

Sheriff Is VP Pick of State Group

Wayne County sheriff Don Weible moved up to first vice president of the Nebraska Sheriffs and Peace Officers Association at the group's annual meeting in Kearney last week.

Weible, county sheriff here nearly 16 years, was second vice president last year.

He and other association officers were elected during the three-day convention which ended Tuesday. Named president was Anton Novak, sheriff at Perkins County.

Among the speakers during the affair was Gov. J. James Exon, who asked the group's feelings about lowering the speed limit in the state to help during the present fuel shortage.

The association passed a resolution supporting lowering the speed limit to 60 miles per hour and a resolution supporting capital punishment.

Banquet speaker during the meeting was James Young, past president of the National Sheriffs Association. He is now a sheriff at Richmond, Va.

Also attending the convention, the 79th annual one, were Dixon County sheriff, Dean Chase, and Thurston County sheriff Clyde Storie.

Meeting Set To Explain Scholarships

Parents of Wayne High School seniors will have the opportunity to have college, technical school financial aid and scholarship application procedures explained to them at a meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school lecture hall.

The federal financial aid sources will be explained as well as scholarships offered by colleges and technical schools, said school guidance counselor Ken Carlson. There are five federal aid programs available to parents of seniors as well as numerous scholarships for particular institutions of higher education. These particular scholarships will be discussed at the meeting as they apply to three schools in the area — Wayne State College, University of Nebraska at Lincoln and Northeast Nebraska Technical Community College at Norfolk.

Most of Wayne's graduating seniors who have plans for higher education enroll at one of these three institutions, Carlson noted.

Other entries included: "Growing town with country courtesy," "Not too big but great big," "A little town with a lot," "The town with get up and grow," "City living gone country," "Welcome to Carroll, home of many smiling faces," "Carroll, the cozy city," "You name it — we've got it."

'Courtesy Center' Top Entry in Slogan Contest

Carroll is the "Country Courtesy Center."

At least according to the new slogan to be painted on Carroll's new sign which will be installed on Highway 57 across from the town's street leading to the business district.

Friday morning the Carroll Community Club picked the winner out of 54 entries submitted during the two-week contest.

According to Betty Kavanaugh, a member of the selection committee, an anonymous person proposed the slogan.

Other entries included: "Growing town with country courtesy," "Not too big but great big," "A little town with a lot," "The town with get up and grow," "City living gone country," "Welcome to Carroll, home of many smiling faces," "Carroll, the cozy city," "You name it — we've got it."

Deadline Near for Addresses

Wayne area residents are reminded they have only a week to submit names of men and women in the armed forces for use in the newspaper's annual Christmas list of addresses.

Deadline for submitting addresses is Monday, Nov. 26. The list will be printed in the Nov. 29th issue of the newspaper, in time for people who know the servicemen to drop their cards, letters or gifts.

Those submitting names and addresses are urged to make sure that names are spelled correctly and addresses written out as they are to be used.

Catholics Invited To Meet Here Dec. 3

Catholics in the Wayne area have been invited to an open deanery meeting to discuss the preliminary agenda of the first Archdiocesan Pastoral Council (APC).

The meeting will be held on Monday, Dec. 3, from 8 to 10 p.m. at St. Mary's parish in Wayne.

The preliminary agenda for the APC covers four general areas — total education, personal renewal, institutional renewal and social action in the archdiocese of Omaha.

The APC, which will meet annually, will be the chief archdiocesan body assisting Archbishop Daniel E. Sheehan of Omaha in directing the activities of the church in Northeast Nebraska.

The council will meet for two days in April at Creighton University in Omaha. The APC will be in assembly form with approximately 400 delegates representing priests, religious, laymen, all parishes and organizations.

The Wayne meeting includes churches in Newcastle, Ponca, South Creek, Waterbury, Dixon, Willis, Jackson, Hubbard, Sixth Sioux City, Homer, Emerson, Winnebago, Pender, Walthill, Macy, Bancroft, Lyons and Decatur.

Burt Is on Committee Of Mid-Elkhorn COG

Floyd Burt, Wayne County commissioner from rural Winside, was re-elected as committee member of the Mid-Elkhorn Valley Council of Governments last week.

Other committee members named to serve additional terms at the annual general membership meeting in Norfolk were Henry Purdie of Pierce County, Orchard mayor Wayne Lautenschlager and Madison mayor Morris Moyer.

Officers of the executive committee were re-elected also. They are Norfolk mayor James Miller, president, and Newman Grove mayor Kenneth Hansen, secretary-treasurer. Named vice president was Orin Weatherholt, Stanton County commissioner.

Included in the evening program was introduction of the new staff administrator, Steven Martin of Norfolk. Martin's main function will be coordination of activities in the five-county area of Antelope, Madison, Pierce, Stanton and Wayne Counties.

Featured speaker was Larry Heeren from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in Omaha, who spoke on organization and funding of Councils of Governments. Kenneth Willey, deputy for plans and programs at the Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, commented on the Commission's policy which stresses regional correctional facilities.

Also on the program was Sid Magdanz of Consolidated Engineers and Architects, a consulting firm in Omaha. Magdanz emphasized the necessity for Councils of Governments to get together with consulting firms in initial planning phases.

Herald Feature: Stretching Your Food Dollars

Housewives Tell How They Save on Groceries

How do Nebraskans feel about the food prices today?

To find out, three Nebraska homemakers were interviewed concerning how they deal with the prices and what other consumers can do about them.

