Carroll High Reunion Nears

Former Carroll High School students are reminded of the first all-school reunion to be held Saturday at the Carroll city auditorium. Carroll High School operated from 1908 to 1958. A coffee and social hour are scheduled for 3 to 5 p.m. and the banquet will follow at 5:30. Bob Haberer and his Wranglers will provide music for the 9 p.m. dance. Advance reservations are necessary and may be obtained by contacting 1973 officers Dale Stollenberg of Wayne, president; Ismael Hughes of Wayne, vice president, or Orville Lage of Pilger, secretary.

Dixon County Project Planned

For its annual fund-raising project, the Dixon County VFW Post will sponsor a subscription campaign for publications such as Cappers Weekly. The publisher and VFW guarantee delivery and all salesmen will fully explain the plan and will be carrying credentials signed by VFW members. Funds will be used to purchase such equipment as hospital beds, walkers, crutches, bedside tables, wheel chairs and other invalid and sick room equipment for use in the county. Persons interested in using the VFW equipment should contact Clarence Nelson of Wakefield. The campaign will get underway as soon as salesmen have been hired.

FBI to Hold Classes Here For Lawmen

Law enforcement officials from across Northeast Nebraska are being invited to attend classes to be conducted in Wayne by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The twice-monthly classes will begin Tuesday night at the city auditorium, according to Wayne Police chief Bob Evers, who set up the classes. There is no charge for attending.

Conducting the two-hour sessions during the next several months will be Leon Morris, special agent out of the FBI office at Omaha.

Classes begin at 7 p.m. Evers said the course will cover a variety of subjects, everything from fingerprinting to interrogation. He said the course should be valuable to all law officers regardless of their experience.

Utility Bills Aren't Wrong, City Replies

In response to a deluge of inquiries by Wayne residents concerning the most recent utility billing, city clerk-treasurer Dan Sherry checked records for the past several years and found the city has set new records in water and electricity use.

"More water was pumped last month than during the same period for the last five years, and electric production has exceeded any record ever," Sherry said last week.

"Customers have been complaining," explained Sherry, "that they couldn't have used that much water or electricity, that the meters must be wrong."

"It was a real hot, dry time the last two weeks in June and the first two weeks in July," he said.

"Air conditioners run day and night, and people are watering flowers, shrubs and lawns. They just don't realize they've used this much," he said.

J.R. Johnson Dies After Long Illness

Dr. J.R. Johnson, long-time member of the Wayne State College faculty, is dead after a long illness.

Funeral services were scheduled for 11:30 a.m. Saturday at the Bellevue First Presbyterian Church, with the Campbell Funeral Home in charge.

Dr. Johnson, who died Wednesday evening in an Omaha hospital, joined the Wayne State history faculty in 1935 and served as chairman of the history department most of the time until his retirement in 1966.

Author of a book, "Representative Nebraskans," he was noted among state historians, active in the Nebraska Historical Society and a former chairman of the Nebraska Land Marks Council.

In the past year he had written a series of reminiscent articles chronicling Wayne State history. The college presented Dr. Johnson its Distinguished Service Award last April.

Following retirement from Wayne State, he taught at John F. Kennedy College for several

Third Attempt To Erase Suit Turned Down

A third attempt by the city of Wayne to have a suit filed against it dismissed was turned down Wednesday.

The suit was filed against the mayor and city councilmen May 21 by former chief of police Vern Fairchild, who claimed he had been fired illegally.

Mayor Kent Hall fired Fairchild April 10 following an investigation Fairchild had conducted involving local liquor establishments.

City attorney John Addison and Richard E. Mueftig, attorney for Fairchild, met with district judge George W. Dittrick in his Norfolk office Wednesday afternoon.

Dittrick overruled the city's plea that Fairchild makes more definite and certain and strike certain allegations from his suit.

Dittrick, who in July overruled two previous requests by the city to dismiss the case on different grounds, allowed city officials 20 days to make another plea.

City Signs Contract For Light Plant Fuel

The city of Wayne last week signed a new contract with Standard Oil Co. for supplying fuel oil to run the city light plant over the next year.

The city will receive 426,302 gallons of fuel during 12 months starting July 1, according to Norbert Bruggen, superintendent of the electrical generating plant.

Bruggen said the city will receive the fuel in quarterly allocments based on consumption during the same quarter a year earlier.

Dan Sherry, city clerk treasurer, said signing the contract takes considerable pressure off city officials who have been concerned about obtaining fuel to operate the light plant. Contract signing, done Thursday, is the result of several months of work, he said.

Showing the champion Angus steer was Kurt Wittler of Hoskins. Kent Wittler won honors for the reserve champion Angus steer.

Brad Brummels, also of Hoskins, showed the reserve champion Hereford heifer.

Basket have not been able to fill their orders and a third is cutting them short, but so far they have been able to keep meat on the shelves. Quarters are another matter though, according to Bill Lueders Jr.

"It's discrimination against the beef raisers," Lueders said strongly, commenting about the price freeze which was listed recently for all commodities but beef.

"The trouble is," he went on, "the White House listened to some lady in New York hollering 'boycott' and went along with the labor unions who elected them."

