Business Good In County, Area, Publication Says

There was a large increase in the retail activity in Wayne County in the first three months of this year as compared to the same period a year ago, according to a new publication.

Wayne County's actual retail activity during that period was 36.6 per cent greater than the first three months in 1972, considerably greater than the statewide increase of 13.5 per cent.

After discounting the growth in dollar sales for the general rise in commodity prices and the growth in real activity for population growth, more than half of the percentage gain in sales represents a rise in the goods consumed on the average per person, it reports.

Wayne County's net taxable retail sales in January, February and March totaled $5,089,000 — nearly $1.4 million greater than the $3,726,000 total in the same months last year.

Net taxable retail sales in Cedar County increased by almost that much — up from $4,181,000 to $5,320,000 for an increase of 27.7 per cent.

Dixon County's increase was about a third as great as Wayne County's — up from $2,021,000 to $2,271,000 for a 12.9 per cent increase.

Across the state, the total collected by retailers was up from $892,763,000 to $1,013,673,000 for an increase of 13.5 per cent.

Wayne and Cedar Counties were among 66 counties in the state which had sales increases greater than the state's, according to the publication.

Regionally, 17 of the state's 26 planning and development regions had increases in dollar volume of retail activity exceeding that of the state as a whole.

The region composed of Wayne, Stanton, Pierce, Madison and Antelope Counties had an increase of 26.4 per cent — up from $30,681,000 to $38,770,000.

The region made up of Dixon, Cedar and Knox Counties had a 28.7 increase — up from $10,378,000 to $13,353,000.

The publication is the first quarterly report on net taxable retail sales in the state published by the University of Nebraska Bureau of Business Research.

Drilling for Water

IT WON'T be long before the town of Allen will be operating its second water well. Salmon Well Co. of Wakefield completed the well about two weeks ago, drilling down about 165 feet. According to Allen Salmon of Wakefield, the well can easily produce 250 gallons of water a minute. The well, located on the Ben Jackson farm west of Allen, was funded through the town's revenue sharing money. Working on the project (top photo) are Salmon (back to camera) and Lynn Gunderson of Emerson. In the bottom photo, Richard Dounnik of Emerson, left, and Gunderson begin the job of disconnecting each of the 10-foot length drilling shafts.

County Homeowners Spend Large Sums Fixing Up Property

The amount of money that homeowners in Wayne County are spending per year for alterations, repairs, improvements and maintenance of their property is running into big figures.

As in other parts of the country, local homeowners are in a clean up, paint up and fix up mood.

Such is the case all over, according to the Department of Commerce. It says, "The hard ware and paint stores know it and the Census Bureau's statistics confirm it."

Locally, an estimated $1,121,000 went for such purposes in the past year, based upon government reports showing average outlays per housing unit in the regional area.

It represents an average expenditure in the Wayne area of $346 per unit. Nationally, the outlay was about $341.

Those were the averages. Some Wayne County homeowners spent considerably more than the local figure and some a great deal less since only a small proportion of them undertake major improvements in any one year.

The principal expenditure, in general, was for additions, alterations and replacements. They accounted for nearly 42 per cent of the total in the past year, the Commerce Department finds.

The other 38 per cent went for maintenance and general repairs. In this category, painting was the biggest item, accounting for almost half the amount spent. Next in order were plumbing, roofing, heating and air conditioning.

Total outlays in the United States in 1972 for the upkeep and improvement of residential properties came to approximately $17.5 billion, according to government figures. This was $12 billion more than in the previous year.

Much of the added cost was due to higher prices for services and materials.

Because of the continuing shortage of electricians, carpenters and plumbers, the cost of these services is expected to rise further.

A $300 grand prize is offered each Thursday evening, with the prize going to the person who is present with a birthday falling on the exact date announced in all participating stores at 8:15 p.m.

A $50 consolation prize goes to the person whose birthday is closest to that date if the grand prize is not given away.

Benefits in County $168,000

Wayne County residents were receiving $168,000 per month in social security benefits as of the end of 1972, according to Congressman Charles Thone.

At that time, 1,352 county residents were drawing benefits, the representative of the first congressional district reported.

The total included 714 retired workers receiving $106,000 per month and 28 disabled workers receiving $55,000 monthly, he said.

At the end of 1972 there also were 251 dependents of retired workers, 27 dependents of disabled workers, 277 survivors and 55 special age 72 recipients receiving $57,000 per month, Thone said.

At the end of 1972, 81,741 people in the 27 counties of Nebraska's first congressional district were receiving monthly benefits of $10,760,000. In all of Nebraska, 224,307 people were receiving monthly benefits of $30,112,000.