Mrs. Lee Swetland of Lincoln is the mother of eight children, four of whom are still at home. Mrs. Leonard Stehlik, Dorchester farm wife, is the mother of four teenage boys and one girl. And Mrs. Harvey Stoltzman, also of Lincoln, has two sons, one currently in medical school and the other interning in California.

All three housewives said their food budgets have changed with the changes in their families and as their children left home.

THE HOUSEWIVES said one of the biggest factors in dealing with high prices is attitude. Mrs. Stehlik told of a woman whose unemployed son called her last spring and was crying because he was so hungry for a steak. "If we can't have steak, eat eggs or textured vegetable protein (TVP) and hope for better days," she said, "rather than moan about the end of the rainbow we can't reach."

Mrs. Swetland said her family has cut out some foods and eats more fish, eggs and cheese for protein. She also bakes her own bread and uses dried skim milk.

The Stehlik family is big on desserts, so they have cut down in that area, she said. Instead of having cake and ice cream or peaches and cookies, they have only one at a meal.

COOKIES WITHOUT NUTS have also become common in the Dorchester home. Mrs. Stehlik said there are "ways to alter the budget to keep the expenditures in line with the capabilities."

"Anything you can cook yourself saves money," Mrs. Swetland said. Her family also saves money by using home-grown produce from their garden. Eating canned food in the winter saves at least half of what store-bought foods would cost, she said.

Mrs. Stehlik said housewives need to sharpen their awareness and weight priorities. She could save ten cents for a package of cereal by driving ten miles to the nearest supermarket. But if all of the 400 Dorchester residents quit patronizing the local grocery, "it wouldn't be there during harvest when we need to run in for lunch meats or donuts."

"IT'S WORTH the few cents to support the local grocer," Mrs. Stehlik said.

Mrs. Stoltzman said she believes economy shopping is established early in life or in a marriage. "It becomes a family affair and it is established with your youngsters, too."

"Once you are aware of ways to save money and you still pick ground beef rather than TVP, it is no one's fault but your own," Mrs. Stehlik said.

Nutrition is in the news today, and Mrs. Stehlik said she thought too much emphasis has been placed on protein. "People don't realize that after the first three or four ounces of protein, the rest is digested as carbohydrates, and carbohydrates can be secured in cheaper forms."

Mrs. Stoltzman was the only one of the three who said she operates on a budget for food. She also said the family operates on a strict budget for More HOUSEWIVES, page 5

Wayne Earns Safety Award

The city of Wayne has received an award for its excellent accident record at its waste water collection and treatment facility, reports city clerk Dan Sherry.

The award comes from the Nebraska Water Pollution Control Association, a branch of the American Water Pollution Control Association.

Sherry said there were no accidents recorded at the sewage lagoon during the past 12 months.

County offices will be closed all day Thanksgiving on Thursday and will remain closed on Friday, according to clerk Norris Weible.

Fire Cause Unknown

Cause of a fire which started late Thursday afternoon in a vacant house on East Sixth Street in Wayne is still undetermined, according to volunteer fire chief Cliff Pinkelman.

Pinkelman said the fire apparently started in a small closet underneath a stairway. Some paper was found in the closet, he noted, but the cause of the fire could not be determined.

The house was one of several scheduled to be torn down or removed within the next few days to make room for a new grocery store being built there. Considerable damage was done to the house.

Changing WS Name Would Honor Poet

Currently under consideration is the possibility of changing the name of Wayne State College to John G. Neihardt State College.

The change would honor the "most brilliant individual" who ever attended Wayne State, Nebraska poet laureate who died Nov. 3 at age 92.

Neihardt, internationally known for his poetry, attended Wayne State, then Nebraska Normal College, in the late 1890's, graduating in 1897 at the age of 16.

Val Peterson, former Nebraska governor, U. S. ambassador abroad and himself a Wayne State graduate, called Neihardt the most distinguished person ever to attend college here.

Presently, the idea of changing the name of the college is being considered by students, alumni, faculty, school administrators, the college's board of trustees and Wayne area residents.

It was discussed at a meeting at Wayne State last week.

Actually, the idea to change the name to honor Neihardt is not new, according to Charles Hepburn, chairman of Wayne State's social sciences department. The change had been considered for some time before Neihardt's death, he said, and was not a decision made after he died.

Lyle Seymour, acting president at WS, urged that opinions be sought from a variety of people before any action is taken on the name change.

Another meeting will be held in late December or early January to discuss the subject further.

A dormitory on the campus already bears Neihardt's name and a bust of the poet is in the college's Fine Arts Center.

Local Man 'Critical' After Wreck

Wayne businessman Carlyle Garvin remained in critical condition in a Sioux City hospital Saturday morning from injuries sustained in a traffic accident early Friday morning.

Garvin, 55, received severe chest injuries and facial cuts when the pickup he was driving skidded over the embankment at the junction of Highways 35 and 98 eight miles west of Wayne.

He was headed north on Highway 35 when he failed to stop for the stop sign and went over the embankment, according to the investigating officer. State patrolman Dave Headley said there were skid marks leading off the highway.

Garvin was found in the demolished pickup a few minutes before 5 a.m. by Emil Nelson of Norfolk, who investigated after seeing two reflector posts and two other posts broken off at the junction. Headley said it was lucky Nelson stopped to look around or Garvin may have suffered even more from the cold temperatures.

The Wayne ambulance took Garvin to the local hospital for preliminary examinations, then rushed him to St. Joseph's Hospital in Sioux City. He is in the hospital's intensive care unit, room 256.

Garvin owns GEC Weight Manufacturing Co., a sporting goods and manufacturing firm.

Allen will host the 1974 convention, to be held Nov. 11.

