

Most County Taxpayers to Get Tax Breaks

By NORVIN HANSEN
Most taxpayers in Wayne County won't have to dig quite as deep into their pocketbooks when they get around to paying 1973 taxes.
In fact, all city and village residents in the county except those in Sholes will see their taxes dip several mills — from as many as 10.19 mills at Carroll to 3.15 at Hoskins.
And, residents of the two large school districts in the county, Wayne-Carroll and Winside, will find their taxes lower this time around.
The levy in the Wayne-Carroll district will be 64.17, down 3.36 mills from the present levy of 67.53.
Winside's drop won't be that great, but residents there will be taxed 45.64 mills, 1.38 mills fewer than the present levy of 47.02.

ALMOST LIKE FROSTING on top of that tax cake is the drop in the county levy down 2.03 mills from 12.57 to 10.54.
What does all this mean for the average taxpayer?
Take somebody owning a home worth $17,255 in Wayne. Under the present levy of 105.95 mills, he is paying $639.94 in taxes. When the new levy of 100.41 goes into effect, that same homeowner will have to pay only $606.48 to finance city, county and school operations as well as the Northeast Nebraska Technical College, Educational Service Unit No. 1 and the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District.

For somebody owning a $30,000 home — much more realistic considering what the real estate market has done in recent years — his tax would drop from the present $1,112.48 to $1,054.30.
THE MILL LEVY is actually the dollar amount a person owes in taxes on each $1,000 of assessed valuation of his real estate or personal property. The assessed valuation is 35 per cent of the actual valuation.
The $30,000 home, for example, is assessed for tax purposes at $10,500.
Those tax breaks will come in spite of increased taxes which will be necessary to support four of the six communities in the county.

Only Carroll was able to hack away at its mill levy — cutting it from 20.39 mills to 16.66 for a drop of 3.73 mills.
Winside's levy will remain the same, 23.60 mills.
The other four communities, however, increased their bill to the taxpayers.
WAYNE'S LEVY to finance the city is up 70 of a mill, from the present 22 mills to 22.70.
Wakefield's hike was the next highest, going from 19.30 mills to 23 mills for a jump of 3.70. Next greatest was the hike in Hoskins, a 5.07 mill jump from 18.42 mills to 23.49. The small village of Sholes has the dubious honor of increasing taxes for local residents the most — jumping 5.56 mills from 87 to 92.56.

Those are just mill levies to finance local governmental functions in those communities, however. Even though most of those will increase, residents of five of those six towns will be treated to tax cuts for the coming year.
The tax on a resident of Wayne — including city, county, school district, educational unit, technical school and natural resources district — will be a total of 100.41 mills. That's 5.54 mills below the present levy 105.95.

Carroll, a drop of 10.19 mills from 105.67 to 95.48.
Wakefield (the portion in Wayne county), a drop of 5.12 mills from 88.92 to 83.80.
Winside, a drop of 4.26 mills from 87.04 to 82.78.
Hoskins, a drop of 3.15 mills from 68.72 to 65.57.
Sholes, an increase of 1.84 mills from 53.76 to 55.60 mills.
The total tax levy for Hoskins and Sholes includes the free high levy of 21.49 mills.

ALTHOUGH OVERCAST skies threatened to rain out the annual Northeast Station's field day Thursday, plenty of area residents made the trek to the station near Concord to view some of the experiments conducted by the station's personnel. Agronomist Russell Moomaw explains to a group the sorghum yield last year as compared to the prospect for 1973.

Big Turnout Marks Annual Northeast Station Field Day

The drizzling rain Thursday did not hamper turnout for the Northeast Station's field day. In fact, said station manager Cal Ward, it may have helped to bring more people to the annual day long program.

'To Each His Own' Say Speakers at Symposium On Using Crop Residue

"To each his own" seemed to be the consensus of program speakers at last week's first Crop Residue Symposium at Lincoln.
Cow-calf producers told of their success in using crop residue and Iowa State and Nebraska University authorities told of the economics of crop residues and methods of processing to increase feed value.
But nearly every speaker emphasized that each farmer-feeder must "figure out" his own program, custom-tailored to his operation.
"In all cases, the producers should be aware of the roughage sources available on their farm and use these materials in a way that will maximize their net income," summarized a panel moderator Phil Menke, district extension livestock specialist at the Northeast Station, Concord.

Menke's panel consisted of producers Elmer Borer of Atkinson, Bill Novak of Linwood and Ray Woodman of Kenesaw, all three with different crop residue utilization programs.
The Borer cow-calf and irrigated corn operation uses its corn residues in shucklage silage. For a cost of $10 a ton, the corn shucks and cobs are harvested, ground, driven through a 1/4 inch screen, then packed and ensiled for later use as an emergency winter feed. The advantage to grinding the material, Borer says, is that cows will utilize the cobs better when ground, and that ground, and that ground-shucks are easier to mix with other feeds.