As 1972 ended, 28 1/2 million people in the United States were receiving monthly cash benefits totaling about $3.9 billion, Thone reported. The total was almost $850 million dollars a month higher than at the end of 1971. The dollar increase was due both to the 20 per cent increase in benefits voted by Congress and to the fact 1.2 million more people were drawing benefits at the end of 1972 than had received them a year earlier, Thone explained.

On display during the all-day workshop were a large number of photographs taken by Francis Kingsbury, an accomplished amateur photographer from Ponca.

Attending the workshop were Cindy Bull, Anne Liska, Judy Temme and Marvin Hansen, all of Wayne; Dwight Anderson, Laurel; Anna Borg, Dixon; Kathi Stohler of Concord; Lyle Borg of Wakefield; Nancy Kramper and Trudy Kramper, both of Dakota City; Ken Merchant, Joan Peitz and Kathy Tighe, all of South Sioux City; Claudia Kruse and Kimberly Reppert, both of Pender; and Naomi Beckmann and Lori Steinmeyer, both of Rosalia.

Neo-Classicism Trend Can Be Traced Back To Third President

In the last years of the 18th century and for the first half of the 19th century, architecture and the arts in American and Europe were influenced by a passion for antiquity. The term applied to that period is Neo-Classicism, or the Classic Revival.

But Neo-Classicism is traceable to the discovery of the remains of Pompeii in the mid 1700's. In France, the Empire style, fostered by Napoleon, was an attempt at imitating the life of the Roman Empire.

If the Classic Revival was popular in Europe, it was to be a mania in America. Columns in the classic style appeared not only on mansions in the south and on court houses and banks across the land, but also on country stores and humble farmhouses. After the Revolutionary War the Neo-Classical style of architecture really caught on, and the prime mover in establishing it here was Thomas Jefferson.

Jefferson, a statesman and philosopher, also was a scientist and architect. Jefferson sought to create a native architecture which would visually express the political ideals of the young nation. Through his classical studies, he had been attracted to Roman law and literature. When he became Minister to France he developed an interest in Roman architecture

Jefferson was looking for something dignified and imposing, but not heavy. Roman architecture seemed to have these qualities. His design of the state capitol at Richmond, Va., (1785) clearly was an adaptation of a Roman temple at Nimes in southern France.

When he was only 26 he had built himself a house atop a hill in Charlottesville, Va., Monticello. In 1796, some years after his return from France, he rebuilt the house along Roman lines. In fact, he designed the estate, both agriculturally and architecturally, as a typical Roman villa.

When the city of Washington was being laid out by the French engineer, Charles L'Enfant, Jefferson was President Washington's Secretary of State. He exercised influence on the planning of the city and many of its monuments. It seems fitting that he was to be in 1801 the first President to be inaugurated in that city.

After 1809, Jefferson retired to Monticello. From 1817 until his death in 1826, he assisted in the founding and early management of the University of Virginia. He planned not only the buildings but also the curriculum of the university. The campus buildings there are among the best examples of the Classic Revival in the country.

Bait and Switch Advertising

Have you ever made the mistake of believing an advertisement telling about a product available at a fraction of its regular retail cost?

Many consumers have been misled by such an advertising technique. It's called bait and switch advertising.

The "bait" is prepared in the form of an ad to appear in the newspaper or to be broadcast offering a product at an unbelievably low price. The product advertised could be anything from a side of beef to a sewing machine.

Few foods are more unappetizing than an old side of beef with dark meat and yellowed fat. By the same token, few homemakers would be interested in a sewing machine that doesn't sew—regardless of price.

Now for the "switch." When the customer is shown these inferior products, he immediately expresses lack of interest in making a purchase. At his point, the skillful salesman calls the customer's attention to a superior product nearby—but, of course, at a price considerably higher.

The salesman succeeds in selling the higher priced product. He's usually very willing to work out some financing arrangements if necessary. His "bait and switch" advertising was successful.

The bait is used to get the customer into the store. The salesman's skill successfully switches the customer's interest to a more expensive, than it would be from a dealer who does not use deceptive advertising techniques.

If you suspect "bait and switch" sales techniques, think again before you buy from that dealer.

Use thermostatically control led stove surface units to reduce continuous power usage.

A Time to Remember

THE HALLS of Wakefield's Elementary School Saturday night were filled with over 500 former Wakefield High grads renewing old friendships while enjoying a banquet at the class reunion. For Mr. and Mrs. Verner Fischer (above left) trying to keep track of orders for the latest student directories presented an endless chore, but to the Wakefield couple it was a good chance to see many old and new faces. Two of the oldest grads (above right) got a chance to talk about the past and present during the evening event. Edna A. Collins, a 1907 graduate, left, and L. W. Hyspe, 1916, share some of their memories. Both are from Wakefield. As graduates walked through the halls into the gymnasium, many of them got to sift through some of the old and new yearbooks on the tables.