Guest editorial: Avoid a small town Watergate

By David L. Chambers
Editor, Nebraska Municipal Review

The local board can keep the people informed

It is difficult to write about the events of the day and not at some time mention or at least refer to the Watergate scandal. Because of the recent events in federal government, there is little doubt that people have lost some of their confidence in the federal government. This lack of confidence will probably filter down to the state level but probably won't be fully evident until after election time next year. There may even be some effect on government at the local level—the municipal level.

Our local officials do not deserve the kind of criticism our federal officials are receiving just because there is trouble in Washington. For the most part, our local officials' actions are above reproach. Unfortunately, the citizens do not always realize that.

A great number of organizations hire a public relations expert to take the steps necessary to make sure that the image of the organization does not deteriorate but, rather, is improved. The city council or village board can't justify a public relations person, but there are some things which can be done.

We always fear something we do not understand or which we have no knowledge of. This is one area where the local governing board can do something. The local board can make an effort to keep the people informed.

I am not just referring to publishing minutes of board or council meetings. Other mediums to inform the people should also be tried. Citizens may not show up at board or council meetings but they are interested in what happens in the town. The tax load is probably the number one interest because that means dollars and cents out of their pockets. There is also a matter of civic pride. They spend a good portion of their lives there and most people have a definite opinion about the environment in which they live.

They would like to know about proposed projects the board or council has in mind. There are several methods to communicate with them.

A frequent news item or article is valuable and the press is usually appreciative of such information. It does take some effort on the part of someone to write. Spot messages on a local radio station are effective. If your town is large enough to have a radio station with a talk show on it, don't forget to feed in some municipal subjects.

One effective way to reach people in a small village is by a monthly newsletter. Again it takes some effort on someone's part. There is an added advantage in using a newsletter in that specific informational items can be included such as the due date for dog licenses or an increase in utility rates. If something like a utility rate increase is announced, the newsletter provides an opportunity for an explanation and reasons for the raise.

By providing information of municipal functions one runs a calculated risk of arousing some adverse interest. But I believe it is worth it. The taxpayers are not always wrong. It is a comfortable feeling for a board or council to have confidential information not available to the public. They can make decisions accordingly, justifying all actions by reason of themselves knowing what is going on and the public being ignorant of the background information. But there will be times when a decision backfires and because the public is not brought into the decision process at all, the elected officials catch the full blast of public resentment.

The old town meeting concept was not bad—it was too cumbersome so we now elect a limited number of officials to represent the entire population. "Represent" includes more than just attending a board or council meeting; it means standing in the shoes of those represented. It seems difficult to do a good job representing without some communication, which results in feedback to the officials.

OBSERVATIONS

Some random thoughts about last week's city council meeting in Wayne: —It's probably fair to give the state a chance to prove that left-turn lanes on Main Street will improve the flow of cars and trucks through the city. We still think the idea is foolish, but there's nothing wrong with giving it a try. Councilmen should keep in mind the mayor's comment to them during discussion of the subject, however. It was to the effect that the left-turn lanes will be put in on a trial basis. If they don't work, they can be taken out just as easily as they were put in.

—It's good that the councilmen gave their full support to the resolution passed by the retail committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Wayne Retail Association calling for voluntary reduction in use of electricity and heating fuel in local businesses. We are going to need a lot of help from local businesses and private citizens to conserve fuel. Persons with suggestions on additional ways to conserve fuel and electricity are welcome to suggest them to city officials. If we can come up with enough ways to conserve energy now, maybe we won't have to be forced into conserving it later on.

—Those are some pretty strong charges councilman Vernon Russell has made against Wayne's chief of police. The firing of the former chief by the mayor earlier this year created something of a rift in the city which remains even now. Hopefully, that rift will disappear when the suit by the former chief against the city is resolved. It's not good for the community for it to be present.

—The action taken to make SLAP a reality in Wayne was a good one, and we hope the county commissioners follow suit so a county-wide accident prevention program can go into effect. There are plenty of things a traffic safety committee could be working on, in the towns as well as the rural areas. We hope the committee turns out to be an active one. SLAP, by the way, stands for Selective Localized Accident Prevention. With that kind of handle, you need a good acronym.

Useful to housewives

Hope you enjoyed that series of stories on coping with high food prices, the last one of which appears on the front page of this issue.

Food prices are high, but in relation to the cost of other goods and services and the cost of food in other countries, food is a bargain. We can thank the American farmer and private industry for that.

But even though food is a bargain, the grocery tabs are causing many housewives to search for ways to spend a little less to put a meal on the table. The series should help her accomplish that goal.

We can't take credit for the series of stories. They were prepared by Robin Hadfield, editorial associate at the Department of Agricultural Communications, in cooperation with extension specialists at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Better than mandatory

Things are starting to look better in Wayne as far as energy conservation is concerned.

The city last week began shutting off street lights—including those on the main street—to save on the amount of fuel being burned to generate electricity in the municipal power plant.

Teachers and students in the local public schools and the Catholic school are starting to feel the effects of steps taken to cut down on the amount of electricity and fuel used to light and heat their classrooms.

Wayne State College, the largest customer of the local power plant, is reducing its energy consumption in a variety of ways.

Businesses, backed by the Wayne Retail Association and the Chamber of Commerce, are helping also by shutting off large display signs outside their buildings, reducing the temperature in the stores and cutting back on the number of security lights.

And now local residents are not only talking about the fuel shortage but are actually taking steps to help alleviate it.

It is pleasing to see that these steps are being taken voluntarily. If we can continue looking for ways to save on the amount of fuel and electricity used, maybe the energy conservation steps can remain just that, voluntary. If not, they may become mandatory. And that's when it will really become frightening.

