vote against extending the closing time one hour was Frank Prahrer. Bars will be permitted to stay open until 1 a.m. as soon as the legal notice is published in the Wayne Herald. City clerk and administrator Dan Sherry said the notice will be printed in either Monday's or next Thursday's newspaper.

The vote came about a month after the council was asked to make the closing time the same for all liquor establishments in the city. Council decided to require reading the proposed ordinance three times before voting on it to give the public a chance to voice an opinion on the change. Little public opposition developed.

Councilmen approved pay increases averaging 3.5 per cent for all city employees during the evening. The pay hikes range from three to five per cent, according to a city official.

WH Grad Receives Award

A 1973 graduate of Wayne High School, Ranee Kniesche, has been named one of 150 young Nebraskans to receive a $100 scholarship to the second annual Nebraska Agricultural Youth Institute.

Miss Kniesche is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Kniesche of rural Wayne. The institute, sponsored by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture, will be held July 9-13 at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education in Lincoln.

The program consists of nationally known speakers, management decision workshops and leadership sessions. Its purpose is to promote successful and meaningful community involvement by farm and ranch youth. Theme of this year's institute is "Nebraska Agricultural Youth Inherit the Good Life."

Improvement construction of the Hoskins wastewater treatment facility is now underway, according to a spokesman for an engineering firm in Columbus. Last month the town board approved the bid of $39,846 from L. E. Ball Construction Co. of Norfolk to bring the facility up to current state standards.

Deadline Near For Returning HOPE Donations

All members of the "Hike for HOPE" are asked to return their donations to the First National Bank in Wayne by June 15.

According to chairman Barb Ludwig, the 15th is the final date before a complete tabulation can be made.

Miss Ludwig wished to thank all those who participated in the April walk and those who donated money for the USS HOPE fund.

Harriet Kerl, Wayne public librarian, has announced that the annual summer reading program gets underway Monday and will run through July 28. This year's theme "Circus Fun."

Carroll's Catholic Church Closing After 70 Years

Carroll's only Catholic church, Our Lady of Sorrows, will close this summer after nearly 70 years in existence.

The church, located about a block west of the post office, will close its door sometime between now and September, according to its pastor, the Rev. Benedict LaRoque.

The reason, he explained, is the declining number of personnel to handle the various missions in the area.

Father LaRoque is pastor of the Carroll church as well as pastor at St. Frances Church in Randolph. As St. Frances grows it requires more time to work in the parish, he said.

Carroll Girl Vying for Dairy Princess Crown

Linda Baier, 20-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Baier of rural Carroll, is one of 28 Nebraska girls who will compete in the 18th annual Nebraska Dairy Princess Contest Saturday.

The contest will be held at Syracuse. Contestants will be vying for a $400 cash scholarship, clothing allowance, luggage and other prizes. The 1973 princess will travel the state, speaking for the American Dairy Association of Nebraska.

Miss Baier will be a junior at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln this fall. Sponsored by the Associated Milk Producers, Inc., she was active in 4-H, Pep Club and FHA during high school, as well as attending the national dairy conference and national 4-H congress and conference.

She and her one brother live with their parents on a 300-acre farm near Carroll. The family raises Holsteins. Co-sponsoring the contest are the state dairy association and the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce. The all-day contest will include interviews with judges and talks by the contestants.

State tells NPPD it can go ahead with power line construction near airport

The Nebraska Aeronautics Commission has given approval for Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) to go ahead with construction of its 230,000-volt power line near Wayne's municipal airport.

Wayne city clerk-administrator Dan Sherry said the commission has inspected the plans and approved NPPD's line near the airport. He received notice of the approval by mail Tuesday.

As a result, the city has dismissed its protest against further construction of the line after claiming it could jeopardize future state and federal funding for airport development, according to Sherry.

Earlier this year, the city council authorized the city attorney to file a protest against NPPD alleging that construction near the airport would violate zoning laws. According to zoning regulations, a structure cannot be built 150 feet above the end of the runway. Due to the topography in the area, the power poles could go over that height limitation.

Donald Gerry, assistant transmission superintendent at the NPPD operation center in York, said about 19 miles of the 56 miles of wiring already is up. A total of 147 of 391 structures (power poles) are in place, he said.

Right now there are poles up from Nucor field, site of the new steel plant near Norfolk, almost all the way to near Dakota City. According to NPPD, the plant is the main reason the line is being installed. In the (See NPPD, page 8)

The new mechanical treatment plant will take the place of the town's trickling filter type treatment now in use west of town.

The main portion of the cost 75 per cent will be paid by the federal government, with the state and village sharing the remaining 25 per cent, the firm's spokesman said. The project, started last week, is to be completed sometime in August.

Youngsters from second through sixth grades may check out three books at a time, reporting on them verbally to the librarian as they are returned.

Public Hearing On NPPD Line Set for June 8

A public hearing on the application by Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) to build its 230,000-volt transmission line in Wayne and Dixon Counties will be held June 8 at 10 a.m. in the county courthouse in Wayne.

A spokesman for the Nebraska Public Service Commission, which will conduct the hearing, said hearings on applications to build the rest of the line between Norfolk and Dakota City were not held because no protests were received.

Protests have been received on this application from Harvey Anderson, Willis Nelson, Glenn Meyer, Glen Olson, Elton Miller and Alvern Anderson as well as from the city of Wayne.

'Soviet Union Goal Is Still To Be No. 1 in the World'

joining Russia, he used to walk around Helsinki at night with no thought of fear. But lately, this has changed. "Recently I kept a .45 Colt loaded in my desk," he said. Peterson spoke emphatically about this nation's role in world affairs. "No country in the history of the world has America's record of concern for other nations since World War II. Yes, we have made mistakes. But don't sell America short. Correct its deficiencies, certainly."

But remember, America is the hope of the world.

To retain its position, Peterson said, "The United States must put its financial house in order — which it is not doing. It must balance the budget, pay its bills in hard currency."

He described Russia as beset with problems — shortage of agricultural products, industrial production a long way from goals, rising dissent ("Not as much as we have, but more than Russia will tolerate") and confrontation with China.

