'Attitude Survey' Is Printed Inside

The work done at the Senior Citizens Center is outstanding, but the space provided is inadequate. So writes one of the persons returning The Wayne Herald's "Community Attitude Survey."

The survey is printed again on the editorial page inside this issue of the newspaper for the benefit of those readers who missed it when it was printed a week ago.

The survey asks readers to check the five areas they think private citizens and public officials should be concerned with in order to make Wayne a better community. There are a variety of areas listed everything from industrial development to shopping facilities to public restrooms.

Readers are welcome to jot down any thoughts they have and include them along with their completed survey. Comments and results of the survey will be published in a coming issue of the newspaper.

The survey is the latest in a series of Speak Out surveys being run by the newspaper as a public service. Previous Speak Out subjects included the switch in uniforms by the Wayne police department and the desirability of offering competitive athletics for girls in high school.

Police Chief Is Reinstated; City Put in Ticklish Position

Wayne now has two chiefs of police — has had since Tuesday afternoon and is likely to keep both of them for the time being.

Mayor Kent Hall said Tuesday night after the dilemma came up at the city council meeting that he has not decided what to do to solve the problem.

"I'm open for suggestions," said Hall when asked about the two chief situation.

He said he could not tell how long it would be before he makes some decision to solve the problem.

The dilemma became real last week when district judge George W. Ditttrick of Norfolk decided in Wayne County district court to rule in favor of Vern Fairchild, fired by Hall last April, in Fairchild's law suit asking for reinstatement.

The dilemma became official Tuesday when Ditttrick ordered Fairchild reinstated as chief, and paid salary from the time he was fired.

That left the city with two chiefs — Fairchild and Robert Evers, hired in June to fill the slot left vacant by Fairchild's firing.

And Tuesday night the council tossed the problem back to Hall's lap by voting 7-0 not to appeal the decision handed down by Ditttrick.

The councilmen then approved a $6,043.33 bill for salary Fairchild has missed since being fired April 10. Social security deductions and the like will reduce that to about $4,580, however.

Councilmen also voted 7-0 to pass an ordinance officially putting paid members of the police department and fire department under civil service protection, something ordered by Ditttrick in his ruling earlier in the day.

The civil service protection guarantees, among other things, that a paid policeman or fireman cannot be fired without a hearing before the civil service commission if he desires one. It also sets forth procedures for such things as promotions, demotions, suspensions and the like.

That protection — or rather the lack of it in Wayne — was one of the major points in Fairchild's suit against the city.

He argued in his suit that city officials had refused to establish a civil service commission in Wayne after he requested they do so. The judge agreed with him that Wayne, since the 1970 census put the city's population at more than 5,000, was not complying with the state law requiring it to have a civil service commission.

Fairchild said in his suit that he was fired illegally because he was not given an opportunity for a hearing before such a commission.

Judge Ditttrick based his ruling on the state law requiring first class cities, those over 5,000 population, to have civil service protection for paid policemen and firemen, and did not rule on the merits of Hall's decision to fire Fairchild.

Hall fired Fairchild last April following Fairchild's investigation of several local liquor establishments. Hall said he authorized the investigation, but did not authorize Fairchild to bring in outside men to break the law in the taverns to see if the bartenders would permit it.

Fairchild said he brought in two policemen from outside the city, ordering them to purchase beer in five bars and to spike it with liquor. He said he also ordered the men to try to purchase drinks in three places where memberships were then required.

Hall said later that the unauthorized investigation was just one of several reasons prompting his decision to fire Fairchild.

Fairchild was Wayne police chief for nearly eight years before being fired. He came to Wayne in August of 1965 following six months as chief at Louisville. Prior to taking the job at Louisville, he had been with the Nebraska State Patrol for six and a half years.

Evers took over as police chief in July, coming to Wayne from Fremont where he was a member of the police department for just over three years. He had also been chief of police at North Bend for slightly more than a year while on the Fremont police force, and earlier he had served on the Aurora police force and the Grand Island fire department.

1st Major Concert at WH Nears

The first major concert of the year for vocal music students at Wayne High School is scheduled for Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the high school lecture hall.

Three different groups will perform, including the newly formed stage choir.

The girls glee will sing three numbers, "Christ Child, Christ Child," "Do You Hear What I Hear?" and "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

The choir, which director Larry Stralman says will be doing some very difficult material, will sing "Strangers in the Streets," "The Creation," "Silent Night" and three other pieces.

The new group at the high school, the first of its kind at the school, will sing "Minute Carol," "The Midnight Carol" and "Little Town."

