25 Students at WH Earn Perfect Grades

Twenty-five students at Wayne High School earned all A grades (1.0) during the fourth quarter grading period, school officials report.

They were among 155 students named to the honor roll during the grading period.

To be named to the honor roll, students must achieve B (2.0) or better averages for subjects completed. Grades in music, art, physical education and driver education are not used to compute the honor roll.

The all-A students were:

Seniors — Dawn Carman, Catherine Cook, Joyce Haun, Sally Kenny, Sally Lesberg, Lisa Lesh, Rene Milligan, Deb Shultheis, Nancy Stanley, Connie Sutherland and Jeannie Wacker.

Juniors — Jane Austin, Deb Bodenstedt, Marji Lundstrom, Stephanie Mendyk, Kay Pankratz and Beth Pedersen.

Sophomores — Lori Greunkne, Erin O'Donnell and Carol Peterson.

Freshmen — Jennifer Johnson, Kris Nedergaard, Mike Schmidt, Jo Tomrile and Anna Victor.

Students receiving grades between 1.0 and 1.5 were:

Freshmen — Jodie Draghu, Kathy Dranselka, Donn Dutton, Judy Janke, Tom Johanson, Rhonda Kniesche, Phil Koerber, Lori Lesh, Karen Nolte.

Receiving grades between 1.5 and 2.0 were:

Seniors — Dave Anderson, Arlin Cary, Barb Daniels, Teresa Dranselka, Lisa Einung, Jill Froehlich, Dan Grone, Duane Grasse, Linda Hafl, Lou Ann Victor.

Local Stores Are Offering $300 Prize

Shoppers in Wayne stores tonight (Thursday) can only win — they can't lose — as the city kicks off its new Birthday Bucks promotion.

The person who is present in one of the participating stores when the lucky birthday is announced at 8:15 p.m. will win $300 in Birthday Bucks which can be used just like cash in any of those stores or firms.

The date selected at random earlier today will be announced at that time, and the person whose birthday falls on that day will be the winner.

In case of more than one person being present with the same birthday, the prize will be divided equally.

Shoppers can't lose, because $50 in Birthday Bucks will be given away if nobody is present who was born on that date. They will go to the person whose birthday is closest to the selected date.

About 80 businesses, stores and firms are participating in the weekly promotion, which will offer $300 in Birthday Bucks each week.

Wayne Native To Graduate at Milford Today

Pat Vrtiska, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Vrtiska of Wayne, will graduate today (Thursday) at Nebraska Technical College at Milford.

A graduate of Wayne High School, he will receive a degree in electronic data processing.

A total of 140 students will graduate during the ceremony, pushing over the 5,000 mark the number of students to receive degrees from the school.

ALTHOUGH "GRANDMA ELIZA" is well into her seventies, she keeps herself busy with her latest pastime, painting. Herald colorphoto by Norvin Hansen.

Concord Woman Keeps Brushin' Away

Don't tell Concord's "Grandma Eliza" that you can't teach an old dog new tricks.

She just might pull out her box of paint brushes and go to work on another one of her paintings.

"Grandma Eliza," you see, is really Eliza Isom, who took up painting about three years ago and is still going strong at 77 years of age.

And she's pretty good at it, too. She has won first place the last three years in the art show held during the Dixon County Fair, and she has sold numerous paintings, some of them for about $10 each.

Mrs. Isom, who lives with her husband in Concord, took up painting with oils after her granddaughter, Mrs. Noelyn Isom of rural Concord, gave her a gift of a set of drawings which are completed by painting according to numbers. After working on them during the winter, she decided to give painting

$100 Prize Offered to The Top 'Budget Buster'

Readers of this issue of The Wayne Herald will find plenty of good reading inside.

For example:

- A sports columnist's look at the teams making up the Northeast Nebraska baseball league this year.
- A photo feature about what it's like for a little Wakefield girl to attend Bible school.
- An in-depth look at the controversial state aid to school issue the state legislature wrestled with once again.
- A story on Monday night's Wayne-Carroll school board meeting.

These stories and features — and plenty of others — are offered inside this issue, which is being distributed throughout Northeast Nebraska. More than 7,000 copies of the paper were printed for delivery.

Sharpen your pencils, sit down with this issue of The Wayne Herald and take a crack at winning $100.

The newspaper is offering that prize in a gift certificate to the person who can total up the most dollars and cents in savings by comparing regular prices with special prices and discounts offered in advertisements in this issue of the paper.

The contest is simple. It goes like this:

If an ad lists the regular price of a bottle of shampoo at 98 cents and has a special on it at 67 cents, your savings is 32 cents. Or if a pair of shoes sell for $12.98 regularly but are offered at $10.17, your savings is $2.81. And if a firm offers you 10 per cent off a $357 television set, your savings is $35.70. That totals up to $38.83 in savings on just three items.

What you do, is go through all the ads inside this issue of the paper and try to save as much as possible on everything you can.

The person who finds the most savings wins the $100 gift certificate which can be used in any stores or firms advertising in this issue of the paper.

In case of a tie, a drawing will be held to determine the winner.

A full-page advertisement elsewhere in this issue further explains the contest rules and contains an entry blank for you to use after you've decided the most you can save.

One reminder: you must compare regular prices with special prices and offers in individual ads.

Herald special report by Sandra Breitkreutz

Those Twisting Tails Can Be Vicious Killers

Do you know what to do when a tornado warning is announced? Do you know the difference between a tornado watch and a tornado warning? What will your children do if there is a weather alert when you are not with them?

Is the danger really that great right here?

Watch—Watch for It! Warning—Run for It!

When a TORNADO WATCH is announced on your radio or television station it means tornadoes are likely in or near your area.

No siren will be sounded at this time.

Keep your radio or television set tuned in for further information and advice. Watch the sky, especially to the south and southwest. If you see any revolving, funnel-shaped clouds, report them by telephone immediately to local police, fire department or sheriff's office.

When a TORNADO WARNING is in effect it means a tornado has actually been sighted and may strike in your area. A warning signal will be sounded in most towns (see chart for your own signal). Take cover and wait for the all-clear signal.

Yes, according to a recently completed 16-year study by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Results of the study show Nebraska ranks fourth from the top in tornado incidence.

Texas ranked first with 1,758 tornadoes during the testing period, Oklahoma second with 1,042, Kansas third with 876 and Nebraska fourth with 571. Close behind were Missouri, 496, Florida, 435, and Iowa, 428.

In an average year tornadoes kill more than 100 persons in the United States, according to officials.

What can you do to protect yourself and your family from a possible tornado?

Plan Ahead

Most of all, plan ahead. Educate your children to be aware of weather conditions. Train them to listen for warning signals and to follow a specific routine when the alarm is sounded. Conduct practice drills from various places — at home, on the road, during hikes or picnics. The time spent will be little, kids will even find the drills entertaining and you may save a life.

Where To Go

If you are home when the alert sounds, open some windows on the side away from the storm, then stay away from them. Take shelter in a basement, preferably beneath a heavy piece of furniture, but not beneath a heavy appliance on the upper floor. If there is no basement, go to the center of the house in a small room and take cover beneath heavy furniture.

In an office building go to an interior hallway on the lowest floor or to a designated shelter area. Do not go to your parked car.

In open country move away from the tornado's path at a right angle. If there is no time, lie flat in the nearest depression with your hands shielding your head. Keep in mind flash floods which may quickly fill drainage ditches or dry creek beds. Also remember to stay clear of and well below the nearest high, conductive object, for lightning may be as much a threat as the wind.

Mobile homes are particularly vulnerable to strong winds and should be evacuated. If there is no shelter nearby, leave the trailer park for low, protected ground.

Schools usually have taught children a specified plan of action. Find out

Many people work together to offer you the best protection possible during severe weather periods.

During a tornado watch, members of the Wayne police department keep a lookout from one or more vantage points, says chief Pat Halley. If police sight a tornado or have a sighting reported to them by the Norfolk Weather Service or private citizens, they radio the city light plant to sound the warning signal — three 30-second blasts, separated by two 15-second periods of silence.

The loudspeaker system on the police cars is also put into use to further warn residents.

KTCH Radio Station has been designated an emergency broadcasting system for Northeast Nebraska, according to assistant manager Tom Schnepf, and will be on the air during all tornado warnings to inform citizens in Dixon, Dakota, Cedar, Thurston, Wayne, Stanton and Madison Counties of weather changes.

The radio will report where funnels have been sighted, their direction and velocity and other information given by the National Weather Service at Norfolk or individual citizens who call in.

Also serving the area with special reports during weather alerts are the Norfolk radio station and Sioux City television stations.

A citizen's handbook, "In Time of Emergency," was recently distributed by Wayne County Civil Defense to each home in the county, notes T. P. Roberts, county Civil Defense director.

The handbook contains lists of public shelters for use during storms, signals for Wayne County towns and instructions for proper action during weather alerts.

Clip and Save

 WARNING — Three 30-second blasts, separated by two 15-second periods of silence.	 WARNING — Three 60-second blasts separated by two 30-second periods of silence.	 WARNING — One continuous blast.	 WARNING — One continuous blast.	 WARNING — One-minute continuous blast.	 WARNING — One two-minute blast.
 ALL-CLEAR — One 40-second blast.	 ALL-CLEAR — One long blast.	 ALL-CLEAR — Two short blasts.	 ALL-CLEAR — Two short blasts.	 ALL-CLEAR — One short blast.	 ALL-CLEAR — Three short blasts.

According to Thomas Roberts, Wayne County Civil Defense director, a plan whereby all towns have the same warning signals may be initiated in the future. But for the present, you should memorize and be on the alert for these signals. Note that no warning signals have been set up for the communities of Allen, Belden, Concord or Dixon.

State aid to schools goes to wire ...and fails twice

LINCOLN — The school aid question went to the wire again in 1973.

The mainline aid bill, Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner's LB 472, was passed on the next-to-last day of the session. That was May 25. The senators then took a week off to let the governor do any vetoing he had in mind and give them a chance to make override attempts before adjourning for good.

Exon had some vetoes in mind — especially for Warner's school bill.

The governor announced his decision last week and it came as no surprise. It certainly wasn't any surprise to Warner, who was so sure the veto was coming that he filed his override motion with the clerk back on May 25.

It was there waiting when the lawmakers reconvened June 1 to handle accumulated vetoes, consider some last bills on final reading, pass resolutions on interim studies and pull down the curtain on 1973's 90-day session.

Warner, who got 35-8 support when the measure was passed a week earlier, wasn't sure if he could hold at least 30 of those votes for the override. It takes a minimum of 30 senators to adopt a bill over the objections of the governor.

Two attempts to override Exon's veto failed — both times only 29 senators cast support behind Warner's bill.

His bill would have started taking effect with the 1974-75 school year at half pace and be fully implemented with the 1975-76 academic year. When at full stride it would have turned 50 per cent of the operating costs of public elementary and secondary schools over to the state.

That would have resulted in reductions in school property taxes in most of the state's districts. The amount of the cut would vary according to the per pupil cost, the property valuation and other factors affecting an individual district. But overall, the reduction would have been 50 per cent.

To provide the money to allow the local tax cuts, the state would have had to increase its sales and income rates. The sales tax would have risen by one per cent and the personal income tax by five per cent.

Although he put the veto on LB 472, Exon did sign another school aid measure. That was LB 172, sponsored by Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue.

The Lewis bill takes $20 million out of the state's share of federal revenue sharing money and adds it to the present state aid program of $35 million for the 1973-74 school year.

Exon said he doesn't know what would be done the following year — assuming his veto sticks and the Warner measure doesn't pick up where the Lewis bill stops.

The governor did say it would be "very difficult" to cut back to $35 million in state aid again after a year at $55 million. The alternative would be to increase state taxes and make up the difference.

That would become necessary because Nebraska isn't scheduled to get as much revenue sharing money in future years. This time, 18 months' worth was available because the federal program started in the middle of a fiscal year.