Gibson's Discount Center, which handles primarily convenience foods such as packaged luncheon meats, hasn't felt the squeeze except with bacon, but expects to if the ceiling isn't lifted, according to

Dixon Levy Dips

Property owners in Dixon will be paying more than three mills less in taxes this year, result of the village board adopting its 1973-74 fiscal budget Tuesday night.

This year's mill levy will be 30 mills, compared to 33.54 for last year, according to a village official. The new levy is expected to raise $2,945.38 in taxes to complete the fiscal budget, almost $400 less than last year.

Clyde Manbeck, general manager.

One firm has had to limit bacon purchases to two pounds per customer. Another grocer said he can hardly get bacon at all. "They bought up all we had in two days just before the freeze (on commodities other than beef) went off," he commented.

What about other food products? Chicken, which was 49 cents per pound not long ago is now in the 79 cent range, and according to at least two merchants, the price will go up another 14 or 15 cents the first of this week. Another merchant can no longer get salmon, and there is a shortage of some canned fruits. The same merchant said we can look for $2 per gallon milk by fall.

Pork sausage, which has always been priced lower than ground beef, is now higher.

Cafe and restaurant owners are affected, too.

"I don't honestly know from week to week what I'm going to have," said Bob Fleming of the Black Knight Lounge. Though no items have been removed from his menu, he has a hard time getting some cuts from regular suppliers.

The Gem Cafe is all right for awhile, said owner Frank Woehler, who stocked up when he could get it. Bill Davie of Bill's Cafe is experiencing some problems. His suppliers can't promise delivery on some items, but only one item has been taken off the menu so far.

At Les' Steak House there is no problem yet, but there may be in a week. "If so, we'll have to serve what we can get — more pork products for instance," said owner Les Luff. Will enough pressure be put on the federal government so the beef ceiling, which to many seems unjust, will be lifted? What will become of livestock raisers who cannot make a profit on the cattle they have raised? What will the hundreds of workers do who have been laid off at packing plants across the country? How many new ways will home economists find for serving macaronni and cheese?

These are questions which economists may be able to answer in time. In the meantime, however, the little guy will probably suffer and John Q. Public will no doubt adapt.

As Bill Lueders observed, "People may not be happy with the trend toward higher-food prices, but they are beginning to realize that food is no longer a cheap commodity."

Is There A Local Beef Problem or Is It Just 'Yak Yak'?

By SANDRA BREITKREUTZ

America — the best fed nation in the world — may have to tighten her belt slightly, according to daily reports which indicate that the failure of the government to raise the price ceiling on beef is putting a strain on the local retailer and causing a panic with the average consumer.

Just how serious is the beef shortage in Wayne? Is there a problem at all, or is the trouble, like one local grocer said, caused in part by all the "yak yak" about the situation?

According to most grocers in Wayne, there is sufficient beef on the shelves for average use. The consumer who is attempting to stock his larder in preparation for a possible shortage or skyrocketing prices when the beef freeze is over is not so easy to serve, however.

Quarters and halves are unavailable at some places and available only in a limited quantity at others.

Larry Johnson of Johnson's Frozen Foods in Wayne has a slight edge over the average grocer. It's tough to get beef, he admits, but adds, "I'm in a position where I can do my own slaughtering."

His customers are stocking up, however. "I have a list a block long of people who want quarters."

Super Valu is getting about one fourth of the beef being ordered — not really enough for regular needs, said owner Al Wittig. "We are hanging on by the skin of our teeth."

"I'll be out of meat for ground beef by tomorrow night," Wittig said Thursday, "and won't have any to sell Sunday (yesterday) the way it looks."

SIGNS DIRECTING MOTORISTS through the intersection at Seventh and Main Streets in Wayne have been installed. . . finally. The signs went up last week, the result of several letters by city officials to the Department of Roads officials in Lincoln. The letters pointed out that overhead signs are necessary at the intersection because motorists are confused when the stripes painted on the pavement become covered with snow or dirt or get worn off. At first, state officials disagreed, saying overhead signs were unnecessary. They finally changed their minds and agreed to order the signs earlier this year. With the overhead and approach signs now installed, drivers should find it much easier and safer to use the intersection.

TWITCH

A closer look. . .

By Norvin Hansen

WAYNE MIGHT WELL LEARN something from the community of Beatrice.

A group of businessmen there got together recently and decided their downtown district needed sprucing up. They combined their efforts to clean up and paint up their buildings in one block. The idea mushroomed all over town, and several other businessmen have decided to fix up their places.

Or, we might learn something from Lyons. A former Lyons mayor who has some spare time on his hands offers to paint any store front for free if the owner will supply the paint.

He considers that his contribution to his community, and it keeps him on the streets where he can keep in touch with his friends.

I've said several times — probably too many times — that city officials ought to lead the pack in an effort to paint up and fix our business district. It would take very little money to buy the paint and pay for the labor. Am willing to bet, although not too much, that once store owners see what could be done by spending a few dollars on paint they would soon follow along. The result would be a much improved business district, one that would be more inviting to shoppers.

COUNCILMAN VERNON RUSSELL is the one who questioned what he said were excessive police department expenditures during the month of July.

Russell voiced his objections at Tuesday night's council meeting when he pointed out that the PD claims for July were nearly twice the amount spent during the same month last year — $9,810.07 as compared to $5,201.88. Russell was upset because those expenditures threw the department in the red by $1,140.84 for the fiscal year ending last month.