FOR MANY area riders Sunday was a day to enjoy a good ride and a chance to get in some top competition with other riders from the neighboring states. A grand total of 222 entered the Wayne Saddle Club's horse show at the Wayne County fairgrounds. Before, and even after some of the events, some riders gave their horses a break. Carol Nuss, right, along with sisters Nancy and Margaret, decided the best way to give "Binky" a rest would be to sit on the hillside and watch Judge Galen Frenzen of Fullerton had his day full of chores, including judging the ladies' senior western pleasure.

Rain Knocks Out Clash Between Homer, Wayne

Chalk up another victory to the weatherman. Sunday night rain drew its second win of the season when it cancelled Wayne's hopes of taking over first place in the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League.

The locals, playing at Homer, were deadlocked at 2-2 going into the bottom of the ninth when rain forced the game to be called.

Homer started out with a 1-0 lead when left fielder Bob Jacobsen smashed the game open with a home run off Wayne hurler Paul Eddie in the fourth frame. The home squad came back in the following frame with another score, this time off a double by second baseman Larry Utemark to drive in shortstop Rick Aadland.

The locals countered with their two runs in the top of the eighth. Steve Hix and Breck Giese each connected for singles to set up the scoring plays. After shortstop Randy Helgren fled out, left fielder Wayne Magdanz ripped a single to score one run. Paul singled for the second run to knot the game at two-all.

Wayne still had a chance to collect a win and move into first when Magdanz made it to third with right fielder Mike Ginn up to bat.

But Homer pitcher Mark Gries picked off his 12th man at the plate with another strikeout to end Wayne's hopes until the ninth. In that frame, Gries fanned two more Wayne batters before the third was put out at first.

Thursday night, the locals will have a chance to tie for the lead when it takes on Ponca at home.

Ponca currently is tied for second with Wayne at 4-1.

In other area action, Wakefield fell below the .500 mark when Dakota City upended the area squad, 9-6.

Dakota City held onto a 4-2 margin after seven frames before the visiting team broke loose in the last two innings for five more runs while Wakefield managed only four.

Lynn Reber started the pitching duties for the Wakefield nine, going the distance before the club dropped its season record to 3-4.

Sunday night Wakefield travels to Wayne in the teams' second league clash of the season. In the first game for both teams Wayne won, 17-4.

Columbus Riders Set Pace During Annual Horse Show

More than 200 riders from South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska competed in the 12th annual Wayne Saddle Club horse show Sunday, with Columbus horsemen taking their share of first-place trophies.

Bill Goedeken of Columbus was the big winner in the halter classes, winning three firsts. His winning performances came in the appaloosa, palomino and quarter horse categories.

Gretchen Goedeken, also of Columbus, picked up a win in the performance class, finishing first in junior horsemanship.

Riders competed in the 20 events starting at 10 a.m. and finishing about 5 p.m. According to club members, Marilyn Koch, this year's attendance, both local and out of state, was down from last year. Koch explained that various activities going on in the area was one reason for the drop in the number of entrants and viewers.

Last year the annual event was held on July 4th. But this year it was changed to July 1 in order to attract more people.

"We decided to change dates," Koch explained, "because of the horse show scheduled to take place July 4th in Vermillion."

Galen Frenzen of Fullerton was the judge during the show along with aids from around the area.

WS Teacher Featured in Magazine's Special Issue

An assistant professor of Spanish at Wayne State College, Dr. Maria Grovas, was featured along with another immigrant in a special issue of the Omaha World Herald's Magazine of the Midlands Sunday.

DR. MARIA GROVAS

The special issue was titled "America: Still the Beautiful." It included separate reports on the land, farmer, economy, medicine and health, leisure time, volunteers, sharing America's wealth, education, religion and immigrants. The reports attempt to point out some of the blessings of this nation as well as some of the challenges facing it.

Dr. Grovas, her husband Freddy and their six year old son Alfred left Cuba in 1963 when they found it impossible to live under communism.

They left all their possessions when they fled to America — their home, beach house and all their personal property. When they arrived in Miami, they had only the clothes they were wearing. Dr. Grovas tells in the article.

Although she had her doctorate, Dr. Grovas took a menial job in a Lincoln department store so she and the rest of her family could be reunited with their two older children, Amy and Sarah, who had left Cuba earlier when the political situation began to get worse.

The Cuban native enrolled at the University of Nebraska Lincoln, where her oldest daughter was studying, and later became a Spanish teacher at Holdrege. While at Holdrege, Dr. Grovas began studying toward her master's degree at Kearney State.

