

NBC Aims Camera at Wayne's Fuel Problems

Your Problem Getting Fuel More Serious Than I Thought'

Wayne's difficulties in getting fuel to run its electrical generating plant will get national television coverage, possibly today (Thursday) or Friday.

A four-man NBC TV crew was in Wayne, Tuesday and Wednesday shooting film for the news story which may be carried on John Chancellor's Nightly News program today at 5:30 p.m. or on the network's Today show at 7 a.m. or evening news at 5:30 p.m. Friday.

Heading up the filming crew was Fred Briggs, correspondent working out of the network's Chicago bureau.

FILMED DURING the two days were street scenes, the city's power plant and large storage tank, Wayne

State College and portions of Tuesday night's council meeting during which councilmen discussed the growing danger of the city running out of diesel fuel to keep its electrical generating engines running.

Briggs told the councilmen Tuesday night that the city's problem is much more involved and serious than he at first realized and that he will need more time than he first thought to put the story together.

Wayne was selected for the television coverage because it is a good example of small cities in the Midwest which generate their own electricity and are faced with a serious fuel shortage, he said.

TELEVISION STATIONS and NBC affiliates in a large area of the Midwest — all the way from North Dakota to Illinois and Indiana — were contacted about finding such a community, he said, and Wayne was finally chosen.

"You seem to have a particularly serious problem," he commented at Tuesday's meeting.

Among those interviewed for the story were Mayor Kent Hall, city administrator Fred Brink, power plant superintendent Norbert Brugger, and Sid Magdanz, engineer with the city's engineering firm.

THE CREW'S ARRIVAL in Wayne was well timed — Monday night the street lights up and down main street and throughout the residential area were kept off to conserve fuel. They'll stay off until the fuel shortage eases.

The order to shut them off came from the city administrator, who last week ordered city employees to turn off all lights in the city's parks.

The crew also arrived in the city at a time when fuel tanks are running dangerously low — only about four or five days' supply of diesel fuel (some 29,000 gallons) is stored in tanks ready for use at the generating plant when the city is shut off its natural gas supply, according to city officials.

THAT 29,000 GALLONS is less than half of the city's allocation for this month — only how half over — and could be used up before the month ends if a cold spell hits and no more natural gas is available, says the city administrator.

The crew's arrival was timely in another way — volunteer efforts to conserve electricity and fuel are just starting to snowball.

The Chamber of Commerce and Wayne Retail Association have offered to cut back energy consumption. College officials earlier this week began shutting off unnecessary lights and are working on other measures to reduce energy requirements, Wayne Carroll school officials asked for help Tuesday from teachers and students in cutting back electrical and fuel consumption. Businessmen have started clicking off extra lights and turning down thermostats. And private citizens are now talking about and starting to do something to conserve energy.

THOSE PRIVATE CITIZENS and businessmen should find some relief in what Mayor Hall told Briggs during an interview.

"Our major goal is to keep supplying electricity in the most essential places, such as in homes, and to keep the furnaces running in our businesses as well as our homes," he said.

City officials are trying to save fuel now — by turning off street lights, for

300 for Sure, More Expected For Dinner

About 300 Wayne area farmers are certain to attend Saturday's Farmer Appreciation Night in Wayne and more are expected.

Businessmen have been in viting farmers the past several days and more are expected to be invited by Friday, said Howard Witt, Chamber of Commerce manager.

Any farmers who have not been invited by Friday are urged to call the Chamber office by Friday and request tickets for the dinner, said Witt. It's almost impossible for businessmen to invite every farmer in the area, he said, because many farmers are busy this time of the year and some may not get into town to do business in their favorite stores. "But that doesn't mean they aren't welcome; they certainly are," he said.

Guest speaker for the evening dinner, to be held at the Wayne State Student Center, is Bill Wood, broadcaster for radio station KFOR in Lincoln. Wood, who has been with the station the past 10 years, will talk and play recordings of old radio shows.

Laurel Man Winner Of 'Birthday Bucks'

A farmer from the Laurel area had his harvesting time brightened this week when he was named the latest winner in the weekly Birthday Bucks promotion in Wayne.

He is Otto Herrmann, winner of $50 in coupons which can be spent just like cash in any of the numerous businesses and firms participating in the weekly giveaway.

Herrmann was in Bill's Cafe last Thursday night when the winning date in the weekly drawing was announced. His birthday was just over a week away from the winning date.

Another $300 grand prize will be offered to local and area shoppers in Wayne tonight (Thursday) when the winning date is announced at 8:15 p.m. If there is no shopper in one of the participating firms with a birthday on that exact date, the $50 consolation prize will be awarded.

1 Triplet Dies, 2 Others Are Reported Okay

One of the triplets born at the Wayne Hospital on Sunday died in a Sioux City hospital Tuesday morning.

It was the first time that triplets have been born in the 31-year history of the local hospital, according to the director of nursing.

Mrs. Edward Schroeder of Wayne gave birth to the triplets, all girls, between 10:34 a.m. and 12:07 p.m. Sunday.

The two surviving babies, the last two born, are reported in good condition at St. Luke's Hospital in Sioux City. All three were taken there for observation late Monday afternoon. They will reportedly remain there for a week.

Suzanne Kaye, born first, weighed four pounds. The second of the triplets to be born, Shanna Sue, weighed three pounds 14 1/2 ounces, and the third, Shawn Dee, weighed four pounds three and a half ounces. None of the three was identical.

Mrs. Schroeder's husband is an electrician with Wayne County Public Power District. They have one other child, Shellie, five years old.

Services for Suzanne will be at graveside at the Memorial Park Cemetery in Sioux City today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m. with Rev. Frank Kirtley officiating.

Poppy Day Sales in Wayne Total $217

Poppy Day, held Saturday in Wayne, netted the local VFW Auxiliary $217.35, an increase from last year's figure of approximately $165, according to Mrs. Eveline Thompson, secretary-treasurer.

Selling poppies in the residential and business districts throughout the day were eight auxiliary members and volunteer workers and 27 youngsters. Among the younger salesmen was Buddy Poppy Girl Robin Lindsay, daughter of Mrs. Donna Lindsay of Wayne.

Members of the auxiliary expressed their thanks to the community for helping make their Poppy Day successful. Proceeds are used for the needs of hospitalized veterans.

Russell Asks For Firing of Police Chief

A pot which has been heating up for several weeks boiled over Tuesday night when city councilman Vernon Russell publicly asked for the firing of police chief Robert Evers.

Russell read from a letter he sent to city administrator Fred Brink which asked him to discharge Evers, hired this summer to replace former chief Vern Fairchild.

Russell said Evers has repeatedly exceeded his authority as chief without first consulting the city council, has repeatedly refused suggestions and directives from the council or the welfare committee, and has been spending and using personnel within his department excessively.

The first four charges in the letter are exactly the same as were used against Fairchild when he was fired by Mayor Kent Hall earlier this year, according to Russell.

Brink said he would not recommend firing Evers because he has not held his position long enough to adequately study how the police department is being run. Brink has been city administrator about six weeks.

The council sided 6-2 to give Evers a vote of confidence after Russell read his letter.

In favor of the vote of confidence were Frank Prather, Pat Gross, Jim Thomas, Darrel Fueberth, Keith Mosley and Harvey Brasch. Ivan Beeks sided with Russell in voting against it.

Shortage of Fuel Is Major Topic for City Councilmen

Fuel for Wayne's electrical generating plant — or rather the lack of it — was the major subject covered in Tuesday night's council meeting.

Councilmen spent considerable time on the problem while an NBC TV crew filmed the activities for possible use in a nationally televised news story about Wayne's fuel crunch.

The fuel shortage has already passed the headache stage and has moved a step or two closer to becoming a full blown crisis, according to a city official.

"I would say we're in a crisis situation, and if there is a cold wave, we're in trouble," city administrator Fred Brink told the councilmen.

He said the city has only about a four-day supply of diesel fuel, about 29,000 gallons, in its storage tanks. On very cold days when the power plant is shut off natural gas, the plant will burn close to 7,000 gallons of diesel fuel a day, he explained.

The storage is that low this early in November — 29,000 gallons is less than half the city's allocation for this month because the city this month had been supplied natural gas to power the generating engines for only about eight hours up to last Saturday. The engines have been burning natural gas since then, however.

Brink said the decision to turn off almost all the street lights in the city as well as all park lights should have brought home to local residents the seriousness of the problem.

The seriousness has at least struck local businessmen. The Wayne Retail Association and the retail committee of the Chamber of Commerce have passed a resolution urging local businessmen to conserve fuel and electricity in a number of ways.

The council Tuesday night gave its full support to that resolution.

Councilmen agreed there is going to have to be considerable support for fuel and electricity conservation from private citizens and businessmen as well as school and college officials.

They agreed also that motorists are going to have to drive with extreme care at night if the city is to get by its brownout without car-pedestrian accidents.

"I think they (local citizens) will accept the street lights being turned off," said councilman Jim Thomas, "but what worries me is all the kids out in the dark streets."