Juniors at Wayne High Offered Chance at Test

This fall juniors at Wayne High School will have the opportunity to join over one million other students around the world in taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) as an important step in making college plans.
This test, to be given at WHS on Oct. 23, is designed to measure verbal and mathematical aptitude — two abilities that research has shown to be important in doing college work.
In addition to helping students find out more about themselves and their abilities, the PSAT/NMSQT can lead to other opportunities.
The PSAT/NMSQT "Student Bulletin," available from school guidance counselor Ken Carlson, will describe how students can enter competition for scholarships administered by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation and how students can enter their names in the College Board's Student Search Service files so they can get information from particular colleges that may be looking for students like them.
To help students interpret and use test scores, they will receive a booklet called "Your

Area 4-H'ers To Vie at Ak-Sar-Ben

Four-H youths from Wayne, Dixon and Cedar Counties will be taking part in the annual Ak-Sar-Ben livestock show and rodeo starting in Omaha later this week.
Youths from the three counties will be taking dairy, breeding beef, market beef and horses to the event, slated Sept. 21-29.
Taking part in the dairy show will be Amy Finn, Arlin Kittle, Rance Kniesche, Rhonda Kniesche and Vincent Kniesche of Wayne County; Jack Warner of Dixon County; and Walter Hansen, Rebecca Hansen and Patty Janssen of Cedar County.
Showing breeding beef at the event will be three Wakefield youths, Jack, Jacque and Susan Sievers.
Market beef will be shown by Jack and Jacque Sievers of Wayne County, and Kari Erwin of Dixon County.
Taking part in the horse show will be Wayne County youths David Fleer, Mark Fleer, Robin Fleer, Brian Frink, Jana Lange, Mike Lange, Rick Lange, Brad Langenberg and Bill Langenberg. Two from Dixon County will be taking part in that event, Corliss Sharp and Debbie Woodford.

Extension agronomist Kenneth Frank from Clay Center explained that potash for corn production on the non-sandy soils of Northeast Nebraska isn't really needed.
"Considering the large amounts of potassium and magnesium in area soils, it is doubtful if there will be a response to added potassium (potash) to the soil," he said. As yet, he went on, there has been no observed difference in growth between corn plants receiving no potassium and magnesium and those receiving 160 pounds of potassium with 40 pounds magnesium an acre.
George Rehm, agronomist at the Northeast Station, said in 1972 the minimum system produced higher yields than the conventional system of disking, plowing, disking, dragging and planting. But, he cautioned, the higher yield may be due to the fact that heavy rains caused a stand reduction in the limited and conventional treatments.
Throughout the day other agronomists talked about various problems as well as different types of row spacing experiments.

Readers are invited to make comments on the ballots they return in the Survey.
The survey is another in a series which will be conducted by the newspaper as a public service to its readers. If enough interest is shown in them, they mini-polls will become a regular feature.
"People too often feel that their opinions are not considered by persons who make decisions affecting them," said Hansen. "This may be true, but the Speak Out series at least offers individuals a chance to tell us and others what they think about particular issues. If it does nothing more than give our readers a feeling that somebody cares about what they think, it serves its purpose," he added.

Readers who haven't returned their Speak Out ballots are reminded to do so as soon as possible.
Speak Out ballots quizzing readers about their feelings on athletics for girls were printed on the editorial page of last Thursday's newspapers.
Several ballots had been returned by Friday, but many more will have to come in if the mini-poll is to be as successful as the first one conducted by the newspaper, said editor Norvin Hansen. More than 100 readers responded in that first survey, which asked opinions on the decision to change the uniforms of Wayne policemen.
The second survey gives readers across the area a chance to respond, since girls athletics are offered in Allen, Laurel, Wakefield and Winside as well as Wayne. Wayne High was the last of the area

Faus, Ofte and Risor and Bradley also submitted bids ranging from $1,200 to $1,500 for additional work.
No decision will be made concerning acceptance of bids until the Oct. 2 council meeting, according to mayor Ed Schnasse.
The meeting, which recessed until Thursday night, was attended by council and hospital board members, mayor Schnasse, medical facilities consultant from Lincoln Harold Tompkin, and engineer Glenn Stippich.
At the Thursday session, representatives from a bonding company were present to discuss financing of the wing.
The Wakefield area has been without nursing home facilities since July last year when Shady Rest Lodge, operated by Ted Jones, was forced to close by new rest home requirements.

Little Idea at WSC Reaps Big Interest

Last summer a big idea came to William Hagerman, who teaches communication arts at Wayne State College. Why not sound out students on going to Washington, D. C., for few credits?
They would attend a prestigious conference called Pacem in Terris III, which would present many speakers of illustrious reputation in public affairs.
Hagerman figured the trip would cost maybe $200, and maybe he could get one carload of students.
It turned out he figured much too low on student interest. Several dozen said they wanted to go. Now Hagerman is talking of a busload, and while the number of students remains in doubt, he said there might be about 30.

Area Towns Get Checks From NPPD

Several area communities have received payments from Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD).
The payments, which total $851,948.49 for 232 cities and towns across the state, are for communities which have approved electrical distribution system lease agreements with NPPD.
The money represents the first half of the payments made annually to the communities, according to NPPD.
Under terms of the lease agreements, NPPD returns to the community 10 per cent of the adjusted gross revenue. The community owns the distribution system but leases it to NPPD to operate and maintain.
Area communities receiving payments include: Alliance, $2,114.19; Concord, $789.32; Dixon, $548.49; Hoskins, $1,402.92; Waterbury, $304.80.

Hoskins Granted Federal Funds For New Plant
Hoskins will receive federal funding to start construction of a new wastewater treatment facility.
Friday, Governor J. James Exon announced that the Wayne County community will receive a total of $57,000 to construct an activated sludge treatment facility and lift station.
The federal government will contribute 75 per cent of the total cost. The state and community will split the remaining 25 per cent.

