

... and they say
it may make cop's job harder

EDITORIAL PAGE

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. - Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786.

... but those favoring change say ...

It is about time the Wayne police became un-stereotyped as 'pigs,' 'do-nothings,' 'idiots,' etc., with the new uniform being just one of the avenues to reorientate the public's impression...
Speak Out: There is a safety factor in having our policemen look like policemen. Anyone in trouble and looking for a policeman in Wayne could've found him in a crowd.
Speak Out: I am in agreement with Mr. Russell. The reaction by a citizen being stopped by an individual not readily discernible as an officer may be quite negative.
Speak Out: I feel that this uniform will make the officer's work more dangerous, since he is not easily recognized as an officer.
Speak Out: How will an out-of-towner, seeking information, know that the dressed up man is an officer of the law, regardless of the fact he may be in his official police car?
Speak Out: Yes, I do think the change in uniforms was an excellent idea for Wayne and the Wayne police department.
Speak Out: It opens up the image of a policeman and makes him more accessible to the general public, especially the young.
Speak Out: Here is my vote for the new uniforms. Why not have them? I like a new dress once in awhile, too. So what if there is only one - and I doubt that - other place in the country with them?
Give our new police chief a chance to get things straightened out. We certainly need it.
What I hope our police force does is earn the respect of our young people. They should be firm but not tough, except on the drug traffic people who should have the book thrown at them.
One thing we don't need in Wayne is a woman to mark cars. Let the chief and patrolmen walk around instead of all riding, visit with and get to know all the people of Wayne and area and at the same time mark tires and maybe find out it's enjoyable meeting the people and getting their trust. Most people will do a lot more for you if they like you than if they are scared or mistrust you.

838 Yes, I think the change in uniforms is a good one for Wayne.
9172 No, I don't think the change in uniforms is a good one for Wayne.
Comments:

Readers cite expense as major reason for opposing change ...

Speak Out: No, I don't think the change in uniforms is a good one for Wayne. The majority of people have too many taxes to pay now without unnecessary expenses. And I do not think the taxpayers should pay to move them.
Many out-of-town people will not recognize them in their new uniforms as policemen; many Wayne people and children will not either.
Speak Out: As for the uniforms, besides being an added expense they are not practical. And what is wrong with the idea of a policeman looking like one?
Speak Out: You ask us to 'Speak Out!' - you are asking most questions too late, after the deed has been done so how can we speak against it?
I do wish when you tell us about something coming up in Wednesday's paper, why not follow up and tell results? Where did the column 'Moved In, Moved Out' go? That was news to lots of people. And you do keep some items out when it concerns folks working at the Herald, like who filed in divorce, real estate transfers, etc., especially some arrests.
I do wish you could persuade more folks to write opinions - like the one Mr. Russell wrote. It was an eye-opener.
Speak Out: Ask the public first, not after. It's not fair to the taxpayer. Why use the youth as an excuse?

TALK AT the Dixon County Fair in Concord last week ran the usual course. Fairgoers complimented servers at the free barbecue about the tasty sandwiches they gave away, talked about the top swine shown by 4 H's, added their own comments to those of the judge rating the beef shown during the day.
But quite a few of them said they wouldn't give a hoot if the whole thing were rained out.
They didn't want that to happen, of course, but if it came down to a choice, they would rather have seen two or three inches of rain fall rather than for the dust to kick up around their heels as they walked from one stand to another.
Crops are getting pretty dry all over Northeast Nebraska, and those darn sundown teasers seem to make things worse.
Farmers from as far north as Cole-ridge and Newcastle as well as ones around Concord and Dixon said a few inches of rain is about all that is needed to put the finishing touches on a good growing season. If the rains don't come, yields are going to suffer quite a bit.
Farmers are really something when you come to think about it. They can plow down on a bale of hay, stick a strand of straw between their teeth and squirt out across cropland badly in need of rain without changing their expression much.
They might draw something like, 'Well, it ain't the first time we been dried out, and it probably won't be the last.' But that's about all. They'll take the dry weather in stride, just like they take the hail and the cornborers and the land-stealing cloudbursts. Can't think of another profession or trade which can do that. It must be something they get out of the land after working it day in and day out for years.
And down through the years, the fairs haven't changed much. Farmers and city residents still take out a few days each summer to walk through the farm machinery tents, visit the 4 H livestock barns, look over the apple pies baked by farmers' wives and watch youngsters muscle their swine around the show ring.

OBSERVATIONS

A few thoughts

A few random thoughts about the newspaper's first "Speak Out":
People are pretty upset about the high cost of things nowadays, including government. Polls much more scientific than the one we conducted show that people think it's time to pull in the belt a notch or two, preferably by cutting out unessential governmental services. It's not possible that way, many think, maybe it's time to take a harsh look at what our local, county, state and national governments are offering us for our tax dollar so cuts can be made elsewhere. A large number of people think the small taxpayer is digging about as deep into his pockets as possible, and any requests for additional tax contributions deserve raised eyebrows rather than opened billfolds.
Denver or Chicago must feel about the people in city hall representing them. Talking about why it has happened here is probably important, but it is more important for local officials to do something about it. A city councilman or a mayor has the responsibility to represent the people in his community to the best of his ability, of course, but he also has the responsibility to make sure they feel they are getting their money's worth from him. That must be where that catchall phrase "public relations" comes in.
Breaking tradition is one of the easiest ways to stir up adverse public opinion, and we're pretty sure those who had a hand in deciding to change the police uniforms realized this. If they didn't, they do now. But breaking a new path is necessary, and maybe we don't do it often enough because we know it's going to stir up bad feelings. A town, just like an individual, can become so set in its ways that daily existence becomes monotonous without anybody realizing it. We're not so sure but what some new ideas, new ways of doing things aren't long overdue in Wayne.
People should be willing, as one person pointed out, to give the new uniforms a chance before we condemn them. Who knows for sure that they won't end up being one of the best things the local police have going for them? We don't, but we're willing to give them a try. The change hasn't been that expensive, considering some of the other bills the local council has paid recently, and a change back to what we had before wouldn't bankrupt the city.
At the same time, many people voice a simple request along with their complaints about spending. Just give the taxpayer a little more consideration by asking him once in a while what he thinks about the spending of his money, they say. If the little guy is given a chance once in a while to feel like he helped make those decisions to spend money, he will quite often agree they are necessary. If not, that line of thinking goes, you can't expect him to join the parade.
Although it's hard to understand, there are a lot of people in Wayne who think they have lost touch with their elected representatives in city government. If that can happen in a small town like Wayne, imagine what people in Omaha