"The Russians don't know how to organize their industry or agriculture. They do well with their military and space programs. But they know they must get America's business and industrial methods."

Acknowledging that some Americans think the U. S. should not give Russia its business techniques, Peterson said, "I doubt we need to worry about that. We always were able to out-compete others in production, and I think we still can."

He mentioned a conference of 34 European nations, —practically every one on both sides of the Iron Curtain — that originated (See SOVIET UNION, page 8)

Inside Today...

- What would it mean to Wayne or some surrounding community to have a new factory move into town which would employ 100 workers.
- The factory would have tremendous effects on the town, according to a study by the United States Chamber of Commerce. For instance, it would mean 351 more people moving into the community, $1,036,000 more in personal income for residents of the town, one more retail establishment.

Over 450 Take Part in Anniversary

Well over 450 persons took part in the weekend 90th anniversary celebration at Salem Lutheran Church in Wakefield. The church, served by the Rev. Robert Johnson, held an anniversary service Friday evening, an open house and banquet Saturday, and special communion services, a confirmation reunion and an evening music service Sunday.

Lutheran Church Women held their anniversary meeting Thursday afternoon with 90 present. Circle III had charge of arrangements and committee members were attired in old fashioned costumes. Mrs. Emil Moller was program chairman and Mrs. Charles Pierson was head of the serving committee.

Special guests were the Rev. and Mrs. Clarence Hall of Rock Island, Ill., who served the Wakefield church from 1939 to 1943. The afternoon was spent reminiscing.

Speaker at the Friday night anniversary service was Pastor Hall. His topic was "What Do I Owe for All Thy Goodly Fostering." The senior choir sang and a trumpet trio, composed of Tom Anderson, Leslie Swanson and LaVerne Henningson, played during a banner procession. Churchmen hosted an informal coffee following the service.

About 40 out of town guests took advantage of the open house Saturday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Berneal Gustafson were chairmen of the hospitality committee.

Dr. Reuben Swanson, synod president from Omaha, was the main speaker for the Saturday evening anniversary banquet. About 465 turned out for the event which was held at the Wakefield elementary school.

The Salem Spirals, composed of Kathy Bressler, Mike Johnson, Kenny Johnson, Bud Swanson and Joan Gustafson, provided a background of instrumental numbers during the meal. Entertainment was also provided by a women's trio (Mrs. Robert Johnson, Mrs. Robert Oberg and Mrs. Merlin Holm) and a men's quartet (Alden and Kermit Johnson, Burnell Grosch and Charles Soderberg). A communion service followed the Sunday morning church school hour. Guest speaker was the Rev. C. W. Wiberg of Sacramento, Calif., who served the Wakefield church from 1943 to 1952. A number by the senior choir, "Sanctus," featured Alden Johnson in a solo.

A Sunday afternoon highlight was the confirmation reunion attended by 319. Representing the oldest confirmation class of 1901 were Mrs. Emil Erickson of Fremont and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hyspe of Wakefield.

Former members of the Wakefield Salem Church who have gone into church work spoke informally during the afternoon and letters were read from others. Two numbers were sung in Swedish by a group of about 25 who attended the reunion. The Luther League chorus also sang.

A coffee hour was sponsored afterward by the LCW.

The Sunday evening service was devoted to music. There were 392 present. Guest speaker was the Rev. Willard Carlson of Omaha, a Wakefield Salem minister from 1953 to 1960. Mrs.

DR. REUBEN SWANSON

Carlson was guest organist for the evening. Carlson's topic was "To Build More Sure the Kingdom of Thy Grace."

Special music was provided by the junior high and senior choirs. A vocal solo, "The Lord's Prayer," by Alden Johnson, was interpreted through motion by a group of Luther League members. The men's chorus sang with Ray Lund featured in a solo.

Present at the various meetings throughout the weekend were seven Salem sons and daughters (those who have gone into church work). They were Theodore Rydbeck and Orville Martin of Minnesota; Gunnard Grahn of Lincoln; Curtis Wiberg Jr. of Des Moines; Ia. Glenn Lundahl of Colorado; Paul Hanson of Chicago, Ill.; and Sister Emma Ring of Omaha.

Anniversary theme was "What Do I Owe?"

Plans Being Made for Haun All-School Reunion in July

Plans are underway for the first all-school reunion for students and faculty of Wayne Prep (Haun) High School. The school, located on the Wayne State College campus, operated as Wayne Prep from 1930 until 1952 and as the H.H. Haun Campus School from 1952 to 1964. High school classes were last offered in 1962.

Mr. and Mrs. Kent Hall are general chairmen for the program of events scheduled for Friday and Saturday, July 20 and 21. Plans call for a pig roast, banquet, dance, tours and activities for youngsters.

Nearly 300 replies have already been received from letters of inquiry which have gone out. Some students and faculty members have not yet been located, and anyone having information concerning the present addresses of those individuals is asked to notify them of the reunion plans or to contact Mrs. Paul Otte, registration chairman.

Students who have not been reached are Hazel Nielsen, class

It is hoped that the all school reunion can be continued annually on the third weekend of every July.

Ruth Jansson Receives Degree

Ruth Jansson, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Fred Jansson of Wakefield, received a master of science degree in early childhood May 26 during commencement exercises at the Southern Connecticut State College at New Haven, Conn.

Among those attending the program were Miss Jansson's sister, Helen Jansson of Chicago, Ill.

THE GEMS were pouring their hearts out to a captive audience at the Wakefield Salem Lutheran Church's 90th anniversary banquet Saturday night. And the audience loved every minute of it. Mrs. Robert Oberg, from left, Mrs. Merlin Holm and Mrs. Robert Johnson form the group.

For years homemakers have been able to save much physical energy by doing housework with gas and electrical appliances. But today they are facing an energy crisis due to increase demands for gas and electrical energy by industry and consumers, dwindling fuel supplies and possible higher cost.

If we want to continue to be able to use our labor-saving equipment in spite of the pending fuel shortage, we will need to consider ways of using less or preventing waste.

Some simple suggestions: —When cooking with gas, don't use a high flame when a low one will do the job.

—Pre-heat the oven only long enough to reach desired temperature for the baking job.