Brink told the council there should be no problems in police protection during the period the street lights remain off. Patrols have been increased and lights necessary for the safety of citizens and businesses have been left on, he said.

Along a similar line, council voted in favor of purchasing natural gas at a higher rate than normal if it becomes available during the winter. Winter service gas may be available between Nov. 27 and March 27, noted Keith Mosley, councilman and manager of Peoples Natural Gas Co. in Wayne.

In other action, the council decided against giving a letter of commitment concerning water and sewer service for the land purchased by owners of a Fremont-based company which reportedly will move to Wayne.

Owners of the firm, which makes fiberglass bathtubs and shower stalls, say they need the commitment before they can progress further with such things as building plans, according to city attorney John Addison, one of the promoters of a drive to raise investment capital to entice the firm here.

Council refused to okay the letter after several members objected because details about how much the industry would be charged had not been worked out.

Councilmen were to meet yesterday to try to work out those details.

Addison's request for the letter prompted discussion of the cost of providing utilities to a plot of land east of the city which councilmen are considering purchasing from Wayne

Lights Flicker Off, Thermostats Go Down

Wayne Has What City Officials Are Calling A 'Serious' Fuel Shortage

And Here's What Some People Are Doing About It

City officials have taken the following steps to conserve fuel burned to generate electricity at the municipal power plant:

- Ordered employees to turn off all lights in the city's parks.
- Ordered employees to double the majority of street lights in the city, including those on main street. Only those lights necessary for the safety of residents and businesses are to remain on.
- Approved a resolution passed by the local retail association and the retail committee of the Chamber of Commerce which urges voluntary curtailment of business activity.
- Agreed to share cost of advertising with the Chamber to make the public aware of the dangerous shortage of diesel fuel.
- Agreed to purchase natural gas at a higher price if available this winter.

See CITY, page 8

Action to conserve fuel locally has been taken by the Wayne Retail Association and the retail committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

That action is in the form of a resolution which calls for:

- Closing of businesses on the evenings of Nov. 27 and 30, evenings the stores would normally be open.
- Cutting back by one-half the number of store lights on during hours of least activity.
- Turning off lights in display windows when stores are closed.
- Lowering thermostats to 68-70 degrees.
- Closing of businesses at 8:45 on evenings they are open.
- During January and February, opening at 9:30 a.m. and closing at 5 p.m. on days stores aren't open in the evenings.
- Adjusting evening closing hours during winter.

See BUSINESSES, page 8

The schools and Wayne State College have taken a variety of measures to reduce their use of electricity and heating fuel.

Among the most unique are those taken by St. Mary's Catholic School. Those steps:

- Setting up four "stations" in the city so students can go there each day to meet with teachers, get assignments, pick up tape recordings for classwork and the like in case the school is ever forced to close.
- Holding mass each day except Saturday night and Sunday morning in the school to save heating the church.
- Using the church only on Saturday nights and Sundays, and turning the thermostat there down to 66 degrees when in use, 54 when not in use.
- Instructing students on their moral obligation to help conserve natural resources.

Herald Feature: Stretching Your Food Dollars

Third in A Series

'It's Not Hard to Lower Grocery Tabs'

By ETHEL DIEDRICHSEN and Dr. WILLIE FORD, UN-L Food and Nutrition Specialists

With food prices higher than they were a year ago, the family food shopper needs to shop carefully to get her money's worth.

Food prices go up or down for many reasons. Some are physical like the weather, some are economic like labor costs and some are due to merchandising practices like weekend sales.

Money is the resource most often considered when shopping, but time, effort and nutrition are also important. Keeping your family well and happy while stretching the dollar is relatively simple.

items you don't need. Arrange the items by categories to save time and back-tracking.

Compare meat prices according to the price per serving, rather than price per pound. If freezer space permits, buy larger quantities.

READ THE LABELS. They contain information about weight, size, ingredients, servings and cup measure. Store brands frequently offer equal quality and are often less expensive. But, if the family doesn't like the flavor or texture of the least expensive brand and does not enjoy it, a more expensive brand may be a better buy.

Use judgment in selecting convenience foods. Consider how much you want to pay for service, and compare flavor, quality and time saved in using prepared foods and those you prepare yourself.

nutritional value is likely to be lost as the quality declines and waste is likely to be greater.

If you prepare food so nutrients are conserved and the family eats and enjoys the food, the money will be well spent.

A diet is judged as good or bad depending on the nutrients provided. Certain nutrients are generally accepted as being most important in the diet, so the idea is to use the less expensive foods that are good sources of particular nutrients.

WE ARE calorie conscious, and calories, even though not nutrients, are necessary for energy. The inexpensive sources of energy include cereal products, dried legumes, some fats and oils, potatoes and peanut butter.

Other nutrients and some inexpensive ways to fulfill them are:

- FOR CALCIUM: milk (dried skim milk), ice milk, green leafy vegetables, legumes and whole grain cereals.
- FOR IRON: organ meats, dried legumes, eggs, potatoes, sweet potatoes, prunes, less tender cuts of meat and cereals.
- FOR VITAMIN A: dark green and yellow vegetables, organ meats, fortified skim milk and spreads, and canned tomatoes.
- FOR VITAMIN C: canned and frozen citrus fruit juices, canned tomatoes, fresh cabbage, leafy vegetables and potatoes.
- FOR THIAMINE: dried legumes, organ meats, inexpensive cuts of pork, cereals and potatoes.

- FOR NIACIN: dried legumes, peanuts and peanut butter, cereals, canned fish and leafy vegetables.

Bethany Presbyterian Church Is 85 Years Old

The 85th anniversary of the Bethany Presbyterian Church at rural Carroll will be observed during 10 a.m. morning worship services this Sunday, according to the Rev. Gail Axen.

No special program or dinner has been planned for the day. Bethany Presbyterian Church had its origin in a Welsh Sunday School which was organized in 1884 by early Welsh pioneers who settled that area of Wayne County.

Among the first to arrive were the Thomas James, Henry Evans and John R. Morris families, followed by the William M. James, W. I. James and Rowland James families. They were soon joined by others and made up the first church known as the Welsh Calvinistic Methodist Church, one of the smaller branches of the Reformed Faith.

First Sunday school and worship services were held in the Elmer Jones home. A frame building was erected at a cost of $1,713.24 in 1891, and the present building was put up in 1918 at a cost of $20,000.

In 1919 the entire denomination voted to become a part of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., and the Carroll church became known as Bethany Presbyterian Church of Carroll.

For some years all services were conducted in the Welsh language. Later both Welsh and English were used and gradually the Welsh disappeared entirely from the services.

The Rev. Gail Axen presently serves both the Bethany Church and the nearby Zion Congregational Church.

No Mistake About Good Buys!

Our apologies to members of the Wayne Hospital Auxiliary who were misidentified on the Monday issue of the paper. The mistake came as the result of two out of three photographs being inadvertently turned around in the paper.

There's no mistake, however, about the beautiful gift items and tasty treats being prepared for the auxiliary's annual fall bazaar, to be held Saturday at the city auditorium.

As in past years, women of the community are spending long hours in their kitchens, turning out hundreds of pounds of homemade candies and cookies. The midnight oil is burning over many a sewing machine to put last minute touches to gift items, and glue bottles and packets of sequins have turned many a dining room table into Santa's workshop.

Some bazaar goers will be attracted to the white elephant table, and for the gambler there will be grab bags. Others will appreciate the house plants which have been donated.

And everyone who is shopping at the bazaar will be tempted by the aroma of coffee, sandwiches, soup and desserts to stay for lunch or at least a snack.

Bazaar doors will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Proceeds from the annual bazaar are used to buy equipment for the local hospital.

(For those of you who are still wondering who was who, Mrs. Gordon Nuernberger was in the picture on the left, Mrs. Robert Benthack and Mrs. K. N. Olds were pictured in the center, and Mrs. Don Kerl was in the photograph on the right.)

6 Area Football Players Named to West Husker All-Conference Teams

Three local and three area high school football players are on the 1973 West Husker All-Conference football team.

Leading the way for the Wayne High Blue Devils are two named to the team a year ago, Mike Dunklau, and Kerry Jech. Both seniors take the linemen's chores, Jech as a guard and Dunklau as a tackle on offense.

But Mike earns himself another honor by being the only member of the Wayne team to be on the defensive team. The 205-pound lineman led the Devils' defensive charts with 124 takedowns. Jech came in second with 87.

Junior Marty Hansen was the other team selection, filling in at one of three running back slots. The runningback quarterback piled up 1,284 total yards this year — 749 rushing, 317 pass receiving and 218 passing.

Wakefield High's top quarterback, senior Doug Soderberg, won that position on the 1973 squad with his 1,283 total yards for the season.

Soderberg rifled 78 completions out of 140 attempts for 1,032 yards and 56 per cent. In rushing he had 251 yards — the majority of which came in the last three games when he scored eight of the team's nine touchdowns.