After her husband died, she joined the faculty at Wayne State in 1969. The college recognizes the doctorate she received from Havana.

She relates that she has gained much more than she lost when she left her homeland, noting, "I gained my freedom. You don't know what freedom really is, because you have it every day."

Her concluding comments: "We left our country in the hope of obtaining love, faith, freedom of democracy. Here in this country we found all these blessings. This country opened up its doors to us. Here we found the love only a great nation and its people can give. You are good; you really are. You don't know how good you are. I am grateful."

Health Tips

The Nebraska Medical Association offers a rule of thumb about picnic foods: When in doubt, throw it out.

Many times, unsafe food may appear harmless with no warning signs such as a peculiar odor, mold or unpleasant taste. The safest picnic foods are those you have prepared and packed yourself.

The preparation and storage of such foods as ground or mixed combinations of meats not cooked immediately before being eaten such as ham or chicken may be dangerous. The association also warns that potato and egg salads, cream or custard pastries must be carefully prepared and properly packed for greatest picnic safety.

Food often seems to taste better when prepared and eaten outdoors. Make sure the food you eat outdoors is safe. The warm summer temperatures that lend themselves to outdoor eating are the same summer temperatures that promote the growth of bacteria in food.

The NMA says the key to avoiding food poisoning is to keep hot foods hot, cold foods cold.

The first of two summer sessions of the Nebraska School for Alcohol Studies will be held on the campus of Doane College in Crete Sunday through Friday.

The second session is scheduled for Nebraska Western College in Scottsbluff Aug. 12-17.

The school, in its fifth year, serves as the training ground in the state for those seeking knowledge about one of the nation's most widespread, costly and tragic illnesses. Nearly 1,700 people have participated in the school since its inception, according to John W. North, director of the State Division on Alcoholism.

Both of this summer's schools consist of the following sections: basic orientation, family, employee programs, highway safety, treatment and a youth program designed to prevent spreading of the "chemical culture."

Either session is open to persons interested in the prevention, intervention and control of alcohol abuse and alcoholism. Application may be made to the Nebraska School for Alcohol Studies, University Extension Division, 511 Nebraska Hall, University of Nebraska-Lincoln. One hour of college credit is offered through the Department of Psychology at the University for participants desiring college credit.

Friendship Reaps Unusual Results

Friendships can reap unusual results sometimes. Take, for instance, the friendship struck up between a California woman and a young Australian when they met in New Zealand some months back. The woman, Mrs. May McLean of Los Gatos, invited 21-year-old Neil Sansom to stop and see her if he ever went on the world tour he told her he was planning. He did just that late in May when he and a cousin, 26-year-old Janet Webb, finally started their world tour by flying from Australia to California.

Mrs. McLean offered to drive the two young people across America to show them some of the points she is proud of. The trio stopped at such places as Disneyland, Grand Canyon, Boulder Dam, Black Hills and Badlands before they arrived in Bloomfield. That's where a friend of Mrs. McLean lives, so she wanted to stop there and visit before continuing through the Midwest. And that's when the two young Australians decided to visit Mrs. T. P. Roberts of Wayne. Why?

Because Mrs. Roberts' father and their great grandfather were very close friends in Wales. Finally ending up back home late in November. The total time they will spend in the United States will be about six weeks, and their world tour will take about six months to complete.

Health Tips

A tiny bee or wasp may have a painful bite. In many instances, the attack might have been avoided. When working in the garden, playing golf or engaging in other outdoor activities, the Nebraska Medical Association makes these suggestions to avoid bee stings: —Wear white or light-colored clothing rather than dark colors. Light colors are less provocative to bees. Bees are angered by suede or other leather materials. Hair oil and perfumes attract insects. —Keep calm and walk away slowly. Stinging insects are more likely to affect a moving object, especially if it flails wildly or moves quickly. If you get stung anyway, remove the stinger from your skin as quickly as possible.

OBSERVATIONS

Finally, work on Highway 15 underway

There are probably many people in the area who were starting to think the state would never get around to fixing up the stretch of Highway 15 between Laurel and Wayne. We have to admit we started thinking exactly that.

Now work has begun on the highway. At least that stretch between Laurel and the junction with the highway spur leading to Concord. Nobody seems to know when work on the highway from there to Wayne will get underway.

When work is finished on those five and a half miles south of Laurel it will mean area motorists no longer will have to fear for their safety or worry about their cars or trucks being jolted to pieces every time they drive over it. The thick layer of hot mix asphalt 25 feet wide should last for years before it begins breaking up each spring as frost boils develop under it.

It may be another two or three years, however, before major work is started on Highway 15 leading into Wayne. One of the things holding up that project is the state's concern with building along the Wayne golf course just north of the city. Hopefully, the problems involved when dealing with such land will be resolved quickly so work on Highway 15 can continue.