—On electric heat units, food can finish cooking a few minutes after the element is turned off; have right-sized pans to cover unit.

—Use full loads in the washer and dryer—you waste gas or electricity when you turn them on for every little thing.

—Avoid using more hot water than you need in a tub or shower.

—Don't go off and leave the hot water running.

During the summer season we have come to feel air conditioning is a must for the home and car. Although there is a possibility this luxury could be curtailed because of dwindling energy supply, we may help prevent this by being willing to have the thermostat setting only a few degrees lower than the outdoor temperature—ten degrees at the most. Shut it off entirely on days when temperature is moderately bearable.

A skit, patterned after TV's "Haw-Haw," was presented by Don Longnecker, Billie Brudigan, Robert Jensen, Dale and Richard Jaeger and Charles

Good coverage of little leagues depends on coaches

Within the next two weeks most of the area little league teams will be starting their summer programs. And with the coaches' cooperation, I hope to give each team coverage throughout the summer season.

In fact, it's going to have to depend a lot on the coaches. They have to let me know the results of the game and make sure my schedules of their games are correct.

One of the area coaches — Allen's Keith Hill — has a good suggestion. Just write the information — game date, scores, who had the most hits, etc. — on a postcard and mail it to us. That would save a lot of phone calls.

Running down the list of area coaches I find that Hank Overin will be guiding the Wayne club. In Wakefield Paul Eaton will handle the chores. As yet, I'm not sure who is in charge in Laurel or Winside.

I'm kind of wondering if this year's little leagues are going to be faced with a minor problem now facing some teams across the nation — girls wanting to join.

It may sound a little funny, but in Ypsilanti, Mich., Mill Valley, Calif., and Concord, N. C., it is no laughing matter. In fact, a team in North Carolina is facing suspension from the Babe Ruth League for playing a 13-year-old girl.

"Female types in braids and with braces on their teeth are creating new waves in the women's lib movement," points out one newspaper article. "They are causing great concern among stodgy grown-up men who insist rules are rules and girls have no business playing certain games with boys."

The article points out that baseball is a contact sport. It can be hazardous — a five-page medical report which points out that girls are incapable of competing with boys notes that their bones are more vulnerable, their reactions slower.

Starting next Tuesday the women's golf league at the Wayne Country Club will feature 52 women making their rounds on the 18-hole course.

Last year I didn't give the women much coverage — in fact, I hardly knew there was a women's league until the end of the season.

So I hope to give them more coverage.

especially those gals that fire hole-in-ones, eagles or a string of birdies.

Let's not forget those girls who have those good scores. Although there isn't any advertisement space to place their names — like Monday's listing all the top scorers for the men — I do want to list the women with good scores. Again, it's going to depend on the league secretary to help out in this department.

Looking at some of the final baseball stats on the Wakefield club, coach Lynn Tomjack had an array of top hitters.

Second baseman Dave Rouse had the best batting average with a .548. Catcher Kirk Gardner was next at .545.

Gardner led his team in hits with 18, while collecting a total of 17 RBI's and tying two other players for the number of doubles at six. Shortstop Doug Soderberg and pitcher Bob Twite were right in line with Gardner.

Going back to Rouse, he had the most team runs with 17 and collected 12 singles to lead in that department. Altogether, he got on base 24 times in 31 times at bat.

In the home run department, five members were tied for top honors with one each — Soderberg, Gardner, Twite, Mike Barge and Keith Siebrandt.

With this kind of potential, things should look good for the Wakefield Legion team if those same men — in addition to the rest of the Trojan squad — tryout for the team.

Off to St. Paul

TWENTY FOUR Wayne Midget and Legion baseball players loaded the city recreation bus Tuesday to take off for the annual baseball games with St. Paul and Aurora. Each year coach Hank Overin takes his squads to the mid Nebraska towns to open the baseball season. Going on this year's trip were (not in order) Mike Meyer, Bob Keating, Marty Hansen, Ritch Workman, Dave Nuss, Gordie Cook, Dave Hix, Jack Froehlich, Paul Mallett, Mike Manes, Larry Creighton, Earle Overin, Rob Mitchell, Rod Turner, Randy Park, Roger Saul, Terry Pfeiffer, Bill Schwartz, Doug Sturm, Charles Roland, Kerry Jech, Kim Baker, Randy Workman and Ron Janke. Pictured but not going is Randy Nilson. The team is due back sometime today (Thursday).

'But That Water's Cold!'

MONDAY'S opening of the Wayne swimming pool drew a fair sized crowd of young people. But most can testify that the luke-warm temperatures didn't warm the water much. Even some of the girls who work at the pool had trouble getting Gary Egler, pool manager, to test out the water. At left, Connie and Jerri Langston were daring enough to take a quick dip. But the children of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Langston of Wayne made a fast trip out of the pool to wrap themselves in blankets. Starting June 11 area children will be able to take swimming lessons at the pool. According to Egler, those interested can sign up now at the pool.

Body Odors Repel Fish

Some persons' natural body odors cause fish to shy away from baits and lures they use. Sometimes anglers get gasoline and oil mixture used for outboard motors on their hands. This, too, can repel fish when transmitted to lures.

One way to beat the smell is to wash lures in a mild soap solution, removing the repulsive odors and brightening the finish. The lures can then be polished with a clean, soft cloth to bring out the lustre.

According to Mercury Outboards, there is no known way for any fisherman to determine if his smell is repulsive to fish.

When in doubt, some anglers doctor their lures with an artificial smell, such as oil of anise, which is attractive to fish. Others wear thin gloves. Special soaps have been prepared so that fishermen can remove all human scent from their hands before handling lures or baits.

Most anglers, however, don't worry about how they smell to fish. Why should they? Most fish smell, too.

PHEASANTS APLENTY

Lots of pheasants are being seen along roads throughout Nebraska. Roosters predominate, since pheasants are well into nesting activity and most hens are tending their nests. First broods should be showing up in early June.

The hatching period will be quite long, for hens, whose first nests were destroyed by mowing, etc., will try again. It is unlikely, though, that hens, which successfully bring off broods but later lose them, will re-nest.