End Keith Siebrandt was the second Trojan to make the offensive list. The senior caught 30 passes for 531 yards and scored three touchdowns. "I would say that Keith was the best receiver in the league,"

Doug Fischer was the lone Wakefield player making the squad on defense, taking one of the halfback positions.

Fischer repeats this year on the all-conference team because of his exceptional defensive ability, Torczon said.

The 5-8, 145-pound senior was among the leaders in Wakefield's defense with 102 tackles and two fumble recoveries. He also had five interceptions and one blocked punt.

Columbus Lakeview's Fred Kobza was the conference's coach of the year award after directing his crew to the West Husker championship.

Wayne Senior Featured in Coaches Manual

A Wayne High football player is featured in this autumn's edition of Coaching Across Nebraska.

Senior Terry Hasebrook "is one of those fellows who goes about his job on the Wayne High School football team without much fanfare," quotes the Nebraska Coaches Association publication, despite his handicap — malformed arms.

"It's a good example that athletics has room for persons with physical handicaps," the article goes on. A two-year letterman, Terry earned the kicking duty this year after taking a back seat to John Thavon of Thailand, an American Field Service student, last year.

Hasebrook, son of Esther Hasebrook of Wayne, said he's not bitter about taking second place to a one-year student at the school because he started kicking after accidentally taking the job away from someone else.

While retrieving the ball during warmups before a city recreation league game, Terry decided to boot the ball back to the regular kicker. Junior high coach Hank Overin spotted his kick and put Terry in the lineup that day.

This year the senior kickoff player proved to Wayne fans he is tops in his field with a 43-yard average in 28 boots for a total of 1,245 yards.

Besides his kicking performance, Hasebrook also showed fine defensive ability, especially in the homecoming game against Madison when he made six unassisted tackles.

Hansen Leads Devils In 7 of 11 Categories

Marty Hansen, Wayne High quarterback running back, led his team in seven of 11 categories, post-season football statistics show.

He placed first in total yardage, rushing, pass receiving, scoring, punt returns, kick off returns and interceptions.

Only categories he failed to top were passing, punts, kick offs and tackles.

Hansen led his offensive teammates with 1,284 total yards as well as in rushing, 749 yards in 129 carries for 5.8 yards average, and pass receiving, 317 yards in 13 completions.

He also scored the most points — 74 on 12 touchdowns and two extra point completions; led in punt return — 226 yards in 17 carries for a 13.3 average; was tops in kick off returns — six for 190 yards and a 33-yard average, and had the most interceptions — three.

Senior Mike Dunklau led the defensive unit with 124 tackles, outdistancing two senior stalwarts, Kerry Jech and Chuck Brockman, with 87 and 78 respectively.

Another senior, Bill Schwartz, was tops in passing, completing 19 out of 43 for 365 yards. Schwartz also was the leading punter with a 36.2 yard average. He punted 30 times for 1,087 yards.

In kickoffs, senior Terry Hasebrook was No. one with a 43 yard average, kicking 28 times for 1,245 yards.

Omaha to Hold Three Indoor Cycle Races

Three complete indoor motorcycle racing programs will be held at the Omaha Civic Auditorium to end the 1973 racing season for the Midwest.

AMA (American Motorcycle Association), the largest motorcycle racing association in the world, has sanctioned the Omaha meet for Saturday, at 8 p.m. followed by programs Sunday at 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. Each racing program will offer a 25-lap championship race.

Officials estimate over 100 top AMA riders will be competing for cash prizes and trophies, with many riders appearing for the first time in the Omaha building.

League Battles Highlight Area HS Football Season

The excitement of high school football league has settled down now after two area loops met Wednesday for conference titles.

West Point of the East Husker Conference was slated to meet Columbus Lakeview, West division winner, at 2 p.m. in Columbus for the Husker Conference championship.

West Point, 5-2 in league play and 7-2 overall, won its division Friday when Hooper-Logan View beat Tekamah-Herman 28-6 to shut out Scribner's chances of tying the Cadets for the lead. In the event of a tie, Scribner would have represented the league for the second year in a row since it beat West Point earlier this season.

Lakeview already had the West half title in its pocket. The Vikings just added a little insurance with 30-6 tromping over Hartington Cedar Catholic Friday night for a 7-1 record.

Over in the Lewis and Clark loop, the stage was set for Newcastle and Coleridge to tangle once again — this time for the LC conference title.

Two weeks ago both clubs met at Coleridge, and the Red Raiders took home a 21-18 win.

This time, though, the fighting grounds were at a neutral sight — Wayne State's Memorial Stadium.

Newcastle cinched the Lewis division Friday with a 13-6 conquest of Homer. Coleridge had already won its division.

Both clubs had about equal records going into Wednesday's game — the Bulldogs 7-2, the Red Raiders were 7-2-1.

The third area loop, Northeast Nebraska Conference, is all quiet this week. Plainview, the league leader during the majority of the season and now looking 10-0 Friday with a 36-21 win over third-place Neligh.

Winside, Allen Place Nine Players on L-C Dream Team

Winside and Allen High Schools placed second and third in the number of players on the Lewis and Clark All-Conference football teams this year.

The Wildcats had five players placed on the Clark division (Coleridge led with seven) and the Eagles had four named to the Lewis team — Newcastle and Ponca had seven and five.

First-year head coach Doug Barclay of Winside doesn't believe his team is second place in its division of the Lewis and Clark Conference standings, though. Three seniors, a junior and a sophomore graced the lineup, with all three Winside co-captains on the squad.

Seniors Larry Weible and Dan Bowers placed on the offensive squad, Doug Lage on the defense.

Not surprising to anyone is that Weible made this year's selection for the second year in a row. The speedy runningback erased six school records this year in helping to propel the Wildcats to second-place in the Clark division.

Among the records include: longest sprint from scrimmage — 85 yards; most points scored in single game — 20; single game rushing — 221; season rushing — 683; career rushing — 1,102, and career points — 50.

Lage was Winside's "main cog in our secondary defense," said Barclay. Lage was seldom beat in the pass defense and was one of the team's leading tacklers with 63 drops.

One of Winside's smallest linemen, Dan Bowers, proved his ability is taller than his stature through his consistent line plays. "We often run his side," Barclay pointed out, "because he was able to open big holes for us." The 5-10, 194 pounder is a three-year letterman.

Sophomore Bob Hoffman, another leading tackler on the Cat squad, had 73 tackles for the year. In addition, he had four interceptions, returned one blocked punt for a touchdown and recovered four fumbles.

"This is the first year for Bob at that position," Barclay noted, "and I think he's done a fantastic job."

Dwight Lienemann, a junior, rounds out the Winside players in the defensive lineup. During the season he played cornerback and proved to those outside running foes it's a dangerous area to run in.

"Dwight can take on anyone one-on-one," Barclay pointed out, "and beat them. He's good at stopping the around end plays, especially."

Allen High divided its four players evenly on the offense and defense. End Charlie Peters and center Neil Blohm won spots on the offense while Randy Lanser and Scott VonMinden were named to the defense.

Perhaps to some it is a surprise to see Allen's No. 1 quarterback VonMinden on the defensive unit. But according to coach Charles Haag, he's the best Eagle player in the secondary.

"I usually put Scott on the opponent's best receiver because I know he can stop the player from making the break-away scores," he said.

Three-year letterman Blohm, who was on the 1972 all-loop team, holds his own weight when it comes to filling the center position. Although the senior weighs in at only 160 on a 6-0 frame, Haag said he has done an excellent job in his three years at that spot.

The second member of the defense is Lanser, a senior. Also a three-year letterman, he is the second member to win a repeat on the Lewis All-Conference team. "Randy's another fine lineman that helped to break through the opponent's offense," Haag said.

End Charlie Peters, a senior, didn't set any school records this year but did add a potent pass attack to the Eagles' offense before injuries sidelined him late in the year.

"If he would have been in better shape during that last part of the season, our chances of taking the Lewis division would have been a lot better," Haag pointed out.

Both division selections differ in naming their players, with the Lewis loop selecting only 11 players — best backs and ends and only three interior linemen for the offense. On defense, 12 players were named.

Wakefield Gets Past First Night of Volleyball Action

Only one area girls volleyball team remained in the running at midweek in district high school play.

Wakefield High was scheduled to play Bancroft Wednesday night in the semi-final rounds after the Trojanette survived the third-round playoffs in district C-4 at Wakefield Tuesday.

Coach Ernie Kovar's girls, in a rather slugging first set, beat Walthill 15-7 before showing more spirit to defeat the Bluejay girls 15-4.

"I'm happy that we won," Kovar said, "even though it took us a while to get started."

Allen High, which also played at Wakefield, didn't fair as well, losing in two sets to Ponca, 15-3 and 15-6.

Ponca took charge in both matches, making the games come-from-behind attempts for the Eagle club.

In area play closer to home, Wayne High's girls moved into the semi-finals of district B-3 action at Hooper. Logan View Tuesday night but fell short to Fremont Bergan, 15-13, 7-15 and 15-12.