Let's get on with it

Maybe that NBC news program about Wayne's problems finding enough fuel to keep generating electricity for the city will spur the government to initiate immediately a massive search for a solution to America's energy crisis.

That's what it's going to take, a huge effort by the federal government to find ways to harness the sun's rays, use the winds, take advantage of the tides, tap the boiling core of the earth and the like. It's going to take an effort similar to the one which enabled us to win the race to see who could develop the first atomic bomb. And the sooner we get on with it, the better. Time is fast running out.

No longer can we continue to fear out and siphon off the coal, oil and gas lying beneath us. Those resources, at least the oil and gas, are fast running out. Tapping the huge coal fields more extensively would mean relaxing regulations restricting such things as ugly strip mining and air pollution.

And when those resources, formed over millions and millions of years, are gone, they are gone for good. Thousands and thousands of generations of people will have lived and died before the earth gradually replaces them.

For too long America has been a nation whose whole philosophy has been built around consumption. That philosophy has been a good one, of course, because it means more jobs, more money, more cars, more food, more gross national product. But the results of it are catching up with us, and we are going to have to find solutions to the fuel crisis or that philosophy will strangle this country.

WINSIDE

Dear Editor:

I'm complaining about: A service. I don't like. The way Winside news is left out of The Wayne Herald.

I don't like it because: Not only does our news correspondent, Pat Oswald, go to great lengths to get news, but also residents of Winside send in news that never gets printed.

Here are some facts: Our Federated Women's Club held a Halloween party totally for UNICEF. Bob Bartlett took pictures but they did not come out in the paper. We did have a small write up. Many times Winside news is scattered in the paper but not in one area together.

This is what I want done: Please print more of Winside's news. We have no private paper, so we depend on yours to let our people know about our happenings. We don't think people outside of Wayne County should have so much space.

MRS. DALE MILLER

A closer look...

A LITTLE HUMOR always helps when the situation isn't too good.

Like the candle Les Luft brought out to the table the NBC crew was sifting at after he turned off the lights in his steak house. The candle was because of the fuel shortage in Wayne he told the crew, here to film a TV show about the shortage.

And like the street lights being turned off Monday and Tuesday nights and then burning bright Wednesday afternoon. It turned out city employees had turned them on so they could go along the main street and switch about every second or third one off.

That may be funny, but those lights being off give the city a spooky atmosphere. Now I can start imagining how people felt during the blackouts in World War II.

ed. Well, I guess I have, since there hasn't been any new developments to report on. Can't very well keep reporting the same thing over and over. Although that would be nice — could fill up that front page a lot easier if I could just keep using the same story.

BUT ONE GOOD letter — signed — did come in. It wasn't actually a letter. It was a Telagripe, the first one I've ever seen. You'll find it elsewhere on this page.

IF YOU'RE in the habit of watching parades on television, be sure to keep an eye out for Wayne's Ann Owens when she marches in the big Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade on NBC Thursday.

Ann, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Orvid Owens, was one of 102 high school musicians selected to take part in the New York affair. She also will be marching in the Tournament of Roses Parade on New Year's Day in Pasadena, Calif.

She was selected for the honor, which includes all-expense trips to New York and Pasadena, by the director of the McDonald's All-American High School Band, Paul Lavalle. Helping Lavalle, who is musical director of Radio City Music Hall, were a panel of the nation's most distinguished band directors. They had nominations from high school band directors throughout the nation, including Alaska and Hawaii.

The selection is a "real tribute to the musical talents of Ann and the other band members, and we're very proud of them," said Lavalle.

WAYNE HAS been getting more than its share of attention from national television. Just a week or so ago Paul Duke, NBC correspondent on the evening news, spoke at Wayne State. A few days later (wonder if Duke tipped them on the story?) and an NBC crew showed up in town to do a story on our fuel shortage. Now Ann.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

Sikeston, Mo., Standard

"It's incredible. The butchers claim they're not making any money. The wholesalers claim they are not making any money. The meat packers say they are not making any money. The ranchers also say they are not making any money. So who's making the money? Sometimes we get the uneasy feeling that somewhere there are cows buying mutual funds and gold stocks!"

St. John's Lutheran Church at Wadfield. 6. Cheese processing plant. 7. About two minutes. 8. About 300. 9. Turning off park lights and most street lights. 10. Bill Wood, broadcaster for radio station KFOR in Lincoln.

WHEN YOU THINK about it, some of the energy conservation steps being put into effect are only common sense things which should have been done long ago.

Like turning out lights in unused classrooms at the college and local schools. And reducing the number of lights left on in businesses after they close. And lowering thermostats in churches, schools and the like when they are not being used. And driving cars at a slower speed to get better gas mileage.

Have a feeling that once the fuel shortage eases in Wayne there are going to be a lot of people who will go right on conserving anyway. Makes sense 'cause they can save money on light bills, gas bills and the like.

HAD TO LEAVE out of the paper some of the story about what the Chamber of Commerce and businesses are doing to help during the fuel shortage. The resolution adopted by the retail committee of the Chamber and the Wayne Retail Association noted that the resolution is an "assurance that the business community of the city is determined to assume its share of the responsibilities for the conservation of essential energy."

Also, the Chamber has agreed to share with the city the cost of advertising to get the fuel shortage message across to the public.

HAD A COUPLE unsigned letters come in the past few days, but can't use them. Will keep them around in case the persons who wrote them wish to sign their names so they can appear in the paper.