DUCKS IN DROUGHT

Prairie Saskatchewan, from where Nebraska gets most of its waterfowl, is relatively dry. Overall water conditions are much poorer than in the past four years.

Ducks Unlimited (Canada) reports ducks still attempting to nest on the prairies where water has little chance of lasting through the summer. Some drought loss is expected unless the summer is unusually wet.

"MR. 17 x 14"

The big 3 pound, 13-ounce crappie that inhaled Bob Berglund's minnow while fishing the Spring Creek area of Red Willow Reservoir almost two weeks ago was a roly-poly all the way. Berglund's crappie was 17 inches long and 16 inches around.

Once the crappie is verified as either a white or black crappie, which may be done by now, Berglund will be a new state record holder or an also-ran. If the crappie is found to be a white, it will top the old 3 pound, 4-ounce record. If black, it will fall two ounces short of the 3-pound, 15-ounce mark.

FISHING WHERE TO GO

Red Willow Reservoir, north of McCook on Highway 83, is good for polypouring of fish: Walleye along face of dam, trolling deep — running lures in May and early June, earlier with jigs and spinners. Largemouth bass in bay areas on rubber worms and surface lures, smallmouth by face of dam on crawdads and deep running lures. Both species of fish found in most of lake, with good results casting from boat into shoreline of bays.

Channel catfish are taken in the west end in May and June on shad gizzards and cut bluegill, still fishing or drifting, and crappie on most anything. Crappie plentiful but not too big.

Pelican Lake, south of Valentine on National Wildlife Refuge, for northern pike three to 15 pounds. All of lake, particularly east end, productive on Johnson spoons, Dardettes, Rapalas, Mepps, and silver minnows. Fish Pelican with waders or boat.

MISHMASH — Nebraska and 48 other states permit riding in a camper. Only Georgia does not. Thirty-one states prohibit riders in a towed trailer-type camper when underway. In Nebraska this is O.K. . . . Should your fishing, camping, vacationing and other plans involving driving be threatened by possible gasoline shortages, you may take a tip from the Shah of Persia. The Horseless Age magazine in 1906 reported that when confronted with no gasoline for his new car, the Shah substituted "1868" brandy, with "very satisfactory results".

Need fishing films? Fisherman's Information, 20 N. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill., 60606, lists 109 angling films available on a free-loan basis to clubs, schools, churches, civic and fraternal organizations.

Ducks Unlimited, Inc. has pledged $3 million to its sister organization, DU (Canada) in 1973 for maintenance and restoration of wetlands habitat north of the U. S. border. Some 80 per cent of all waterfowl on the North American continent originate in Canada. . . . 37 high school and college guys and gals will make a week-long tour of Nebraska late this month, preparatory to staffing 18 information centers along the Interstate beginning June 6. . . . With the exception of transportation, trip costs will be absorbed by the different communities, services, and attractions along the way. . . .

Wakefield's Dennis Crippen grabbed his first trophy Tuesday night when he captured the trophy dash at Hartington's track.

Shock Vibrates Through Campus; Wayne State Blown Out of Area 3 Playoffs

Still in shock this week, Wayne State baseball players wondered how it could have happened. They appeared to have everything going their way before the finals of the NAIA Area Three playoff at Enid, Okla., Saturday.

The night before they had beaten Phillips University, 6-5 in 14 innings, then Phillips immediately had to play Fort Hays State of Kansas for the right to play Wayne Saturday. Result: Phillips edged Hays, 7-6. And a night earlier the same teams had battled until well after midnight, Phillips winning that one too, 10-5.

Going into the Saturday afternoon battle, Wayne needed only one win to earn a trip to the NAIA national tournament. Phillips needed two. Between the two, there appeared to be only one crucial difference. Wayne had used up three pitchers, Phillips only two in their two games.

Greg Kamp won Wayne's first game, 11-8 over Northern State of South Dakota, but needed ninth-inning relief from John Ege. Ron Nelson started the second game and went 5 1/3 innings before turning over a 4-3 lead to Ege. He pitched the remaining 8 2/3 innings, and got the victory when Steve Heying scored the winning run in the bottom of the 14th.

That left Kevin Peterson the only regular hurler left to start against Phillips, and the Hays makers wasted no time making a disaster of the crucial game. They scored six runs on a double, two home runs, a walk and an error. Five more runs in the second inning extended the calamity. Peterson yielded the mound after one out to freshman Bob DeVaul. He lasted 4 1/3 innings, got relief from another yearling, Jim Kopecky, who had pitched in high school but not for Wayne. The sixth frame ended with Phillips ahead by 20-0.

Coach Fred Pierce used one more rookie pitcher, Leo Yrskoki, who had tossed only one inning in the season. No use, Pierce reasoned, to spend any regulars in such a rout. It ended at 23-0, by far the worst loss in Wayne history.

Then came the last chance for both teams. Pierce went to ace reliever John Ege for starting duty. The Sioux City senior seemed to have a pretty strong arm in pre game practice, despite a total of nine innings pitched in the first two games. He had played the third game at shortstop.

But the Ege arm gave up home runs to three of the first five batters. Kamp took over, lasted 1 1/3 innings, then turned over the mound to Nelson. Phillips had an 11-0 pad when the second inning ended, 15-2 after the third. Peterson finished in relief.

Wayne's usually potent bats came alive, but Phillips contin-ed hitting too. Final score: 19-9. So ended a Wayne season which otherwise set a pack of records, and those are what Wildcats of 1973 can remember. The main record a phenomenal 26-3 won-lost mark, the best since Wayne began playing baseball in 1958.

Rainy Weekend Halts Area Sports Activities

Rainy weather during last weekend forced a cancellation along with several postponements.

The cancellation was the Wayne Legion team's participation in the annual Chuck Ellis memorial baseball tournament at Wakefield.

The three-day tourney, originally scheduled to start Saturday evening was to feature Wayne against Remsen St. Mary's and Wakefield against Norfolk. But rain postponed the start to Wednesday.

Since the Wayne team had scheduled road games with St. Paul and Aurora during its annual spring trip on that day, the locals bowed out of the contest.