It should be pointed out that about $1,200 of those expenditures in July were for new uniforms, holsters, badges and jump suits for the policemen. Once the decision to switch uniforms is made, you can't very well expect to make it at no cost.

Other things purchased or ordered during the month included an accident report kit, vehicle emblems, narcotic kit, detective kits, cameras, law dictionary, printed forms and identification cards, alcohol packets and set of state statutes.

Many of those purchases — such as the investigation kits, books, vehicle emblems and the like — are one-shot deals which won't be repeated for possibly several years. The set of state laws are needed at the police station because, says Evers, the local law library isn't open around the clock. Police might want to check a law when handling an investigation in the middle of the night when the law library is closed, he notes.

I'll agree with Russell when he says expenditures the past few weeks have been high. I'm not in any position to say whether they were necessary or not, so I'll have to rely on the knowledge and ability of the chief as far as running his department goes.

If the purchases are necessary to keep the department running efficiently, make them. If not, the public shouldn't be expected to dig in their pockets to pay for them.

SOME YOUNGSTERS in Wayne made $14.93 during their muscular dystrophy spookorama Tuesday.

The youngsters set up a haunted house complete with eerie music and squishy stuff to touch, ring toss, treats and carnival music.

The whole show was held in the backyard of the Monte McLaws home. Young Brad McLaws was the one who sent to a Sioux City television station for the kit showing how money can be raised to help fight the disease.

He ended up getting brothers Brian and Brent involved in the show as well as neighbors and friends Peg, Ted and Jenny DeTurk, Ravi Johar, Bryan Schmoltd and Ron Koch.

IT'S TOO BAD the town couldn't get its welcome flags flying for Wayne State's graduation Tuesday, but there's a good reason they didn't go up.

Floyd Bracken, Chamber of Commerce manager, says about two or three more flags were stolen after they were put up.

THE NEW UNIFORMS for Wayne policemen are expected in any day, says police chief Bob Evers.

Evers, if you haven't noticed him, is the guy sporting the light blue sportcoat, dark blue trousers and stockman's hat. That's just about what the local police will be wearing once they switch from their present outfits.

When the switch is made, Wayne may be the only community in the state with policemen dressed in blazers and slacks rather than the traditional uniforms, according to the chief.

Evers says the outfits should be good looking as well as functional. In addition, they will be a step toward erasing the stigma of the policeman as a harsh, hard-to-get-along-with guy. Hopefully, the uniforms will make it easier for police to deal with adults as well as youths in a friendly manner. That's one of the policeman's major jobs, dealing with the public, says Evers.

EVERS HAS SOME OTHER IDEAS he's been working on to improve the local police department.

And, he notes in response to one of the councilman's questioning of recent expenditures, they aren't all going to cost money.

He's been in touch with the FBI office in Omaha in an attempt to have an FBI man conduct regular classes at Wayne to cover a host of subjects for local and area law enforcement officials. He's also looking into the possibility of conducting on the job training for local policemen to improve the quality of work. On top of that, he's working to bring in somebody to conduct a management study of the police department, to find out how it might be improved. All of this, he says, will be done at no cost to the community.

A DES MOINES DOCTOR has announced he will set up practice at Pierce.

He is Dr. Leon Handke, who is expected to move to Pierce this coming weekend.

Dr. Handke said he plans to build a medical center at Pierce and will begin practicing as soon as the building is completed.

Dr. Handke grew up in Pilger and graduated from Wisner High School. He attended Wayne State College and received his medical degree from the University of Nebraska School of Medicine at Omaha. He has been in private practice in Des Moines the past seven years.

Mrs. Handke is the former Connie Troutman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Troutman of Winside. She also graduated from Wayne State.

Dr. Handke's decision to move to Pierce ends several years of work by a committee which has been seeking to find a doctor to locate there.

NEGOTIATING TEAMS for the city of South Sioux and city employees signed a contract last week after ironing out difficulties.

to welcome people attending the recent Hahn High Wayne Prep reunion. Now the Chamber has so few left it wouldn't look good to have them spotted up and down the main street, he explains. Thieves are funny, I guess. They'll steal anything they can get their hands on.

This might be a good chance to put in another plug for making our main street an avenue of flags from our countries all over the world. It would be an impressive improvement to the community, something visitors would see and talk to others about after they left. Sure it would cost money and some way would have to be found to keep the flags out of reach of thieves, but I doubt if either obstacle couldn't be handled.

The Linotype Comes to Nebraska

The last twenty years have brought far-reaching changes in the printing industry, which has seen photography, computer chemistry procedures of the "offset" process replacing "hard type." While these changes are undoubtedly the most startling in this field since John Gutenberg invented "movable type" about 1450, the public, jaded by the succession of innovations of the computer age, is hardly aware of it.

It wasn't so casually taken, however, in the 1890's, when another giant of the printing field, Ottomar Mergenthaler, put together his Linotype, a machine involving mechanically assembled and distributed brass matrices (molds) and molten type metal. While this machine was the first to successfully "set" type — in a cast line first assembled by a keyboard, instead of by single type characters — the "line-of-type" which was cast still had length, width and height — and leaden weight. Thereafter, most type was leaden weight. Thereafter, most news columns and some larger elements were Linotype set. Even so, much of the larger type was still set by hand. Thus, the break with tradition was less abrupt than are present innovations wherein the devices which reproduce words are flat, having only length and width. They have no "height," unless the thickness of paper or thin aluminum plates can be said to have height, and they are essentially weightless. Formerly, type was all of the same height — 918 of an inch.