Featured piece on the program will be "The Creation," a rock cantata with text from Genesis. It includes several songs sung by Sue Owens and Deb Weisky, and a duet at the end to be sung by Mark Gramer and Dave Owens.

Says Stralman, in his first year at Wayne High, "It should be a very enjoyable and exciting concert with something for everyone."

Winter Graduation At College Dec. 16

Winter commencement at Wayne State College is scheduled at 3 p.m. Sunday, December 16, with 128 seniors and graduate students candidates for degrees.

Speaker will be Congressman Charles Thorne of the Nebraska First District.

All seats in Rice Auditorium except those reserved for grad students will be open to families and friends no tickets necessary.

The college concert band directed by Dr. Jay O'Leary will provide music.

Judge Weighs Evidence in Estate Case

District county judge Joseph Hunker of West Point has taken under advisement the case involving an estate valued at $274,447.

Hunker heard testimony during a hearing Monday in Wayne County court to determine heirs to the estate of Charles, John and William Oliver, three Wayne County bachelors who died only a few days apart in the fall of 1972.

The deaths of the three brothers left their possessions, including a 160 acre farm south of Wayne, unprovided for in their wills.

John and William died after they were in a jeep accident while on their way to the funeral for Charles. A fourth brother, Horace, died about 10 years earlier, but his estate was transferred to his three surviving brothers.

The four brothers drew up identical wills about 30 years ago, leaving each other's estate to the surviving brothers in case one of them died. When all three surviving brothers died within a few days, their wills made no provisions for their estates.

If the court rules there are no legal heirs to the estate, it would revert to the state of Nebraska, according to local attorney Ken Swartz, who represents several alleged heirs. If it goes to the state, the estate would be invested and income from it would be distributed to school districts in Nebraska.

The list of possible heirs to the estate includes persons living in England, Wisconsin, Michigan and Arizona.

MRS. GENE PERRY's decision to buy drapes from Kuhn's Department Store this holiday season proved a good one. She won $100 in Christmas Bucks by making the purchase for her new home. Presenting the Bucks to her is Jack Tomrdle, in charge of the store's drapery department.

Council Avoids Vote on Sunday Beer

Wayne city councilmen Tuesday night voted 5-2 against drawing up a proposed ordinance which would permit taverns to sell beer on Sundays, then learned they will have to consider the subject again next week.

Andy Manes, operator of Andy's Pizzeria, said he will be back Tuesday night "with an attorney" to argue his case once again.

Council will meet Tuesday because Christmas falls on their regular meeting date later this month.

Manes told the council that present city ordinances permit some liquor establishments to open on Sunday but prohibit places which sell only beer from opening. "That's discrimination," said Manes, who wants the right to open on Sunday to compete with the other businesses. Bottle clubs, Wayne Vet's Club and the Country Club may sell liquor on Sunday.

Councilmen didn't vote against Sunday sale of beer not technically at least. They turned down the motion to have an ordinance drawn up which would permit it. The ordinance would have required a council vote before it went into effect.

Voting against writing up the ordinance were Harvey Brasch, Ivan Beeks, Keith Mosley, Frank Prather and Darrel Fuelberth. Vernon Russell and Pat Gross voted to draw up the ordinance for council consideration.

Council then voted 5-2 — Beeks and Prather casting objection votes — to recommend to the state that the bottle club license for Dick's Tavern be approved.

Appearing in favor of the license was Mike Loofe, manager of the bar. He told the council he will partition off part of his bar so he can have both a bottle club and package liquor establishment if the state liquor commission approves the license.

Nobody appeared in opposition to Loofe's request, which would result in seven bottle club licenses in the city if it is okayed. Bottle clubs can sell liquor by the drink but cannot sell beer or liquor to be carried out.

After that vote, council failed to get a majority of the full council to agree to do away with the third and final reading of a proposed ordinance which would limit the number of bottle clubs in the city to seven. Vote was cast by Mosley, Russell, Brasch and Gross opting for the third reading. Councilman Jim Thomas was absent during the evening.

The third reading of the ordinance will come Tuesday night, after which the council can vote on adopting it as law.

Councilmen also agreed to give $25 gift certificates to all city employees as Christmas presents. The certificates will be redeemable at any local business.

And the council agreed to spend slightly over $100 to purchase Christmas baskets for needy persons in the community. The money will come from interest on an estate left to the city for that purpose.