One was rather interesting since it criticized me for being "silenced" as far as the Fairchild-city law suit is concern-

Wildcats Back-Court Talent Strength in Tuesday Night's Debut With Northwestern

Three battle-tested veterans will lead Wayne State into basketball combat Tuesday night against Northwestern College at Orange City, Ia.

Besides the trio of three-lettered starters — forward Ron Jones and guards Tom Erwin and Jim Merchel — coach Ron Jones has four other lettermen who logged considerable time last year.

Even with a seasoned squad, however, coach Jones says, it will take time to fill the vacuum left by loss of Dennis Siefkes and Jon Harvey. Siefkes broke nearly all the Wayne scoring records in a four-year career, and Harvey was Mr. Dependable.

Wildcat back-court talent appears to be a strong point. Merchel, of Hazel Park, Mich., and Erwin, of Concord, were starting fixtures last year. Coach Jones also has capable subs in Jeff Pilbeam of Peotone, Ill., Rod Erwin of Concord (cousin of Tom), Britt Cameron of Sioux City, Jim Wetzel of Grand Island, and Charlie Henderson of Tampa, Fla., who played at Coffeyville, Kan., Junior College.

Up front, Jones, of Kankakee, Ill., is a formidable rebounder and frequently hot scorer, a starter the past two years.

Top contenders at the other two spots are a pair of 6-8 juniors, Chuck Collins of Butte and Neal Walde of Denison, Ia. Collins switches between forward and center duty, depending on who else is in the game. Walde is tabbed at center.

Also due for a lot of forward action are Bob Wentz, senior letterman from Camp Springs, Md., but a former Bellevue High School cager, and Regg Swanson of Laurel, up from the junior varsity team of last year.

There's a question mark on the prospects for Stan Lewis, better known to Wayne sports fans as a football defensive end

It's Laurel Night For WSC Opener

It will be Laurel Night at Wayne State's basketball home opener next Saturday night.

When the Wildcats enter their Briar Cliff at 7:30 in Rice Gym, Laurel fans will find three former Laurel-Concord High School Bears on the team — Tom Erwin and Rod Erwin (cousins) and Regg Swanson.

Special tickets for the game will be available in Laurel at the Norvel Insurance Agency and Wilts Funeral Home. Laurel citizens can buy the tickets at reduced price of $1 for adults and 50 cents for children of school age.

It's been a long time since Wayne State had three basketball players from the same high school. Long-time observers can't remember when, if ever.

Laurel's McCoy Wins Berth on NEN Team

For the second time in three years the same Laurel High football player has won an all-conference spot on the Northeast Nebraska Activity Conference football team.

Senior Kirk McCoy was named as one of the defensive guards during the NENAC's selection Wednesday night.

Two other Laurel players received mention on the conference's honorable mention list. Dan McCoughlin, and LaMont Sohler, both seniors, were named to the 19-man roster. Last year Coughlin was recognized on the conference's first string offensive team.

According to coach Bob Olson, McCoy was a regular the past three seasons, playing both offense and defense.

"He averaged about 14.5 tackles a game," Olson pointed out about this year's team co-captain. The 6-1 180-pound guard is a hard worker, both on the practice field and in the games, Olson added.

Despite a recurring knee problem last year, McCoy earned himself a place on the honorable mention team. "The year before that he won on the all-conference team," Olson said.

Last year the Laurel star did not play on the basketball team because of the knee problem. But this year, Olson said, Kirk is out for the team and has a chance to make the squad. Besides playing football and basketball, McCoy runs on the school's two-mile relay team in track.

who terrorized enemy backfields. A knee injury, corrected by surgery more than a year ago, seems to cause him trouble in basketball, though it was no bother in football. A junior now, he tried basketball briefly last year but had to give it up.

If the knee holds up in cage action now, Lewis will be something to contend with at center when the battle gets tough. At 6-5 and 230 to 240 pounds, Lewis is fairly agile, a good jumper, and he certainly doesn't mind contact. He played basketball at Chicago's Fenger High School.

Coach Jones figures his Wildcats should make a good run at equalling or bettering last year's 17-8 record.

The Wayne schedule:
November — 20, at Northwestern; 24, Briar Cliff; 26, at Northern State, S. D.

December — 1, at Southwest Minnesota; 6-8, at Western Illinois University tournament; 12, at UN-OMaha; 15, South Dakota-Springfield; 20, at Doane; 28-29, Wayne State Holiday Tournament.

January — 5, Hastings; 10, Chadron; 12, Doane; 17, at Midland; 19, Peru; 22, at Kearney.

February — 1, at Briar Cliff; 2, Southwest Minnesota; 7, UN-OMaha; 12, Kearney; 15, at Chadron; 20, at Peru; 23, at Hastings.

Lakeview, West Point Tie for Title

For the first time in four years, the Husker Conference title is split between two schools.

Columbus Lakeview and West Point High tied for the honors Wednesday afternoon, 13-13, at Columbus.

The host school had to play catchup, though, after the Cadets quickly struck for two touchdowns in the first period.

West Point's leading rusher, Ray Wagner, took the ball in from four yards out after Lakeview bobbed the kickoff and West Point recovered at the hosts' 22 yard line.

With the score 7-0, the Cadets scored again on another Viking miscue, this time at the four-yard line. Wagner then ran a one-yard for 13-0 score but his extra point try failed.

Lakeview managed to make the score 13-7 at the half on a one-yard plunge by Jim Pillen with Rick Thomas' kick good. In the following frame Pillen dashed 41 yards for the tying score, but the extra-point try failed.

Columbus Lakeview, of the West half, now holds a 7-1-2 record for the season, compared to West Point's 7-2-1 mark.