Nebraska's first Linotype came to the Omaha Bee, according to a series of newsstories in its edition of March 7, 1894, found in the files of the Nebraska State Historical Society Editor Edward Rosewater, having been involved for ten years with a group of newspaper executives in promoting the Linotype, took great pride in his "battery of twelve machines arranged in a row" in the Bee's composing room. His "slug" of type, "E. Rosewater Omaha Bee," cast for him as a memento at an 1885 Linotype exhibition in the East, was displayed in the March 7 edition.

Rosewater's machines, each of which cost $3,000, were described in illustrated articles. He said it was "in the natural order of things" that the Bee should have Linotypes, since it had also brought Omaha "the first double cylinder Hoe press, the first Chambers folding machine, the first automatic Dexter folder, and the first web perfecting press." Rosewater said his Linotype operators were paid $4 at night, $3.50 during days. "No operator works more than eight hours a day and has no type distribution (once-used type was merely resmelted) which required at least two hours. . . for which the printer received no compensation," he pointed out.

By the mid-1890's there were 1,000 Linotypes in operation in the nation, most of them on daily newspapers. Within the next quarter century all dailies and most Nebraska weeklies had converted from hand-set to machine-set type. It is with little difficulty that the Historical Society staff can by a paper's appearance tell when the change was made. The type has a "different" look when machine set.

The Linotype is not yet obsolete. Beautiful type characters can still be cast from its matrices, and many excellent pieces of printing result from its product. Production has ceased in Mergenthaler factories, though replacement parts are available. Perhaps some of the romance has gone out of printing with the latest innovations, but then the old "typo" who hand-spiked type in 1895 thought the same thing when the Linotype took over his duties.

CENTRAL VALLEY, CALIF., VALLEY TIMES: "A wise commentator on the social scene says that instead of congressmen getting free postage so they can write to us taxpayers cheap, we should get free postage to use when writing to our congressmen. This, he says, would put things in their proper order, based on the alleged relationship between employers and hired help. We pay the lawmakers' wages; we pick them for their jobs; our money subsidizes all postage franking, and we should be telling them instead of them telling us."

Micro Oven Safety Tips

It is estimated that 250,000 microwave ovens are in use in home kitchens. This has taken place in little over a decade, so research in all aspects of their use and safety is limited.

One of the chief concerns has been the degree of escaping microwave energy from these ovens, so the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare was authorized in 1968 to set up safety standards of allowable emissions. Emission of microwave from the oven was allowed up to 1 MW/CM² (1 microwave per square centimeter measured at 5 cm, or about 2 inches from the oven's surface). This applied to new ovens imported for consumer use and went into effect January 1971.

Things needed for a safer microwave oven:

- Tight oven door fit
- A door seal specifically designed to trap micro microwaves
- A safety interlock system so the oven will not operate when open

Precautions the user should take are:

1. Wipe off all spilled food after using around the door seal to prevent buildup of food soil which could interfere with closing the door tightly
2. Never operate oven when it's empty
3. If heating the food on paper sheet or plate, avoid having any of it caught in door to break the tight seal
4. Use a hot pad or tongs to remove the container with the food from the microwave. While microwaves do pass through paper and glass containers, the intense heat in the food can transfer quickly to a glass container while it's being taken from the oven
5. Do not use metal pans for heating food in microwave ovens.

The top nine readers were Calista Coffman, 53 books; Ravi Johar, and Brad McLaws, 48; Lisa Peters, 41; Mike Mendyk, 40; Bryan Schmoldt and Julie Otte, 36; Marcia Rethwisch, 32, and Jennifer Breitkreutz, 30.

Scribner Bounces Wakefield, 3-2, in Area Legion Play

Wakefield must shrug off its first loss in the area American Legion Junior baseball tournament in West Point if it is to stay in race for a trip to the state meet.

The area club suffered a 3-2 defeat at the hands of Scribner Friday night after taking the lead, 2-0, after two innings of play.

Coch Paul Eaton's club scored its runs when Randy Hallstrom walked and Scott Miller singled. Steve Kay then stepped up and smacked a double to score two runs.

Scribner rallied in the fourth frame to tie the game after starting hurler Bob Twite developed a sore arm and was relieved by Scott Miller. In the sixth inning Scribner scored the winning run after Bruce Paul took over mound duties for Wakefield.

Wakefield still had a chance for the state title if the area club beat West Point Saturday night and evened its grudge match with Scribner Sunday. With those two wins, the team would face Scribner again tonight (Monday) for the area title.

In Midget action, Coleridge was to face Dodge Saturday for the ticket to the state tourney at Broken Bow. Coleridge knocked off Elkhorn, 5-4, Thursday night to advance into the finals.

Sam Utecht hurled 13 strikeouts Wednesday night in the opening round of the area tourney to help defeat Arlington, 3-1. Utecht held the foes to three hits, one of them a double by first baseman Steve Holtman to score Arlington's only run. His connection in the fourth inning drove in right fielder Bruce Goolsby, who walked.