'Teachers are underpaid!'

One side: Study shows that teachers are 'losers' when it comes down to 'real' pay

By JOHN LYNCH

Welcome back to school! Most of us got a warm welcome — by the thermometer, that is. One school spokesman admitted that some classrooms were akin to sauna baths.

The second week of school may not be an appropriate time to talk about money. But when interesting bits of information are published, they're at least worth considering.

The latest issue of The Readers Digest printed statistical information on average weekly pay from the U. S. Departments of Labor: Agriculture and Health, Education and Welfare; the Civil Service Commission; the NEA; and the Veterans' Administration. Its title: "Who's Ahead, Who's Lagging in 'Real' Pay?"

If you haven't read this issue of The Reader's Digest, guess "who's ahead" and "who's lagging?"

INTERESTINGLY ENOUGH, the highest increase group in "real pay" (assuming a family of four) are the auto workers. We say this is interesting because the UAW termed the recent contract offer of Chrysler "an insult." Not only were the auto workers the leaders in increase of real pay, but they were also the highest in average weekly pay (before taxes) in March of this year among those listed in the article.

We can't help but wonder if teachers will ever be in the position of having the highest average weekly pay, the highest increase in real pay and then form a proposal from the Board of Education "an insult."

We won't dwell on that possibility very long except perhaps to say that the difference in pay is primarily because one is paid from profits and the other is paid from taxes. All of us complain about the increased cost of automobiles and taxes. The difference is that one is considered "inevitable" while the other should and must be controlled.

AND THAT'S THE BOAT Nebraska schools find themselves in with probably more control to come.

How about second place in real income increase? Farmers. That little bit of information should result in some interesting comments — especially in Nebraska.

We should note, however, that the farmers' average weekly pay was $92 a week less than the auto workers'.

Let's get to the losers. Yep, teachers. But teachers were fifth on the list behind meatpackers, soft coal miners, refinery workers and oil and gas field workers.

How was this change in "real pay" arrived at? Taken into consideration was a 4.7 per cent rise in consumer prices, plus federal income taxes and social security taxes.

SO EVEN IF TEACHERS' salaries increased $100 or $500 last year, the net result was a loss in "real pay."

Here are a few other bits of information. The cost of a first class stamp may go from eight cents to 10 cents in 1974. That's a 25 per cent increase. The primary reason? To raise the wages of postal workers who will make an average annual salary of $11,000.

Electricians in Philadelphia now make $9.72 an hour, or $19,440 a year based on a 40-hour week with a two week vacation. We would bet teachers would take that level of pay.

And to top it off, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that a city family of four needs $11,800 per year to maintain an "intermediate" standard of living. That's a city family — and Omaha is probably Nebraska's only city. But it remains an interesting statistic.

As we said, it may be early in the year to talk about money. But these little tidbits of financial information can always be filed away until the right time comes.

We wish you a good year in 1973-74.

'Like heck they are!'

Other side: Study shows teachers among few professionals who have outraced inflation

By JAMES MECKLENBURGER

How "bad" are beginning teacher salaries in this country right now? Not bad at all, according to a new report released by the National Education Association (NEA). Fresh out of college, teachers start to work at salaries that compare well with those of beginners in other professional fields.

It shows that annual teacher pay — on a nine month basis — has increased by $2,200, or more than 40 per cent, in the six-year period between 1966 to 1972. In fact, teacher salaries increased during that period at a rate faster than most other salaries. Average salaries for beginning engineers, business administrators and statisticians, for example, increased less — only 30 per cent — during the same period. And the over all increase for all male professionals except teachers has been only 33 per cent during the period.

THE RATE OF INFLATION during the six year period under study (reflected by the consumer price index) was 30 per cent. Consequently, teachers in 1972 were among the few professional groups whose real purchasing power has increased since 1966. Teacher pay not only has increased substantially over the past six years, but has increased more substantially than has pay for other professionals except accountants.

(Accountants? There may be a lesson in that.)

Curiously — but perhaps understandably — the National Education Association report does not trumpet the good news about salaries, indeed may be guilty of a wee bit of distortion in presenting the figures. Says NEA:

"Average starting salaries of classroom teachers compare poorly with starting salaries of bachelor's degree graduates who are employed in industry. In 1972-73, starting salaries for men in industry, which averaged $9,648, were 31 per cent higher than beginning teachers' salaries at $7,357."

TRUE ENOUGH, presumably, as far as it goes. But it only goes nine-tenths of the way. The whole truth is that a beginning teacher typically works only nine months for his average $7,357. The beginning employee in industry typically must work 12 months to earn his $9,648. NEA reports that the typical U.S. teacher works 180 teaching days and five non-teaching days each year, a situation that is unchanged from 1966. Most employees in industry work approximately 240 days each year. Since this means that industrial employees must give 30 per cent more time to their employers, it hardly seems surprising that industrial salaries are higher — approximately 31 per cent higher.

A more meaningful comparison, therefore, would go something like this: If teachers worked 240 days at the current average rate of pay, annual income for beginning teachers would be $9,564. Beginning teachers, therefore, earn salaries that are virtually identical in rate of pay to starting salaries in industry.

MOREOVER, as the accompanying chart makes clear, teachers are better paid by school boards than the average beginning business administrator or liberal arts graduate is paid by industry. And when beginning teacher pay is compared to that of beginning statisticians, economists, sales marketing personnel and production managers, teacher pay comes out approximately equal to the others. Only engineers, physicists, chemists and accountants are better paid than are teachers, but only five to ten per cent better.