Coleridge Wins L-C Conference

The Coleridge Bulldogs, behind a strong defensive showing, shrugged off an earlier loss to Newcastle and whipped the Red Raiders, 23-0, to snare the Lewis and Clark Conference football title.

The Wednesday afternoon match at Wayne State's Memorial Stadium was a stalemate during the first quarter before the Bulldog's defensive leader Ron Stone pegged a Newcastle pass and raced 15 yards untouched for an 8-0 lead. Stone converted the two-point try.

Although the halftime score remained at 8-0, the Bulldogs used the second period to unleash their potent offense.

Stone helped put the second score on the board when he fell on a Newcastle bobbie near the Raiders' 40-yard line. Three plays later the score was 16-0 on a handoff from quarterback Allen Benson to Rick Arduser. The final score came on a 23-yard pass play from Benson to Kevin Krie.

1973 Wildcat Football Team

WAYNE STATE head football coach Del Stollenberg pointed out that it was team unity that gave the Wildcats a 6-2-1 season record. The Wayne team, taking third place in the Nebraska College Conference, bettered last year's mark of 3-7. On this year's squad were: front row from left: Tom Allie, Brian Moeller, Nick Danze, Dean Ott, Randy Slayback, Brent Moeller, Paul Stuart, Rick Benedetto, Glenn Newell, Chuck McLaughlin, Brian Hoffman, Doug Coulter; second row: Brad Hahn, Dave Miller, Shawn Keenan, Roger Fuller, Pat Dyer, Sid Conrad, Bruce Hansen, Mike McMahon, Jeff Uhing, Maurice Miniken, Terry Weiss; Ken Nadrcchal, Lyle Schwartz, Jim Gibbs, Mike Tillwick.

Coach: Balance Won for Wayne Gridders

Funny thing, statistics. Take Wayne State's football figures for the 1973 season just ended. The 6-2-1 record ranked among the half dozen best in Wildcat annals, but you can't find many statistics that rank very high.

Only two figures sparkle in a full page of numbers that record what the Wildcats did this year. Dean Ott's pass receiving stands out. So does the defensive rushing record.

Sophomore wingback Ott surpassed a couple of known Wayne season records for nabbing passes and making yardage: 37 catches for 544 yards. Those figures, incidentally, are one pass and 13 yards better than reported earlier because coaches discovered another pass completion when they looked at films of the Wayne-Lowa Wesleyan game Nov. 3. Tim Denham connected with Ott for a pass not listed on Wesleyan's statistics.

Wildcat rushing defense finished with a 66.7-yard-per-game average, which should keep them around seventh on the NAIA national chart. Earlier in the campaign, the Cats ranked first or second — until they ran into a band of angry Antelopes from Kearney who backed up 275 yards rushing. Except for that, the Wayne rushing defense would have ended a good bit lower.

In other team statistics, Wayne offense netted 1,239 yards rushing (a 138 average) and 1,135 passing (126 average). Nothing sensational there. In fact, several Wildcats of earlier years gained almost that much alone — like Sam Singleton with 1,111 rushing in 1970 and Steve Gunther with 1,105 passing during the 1967 campaign.

Rushing defense had to be the key statistics in Wayne's winning record. The enemy had to rely on passing more than most teams like — and that's hazardous. And while opponents out-gained Wayne in the air, 1,250 to 1,135 yards, they managed only 37 per cent completion and seven touchdowns. Wayne's six passers completed 48 per cent for 15 touchdowns.

Now, take a look at the Wildcat individual stats. Pretty well spread around. Nobody with sensational figures, except Ott's pass receiving.

Sophomore quarterback Dave Miller led in passing yardage, 489, and in total offense of 535.

Another soph signal caller, Rick Benedetto, rated second in total gain at 474.

Curiously, Benedetto started most games, threw and completed more passes than Miller did, and struck for eight passing scores. Miller scored on four aeriels. Coach Del Stollenberg discovered that Miller was more effective as a reliever than a starter. Something like Dave Schneider several years ago in basketball. He seldom started but led scoring three years.

Brian Moeller, sophomore tailback, led rushing with 464, far ahead of No. two Pat Dyer's 192 and Ott's 179. Kirk Park ran 149, Denham 130.

Significant in the statistics is the fact that five rushers totaled that much. And seven Wildcats had total offense of 149 or more. In Wayne history, that's a wider spread than usual.

It's unusual, too, that all four Wayne quarterbacks finished with plus rushing yardage. Denham's 130 yards of running has to rank among Wayne's best in recent years, though he did not play a lot.

Added up, statistics verify what coach Stollenberg has said all along: Team unity built the winning record, everybody doing his share.

Two sophomores won most valuable-player honors on the Wayne State College 1973 football team — Dean Ott of Hooper on offense and Pat Donohoe of O'Neill on defense.

Coach Del Stollenberg announced their selection Thursday at a meeting of the Wayne Second Guessers Club. "A fine choice by members of the team," he said.

Wingback Ott was conspicuous through Wayne's 6-2-1 season, and his name appears at or near the top in numerous Wildcat statistics. The best statistic: pass receiving, 37 for 544 yards. Both figures earned Ott Wayne State season records. He also rushed 179 yards, punted a 36.6

Middle guard Donohoe led Wildcat defenders on the defensive point chart, which includes tackles, assists, interceptions, fumble recoveries, blocked passes and punts.

Stollenberg rates Donohoe a key factor in the Wayne defense that held opponents to a 66-yard rushing average — among the nation's NAIA leaders. Donohoe operated at the middle guard slot most of the time, but sometimes moved to a linebacker position when the Wildcats shifted to a four man front.

