

Exon Shines Spotlight on School's 'Project Success'

The governor of Nebraska has put the spotlight on the Wayne Carroll school system.

Gov. J. James Exon has issued a proclamation declaring today (Monday) as Project Success Day in Nebraska.

In issuing the proclamation, Gov. Exon said, "We are proud that our Nebraska schools have taken a leadership role in developing programs to meet the needs of children, and wish to pay special tribute and honor to the Wayne public schools for their concern about quality education."

Project Success is a unique program in the Wayne Carroll school system which aims at helping youngsters who have language disabilities and are unable to learn through conventional teaching methods.

The project, funded by the federal government through the state department of education, was recently selected as one of the top seven Title III projects in the nation.

Said Gov. Exon in issuing the proclamation: "With such projects as Project Success, I believe that my hope will be realized and that Nebraska may well point the way for other states to follow in providing a classroom based model that is economical and effective."

The U.S. Office of Education selected the local project as one of the top 25 in the nation after reviewing hundreds which are federally funded. As a result, the project and staff members were spotlighted during a national education fair in Washington, D.C. in May.

About 1,000 education officials from around the country attended the fair to look over the projects, which had to show evidence of success in solving an educational problem, be reasonably priced, be highly innovative and be adaptable to other schools.

The Wayne Carroll project received a special certificate from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare during the fair.

State commissioner of education, Cecil Stanley added his support to the Wayne Carroll Schools.

"Elements of Project Success may be found in other schools, but their projects and processes

State Official To Talk in Wakefield

The state's top highway safety official will speak in Wakefield Tuesday night.

He is John L. Sullivan, director of the state department of motor vehicles and director of highway safety.

He will talk to several groups in Northeast Nebraska Monday and Tuesday, speaking about the menace of drunk drivers as well as the directions the highway safety movement must take in coming months.

Sullivan will talk Monday evening at Norfolk and later that same evening to the Stanton County Selective Local Accident Prevention (SLAP) committee in Stanton. Tuesday afternoon he will talk to the Madison County SLAP group, followed that evening with a talk to the groups from Wayne and Dixon Counties in Wakefield.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in the hotel at Wakefield.

taken as a whole are not found anywhere else in the country."

The commissioner added, "It is believed that from 10 to 20 per cent of intelligent children in the United States are not being taught successfully because of language disabilities, and programs such as this are vitally needed."

Required in 1969 with federal funds provided by a grant from the state department of education, the project consists of three parts. It includes a language arts division, motor perception division and curriculum modification division.

Gov. Exon's proclamation is printed elsewhere in this issue of the newspaper.

FIREMEN from Concord and Dixon helped extinguish a blaze at the Raymond Malcom farm about a mile north and a mile west of Concord Wednesday afternoon. According to Malcom, the fire started when sparks from trash he was burning apparently flew into an old work shed. Firemen BREAKING GROUND during a formal ceremony for a Wayne business which plans to expand are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Coryell. Coryell Auto Co. will move from downtown to a new site on the west edge of the city.

New Coryell Auto Home Going Up West of City

Work is underway on the new home in Wayne for Coryell Auto Co.

Roy Coryell, owner of the business, said he hopes the new showroom and service center on the west edge of the city will be completed by the end of the year.

The new facility will cost about $150,000, he said, and will enable his employees to give better service to their customers.

Coryell Auto is presently located at 112 E. Second St., just off Main.

Coryell said the present location of his business just does not have room for expansion, forcing him to move elsewhere to provide more modern service and showroom facilities.

"Due to our growth over the years, we have to move some where else," he said. "Room has always been a big problem where we are now located, but the new site should give plenty of room to display cars and provide service," he added.

He and his wife were joined by longtime employees Ted Reed, city clerk administrator Dan Sherry and company representatives at an official ground breaking ceremony at the new site Thursday afternoon.

The new business, located on the south side of Highway 35 on the west edge of the city, will provide between 16,000 and 17,000 square feet of building space, Coryell said.

It will include a showroom 30 by 70 feet with an additional canopy area in front. The building will face north with a front nearly 100 feet long.

It also will include facilities for servicing trucks, something which is now difficult because of lack of space, Coryell said.

Coryell Auto has been in business since 1927 when Roy's father, W.C. Coryell, became a Chevrolet dealer. The business now employs 38 persons.

Local Youth To Become Eagle Scout

A 16-year-old Wayne youth will receive the highest honor in Boy Scouting June 17.