AREA RESIDENTS who might want to take in a benefit "softball" game are reminded of the one scheduled at the Wayne ball park Tuesday night at 7:45.
The game is scheduled to give a helping hand to Willard Holdorf, who has had complications develop from a leg injury suffered several months ago.
Playing against each other will be some of the men Holdorf played softball with this summer and members of the local baseball club.
ALTHOUGH the United States makes up only six per cent of the world's population, we use 33 per cent of the world's energy. It's no wonder we are in the midst of an energy crisis.
To help homemakers and others learn what they can do to ease the energy crunch, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln has published seven pamphlets with suggestions and tips on combating the energy crisis.
Community newspapers with circulations of less than 25,000 are the backbone of the nation's free press.
No government agency has to give them a license before they can turn their presses, and they are free to express their opinions within the limits of good taste and the libel laws. If there is skulduggery in the courthouse, the state capitol, the city hall or in business enterprises, the inquiring reporters and news gatherers of the local newspapers are likely to be the ones to dig up the facts and let the public know about them.
Most people in the U. S. would strongly resist any move to muzzle the press. But, via the back door of an inefficiently-run enterprise called the U. S. Postal Service, thousands of independent newspapers throughout the country could eventually be put out of business.
The method is very simple. Just keep raising postal rates until small newspapers can't pay them. Raise them high enough and bigger ones won't be able to either and neither will our magazines and other publications. One authority has pointed out that along with the general pressure of inflation, postal increases are one of the major reasons why over 600 community newspapers went out of business in the past 10 years.
Some effective limitation on the financial depredations which the U. S. Postal Service is permitted to commit upon the body of the free press seems much in order.

Another one coming

Readers, watch for another "Speak Out" sometime around the middle of September.
We don't know yet what we'll quiz you about, so were open to suggestions. If you have something you would like to voice an opinion about as well as find out what others think, drop us a card or stop in and tell us about it. We'll be happy to consider your suggestions when trying to come up with our second "Speak Out."
Also, we would appreciate your telling us whether you think the "Speak Out" series is worthwhile. We think it's an excellent way to involve our readers with things going on about them daily. That's our feeling, however, and maybe it's not shared by many individuals other than those who took part in the first mini-poll.
Although 96 replies to our first "Speak Out" are a few more than we anticipated, we hope questions tossed out to our readers in coming months will be even more successful. The more responses we get, the better picture everybody has about feelings of our readers on issues directly affecting them. So the next time you see that "Speak Out" ballot in the newspaper, take a few moments to clip it out, mark down your feelings and send it back to us. We'll appreciate it.

Way Grid Squad Shaping Up May Help Coaches at WSC

As usual, the defense shapes up a bit quicker than the offense, and that's handy for Wayne State football coaches, considering the number of defensive holes they have to fill.

"That's to be expected at this point," he said. The two end positions are manned by two-letted Tom Allie and Stan Lewis, the latter a 6-4 and 240-pound scourage who made a lot of enemy backs unhappy last year. However, an apparently minor foot injury will slow him for a few days. Ron Coles, a heavyweight wrestler of considerable talent, probably has a stranglehold on one of the tackle spots again.

The other one is up for grabs with Mike Schuster, a soph letterman, and Reggie Swanson, who did not play last year, among strong contenders. Pat Donohoe is top climber for the middle guard job he held last year. Senior co-captain George Biszack, a starter in 1972, and Bob Clark, a sophomore letterman, look to be front runners at linebacker.

Biggest problem for defensive coach Ralph Barclay is replacing the deep-backs corps. Three veterans are gone, and the fourth regular of 1972, freshman Ken Ridley, apparently will not return to Wayne.

Leading contenders for the four defensive jobs are Sid Conrad, who logged a lot of time last year; Nick Danze, a lettered sophomore; Jeff Pilbeam, a lettered basketball player who is giving football a try; and Bruce Hansen, up from the freshman squad of 1972.

Allen, Wakefield Riders Are Tops in Showmanship

An Allen rider, Colette Kraemer, was the top junior show man in the 4 H horse show at last week's Dixon County Fair.

But close behind her was a first year 4 H'er, Jeff Craven of Dixon.

Top in senior horsemanship was Carl Domsch of Wakefield, who placed in front of Ponca's Debbie Woodford. Domsch received a purple ribbon, the others blue ribbons.

Along with his first place showing in horsemanship, young Domsch picked up two other purple ribbons in the competition in trail ride and western pleasure.

Taking two first places was Corliss Sharp of Ober, winner in pole bending and barrel race. Debbie Woodford placed second behind her in both of those events.