In other action the council:

- Accepted the low bid of $2,996 from Corvett Auto Co. for a pickup for the street department. Submitting higher bids were Ed Wolke-Auto Service, $3,025; Wortman Auto Co., $3,092; and Wacker's $3,264.
- Agreed not to enforce the two hour parking limit in the downtown business district during the Christmas season. The Chamber of Commerce requested not enforcing it to help shoppers during the holiday period. The vote was 6-1 with Prather voting to continue enforcement.
- Tabled an offer by Chicago and North Western Railroad to sell the city a piece of land along the railroad on the east edge of the city for $3,800. The offer may be considered (See Sunday Beer, page 3)

Neihardt Section Just Grew And Grew

This edition of The Wayne Herald contains a special supplement — eight pages produced by the staff of the Wayne Slater, weekly newspaper of Wayne State College, to honor Nebraska Poet Laureate John G. Neihardt.

Following Neihardt's death Nov. 3, Wayne Slater staff members began thinking of a special section on the man who achieved world renown for his poetry, who graduated from college in Wayne long ago, in 1897, who lived and wrote for two decades in Bancroft, and who returned many times to visit those towns where his career in letters began.

Editors Vicki Miller and Jay Cople first thought of maybe two pages in the regular

But the idea soon outgrew two pages. It became four pages. Then as the scope of facts and photos developed, editors and staff produced the eight-pager which appeared in Monday's Wayne Slater.

A feature article comes from Tom Allan, Omaha World-Herald reporter who wrote especially for this Slater edition. From his long and close acquaintance with the poet, Allan recalls many "little things" which reveal a Neihardt not so well known.

Another article by Maxine Kessinger relates the Neihardt background in Bancroft which led Bancroft residents to form the Neihardt Foundation. She is public relations (See Neihardt, page 3)

Local Woman Wins $50 in Promotion

Another Wayne woman, Mrs. Sam Noyes, has found out that shopping in Wayne stores pays off.

Mrs. Noyes is the latest winner in the weekly Birthday Bucks promotion sponsored by local businesses.

Result: She collects $50 in coupons which can be spent just like cash in any stores or firms taking part in the promotion.

Students at College Are Throwing Pots

Art students are throwing pots at Wayne State this week.

Translation of that statement goes like this: Art students have a display of several hundred ceramic works in the Fine Arts Center. Those are pots they already have thrown. But they also are demonstrating — live and in living color — how to throw a pot.

Every day this week, at 11:30 a.m., an artist actually creates a pot from clay on a potter's wheel located in the Fine Arts lobby. That's what is known as throwing a pot. The process takes further steps, of course, before a finished product emerges from a kiln days later.

Besides the ceramic works, there is a display of unique jewelry — silver rings, pendants, bracelets and the like.

Most of the works are for sale, many of them already sold, in fact.

Cotton Bowl Fund Drive Near Halfway Point

Several more businesses have jumped on the bandwagon to help Wayne High's marching musicians make the trip to the Cotton Bowl Parade at Dallas Jan. 1.

The businesses join several others which have already held special promotions, or currently have ones going on, in an attempt to help raise the necessary $12,000.

The help will probably be appreciated, since the band had more than half the total yet to collect by Tuesday morning.

Total raised in a variety of fund raising projects by Tuesday was about $5,400, according to director Ron Dalton. Dalton, however, had little doubts about the band members being able to reach their goal.

The members got a $100 boost from the Chamber of Commerce when the board of directors voted Monday night to donate that amount to the fund drive.

And the Chamber is urging local businesses to hold special events in their stores to help the students reach their goal. Students do not plan to ask for donations from either private citizens or businesses, according to Dalton.

Helping kick the total in the fund over the $5,000 mark this week is the cash being turned in by students who plan on making the trip to Dallas for the nationally televised parade and the football game between the Nebraska Cornhuskers and the Texas Longhorns.

Also helping raise the total have been the sale of baked goods during the Wayne Lions Club's flea market over the weekend, the tackling of odd jobs by students, the playing of holiday music in the business district by the "human juke boxes," and the selling of tickets for the quarter of beef and portable color television set which will be given away later this month.

Latest businesses to plan promotions to help raise the $12,000 are: Dale's Jewelry, Swans' Women Apparel and Melodee Lanes. Dale's Jewelry and Swans' Women will give a percentage of their sales on Saturday to the fund drive, and Melodee Lanes will award bowling balls to the top man and woman bowler this week, with participants donating 50 cents each to the fund drive to take part in the competition.