Sioux City Heelan took Wayne's place and was scheduled to collide with Remsen St. Mary's in the opener.

The first round action hopefully will conclude today (Thursday) with matchups between West Point and Columbus High School, and O'Neill and Sioux Falls.

The semi-finals are slated for Friday at 6:30 and 8 p.m., with the finals temporarily scheduled for Saturday at 7 p.m.

A Most Valuable Player Award and an all star team will be chosen by the fans after the tourney.

Other teams listed to open play Tuesday were Sioux Falls, O'Neill, Columbus and West Point, turning the event into a seven team tournament.

The Wayne town team, aiming to start its season last Sunday, rescheduled its meeting with Homer tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. in the city ball park.

This Sunday the town team is slated to meet arch-rival Wakefield at the Wakefield diamond. Game time again is 8 p.m.

As of late Tuesday there was no definite word on whether Wakefield rescheduled its rained out game with Dakota City for tonight.

In tournament golf, the Wayne Country Club postponed its second annual Memorial Day tournament until August. According to club president Del Stollenberg, the meet tentatively is set for Aug. 26.

Area race drivers had to hold off running the tracks last week because of rain, with hopes set for next Sunday night at Norfolk's Riviera Raceway and South Sioux City's track.

Legion, Midget Teams Face Oakland Friday

The Wayne Midget and Legion teams, after their road trip to St. Paul and Aurora, will open their season Friday night when they host Oakland.

Monday night both squads will start play in the Ralph Bishop League by hosting Wisner.

Wakefield, also playing in the league, will be matched against the Wallhill Lyons team in Midget action Monday.

According to Hank Overin, Wayne coach, Walthill, Winside and Bancroft are the only members of the eight team league that do not have Legion teams.

In other league action Monday, Laurel Legion and Midgets travel to Pender and Winside Midgets visit Bancroft.

Sun Shines Down on Memorial Day Program

SUNNY SKIES greeted viewers of Monday's Memorial Day parade and program in Wayne. The parade marched up Main and Seventh Streets to Greenwood Cemetery for services to recognize men who fought and died in the nation's wars. Zachariah Boughn of Belton spoke to the gathering about the "strangest war in history." He labeled the Vietnam conflict as a "half war" because the United States was denied the right to "fight to win." As a result, the Vietnam vet is called the forgotten man of America, he said. Picture identification, from left: Members of the VFW women's auxiliary ride in a car during the parade; the Wayne High band gives its rendition of favorite American songs; flower girl Kim Gamble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Gamble of Wayne, decorated graves with flowers; as did Christi Wert, Pamela Maier, Carla and Jodi Frevert, Valerie Bush, Jodi Fleer, Julie Creighton, Michelle Doring, Laraine Longe, Nancy Heifhold and Debra Wert. World War I vet Ernie Allvin, left, and World War II vet Albert Soules, both of Wayne, reminisce about past wars.

'Hey, Ma,
Where's Breakfast!'

THREE very young — and very hungry — robins cry out for food in a nest perched in a most unlikely spot: on the wheel of a truck parked in a Coryell Auto Co. parking lot. Meanwhile, their mother — or father, we're not quite sure which — chirps from atop a nearby fence post, warning strangers to stay away from the nest. It's probably the only vehicle on the parking lot which isn't for sale. At least not for another week or so.

Bud Hanson NETV to Broadcast Mark 25th Watergate Hearings

In observance of their 25th wedding anniversary Mr. and Mrs. W.E. (Bud) Hanson of Concord entertained at supper May 22.

Guests were Paul Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Johnson and Craig, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Creamer and Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Backstrom and Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Pearson and Paul, and Mrs. Don Langren of Onawa, Ia.

Joining them for the evening were the families of Kenneth Olson, Arthur Johnson, Arvid Peterson, Glen Magnuson, George Magnuson, Melvin Magnuson, Wallace Magnuson, Arden Olson, Jim Nelson, Evert Johnson, Marten Johnson, Don Pippitt, Winton Wallin, Pastor Lindgren, Iner Peterson and Roy Hanson.

Cooperative lunch was served. Paultette Hanson cut and served the wedding cake which was a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johnson.

Hansons were married May 22 in Concord and have lived since in the Carroll, Laurel and Concord communities. Their children are Wendel Hanson of Jacksonville, Fla., and Allan, Paultette, Warren, Doreen and Jill Hanson, all at home.

Uninterrupted coverage of the Watergate hearings of June 57 and 12 will be broadcast on the Nebraska Educational Television Network beginning at 7 p.m. each evening.

Ron Hull, network program manager, said there has been an unprecedented response to the public television coverage of the hearings. "Our decision to carry the hearings without local interruption is prompted by the national and local public support of our broadcasts," he noted.

The National Public Affairs Center for Television (NPACT) which has produced the Watergate programs for the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) stations reported that after only two days of hearings over 15,000 letters were received by NPACT supporting its unbridged prime time coverage.

NPACT president Jim Karayn said this response "is a phenomenal result of the fact that public television is uniquely equipped to provide this kind of evening coverage."

In letters viewers have expressed enthusiasm for the unbridged prime time coverage with such comments as, "Because both my husband and I work during the day, we would have no other way of following the testimony of these extremely interesting and informative hearings."

Another viewer wrote, "I find the format much easier to watch especially when important testimony is being given."

Reason for the office closing is the recent cutbacks in federal spending, according to Goldenrod Hills officials.

OBSERVATIONS

A small step

A special compliment ought to go out to those businessmen who have been working to get the Birthday Bucks promotion started in Wayne.

It's not easy to get enough businessmen and individuals to back a new promotion, as anybody who has tried it can probably tell you. It's probably harder once a promotion has been dropped and nothing was ready to replace it, as happened with Wayne's Thursday night cash drawings.

But thanks to a few businessmen who are concerned about keeping the local business area active and strong, a weekly Birthday Bucks promotion will be started next Thursday, June 7.

The weekly drawings, which will offer a jackpot prize of $300 each week, should help draw more shoppers to the city each Thursday night. And those same shoppers will probably feel more like doing business in local stores at other times during the week.