Monday night coach Mavis Dalton's girls beat the host team in two straight, 15-12, 15-4.

"Our girls really played hard last night (Tuesday)," she pointed out, noting her club's 5-7 overall record. Mrs. Dalton pointed out that Tuesday night's effort against Fremont displayed what the girls have been doing all year long — a team effort. Helping to lead that effort were seniors Deb Bodensiedt, Mary Ann Ginn and Susan Dorcey, who will be missed next year, the coach said.

Laurel High girls also found the road in district competition to be tough as the Bearettes went down to Crofton in the opening round of C-5 district play at Bloomfield.

The area team lost 9-15 and 12-15 for a 4-5 Northeast Nebraska Activity Conference record.

Patty Jensen and Denise Magnuson led team scoring with eight and seven points respectively.

Monday night coach Don Leighton's Winside girls finished the year with a 7-9 mark when Stanton handed the area club its final loss of the season.

Winside lost in the opening round 6-15 and 9-15 during district action at Battle Creek.

"This was the worst game of the whole year," Leighton commented. "The girls were just too tight. They couldn't relax. As a result they made mistakes they normally don't."

WAKEFIELD HIGH'S Cindy Keagle, right, battles it out with a Walthill player during the first night of the district high school girls volleyball tournament at Wakefield. The Trojans won both sets to advance into the semi-finals Wednesday night.

Athlete of the Week

DOUG SODERBERG, WAKEFIELD HIGH SCHOOL

A quarterback is the player in charge of running a team's offense, and if he makes the team click by scoring most of the touchdowns in one game, he receives praise as an outstanding player.

But if he does it twice in a row, he boosts his chances of being named the Herald's Athlete of the Week.

Doug Soderberg of Wakefield did just that, directing his club to two successive wins through his running ability and passing arm.

The senior Trojan Friday threw two touchdown tosses and had a one yard TD run during Wakefield's 25-9 victory over Lyons. The week before he ran for three scores and threw a 27-yard aerial for a TD and a 26-0 blanking of Emerson-Hubbard.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Soderberg of Wakefield, he displayed real leadership in the game against Emerson, coach John Torczon said. In that game he threw seven completions in 12 tries for 102 yards. Soderberg surpassed that mark Friday, hitting on 13 of 30 passes for 177 yards.

"He's done a fantastic job this year," Torczon pointed out. To back up Torczon's convictions about his No. one signal caller, the West Husker selected him to the first team of the West Husker All-Conference team.

The senior's credentials make the selection even more convincing. For the year he has totaled 1,032 yards in 78 of 140 pass attempts — about 56 per cent. Also, he has scored eight touchdowns and one two-point conversion.

'NebGuide,' 'Handbook' Available

Don Spitze, Wayne County agricultural agent, said the NebGuides have been available through his office since about the middle of the summer.

He urged farmers to request copies or to put on a mailing list so they can receive each new information sheet.

He also noted that the Great Plains Beef Cattle Feeding Handbook is available to cattle feeders in the county.

The handbook is similar to the NebGuides, he said, except that it is aimed directly at cattle feeders.

Contained in the handbook is some very useful information which could help cattle feeders improve their operation, he noted. Among subjects already covered in the handbook are nutrition, feed preparation and storage, animal health, feedlot management and waste management, he said.

Both of these publications contain some real good information for farmers and feeders, but they aren't doing any good setting in our office," he noted.

Prong-horned antelope have excellent long range vision. Their eyesight is roughly comparable to that of a man looking through eight-power binoculars.

WHAT IS THE possibility of a girls professional basketball league becoming a reality?

For Elvera "Peps" Neuman, the likelihood is very possible — say within the next five to 10 years.

"Peps," a member of the Arkansas Gems girls basketball team, speculated last week during a game in Wayne that professional girls basketball, similar to the National Basketball League, could very well become a reality with the increase of girls participation in sports.

The Eden Valley, Minn., native bases her theory on the fact that more and more girls are becoming involved in sports. "I think the one thing that has really got a lot of girls interested is the Billie Jean King-Bobby Riggs tennis match," she pointed out.

Peps, not claiming to be a feminist or a woman's libber, explains that the match may have proved to a lot of would-be girl professionals that they can compete against men and win.

Neuman pointed out that her six-girl team is considered professional not only because they earn their living playing basketball but because they have the professional quality and ability.

In order for a girl to become a member of the Arkansas Gems, she must tryout in a fall camp at Minnesota. "Some of the girls who try out for the team may think the camp is a fun time. But we emphasize good ball handling plus the ability to play basketball as a part of the tryout program," she said.

"Peps" noted that her organization also has scouts that tour the country looking for prospects to play on the team.

The Arkansas Gems, which have been in existence 10 years, is the second of two teams fielded by Neuman.

"We formed the second team — the midwest club — about three years ago," she explained. There also is an east team, she added, noting that there isn't a west team because of the congestion in the western portion of the United States.

The teams play from 180 to 200 games during their six-month season (November to April) and cover about 60-70,000 miles a year. They play six to seven games a week and sometimes eight.

The mileage does take its toll, though, she said. "During some of our travels, the girls may meet some men, which sometimes results in Dan Cupid's take-over," she smiled.

As for "Peps," her current interest is basketball. "I never played high school basketball but I knew that's what I wanted to do when I grew up," she said.

Neuman set her mind on playing the game after she learned it from her older brothers. "Sometimes I would beat them," she pointed out.

THANK GOODNESS the football season is over with because I had a bad year trying to pick gridiron winners. My record: 24 right, 16 wrong for an average of 60 per cent. That rates an F grade in most class work.

All I can say is that I hope the average improves during basketball.

Right now it is a little early to tell how the five area high school teams are shaping up. In the next couple weeks I'll be taking a look at them and hope to give a complete rundown on the schools before the season starts in the first week of December.

Not to be forgotten is high school wrestling. The three W's — Wayne, Wakefield and Winside — are priming for their seasons, also slated to start in December. More about those teams in pre-season stories.

Names, Addresses Needed

Names and addresses are needed for The Wayne Herald's annual list of servicemen's addresses.

Names and addresses should be written out completely and mailed to or left at the newspaper office by Monday, Nov. 26, for use in the list. They will be printed in the Nov. 29th issue of the newspaper.

The list permits friends or relatives to send cards, letters or packages to those they know in the armed forces but who they lack addresses for.

Contributors are urged to make sure the names and addresses are submitted exactly as they are to be used on parcels being mailed.

NOTICE

The City of Wayne will receive bids for Cash Renting a parcel of land approximately 20 acres, located immediately south of the new fuel storage tank on Pearl Street. Bids will be accepted at the City Administrator's office, 220 Pearl St. until 12:00 o'clock noon, November 28, 1973.

$1 Million Cheese Plant Will Be Built at Laurel

William Norvell, president of the Laurel Development Corp., has announced that a cheese plant will be constructed in Laurel in the near future.

The plant will employ 15 to 20 persons plus additional milk haulers, he said. In the first stage of operations the plant will handle 150,000 pounds of Grade B milk per day, eventually building to 500,000 pounds daily. Bulk trucks will pick up milk from a four-state area.

According to owners Don Her-out and Joe Bales of Fremont, the plant site has been approved by cheese plant operator Joe Gruli of Darlington, Wis., and will be announced later. Bids will be let immediately for construction of the 100-foot by 200-foot steel structure. Entire cost of the overall operation set up has been estimated at $1 million.

A professional cheese maker has been contracted to oversee plant operations which include bulk distribution to area buyers. A variety of cheeses will be processed.

At the meeting, members voted to start a cleanup project in the town. The idea is to make it a city-wide cleanup campaign to beautify Carroll, Olauson pointed out.

Club members also voted to start organizing the Wayne-Carroll band booster program, slated for Dec. 10 in Carroll. Working on the committee will be Sandra Nelson, Sharon Serven, Ron Otte and Morris Sandahl.

The club's next meeting will be Jan. 11 at 7:30 a.m. in Ron's Bar Cafe.

Local Youth Bound Over to District Court

Nuss and two other Wayne youths were arrested in connection with the incident late this summer, but the other two were handled in court as juveniles and released on probation to their parents.

Another Wayne youth, Darrell Allvin, 17, had his felony charge of breaking and entering changed from regular court to juvenile court last week. He had been charged and placed on $500 bond following thefts at two local businesses late in July.

but have they stopped to think about what happens to that dollar they spend away from home? Part of it will go to support the schools, churches and public projects of the community in which that dollar was spent. All well and good. In addition, city officials have been attempting to purchase diesel fuel from companies other than the one the city has a contract with.
City officials have been in touch with state officials involved in allocating fuel to communities which run dangerously low this winter. The state people have said they will try to obtain for Wayne unused allocations — the fuel which towns would have been getting now if they hadn't quit generating their own power.
While checking those avenues, local officials are awaiting work to begin on construction of the line south of the city which will connect the city's power system with Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD). That connection would permit the city to purchase power from NPPD. However, the contract — which is still under negotiation — may not let the city purchase power simply because it runs out of fuel.