If they aren't, we may end up seeing the stretch of Highway 15 now being improved just south of Laurel start to break up about the same time as the rest of the highway into Wayne is improved. Then all we would have is the reverse of what exists right now: part of the highway in excellent condition, the rest of it in a condition something less than ideal.

Smoke goes away, junkers don't

Clouds of black smoke have been curling up into the sky on the southeast edge of the city the past few days, the result of attempts to get rid of some of the junked automobiles owned by Wayne Auto Salvage.

The smoke resulted from burning the interiors of the cars so they could be crushed in an auto smasher before being loaded on trucks and taken to Norfolk for eventual melting down in the large steel plant being constructed northeast of Norfolk.

The smoke prompted several persons to ask whether burning the cars was not in violation of the city ordinance banning outside fires.

As far as can be determined, the cars are being burned outside the city limits and therefore the city ordinance against burning does not apply, according to a city official.

Even if the cars had to be burned inside the city limits, we think this is a case where the city ordinance should not apply. The firm which owns the auto crusher will not crush cars unless they are burned first, because the cars cannot be melted down with upholstery, seat padding and the like still in them.

The owner of the junk yard was in a difficult situation. He had to get rid of some of the junkers to make room for those constantly being brought in and to clean up his yard. The only way they could be moved was to burn the interiors.

Most people will probably agree that a few days of seeing smoke billow into the air is better than seeing junk cars pile deeper and deeper, becoming more and more of an eyesore for the city.

'Use of fireworks is being abused'

Dear Editor

The Fourth of July is a special holiday that falls once each year marking the birth of independence for our great country. As genuine citizens we should celebrate this holiday according to its true and glorious meanings.

Recently I have noticed the gross misuse of fireworks in and around our community. The use of these symbols represents misunderstanding wrought upon our young concerning the Fourth of July. Fireworks are the symbols used traditionally to represent the Fourth of July and should not be abused in the manner they are being used now.

There is a basic neglect of patriotism being shown by the parents of today's young people. Evidently we have failed to teach our young the honor and dignity of the Fourth of July. We have lost the real values which represent what our nation stands for by not upholding tradition of this holiday in its true spirit. I believe we should re-examine our consciousness and give the Fourth of July a re-birth.

To me, disrespect for the values the Fourth of July represents is like some radical openly desecrating the flag of the United States.

We should view the Fourth of July with reverence, honor and dignity and with the true spirit of 1776.

'Persons hired by ex-chief broke the law'

Dear Editor:

In reply to your editorial "Interesting Decision" (Thursday, June 21) concerning a law violation—a couple of months ago the Supreme Court of the United States ruled that actions such as "entrapment" are illegal.

Clearly, the person hired by the ex-chief of Wayne's police department were breaking the law by spiking their beers. Then the police came onto the scene and we know what happened then. This action smacks of a "police state" type of atmosphere. The person hired were the ones breaking the law and causing the trouble.

To compare this to the situation that happened in Box Butte County is like comparing peaches to pears. Investigating a crime is one thing, instigating a crime is quite another thing.

Air Pollution Not New
Concern over air pollution extends considerably farther into history than the last decade—the first piece of legislation relating to air pollution control was passed in 1273 in London because of a smoke pollution problem caused by extensive coal burning.

Devices to control automobile emissions have been in use longer than you might think, too. Auto manufacturers began researching the problem as far back as 1954. The first device actually used was the Positive Crankcase Ventilation System installed on California cars in 1961, and on all cars in 1963, two years before the first federal legislation requiring exhaust controls on 1968 model cars.

The PCV system reduced by 80 percent the hydrocarbon emissions from the crankcase.

This system was modified in 1968 so fresh air was circulated through the engine crankcase and then drawn into the intake manifold carrying with it the crankcase vapors. As a result, 100 percent of the crankcase emissions were eliminated.

Auto emission control technology has produced sophisticated equipment such as the electric assist chokes which vary the rate of choke opening according to the ambient air temperature, air pump systems by which fresh air is pumped into the exhaust system to ignite and burn unburned exhaust gases, and exhaust gas recirculation systems which dilute the intake mixture of gasoline and air with a metered amount of exhaust gas to reduce emissions.

Today, emissions from unburned gasoline produced by a 1962 model car are about seven times higher than the same emissions produced by a comparable 1973 model, and the car manufacturers are working to reduce emission level even more to meet current government standards.

This year, 17 out of 20 cars on the road are equipped with some form of emission control device. When pre-1962 model cars have been phased out of use, all cars will have some anti-pollution equipment.