We have often said that the time when businessmen can lean back and wait for the customers to walk into their stores is past. Competition is increasing almost daily, and all of us are finding we have to work harder to stay in business. Although this is just a small step in that direction, it's a step nevertheless. Maybe we can follow it with other steps.

Lincoln

Dear Editor:

Long ago I became interested in the hundreds of Nebraskans who came to the state as children from orphanages in the East. The great contribution made to the development of the state by these "New York orphans" has been largely unrecognized. At last I have time to work on a history of those orphans who began coming to Nebraska by the trainload in the 1890's and continued to arrive as late as 1924.

I am particularly interested in hearing from orphans who came here in the 1890's, or from their descendants, in order that a comprehensive history may be compiled, but I am also interested in hearing from those who came in later years. Any information will be welcomed.

What 100 New Factory Workers Mean To A Town

Chamber of Commerce of the United States

'Real issue isn't growth or not, it's the nature of the growth'

While the community growth versus non-growth argument is indeed a valid subject for debate in this country today, there are still areas of the country that are seeking new industry and profiting by it.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in a newly revised study, "What 100 New Workers Mean to a Community," explains that happens when new industrial jobs are created in a community.

The report studied economic and other changes occurring in 10 countries which became industrialized between 1960 and 1970, as contrasted with 10 countries which did not industrialize.

Here's what 100 new factory workers mean to a town: 351 more people, 79 more school children, $1,036,000 more personal income per year, 97 more families, $488,000 more bank deposits, one more retail establishment, 68 more persons employed in nonmanufacturing and $565,000 more retail sales per year.

The study also looked into the nation's metropolitan areas. Here's what 100 new workers (manufacturing and nonmanufacturing) mean to them: 245 more people, 80 more school children, $872,000 more retail sales per year, two more retail establishments and 69 more families.

Of course, individual communities will have to decide for themselves whether to attract new business to their areas, the national Chamber says, but adds:

"Economic growth will still be needed in the future, if only to provide the means of improving the quality of life, and growth can occur as a result of technological progress and more efficient use of resources even if population growth tapers off.

"The real issue is not growth or no growth, but rather the nature of economic growth, especially its qualitative aspects."

YOU AND YOUR CAR

By the Automotive Information Council

Dashboard: Systems Monitor
This is the age of instant information. Those little red lights on your car's instrument panel monitor vital functions and let you know the instant a system isn't working right.

The three most familiar — and important — lights indicate low generator (or alternator) charging rate, low oil pressure and high water temperature.

When the alternator warning light glows, more current is being taken out of the battery than is being supplied by the alternator. You won't damage anything by driving a short distance, but the battery will soon become discharged. Shut off radio, air conditioning and all other unnecessary electrical accessories and have the charging system checked.

The water temperature warning light indicates the coolant is near its boiling point. You may be able to put the light out by shutting off air conditioning, putting the transmission in neutral whenever you come to a stop and speeding up the engine a bit. Have the system checked. Never remove the radiator cap from an overheated engine.

If the oil pressure light goes on, pull off the road as soon as possible and shut off the engine. Check the oil level. If there's enough oil in the engine but the light still glows, don't drive until the condition has been checked out.

If the brake light glows with the engine running, release the parking brake. When it continues to shine, or comes on when you apply brakes, fluid is low in either the front or rear brake system. You can still stop the car with brakes on only two wheels, but it takes longer and requires more pedal pressure. Drive slowly to the nearest service outlet and have the brake system serviced.

All cars have a light indicating when the headlights are on high beam. Some also have lamps to remind you to fasten seat belts or to let you know a door or tailgate is ajar. And, if the left or right turn indicator light stays on instead of flashing on and off, it means a burned out bulb or an electrical problem.

Pay attention to those little lights. They're monitoring expensive machinery and contributing to the safety of you and your family.

Senators are biding time as Exxon eyes latest bills

LINCOLN—This is sweat it out time for state legislators who got bills passed late last week and are awaiting Gov. J. James Exon's reaction.

The lawmakers worked their 89th day of the year last Friday, then took a week off to see if the chief executive would exercise his veto power.

They are to reassemble this Friday to consider overriding any vetoes which materialize, take care of any other last-minute business, pass the traditional raft of resolutions praising everyone from the press to the sergeants as arms for their help this year and then adjourn the 1973 Legislature for good.

The greatest unresolved question going into the last days of the session was the No. 1 issue of the year—state school aid. It appeared LB 472, the flagship of the school assistance fleet, was headed toward passage and would be one of the highlight topics for this Friday's veto override maneuvering.

When the lawmakers returned last Wednesday after a long weekend for their 87th working day, they spent most of the time on tax bills.

Twice they refused to adopt an amendment which would have rolled the state personal income tax rate back by two percentage points.

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, sponsor of the amendment, said if the state is collecting more revenue than expected from the 15 per cent income tax rate this year, adjustments ought to be made immediately. His amendment would have made a 13 per cent rate effective retroactively to Jan. 1, leaving Warner about 25 votes to get that done and most veteran statehouse observers thought it would be a shoo-in. He got 21 on his first try and 24 on the second attempt, much to the surprise of the galleries and Warner himself.

It was considered rare for a Legislature to turn down an opportunity to cut taxes.

Warner, however, didn't give up. He planned to strip another bill of its original language and try to run it through as a tax-cut proposal.

The results of that attempt weren't available when this was written.

There were many political overtones in the voting on the Warner proposal because Exon has said he would, as chairman of the State Board of Equalization, cut the 1974 income tax rates.

By passing up the opportunity to do it themselves, legislators who have had some classic battles this session with the governor were giving him a chance to take credit for the cuts in what will be an election year—one in which Exon is expected to seek a second term.

In fact, the bulk of the senators opposing Warner's first two attempts to make the income tax rate roll back were Democrats, political brethren of the governor.

One of the Democratic senators, John Cavanaugh III of Omaha, also offered an unsuccessful amendment. He wanted to reverse the income tax rates—make the same 15 to 13 per cent switch Warner had proposed—but he coupled that with a transfer of the rate-setting authority from the executive branch to the Legislature.