Also to be settled on the 90th and final day of the 1973 session was the big tax cut question.

Warner had proposed that the state income tax rate be set back a couple of percentage points, retroactively to the first of the year. Exon has said he preferred to have any adjustments made on the 1974 tax rates.

The final vote on the Warner proposal was to be held last Friday, followed by the governor's decision on whether to sign a tax cut bill if it passes.

The 1973 session had completed much of its work before the fallend fireworks.

The lawmakers adopted an abortion bill which is in direct conflict to a recent ruling by the U. S. Supreme Court. The Nebraska legislation says every effort must be made to save the life of the unborn child when pregnancy is interrupted, while the nation's top court had said abortion was permissible during the first three months of pregnancy.

The Legislature also passed a bill which reinstated the death penalty, after the high court had ruled that capital punishment statutes such as Nebraska's previously had been unconstitutional. The new law specifies crimes which can be punished by execution.

There was a classic battle over the budget. The operations budget was adopted without amendment and the capital construction appropriations were adopted with a flock of amendments. But the total spending, in the long run, wasn't much different than Exon had originally recommended.

The lawmakers reversed their 1972 stand and revoked their ratification of the so-called Equal Rights Amendment to the U. S. Constitution. That decision still is in legal limbo.

OBSERVATIONS

Seventh and Main becoming ridiculous

Motorists using the Seventh and Main intersection in Wayne are probably even more confused now than they have been for the past several years.

State workers last week painted white directional signals at the intersection. The arrows were meant to help drivers. What they do is confuse them.

The way the white arrows are now painted, drivers have a hard time telling whether there is just one lane, one and a half or two lanes they are to use while going through the intersection. In a way, it was better not having those arrows painted on the pavement since many of the people who regularly use the intersection had figured out or heard by word of mouth what lanes they were to use.

For some odd reason, the state refuses to put overhead signs at the intersection, something which we think would make it simpler and safer for drivers passing through it. Instead, they insist on painting white and yellow markings on the pavement. Those markings wear off in a few weeks or soon get covered with dirt or snow, making them next to impossible to understand.

Plenty of other intersections and highways in the state have overhead signs. Those on the Interstate system in the state are so easy to understand that drivers can zip down the road 70 or 75 miles an hour and still stay in their correct lanes.

The situation at Seventh and Main would be ludicrous if it were not so dangerous. It's too bad the state officials responsible can't understand that.

Freedom of the press benefits all Americans

Newspapers across the country are marking Freedom of the Press Day today.

In light of developments and ramifications of the Watergate investigations, we think everybody — not just people whose job it is to publish newspapers — should take special pride in living in a country where the freedom of the press to question those in power remains as strong as when the principle was founded with the birth of this nation. Without that freedom, the American people may never have learned about the things that went on at the Watergate complex... or about the even more sinister things that went on after that national blackeye.

We only want to emphasize one thing:

all Americans — and not just those in the newspaper business — benefit from freedom of the press. Everybody, including those in newspapers at times, too often forget that freedom of the press is a basic right of everybody living in this country. And if that freedom is ever diluted or taken away, all Americans — from the ditch digger to the minister to the teacher to the reporter — will be injured.

Freedom of the press is one of the major reasons for this country's greatness. It just so happens that it is also one of the major reasons for the greatness of our newspapers.

WAY BACK WHEN

30 Years Ago

June 17, 1943: Wayne Ice & Cold Storage Co. sold its compressor to a firm at Worthington, Minn., and shipped the equipment there this week. The local firm will continue to retail ice but will ship it here in carload lots from Sioux City. Original applications to replace gasoline A ration books will be available after June 22. An oil stove in the basement of Mrs. Mae Freese's residence caught fire Saturday morning and threatened the property. Firemen responded promptly and the flames were soon under control. Northeast Nebraska Farmers Union convention for 10 counties will be held in Wayne October 13. About three inches of moisture came to this vicinity the past weekend in heavy rains and showers.

25 Years Ago

June 10, 1948: Dr. Howard M. Field will succeed Dr. Katherine Merry as summer biology and zoology instructor at Wayne State Teachers College. Dr. Merry resigned to work in a girls' summer camp. Dr. Victor West, pastor of the Wayne Methodist Church the past eight years will leave this community to accept the pastorate of the Methodist Church in Pierce. Taking his place in Wayne will be Rev. E. E. Golay. The American Legion Auxiliary is planning to sponsor a movie the latter part of June to raise money to purchase benches and tables for Memorial Park. Ten 4-H girls clubs have been organized in Wayne County.

20 Years Ago

June 4, 1953: A complete liquidation sale at the Central Garage Wednesday, June 10, brings to a close 37 years in the garage business for Walt Miller and Minnie Strickland, brother and sister partnership. A baton twirling clinic will be held at Wayne City schools June 8-12, Hazel Reeve Smith announced. A break in the weather last week gave farmers in this region a chance to wind up their corn planting. Three fire departments were called to the farm operated by Dick Uficht southeast of Wayne Monday morning to fight a fire originating in a garage and spreading to other buildings.

a counter-clockwise direction. Swirling around a partial vacuum core, the winds take on a whirlpool shape and become visible as the feared tornado funnel.

The tornado usually forms in conjunction with a severe thunderstorm. Sometimes two or more tornadoes are associated with a parent thunderstorm. As the thunderstorm moves, tornadoes may form at intervals along its path, travel for a few miles and then dissipate.

The funnel usually appears as an extension of the dark, heavy cumulonimbus thunderstorm clouds and stretches downward toward the ground. Some never reach the surface, others touch and rise again.

On the average, tornado paths are only a quarter of a mile wide and seldom more than 16 miles long.

The forward speed of tornadoes ranges from almost no motion to 70 miles per hour. The average forward speed is 40 miles per hour.

Winds in the funnel whirl at speeds that may exceed 300 miles per hour. As the funnel touches a building, the wind whists and rises at the structure while the vacuum in the center causes windows to explode and walls to collapse outward.

15 Years Ago

June 12, 1958: Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kraemer, former residents near Wayne and Concord, lost all the buildings on their farm 3 1/2 miles northeast of Colfax, Wis., when it was struck by a tornado last Wednesday night. Wayne area residents expressed overwhelming sentiment against installation of parking meters in downtown Wayne. The opinion was expressed through a ballot conducted by The Wayne Herald and in polls at local businesses. Mary Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Wright, Wayne, has been awarded the Ardath Conn scholarship in music at WSTC. Concord's school district will discontinue operation of its high school this year. The move was approved by a 32-26 vote of district patrons at the annual meeting Monday night at the school.

10 Years Ago

June 3, 1963: Wayne Veteran organizations helped observe Memorial Day in Wayne Thursday by sponsoring the parade and service at Greenwood Cemetery. The Wayne Chamber of Commerce is sending Vincent Haese and Harlan Longe to 4-H Club Week in Lincoln this year. J. R. Johnson, WSC faculty member, will be master of ceremonies at the dedication of the Tonawanta historical marker Sunday at 2:30 p.m. The site is on Highway 77, north of Homer. a try to see how well she could do.

The result has been more than 50 paintings, most of them landscapes or wildlife scenes.

To put it simply, she has become hooked on painting: "Lots of time I'll sit up until 1 or 2 a.m. and paint. I'm getting to be an old woman, you know, and I can't sleep."

And painting gives her a great deal of satisfaction: "I think I've accomplished something when I get one done that I like."

She signs all her paintings "Grandma Eliza," but she quickly admits she doesn't like the works of Grandma Moses. "They are always little, dinky figures or buildings," she says of those paintings. "My favorites are landscapes, mountain scenery and such," she notes.

Mrs. Isom's talents don't stop with painting, however. A few years ago a religious hymn she wrote and put to music was published by a publishing firm in Florida. The song is titled "Oh God of Love."

Writing poems is another one of her hobbies, and she has a large book containing her own poems as well as favorite poems which she has clipped from books, magazines and newspapers over the years.

So the next time you're about ready to use that old expression, think about that gray-haired lady in Concord. She has already proven it wrong.

NOW IS THE TIME TO INSURE

Swimming Is Dangerous, Especially Early in Year

Summer brings swimming and fun for many, but death for others.

Rollin D. Schnieder, extension safety specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture, warns that there is danger in "getting into the swim" after eight months away from it.

Schnieder cited a recent incident near Chadron where a youngster ventured past a drop-off. Her father attempted to save her but both drowned.

Schnieder warned that the bottoms of farm ponds and sand pits change over the winter months and that swimmers should always be wary of holes and submerged debris.

During spring Nebraska waters are still cold. This, combined with a swimmer's eight months of inactivity, can easily sap his strength, Schnieder said.

He added that skiers should be especially careful of floating logs and submerged trees during the early season. Recent flooding of the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers has made this a special hazard this year.

Schnieder offers four rules for rescue of a drowning person:

—If possible, reach for the victim from the bank, either with your arm, a branch, fishing rod or clothing.

—If the victim is too far out, throw him something to float on: a spare tire, inner tube, picnic basket, cooler, or log.

Even a pair of jeans with the legs tied and soaked with water will make a small raft when slapped on the surface.

—If the rescuer must go out to the victim, he should row out or float on an inner tube or log.

—When there is no other choice, the rescuer can swim to the victim and pull him to shore.

He should, however, be warned that a drowning person will grab onto a would-be rescuer and may pull him under.

Schnieder said that one of the main causes of drowning is the use of "crutches." Floating devices, he said, can take a non-swimmer out into deep water and fall him on the way back. He warns that small children should never be allowed to use inner tubes, rubber rafts or beach balls in deep water areas.

A walleye-sauger cross is the most common fish hybrid found in Nebraska.

Psychiatric Training Offered Area Persons

Persons in the Wayne area interested in enrolling in a two-year psychiatric technician training program may get more information by writing North-eastern Nebraska College at Norfolk.

The school this year launched the program in cooperation with the Norfolk Regional Center.

Students completing the program qualify to work with mental health patients in a hospital setting or in out-patient care.

There is current need for this type of career training because of the present trend toward rapid return of hospitalized patients back to the community and to an out-patient care situation, college officials say.

The task of the mental hospital no longer ceases when maximum benefit from hospitalization has been received, but must now focus on the transition from hospital to community, they add. The purpose of the psychiatric technician training program is to train individuals who will aid in the transition from inpatient hospitalization to community adjustment.

The curriculum for the psychiatric technician requires 62 semester hours of class work, ordinarily completed in two years, and includes both general studies and special behavior science. The latter includes extensive on-the-job field experiences in cooperation with the Norfolk Regional Center, social services and other community agencies in Northeast Nebraska.

Credit earned in the program may be transferred to a four-year college toward a degree in social work. If the student leaves the program, the core subjects may be used toward educational programs in many other academic or technical fields.

Bigger Checks On Retirement Available Some

A worker who doesn't get any social security benefits before he's 65 and delays his retirement past that age will be eligible for higher payments when he retires, according to Dale Branch, social security district manager in Norfolk.

Benefits increase 1/2th of one per cent for each month—or one per cent for each year—after 1970 if the worker doesn't get social security benefits between age 45 and 72 because of the earnings, he said.

The higher benefit can be paid to retired workers under a new provision of the social security law. It doesn't affect social security payments to their families.

A new provision will mean additional benefits to some workers already getting social security payments, Branch said.

"If a worker already on the rolls qualifies for a higher payment because of the change, he will get an automatic increase in June, and it will be retroactive to January 1973," he said.

Over five million workers will get $198 million in social security increases in 1974 under the new provision, according to Branch.

The Cattle Feeding Business
Will the cattle feeding business ever be the same again? The answer, of course, is no.

Just look at some of the possible changes the banning of DES can mean. It may bring increased interest in feeding young bulls rather than steers. Recent research indicates fed bulls perform very similar in regard to gain and feed efficiency as steers fed DES. Bulls will produce more lean meat than steers, and it has been shown that bull meat is equal in value, quality and palatability to steer meat, although at present this is not reflected in market price.