The area team rallied in the following frame on a host of doubles. Catcher Kieth Siebrandt smacked the first of three two-baggers to get on base. First baseman Steve Kay then walked to put runners on first and second before left fielder Mike Barge unloaded the team's second double to score Siebrandt and Kay.

With the score 2-1 in Wakefield's favor, second baseman Dave Rouse powered another double to push Barge across the plate and up the score to 3-1.

North All-Stars to Sponsor Free Mini-Basketball Camp

Northeast Nebraska boys who will be entering grades six through nine this fall are eligible to attend a free mini-basketball camp at Wayne State College on Monday, Aug. 13.

The camp, part of the activities surrounding the North all-stars as they train for the Nebraska Coaches Association's All-Star High School basketball game, is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. at Rice Auditorium on the Wayne State campus. The session will last approximately two and one half hours.

A similar camp will be conducted at the South camp at Kearney State, Merle Bauer, athletic director from North Platte, said.

Directing the afternoon camp will be North All Star Coach Alden Johnson of Lincoln High and his assistant, Byron Loesch of North Platte. Johnson said instruction will include ball handling and dribbling fundamentals, footwork and body control, shooting basics, passing and layup techniques, one-on-one moves, and screening on and away from the ball.

If time permits, Johnson said, camp participants will have an opportunity for game-type situations.

He said a major feature of the camp is that the 12 North All-Stars will be utilized as aides to the coaches to help with instruction. The all-stars will be in Wayne throughout the week preparing for an Aug. 17 encounter with the South at Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln.

This is the first time in the five year history of the All Star basketball game that the Nebraska Coaches Association has sponsored a mini camp for youth in the vicinity of the two training camps.

"It's our way of giving something back to the host communities and areas for what they have given us each year," Bauer said.

In addition to age limitations, boys must present a parental permission slip.

Participants are to furnish their own athletic clothing and towels. Locker rooms will be available at Rice Auditorium. Johnson advised parents of boys who participate to see that the boys arrive at Wayne State sufficiently ahead of schedule so that they may be ready when the camp begins at 1 o'clock.

In Nebraska, it is unlawful to take or needlessly destroy the nests or eggs of any game bird or birds.

Intra-Squad Match Closes Laurel's Swimming Season

A good sized crowd was on hand for Laurel's final swim meet of the year Tuesday night as coach Star Dickey's members had an intra-squad meet.

Brad Victor and Don Dalton led the boys with three wins each. Kelly McCoy picked up five firsts in the girls category. Kelly won the diving event for the 13-14 age category and took firsts in butterfly, breast stroke, back stroke and free style.

Victor got his victories in the 11-12 year old division of diving competition, free style and breast stroke. Dalton won the intertube race (11-12), free style and back stroke.

Top Golf Teams Keep No. 1 Spots

With only four weeks to go in the Wayne Country Club's men's golf league, Teams 4 and 31 hold down top spots in their divisions.

The foursomes of Les Luft, Gene Wiemmer, Gene Fredrickson and Vernon Hill (Team 4) and Duane Blomenkamp, Dick Brownell, Terry Karel and Dean Bruggeman (Team 31) are No. 1 in the Pro and Con divisions after Wednesday's action.

Team 4 keeps its same three-point margin over second place Team 8 while Team 31 has upped its lead to two points over Team 29.

Loren Kamish had the low score in the nine-hole play, firing a 33. Ken Dahl and Earl Rately tied with 35 each.

Beginning in September the playoffs for the league title will start, with the top four teams in each division competing.

All-Star Cagers Open Camp At Wayne State Thursday

Twelve high school basketball stars from around the state will invade the Wayne State campus Thursday for the opening of North All-Star basketball camp.

Coach Alden Johnson of Lincoln High School will direct his crew along with assistant Byron Loesch of North Platte as the team prepares for the 11th annual Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star High School Basketball game in Lincoln.

The Aug. 17 match will find the North team trying to make it three wins in a row. The South started off the series with two victories.

As with the South team, the North squad includes all-stars from all four high school classes. The larger Class A schools head the list with six representatives, followed by Class C with three, Class B with two and Class D with one.

If any individual on the North unit rates superstar status, it would have to be Sidney's Rick Seidel, a 6-6 frontliner who also is adept in the backcourt. Seidel was the primary spark in igniting the Red Raiders, who were noted for their defensive play, to the runner up Class B slot in the state tournament two weeks ago.

Seidel took the state tournament scoring title with 80 points in three games to almost match his 27.7 senior average. His career point total of 1,582 received a major boost during his senior year as Seidel sank 493 points.

But his individual honors may be overshadowed by the opportunity the all-star game presents in pitting Seidel against Fairbury's Bob Siegel. Siegel and his Fairbury teammates captured an earlier encounter with Seidel in the finals of the state tournament. Coach Johnson feels Seidel "will cherish a rematch with Siegel."

Also coming off an appearance in the state tournament finals in Lincoln was Northeast's Tom Westover. Rocket mentor Ed Johnson praises Tom's outside shooting ability, a key factor as Northeast garnered the Class A championship.

All-star coach Alden Johnson, who coached crosstown rival Lincoln High, feels Northeast definitely looked for Westover to score. Westover pumped in 26 points in the district finals against his all-star coach's Links and ended the season with a 16.7 average. He was particularly deadly at the free throw line where he made 79 percent of his attempts.