Ott graduated from Hooper-Logan View High School in 1971. Donohoe from O'Neill St. Mary's the same year.

Players Still Needed For City Basketball

A reminder to those city residents wanting to play city recreation basketball A league competition — be at the city auditorium at 7:30 p.m. tonight (Monday) for the first night of practice.

According to recreation director Hank Overin, practice sessions will be held each Monday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. for three weeks before teams will break up and start league action.

Overin also pointed out that the Wednesday night B league is looking for another 14 players in order to have seven men to a team for a four-team league.

Anyone wishing to play can contact Overin. Players must be high school graduates; college students must be working in the city.

285-Pound Buck

KENNY SWANSON of rural Allen bagged a large four-point buck Wednesday while hunting near the South Creek, north of Allen. Swanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jule Swanson, dropped the deer, which weighed 285 pounds before being field dressed, from 75 yards out. It was so large Swanson had to get help from his dad to load the animal into their pickup.

THERE IS A difference between being poor and poverty-stricken, Mrs. Swetland said. Those who are poverty-stricken cannot get out of poverty because they never have enough money at one time. Even if you're poor she said you can stock up on food and maintain that stock to get out of poverty.

Mrs. Stoltzman said they recently purchased three quarters of a beef. The cost was $450, but it allows her to cut meat out of the budget for eight or nine months.

Dried skim milk is also cheaper in bulk, Mrs. Swetland said, but it too has gone up 150 per cent in one year. So, her family stocks up on it and buys $40 or $50 worth at a time.

HIGH PRICES brought about boycotts last spring and the effects of the boycott hurt the farmer, Mrs. Stehlik said. Government price controls didn't help either," she added. Americans currently spend 16 per cent of their income for food, but this will go up to 25 per cent next year, according to Mrs. Stehlik. She suggested nutrition education and protest against the overall effects of inflation would do more good than a food boycott.

"The inflation problem is meeting us every day every place we turn," Mrs. Stehlik said. "We have to demand that our government become responsible by cutting back spending when there is no money."

The Dorchester homemaker posed this question: "Do we live to eat or eat to live?" She said eating doesn't have to be the high spot of the day.

Space Program Planned Today, Tuesday

Students in the Wayne-Carroll school system will get a chance to see the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's mobile lecture demonstration program today (Monday) and Tuesday.

Representing the Johnson Space Center at Houston, the program will be conducted by Thomas Hill, a member of the Oklahoma State University faculty, he has served as a space science specialist for five years.

Hill will be conducting assembly programs at the high school lecture hall today at 9:15 a.m. for middle school students and at 10:45 a.m. for high school students. On Tuesday he will present a program at 9:15 a.m. for elementary students. In addition, he will meet with high school science classes for small group discussions this afternoon.

The Space Science Education Project is a lecture demonstration program designed to acquaint people with the role of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in the authoritatively informed on the space sciences and the activities of NASA. They present assembly programs and work in the classroom with the teachers and students.

A typical assembly program includes discussions and demonstrations of aeronautics, rockets, propulsion systems, satellites, probes, orbits, human factors, communications and manned space flight. The programs are presented without charge to the requesting school or organization.

Laurel Woman 4-H Group Director

A Laurel woman, Mrs. Winton Wallin, has been elected a director of the executive council of the Nebraska Association for 4-H Development.

She was one of three new directors named during the association's recent annual meeting in Lincoln.

Named to serve additional terms were the association's three principal officers — John Cooper of Humboldt, president; Dr. John Adams of Lincoln, vice president, and W. M. Antes of Lincoln, secretary-treasurer.

At the meeting, the group heard a generally optimistic report about the state 4-H camping program, one of its main concerns.

Dr. John D. Orr, associate state 4-H leader, said the state 4-H camp near Halsey is "in the black" following another year of increased camping activity by both youth and adults. Also reported was the investment of a $20,000 bequest from the Elizabeth Abbott estate for the camp, the first bequest received by the association for camping development and upkeep.

Association members were told that a record number of 45,000 plus 4-H members are in need of expanded and improved camp facilities. Some of these needs will be met through the new district camps to be built near Gretna and near Alma. Development and operation of the district camps as well as the state 4-H camp is coordinated by the association. Concurrent fund drives to build the two new camps are progressing well. Association members were told.

On a matching fund basis, $32,500 has already been given to the two districts by Ak-Sar-Ben, with an additional $30,000 available to boost fund-raising efforts for the two district camps. The effort may get another shot in the arm with a proposed $50,000 from another source.

The quarterback is often the hero of the football game, and the fan watching his TV set has a fine opportunity to see what makes him great.

Next teams have about 200 plays available. The quarterback must select the best one for each situation, yet be prepared to change it after his team leaves the huddle. Watch the quarterback appraise the defense and try to figure out if he is changing signals with an "audible." If he passes, his blockers can give him only about four seconds to find a receiver and throw.

When you visit our showroom, you have all the time you want to select the best TV set for you from our complete selection of models and styles. You'll be very pleased at our low, competitive prices, too!

Then It Went 'Kerchunk'

Do you sometimes find yourself unable to make inanimate objects understand who is boss? My mind is not mechanically oriented. I don't know a socket wrench from a sprocket wheel. Facing a fuse box alone in the dark scares the starch out of me, and I would have flunked general science if the teacher hadn't depended on me to keep the blackboards decorated at Christmas-time.

Never-the-less, I had emerged from an eight-year training program in an "older home" with a BA in mediocre housekeeping. The clothes dryer and I had come to a mutual understanding that my clothes will come out unwrinkled and almost dry if I run no more than four consecutive loads of laundry through in one day. The corroded pipe under the bathroom lavatory has not leaked since I tied a wash rag tightly around it just before company was due in 1969, and long ago I stopped negotiating with the blender, electric knife and deep-fat fryer, delegating the whole mutinous crew to a friend's rummage sale.