There will be increased interest in crossbreeding and use of production-tested sires that will increase weaning weight of calves and improve performance in the feedlot.

Another possibility of improvement of feedlot performance of cattle is through better understanding of cattle rations and processing of feeds.

More attention will be focused on insect, internal parasites and diseases that are presently costing the cattle feeding industry millions of dollars each year.

Other Changes
Other changes are occurring in the cattle feeding business. About 80 per cent of all cattle slaughtered today have been on a finishing ration. The average age of fed steers and heifers today is about 18 months compared to 20-21 months in 1969. Calf and grass fed cattle slaughter is almost non-existent today.

In 1969, 1,000 Nebraska feeders fed 60 per cent of the cattle fed in the state. It has been estimated that in 1980, 95 per cent of the cattle will be fed by 2,500 feeders.

The concentration of large numbers of cattle feeders in big lots has brought the advantages of computer formulation of finishing rations and better use of equipment but it has also brought about more disease and sickness problems as well as labor difficulties.

Farmer-Feeder vs. Commercial Feedlot

The truth of the matter is that an efficiently run farmer-feeder cattle feeder can compete with the big commercial feeder as far as feeding is concerned. It's when the farmer-feeder comes to marketing that he may find himself at a disadvantage.

About 20 per cent of the cattle are sold on the carcass basis. The marketing method change is away from the public market selling to selling direct to the packer. Approximately 80 per cent of the fed cattle marketed in Nebraska in 1972 were sold direct. This compares to 45 per cent in 1965.

For the big feeder selling cattle every week this isn't too tough a job. He knows his cattle (time on feed, weights, grades, etc.) and he can evaluate packer bids accurately. But the average farmer-feeder may not be as well informed about the current market information. It has been estimated that over the long run his selling price may average 10-50 cents per cwt. less.

One way of keeping up is by telephoning one of 12 numbers in Nebraska, day or night, and getting the latest current information on livestock and meat prices, federally inspected slaughter, saleable livestock receipts and futures trading. I have a list of these numbers. If anyone is interested, Wayne County farmer-feeders must avail themselves of these services if they are to compete with big commercial feeders.

Gardening Tips

Ever hear of controlling weeds near nut and fruit trees, vines, bushes and strawberry plants with mulch?

It can be done, easily and effectively. In fact, mulch has advantages over herbicides in these cases.

Compost, leaves, grass, well-rotted barnyard manure, straw, hay, bark and similar organic materials will control unwanted vegetation.

Mulch materials are readily available, inexpensive, improve the soil as growing medium for plants and conserve soil moisture. However, when using mulches, watch out for rodent damage to plants. Mulches often become a nesting or feeding site for mice and moles.

Damage can be avoided, however, by keeping the mulch at least a foot away from the trunk or base of the trees, bushes or vines.

Decomposed mulch materials should be applied two inches thick, while more bulky materials should be four inches thick. A combination of old leaves on the bottom with freshly mowed grass or sawdust on top helps keep leaves in place.

WSC Offers New Type of Financial Help

A new type of financial aid program will be available to freshmen this fall at Wayne State College, according to a college spokesman.

The program is known as the federal Basic Educational Opportunity Grant, which is designed to provide post-secondary educational opportunities to those who otherwise would not be able to finance continued education.

The amount of the grant will be based upon a compiled family contribution and the budget at the particular college where the student is enrolling, according to Frank Teach, financial aids director at WSC.

In order to apply for the grant, the family of the freshman student will have to complete a special application form which should be available sometime in June, according to Teach.

If the student wishes, he may also apply for the other financial aid programs in existence at the college, Teach added.

Hearing Test Set for Wayne, Nebr.

Electronic hearing tests will be given at Hotel Morrison in Wayne on Friday, June 8 from 10:30 to 3:00 by Mr. Nile Newburn, Bellone Consultant.

Anyone who has trouble hearing or understanding is welcome to come in for a test using the latest electronic equipment to determine his or her particular degree of hearing loss. Diagrams showing how the ear works and some of the causes of hearing loss will be available.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year if he has any trouble at all hearing clearly. Even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told an aid won't help should have a hearing test and find out about the very latest hearing aids.

The free hearing tests will be held at Hotel Morrison, Wayne, Nebr. on Friday, June 8 from 10:30 to 3:00. If you can't get there on Friday, call or write the Bellone Hearing Aid Service, 1201 Nebraska St., Sioux City, Iowa, phone 252-1246.

Farmers Advised to Get Most Out of Alfalfa Crop

With soybeans in short supply and commanding record prices, Nebraska livestock producers need to "bear down hard" in handling the alfalfa crop to gain maximum protein production this year, says a University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension livestock specialist.

This means harvesting alfalfa early—in the late bud stage or before it is in the 10th bloom—and preserving it with minimum field and storage losses, according to Dr. Paul Guyer.

"Alfalfa has the potential for the highest protein production per acre of any crop grown. And now that protein is high in price, livestock producers can realize maximum profits by harvesting alfalfa at the optimum protein-energy relationship for maximum total productivity," Guyer pointed out.

Careful silage or hay-making operations are also the advantage of the cattle feeder by reducing field and storage losses often accompanying the hay-making operation, he continued.

For maximum returns and minimum costs, harvesting the hay crop as silage or haylage containing about 40 per cent dry matter provides the cheapest method of handling hay from the field to the bunk. If it is properly managed, haylage not only makes an excellent feed, but handling can also be highly mechanized to keep labor requirements low.

At the late bud or early bloom stage, alfalfa crop stems are soft and pliable and pack well. The crop should be wilted to about 60 per cent moisture—or even less if you use top-notch management, Guyer advised. The material should be chopped fine— $\frac{3}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ inch knife setting—and then packed well before covering with a plastic cover.

Silos should be filled quickly for two reasons: to prevent spoilage of the material as it goes into the silo, and to harvest the alfalfa crop at its maximum value, he said.

The plastic cover should be weighted down to hold the plastic against the ensilage for minimum exposure to air and to reduce the damage to the silo cover. Green chopped alfalfa, limestone or tires, or a combination of two of these, are acceptable.

"If the silage or haylage is handled in this manner, nutrient losses will be decreased, the silage will have a desirable odor, the material will be easy to pack and will provide an excellent protein source for wintering growing or finishing rations for ruminant animals," Guyer concluded.

Actually they've never been able to improve much on this design.

More Than 80 Taking Part in Driving Course

Just over 80 individuals have signed up for the driver training course being offered by the Wayne-Carroll school system.

The course is still open to youths interested in enrolling, says Mike Mallette, who is teaching the course again this summer. Youths must be 14 years old to take the course.

Driving has already started, but the first class for all students will not be held until Monday morning.

Classes will be held Monday through Friday from 9 to 11 a.m., with driving being done at various times Monday through Saturday.

All instruction and driving in the course should be completed within six weeks, according to Mallette.

Helping Mallette with driving this year is Ron Carnes.

Buffalo Feed Is Huge Success

Belden Volunteer Firemen and their wives served approximately 800 people Saturday at a buffalo feed and open house held at the Belden Fire Hall. Serving was from 5 until 9 p.m.

Fire equipment was on display and persons attending had the opportunity to see the newly remodeled meeting room which covers over 1,000 square feet.

Firemen hold four training sessions yearly. The Big Nine Mutual Aid Program, which was put into effect four years ago, consists of the communities of Carroll, Randolph, Laurel, Coleridge, Hartington, Wynot, Dixon, Concord and Belden.

The fire department currently consists of four mobile units which are housed in an area covering over 2,000 square feet. Most recently purchased was a 500 gallon pumper. A short wave radio is connected to the police radio and a citizen band radio keeps firemen in their homes in touch with the fire trucks.

Face masks, air tanks, asbestos coats and a 300 watt generator, donated by the United States Forestry Department, will be arriving soon. Donations from the feed will be used to purchase more equipment.

Thirty three volunteers signed up when the Belden Fire Department was organized in February of 1911. R. W. Hahn was elected first fire chief. The original fire house was located in a small building which also housed a jail cell.

Receiving door prizes at the close of the evening were Duane Burbach, Coleridge, electric drill; Don Painter, Carroll, clock radio and electric window fan; Ben Roth, Belden, hair dryer; Don Griggs, Norfolk, and Clay Halleen, Laurel, drill sharpeners; Delmar Eddie, Carroll, ceramics; Frank Noelle, Laurel, ham; Bob Meyer, Randolph, stainless steel bowl set; and Russell Preston, Laurel, picnic set.

VAO&A

Q. What is this work-study program for veterans I keep hearing about?

A. A program authorized under a recent law which allows the Veterans Administration to advance up to $250 in extra allowances to veterans enrolled in the agency's education programs. In return, the veteran agrees to work up to 100 hours for the agency.

The Elert Jacobsens attended the World War 1 Barracks and the Ladies' Auxiliary held in Coleridge Sunday afternoon at the Community Hall.

Tuesday afternoon and lunch guests in the Elert Jacobsen home were Mr. and Mrs. Lenard Andrus, Coleridge, and Evelyn and Dorothy Smith. Mrs. Earl Preston, Laurel, was also a visitor.

Registration Saturday for Off-Campus Workshops

Summer session registration at Wayne State College is scheduled Saturday for students not already enrolled and for students planning to attend the off campus extension workshops.

The on campus registration begins at 9 a.m. Saturday in Hahn Administration Building and last until noon.

Veterans' Benefits Questions, Answers

Q: With diminishing space in national cemeteries, I have been wondering whether I might be buried in a Veterans Administration cemetery. Can the money VA pays for burial be used this way?

A: The VA does not have a cemetery system of its own. It has a few small plots near VA hospitals and domiciliarys where veterans who have died in these facilities have been buried, but most of this space is now full. Chances are you could not be buried anywhere near your home if you chose one of the few available plots. The VA burial expense payment can be made regardless of the burial place.

State Okays Wayne Bid For Money for Park Land; Federal Okay Next Step

The state has given approval for federal and state matching funds to be used in acquisition of 12.4 acres of land for park development in Wayne.

If the U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation gives final okay to purchasing the land, the city will have to pay 25 per cent of the total estimated purchase price of $38,000.

The state would pay 25 per cent of the cost. The Land and Water Conservation Fund the other 50 per cent.

Approval of Wayne's request for financial assistance came during a special meeting of the Game and Parks Commission in May. More than 50 outdoor recreation projects in communities across the state were given approval during the meeting.

The projects carry a total estimated price of nearly $3 million.

They were selected from a list of 117 applications totaling $10.5 million.

Although the state did not specify what land will be purchased if final approval is given, a city official said the matching funds probably will be used to purchase land near the medical center now under construction east of Wayne State College.

Several months ago the city applied for financial help in purchasing about 30 acres of land east of the hospital for use as a park. That application was denied, and city officials revised it to include about 12 acres of land.

The projects will be submitted to the U.S. Bureau of Outdoor Recreation for final approval when state and federal funds become available, according to the Game and Parks Commission. The commission administers the fund in Nebraska.

Local Man at DAV Confab

A Wayne man, Chris Bargholz, attended the state convention of the Department of Nebraska Disabled American Veterans Sunday in Lincoln.

During the two-day convention, George Schumm of Hastings was named new commander to replace Robert E. Longley of Lincoln.

Named commander of the Northeast Nebraska district was Joseph Mauro of Omaha.

The 1974 convention will be held at Grand Island, according to Bargholz. Wayne County veterans service officer, Norfolk will host the department executive meeting in October, he added.

Veterans' Benefits Questions, Answers

Q. Will a veteran's compensation from the Veterans Administration be reduced if Social Security benefits are increased?

A. No. The VA does not count any income against compensation for service-connected disabilities, including Social Security payments. Income is a factor for pensions for non-service-connected disabilities, however.