Ralph Arett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Arett of Wayne, will be awarded the Eagle Scout Award during a 2 p.m. ceremony at the First United Methodist Church in Wayne.

Arett began scouting as a Cub Scout eight years ago. At the age of 11 he became a member of Boy Scout Troop 175 and started earning his 21 merit badges in order to become eligible for the Eagle Scout Award.

During his freshman year at Wayne High, Arett was student manager for the freshman football team. In the last two years, Arett also was a member of the varsity band.

Engineer, Area Farmers Testify in NPPD Hearing

An electrical engineer and several area farmers gave several hours of testimony in Wayne Friday concerning the request by Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) for a permit to build a transmission line in Wayne and Dixon Counties.

The transmission line, which is already under construction, would link up with NPPD lines near Dakota City to serve a large steel mill under construction northeast of Nebraska.

Friday's public hearing was scheduled by the Nebraska Public Service Commission because residents in the two counties have protested construction of the line. No protests were received from residents in the Norfolk and Dakota City areas, according to the commission.

Protests have been received from Elton Miller, Glenn Meyer, Harvey Anderson, Willis Nelson, Glen Olson and Alvin Anderson.

A protest lodged by the city of Wayne for fear of losing state and federal funding for airport work has been dropped. City officials learned from the state department of aeronautics that construction of the line would not mean loss of future funding. Construction of the 55.6-mile, 370,000 volt transmission line has been underway for several weeks.

NPPD hopes to complete the line sometime this summer.

The protests were lodged after farmers in the Wakefield area discovered that a permit for construction had not been obtained from the state commission as required by law.

A spokesman for NPPD said at Friday's hearing that an "administrative oversight" was responsible for not applying for the permit.

Jim Eckstrand, NPPD engineer in charge of transmission and distribution, said NPPD was "highly embarrassed and very sorry" about the mistake.

He said the permit should have been obtained in January, but none was obtained until middle April when the error was discovered.

Elton Miller, a farmer just west of Wakefield, said he learned about the lack of a permit about the middle of March in a letter from the state public service commission.

Miller earlier in the year sought state and federal approval for a restricted landing strip on his land. He received federal approval for the strip in a letter dated March 20, he said.

Miller testified Friday that if the line is built it will make landing on the strip difficult and will create a hazard for aerial spraying in a large area near his farm.

Although neither he nor his wife hold a pilot's license, Miller told the public service commissioner conducting the hearing that the airstrip would serve others in case of emergencies and could be used in aerial spraying if he gave his permission.

The federal approval he received is for a landing strip restricted to his personal use.

Also testifying during the hearing were Weldon Mortenson, Glen Meyer, Glen Olson, Ray Prochaska, Robert Blatchford and Robert Turner, who own land where the line will cross.

They voiced fears that the line would prohibit development of central pivot irrigation systems in the area and would create a hazard for farmers working in fields underneath the lines.

The public service commission will review the testimony and make a decision concerning the protests.

School Request Council Topic

The Wayne city council will consider a request from the Wayne Carroll school board during Tuesday night's regular meeting.

The school board has passed a resolution requesting that police be permitted to enforce traffic regulations on school property, something not permitted under present city ordinance.

A similar action by the council would be necessary to allow city police to enforce those regulations.

Also on the council's agenda is further discussion of what action to take to enforce regulations for dumping at the city's two land fill sites east of town. Persons have been disregarding the regulations, something which prompted the council last month to discuss living violators.

Council also will consider further annexation of two pieces of land on the southwest edge of the city. Annexation of the land would be required to have a portion of Gramland Road as property owners in the area have requested.

The council's meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Woman's Club room of the city auditorium.

CD Official: Prepare Now for Disaster

It may be years before a natural disaster such as a tornado hits Wayne County, but we should be planning now so destruction, injuries and deaths can be kept at a minimum.

That was the gist of what a state Civil Defense official told 21 Wayne County residents Thursday night.

Fred Schultz of Lincoln, program support coordinator for the state civil defense, told a group in Wayne that "plans should be developed now" so people know what to do in case of natural disasters such as tornadoes, flooding, range fires, severe thunderstorms or strong winds.

It may be a little far fetched to talk about floods in Wayne County, but you do have flash floods, occasionally," he said.

FRED SCHULTZ

T. P. ROBERTS

"and there are other emergencies, some of them requiring fast action."