That line will take some five or six weeks to build, according to reports, and thus would not be completed until the end of December if not later. That is when the fuel problem becomes most serious, for natural gas is seldom available to the power plant during cold weather sources.

—Scheduling as many classes as possible on the south side of the school where rooms are warmest.
—Planning to give sermons in coming weeks on the need for everybody to help conserve.
—Switching off unnecessary lights inside and outside the church and school.
Wayne Carroll school officials have approved the following:
—Lowering thermostats to 66-68 degrees during the school day and 50-60 during periods when there is no school.
—Urging pooling of transportation to school activities.
—Ordered evening school activities to be kept at a minimum.
—Ordering drivers of school vehicles not to exceed 50 miles per hour.
—Urging common sense measures such as keeping windows open only for ventilation and turning lights off wherever possible.
And as a humorous step:
—Urging "everyone to keep cool during this crisis."
College officials have taken the following steps:
—Reducing speeds of state vehicles to 50 miles per hour.
—Shutting off lights at the tennis courts.

—Switching off machinery and other equipment wherever possible.
—Cutting back on the number of street lights left on in the evenings.
—Reducing lights in halls up to 50 per cent, shutting off lights in classrooms not in use and cutting back in lighting throughout the buildings.
Other steps are being considered by college officials and may be adopted within the next few days, a college official noted.

instance — so the generating engines can keep running in the middle of the winter, he added.
According to Magdanz, the city could possibly save as much as 10 per cent of its fuel by conserving where possible and getting public support. That 10 per cent could amount to about 700 gallons a day, he told Briggs.

THE NEWS STORY which will be aired by NBC will be only about two minutes in length, according to Briggs. Close to two hours of film were shot for the story, he said.
Filming for the story were three other Chicago bureau men — camera man Randy Birch, sound technician Steve Skvarovina and lighting technician Hal Hoick.

industries and turning into an industrial park.
Cost of that project could run as high as $367,000, according to councilman Pat Gross. He noted, however, that running sewer and water lines to that piece of ground could serve close to three times as large an area as the city is considering purchasing.
Mayor Hall emphasized to the council that it doesn't matter if the city or an industrial group owns the land. "Some day we're going to have to run utilities out there," he said.
Several new businesses have been built on the east edge of the city in the past few months, and another industry is reportedly interested in locating there.
Council also:
—Tabled 6-2 (Beeks and Prather voting in opposition) the proposed ordinance which would put a limit on the number of bottle club licenses which could be issued in the city.
—Approved on a 6-2 vote (Harvey Brasch and Gross voting in opposition) to permit the state to put left-turn lanes at the corners of Second and Third on Main Street. Voting in favor of the lanes were Mosley, Thomas, Frank Prather, Darrel Fuelberth, Vernon Russell and Ivan Beeks. Mayor Hall noted that the lanes do not have to be permanent if the council feels they are undesirable.
—Approved 6-2 Hall's appointment of Julie Hagemann, 19, as a police officer with authority to issue non-moving traffic violations. Voting against her appointment were Beeks and Russell.
—Tabled discussion of purchasing a radio beacon for the municipal airport. The beacon, used for locating the airport in low visibility, would cost about $500 initially and would require a $50 monthly fee for its use.
—Tabled action on approving Richard Wozniak and Associates of Fremont as the city's planning consultant for another

DEAN METZ and Wes Fritz watch Dr. J. S. Johar demonstrate spectroscopy technique acquired at a science institute last summer. All three were accepted for special summer studies, in competition with hundreds of applicants.

3 WSC Scientists Chosen Among Hundreds Trying

Three physical science instructors at Wayne State achieved distinction last summer in competition with hundreds of other scientists.
Dr. J. S. Johar, Wes Fritz and Dean Metz applied for three summer institutes, and all three were accepted.
Said Dr. Russell Rasmussen, chairman of the Physical Science Department, "This is indeed noteworthy to have three successful applicants from the entire college, let alone three from one area in one department. Competition for admission was fierce — between 600 and 1,000 applicants for each institute."
Dr. Johar participated in the institute on "Chemical Applications of Photoelectron and Auger Spectroscopies" conducted by the National Science Foundation at the University of Tennessee.
Fritz went to the "Chemical Concepts in the Health Sciences" institute, another NSF project, at Fairleigh Dickinson University, Teaneck, N. J.
Metz attended the institute on "Energy Sources of the Future," conducted by the Atomic Energy Commission at Oak Ridge, Tenn.
Dr. Rasmussen said, "The

As Predicted, WSC Concert Was Unusual

Different, that was the word for a concert presented Tuesday night by the Wayne State choir and madrigal singers. Director Cornell Runestad predicted it would be unusual — and proved it.

Titled "The Accessible Avant Garde Contemporary Music for High School Choirs," the concert demonstrated what is possible when the spoken word, whispers, claps and electronic sounds blended to convey a message. All the numbers were contemporary in the 20th century. Some expounded solemn themes with lyrics from renowned poets and the Bible. Some took a humorous view of life. In comments to the audience of about 300 in Ramsey Theater, Dr. Runestad observed that modern music of this century often is full of humor — a radical change from 19th century music which, he said, was "terribly solemn."

The choir's performance served as a dress rehearsal for another appearance Saturday at Fremont. WSC vocalists will do it for the state convention of the Nebraska Music Educators Association — with several high school music directors attending. "It is an opportunity for us to show the directors what is possible for high school singers," Dr. Runestad said. "We are delighted with the chance to perform."

Morning Fire Near Winside Causes Damage

The Winside fire department was called to the John Asmus farm early Wednesday morning where a garage containing tools, a set of mud tires and other articles was burning. Weeds had been burned in a field the day before and during the night the fire crept across a ditch and down around the farm buildings, according to reports. The Asmuses noted no smoke when they returned home from a birthday party about midnight.

The fire was first spotted by Gary Kant of Winside when he drove by about 6 a.m. He awakened the family and with neighbors Alvin Bargstadt and Wayne Denklau, carried water while Mrs. Asmus called the fire department.

The heat flattened two front tires of a tractor which was sitting near the garage and caused one of two nearby fuel tanks to bulge and spring a leak. Firemen said the leak probably kept the tank from exploding. The fire was under control by 8:30 a.m. The loss was partially covered by insurance, but no estimate of the amount of damage was given.

Everybody Loves A Parade

THEY SAY THAT everybody loves a parade... especially when the weather is just right and there are lots of pretty girls dressed up in bright, colorful uniforms. There was plenty of both Sunday during the Veteran's Day parade in Wayne. Leading the Wayne State marching band (above) are Wildkittens Debra Gana and Denise Edelmair and drum majorette Cynthia Haase, from right. Marching in front of the Wayne High band (above left) are, from left, Ann Ellis, Jean Proett, Nancy Backstrom and Marj Lundstrom. Standing at parade rest during the talk of Val Peterson (lower left) are color guard members Roy Sommerfeld, Jean Nuss and Dick Dion, from left. Peterson, former three term Nebraska governor and U.S. ambassador to Denmark and Finland, told parade watchers that America must remain strong militarily to help guarantee peace in the world. He admitted that America has made mistakes in the past and continues making them today, but that doesn't mean the nation is not a great one. "We're not perfect, but we are still the best there is," he noted. He praised this nation's record after World War II when America stooped to help its enemies, Germany and Japan, to recover after their devastating losses in the war. No other country can point to that kind of record in its history, he said. Peterson was recently appointed distinguished professor of political science and public affairs at Wayne State College. He is also resource coordinator for Congressman Charles Thone.

Tradition, Honor Now Part Of NCA All-Star Basketball

After five years of helping to run the Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star Basketball Game, Larry Fauss believes the whole attempt has been worth it. "We've accomplished quite a bit since the first all-star game in 1969," he told members of Wayne Kiwanis Monday. "The players, coaches and even those who attend the game now are looking forward to the annual event."

Fauss commented, noting that he hopes the program continues in the future with even more success. The Lincoln resident, who works for Central Telephone and Utilities Co., said there seems to be little if any problem with the players. "The 24 players are selected by a panel of 17 high school coaches, so it does become an honor to make the selections."

"One thing that really impressed me," he said during the luncheon, "was the desire of the kids to play in the game." Fauss cited an example this year when one of the players for the North team could not accept the invitation to play. "I immediately got hold of Mark Murphy's parents from Neligh who in turn got hold of Mark in Houston, Tex. The boy was so enthusiastic about playing on the team that he took a flight home and was at Wayne State's Rice Auditorium — home for the North squad — the next day for workouts."

LARRY FAUSS

Fauss, publicity director for the NCA, noted that the Wayne community and the college have made the North All-Star camp a great place to practice. "The people up here are friendly and willing to help you out if you need it," he said. This year for the first time both the North and South camps staged mini-camps for youngsters in grades nine through 12, Fauss pointed out. It was the coaches and players who are thanking Wayne and Kearney communities for hosting the camps. "This worked out very well."