Nebraska

Fourth of July Horse Racing — Ft. Niobrara, 1883

The usually lively, little western town of Valentine, Nebraska, lay deserted under leaden skies on July 4, 1883, and the saloons, gambling places, dance halls, and eating places were empty. Nearly all the people — the businessmen, the soldiers, the Mexicans, the cowboys, the Indians, the landseekers, and the gamblers — had gone to nearby Fort Niobrara for the day's festivities. The fort, established in 1880 to keep peace between the dissatisfied Ogallala and Brule Sioux on the Pine Ridge and Rosebud Reservations and the white settlers, had become the social center of the sparsely settled Nebraska Sandhills. As the rain stopped and the clouds were breaking away, a large crowd from all parts of Cherry County, as well as several visiting Indians from the Rosebud Agency, congregated at the military post to watch Independence Day horse racing. The Valentine Reporter, which had been publishing only since May 3, 1883, was there. Files of the paper preserved at the Nebraska State Historical Society, Lincoln, record the event.

There were four horses entered for the first race of one-half mile. All had an even start, but the gray horse Freddie was decidedly the best of the four, and would probably have won the race had he not thrown his rider when about three-fourths of the track was made. Darby won in 55 1/2 seconds.

Four horses were also entered for the second race — 1/4 mile. Bob won the first money easily in 26 seconds.

Following these two came the first mule race, with three mules contesting for the purse. This race was very exciting, and Pomp cleared the 1/4 mile post in 39 seconds.

In the scrub race six horses were entered for the 1/4 mile heat but the running was considered first class, consequently the judges neglected to give the time.

"Freddie the gray horse that was distanced in the first race, came to the front against two others in the consolation race of 660 yards; time 41 seconds.

"The slow mule race was a decided novelty in racing. Two mules were entered, and the riders exchanged, and the way those mules made the quarter-mile heat was a caution. Al Thacher's mule Pomp came in last and won the money. Outside stakes were high.

"The forenoon exercises were now ended, and the Reporter accepted an invitation from Dr. O'Malley to dine at the hospital, where we partook of a bountiful repast at the expense of Uncle Sam.

"After dinner several of the citizens went west of the river and had several exciting races. The first was between Paint and a flea-bitten pony; the "leap" coming out ahead without any trouble. Next came a race between Reveler's roan and Corneil's Pat, in which Pat got left badly. There were a few more races, and then the participants struck out for the Fort.

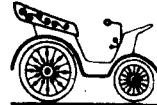

"The afternoon exercises were very entertaining, but the tug of war was the best of all. B-company has some strong men.

"Following the afternoon sports came the war dance by a band of Sioux Indians. They were painted up in all conceivable colors, and had on, principally the clothes that God gave them. They began the pow-wow back of the quartermaster's store-house, and finally brought up on the parade ground, where they kept up the performance for about an hour. The principal figure was an old gray-haired buck, carrying a Winchester. He could grunt louder than all the others, and besides he placed his hat inside the circle to catch the loose dimes that the lookers-on deigned to give. The dance took well with those who had never witnessed such an event.

"At an early hour in the evening the fireworks were set off, and were pronounced a perfect success, as had been the program for the entire day.

"The grand ball, given by the Jockey Club, was the crowning feature of the Fourth. A large number were present from all parts of the county, and all unite in pronouncing this dance equal to any ever given in Northern Nebraska."

According to records at the Nebraska State Historical Society, Fort Niobrara was officially abandoned on October 22, 1906. The land where the ponies raced and the Indians danced on that long-ago Fourth of July is now a National Wildlife Refuge where buffalo, Texas Longhorns, deer, elk, and antelope graze, and the prairie dogs guard their burrows.

Doeschler, Wayne, announced this week that he has purchased the Fleetwood Hardware Store. Larry Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Miller, Winside, will be ordained into the ministry of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod, in a special public service which will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Winside, Sunday evening. High winds last Thursday whipped an empty grain bin from its foundation at Whitney's Elevator and tossed it about 50 yards, into a corn field. Trees in Wayne also suffered from the winds.

THE GRASSROOTS OPINION

Winnsboro, S.C., News and Herald:

"Some of the television commercials are good—there's no denying that—and apparently most of them must sell, because the cost is tremendous. But others are so inane and far out that it seems to us they would drive buyers away. It will never happen, of course, but we keep waiting for that housewife in answer to her husband's question 'What shortening do you use?' to respond, 'Why axite grease-honey—that's what makes your fried chicken so good!' Or for the lady, who's offered two boxes of detergent for one to cry out: 'Sure, I'll take 'em; there's very little difference in any brand!'"

Pond Creek, Okla., Herald:

"It will cost more to pay the interest on the national debt in 1974 than it cost to run the government in all the years from 1789 to 1913—$24.6 billion interest in 1974 against $24 billion spent through the first 123 years of our government."