Scoring isn't Westover's only attribute. Northeast coach Ed Johnson said, "Tom is a fine ball handler and can do a good job of feeding the ball. He can play either forward or guard as he can bring the ball up court against a pressing defense."

The other formidable on the North team include: Steve Baumerl, Howells; J.J. Collins, Omaha Tech; Ed Gogan, Arcadia; Mark Hansen, Fremont; Steve Harris, Lincoln High; Jesse Kucera, Clarkson; Kevin Moore, Chadron; Don Mrozek, Loop City; Paul Potter, Columbus; and Mike Scanlon, Omaha Northwest.

When the players first arrive in Wayne with their parents, the entire group will be welcomed by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce to a dinner at Les' Steak House.

Workouts begin the following day and continue until the group departs for Lincoln on Aug. 16. During their stay here, the members will be treated to two other dinners—one by the Kiwanis on Monday and the Tuesday night annual steak fry at Bresler Park.

Jaycees' Net Tourney Aug. 16-18

Tennis buffs in Wayne and a 35-mile radius have about two weeks to warm up for the second annual Wayne County Jaycee tennis tournament. The tournament is slated for Aug. 16-18, at the Wayne State courts.

A total of 10 to 12 trophies will be given to the top two players in each of five divisions—boys 14 and under, boys 15-18, men 19-34, men 35 and over, and men's doubles.

Tournament director Jack Manske said players wishing to enter may pick up entry blanks at the Little Duffer Burger Barn in Wayne and mail them no later than Aug. 10 to Wayne County Jaycees, P.O. Box 453, Wayne, Nebr. 68787.

Entry fees for singles will be $2. Those entering both the singles and doubles events will pay $3. Doubles entry fee is $1.

Northern pike shorter than 24 inches must be returned immediately to the water if taken in Nebraska east of U.S. Highway 81. The rule does not apply in the Missouri River or its oxbows, however.

Town Team Manhandles South Sioux

The Wayne town team dusted off South Sioux City Friday night, 11-5, in preparation for the season league title with Homer in the Northeast Nebraska Baseball League.

The game set for Sunday at Homer was to decide the season title before the top four teams in the league square off for the playoffs, scheduled for possibly Thursday.

The host team seemingly breezed past South Sioux, thanks partly to a six run scoring burst in the bottom of the eighth.

Wayne didn't get the game moving until the top of third when center fielder Randy Benish connected for a circuit hit to drive in catcher Denny Paul and make the score 2-0.

The locals maintained that margin until the top of the fifth when South Sioux knotted the game on a two run single.

The Wayne town team then moved ahead in the sixth and seventh with one run in the sixth and two in the seventh to command a 5-2 lead before exploding with six runs in the eighth.

South Sioux tried to come back, slamming three runs across the plate in the top of the ninth, but Wayne hurler Mike Ginn put a stop to that to pick up his fourth win against one loss.

Wayne State's Baseball Program to Take on Professional Look

Wayne State's baseball program will take on a professional flavor this coming season when the new head coach takes over.

Larry Schultz, formerly of Ft. Morgan, Colo., has accepted the head baseball job for the Wildcats this year, replacing Dr. Fred Pierce, announced athletic director LeRoy Simpson, noting the job is pending board approval.

Schultz, who also will assist in basketball as well as teach psychology and physical education, played pro ball for Detroit farm clubs from 1957-1962.

LARRY SCHULTZ

The 1963 Colorado State graduate picked up his master's degree seven years later before earning his doctorate at the University of Northern Colorado in 1973.

In addition to his assistant baseball coaching years at Northern Colorado and the University of Colorado, Schultz was a full time scout for the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I came to Wayne State," he said, "because the school has a winning tradition in its baseball program." Schultz cited the "good athletic and academic climate" as other factors in his decision to move to Wayne.

During his high school years at Brush, Colo., Schultz was offered a contract with the Pittsburgh club. But he didn't take the offer, noting that in those days there were no drafts whereby a player could hold out for more money.

Before finishing college, Schultz did play some semi pro ball for the Boulder Nuggets. "Seven players from that team went right into the professional ranks," he said.

Schultz's other semi pro experience came in 1969 and 1970 when he helped coach the Boulder Collegians — twice national champs.

A Piece of History Disappearing

ONE OF CONCORD'S oldest buildings went down in rubble last week as the new owner, Ernst Bates, cleared the land he purchased at an auction. According to some Concord residents, the building was over 80 years. When it was first built, the structure was a saloon until the prohibition period of the 1920's closed it.

Wayne State Student, Sioux City Official Endorse Intern Plan

"It's a fine experience, but it should last a full term, not just seven weeks."

This is the enthusiastic comment from Anne Thomas, first Wayne State student to work as an intern on the college's government service major.

Through the summer session she was an assistant in the office of Sioux City's city manager, Wes McAllister.

He offered his own endorsement of the intern plan. "It's the best way to start," he said, recalling his own experience in the city clerk's office while a student at the University of Iowa.

McAllister said he kept Miss Thomas, a junior from Corning, Ia., busy with projects to acquaint her with nearly every city department. As a result of these assignments, Miss Thomas:

—Produced two booklets about city government.

—Helped the city's director of equal opportunity, Steve Holmes, on several projects.