Q. Do Veterans Administration pensioners over 72 years of age have to file annual income questionnaires?

A. No, they do not have to file. A recent law excludes pensioners 72 years old and older who draw benefits during two consecutive years from filing annual income questionnaires. However, they still must report changes in income to the VA.

When you buy new passenger tires the seller should be writing up more than just the order, the Tire Industry Safety Council reminds. Federal regulations require him to register your name, address and certain specified information molded on the side of each tire so it may be recorded with the manufacturer. In case of any safety defect in tires of the same production run you will be notified personally.

Public Invited to Attend NEN Council Meeting

The public is invited to attend the Northeast Nebraska Family and Community Affairs Council meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the Northeast Station near Concord. The regular business meeting will be preceded by an informative program describing Recovery, Inc.

Recovery is a voluntary non-profit organization dedicated to a self-help method of assistance for nervous people and after care for former mental patients. A panel of recovery members will demonstrate techniques which are used in Recovery meetings. The Recovery method has achieved wide acclaim for helping people deal with life situations.

Further information is available from Mrs. LaVerie Heimes of Hartington.

Map Shows Minerals in Nebraska

A new Nebraska mineral resource map has been published by the University Geological Survey Conservation and Survey Division at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The color map shows locations of active sand and gravel, sandstone, silt or siltstone, clay or shale, volcanic ash, limestone pits or quarries, oil fields and gas fields. Copies may be obtained for $1 plus 35 per cent sales tax from the Conservation and Survey Division, 113E Nebraska Hall, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, 68508.

In addition to the large map of Nebraska, the publication includes 14 small maps of potential mineral occurrence in Nebraska. These include the occurrence of or near the surface of sand and gravel, quartzite, limestone, uranium bearing rocks, clay or shale, volcanic ash, gypsum, bentonite, reported occurrence of diatomaceous earth, sodium and potassium salts, potential occurrence of metallic minerals, availability of groundwater, precambrian configuration map and underground gas storage.

Annual Park Program Gets Underway Monday

The first three week session of the annual summer park program at Bressler Park will get underway Monday with registration at 9 a.m. Classes, to be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. each Monday through Friday, will meet for the first time Tuesday.

The first session will end June 29 and the second three week session will begin in July.

Classes, planned for beginning kindergartners through eighth graders, will feature crafts, games and songs.

Co-directors for the program, which is funded by the city and the Community Chest, are Mrs. Al Ehlers and Mrs. Mike Karel. Instructors this year will be Marty Willis, Kathy Barclay, Mary Poehman, Barbara Schwartz, Carol Creighton, Ann Ellis, Carol Wittse and LeAnn Longe.

About 150 youngsters were enrolled last year.

Thone writes:

Secrecy stamp being worn out to tune of $100 million a year

By Congressman CHARLES THONE
 Unnecessary government secrecy is robbing us of our tax dollars as well as robbing us of our freedoms. So many government documents have been classified that it costs $100 million annually to handle them. Think of it — $100 million of our tax dollars each year to pay for safeguarding, handling, storing, transporting and declassifying documents. It is necessary to classify some documents to protect our national security. We are robbed of freedom, however, when information is kept secret to cover up waste or mistakes or to keep the public in the dark. The remedy for this situation is to write a law that will prevent overclassification without endangering national security and to give Congress oversight control of classifying and declassifying of documents by the executive departments. The House Government Operations subcommittee on Foreign Operations and Government Information, of which I am a member, aims to write such a bill and push for its passage into law this year. The U. S. Constitution gives only the Congress the power to keep matters secret; the document gives no such power to the executive branch. Nevertheless, all Presidents since and including George Washington have ordered that certain matters be kept secret. There was no system for keeping government matters secret until 1912, no Presidential executive order on what to keep secret until 1940 and no law on the subject until 1958. This first law was the Freedom of Information Act, and it stated that its provisions did not apply to matters that are "specifically required by Executive Order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy." In other words, Congress has never defined the types of matters that need to be kept secret. Overclassification has been a natural result of the lack of definition by law. Our subcommittee heard an estimate that the Defense Department has classified documents sufficient to make 18 stacks each as tall as the Washington Monument (555 feet high). Some time ago, one of the military service chiefs wrote a note to other members of the top secret classification was being used too often. So someone in his office put a top secret stamp on his note. The Air Force put out a manual with this nation: "Each section of this volume is itself unclassified. To protect the compilation of information contained in the complete volume, the complete volume is confidential."

Retired Navy Rear Admiral Gene R. LaRoque told our subcommittee that some of the reasons why matters are classified as secret by any of the armed services are "to keep it from the other military services, from civilians in their own service, from the State Department and, of course, from the Congress. Sometimes information is classified to withhold it for later release to maximize the effect on the public or the Congress." In 1972, President Nixon issued an order intended to cut down greatly on secrecy in government. For example, the number of people entitled to classify documents has been reduced by 63 per cent. The President also issued orders to speed up declassifying of old materials. I have not been satisfied with the progress made to date in carrying out his orders. Specifically, I think that we should pass a law that would provide penalties for classifying materials that shouldn't be classified. We should enact a law with teeth in it so that there won't be loopholes or delays in declassifying materials where the need for secrecy on the matters has passed. Most of all, I think we need to replace the executive order approach to classifying documents. Ours is a government of laws; we need a statutory system to insure a proper balance between guarding defense and foreign policy secrets, on the one hand, and protecting the American public's right to know how its government is being conducted, on the other hand. Our form of government can work properly only when the public is kept fully and currently informed on the public business. As Jesus of Nazareth said, "You will know the truth, and the truth will make you free."

Bible School to Little Wakefield Girl Is Lot of Things

running . . . playing . . .

Most adults probably have forgotten how much fun vacation Bible school can be, but little Cindy Jeppson of rural Wakefield knows.

The short summer activity offers plenty of different activities for youngsters, and occasionally time to be by yourself to just think about things.

Cindy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jeppson, was one of about 90 youngsters to attend Bible school at the Wakefield Christian Church last week. Hundreds of youngsters attended similar sessions in churches throughout the area, learning new things about their religion while having their share of fun.

On Friday, the last day of Bible school, Cindy and the rest of the youngsters got a special surprise—seeing someone get a pie in the face.

That someone was Ron Ring of rural Wayne, a bus driver who lost a friendly bet with the Rev. John Epperson to see who could bring the most children for the final day. Cindy got the fun of helping wipe the whipped cream pie off Ring's face as the pastor looked on approvingly.

W-C School Board Releases 3 Teachers From Contracts

The Wayne-Carroll school board released three teachers from their 1973-74 teaching contracts during Monday night's board meeting.

The three: Don-Johnson, high school business teacher and freshman football coach; Vera Ebmeier, high school social studies teacher; and Linda Nelson, middle school music teacher.

All three earlier in the year had signed contracts to continue teaching in the school system.

Vera Ebmeier said in a letter to Haun she has decided to retire after 42 years in the teaching profession. She has taught in the Wayne-Carroll system since 1934.

Johnson, who also served one year as head basketball coach, has been in the school system since 1945 when he came here from Wallace. Haun said Johnson did not tell him what his plans are.

Mrs. Nelson, two years in the middle school music position, said her husband has accepted a teaching job at York beginning this fall.

Haun told the board that full-time teachers are being sought to fill Nelson's and Ebmeier's positions, but that a half-time teacher may be able to take over Johnson's teaching load.

Johnson won't have to be replaced with a full-time teacher because enrollment in business classes offered at the high school is down, he said. Johnson's coaching duties may be given to another teacher already in the school system, he added.

In addition to those vacancies is the one left to fill following the resignation of Ernest Bedell, middle school and high school vocal music teacher last year. The vacancies left by the retirement of Eleanor Edwards and Violet Rickers, middle school language training and fourth grade, are being filled by existing staff, according to Haun.

Haun is also seeking a full time special education teacher for grades five through 12. That is a new position.

In other action, board members officially adopted a statement setting forth their position regarding teachers who hold down other jobs during the school year.

Wording of the statement.

"The Wayne Carroll board of education recognizes teaching is a full time profession which calls for the exercise of optimal mental and physical capacities of a teacher for the 37 weeks he or she is under contract with the school district. It is, therefore, the belief of the board that teachers should restrict their vocational activities in such a manner that they are confident that their talents and energies are in no manner dissipated by other employment or business ventures."

Several teachers in the school system currently have other employment during the nine months of school, and the board agreed to adopt the statement so teachers know the board's position.

Haun emphasized during discussion of the statement that it carries no legal force but is necessary so teachers realize the board frowns on outside employment.

"I think it gives the administrator a little more power in talking to teachers," noted board member Dorothy Ley.

The policy statement will be distributed to all teachers in the school system and will probably be explained during a summer workshop, according to Haun.

Set during the meeting was a public hearing on the budget for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

The hearing is slated for 8:30 p.m. July 2, the board's regular meeting during that month.

Haun told the board the hearing gives the public a chance to comment on portions of the budget and make recommendations concerning school district spending.

The superintendent, however, emphasized that the major portion of the approximate $1 million budget is already set.

"About 85 per cent of the budget is fixed already because of salaries," he said. "We are just trying to keep the instructional level up and buildings maintained (with the other 15 per cent)," he added.

Haun told the board that all departments have been asked for requisitions for spending for the coming year, with many of them being sent back for cuts of 20 or 30 per cent.

The increased state aid which the legislature approved last week from $35 million to $55 million is not going to be much help to the Wayne-Carroll school system, Haun told the board.

"It looks like we might get (an additional) $30,000 if you figure it on the basis we received state aid last year," he said. "It's just not going to have that much impact," he added.

The legislature approved adding another $20 million in state aid to school districts, half of it to be distributed on the basis of the number of students in a district and half to equalize tax loads.

The legislature earlier last week failed twice to override Gov. J. J. Exon's veto of a bill which would have resulted in the state taking over 50 per cent of the operating costs of school districts by the 1975-76 school year.

The $20 million that will be added to state aid this fall will come from the state's federal revenue sharing funds, but the increased funds will be provided for only one year. What happens next year is not known.

The school district should receive about $16,000 in state aid for the 1972-73 school year, according to Haun.

Approved by the board during the meeting was a $100 increase in the school district's free high tuition rate.

The tuition, charged students living outside the Wayne-Carroll school district who attend Wayne High, will be $1,850 this fall.

The board agreed to ask the Wayne Education Association for reasons why the group wishes to discuss "co-curricular activities" in the school system.

The association has asked that a task force composed of representatives of the board, administration and teachers meet to conduct a comprehensive study of the activities.

Board members noted that a comprehensive study of the total school program was completed about two years ago and that another one is not scheduled until 1976. Several board members said they could not understand why the association wants to discuss just one aspect of the school program, the co-curricular or extra-curricular activities.

In other action the board:

- Elected present board officers.
- Received a lengthy list of requests for summer maintenance and repair work at the schools in Wayne and Carroll.
- Approved a resolution requesting city police be permitted to come onto school district property to enforce traffic violations. Current city law prohibits local police to ticket or arrest traffic violators on school land, according to Haun. The resolution will be sent to the city council with a request that the council pass a similar resolution, Haun said.
- Discussed but took no formal action on holding an athletic banquet once a year.
- Approved a contract whereby the school district will pay the full salary of Jean Owens, language disabilities teacher in the elementary school. Her salary was paid the first two years with federal funds.

THE WAYNE HERALD

Local Firm Still Setting Pace in Televising Council

Second Front Page

City councilmen in Wayne are getting to be television personalities these days, a development since Wayne State College students began televising city council meetings three months ago.

Subscribers to Wayne Cablevision can see the meetings live on Channel 2, and many of them do watch, judging by comments patrons make to cablevision officials.

Apparently the televising project is a first in Nebraska. City clerk-administrator Dan Sherry said he has mentioned it in reports to the Nebraska city managers news letter and asked whether other councils are televising. So far nobody has reported it being done in Nebraska.

After five telecasts, Wayne mayor Kent Hall summed up his reaction as generally favorable. "It means more attention to city government, therefore more controversy — but this is good," Hall said.