The county should have plans for handling such things as plane crashes or automobile wrecks injuring many people as well as plans for natural disasters.

The group included Civil Defense director T. P. Roberts, county officials, residents from area communities and farmers. Roberts planned the meeting.

Schultz also urged the CD director to have the staff at the local hospital develop and write down plans so everybody in the hospital knows exactly what to do in case large numbers of injured persons are brought in for treatment.

Area Gas Stations Feeling the Pinch of Allocation

By BOB BARTLETT

Allocation. For many area gas station owners and managers that's a new word in their vocabulary—a word that isn't very pleasant.

Since the beginning of the farming season, gas stations as well as farmer cooperatives have found that oil companies are restricting gas and diesel fuel due to the current fuel crisis in the nation.

Although most of the station managers contacted Thursday say there is no sign of closing individual stations, many voiced the opinion that the shortage is serious.

"According to the information I have," said Dick Daws, manager at the Tri-County Co-Op in Laurel, "the present situation will last until 1975." At that point, he went on, the shortage will begin easing.

During the period, Daws expects gas prices to rise to between 40 and 50 cents a gallon. Current market reports show foreign companies are raising their import prices for crude oil by as much as 20 per cent, he emphasized.

"That means wholesale prices could jump from two to 15 cents."

"Right now we're on a 100 per cent allocation according to last year's figures," he said. The figures are based on the same amount used during June of last year, Daws explained.

As far as diesel fuel is concerned, Daws said he still is at 100 per cent of last year's figures. "We sell most of the fuel to our farm customers," he added, "but we can sell a little to other people."

The hardest hit area is Hoskins.

Both Bruggeman Oil and Frink Service Station are being allocated less fuel than they received last year during the month of June.

For the first time in Glen Frink's 29 years in Hoskins, he is being limited in acquiring gas. "I'm allocated 90 per cent of last year's total," he explained, "but my biggest cut is in diesel fuel—75 per cent."

Gene Bruggeman's problem isn't quite as bad, but his 90 per cent allocation in gas and diesel fuel reflects a serious situation.

Both men say they are not taking on new customers.

In Allen the idea of a fuel shortage isn't a laughing matter but Jo Bob McCord is not willing to worry about next month it may be placed on allocation.

Right now Paul Rahn has enough gas to meet area demands but will have to make some adjustments when he is not sure on the amount of gasoline ordered.

Despite one rumor that Erwin's Service Station in Concord is going to close, owner Jack Erwin remains open.

"I don't know where that rumor got started," he said, "but I'm still open for business."

Erwin said that he is on 100 per cent allocation, which means he will get about 15,000 gallons for the month of June.

"I'm not too sure how much gas fuel I will get," he continued, "but now the company is figuring out an allocation plan."

Erwin said he is not having any getting fuel but admits he is just getting by.

Two of Wakefield's businesses—Wall's Station and the Tri-County Co-Op—are on 100 per cent allocation for gasoline, with Erwin's getting 100 per cent diesel fuel.

"We're in a pretty tight spot," Charles Jackson of Tri-County said. "The heavy trucks coming from the way, because they have a shortage will use more diesel fuel."

Erwin said that he is on 100 per cent allocation, which means he will get about 15,000 gallons for the month of June.

"I'm not too sure how much gas fuel I will get," he continued, "but now the company is figuring out an allocation plan."

What's the speed record for a bicycle? Fifty miles an hour, you say? Sixty? Seventy?

It's really 127 mph, a fantastic mark set by a Frenchman, according to a bike nut in Harlan, Ia.

The biking enthusiast is John Cave, a 17-year-old who plans on riding his 15-speed two-wheeler all the way to Canada this summer. He plans on covering about 80 miles a day on his bike, which is equipped with special tires. The tires are one-eighth inch tubular ones designed to cut friction.

Considering steaks sell for something like $12 in Japan, it doesn't seem a public relations push would be needed in this country. But one is, and it's good to see somebody getting around to starting it.

—Colgate Palmolive Co. has started a program to enable junior and senior high school in Nebraska to raise money for school improvements and class activities.

Students can send in boxtops and labels and get money to buy such things as band uniforms, athletic equipment and the like. The program is open also to organizations that support the school.

The program was tested in 12 states and proved successful when more than 500 schools took part, the company says. In one Gulf Coast area, a school utilized the program to help build a field house devastated by Hurricane Camille.