—Observed all the weekly city council meetings.

—And earned two kinds of pay—a Sioux City salary of $1.94 an hour, plus six college credits.

McAllister had praise for Miss Thomas' booklet, titled Speakers Bureau, which lists numerous city employees, and topics they can talk about. It will be a fine aid for program chairmen of clubs seeking speakers, he said, adding that Miss Thomas illustrated the book with her own drawings. Her other booklet describes the city's government, its personnel and departments.

Wayne State's government service major, in its second year, already has 37 students, most of them aiming for some kind of career in federal, state or local offices.

Edwin O'Donnel, one of the WSC social science professors who visited Miss Thomas on the job, said Wayne's required internship is unusual as an undergraduate feature.

"It's a graduate level course in all the colleges I know," he said.

Wayne's government service major requires classes ranging over history, economics, sociology, politics, government policy and administration, and electronic data processing.

Generally the interns will go out in their junior year so they can apply their practical knowledge to senior classes, O'Donnel said.

Miss Thomas, however, thinks internship might better come earlier than the junior year. In any event, she plans to finish her major, maybe go on to graduate study, eventually work for government.

But her immediate interest now is her marriage Friday to Kenneth Nolte, a former Wayne student now farming near Wayne.

Daughter of Mrs. John Thomas, she was a 1971 graduate of Corning High School.

WAYNE STATE STUDENT INTERN Anne Thomas and her summer boss, city manager Wes McAllister of Sioux City, inspect the covers for two booklets she produced describing city government.

Wayne Garden Produce Reveals That Seeds from India Adapt to U.S.

What do you do when you adopt a new country and a little bit of your heart lingers in the land where you were born and raised?

You bring some of your homeland with you. Or at least that is what the J. S. Johars did. Returning from a year's stay with her family in India, Mrs. Johar, acquired a supply of garden seeds for vegetables she had not been able to get in America. New additions to the garden at 302 East Seventh Street include Karela, Tinda, Kaddu, Dhania and Methi.

Karela, a small bumpy squash can be pickled, fried or stuffed with hamburger and prepared with lemon juice and tomato. Tinda, also a squash, is used in the preparation of chicken or lamb curry. Kaddu, also a squash like vegetable can be grated and boiled and added to yogurt or can be prepared as a pudding.

Dhania, called coriander in America, is an herb used like parsley. It is used in the United States says Mrs. Johar, but usually in the powder form. Methi or Fenugreek is a green similar to spinach.

The Johar garden also contains okra (known as Bhindi in India) which is pickled or cooked without water and prepared with mango powder and onion. There is zucchini, which grows bigger here than in India, according to the Johars, egg plant, peppers, potatoes, beans, onions, tomatoes and corn.

Jassi, the Johar's six year-old son, insisted on having corn and planted it himself. He was so anxious to get the seed into the ground that after being told early in the spring that it was not time yet, he came back 30 minutes later and said to his father, "Is it time now?"

Mrs. Johar finds that the vegetables grown from the seeds

JASSI JOHAR, six, likes to help his mother, Mrs. J. S. Johar, pick the vegetables when they are ready but the weeding is mom's job.

she brought from India are slower and smaller, but plans to save seeds and hopes they will do better next year.

Johars came to America in 1963 and settled first in Florida where Mr. Johar worked on his Ph.D. They have been in Wayne since 1968. Mrs. Johar is working on her master's degree in elementary education at Wayne State College where her husband is an instructor.

They have three sons. Ravi, 11, is in the seventh grade. Vini, four, goes to kindergarten this year and Jassi is a first grader.

AFS Program For 1974-75 Is In Doubt

Wayne will probably not host an exchange student for the 1974-75 school year, according to Mrs. LeRoy Simpson, president of the American Field Service committee (AFS).

Commitment by a host family and the request for a student must be definite in January and necessary funds will not be available by then unless public and student interest pick up, she said.

Mrs. Simpson explained that the local AFS committee, which sponsors the exchange student program, is not disbanded and will continue to function.

At a recent AFS committee meeting, Mrs. Simpson announced that a welcoming coffee will be held shortly after the Aug. 24 arrival of Monika Plehn from Kassel, Germany. Monika, exchange student for the 1973-74 school year, will be making her home with the Rowan Wittses.

AFS members have planned several fund raising activities for the coming year, the first of which will be a September used book sale. Community support is welcome, and all book donations are appreciated. Those who have books to donate should call Mrs. Simpson or Mrs. Max Lundstrom.

There is still opportunity for a Wayne student to go abroad next summer with the AFS program. It is hoped, said an AFS spokesman, that several students will apply.

Local Man Reports At Harvard

School finance strategies for Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri were reported at Harvard summer school last week by Dr. Aaron Butler of Wayne.

The Nebraska legislature was cited for efficiency, the Kansas system for innovation and the Missouri system for generosity. "While the Kansas innovation of 'equalized tax power' is gaining support, particularly among states without metropolitan problems, the Nebraska model will probably be more often emulated," Dr. Butler said. He noted that among school finance specialists the Nebraska legislature was rated first among all the states in "responsiveness" to public needs and demands.

"The demand in higher education is for what is called accountability," he continued, "while in secondary and primary public education the demand is for trimming of special programs and capital budgets. Missouri, on the other hand, gives state aid at four times tuition in higher education, and is still voting bonds for new programs."