"I understand the sound is not always the best, and sometimes citizens misunderstand what the council is saying. Next day they call up to ask why we did what we did."

He said the sound problem may be due to portable equipment which has to be set up and taken down every time.

"There is no dissent among councilmen," the mayor said, "except for some complaints about the floodlights — they get a bit oppressive after several hours."

For Wayne State students, televising the twice-monthly meetings requires considerable effort. Each time they transport and install two cameras, a control console, floodlights, microphones and a maze of wire — then dismantle and haul it back to campus.

Except when the council takes a brief break, the TV crew is on duty constantly through meetings lasting four hours or more.

"It's hard work, but valuable," said Pat Bates, a senior from North English, Ia., who majors in radio-television. He directs the productions, aided by several other TV students.

As of now, they get neither credits nor pay — "just the experience," Bates said.

Carriers Now Serving More Towns

The Wayne Herald takes another step in providing quick, efficient service to readers in surrounding communities with this issue of the paper.

Youths from Allen, Laurel and Wakefield join the newspaper's carrier staff, offering subscribers in those towns the chance to receive The Herald the same day it is published instead of one or two days later.

The four youngsters are Keny Ellis in Allen, Roxanne Kraemer in Laurel and Randy and Ricky Harding in Wakefield. They join youths in Wayne, Winside and Carroll who have been delivering the newspaper the same day it is published for more than a year.

Persons living in the three communities now being served by the carriers are invited to contact them to subscribe to the paper or have it delivered by the mail. Residents of the other towns are also invited to become customers of the youngsters. All 24 of the newspaper's carriers are now competing for a free trip to Minneapolis to see the Minnesota Twins play the New York Yankees on July 7. The carriers have to sign up a certain number of new subscribers in order to win the free trip. A full page of pictures of all the newspaper's carriers appears inside this issue. It will be helpful to persons in the six towns being served by the youths who wish to become their customers.

Pickup Strikes Car Tuesday

A pickup driven by David M. Sherry, 113 Maple, struck the rear end of a car operated by Stanley D. Canner, 902 Windom, on the 100 block of Pearl about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Canner, the police report said, stopped to talk with Canner when the accident occurred. No one was hurt.

Except when fishing through the ice, anglers are limited to two lines with no more than two hooks each, when fishing in any lake, pond, or reservoir or within one-half mile of their inlets, outlets, or canals.

Kiwanians Get 'Tour' of Spain

The Wayne Kiwanians took a "trip" to Spain Monday afternoon returning an hour later with knowledge of the "monumental country."

Dr. Rafael Sosa, head of the foreign language department at Wayne State College, gave the members a slide presentation of last year's college summer institute in Spain and some of what this year's travelers can look forward to. This year the tour will leave June 27 from Omaha and return Aug. 4.

"We intend to spend four days in Madrid," Dr. Sosa said, "to study the culture as well as view the many monuments in the city." Many people think of Madrid as a dirty city, he went on. "Some expect to see broken down buildings with garbage in the streets, but Madrid actually is a monumental city," he told the Kiwanians during their weekly luncheon.

Last year the group got a rare chance to have an audience with the Prince and Princess of Spain.

"It was a real surprise," Sosa exclaimed. "I didn't think we would get a chance to even meet him let alone have a half hour talk with him."

Before his talk closed, the Wayne State instructor told the group that already he is making plans for next year's tour. "While in Spain I have to start finding out more information for the 1974 tour."

The annual Kiwanis family picnic will be held July 16, the board voted after the regular meeting. The feed will be held at Bressler Park.

In other action, the board tentatively agreed to help send one of the members of the Wayne gun team to the state meeting this fall.

Carroll Board Purchases New Tractor

This spring the local club made it the second year in a row to win the state title.

President Bob Carhart pointed out that the organization would be interested in sponsoring one or more members if other clubs would be willing to do the same.

A final decision will come in September. Plans are in the working stage for hosting the district Kiwanis meeting for installation of Wayne member Ray Schreiner as lieutenant governor.

Wayne County's Part Of ESU 1 Budget Could Be $38,000

The proposed portion of the Educational Service Unit No. 1 budget for Wayne County is $38,000, according to Harry Mills of Wakefield, ESU 1 administrator.

During the Wayne County commissioners' meeting Tuesday, Mills told the members that the total ESU 1 1973-74 budget will be approximately $338,450. County clerk Norris Weible said the county's figure would be about one mill. Final notice of Wayne County's total cost will be released sometime in the latter part of June, Weible said, pending the completion of the Unit's budget.

A local engineering firm suggested to the board that the county conduct a survey of its bridges and set up a system whereby it can file data on materials to build bridges, types of bridges and the like.

Weible said the engineering firm would conduct the survey for free but the complete figuring and filing could cost the county between $75 and $100 per

Local Reader Spies Most Typos

Local Reader Spies Most Typos

Mrs. Darrel Fuelberth of Wayne has to qualify as one of the best proofreaders around.

She proved it by winning The Wayne Herald's first "Find the Typos" contest.

As a result, she wins the $25 savings bond the newspaper offered for the reader counting the most mistakes in one issue of the paper.

Mrs. Fuelberth, however, had a slight edge over the others who entered the contest: She proofread copy when her father ran the newspaper at Vermilion, S. D.

She said she began reading the newspaper to find errors one evening and worked until about 1 a.m. The next afternoon she spent some more time looking for mistakes. The total time she put into the task was more than six hours, she noted.

As others who entered the

contest, she spied spelling errors, typographical mistakes such as lines in a story used twice and inconsistencies in style.

The newspaper sponsored the unique contest to find out if there are too many errors slipping past the proofreaders and to offer readers a chance to spot them.

Norvin Hansen, editor of the paper, said the top three contestants found fewer than 40 mistakes which could be called errors in setting copy and making up pages. They found other things which they considered errors but which are established ways of the newspaper.

"Forty errors in 20 pages is actually very few," Hansen said. "That's only about two every page — not very many when you consider how many thousands of words there are on most pages."

Poppies Are ...

NE Station Inviting Public to Field Day

Farmers, feeders, businessmen and others are invited to the Beef Field Day at the Northeast Station near Concord today (Thursday).

The event begins at 6 p.m. at the University of Nebraska research facility a mile east of Concord.

Several top feeders have been invited to attend to explain their methods of feeding high moisture corn.

Visitors will be able to see the experimental cattle being fed high moisture corn by specialists at the research facility.

Four methods of storing high moisture corn are under research.

The experimental cattle have been weighed so preliminary figures on gains and feed use will be available.

A sidelight to the event will be a comparison of gains between steers implanted with Sinovex and those not implanted.

The University of Nebraska is engaged in what is probably the most complete study anywhere of the differences in feeding high moisture corn under alternative storage and feeding conditions, according to Cal Ward, station superintendent.

Food Economizing A Bore? Try This And Bore No More

Everybody's trying to save on food these days. It's one of the few areas of the budget where you can cut corners by smart shopping and clever cooking. Economy dishes need not be boring. Witness this delectable, fancy Elegant Gelled Egg Loaf made with hard-cooked eggs in a lemon and mayonnaise gelatine base with crisp trimmings. Unflavored gelatine is an artful way to economize for it turns leftovers or economy foods into appetizing and interesting dishes. They're so good-looking, too! This delicious loaf calls for practically no cooking—just enough to dissolve the gelatine thoroughly. When economy is the end in view, unflavored gelatine is the friend for you.

- Elegant Gelled Egg Loaf
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
 - 1/4 cup cold water
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons grated onion
 - 1/2 cup finely sliced celery
 - 1/4 cup finely sliced green pepper
 - 1/2 cup chopped pimiento
 - 4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- Sprinkle gelatine on cold water in saucepan to soften. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine is dissolved. Remove from heat; add salt, lemon juice and pepper. Cool. Add mayonnaise; mix in remaining ingredients. Turn into a 2-cup loaf pan or mold; chill until firm. Unmold on crisp greens.
YIELD: 4-6 servings.

Confirmation Planned for Seven Youth

Seven young people will be confirmed during Sunday morning services June 17 at the Carroll Methodist Church, according to the Rev. Robert Swanson. Confirmations are Rick Harmeier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Harmeier; Rick Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Davis; Allan Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Chapman; Joe Kenny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Kenny; Kevin Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Davis and Charles and Sandy McLain, children of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McLain.

Presbyterian Church Conducting Services At Drive-In Theatre

Drive-in worship services began Sunday at the Dude Ranch Drive-In Theatre, north of Wayne on Highway 15. The outdoor services, conducted annually since 1952, begin at 8:30 a.m. and are open to all who wish to attend. They are sponsored by the United Presbyterian Church. The services are most popular with families who are planning Sunday excursions and who wish to get an early start. Persons who find it difficult to get in and out of the church building (such as individuals in wheel chairs) have also attended the services in past years. Worshipers can attend services casually attired and hear the sermon and taped music in their cars through the loud speaker system. Offerings which are left at the gate as the cars leave, will be forwarded to the correct church if proper designation is made. Attendance has dropped in the past few years, noted the Rev. Robert Hass who serves the Presbyterian Church, and the services will be discontinued after this year if more interest is not shown. About 20 persons attended the first service Sunday. The 9:45 a.m. worship hour is still held at the United Presbyterian church. Drive-in services will continue throughout the summer, concluding with Aug. 26.

Look — It's Frozen Meat
The frozen food industry has grown by leaps and bounds in the recent past. But one food staple has been conspicuously absent — meat. Homemakers have recognized the convenience and simplicity of other frozen foods, attested by the ownership of 20 million freezers. But homemakers seem distrustful of pre-frozen meats. Such a product could save great amounts of time and effort, but many homemakers express a lingering doubt whether meat has been frozen only once or been allowed to thaw and be refrozen. The meat industry refutes this fear, pointing to the equipment available which allows products to be frozen almost instantly at minus 320 degrees. Such a quick freeze locks in natural juices and maintains fresh meat color and nutritive value. It also minimizes quality taste and vitamin losses. The main advantages to buying meat cuts in a frozen state are: —Freezer space can be saved because meat is closely trimmed, boned, ready to cook. —Meat cuts reach the consumer with no leaky packages; there's no need for rewrapping. —Under proper conditions, spoilage is eliminated. —Cooking methods remain the same, except for extra time needed. Meals can be cooked from frozen state, with no thawing necessary. Research on frozen package meats has been thoroughly conducted by Kansas State University, which covered every aspect of pre-frozen meats. The tests covered freezing methods, packaging, freezer equipment, test marketing and consumer attitudes. The test produced a favorable report and scientific assurance to homemakers. The forecast for frozen pre-packed meats predicts a tremendous growth in the future. However, check to be sure it is competitively priced and properly identified.

Policy on Weddings

The Wayne Herald welcomes news accounts and photographs of weddings involving families living in the Wayne area. We feel there is widespread interest in local and area weddings and are happy to make space available for their publication. Because our readers are interested in current news, we ask that all weddings and photographs offered for publication be in our office within 10 days after the date of the ceremony. Information submitted with a picture after that deadline will not be carried as a story but will be used in a column underneath the picture. Wedding pictures submitted after the story appears in the paper must be in our office within three weeks after the ceremony.

According to city recreation director Hank Overin, the meeting will start at 7 p.m. If there are enough willing to play, a recreation league will be set up. The league will be open to local men 25 years or older.

Meeting on Disasters Set for Tonight

Persons interested in what to do in case of emergencies or disasters should attend a meeting scheduled tonight (Thursday) in Wayne.

The public meeting, which will be held upstairs in the fire hall at 8 p.m., has been scheduled by T. P. Roberts, Wayne County Civil Defense director.

He said the meeting will center on what actions are necessary during fires, severe thunderstorms, tornadoes, heat waves, winter storms, technological failures and the like. Showed during the evening will be a film.

The meeting is open to any body in the area who wishes to attend, Roberts said. He has sent invitations to city and county officials, police and college representatives.