Keeping the Hogs Cool
Here are some suggestions to help keep hogs cool during hot weather.

1. Cool the hogs with a mist spray of one or two gallons of water per hour in sheds or in shade. Fogger hoses work well for this purpose, especially in sheds with slatted floors.
2. Outside, provide sanitary hog wallows — large tubs of water that can easily be emptied and refilled for cleanliness.
3. Erect shades consisting of six to eight inches of straw piled on wire about five feet above the ground.
4. Paint the outsides of sheds white to reflect heat and the undersides or insides black to absorb heat. This may make a difference of 15 degrees in temperature inside.
5. If hogs must be moved, move them at night or in cooler weather. For moving them in the heat of the day, use moist sand (not straw) for bedding and water the hogs down and check them at least every hour.
6. In farrowing units circulate air.

There are good reasons why hogs overheat. When temperatures reach 100 degrees, hogs must breathe 20 times faster to get the same cooling effect as they get when temperatures are 80 degrees. This is because a hog loses 75 to 80 per cent of its excess body heat through the lungs, by cooling of the body surface and movement of air. When air temperatures rise the lungs must work harder because the cooling effect of air movement and body radiation is reduced.

If internal heat builds faster in the hog than it can be thrown off the hog becomes overheated and dies unless cooled down immediately.

Black Lights
"Black Light" insect traps won't insure insect free living. These insect traps are claimed to operate electronically by emitting ultraviolet, blue, green and white rays that attract flying insects. A wire grid located around the light bulb is charged with an electric current that electrocutes most of the insects coming in contact with it.

According to tests, these types of traps do attract and kill some flying insects but they do not eliminate them all.

'Alfalfa Provides Way To Cut Protein Costs For Pork Producers'

New crop alfalfa and dehydrated alfalfa meal may provide Nebraska pork producers an opportunity to cut protein costs, according to Bill Ahlischweda, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension swine specialist.

Ahlischweda indicated that during the spring, alfalfa had been in short supply and was not an economic alternative for meeting the pig's protein requirements. However, the new crop is relieving the supply situation and is priced favorably for use in swine rations.

"While alfalfa has been a good source of nutrients in swine diets over the years, growth rate generally is reduced when high levels of alfalfa are included in the ration," he said.

The NU swine specialist suggested that for growing-finishing pigs, about a third of the supplemental protein could come from alfalfa meal. This would be about 20 to 25 per cent alfalfa meal in the ration.

Ahlischweda noted that the reduced gain would be due to the pigs eating less and a reduced energy level in the feed.

Gestating sows also can make good use of alfalfa, he stated. Research indicates a diet of alfalfa, vitamins and minerals supported good performance. Since alfalfa varies in protein content, the highest protein level should be used.

Ahlischweda pointed out that in addition to reduced gains, there were other potential problems when feeding high levels of alfalfa. Diets need to be rebalanced for mineral levels, and mechanical feeding systems may have trouble handling such bulky diets, he noted.

Diet information using alfalfa and alfalfa meal are available from county Extension agents, he added.

'State Faces Trouble In Moving '73 Grain'

The grain transportation situation in Nebraska can be summed up in one word — trouble.

According to Howard Elm, secretary of the Nebraska Grain and Feed Dealers Association, the state will have 700 million bushels of grain to move in 1973. The trouble is that at the current rate of rail movement (about 500 cars, or one million bushels per day), it will take until 1975 to move the 1973 harvest from storage, he said. This doesn't even allow for the 1974 harvest, Elm noted.

He said the problem mainly stems from the recent wheat sales to Russia and other foreign countries. Before the sale about 25 per cent of the farm-stored grain in the United States was in Nebraska.

This volume plus the expected

1973 yield mean Nebraska farmers are trying to move two or three years' worth of crops in one year, Elm said.

There is no short term answer to the problem, Elm said. The only solution for farmers is to be sure they have enough tight grain storage on their farms.

Elm estimated that Nebraska has about a one billion bushel storage capacity on farms and in commercial elevators.

"Therefore a storage problem for grains will probably not come in 1973."

Elm said the greatest help could come from the railroads if a faster turn-around time on cars were introduced. He mentioned that rail movement will nearly double last year's rate by the end of 1973 if the present rate continues.

Grain Storage A Problem

Grain storage for the 1973 harvest will be a problem in Nebraska — in some areas more than others.

Because of this it is important that farmers begin now to develop plans for marketing this fall's crop, according to University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension economist Dr. Mike Turner. Turner recommends that farmers who plan to sell their crop this fall contact local elevators now and make necessary commitments.

A sufficient supply of fuel to operate farm dryers is essential, and farmers should be contacting fuel suppliers for fall drying needs.