Wayne Youths On Honor List At Milford

Two young people from Wayne, Jerry Brasch and Jon Retwisch, have been named to the Dean's List for the summer quarter of 1973 at Southeastern Nebraska Technical Community College at Milford. A grade point average of 9.0 (B) must be achieved on a 12.0 scale to be included on the Dean's List. A total of 150 students were named to the Dean's List for the summer quarter. There were a total of 776 full-time day students at the school during that period. Parents of the two Wayne natives are Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Brasch and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Retwisch.

State Official Urges Motorists to Prepare For Winter Driving

Nebraska motorists are reminded that it's time to get their cars ready for the winter driving months ahead. Because of today's concern about fuel conservation, a pre-winter engine tune-up is doubly important this year, according to Tom Ryan, supervisor of the state's Accident Records Bureau. "While we have always recommended pre-winter tune-ups for safety and convenience, it makes more sense now than ever before since a properly tuned engine runs more efficiently and gives better gas mileage," Ryan said. "First have your engine tuned by a competent mechanic — including inspection of the electrical system as well as the emission control devices on late model cars. This should help assure dependable starting in sub-zero weather, low fuel consumption and fewer stalls in traffic," he explained. After the basic tune-up, he pointed out, it is even more important from a safety standpoint to do the following: —Fix poorly adjusted brakes; they are serious at any time of the year and can be especially hazardous on slippery pavements. —Make sure all lights — headlights, tail-lights, stop lights and turn signal indicators — are working properly; clean them frequently during inclement weather. —Check tires for tire depth and uneven wear. Good treads are especially important when pavements are slippery. Snow tires are helpful for pulling through snow, but they offer no advantage over regular tires for stopping on icy pavements. Studded snow tires provide better stopping ability on ice. Tests show that reinforced tire chains provide the most traction for pulling through deep snow or driving on glare ice. Have a set in the trunk and be ready to use them, advised Ryan. The heater and defroster system needs to operate at peak performance to keep the windshield free of ice, fog, and frost, he adds, and streaking wiper blades should be replaced and windshield washers should be filled with adequate anti-freeze solution to prevent icing. Have the entire exhaust system checked for leaks the next time your car is in for servicing, he said, because carbon monoxide is deadly. "After your car is ready for winter, the rest is up to you. Safe winter driving requires a little extra from the motorist. Slower speeds, extra care and common sense will go a long way toward reducing the added hazards of the winter season," Ryan concluded.

he said. Of course there are a few rules the boys must go by first if they want to play, but that generally doesn't cause any problems, he added. Fauss listed no hair below the ears or collar as one ruling. Another rule is that a player is not allowed to play on the team if he has broken a law. "Surprisingly, we haven't had any problems as far as the hair restrictions go," Fauss noted. If a player doesn't want to abide by the rules he doesn't get to play, he said. Becoming a member of the team isn't just a matter of scoring points or following the rules. It also entails working with your teammates, Fauss noted. The coaches look at the rebounding charts first on a player's application and then at the number of assists before studying the number of points a player has scored, Fauss said. Although coaches submit the application forms to the NCA, the fans also can play an important part in the selection, he said. "They can encourage teamwork rather than divide the team by not backing the club when it happens to lose a game," he said. So far, the basketball game has been in the black financially three times. This mainly is because coaches have gone out and sold advance tickets, according to Fauss. "We have to keep up that same pace if we are to stay in the black," Fauss pointed out. During the games, the NCA has run into some problems, the main one being good newspaper coverage from the Omaha-Lincoln papers. Some people in Omaha believe that if their town doesn't have the majority of players on the rosters, the game isn't worth covering, he cited as one example. "We're trying to make the game a state-wide attraction, not just regional," he pointed out.

So They Said

"Western civilization and the American experience draw heavily upon the idea of ordered liberty as reflected in our law and politics. The freedoms which built our society derive from the recognition of the necessity for restraints upon political power and the insistence that only private, voluntary cooperation can build a sense of true community." — Dr. George Charles Roche III.

"Electricity is becoming an evermore important part," reports Circuit, a publication of the Utah Power & Light and The Western Colorado Power Companies, of medical research. According to an article in the Idaho Falls Post Register, scientists are just beginning to understand how electricity is used by the human body. The article says that fast bone healing, relief of spasmodic pains, drugless anesthesia, and electrical stimulation of paralyzed body parts may all be part of future uses of new knowledge of electricity."

Governor's race is becoming interesting

Capitol News.

Temperature is a risin' as Republicans start eyeing governor's chair

LINCOLN — The temperature is beginning to rise on the Republican side of the political stove. The Democratic action this fall has centered around the multitude of candidates interested in the lieutenant governor nomination, under the assumption that J. James Exon will be asking the voters for a second term as governor. But the big action for several weeks on the GOP side was the withdrawal of a pair of would-be Exon challengers. First, Dr. Vance Rogers, president of Nebraska Wesleyan University, and then former Republican State Chairman Milton Bish of Grand Island announced a decision to stay out of the race.

ALL ALONG, Senator Richard D. Marvel of Hastings has been mentioned as a possibility. Last week, Marvel indicated he is more than a possibility. He said he was serious, quite serious. He said he intends to cover as much of the state as he can prior to — and even during — the legislative session, where he will once again serve as chairman of the Budget Committee. As chief of the Legislature's fiscal staff and chairman of the committee which recommends how much state government should get to spend, Marvel is in a position to have inside information on how well the Exon administration is doing.

The senator said that is one of his strengths as a candidate, arguing that it is important that a governor have a thorough knowledge of how state government operates.

HE ALSO SAID he won't use his position in the Legislature to promote his candidacy.

"I can assure you that I'm not going to act any differently and I don't expect the staff to act any differently than we would if I weren't a candidate," he said.

Also still receiving lots of attention within the GOP ranks is Bill Galbraith of Beemer who has been working with the federal government since Clifford Hardin recruited him.

Galbraith now is the personal representative of Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, Hardin's successor at USDA, for the Midwest Region, with headquarters at Kansas City.

He has kept his official residence in Nebraska throughout his career in Washington and Kansas City.

GALBRAITH SAID he intends to return to Nebraska sometime and acknowledges that he has been encouraged by friends here to seek the governorship, but he said he isn't ready to discuss his plans publicly.

Frank Marsh, the last of the "other party" lieutenant governors, also is keeping his options open. Now that Nebraska's Constitution has been amended so a governor and lieutenant governor will run as a team with a single ballot "X" electing both, there won't be another situation like the present Democratic governor and Republican lieutenant governor.

Marsh said his options include a race for governor or treasurer. He said he hasn't decided which, but he does intend to seek some office in the 1974 elections.

Emergency Fund Studied

The Legislature's Revenue Committee is studying the emergency fund it leaves in the governor's hands after each session to take care of extraordinary expenses that might develop.

In recent years, it has been the practice to restore the fund to about the $500,000 level each year. But there was testimony during a committee hearing last week that the amount may have to be increased to something like $750,000.

The emergency fund money is doled out to local governments to help them over cash, crimps brought on by natural and other types of disasters.

Colonel Burl Johnson, deputy adjutant general, said federal disaster aid programs take over if the problems are large enough, but some emergencies are so localized the criteria for the federal programs aren't met.

Nevertheless, he said, the needs in the communities might be just as severe and the local government might be just as unable to pay for them.

New Department Proposed

A legislative committee is looking over a draft bill which would create a new department in state government.

Under the proposal, a department of telecommunications would be established, taking the responsibilities for telephone, radio and other communications, away from the State Department of Administrative Services.

Some version of the bill is likely to be introduced in 1974.

OBSERVATIONS

We're trying

Give us credit for trying to get a news story about the industry which reportedly will move into Wayne.

We've talked with the owners of the firm, but they want to wait until they get everything wrapped up before they release a story to the newspaper.

That's fine with us... except it makes us look like we don't know what's going on in the community. And that's not a good image for a newspaper to have.

We think we're safe in saying the industry, which makes fiberglass shower and bath fixtures for bathrooms, is coming to Wayne. We wish we could say more, but we're trying to stay on the good side of a new business. We're glad the owners decided to make Wayne their new home, and we wouldn't want to do anything to give them a poor impression of the town.

We hope to have a news story announcing the decision to locate the industry in Wayne in the next issue or the one after that.

That little item doesn't agree with your editorials'

WINSIDE

Dear Editor:

I think someone at The Wayne Herald has his lines crossed; in recent months it apparently has been the editorial policy of the paper to back higher education — particularly in the form of Wayne State College. For example, the contribution of $4,000 by local businessmen to aid the college in its recruitment program has been lauded editorially.

Yet in the November 8th issue of your paper, the following squib appeared on the editorial page:

New London, Ia., Journal
"An oldtimer said, the other day the number of intellectuals in this country is really going down... now that the draft has been called off. And isn't it funny how already the colleges are worrying about hard times?"