The difference between nine-month teacher salaries and 12-month industrial salaries constitutes, according to NEA, "considerable evidence of economic discrimination against teachers as an occupational class of workers."

While that statement may be for giveable, coming as it does from an organization interested in winning more pay for teachers, it also is patently inaccurate. The only "discrimination" is in the number of days worked.

Accordingly, NEA's statistics seem to present a case less for teacher pay hikes than for arrangements that enable teachers to work a 240-day year and earn a 240-day salary. Teachers, after all, may only be required to work nine months each year, but they must live and support themselves 12 months a year. The statistics offer a strong argument for year round salaries and, by extension, for year round school — for teachers who want higher pay.

BEING A father is drinking the rest of the glass of milk you shared with your one year old daughter and finding crumbs of soggy cookie slipping down the side.

Listening to your boy, only a few days into kindergarten, sounding out "guh guh girl. . . el el elephant. . . rrr rrr rooster" while looking through a picture book that's been thumbed through almost countless times.

Wondering if that same boy is serious about being a "diesel driver, lumberman and carpenter" when he grows up.

Being told that you may be the boss of the house but "Jesus is the boss of the world."

Realizing you have to start putting a dollar value on your life, and wishing you could afford more insurance to raise that value.

Promising to get a couple hundred pounds of sand for the tractor tire in the middle of summer and waking up in the middle of September to find it hasn't been done yet.

Vowing to quit smoking every time your son says "I wish you would 'cause it smells so bad."

Wondering how your parents raised eight kids in two-bedroom homes when it seems so important nowadays for kids to have separate rooms of their own.

Thinking that somehow maybe it was better to learn to swim in that old dirty creek rather than in the sterilized, chlorinated, heated pool.

Secretly watching out of a window to see how long that kindergarten is going to last on his first try at sleeping alone in his tent in the backyard. . . and finding out he may have stayed right there had that black cat not come sniffing around.

Thinking it would be great if problems like drugs and war and crime and selfishness and growing up would go away so your kids wouldn't have to face them.

AREA RESIDENTS will be able to hear country and western singer Tommy Cash, brother of the other well known singer, perform at Pender Friday, Sept. 28.

Cash will be appearing at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium in Pender, result of an attempt by the Thurston County Special Deputies to see if top-notch country and western performers would draw large enough crowds to book them regularly. The Special Deputies is a reserve force for the county sheriff's office, similar to the reserve force being considered for the Wayne police department. Tickets for the event are $4 in advance, $5 at the door. Children under 12 get in at half price.

A RED ROSE to mayor Kent Hall and each of the councilmen in Wayne for setting what must be record in getting through an agenda. They did it last Tuesday night, skipping through an abbreviated schedule of topics in less than an hour and a half. Council meetings have been known to drag on and on, with less getting done than was accomplished last week.

HOW MANY TIMES can you get away with selling the same football stadium? It's hard to say, but the Nebraska Easter Seal Society is trying to sell Memorial Stadium for the third year in a row.

The sale is a put-on, of course, with the $1 bids for "owning" the NU stadium for one day on October 20 going to the Easter Seal program.

But the successful buyer does get some real benefits: two tickets to the NU-Kansas game, dinner for two in a Lincoln steakhouse, overnight lodging at a motel, a football autographed by Big Red players, an "official" deed to the real estate signed by football coach Tom Osborne.

In the past couple years nearly $16,000 has been raised through selling the stadium. Tickets this time around are on sale throughout the state. More information is available from the Easter Seal office at 3815 Dewey Avenue in Omaha.

SOMEBODY WHO ripped off two new chrome wheels and tires from a car on Corvett Auto parking lot recently has had second thoughts.

Employees at the firm came to work early one morning to find the stolen wheels and tires, valued at about $150, resting underneath the same vehicle they were taken from.

Roy Coryell, owner of the business, said that maybe the police department's investigation of the theft-scared whoever was responsible.

Company's Coming!

It began simply enough with a post card from Pittsburg announcing that Great Aunt Mildred was going to be in town. Now perhaps I should explain that Aunt Mildred went to finishing school, inherited all the family silver, never married and was unaccustomed to little things like peanut butter on the dash of the six year-old automobile or baby kittens in the laundry basket.

Well, donning company manners for a brief 48 hours shouldn't be all that difficult. I reasoned, and immediately set about putting the house in order.

Windows I had forgotten existed got their panes polished to a high gloss. The sun porch gleamed in a new coat of paint, and a sympathetic friend insisted I borrow her company bath set to doll up the hopelessly antiquated upstairs bath. I rearranged mirrors and pictures to cover cracks in the wall, sewed new covers for the sofa pillows and bought new sheets for the guest bed.

The front door was locked to keep through traffic to a minimum: paper dolls, Magic Chef, Play-Doh and sticker fun mysteriously disappeared, and I ran behind every moving object with a can of Pledge and a spray bottle of Windex.

"Next thing you know," said number one daughter a shade sarcastically as she was chastised for dripping water in the shining sink, "you'll have us using paper cups at the outside hydrant."

"No need to waste a cup," I smiled, flying through the kitchen with my trusty mop and broom. "Drink from the hose."

Two hours before she was due, the place was ready for Aunt Mildred. Then it happened.