School principals in the state are being contacted by the company about the program.

—An Iowa community has joined others in the nation which will generate electric energy from solid waste products.

An appeal for empty cans brought a flood of response. Some 120,000 cans were collected by youth organizations, school kids, church groups and others in Fox River, Ill., where the dome is being built.

Being used in the building are inexpensive, lightweight panels produced by sandwiching the cans between two fiberglass reinforced polyester sheets. Each panel is an equilateral triangle, 10 feet on each side. About 1,000 cans go into each panel.

What's more, the panels can even be fabricated to transmit light or be opaque.

Safety Record Better, But Still a Concern

While highway deaths per miles traveled have decreased 38 per cent during the past 20 years, the 54,700 motor vehicle-related fatalities in 1971 are a serious concern to government and the auto industry.

With 63 million more cars on the road in 1971 than in 1951 (an increase of 121 per cent) and 79 billion more miles traveled (an increase of 138 per cent), the annual number of traffic deaths in that 20-year span correspondingly rose only 17,704, or 48 per cent.

Many factors have been responsible for improved highway safety. Our highway system boasts the best safety record of any nation in the world. Driver training programs, subsidized in part by the automotive industry, are producing drivers who are more qualified to deal with today's complex driving situations.

Safer cars with better handling characteristics, stronger tires, improved braking and a host of energy absorbing systems from specially designed bumpers to padded dashes are being built to take full advantage of today's modern high-speed highway network.

Government and industry are working together to develop such safety measures as overhead or break-away highway signs which eliminate the collision hazard of roadside signs, cushioning devices such as sand or water-filled cylinders placed at potential danger spots like highway dividing points, special guard rails that when struck are designed to angle a car back into the roadway under control rather than throw it out of control or penetrate the car like a spear, and high median barriers to thwart head-on collisions.

We've come a long way in highway safety, but we're not home yet. One stumbling block is the driver himself.

For example, alcohol is still a factor in about 50 per cent of all accidents. And had all 44,100 car occupants killed in 1971 been wearing lap belts, statistics show that about 10,000 would have lived. Yet, an Insurance Institute for Highway Safety study shows less than 15 per cent wear lap belts and fewer than two and one half per cent wear lap and shoulder belts.

While the industry is constantly working to improve highway safety, part of the answer still hinges on those who use the automobiles.

OBSERVATIONS

Let's standardize those warning signals

Last week's feature story on tornadoes convinced us of one thing.

There should be more consistency in the kinds of warnings given when a tornado or other severe weather is spotted. The warning siren preferably should be the same throughout the state. Ideally it should be the same throughout the nation.

As it now stands, a resident of Wakefield might confuse Wayne's or Winside's warning signal with a fire signal. Carroll, Laurel and Hoskins residents might do the same thing, since all four communities have a warning signal of one continuous or long blast of the siren while Wayne and Winside have warnings of three blasts separated by periods of silence.

The all-clear signal isn't even consistent in the area, state or nation. Those signals vary from the 60-second blast in Wayne to the two long blasts in Hoskins to the one short blast in Carroll.

True, a person hearing any one of those warning signals would probably realize that some danger exists, for the signals differ from the normal fire signal. However, is that person going to take the necessary steps to seek safety if he's not sure exactly what the signal means? We think he might be a little hesitant, and when a tornado warning is sounded there should be no hesitancy on anybody's part—they should seek safety as quickly as possible.

We would like to see somebody take the initiative to standardize the tornado warning signal nationwide. If that can't be done, it should be standardized in Nebraska. And if that's impossible, area communities should agree to use the same signal so as not to confuse persons who visit back and forth in towns.

It would be a terrible thing to have somebody seriously injured or killed merely because they were unfamiliar with the signal used in a certain community.

We would like to see somebody take the initiative to standardize the tornado warning signal nationwide. If that can't be done, it should be standardized in Nebraska. And if that's impossible, area communities should agree to use the same signal so as not to confuse persons who visit back and forth in towns.

It would be a terrible thing to have somebody seriously injured or killed merely because they were unfamiliar with the signal used in a certain community.

Your friendly neighborhood good neighbor.

Maybe you're one of those people who thinks of The American Red Cross only when you see a news report of a flood or hurricane on tv. And it's true—we're there. In hours giving aid. And comfort. And supplying the necessities of life. All as a gift from You—the American people.

But the other things we do are just as important. If not so spectacular. And they happen right in your own home town.