I am curious whether the editorial staff of the Herald shares this opinion on higher education.

One must assume that the inclusion of this article on the editorial page was for sardonic purposes, or it was a mistake. I trust the latter was the case.

SAYRE D. ANDERSEN

EDITOR'S NOTE: The squib mentioned appeared in the little editorial page feature titled "Grassroots Opinion." Its use on the editorial page was neither a sardonic stab at higher education nor a mistake. "Grassroots Opinion" appears regularly on the editorial page, offering us a chance to pass on to our readers opinions on a variety of subjects voiced by newspaper editors across the nation. Whether we agree with them or not is immaterial as far as we are concerned, and we have never screened the items to weed out those we disagree with. Quite simply, we think our readers enjoy sampling some of the things other editors are saying. Actually, only a small portion of each editorial page is devoted to opinions voiced by the editor. They are carried under the "Observations" heading. The rest of the page is left pretty much wide open for a variety of subject matter — opinions and ideas by our readers, religious thoughts, in-depth reporting on what's happening in the state legislature, tidbits from our files, glances at the history of our state, feature articles, editorial cartoons, a personal column and the like. We hope some of the material appeals to all of our readers. We know that some of the material will not be in line with what we have to say in "Observations." So much the better. For, as they say, that adds a little spice to our life.

WAY BACK WHEN

Buy a jar of honey

Residents throughout the Wayne area will be able to give a helping hand to retarded children while adding a little sweetness to their lives on Sunday.

The occasion is Honey Sunday, the day set aside annually for volunteers to go door to door selling jars of honey to raise money for mentally retarded Nebraskans.

More than 300 communities across the state are expected to participate in Sunday's fund raising effort. Thousands of volunteers representing local associations for retarded citizens, Jaycees, church youth groups and other organizations will be doing the legwork in selling the jars of honey. Proceeds go to assist local groups interested in improving the lives of the approximate 45,000 mentally retarded persons in Nebraska.

Unlike many fund drives, contributors to this one will get something in return for their donations. The effort is a worthwhile one. We urge area residents to buy a jar of honey when somebody comes knocking on Honey Sunday.

One more black eye

Well, Midwesterners got another black eye thanks to a school board at Drake, N. D.

The board ordered something close to a hundred books burned because some students and parents protested what they termed "obscene language."

Among the books: "Slaughterhouse Five" by Kurt Vonnegut Jr., "Deliverance" by James Dickey and "Short Story Masterpieces," an anthology of stories by such writers as Hemingway, Faulkner and Steinbeck.

Can't say we've ever read "Slaughterhouse Five," but we thought "Deliverance" was one fine book. And we're certainly not going to disparage the writing ability of such people as Hemingway, Faulkner and Steinbeck.

As usual in cases such as this, the board members displayed hidden depths in making their decision — they admitted they had not read any of the books.

There isn't much to say about this incident except that it's a sad state of affairs when a group which admits its provincialism can decide what books should be read by students. It would have been a little to their credit had the members of the school board taken the time to read the books to learn for themselves whether they are obscene. Not much, but a little bit.

"A story tells about a pair... who got the idea of bottling manure from an outfit out east and decided there's profit to be had in it. The product, used for house and garden plants, goes further than most commercial fertilizers already on the market, they say, and, believe it or not, they claim there is a market for it — with initial sales and orders coming in good. As far as I'm concerned, if somebody can make money this way, the more power to them. But, after seeing what they're getting for manure ($1.89 a gallon) and then considering the price of a gallon of milk, which requires a lot more work and expense (about $1.10) it arouses one's curiosity."

Thought for Today

By Rowan Wilts

"God gave us memories so we could have roses in December..."
James Matthew Barrie

Springtime can be eternal in the human heart if we only use our God-given gift... memory. When the free of life seems bare it is comforting to look back on greener days. Fortunately, time heals the wounds experienced along the way, and a backward glance in our twilight years tends to recall the pleasant experiences.

Even those disappointments which might be recalled are overshadowed by the realization that the bad times were inevitably followed by better days. Thus, our memories serve to make our later years a period of contentment.

Driver Escapes Injury

A RURAL WINSIDE woman escaped injury last Thursday when the car she was driving slammed into the side of the Carroll rural fire department building. Mrs. George Johnson said she was turning into the parking lot on the side of the building when her foot slipped off the brake pedal and the car hit the side of the building. Inside, Mrs. Marie Herrmann of Laurel, in charge of the Carroll senior citizens center, said she had moved the card club meeting to the opposite side of the building an hour before the mishap because "of the cold weather." As a result, no one inside was hurt. Damage to the building was extensive, however.

'NebGuide' for Farmers, Ranchers Offering Easy-to-Use Information

NebGuide, a system developed by the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service to disseminate useful information rapidly to farmers and ranchers, is off and running. NebGuide, in essence, is a filing system designed to organize in a standardized and easy-to-use format the ever-increasing flow of new and updated information supporting today's highly technical production agriculture.

Each NebGuide sheet, identified with a bright red heading and the official Nebraska Extension symbol, contains recommendations or other information from University of Nebraska-Lincoln scientists on one practice or problem to help farmers make management decisions.

The new series will supplant many of the extension circulars of varied sizes, shapes and complexity, making it possible to get out information fast and permit rapid revision when changing conditions dictate, an official noted. Planned for use in a loose leaf notebook with index and dividers, each NebGuide is limited to no more than four pages in length.

Grant Johnson, assistant extension editor in the NU Department of Agricultural Communications, said more than 60 NebGuides are either in the notebook or in some stage of production. "Hopefully," Johnson said, "within a couple of years the notebook will be filled with enough information that a farmer, rancher or county extension agent can quickly find the answer to most questions that arise in agricultural production, management and marketing."

The NebGuide concept is aimed at solving two problems: the difficulty of filing and quickly retrieving useful information, and the increasing costs of producing extension publications. The NebGuide one-package filing system and standardized sheets do away with costly art work and cut down on the time lag in getting new information into usable form, Johnson noted.

Dr. Earle S. Raun, associate director of the Nebraska Cooperative Extension Service, said feedback from extension boards, agents and farmer-rancher clients indicates enthusiastic response to NebGuide. Inquiries for the information in the NebGuide series are increasing in frequency as word of its availability spreads, he said.

The capability of NebGuide in getting recommendations based on research results and new developments in various agricultural fields into print and distributed rapidly is also encouraging to the agricultural scientists and extension specialists who provide such information.

NebGuides — the notebook, dividers and subsequent new sheets as produced — can be obtained through county extension offices, Johnson emphasized. While NebGuide titles will "cover the waterfront" in agricultural subject matter, home economics extension publications continue to be produced and handled as in the past, though NU home economists are considering a publication similar to NebGuide.

Hartington Girls, Dakota City Farmer Sweep Honors at NEN Pork Banquet

Two young girls from Hartington swept up the honors in the annual Northeast Nebraska

Pork Queen contest Sunday night at Coleridge. And a Dakota City farmer and his wife went home with the major award given out during the evening banquet, sponsored by the Northeast Nebraska Pork Producers Association.

Jeanne Milander, a senior at Hartington High, was named queen following an afternoon of competition with five other girls. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Milander, she replaces Wakefield's Judy Gustafson and will reign for the coming year.

Named runner-up in the contest was a junior at Hartington High, Robyn Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Smith.

Judging the girls in such areas as beauty, poise, speech presentation and personality were Cal Ward of Wayne, superintendent of the Northeast Station near Concord; Mrs. Lyle Hindley of Herman, mother of the 1971 Nebraska Pork Queen, and Thelma Boe of Madison, public relations director of the state pork association.

Also competing in the event were Marlene Jensen of Jackson, Mary Beth Sebade of Emerson, Lori Bremel of Randolph and Janelle Hassler of Dixon.

Winning the Pork Builder Award was John Kayl, a purebred Duroc producer near Dakota City.

Kayl, in the swine business for the past 12 years, has a 120-sow herd and farms about 600 acres, mostly in corn and soybeans. All the feed he uses is processed on his farm, including the soybean meal, which is extracted from raw soybeans in a special soybean cooker.

He is active in swine associations, serving as a director of the five county Northeast Nebraska association. He is a member of the state Duroc breeders association and a member of the national duroc association.

About 275 people turned out for the banquet, held at the community building in Coleridge.

Guest speaker for the evening was Joan Burney, wife of a cattle feeder near Hartington and a weekly newspaper columnist. Spicing her talk with humorous comments on her own personal life, she congratulated the swine producers on their attempts to get their message across to the millions of housewives across the nation.