Returning from the store with an armload of Brostes sprouts, parsley, $2.50 per pound beef, fresh mushrooms, sour cream and other assorted goodies which would become several if it was no trouble at all meals, I walked into what had been a neat and polished front room.

"Excuse me," I said, starting to back out the door, "I thought this was my house." Then reality hit. "This is my house," I shrieked, "or was 40 minutes ago!"

Better half, sprawled contentedly in the middle of the carpet, had millions of pieces of the air conditioner laying in systematic piles all over the room.

"Thought I'd try to get this thing running better before it really gets hot," he mumbled through the screws in his mouth. (It was now a cool 99 degree day in mid July.) "Had to order a part," he continued under my burning gaze. "Won't be in for about a week."

I'd like to say I walked calmly into the kitchen with my parcels, but you wouldn't believe that anyway. Aunt Mildred arrived on schedule, her first remark concerning how nice it was to feel a natural breeze. "Air conditioners make me frightfully nervous, you know," she said, and I kicked an overlooked Phillip's screw under the sofa.

At Auntie's urging we neglected the dining room with newly purchased candles and color-matched table cloth and took most of our meals at the kitchen counter or outside on the picnic table.

Have you ever watched a 79-year old woman play croquet as your perfectly prepared beef stroganoff jells and leaves flutter down into the homemade noodles, by now thoroughly glued together?

I thought about crying. I was tempted to laugh. But I selected a red and white striped mallet for the next game of croquet instead. If you can't impress them, join them.

Wakefield's Second-Half Offense Blows Allen Off the Field

By BOB BARTLETT

Wakefield head coach John Torczon just sighed a sound of relief when the final gun sounded the Trojans' 27-7 victory over area rival Allen Friday night. He had good reason. His "hesitant" offense finally ripped open in the second half to overpower the Eagles.

interception by Paul Snyder on the 13-yard line, and two plays later had victory partially ringing in its ears.

But Wakefield rallied in the second half when Torczon unleashed his potent offense with a massive ground and aerial game for a total of 326 yards.

Quarterback De Jø Soderberg, replacing starter Doug Fischer in the early going, brought out the oil can for the blitzing Trojans with a 71-yard pass play to Keith Siebrandt about a minute into the second half.

Siebrandt, all alone in the flat, grabbed Soderberg's pass on about the 20-yard line and raced into the endzone for a 76 yard. Wakefield, playing a more gutsie game, then tried for the two-point play only to have an Allen player block the pass.

But that didn't kill Wakefield's hopes of scoring once again. After stopping the Eagles, Torczon's crew started a 61 yard drive that put them on the board again.

Running back Randy Kahl, in his first of two TD performances, zipped across the goal line from 20 yards out to cap the long drive and give the home team a 13-7 lead after kicker Loren Hammer making his first of three PAT's.

"The 71 yard pass play was the turning point in the game," Torczon said, "but that sustain ed drive really gave the players a lot of confidence."

Kahl kept his legs churning in the fourth quarter on another dazzling run — this time at 47 yards — on an off guard play Kahl, looking for blockers on the strong side, crossed over to the weak side and found daylight.

With the game just about out of reach, Steve Sorensen rang up another TD with 1:10 left in the game to close the Trojans' debut at 27-7.

"Both our lines looked real good," the head mentor commented. Leading the defensive line was 62, 206 pound senior Loren Hammer.

Hammer is one guy who really made it a rough game. The Allen coaching staff admitted. Hammer had 11 unassisted tackles to lead his team. Fischer picked up eight tackles.

For Allen, Randy Lanser had 14 takedowns while Charlie Peters netted 12 tackles and Neil Blohm mustered nine.

Offensively, Wakefield had its two guns — Kahl and Sorensen — collect a total of 114 yards. Kahl led the duo with 68 in 10 carries while Sorensen took the ball 15 times for 46 yards.

Although Allen was limited to six rushing yards, scatback Rick Chase led the squad with 38 yards in 14 runs. Peters led receivers with five grabs for 18 yards.

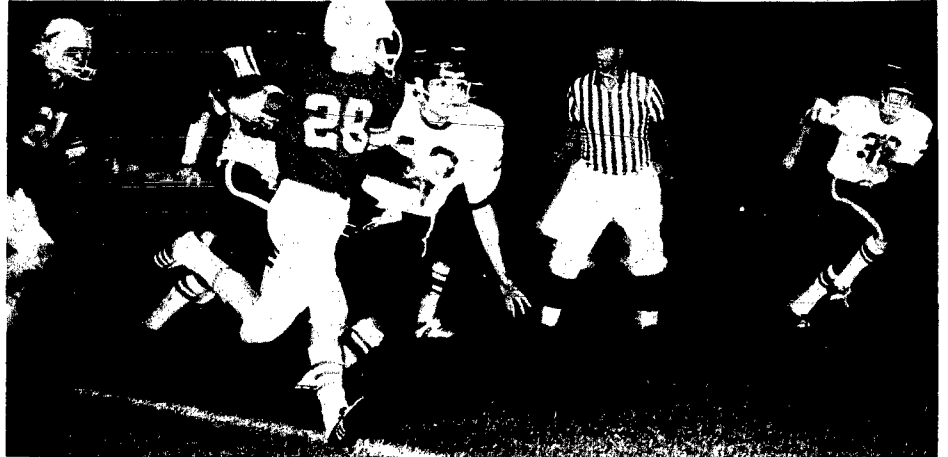

Both clubs will again see action this Friday when Wakefield is on the road for its first Husker Conference match at Madison Allen going back to the Lewis and Clark League, hosts Winside, which had last Friday off.