The truth of the matter is: Red Cross is what you need it to be. Wherever you live. Whenever you are.

That's why you find us doing different things in different home towns. We teach blind kids to swim in some places. Or make sure ghetto youngsters have ice skates. Or teach baby care to deaf mothers. Or help out with drug programs. You name it. We do it.

Whatever a community needs, is what Red Cross needs to do. So, in a very real sense, you are Red Cross. And Red Cross is you. And helping the Red Cross is very like helping yourself.

Forget us not.

Whether it's a Checking or Savings Account... financial advice or borrowing money... come to us. You can get them all at our bank. Easily. Don't forget, now.

ALL FRIENDS AND RELATIVES are invited to attend the open house reception honoring the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Joy Tucker of Carroll. The 2 to 5 p.m. event will be held Sunday, June 17, at the Carroll city auditorium. A program is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. representative for the Omaha World Herald.

The delayed golden anniversary will be hosted by the couple's children, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson of Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Dwan French of Buhl, Idaho, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tucker of Sioux City, Iowa, and Mr. and Mrs. Rush Tucker of Tempe, Ariz. They have 13 grandchildren and a great grandson.

Tucker relates the longevity in his family to his maternal heritage. Although his mother died at a relatively early age she had two sisters who lived to be 90 and a brother who lived to be 95. And he also relates his long and happy marriage to the fact that when they were married they "just knew it was for keeps."

When asked if his sisters would attend his golden wedding celebration Mr. Tucker remarked, "Well, it would be quite strenuous to make such a long trip when you know anyone who has celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary isn't a teenager anymore."

Cook's Homer and Mallette's No-Hitter Highlight 12-1 Win

The Wayne Midgets 12-1 victory over Walthill-Lyons could have gone unnoticed Friday night if it weren't for a couple of firsts for some players.

Like Gordie Cook's in-the-park homer in the first inning and pitcher Paul Mallette's no-hitter.

Mallette, in his first full time job on the mound, fanned six visiting batters in the shortened seven-inning match while giving up one run on a fielder's choice late in the last frame.

Winner's right fielder Baumert got on via Mallette's third walk of the night. Then a fielder's choice by Tremayne allowed Walthill to score its only run.

In the first frame Cook smashed a fly ball to center field when Walthill's field man misjudged the ball. Cook scampered around the bases and came home sliding for the locals first score.

When the small crowd of followers gathered at the Wayne ball diamond, many of the spectators thought this match might be a close one. With the locals leading 3-0 after three, it looked like the game might go the full seven innings.

But Wayne soon changed that in the long-almost half hour fourth inning.

Nine runners crossed the plate with the aid of seven hits. Marty Hansen, Mike Meyer, Earle Overin, Ritch Workman and Mallette each connected for an RBI along with Rod Turner.

Jack Froehrich started the long inning with a single and scored on Hansen's single. After Cook made it to first on an error, Meyer rapped a double to put across Wayne's second run of the inning.

Wayne's bats remained hot when Overin slapped a single, good for another RBI before the team collected five more runs on four hits.

Tonight (Monday) the Midgets will take their 4-0 record to Pender in the third game of the Ralph Bishop League.

Town Team Reserves Cool West Point, 6-4

The Wayne town team put West Point on its list of victims Wednesday night, adding a 6-4 win to the team's 2-0 exhibition record.

Manager Hank Overin, using his reserves in the start, watched the host team take a 3-0 lead in the second before his crew collected two runs in the third.

Catcher Bob Nelson provided Wayne's first scoring chance when he walked. Center fielder Breck Giese slapped a single to put runners at second and third before Vaughn Benson loaded the bases on a walk.

Second sacker Jim Clark broke the scoring ice with a two-run double to put the visitors out in front.

Commission Still Accepting Applications

Permit applications are still being accepted from Nebraska residents for permits in the state's nine unfilled firearm deer units, but those received June 2 or later will not be processed until after June 18.

That's the day the Game and Parks Commission will conduct drawings to determine permit holders in the other seven deer management units, and all 10 antelope units, which were over subscribed during the May 10 June 1 initial application period. Applications for unfilled units received after June 1 are being held so that individuals not successful in the drawing will have priority in other units for their second choice.

Units that were over subscribed by June 1 were Pine Ridge, Keya Paha, Buffalo, Republican, Elkhorn, Wahoo, and Blue. Other firearm units still have good numbers of permits remaining.