"There is a stronger conviction of self-help in Nebraska whereas Missourians have always seen their population as poor people who need much help from the state in educational and other budgets."

"Kansas is illustrative of a national trend in disillusionment with higher education as a kind of panacea for social ills. The three contiguous states provide a remarkable contrast in attitude toward and support of education, as well as in politics in general," Butler said.

Formerly a teacher at Wayne State College, Butler is now associated with the Missouri Commission on Higher Education, which is initiating a major study of its eight state-supported universities in terms of program objectives and achievements.

Policeman Turns in Resignation

One of Wayne's three patrolmen on the city police force turned in his resignation last week.

John Redel, with the force for just over seven years, informed police chief Bob Evers by letter that he will resign at the end of this month.

Redel, who was police chief at Winside for 10 years before moving to Wayne, said he plans to work for the city street department.

Evers said Redel's resignation will leave the police force one man short. A new man will be hired to replace Redel, Evers said.

Sherry noted that the fuel contract will not run the light plant for 12 months if the coming winter is as harsh as last year's. The city purchased about 50,000 gallons of fuel oil from other suppliers last year to keep the plant operating," he said, and the city will probably have to make additional purchases again this year.

Price of the fuel oil is nearly three cents higher than under the previous contract, Sherry said. The city will be paying 15.21 cents a gallon for the fuel compared to the 12.28 it paid under its contract last year.

Now that the contract has been signed, the city may be able to start filling the 300,000 gallon fuel storage tank which will be installed within the next few months.

Sherry said he expects the fuel tank to be installed in the southwest part of the city by the middle of November.

A story in Thursday's issue of The Wayne Herald incorrectly implied that there were no bids submitted by companies wishing to supply fuel oil to the city.

The story did not make clear that no firms submitted bids to supply the city with gasoline to run city vehicles. A total of seven requests were sent out to potential gasoline bidders.

Gardening Tips

Timely irrigation is important for successful vegetable gardens. Shallow rooted crops such as onions, cabbage and sweet corn require more frequent irrigation than deeper rooted tomatoes, watermelon and squash.

Beans, carrots, cucumbers and peppers have moderately deep root systems. Sweet corn, beans, cucumbers and other fruiting or seed-bearing vegetables have greatest need for water slightly before and during blooming.

Irrigation will be necessary during hot dry periods in July and August. Deep irrigation is better than frequent shallow watering. If a sprinkler is used, reduce water application when puddles begin to form. Watering should be stopped when two inches have been applied as measured by cans placed in the garden. When furrows are used, apply water for sufficient time to thoroughly wet the soil at the distant end of the row.

Dixon Bar Reopens

Loretta's Bar in Dixon opened Tuesday after Mrs. Frank McDonald, owner, received her state license last week.

Mrs. McDonald bought the business, formerly known as the Canonball, in June. She intends to open a restaurant as soon as she obtains her food license.

He was trained in preparation of military records and forms. Instruction was also given in fundamentals of the Army filing system, typing and operation of office machines.

A 1973 graduate of Wayne High School, Nest Preston, has been assigned to Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio to complete six weeks of basic training.

Preston, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jason Preston of Wayne, enlisted in the Air Force late in July.

Something-for-Everyone Fair In Wayne Attracts Large Crowds

WAYNE COUNTY'S FAIR did it again this year. It brought out city and rural residents by the hundreds and, in at least one case, by the thousands. As usual, it was the something-for-everyone nature of the fair which gets the credit for drawing the crowds to the fair grounds. For youngsters, there was the midway, with its rides, stands and bright lights. For just about everybody, there was the free barbeque Friday night. Youngsters also got into the act Friday afternoon with the kiddie pet show. Taking a blue ribbon for having the best dressed cat, "Tiger" was Kelly Green (bottom row, left), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Greve of Wakefield. Young Tim Maier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maier of Wayne, was immediately popular as soon as he took his pet tarantula out of its box. He lets it crawl up a friend's arm while another captivated youngster looks on. Young Janelle Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Anderson of Wayne, didn't win any prize but she put out a lot of effort in Thursday night's contest to see who would climb the greased pole. And Grant Tietgen, along with a host of other men, put out their share of work in serving the several thousand persons who turned out for the free barbeque.

Want to buy a widget?

When a lot of people want to buy a widget, and there are not many widgets on the market, the price of the widget goes up. That has three effects. Two out of the three benefit the consumer.

1. The widget makers get rich. This benefits the widget makers.

Read on:

2. The widget makers increase production.

3. Investors put their money into new widget factories.

Soon, there are enough widgets for everybody who wants one. At that point, the price comes down. Widget makers no longer get rich. Some even lose out. And investors try to invest in something the consumer needs more than widgets. The investor has the choice of keeping his capital in widgets or plowing it into new fields. Either choice, of course, involves risk.

A concrete parallel to our mythical widget is the ball point pen. When they first came on the market, they were in short supply and sold at very high prices. The rest is history. Mechanical ingenuity spurred on by competition has resulted in the superb pens that today sell for the price of lead pencils.

That's the real purpose of profit in a competitive economy—not to make a few people rich, but rather, to attract capital (and other resources) to the production of what the consumer wants. It's a signal system. It works automatically, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. For you.

We all profit from profits.