"Our towns and communities with their modern and efficient police, fire department and city officials will be able to study civil defense activities at the local level and consider the problem of how to improve our chances of help in these emergencies," he says.

Health Tip

With summer here, probability of scrapes and small wounds increases for both children and adults.

The Nebraska Medical Association cautions you to be aware whether your tetanus immunization is current as a basic preventative measure for such injuries.

Tetanus, or lockjaw, will always remain a threat unless persons are immunized.

Tetanus is caused by germs which lie dormant in the soil. After the dormant germs enter the body, they begin to multiply. As they multiply, they form a very powerful toxin which paralyzes the muscles and causes them to twitch and convulse.

Anytime a person's skin is broken, and the injury need not be serious, without proper immunization, tetanus can occur. In fact, it is reported that about one-half of all cases of tetanus in American hospitals are the result of an injury so trivial that it went unnoticed until symptoms of tetanus occurred.

After your initial tetanus immunization, usually as a child, the Nebraska Medical Association recommends boosters every three to five years.

Wayne, Ponca are tops in town team league

The Wayne town team and Ponca are off to good starts in the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League. Both teams currently are tied with 2-0 records for the top spot in the eight-team standing.

As local fans know, Wayne nipped Homer, 5-4, for its first win, then went on to clobber Wakefield, 17-4. The Ponca victories came over Winnebago, 6-3, and South Sioux City, 10-8. That last game took place last Thursday.

Homer, after taking a 5-4 loss from Wayne, bounced back Sunday night to get by Newcastle, 5-1. The Dakota County team now is tied for the third position (1-1) with South Sioux City. Sunday night SSC evened its record with a 10-8 scrubbing of Dakota City.

Rounding out the rest of the league are Wakefield, Newcastle, Dakota City and Winnebago, all tied for the fifth at 0-1. But tonight (Thursday) the standings may change when Newcastle and Winnebago make up a rained out game scheduled two weeks ago. As yet, there is no date for a make up between Wakefield and Dakota City.

As most league fans know, Homer is favored to be the strong team this year. Last year Sioux City Woods was the powerhouse since it had what most teams felt was "the cream of the crop" in baseball players.

By Bob Bartlett

But now that SC Woods is out of the league, most good players probably will flock to Homer. Yet you can't count out Newcastle and Ponca.

According to Wayne manager Hank Overin, "any of those three teams can be a winner." He figures that Ponca and Newcastle could be sleeping giants if they get good pitching staffs going.

That doesn't mean that Wayne is out of the running. With Paul Eddie delivering his usual excellence on the mound, the locals appear in fine shape.

Last Thursday night against Homer Eddie proved he's just as effective off the mound when he connected for a double and triple — with the three bagger good for two RBIs.

With Dennis Paul behind the plate, the Wayne crew should be in good hands as far as pitching and catching are concerned.

Talking about being behind the plate, umpire Wes Fritz really had a chore facing him in Thursday night's game.

It was the top of the eighth inning when Homer's catcher tried to make it home on a passed ball. It looked like a good scoring opportunity for Homer, especially with the bases loaded.

Quade came barreling into home plate, stiding on his stomach. Paul fired the ball to Eddie in what looked like late throw, but Quade was off to the right side of the plate and not directly in front, giving Eddie enough time to make the out.

Many spectators and some players probably couldn't see the actual scene with Eddie and Fritz surrounding the plate during the play.

Although it seemed Fritz delayed his call, his final judgment spurred quick reactions from the Homer players — even some who thought they could rough up the ump.

Well, that didn't hold true, but it did provide some interesting moments for the night.

It's a tough job being an umpire and I wish all those hearty souls daring enough to take the job a lot of luck this summer.

With the onslaught on summer sports activities, most girls may think this paper is going to forget about the various girls activities. Better think twice.

Unlike a big daily paper where the big names in sports generally makes the headlines (such as Margaret Court-Tennis), girls sports in this area won't be forgotten.

I intend on keeping on top of girls softball and golf as well as swimming.

There's been a lot of talk that this summer the Wayne swimming pool is going to schedule several meets. That's a good chance for both boys and girls to give their best performances in the different swimming events.

For college baseball fans interested in viewing some excellent action, this Friday marks the opening of the NCAA College World Series.

The eight-team event feature last year's defending champ, Southern California, along with Oklahoma, Penn State, Minnesota, Arizona State, Texas, Georgia Southern and Harvard.

Big Eight finalist Oklahoma opens the matches by taking on Big Ten rep Minnesota at 5 p.m. Penn State and Arizona State close the night's action.

Saturday night Texas and Georgia Southern will collide in the early game, while Southern Cal. and Harvard battle it out in the nightcap. Should be an interesting tourney for all to see.

Television station WOW in Omaha still has discount tickets — a limited amount — for those interested in seeing the game. Of course, by now most of the tickets probably are gone.

It looks like Wayne and Concord men will be heading up this year's baseball activity at Laurel.

Brent Johnson of Concord and Mike Burchett of Wayne have been hired as summer recreational managers for the area town.

According to Burchett, he will take care of the coaching duties in the Midget and Legion divisions while Johnson will coach the Pee Wees and girls softball teams.

Local, Area Communities Backing Drive to Improve Radio Communications

Wayne, Wakefield and Allen are among Northeast Nebraska Mutual Aid towns supporting a drive to raise money to improve emergency radio communications with St. Vincent Hospital in Sioux City and other hospitals in the area.

The mutual aid protection group is sponsoring a benefit dance at Atokad Racepark in South Sioux City Saturday night, June 16, to help raise money for the improved radio equipment, reports Cliff Pinkelman, Wayne volunteer fire chief.

Tickets for the dance are available from volunteer firemen in the communities supporting the project. Other members of the group behind the project are Ponca, Thurston, Pender, Bancroft, Rosalie, Winnebago, Dakota City, Homer, Walthill, Emerson and South Sioux City.

Total cost of the radio equipment is $6,000, with $2,000 to be raised through ticket sales and donations by members of the group.

Other funds will come from St. Vincent Hospital and the state department of health.

Pinkelman said the equipment will not only help members of the group but will help any rescue unit or ambulance which is taking somebody into Sioux City for emergency treatment. In addition, the encoders which are being installed in all rescue units in the area will enable the units to communicate directly with the hospitals they serve, he added.

At present, communication in to Sioux City and other hospitals is through the nearest sheriff's department, according to group officials. This works well, they note, but at times the communication is so heavy it is difficult to carry on conversations.

The project has four goals:

- To give the best possible medical attention to the sick and injured.
- To have direct communications with the hospitals in the area and their doctors.
- To install a base station and tower at the Sioux City hospital.
- To install encoders in the rescue units.

Allen Board Okays Well

Construction of a second well in Allen will start as soon as possible, according to Allen town member Ken Linafeller.

During the board's regular monthly meeting Monday night, the members decided to use the town's federal revenue money of $5,200 to set up a well about a half mile west of Allen on the Beth Jackson farm.

"The board voted to drill the new well as an emergency measure," Linafeller pointed out. "Already the present well is pumping 100 gallons a minute, which is not enough to meet the requirements."

Linafeller explained that the new well will pump 300 gallons a minute.

Hospital Construction Underway

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS scrape off layers of earth as they go about getting the site ready for construction of the new medical center in Wayne. The hospital, which will be built just east of Wayne State College, will provide 26 beds after the first phase of construction is completed and 50 beds following completion of the second stage. To be called Providence Medical Center, it will provide medical care to residents in Wayne as well as the surrounding area and enable Wayne State to offer new and expanded medical care courses. The facility will replace the present municipal hospital in Wayne.

Anniversary Tea
Representatives of Chapter AZ, PEO, Wayne, were among guests Sunday afternoon at the 50th anniversary tea of Chapter CZ, Wakefield.

Mrs. Ed D. Schnasse gave the welcome and Mrs. Martha Olson introduced guests. Greetings from former members and state officers were read by Mrs. C.M. Coe. The PEO sing-a-long was led by Mrs. Warren Bressler.

Honored were Hilda Bengston and Mrs. Stina Johnson, the only active resident charter members of Chapter CZ. Fifty year pins were presented by Edia Collins, representing the chapter.

The program, written by Mrs. Raymond Paulson and Mrs. Harry Larson, highlighted the activities of the chapter during the past 50 years. Kathy Pospisil presented a vocal solo, "Lonely Voices."

Mrs. W.L. Byers and Ruth Collins presided at the guest book.

Mrs. Paul Byers and Mrs. Paul Eaton were in charge of decorations. Mrs. Coe and Mrs. Maurice Gustafson cut and served the cake. Mrs. Olson poured coffee and Mrs. Schnasse served punch.

On the planning committee were Mrs. M.E. Carlson, Mrs. Thomas M. Gustafson and Mrs. Craig Williams, Allen.

Former Wayne Man Gets Credit For Saving Man From Drowning

A former Wayne man, Korlin Luft, is credited with saving a man from drowning in the Missouri River near Yankton Sunday.

Luft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Luft of rural Wayne, dove into the swift current below Gavins Point Dam to rescue the Rev. James Wilschorko of Elgin, Tex., after the boat he was in sank.

Luft, who was fishing from the bank nearby, swam about half a block to rescue the minister. The minister was clinging onto the almost completely submerged boat along with another man who was in it when the accident happened.

The other man was Gail Peterson, cross country and track coach at Crofton.

Both of the men had life jackets on, but Peterson had to stay with the boat to help the Texas man because he was unable to swim. Luft did not have a life jacket on.

After Luft rescued the minister, Peterson swam to shore.

Art Suffcoo, cashier at a Crofton bank who was with the group when the accident happened about 8:30 p.m., said the two men couldn't have lasted much longer.

The current is mighty swift there and the river's about 30 feet deep," he noted.

The accident happened when the two men pushed away from shore and the propeller on the boat's motor struck some rocks. The force tore part of the rear of the boat out, letting water flood into it.

If the motor had been torn completely off the boat probably would not have sunk, according to Suffcoo.

Suffcoo said if Luft had not been there either or both men might have drowned.

He noted that only a few minutes before the accident his young child and the minister's child were in the boat waiting for a ride. They were taken out of the boat when the motor became flooded and wouldn't start, he added.

"If the kids had been in the boat, I'm afraid we would have lost both of them," he said.

Luft, a graduate of Wayne State College, lives in Yankton and takes graduate courses at the University of South Dakota at Vermillion. He will be the new basketball coach at Winside High School next fall.

Livestock Workshop Scheduled in County

The first 4-H junior leader livestock workshop in Wayne County will be held next week, reports Don Spitzke, county agricultural agent.

The workshop will begin with youths meeting at the county courthouse in Wayne at 8:15 a.m. Wednesday. Transportation to the four farms which will be visited during the day will be provided for youngsters needing Stops will be made in the morning at the Robert Thomsen farm eight and a half miles east and four south of Wayne for beef judging and at the Kenneth Ramsey farm five miles east and one and a quarter south of Wayne for swine judging.

Afternoon stops will be at the Allen Spitzberger farm 10 miles south and two and a quarter east of Wayne for sheep judging and at the John Anderson farm two miles south and three west of Wayne for dairy judging.

Instructing the youths will be Phil Menke, Bob Fritschen and Don Kubik, specialists at the Northeast Station near Concord.

About 75 Wayne County youths enrolled in livestock projects are eligible for the workshop.

Spitzke said the workshop should provide excellent training for 4-Hers planning to attend the coming area livestock judging contest and the dairy judging contest.

Outstanding JC To Be Named Saturday Night

The Wayne County Jaycees will hold their annual awards banquet this Saturday night at the Vet's Club in Wayne.

The 19th annual event will feature naming of the Outstanding Jaycee of the Year in addition to winners of the Spoke and Sparkplug awards. Pins and keys also will be presented along with certificates to first-year JCs.

According to president Dale Preston, the new officers will be sworn into office. "We hope for a good JC turnout," he said, "to start out the new JC year."