In these units, permits will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis after June 18. Non-residents will be eligible to apply on July 1. Permit fees are $10 for residents and $30 for non-residents.

A total of 23,950 permits were authorized for the 1973 firearm-deer season, which runs November 10-18.

Winside Midgets Top Wakefield

The Winside Midgets knocked off Wakefield, 2-1, Thursday night in a rescheduled Friday match.

Both teams, set to play Friday night, had to push their game ahead one night due to field problems at Winside.

Tonight (Monday) Wakefield will host Bancroft while Winside travels to Walthill.

That's much better. You kept your eye on the ball.

Attention Bike Owners: Get Licenses By Friday

Several hundred bike owners in Wayne have until Friday to license their bikes at the police station.

E. L. "Pat" Halley, acting chief, said that after June 15 any bikes not having licenses will be picked up by the police and held at the station until licensed.

He noted that licensing the bikes is for the owners' protection. "That way we can check to find out who owns certain bikes, and we can use the information in locating stolen bikes," he said.

About 320 bikes had been licensed by Thursday, Halley said, but there are several hundred more which have not been licensed. A year ago the police registered more than 770 bikes, according to Halley.

The charge for licenses? Fifty cents.

Power Outages Darken City

Two power outages in two days blacked out Wayne last week.

The first one happened about 6 p. m. when a sediment bulb broke and caused the large 20 cylinder motor to quit running, an employee at the city light plant said.

The city was without electrical power for about half an hour before the problem could be eliminated.

The other outage left the city without power for just a few minutes shortly after midnight Thursday. That resulted from a switching error, the employee said.

Winside Girls Take Part in Youth Confab

Two Winside girls were among several hundred outstanding rural youths who last week attended one of four Co Op Youth Leadership Conferences on the campus of William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo.

They are Phyllis Hoeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hoeman, and Joyce Diedrickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Diedrickson.

During the week, delegates were involved in group discussion workshops and cooperative training sessions. The conference delegates operated their own co op canteen, giving them a first hand look at how a cooperative works and the responsibilities of the manager, director, employee and member.

A conference senate is elected by the delegates, and there is time for swimming, parties and relaxation throughout the week.

The conferences are sponsored each year by Farmland Industries of Kansas City. Mo. Farmland is a regional cooperative manufacturing and distributing petroleum, feed, fertilizer and farm supplies. It is owned by 2,000 local cooperatives who sponsor most of the conference delegates.

Sponsoring the Winside girls was the cooperative at Winside.

Dorothy Spatz On Probation For 3 Years

Dorothy Spatz was placed on three years probation in Wayne County district court Wednesday after pleading no contest to a charge of abandoning a dead human body.

Miss Spatz has been free on $2,500 bond.

She was charged in January following discovery of the dead body of a newly born girl in the trash room in the basement of Bowen Hall at Wayne State College.

She at first pleaded not guilty to the felony charge, then later pleaded no contest.

George W. Ditrick of Norfolk, who sentenced her Wednesday, found her guilty of the charge when she entered her no contest plea in May.

He cited an instance in a community in the southeast part of the state which showed that even professionals in hospitals don't know how to handle an emergency unless they have a plan set down.

The hospital staff was unable to care for six badly injured persons quickly and efficiently because of confusion which resulted when they were brought in at the same time, he noted.

One of the persons in the group noted that the mock disasters which Norfolk has staged have also shown that a great deal of confusion results when hospitals are called upon to handle 15 and 20 injured persons at one time.

Schultz also recommended that mobile homes be tied down securely.

"A mobile home that is anchored properly is 10 times safer in a windstorm or tornado than one which isn't tied down," he noted.

Nebraska has been lucky in recent years because the number of tornadoes hitting the state hasn't been as large as some years, Schultz said.

However, the state already has had 12 tornadoes touch ground, and the tornado season is not near yet, he added.

He said that several years ago there were 47 tornadoes reported in Nebraska in just one night, and 29 of them touched down and did some damage.

If the jet streams move just a little to the west, he noted, this state could have many more tornadoes develop.

Shown during the evening was a film titled "The Other Side of the River," a look at the 1965 flood of the Mississippi River.

That flood, the worst one ever recorded, did $157 million in damages and killed 15 persons. This year's flood was even worse, according to Schultz.

Also shown were slides instructing spotters what to look for in spotting or predicting tornadoes.