WAKEFIELD'S defense started to get stingy in the second half, holding the Eagles to a total of six yards on the ground for the entire game. Both Steve Greve (68) and two unidentified Trojan players give an Allen running back a taste of the spirited Wakefield teamwork.

ALLEN'S LEADING running back, Rick Chase, scrambles around right end Friday night. In pursuit are Wakefield's Roger Gustafson (63) and Keith Siebrandt (39).

Plainview Plasters Laurel Crew, 28-0

Plainview's one-man attack — halfback Tim McCrady — scored three touchdowns Friday night to lead his Plainview Pirates to a 28-0 conquest over winless Laurel.

The Northeast Nebraska Activity Conference meet between the two teams found the host squad ready to jump out in front of the loop standings with an impressive 250 yard offensive display.

Quarterback Kevin Roach kept his club on the ground right of the night with the aid of running back McCrady helping to pick away at the Bear's defense for 241 yards on the ground.

With about eight minutes gone in the first quarter, the Pirates struck on a 50 yard run by McCrady.

Jon Askered's PAT left the count at 7-0 before the home team chopped away at Laurel with a fumble recovery in the Bear end zone for a 14-0 padding in the second stanza.

Plainview didn't let up in the third period, with McCrady collecting two more TD's. The sophomore, who had 27 carries for 175 yards, punched across from the 10 and three-yard lines to crunch the Bears for their second loss in as many weeks.

Defensively, Plainview held the Bears to 37 yards passing while stopping the area team for 47 on the ground.

Laurel returns home Friday to host Randolph in another conference match.

Allen Selects B Cheerleaders

Members of the Allen Pep Club picked reserve cheerleaders last week.

They are Kari Erwin, Lori Erwin, JoAnne Roberts, Kathy Malcom and Kathi Rahm.

Today (Monday) the girls in seventh and eighth grades will select cheerleaders.

DURING first-half action, the Eagles were in control, with both the offense and defense performing to their best. An unidentified Eagle player puts the clamps on Wakefield's running back Keith Siebrandt as Eagle Tim Hill (36) prepares to add a little help. Watching on is Wakefield's Randy Kahl (25).

MARK POWERS

Six Harriers Report for Devil X-Country

Wayne High's cross country team will be short on experience this year, said coach Harold Maciejewski, with only one returning letterman among the six runners.

Sophomore Mark Powers will lead the young crew, composed mainly of sophomores.

Ken Daniels, Vince Jenness, Mike Sharer and Tom Maier will compete with Powers along with the only junior on the squad, Bob Keating.

Maciejewski pointed out that his harriers are working out but no definite schedule has been set up.

Winside High Prepares for Homecoming

Homecoming plans at Winside High School are continuing as the school prepares for the Sept. 28 dash with Hartington.

Beginning Tuesday of that week, the school will announce senior candidates for homecoming king and queen after the girls volleyball match against Coleridge.

On Thursday that week there will be a powderpuff football game at 7:30 p.m. pitting the sophomore-senior team against the freshman — junior squad. A bonfire pep rally will rap up the night.

Individual classes will begin their skits at 2:30 p.m. that Friday in the downtown area. After the game there will be a dance.

Heads Pep Club

Mary Ann Ginn was named president of the Wayne High School Pep Club, and Susan Dorcay was chosen vice president.

Deb Bodenstedt will serve as secretary-treasurer while Patty Fulton is the student council representative.

Other members elected as class representatives were: seniors — Karen Black and Beth Pederson; juniors — Kristy Jech and Sue Fredrickson; sophomores — Susan Jacobmeier and Judy Janke; freshmen — Barrie Nelson and Cary Kinshaw.

'W' Leader

HALFBACK GORDON COOK was named president of Wayne High School W Club last week. Mike Dunklau won the vice president's spot while Bill Schwartz was named secretary-treasurer. Jack Froehlich is student council representative.

Ak-Sar-Ben To Crown

Cowboy Kid, Rodeo Queen

A cowboy kid and junior rodeo queen will be selected at the annual Ak-Sar-Ben world championship rodeo in Omaha Sept. 21-29.

The competition is open to youngsters, seven through 13 years of age wearing western equipment. The cowboy kid will be named during the 2 p.m. matinee performance Sept. 23, and the junior rodeo queen will be selected at the 8:30 twilight performance that night.

Judges select the winners under the same rules used in a western pony class at a horse show. Ponies will be shown on both leads at a walk, trot and gallop. Ponies count 20 per cent; horsemanship, 60 per cent; costume and personal appearance, 20 per cent.

Both the cowboy kid and junior-queen receive saddles.

Entry blanks are available through the Ak-Sar-Ben general office in Omaha.

Winside A Team Stays Perfect; Wayne B, C Squads Take Wins

Winside's A team will be going after Win No. 3 tonight (Monday) in the school's second annual intinational volleyball tournament.

Eight teams will be competing in the meet, with Coleridge taking on the Wildkittens in the last of four games.

The first round match Osmond and Newcastle will clash, starting at 6:30 p.m., with the Pierce and Laurel battle second and the Norfolk and Emerson Hubbard game third.