Cavanaugh said the legislators are

"cowardly" if they authorize spending and then leave it up to the State Board of Equalization—which is composed of the governor, auditor, secretary of state, treasurer and tax commissioner—to set the necessary tax rates.

The lawmakers have held steady ever since the state switched from a property tax to a sales and income tax system in preferring to have the governor-led board make the rate decisions.

There wasn't any change in that attitude last week and Cavanaugh's amendment was rejected by a wide margin.

Guard Camp Canceled

It would take too much fuel needed elsewhere in the state's economy, Gov. Exon said last week, for the National Guard to make its annual caravan to Ft. Carson, Colorado for summer camp.

The governor canceled the encampment.

Guardsmen will receive their summer training at facilities closer to the home base of units, Exon said after conferences with guard officials.

In addition to calling off the trip to the Colorado fort for the guardsmen, Exon issued a proclamation in which he urged Nebraska government, business, industry and private citizens to make every effort to conserve fuel.

Farmers, truckers and others who rely on fuel to earn their living have been reporting increasing difficulty in finding supplies to keep their tractors and trucks going.

UN-L Hosting Representatives From Colleges
Representatives of 11 Nebraska technical-community, state colleges and universities are meeting at the University of Nebraska through this week in the third in a series of workshops and seminars concerning pre-engineering instruction in Nebraska.

Last summer, college representatives attended a workshop at the University on the instruction of freshman engineering courses in pre-engineering programs at other colleges in the state.

During January there was a followup seminar which attracted faculty members from 17 Nebraska colleges.

Representatives attending the workshops include those from Northeastern Nebraska Technical Community College at Norfolk and Wayne State College.

The workshops are designed to show faculty from other schools the type of educational programs required of University engineering students during their first two years. The ultimate goal is to smooth the transfer of pre-engineering students from colleges in Nebraska to the College of Engineering.

Muddy Feedlots
This past winter has been a real trial for farmer-feeders and their cattle. A better understanding of why muddy feedlots cause losses will help each feeder decide on whether remedies are needed.

The main cause of high death loss has been the lack of energy and rest for cattle, lowering their resistance to infectious diseases.

Cattle didn't have a dry place for resting for weeks at a time, and fatigue destroyed the motivation required to fight through the mud to feed bunks and water tanks. I imagine most feeders can remember how tired you got this past winter as you waded through the mud doing the chores, and it's much worse for cattle who have to live in the mud 24 hours a day.

Bovine respiratory disease (a complex of bacterial infections triggered by viruses) was the most common infectious disease involved in feedlot deaths.

Not only did the mud cause death losses, but it was also the main cause of expensive gains this past winter.

Next Season
We can expect more muddy feedlots in future years, so now is the time to prepare feedlots so as much mud as possible can be avoided.

Mounds, shaping the feedlot by machines, drainage or diversion ditches and concrete around the feed bunks and water can all be of help. The main thing is to do some planning and work before a wet season sets in.

Fuel Shortage
They tell me the fuel shortage will be with us for some time, so now is a good time to start thinking about next fall's corn harvest.

There are a number of advantages to early corn harvest, including reduced field losses and avoiding the cold and often muddy field conditions of late October. Also, it helps spread the harvest season to make the use of machinery less costly.

But early harvest often means wet corn, wet corn needs to be dried and grain driers use a lot of fuel.

The advantages of early harvest are obvious, and I think this practice should continue to be encouraged. You might consider putting early harvested grain in the silo. Whole grain can be put in oxygen-limiting vertical silos, but it must be ground and packed before put into a horizontal silo.

If you plan on using fuel to dry your corn it would be well to buy

Speeches were given by Jill Kenny, secretary; Carol Peterson, music; June Hansen, hair care; and Holly Rees, trip to Denver.

Speakers at the next meeting will be Peggy Bowers, Sandy Bowers, Judy Kavanaugh and Jeanne Harmer.

The June 4 meeting will be at 2 p.m. at the Carroll auditorium.

Silhouettes Are For Road Safety

The white airplane-shaped silhouettes appearing on selected segments of the state highways are safety measures to help motorists stay within posted speed limits, says the Nebraska Department of Roads.

Spaced exactly one mile apart, the silhouettes aid motorists in obeying speed limits as well as help the Nebraska State Patrol apprehend violators through aerial surveillance, according to the DOR.

The new program is the result of a recommendation from the Governor's Traffic Safety Advisory Committee. A committee spokesman said the silhouettes hopefully will play a significant role in reducing excessive speed and deaths on the state's highways. The silhouettes are part of a comprehensive effort to cut back Nebraska's traffic toll, he said.

Gardening Tips

Each year the home gardener must decide whether to stake and prune the tomatoes, let them sprawl over a mulched soil or use cages.

If garden space is limited, staking will conserve space. With staking, vines are pruned to produce more fruit. In extremely hot weather, staked vines may lack adequate foliage to prevent the fruit from sunburning.

Rough cut lumber stakes six to eight feet all should be driven into the ground two feet. Keep the stakes three to four inches away from the tomatoes. Plants should be loosely tied to the stake every 12 inches up the stake with twine, cloth or soft plastic. Plants staked and pruned to a single stem should have suckers pinched every few days as they form.

Concrete reinforcing wire in a four to five foot width can be used to make 18-20 inch cylinders. These cages, when the lowest horizontal wire is removed, will set neatly in the soil over a tomato transplant. With this method no pruning is necessary. Occasionally stems may need to be pushed back into their cages. Cages may need to be staked to stabilize them in high winds.

The best alternative is to allow your plants to grow un hindered over a mulched soil floor.

UN-L Economists Sees More Cattle Put on Feed

Although variables change constantly and with little warning, the price and supply outlook for hogs, cattle and feed grains can be tentatively predicted based on the current situation. And these predictions have been made by Dr. Al Wellman, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension economist.

Concerning the cattle outlook, Wellman said that he expects more cattle to be placed on feed than a year ago at this time. But even though the actual number of cattle will be up, the percentage of increase will probably be down, he pointed out.

Two factors contribute to this trend — feeder cattle will probably be higher priced, due to competition between feedlots and ranch and range people who have a good grass crop this year, and the profit margin will tighten up with a combination of high feeder cattle prices and more unstable feed grain prices.