The invitational affair will start at 7:30 p.m. with a social hour, followed by the 8 o'clock supper.

Drivers Lose Licenses

Drivers from Wayne and Carroll were among 133 drivers who had their licenses revoked during the month of May, according to the state motor vehicles department.

They are Dennis D. Schlines, 24, Wayne, and Robert D. Hank, 18, Carroll.

Drawing Tonight (Thursday) for $300 Birthday Bucks

Area Short Stuff . .

The Dixon County Historical Museum will be open from 2 to 5 p.m. each Sunday during the month of June. Hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lockwood on the 10th, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Benton on the 17th and Mrs. Muriel Noe on the 24th.

Concord Residents got started on community carpentry, painting, cement and clean-up projects at two meetings held recently. About 42 men, women and children took part in the May 30 clean-up and the potluck supper which followed at the Vic Carlson home. The group included 4-H girls who painted trash barrels.

The second meeting was held May 31 and was followed by a lunch of ice cream, cake and coffee for the 25 present. Work will be continued on dates to be announced later.

Ronald Schmidt has been rehired as principal and seventh and eighth grade teacher for the First Trinity Lutheran School in Hoskins. Fourth, fifth and sixth grades will be taught by Roger Fenner of Fond du Lac, Wis., and kindergarten through third graders will be taught by Janice Krenz of New Ulm, Minn.

Local Guardsmen Getting Ready for Summer Camp

An advance party from the National Guard unit in Wayne leaves this morning (Thursday) to get ready for the unit's two-week summer training session at Camp Ashland near Ashland.

National Guardsmen from across the state will be training in Nebraska this summer, the result of Gov. J. J. Exon's decision to not have them train in Colorado to save fuel.

The Wayne men will train at Camp Ashland from Saturday to Sunday, Monday through Friday next week before joining the local unit.

Local Youths to Attend 'All-State '73' at UN-L

Wayne sisters Michele and Stephanie Mendyk will be among string students attending All-State 1973 at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln starting Sunday.

Parents of the two young people are Mr. and Mrs. Lee Mendyk.

The students will receive some master instruction from the renowned Stradivari Quartet.

The group, string quartet in residence at the University of Iowa, will give a concert for the students at 7:30 p.m. June 14, in Kimball Recital Hall as well as conduct master classes for them.

The quartet recently completed a tour of Europe and the Middle East.

All-State 1973, which will be held June 10-28, is a unique study and fund program featuring collegiate instruction in mu-through June 23.

About 50 men belonging to the Wayne unit will participate in the summer training exercises, according to Dennis Spangler, administrative supply technician for the unit. They will join about 800 other National Guardsmen for training in such things as communications, weapons and equipment, he added.

Twenty-five men from the local unit will train at Fort Carson near Colorado Springs, Colo., Monday through Friday next week before joining the local unit.

Youngsters Get Bike Safety Tips

NEARLY 50 youngsters took part in this week's three day bike school conducted by the Wayne police department. Police officers instructed the youths in riding bikes safely Monday and Tuesday, then took them to the parking lot near Rice Auditorium at Wayne State College Wednesday for a final morning of skill riding, racing and refreshments. Scenes from the first two days of the annual course include youngsters lining up (above) to get a safety decal on their bikes (insert) and officer Melvin Lamb sending them on their way for a trip around downtown.

175 Attend Memorial Day Dinner

The American Legion Auxiliary Roy Reed Unit 252 served approximately 175 at their Memorial Day dinner Monday at the legion hall.

Poppy bouquets decorated the tables.

Committee in charge was Mrs. Norman Deck, Gladys Reichert, Mrs. Norris Janke, Mrs. George Voss and Mrs. Leonard Anderson.

Linke Posts Bond Following Marijuana Arrest

Dennis Linke, 22, was released from Wayne County Jail Saturday on $2,000 bond following an arrest in Grand Island last week on a charge of delivering marijuana.

The former Wayne State student was arraigned before associate county judge Luverna Wilson last week, but his arraignment was continued to Friday when he asked for a court-appointed attorney.

As yet no new date has been set for the hearing.

OBITUARIES

A former resident of the Wayne area, Elizabeth Maria Lass, of Gillette, Ia., died May 19 at the Campbell County, Ia., Memorial Hospital at the age of 81 years.

She was born Dec. 8, 1891 at Luverne, Minn., where she attended school. On May 21, 1909 she was united in marriage to Frank F. Lass at Wayne.

The couple farmed near Wayne until 1933 when they moved to Campbell County. In 1937 they moved to Gillette, Ia.

Survivors include two sons, Elmer of Gillette, Ia. and Alvin of Tujunga, Calif.; three daughters, Mrs. Paul Lenoeker of Yucaipa, Calif., Mrs. Fred Von Pacoima, Calif. and Mrs. Joe Benson of Rosemead, Calif.; six brothers, Herbert Thurow of Ault, Colo., Martin, Otto and Arnold Thurow, all of Sidney, Gayheart Thurow of Kimball and William Thurow of Buffalo, Ia.; one sister, Mrs. Joe (Hanna) Klima of Norfolk; 14 grandchildren and 18 great grandchildren.

Preceding her in death were her husband in 1957, one son and one brother.

Funeral services and burial were held May 23 at Gillette.

STEPHANIE MENDYK

school music, art or speech teachers.

The two Wayne sisters were members of the Wayne High School band, orchestra and chorus during their freshmen, sophomore and junior years, and both have played string instruments with the Wayne State College orchestra.

They won six superiors during the district music contest at Wayne State in April—Stephanie on oboe and cello and Michele on flute and violin. They also received superior ratings for their string trio entry with Stephanie on cello and Michele on violin, accompanied by Dawn Carman on piano. Also receiving a superior was their woodwind duet.

The two have been active in high school activities other than music, including German Club and the annual staff. Both have been consistently named to the honor roll.

Smoke Damage Results From Tuesday Fire

A grease fire at 918 Main Street in Wayne shortly after noon Tuesday resulted in smoke damage to the house.

The fire started when Wayne State College students were cooking dinner and grease broke into flames, according to volunteer fire chief Cliff Pinkelman.

A fireman put out the blaze with a fire extinguisher, he said. The house is owned by Doug Lyman of Wayne.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6, 1973

On June 25, 1876, General George Armstrong Custer and about 225 men under his immediate command were killed by Indians in the Battle of the Little Big Horn. Not a man survived. This massacre, known as Custer's Last Stand, left one question unanswered, Who killed Custer? See page 6 for one answer.

A Friend In Need... Is An Egg Indeed!

by Sandy Bloom
Farm & Home Food Consultant

"... a versatile, although highly temperamental and emotional actor..."

No better words can describe this "star" of food cookery, the egg. So much talent in one little package! And the egg is always near, ready for the leading role in the food drama. When the alarm, "There's nothing to eat!" rings throughout the house, there is the egg awaiting your direction.

Be sure every act begins with a fresh egg. Leave no room for doubt here. If you're not sure, place the unbroken egg into a bowl of water. If it bobs or floats, throw it away! A fresh egg will "sink." It is also a good idea to break each egg into a saucer before adding to other eggs or ingredients. This precaution will prevent you from dropping that sixth egg into a mixing bowl with five others—only to find that the sixth one is bad.

With little direction from you, the egg can step into command performances in the following costumes; In the Shell—Out of the Shell—As a Thickening Agent—Egg Foams.

As you see, stage center or chorus member, the egg can play dozens of different roles. Each will please the taste and nutrient (iron, protein; calcium) demands of the audience.

EGG DUMPLINGS WITH HERB SAUCE

ACT I Swiss Omelet

3 eggs	3 tablespoons water
1½ tablespoons grated Swiss cheese	½ teaspoon salt
1½ tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese	Dash pepper
	1 tablespoon margarine

Mix eggs, cheeses, water, salt and pepper thoroughly with a fork. Heat margarine in a 7 to 8-inch skillet hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. The margarine should be hot enough at this point to cook the egg at the edges immediately. Draw the cooked portions with fork toward the center so that the uncooked portions flow to the bottom and outer edge. Keep mixture as level as possible. Shake skillet frequently to keep omelet from sticking. When eggs no longer flow and surface is still moist, increase heat to brown bottom quickly. If necessary, loosen edge. Shake skillet again to be certain omelet is not sticking at any point. Fold in half or roll. Total cooking time, about 1½ minutes. Makes 1-2 servings.

ACT II Egg Dumplings With Herb Sauce

6 eggs Mollet	½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 pie crust recipe for double crust

To make eggs mollet: Let eggs stand out of the refrigerator until room temperature, about 45 minutes. Place in pan of rapidly boiling water, using 1 pint of water per egg or enough to have an inch layer of water above eggs. Turn off heat and cover to keep very hot. If necessary, set pan off burner to prevent further boiling. Let stand 8 to 10 minutes, depending upon size of eggs. Place in ice water at least 2 minutes before shelling. To remove shell and keep eggs whole, first crackle the shell gently but thoroughly. Meanwhile prepare pie crust, adding the nutmeg. Roll pastry on lightly floured surface to a 10 x 15-inch rectangle. Cut into six 5-inch squares. Place an egg in the center of each. Bring pastry corners together at top of egg and seal all edges. Place on baking sheet. Bake at 425 degrees until lightly browned, 12 to 15 minutes. Serve with Herb Sauce.

Herb Sauce

¼ cup chopped onion	½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons margarine	½ teaspoon thyme
2 tablespoons flour	1½ cups milk
	1 egg beaten

Cook onion in margarine until transparent. Add flour, salt and thyme; stir over low heat until blended. Add milk all at once. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened throughout. Add a small amount of the hot mixture to the egg, stirring constantly, then pour into hot mixture. Continue cooking 2 to 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Makes enough sauce for ¼ cup for each dumpling.

ACT III—Hot Dog 'n Eggwiches

1 frankfurter, thinly sliced	2 tablespoons milk
2 teaspoons margarine	¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs	Dash pepper
	2 frankfurter buns

Lightly brown frankfurter in margarine. Mix eggs, milk, salt and pepper, mixing thoroughly for a uniform yellow. Pour egg mixture over frankfurter. As mixture begins to set at bottom and sides, gently lift cooked portions with a spatula so that the thin, uncooked part can flow to the bottom. Avoid constant stirring. Cook until eggs are thickened throughout but still moist, about 3 to 5 minutes. Spoon onto buns. Makes 2 sandwiches.

ACT IV Quiche La Carmel

Plain pastry for one 9-inch pie shell	1½ cups milk
½ lb. mild Italian sausage	¼ cup grated Romano cheese
½ cup chopped green pepper	1 teaspoon salt
6 eggs, beaten	½ teaspoon garlic powder

Line 9-inch pie pan with pastry. Trim edges and flute. Remove sausage from casing and brown, breaking up sausage while cooking. Add green pepper and cook until tender. Cool slightly. Combine eggs, milk, cheese, salt and garlic powder. Stir in sausage mixture and blend well. Pour into pie shell. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes or until golden brown. Serve hot. Makes 6 servings.

ACT VII Eggs & Asparagus Au Gratin

2 pkgs. (10 oz.) frozen
asparagus spears
2 tablespoons margarine
2 tablespoons flour

1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1½ cups milk
1 cup (4 oz.) grated American cheese
6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
Cook asparagus according to package directions; drain. Melt margarine in saucepan; blend in flour, mustard, salt and pepper.
Add milk all at once and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat and blend in cheese. Place alternate layers of asparagus, egg and cheese sauce in a greased 1½ quart shallow baking dish, reserving several egg slices for garnish. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes, or until sauce is bubbly. Garnish with additional egg slices. Makes 6

servings.