Yes, we had learned to co-exist—technology and myself. Or so I thought until a recent Saturday. The fun began relatively early with a roar from the area of a children's room that told me two things: 1. The alarm clock had not gone off and therefore must be running backwards again, and 2. A tube must have gone out in the TV as only children deprived of Saturday morning cartoons can make that much noise.

From that point on everything in the house that is supposed to automate appeared to be on strike for higher wage, and even non-powered objects seemed to be carrying picket signs just for the heck of it. Breakfast proceeded nearly on schedule after we located the manual can opener and I was waiting over a second cup of coffee for a load of wash to finish spinning when from the laundry room came a loud, "kerchunk," then "hmmmmmm," and finally, silence.

"Lord, deliver me from children's socks," I sighed. But this time the pump had gobbled up a doll dress, smuggled in with the towels probably, as I discovered when husband-turned-repairman flung it, along with some well-chosen adjectives, out from behind a heap of tools, wet clothes and washing machine parts.

It must have been then, just before the large burner on the range gave out, that a daughter said, "Look what the vacuum does, Mom. The handle's all wiggly."

It was not only all wiggly, it was also all broken, the result, I determined after several minutes of late-move interrogation tactics, of a rapid and unhampered descent from the top of the steps.

Could it be, I puzzled later, upon discovering the broken basement step and the missing garbage can lid, that I'm doing something wrong? And after finding the latch had fallen off the bookcase door and the dustpan had apparently gotten thrown out with the trash again, I concluded there was only one thing to do. I sent the kids outside to "help their dad" and took myself and Thornton Wilder to a big brown chair in the corner of the living room. The best cure for a case of rebellious house still seems to be a little solitude and an absorbing book.

Laura Kraft
A former Carroll resident, Mildred J. Verrall, died Nov. 6 at Cypress, Calif. where she had resided for the past 14 years. She was 68 years old.
The daughter of Thomas and Grace Davies Jones, she was born May 11, 1905 at Carroll. She was a 1924 graduate of Carroll High School and attended Wayne State College. In 1931 she moved to Kenosha, Wisc. where she resided until moving to California in 1959.

Funeral services and burial were Nov. 10 in California.

Mrs. George Pinion
Mrs. George Pinion, 85, of Fries, Va., formerly of Winside, died Monday in a Galax, Va. hospital.
She was born Jan. 3, 1888 in Virginia where she taught school prior to her marriage to George Pinion. The couple lived on a farm north of Winside for 24 years. They moved to Fries, Va. about 38 years ago.
Survivors include two nephews, Clifton Burris of Winside and Dwight Pinion of McLean, Va., and one niece, Mrs. Albert Jackson of Elk Creek, Va. She was preceded in death by her husband.

THE MOST EVIL MAN IN THE U.S.A.

A few notes on the evil he created in 1969.

He found a quarter of a million "unemployables" who never could hold steady jobs.

He trained them and put them into work that pays money they never dreamed of earning before.

He's a businessman.

For poor kids who couldn't otherwise go to college, he took three hundred and fifty millions and saw to it that those who earned them got scholarships.

He gave eight hundred million to non-profit organizations for medical research, to help stamp out cancer and heart disease and a hundred other dread diseases of the world.

To build new housing for the poor and middle-incomes in U. S. cities, he put up one billion and a quarter dollars, so more people can live in decency.

Sure, he's been a polluter — as has everyone from the U. S. government to ordinary citizens. But last year he scraped up two and one half billions to fight pollution of air and water and nature. This year he plans to get up four billion more, to keep up the battle.

After that, he put up fifteen billion dollars in Social Security taxes to help provide support and medical care for senior citizens. And he added forty-one billion dollars in income taxes to help pay the bills of the U. S. A.

And all the while, he was contributing millions of hours of personal and business time to virtually every humanitarian cause you've ever heard of.

He's a businessman. The most evil man in the U. S. A.

Isn't it time somebody had a good word for this evil man who happens to do so much good for so many people?

We think so.

Chaplin, Keaton, Fields To Strut Across Screen In 3 NETV Programs

The great comedians of the silent film era — Charlie Chaplin, Buster Keaton, W.C. Fields, Pearl White, Harry Langdon and others — will offer a welcome respite from recent events to Nebraska ETV viewers during Thanksgiving week.
Three hour-long programs featuring classic silent comedy films will be shown at 9 p.m. on the evenings of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday through the cooperation of the Nebraska for Public Television, Inc. (NPTV), public TV support organization.

According to George Collins, NPTV development officer, the special three-program series will be used to acquaint viewers about activities and interests of the NPTV organization.
Each of the special comedy programs will be introduced by Ron Hull, Nebraska ETV Network program manager, assisted by special guest film buffs.
The comedy films to be seen include:
— "Tonight (Monday)," "The Dentist," starring W. C. Fields as a golfing dentist whose medical practice is as much below par as his golf game is above it. Also, Harold Lloyd wins a princess in the 1919 classic, "His Royal Snyness."
— Tuesday, "Pirates Treasure," with silent film classic heroine Pearl White in pursuit of buried treasure. She is trapped on a ship with a time bomb set to explode. Buster Keaton tries to forge a career while his customers keep horsing around in the 1920 silent, "The Blacksmith."

— Wednesday, "Saturday Afternoon," with Harry Langdon in a spree until fate catches up with him during this 1922 silent film.