Since competition tightens up the supply for feeder cattle even though more feeder cattle are available, replacements will be expensive, said Wellman. Early fall prices will probably change little from last fall, averaging over $60 for 350-400 pound calves and $50.54 for 600-700 pound feeder steers.

Wellman added, "It looks like the total cattle inventory on farms in January, 1974, will be up by three to four per cent, coming to a total of over 126 million head. And the 1973 calf crop will be over 50 million head, up from last year by two million head."

Price predictions for slaughter cattle forecast a hold of present prices until late summer, Wellman said. The market may experience a slight weakness sometime in May or June but it will level out until late summer and then, as feeder cattle come off of grazing areas and slaughter cattle marketings pick up, prices may trend downward to the $42.44 range by the end of the year.

The current hog situation seems about ready to change, according to Wellman. May hog slaughter will be larger than the same month a year ago and indications are that pork supplies in 1973 will be larger than in 1972.

"These increased supplies will start weakening the price fairly shortly, although we will probably have good prices through out the summer. Hog prices will remain in the $33-36 range at the Omaha market until mid summer and then trend downward until the end of the year, possibly to the $28.30 range." Of course, this downward trend is greatly affected by the demand. Consumer incomes are increasing and there is a good possibility that export demand will pick up and so a combination of such factors could soften the declines," concluded Wellman.

Feed grain prices again are extremely flexible, but based on the current situation, feed grain prices near harvest time probably will be higher this year than last year. Feed and protein costs will probably be higher for stockmen. A higher price may be stimulated by export demand since several foreign countries are expected to be in the market for U.S. feed grains, wheat and soybeans.

With this kind of foreign demand, it's possible that domestic livestock feed supplies may be only equal to or even less than last year's supplies, noted Wellman.

Hubbard Pig Power... the first pig starter formulated on the basis of amino acid balance.

There's nothing new about amino acid balance in meat-type swine rations, but now, for the first time, it is being done in a pig starter. And with startling results. Hubbard Research tests on new Pig Power, followed by on-farm trials, resulted in the following improvements over conventional pig starting programs:

- 5 pounds heavier pigs at 8 weeks
- 13% improved feed efficiency
- $25 pounds less feed for 25 pounds gain
- 10% less cost per pound of gain

'I Have Reasons to Brag About Our Food, People'

By BETTY KAVANAUGH

It seems I'm constantly bragging about the Midwest and our immediate area. To some this may seem conceited, but I have plenty of reasons.

For instance, recently we had visitors from a large western city. Although she had grown up in this area, she had never had any personal contact with a country town, farmers or a farm area.

Of course, we were determined to show him this was the greatest place in the entire United States. We knew he loved good food, yet we were going to prove to him he had never eaten a steak until he came to Nebraska. So we started out to one of our fine steak houses in the area.

If you have ever put your best foot forward and tripped, you'll understand the situation we soon found ourselves in.

First of all, it was hard for me to understand that our work isn't governed by a time clock — this was one those days when the six o'clock whistle merely told us it was six o'clock.

Incidentally, the whistle fascinated him too. He thought it amusing that everyone in town had the same time clock yet few people observed it.

Also, another previous evening engagement detained us and it was quite late when we were motoring north of Wayne, on our way to feast on a Nebraska steak.

Now, if my name is ever listed among the divorce proceedings you can bet the family car will be the "other party." It's usually out of gas whenever the Chief takes the controls. But this particular night, getting close to midnight, the car seemed to have a sufficient amount of gas to avoid a family disagreement. Suddenly, the car swerved, rocked and loped along. It didn't seem like much of a problem because we had a new spare tire and there were two men along. But the crisis came when we discovered we didn't have a key to the trunk.

Daughter had driven the car to school that day and had removed the trunk key and left it at home — she didn't want to lose both keys.

Thank goodness there was company along or she might have lost her Mother.

Had I been alone, I'd have immediately called home for help, but since "help" was there and I was protected by the visitors, I felt confident he would find a solution to the problem.

He walked to a nearby farm house and returned shortly in the farmer's car. I didn't understand what they were trying to do — and I didn't ask. I just kept assuring our visitors he'd have us on the road again in no time.

They walked around the car, looked at the flat tire, rubbed their chins and returned to the farmer's car. Now he already knew the tire was flat so that couldn't have been the discussion. Then they got into the farmer's car and left again.

Within a few minutes the Chief came walking back to the car alone. I still didn't ask what he planned to do or what he had done. He was so perfectly calm I knew he'd found a solution. Yet, for the life of me, I couldn't figure out what it could be.

A one-sided conversation about the clear country air and the bright stars failed to curb our visitor's fear of being stranded forever miles from nowhere. Finally, they were brave enough to ask how we were going to get out of our dilemma.

He proudly informed them that a farmer, whose car was similar to ours, was coming and he would loan us his spare tire.

We were unaware that the visitor whom we were trying to impress was already overwhelmed. The fact that the first farmer had driven his new car out on a dark road in the middle of the night to help us was amazing to him. But the thought of another farmer coming out to give us his spare tire was about all he could comprehend.

"The honesty of these people," he kept repeating.

Sure enough, within a few minutes the car almost like ours stopped behind us.

The farmer had been working later than usual and was still in his chore clothes. When the farmer saw my husband so uncomfortably and embarrassingly attired in "businessman's" clothes, the farmer did most of the work.

In fact, the farmer hardly recognized him in dress clothes. But we tried to impress the visitors that this was his normal attire... stiff neck, straight back and all.

Then because we couldn't get into our trunk, the farmer took our tire. We agreed we'd take his tire to a Wayne gas station and pick up our own.

Our visitor couldn't understand why there was no high fee involved. We tried to explain that the majority of people here abouts don't expect cash for such deeds, only the passing along of the deed to others.

Then he wondered about the gas station. All we had was a verbal agreement. What if the station attendant "cobbed" the tires?

Well, we didn't know what he was talking about.

This gave him proof of the people who we'd been bragging about... and later the steak gave him the proof of the food.

Yessir, I think that's all the proof I need to do a little bragging about the Wayne area and the people who make it such a great place to live.