ACT V Egg Pot Pie

6 small onions, cooked
1 cup sliced carrots, cooked
2 cups coarsely diced celery, cooked
6 hard-cooked eggs, coarsely
cut
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
¼ teaspoon celery salt
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
2 cans (10½ oz.) condensed cream of mushroom soup

Plain pastry

Place vegetables into 2-quart shallow casserole. Add eggs as a second layer. Blend seasonings and sprinkle over eggs.
Pour the undiluted soup over eggs. Top with pastry strips, rolled ¼-inch thick and cut into narrow strips. Bake at 450 degrees until pastry is wellbrowned and filling is bubbly, 25 to 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

ACT VI Creole Eggs

2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped green
pepper
¼ cup margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon chili powder
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
1 can (No. 2) whole tomatoes
10 hard-cooked eggs, quartered
Chinese Noodles

Cook onion and green pepper in margarine in saucepan until tender, but not brown. Blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk and tomatoes all at once and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add quartered eggs.
Serve over hot Chinese noodles.

"COUNTRY" WEDDING? DON'T KNOCK IT!

by Karen Thomas

Stop yearning for a "big city" wedding for your son or daughter! Start appreciating the many plus factors a "country" wedding includes.

As mother of two recently-married sons, I was able to weigh the factors first hand. The "country" wedding took all honors.

Until I had actually been through the jumps on wedding plans, I thought our younger son's wedding in a 271-population town would be rough going. I thought our older son's wedding at the bride's enormous church in St. Louis would be Instant Success! Not so.

The weddings were one month apart and very much alike. Each bride wanted a white wedding gown with lace, long bridesmaids' dresses and a reception. The guest lists were the same size, 125 invitations. The only variable wedding factor, really, was the urban versus rural location.

In my minor role as Mother of the Grooms, I could peek behind the scenes and compare the two weddings and their planning. Take the matter of ordering city-wedding flowers. The bride worked horrible long hours and her parents lived in Pennsylvania, so I helped with the ordering.

The first discussion with the big-city florist shop covered the date and general idea of flowers the bride wanted. The second session furnished the florist with a magazine ad showing the bridesmaid's dresses in color. The third florist junket nailed down the prices of all of this glory. The fourth florist conference reconfirmed arrangements on time of delivery of the flowers to the huge church. Which of the six or seven church entrances to deliver to. Color choices of mothers' and grandmothers' corsages. Final instructions on spraying the altar plateau basket white. And a reminder to the florist that the bride was allergic to daisies, so beware!

The fifth and last skull session was held by phone a few days before the big-city wedding, reconfirming everything and cautioning him again about the bride's allergies.

In case this florist review sounds like sour grapes, it's not meant to be. It's offered only as a typical example of what big-city weddings entail. Actually, Mr. Florist, and I became good friends and one day he even showed me how to split carnations and wire them.

The country wedding? Flowers were uncomplicated, right from the start.

The bride's aunt and her wall-to-wall flower garden lived across the road from the church. The aunt insisted on fixing the altar flowers. They were gorgeous white peonies. A cousin made "whimsies" for the aisle ends of the church pews. She took white tulips, bent the petals back so that each tulip was one large open bloom, taped each tulip stem to the pew end with masking tape, then plopped a white satin bow over the tape to hide it. Darling!

To these sincerely warmhearted relatives, doing part of the flowers was their contribution to the rural wedding.

"No bother at all," the aunt told me. "We love helping out. That's what folks are for, come wedding time."

(And wedding times come rarely to that small church. It had not had a wedding for 11 months, and none was scheduled for the year ahead. Not so with the big-city church, where two or three ceremonies take place every week, year round.)

A neighbor did the bridesmaids' baskets, using home-grown pink peonies and ivy. Incidentally, each bridesmaid was instructed to root the ivy following the ceremony, then bring the bride a growing plant of it on her first wedding anniversary a year later. Such a nice tradition!

The bride's bouquet, pink and white rosebuds shaped like a cross, came from the nearest town with a florist, nine miles away. The cross rested happily in the spring house until just before the ceremony. It wasn't alone there. With it were the mothers' and grandmothers' corsages made from granny's gardenia plant. Also in the spring house were the groomsmen's lily-of-the-valley boutonnières, thanks to the sea of plants naturalizing in the church graveyard.

The "country" wedding flowers, from first to last, were without problems or worries. Unlike the "big city" wedding, there was no tension, no confusion, no eleventh hour worrying about the florist's delivery truck getting stuck in traffic.

Flowers show. So many wedding details don't. Take parking, for example.

The big-city church had no parking area, so the bride scouted out the various commercial parking lots available. She also checked out metered parking spaces on the streets and passed the word along that the meters took only nickels, no dimes or pennies.

For those guests who did not get the word, the groom's father stood at the church door dispensing nickels to anyone desperate for them.

The best man had to clear with the city police the possibility of parking the getaway car in the No Parking Zone at the church door.

Parking automobiles at the "country" wedding? Relax! The little church was back from the side of the road, surrounded by fresh air and its own gravel parking lot. The getaway car needed no police permission. For the rural wedding, parking was worry-free.

Both weddings had receptions. The big midtown St. Louis church had only limited kitchen facilities, so the city bride and her mother had to make arrangements with a restaurant. There was much beforehand hashing and thrashing about the availability and prices of goodies like shrimp, open-faced sandwiches, egg rolls, chip-dip, petit fours and the like. As it turned out, the reception was confusing, the service lousy, the food cold—but the whole affair was lovely—I guess!

And the rural reception? A lovely affair, too, but so different! It was held in the basement of the church, following the late afternoon ceremony. Everyone who came to the wedding was expected to stay for a sit-down dinner afterwards.

When we were chatting one day before the wedding, the bride said that the ladies of the church do the dinner.

"They always do. They fix all the food and help serve and clean up afterwards. Mother and I won't have one single thing to worry about."

The food?

"Oh, I guess there'll be fried chicken and ham and deviled eggs and slaw, and then there will be hot rolls and homemade apple butter, and potato salad, and fresh asparagus—Dad thinks his will be ready to cut by then—and corn relish and fresh strawberries and cakes. Everybody'll get plenty to eat. The church ladies all work together on it."

Those three words—"all work together"—summed up the rural wedding. "Country" weddings point up the caliber of you people who are the backbone of this great land of ours, you folks who think thoughtfully, live joyously, and really get a chuckle out of rural living and rural marrying.

So stop yearning for a big-city wedding for your son or daughter. "Country" wedding? Don't knock it! Enjoy it, right down to the charivari!

The Dispute Still Rages:

Who Killed Custer?

by Gordon T. Morris

Lieutenant James Bradley wheeled his troop to a stop atop a grassy knoll overlooking the Little Big Horn.

In the distance, on a small hill covered with yellowing buffalo grass, he saw patches of white and brown, here and there a flash of blue. With his Crow Indian scouts he made his way slowly, cautiously, down into a gulley and up the side of the hill.

There, pincushioned with arrows and stripped of their uniforms lay the bodies of Lieutenant-General George Armstrong Custer and his Seventh Cavalry, already bloated into obscene shapes by the hot prairie sun.

The only survivor on the hill was a badly-wounded horse named Comanche.

Or was there another, much more important survivor?

Did Custer really die on the Little Big Horn? If so, how did he die? Which Indian killed him, or did he save his last bullet for himself?

For a while after the June 25, 1876 battle, speculation flared that Custer was still alive!

One theory held that Custer had been captured by the Cheyenne alive and wounded, and because of their respect for his bravery, nursed him back to health, then released him on his promise that he would never fight Indians again.

At best, this is a tall tale. The Cheyenne—or any other tribe that day—were in no mood for prisoners, and weren't likely to believe any more of the white man's promises, especially when the white man was an Indian fighter like Custer.

Another story is that Custer, along with a few men, escaped death by riding along the wash of Rosebud Creek and away from the battle and, realizing that he would be branded a coward for not staying with his command, Custer dove into a cloak of obscurity.

A few years later an old acquaintance of Custer claimed he not only saw Custer on the streets of New Orleans, but freely talked with Custer about the battle and its aftermath.

But no trace of Custer was found, except at the Little Big Horn.

There Lieutenant Bradley, and subsequently three other officers, found Custer's body lying among the 51 men who had made the celebrated "last stand" near the top of the hill.

Two wounds were found, one in his temple, the other in his chest. Either could have been fatal. He was neither mutilated or scalped: an Indian sign for a man who had not died cheaply.

The Indians who demolished Custer's command that day were perhaps the most powerful band ever assembled for war. They were all there: Miniconjou, Oglala, Hunkpapa and Sans Arcs Sioux; Cheyenne; Comanche; Blackfeet; Yankton; Santees; and even some Arapahoe.

Their war leaders read like an Indian hall of fame: Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse, Gall, Two Moon, Hump, Low Dog, Big Road, White Bull. Each of them led hundreds of warriors into the hot, dusty, swirling cauldron that was the battle of the Little Big Horn.

Their victory was total, complete. It was not, as history says, a massacre, but simply a battle in which a numerical-superior Indian war party defeated a troop of cavalry.

Stories swept the nation about the battle, and gory tales of mutilation added fuel to the hate-fire that was building against the Indian.

One of the more popular was that Chief Rain-in-the-Face, a Sioux, had cut out Captain Thomas Custer's heart to repay a grievance he held against the Captain.

Rain-in-the-Face later told the story himself, and Custer's wife, Elizabeth, retold it in her book, "Boots and Saddles." Indeed, Rain-in-the-Face became so famous that Henry Wadsworth Longfellow penned a lengthy poem entitled, "The Revenge of Rain-in-the-Face."

But Indian and white man agreed that there was little mutilation at the Little Big Horn. Lieutenant Bradley, in an official report, said he noticed hardly any mutilation, save for some scalping, and saw no signs of a heart cut out of a body.

But what of Custer?

Many Indians came forth to claim his death. Chief Medicine Bear, who lived until the 1940's, said long afterward that two Cheyenne—Two Moon and Harshay Horse—had actually killed Custer. Foolish Elk, a Brule, claimed that Spotted Calf, a Santee of Chief Inkpuduta's war party, killed Custer. Others claimed it was Two Moon himself.

But perhaps no Indian put forth a more convincing claim than White Bull, a Sioux chieftain and a nephew of the famous Sitting Bull.

In his own personal narrative written long after the battle ("The Warrior Who Killed Custer," translated and edited by James H. Howard), White Bull tells his story succinctly:

"I grabbed him and killed him. I counted first coup. He hit me with his fists and hurt me and then he grabbed my braids. I grabbed his carbine and killed him with it. I was scared but I finally succeeded. The soldier was Long Hair." (P. 55).

Stenley Vestal, in his book, "Warpath," gave a more lengthy account of the same event as told to him by White Bull, in which White Bull wrestled and fought with Custer for some time (during which Custer tried to bite off White Bull's nose) then wrenched Custer's gun away, shot him in the head and fired at his heart.

White Bull's description of Custer, his fight to the death, and his account of Custer's wounds match Lieutenant Bradley's findings, thus providing the most accurate picture of Custer's death from the man who probably knew best: the Indian who killed him.

After the Custer fight White Bull was wounded by a spent bullet, taken back to the Indian camp and, after treatment and a rest, returned to the battlefield.

There he met a relative, Bad Soup, a warrior who had known Custer at Fort Lincoln. Bad Soup pointed Custer out to White Bull. "Well," said White Bull, "If that is Long Hair, I am the one who killed him."

After the battle Custer became in death what he had longed to be in life: a national hero.

Paintings hung in saloons, hotels and houses, romantically (if erroneously) showing the long-haired Custer standing at the top of the hill with his few remaining soldiers, firing his pistol and flashing his sabre to the last.

Much later military experts and historians looked on Custer not as a hero, but as a vainglorious, fame-seeking adventurer who had actually sacrificed his men in a series of un-hero-like blunders. The truth may never be known.

But those who were there agreed: he died bravely. But he died foolishly.

As Bad Soup and White Bull stood that hot day looking at Custer's corpse, perhaps Bad Soup put it best:

"Long Hair thought he was the greatest man in the world."

"Now he is there."