The four winners will advance to the semi-final round Tuesday night, starting at 6:30. The championship game is slated for 9:30 that night.

Thursday night coach Don Leighton's girls earned their second win with a two set victory over Wayne High.

Leighton's girls ripped off a 15-8 first set win, then came back to finish the job, 15-7.

"I was real pleased with the way the girls progressed in the last two ball games," the coach said. Winside, using only over handed serves, rifled 32 of 42 serves across the net to either score or set up a good play. That figures out to 77 per cent.

"Give the Wayne team a little more experience," Leighton added, "and the girls will be tough."

Although the Winside mentor points out that the victory is a team effort, he did mention that starters Joann Kleensang, Patty Mann, Joni Langenberg, Joan Weible, Deb Bartsch and Sally Landanger did good jobs.

Wayne, however, did win two of the three matches. The C team, composed of freshmen, kept their perfect record in tact (2-0) with 12-7 and 12-6 wins.

Coach Mavis Dalton's girls were led by Deb Brown.

The B squad evened its record to 1-1 with strong 15-5 and 15-12 victories. Sheryl Anderson paced the Wayne team while Kay Pierson and Kris Nedergaard played well. Mrs. Dalton said.

Tuesday night the locals will travel to Randolph.

Regular, professional eye care (as important as medical and dental care, reminds the Nebraska Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Beginning as early as age three, children should have their eyes examined by an eye doctor — a habit that should be continued biannually through the early years and into adult life. After age 35, a glaucoma screening should be included in the regular eye care routine.

Teams 33, 29 To Clash for Championship

Teams 33 and 29 will settle the score Wednesday night for the championship of the Wayne Country Club men's golf league.

Both clubs defeated their opponents in the semi-final round last week, with Team 33 (Ron Dalton, Kip Bressler, Delmar Carlson and Pat Gross) beating Team 23 (Ray Murray, Lee Tietgen, Dick Ditman and Niel Edmunds).

Team 29 (Lyle Garvin, Dick Berry, Harold Ingalls and Dick Wacker) eliminated Team 31 (Duane Blumenkamp, Dick Brownell, Terry Karel and Dean Bruggeman).

Fumbles Stop Devils' Drive To Overcome Blair

Wayne High outthrust the Blair Bears Friday night, but losing four costly fumbles out of six in the first half hurt the Devils' momentum.

Result: Blair 12, Wayne 6.

"We blew them off the field in the first half," coach Al Hansen said. "but our mistakes made the difference."

Another kind of difference came in the second half when Blair broke a 6-4 tie with a blocked Wayne punt and downed the ball on the 22-yard line. Two plays later Blair's strong running back, Monte Block, dashed in from the two-yard line to put his team out in front, 12-6.

The Bears started the scoring in the second quarter in their home encounter on a punt run back to the 22-yard line. A reverse play put the ball at the nine-yard line before halfback Bruce Lasher sneaked in.

But Wayne's offensive power struck back quickly. Quarterback Mafty Hansen, who led rushers with 57 yards in 12 carries, directed his team on a 70-yard drive following Blair's return kickoff.

With the ball on the one yard line, Hansen balled over to tie the score going into the second half.

Offensively, credit has to go to halfback Gordon Cook, who picked up 48 yards in 13 carries. Statistically, Wayne beat Blair, collecting 101 yards in the air and 118 on the ground for a total of 219. Blair, on the other hand, had only five yards via the air lanes and 137 rushing for a total of 142. But, as coach Hansen pointed out, fumbles hurt.

Part of the reason Wayne was so effective in stopping the Bears was three top defensive players.

Senior Mike Dunklau, who had nine unassisted tackles and eight assists, stopped Blair's attempt to mount more yardage after the middle when he was switched from his regular tackle spot to middle linebacker.

"They (Blair) would not go his side," Hansen said, "so I put him at the middle linebacker spot to slow down their running game."

Kerry Jech and Chuck Brockman also had a hand in making the top list in the tackle charts. Jech had seven unassisted tackles while helping in seven tackles. Brockman had six tackles, five assists.

This Friday the locals will again be on the road to face a surprising winner Pilger team. Last Friday the Gators tied Husker Conference title contender Columbus Lakeview 20-20.

As noted earlier in the year, both Wayne and Lakeview were picked to be the top two teams in the west division and the league.

Pheasant Population Down 34 Per Cent

Nebraska's pheasant population—down about 34 per cent statewide from last year, probably will never again reach the high levels recorded in the mid-1940's. Habitat deterioration because of intensified land use and present farm programs offer no immediate encouragement.

Pheasants were first released in Nebraska in 1915, and the first open season occurred in 1922 in Wheeler and part of one other county. We've been hunting pheasants annually here since, in some or all of the state.

Even though pheasant numbers are diminishing in direct relation to accelerated land use, pheasants should continue to exist in the state's agricultural regions.

The plight of the pheasant isn't restricted to Nebraska, Oregon, which imported the ringneck from China over 90 years ago, is in trouble, as are other pheasant states.

Since 1881, Oregon's pheasant population has undergone sharp fluctuations, considered normal and associated with the success of nesting. However, since 1959, pheasant numbers have shown a sharp and continuous downward trend. While several factors working together are responsible, the No. 1 nemesis is widespread deterioration of habitat.

Restoration of habitat in Nebraska, Oregon and other states is the only measure that can reverse the downward trend. The effectiveness of large-scale restoration is reflected in the soil bank program of the late 1950's and early 1960's when entire farms were retired from production.