Thirteen 4-H'ers received trophies during the evening. Those youths:

Jerry Johnson, Laurel, Cedar County; Rex Hansen, Wakefield, Wayne County; Annita Kay Fritschen, Concord, Dixon County; Floyd Beckmann, Rosalie, Thurston County, and LeLand Roeber, Emerson, Dakota County — for showing champion carcass hogs in county fairs; Jeanne Milander, Hartington, Cedar County; Annette Fritschen, Concord, Dixon County, and Rhonda Knesche, Wayne, Wayne County — for presenting top pork demonstrations at county fairs; Valerie Birkley, Hubbard, Dakota County; Karen and Sharon Kruse, Pender; Thurston County; Linda Anderson, Wayne, Wayne County, and Chris Rhodes, Concord, Dixon

NEW QUEEN of the Northeast Nebraska Pork Producers Association is Jeanne Milander. Named runner-up was Robyn Smith, left.

County — for being top girl swine showmen at county fairs.

Giving out those trophies were the association and the Northeast Nebraska Porkettes, the women's division of the association.

Also receiving trophies and prize money were the top carcass exhibitors at the Laurel Hog Show earlier this year.

In the purebred carcass contest they were Pat Finn, Carroll, first; Mike and Al Finn, Carroll, second; Robert Hansen, Wakefield, third and fourth; Edgar Bruening, Hartington, fifth and sixth; Bill McQuistan, Pender, seventh. In commercial carcass contest they were LeRoy Wolfe, Hartington, first and third; Ronnie Wenstrand, Wakefield, second; Wallace Magnuson, Laurel, fourth and seventh; Rodney Sondersop, Emerson, fifth and sixth; Rolife Longe, Wayne, eighth; Kathy Gustafson, Wakefield, ninth, and Judy Gustafson, Wakefield, 10th.

THE HOPE
At this time of year many people are discussing our harvest of beans and corn. What many of us don't stop to realize is that Wayne County's most important "crop" is our boys and girls. It is our hope that through the homes, schools, churches and volunteer youth organizations, such as 4-H, that this "crop" of young people will continue to be one we can be proud of.

LET'S TAKE A LOOK
The proof is in the pudding, so let's take a look at a couple of recent 4-H graduates.
Ranee Knesche of rural Wayne has had a long history of successful work in 4-H including foods, clothing and dairy, and she was recently chosen as a delegate to the National 4-H Dairy Conference at Madison, Wis.
Miss Knesche, who now is enrolled at the University of Nebraska in food technology, was a winner in the dairy division during the NU Block and Bridle Little Ak-Sar-Ben showmanship contest this year. I'm sure her work in 4-H has done much to shape her future career.

Another 4-H'er that has had a successful career in 4-H live stock is Jack Sievers, Jack, whose interest has been in cattle, recently won fifth place in the showmanship contest at Ak-Sar-Ben. This is quite an honor since the competition is keen at the world's largest youth livestock show.

Jack has enrolled in Northeast Nebraska Technical College at Norfolk this fall. After graduation, he hopes to return to the home farm south of Wakefield and raise cattle.
I recently attended a Mid-America Dairy Cooperative meeting at Norfolk. I invited as my guest Arlin Kittle, a 4-H dairyman from Winside who has won a number of honors with his dairy project. Arlin has another year of high school and then hopes to take some advanced schooling and return to the home dairy farm.
And we have 350 more just like them enrolled in Wayne County 4-H.

IT TAKES LEADERS
Records are of prime importance in any livestock project. John Anderson, Hi Raters 4-H club dairy leader, realizes this, so his club is offering a trophy to their member with the best set of dairy records.

John is just one of the more than sixty volunteer 4-H leaders in Wayne County. Sixty may seem like a lot of leaders, but it doesn't begin to meet the need.
Right now we have a club in Wayne that badly needs a live stock leader. I'm also looking for men leaders in Wayne to start 4-H clubs in rockets, photography, bicycling and entomology to name just a few and I'm always looking for leaders in home economic projects.
If anyone is interested, let me know and I'll help you get started in the project area of your choice. Double the number of leaders and we could easily double the number of young people being helped through 4-H.

Enough said.

READY FOR their names is this Pork Builder Award plaque, given to Mr. and Mrs. John Kayl of Dakota City Sunday night during the annual banquet of the Northeast Nebraska Pork Producers Association.

Road Structure Replaces Bridge
Controls 205 Acres Run-Off

The Land and Water Development Assistance Program of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District contributed about $1,100 toward the $4,000 bill for the structure. The $2,900 paid by the county is less than one-third the $10,000 estimation for a new bridge that would have been needed.

The road structure will provide grade stabilization upstream and controlled flow and flood control downstream plus livestock water and recreation possibilities with the conservation pool.

The road structure is a cooperative effort between the Cedar County Commissioners, the Cedar County Soil Conservation Service and Melvin Brunssen and Duane Coulter, landowners involved. The road structure was chosen as the alternative to a new bridge for economic reasons. The structure was built at a cost of less than 3 per cent of a new bridge. Maintenance costs are almost negligible and flood control downstream helps to extend the lifespan of other bridges on the same drainage.

If you know of other opportunities to replace bridges with road structures, please contact the Soil Conservation Service or the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District so that,

We Can All Get One Thing Clear, Our Water.

Conservation Work Is Tax Deductible

A sharp increase in farm commodity prices in 1973 plus generally good rainfall amounts have put Landowners and operators in better than usual economic positions this year. As a direct result, income tax obligations will be proportionately larger unless operating expenses and investments increase also.

By taking advantage of this opportunity for permanent land improvements, you can use those dollars that would ordinarily have been spent for taxes.

The Land and Water Development Assistance Program will assist with approximately 75 per cent of the cost of conservation measures and the remainder of the cost can be income tax dollars.

Tax Relief In Sight!

By taking advantage of this rather unique tax situation, profits that would otherwise have been income tax liabilities can now be invested in permanent land treatment practices.

The Land and Water Development Assistance Program of the Lower Elkhorn NRD will assist with approximately 75 per cent of the cost of permanent conservation practices and the remaining costs can be paid as tax deductible expenses or essentially conservation is FREE!

THAT'S LIKE HAVING YOUR CAKE AND EATING IT TOO!

Example:
1 mile of push-up terraces at 12.5 ft.	$660
Land and Water Development Funds from LENRD at 10 ft.	$28
	$132

Leaving $132 to be paid by the Landowners.

Income tax dollars may be invested in the preservation and improvement of our agricultural lands and reducing the sediment load and flood hazards for all of us.

First in State?

WAYNE NATIVE Gary Munson may have bagged the first deer in the state this season when he dropped this three-pointer 10 minutes after the season opened Saturday morning. Munson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Munson, filled out his license with his kill north of Newcastle. The deer field dressed out at 155 pounds. Munson now lives at Norfolk.

Seeding Grass May Help on 'Extra' Acres

With the elimination of the set-aside program, many farmers may find a shortage of both time and equipment to farm their extra acres, says William Yost, district soil conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service office in Wakefield.

With the current and extended market for feeder cattle looking favorable, a move to more grass could prove to be profitable, he noted. In addition, the move would result in better conservation of both soil and water.

What kind of grass is best? What are the seeding rates? These and similar questions can best be answered by knowing the soil type and slope of the seeding areas, says Yost. Soil Conservation Service offices will be of assistance in helping farmers in planning for additional pastureland, he adds.

Takes Part in Firm's Fly-In

for the information on the labels.

It is common-knowledge that smoking in bed is a dangerous practice. Statistics show that cigarettes cause more than 80 per cent of mattress fires. Noxious gases produced by the burning mattress cause suffocation deaths.

The "Mattress Flammability Standard" passed by the government is set to take effect this summer. Newly-made mattresses are required to carry the fire-retardant label. Mattresses made prior to the date on which the standard became effective can still be sold. However, they are required to have a warning label on them.

The new, safer mattresses will be priced $10 or more higher than the mattresses made prior to the fire-retardant standard, but that is an inexpensive life insurance.

Gary Pick of Logan Valley Implement in Wayne recently participated in the fly-in program presented by the farm equipment division of Hesston Corporation.

Pick flew to the corporate headquarters and manufacturing facilities at Hesston, Kan., accompanied by other Hesston dealers aboard one of the company's airplanes.

During his 24-hour visit, he viewed Hesston windrowers, forage harvesters, StakHand hay handling machines and other products on the assembly line. He also talked with engineers and product managers about the latest Hesston equipment.

Hesston Corporation distributes a complete line of farm equipment through dealers across the United States and Canada and through the company's overseas sales organization.

Among the Youngest

TOM NISSEN, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Nissen of rural Wayne, bagged his deer the first time he tried the sport. He shot his two-pointer over the weekend in Cedar County near the Missouri River. The buck field dressed out at 125 pounds. Deer season for rifle hunters opened Saturday.

FIRE SAFETY
The first step in reducing fire hazards of flammable fabrics in home furnishings came in 1970 when the government passed legislation to require flame retardant carpeting.
This label "Fire-Safe" should be on any new carpeting you buy. This means that it has passed the strict government testing and will not char more than three inches in any direction if, for example, a lit cigarette were dropped on it.
It is possible to buy fire-retardant ready-made draperies which are also durable and washable, thus removing another fire hazard possibility. Look

In 1926, a car was developed that washed clothes as it rode along.