Storage of feed grain on farms in a high moisture state is a good alternative if it is to be fed on the farm. Bunker silos, gas tight silos and acid treatment are all possibilities. In the event of fuel shortages, use of continuous aeration systems is also possible.

Turner said, however, that corn at 28 per cent moisture or above is too wet for continuous aeration drying. This type of system is best suited to moisture levels of 22 per cent or less.

Because the majority of Nebraska's country elevators are located in the wheat area of the western part of the state, farmers in the south central, east central and southeastern areas can expect the most problems with storage.

The estimated storage capacity of Nebraska is over one billion bushels, including terminals, country elevators and on farm storage. This should be enough to take care of the expected grain volume (868 million to one billion bushels) after harvest, Turner said.

Turner said rail car loadings of Nebraska grain have increased 67 per cent since January, amounting to about one million bushels per day. But the increase has not been sufficient to solve the grain shipment problem, he added.

"No solution" is expected this fall and winter, he noted.

Flowers Last Longer if Tips Followed

Cut flowers bring the bright bluish of nature indoors, says the University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension division, and this beauty can be enjoyed longer if the home gardener will follow these simple steps.

—Cut flowers late in the afternoon. Cut the stems at a slant and crush the ends of woody stems. Always use a sharp knife or shears.

—Before cutting, select flowers that are not fully open. Fully opened flowers will have a shorter life.

—Remove foliage, thorns, etc. from the lower third to half of the stem and remove all broken and bruised parts of the stem. Wash the remaining foliage to remove dirt, sprays or dust.

—Immediately place cut flowers in warm water. This will allow them to take up large amounts of water in a short period of time.

—Store cut flowers in a cool area or refrigerator until arranged. Flowers from the florist should have their stems recut at a slant.

—Do not place arrangement in direct sun or in drafty locations. Whenever possible, place the flowers in a cool place during the night.

—Re-cutting of the stems and the changing of water give the flowers longer display life. This should be done every other day.

Highway 20 Work Continues

REPAIR WORK is continuing on Highway 20 northwest of Allen. The repair work includes considerable bridge work, including that on the bridge next to the Highway 20 junction north of Allen. A concrete slab has already been poured for use by traffic while work is done on the present bridge. At right, workers for the Norfolk bridge company set up concrete forms for constructing the drainage chutes leading to the creek running under the bridge. No detours are necessary.

40 Floats Highlight Parade During Laurel's Annual Jamboree Days

Forty float, saddle clubs, band and antique car entries marked this year's annual Laurel's Jamboree Days parade Wednesday afternoon last week in the second day of the two-day event.

One of the highlights of the parade was the kiddie's section with 30 youngsters ranging in age from toddlers to 11 years old marched through the downtown area and residential districts to the ball diamond.

Angie Newton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Newton, won the Toddler division for her portrayal of Little Bo Peep. Taking second was Trevar Hansen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Hansen, as Peter Pan while Karen Potter, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Doug Potter, finished third as Wee Willie Winkle.

In the 7 to 10 age category Tracy Hansen dressed as Captain Hook won her division. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hansen. Coming in second was Lynn Potter, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Doug Potter, also as Captain Hook and Ann Schultz, resembling Mary Poppins was third. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delos Schultz.

The team of Julie and Jackie Crisp, children of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Crisp, along with Donna Lofquist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lofquist, won first and second for their entry as Bozo and Friends.

Kelly McCorkindale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob McCorkindale, was third as Margaret from Dennis the Menace.

Besides the parade, repeated that night, area visitors got a chance to listen to band competition between Hartington and Laurel. The host school won the Laurel Chamber of Commerce trophy, based on its performance, appearance and concert ability.

Tuesday night the race tracks broke loose with the Cubmobile races. Both fathers and sons entered separate competition along with the moms.

Tim Granquist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Granquist took first with Craig Lofquist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lofquist, second and David Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Reynolds, third. The best of show trophy went to Todd Heitman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Heitman.

First place in the Peach Fuzz derby—the fathers' race—Rollie Granquist while Merl Swanson took second and Duane Purcell finished third.

Georgette Sutherland won the Powder Puff derby as each mother manned her son's entry. Carolyn Sherry was second followed by Gerry Purcell in third place.

Advertising doesn't cost it pays.

LAUREL's annual Jamboree Days attracted over 300 people to the afternoon parade. Some of the big attractions in the parade included floats, little kiddies portion of the parade and the Laurel High School marching band. One of the floats that caught the eyes of most of the spectators was the Spirit of '76 exhibit sponsored by the Laurel American Legion and its Auxiliary. In the center, Barb Calavecchia leads the band with her baton twirling while Randy Sherry, above, checks things over during the kiddie's parade.