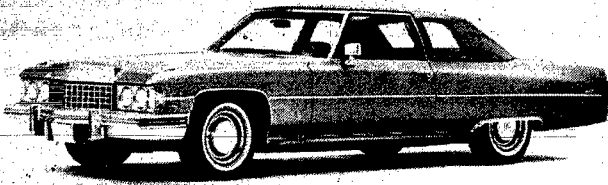

Oregon's pheasants responded tremendously to this land retirement which greatly increased in habitat, specifically nesting cover. So did Nebraska, particularly in the northeast and central parts. But pheasant numbers in both states dropped markedly following the end of the soil bank.

The present farm program offers small help. The secretary of agriculture at his option can retire portions of farms for three to 25 years, in conjunction with establishing conservation measures on these lands. Another provision sets aside lands, again only parts of farms, from production, but the secretary has said that because of the grain and feed shortage, none will be set aside in 1974.

John Bowers of the Lancaster County ASCS said a proposal to be submitted to Washington, as a part of the present farm program, would encourage the setting aside of a filter strip, 40 to 60 feet wide, at the end of fields. To be seeded to grass, this strip would filter chemicals from the fields, act as a catch for soil run-off and help against wind erosion. The filter strip is in essence the turn-around area for big equipment, but when grassed down, would act as a retreat for wildlife.

Dr. Bruce Cowgill's "Acres for Wildlife" program is a small but helpful hand for pheasants. Probably the biggest benefit of the program is the realization that if we want to have wildlife around, we have to provide or preserve habitat.

Pheasants rest their case on the restoration of substantial amounts of habitat. Given the cover their numbers could build to former heights. But this doesn't appear to be in the cards.

DETROIT—The car which most exemplifies the newness of Cadillac for 1974 is the redesigned Coupe de Ville (top). The standard front end features a new lighting arrangement. New bumper guards are wider and lower. The bumper impact strips are standard and are silver gray in color to blend into the chrome bumper. An all-new rear quarter panel has enabled Cadillac designers to create this smart appearing fixed rear window. A custom Cabriolet vinyl roof option is now available for the 1974 Coupe de Ville. The half-top design is similar to that on the Eldorado Cabriolet.

Cadillac will again have the Fleetwood Eldorado Convertible in its lineup for 1974. The focal point of the new front appearance is a uniquely styled fine mesh grille. The grille extends down below the center bumper bar and is protected against impact by two short guards. As on the standard Cadillac, the bumper guards are wider and lower to provide protection from low impacts. The side appearance features a narrow body molding which protects the side of the car from parking lot damage. Along with the new grille, bolder striping and new wheel discs accentuate the classic Eldorado lines. Seven convertible top choices are available.

Carroll Cafe To Stay Open

The Carroll Cafe will remain open, according to owner Marlene Dahlkoetter.

Darrell Granfield had earlier decided to terminate his lease with Mrs. Dahlkoetter, forcing the cafe to close since there were no other parties interested in leasing the business. But, Mrs. Dahlkoetter said, she will try to keep it open for awhile.

In 1962 she purchased the cafe from Mr. and Mrs. Jay Drake. Both she and her mother operated the business until last year when she leased it to Granfield.

Kiwanis chairman for the project, Wilmer Marra, said the day's activity netted over $265 — above last year's total. Included in some of the "bargains" sold was a stove for reportedly $2, a refrigerator for about $15 and an old record player for the highest amount of the day, $27.50. Stan Baier, left, started the auction calling while club members helped to set up and display the items.

 The classes, conducted by Mrs. Stan Willis, are to help adults who wish to obtain high school diplomas. They meet one night per week from 7 to 9 p.m. at Room 17 of the Fine Arts Center.

I WOULD LIKE TO THANK my friends and relatives for the cards, letters and flowers while I was in the hospital. A special thanks to Fern Rice for taking me to and from the hospital and to Cleo Reuter for her wonderful help since my return home. Sophie Rodell. s17

TO THOSE OF YOU who knew and loved your former Servall man, Dean Ryan. It was his one hope that he would again be able to serve the people on his route but as it was not God's will he was never able to do so. He often remarked that he actually loved the people along his route and that his work was more pleasure than work. He'd hoped to be able to thank you all for the many cards and letters sent during his hospital stay. So for him we would like to say thank you from the bottom of our hearts. Mrs. R. Dean Ryan, Karen, Marci, Dan and Jeff. s17

OUR SINCEREST THANKS to all relatives, friends and neighbors for cards and visits. To Rev. Reimers for his prayers. Dr. Robert Bentback and the hospital staff for being so nice, to Mike and to the Winside Rescue Squad for all they did for us. We also wish to say thank you for the flowers, memorials and food. Rev. Reimers for the service, the choir, the ladies who served lunch at the church, Myrtle Jacobsen and Edna Rasmussen for serving the dinner, Warren Jacobsen for taking us to Wayne, and to everyone else who helped us in any way in the passing of our brother, Martin "Mike" Jensen. Mr. and Mrs. Chris Jensen and family. Peter and Johanna Jensen. s17

Fall is the ideal time to spray thistles. Next year infestation will be very heavy where adequate control was not acquired.

Thistle control for 1974 can be accomplished by spraying this fall. Have your spraying done by Oct. 15th when the temperature is 40 degrees or more. A frost or freeze before this does not matter.