Other businesses plan on making cash donations to the fund drive:

Folks, We're Bound For the Cotton Bowl

Wayne High Marching Band Fund Drive

ACTIVITIES GOING ON: Daily, odd jobs by students; Thursday night, "human juke boxes" in business district; Saturday, bake sale at Peoples Natural Gas Co., 9 a.m. Dec. 16-19, "Let the Good Times Roll" at Gay Theatre, tickets selling for $1.50 each; Dec. 21, drawing for portable color television set, downtown business district; Dec. 22, drawing for quarter of beef, downtown business district.

It's Unlikely, But Winner Is the Same

The odds against Mrs. Gene Perry winning the second straight Christmas Bucks promotion were probably astronomical, but it happened anyway.

Mrs. Perry held the ticket with the number highest on the list of 25 drawn at random earlier in the day Tuesday, earning her the $100 prize to go along with last week's $500 prize in the first of seven drawings this Christmas season.

Mrs. Perry picked up her winning ticket — matching the 17th on the list of 25 — at Kuhn's Department Store when she purchased drapes for her new home west of Wayne. Last week she and her husband won the $500 prize with a ticket she had received at King's Carpets when purchasing carpet for her new home.

Four more drawings for $100 in Christmas Bucks are slated — on Friday this week and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next week — before the final drawing for $500 on Dec. 21.

Twenty-five numbers will be drawn for each $100 give-away, but 50 numbers will be drawn to see who wins the final $500 prize.

The Christmas Bucks given away in the drawings may be used just like cash in any of the stores and firms taking part in the holiday promotion.

'Hav Clean Noyes, Elbowes Off Table, No Thumbs in Drynke'

Strange instructions will greet folks attending the Christmas Elizabethan Dinner to be presented by Wayne State College Madrigal Singers.

When diners sit down to read table programs tonight (Thursday) through Sunday night, they'll find such whimsical advice as this:

"Gueysts myst hav nayles cleane or they wyl dysgust there table companions"

"Gueysts myst not stuff theyre mouths. The glutton who eats with haste, if he is addressed, he scarcely answereth thee"

"Gueysts myst not lean on the table with theyre elbowes; nor dyp theyre thumbs in theyre drynke"

Some tickets remain for the four dinners — perhaps 30 for the one tonight and a very few for the other three. All of these are available at the music office in the Fine Arts Center — by personal visit or telephone, 375-2200, ext. 315.

The 16-member Madrigal ensemble includes Jan Dickinson, Pierce; Sylvia Truby, Randolph; Cindy Hease, Denison; Chris Helms, Neill; Dorothy Johnson, Laurens, Ia.; Bill Wolfe, Norfolk; Dan Murphy, Stuart; Dennis Simon, Lake View, Ia.; Rich Schroeder, Elkhorst; Larry Franzen, Hartington; two from Omaha, Barbara Pryor and Greg Black; and four from Wayne, Beth Berg, Pat Rabbans, Tim Sharer and Joe Mayberry.

A Lot to Chose From

WAYNE LIONS CLUB'S flea market at the city auditorium Saturday and Sunday was a good time for most everyone who wanted to browse around, take in a few snacks or buy almost anything under the sun. The weekend affair netted the club about $90. Brian Biermann of Wayne found the event a perfect time to catch up on some comic book reading, especially the old time type. And for Mrs. Ella Osnowor, left, and Mrs. Helene Meyer, both of Wayne, it was a good chance to taste some of the cookies and cakes on sale during the day.

'Military Has Programs for Graduates'

Ken Carlson, guidance counselor at Wayne High School, urges Wayne High School seniors anticipating graduation this spring to contact military service recruiters directly regarding career opportunities.

Air Force, Army and Navy recruiting stations are all located in the same building at Norfolk - 511 Norfolk Ave. The Marine Corps Recruiting Station is located in Sioux City.

Each military service branch has its own required test for those seeking enlistment, and tests may be taken by any senior without obligation to enlist, Carlson notes.

Currently, the military service is offering many extensive career training programs for young people, including career training for women. The guidance office has general material on each of the military branches, but specific questions should be directed to recruiters, says Carlson.

Negotiating Committee For Salary Talks Picked By Wayne-Carroll School Board

Irv Brandt, Morris Sandahl and Milton Owens will make up the school board committee which will negotiate with representatives of teachers in the Wayne-Carroll school system on contracts for the 1974-75 school year.

The three were named Monday night during the board's regular monthly meeting.

Preliminary negotiating meetings may begin next month, according to superintendent Francis Haun.

During Monday's meeting, board members voted to extend the Christmas holiday for students two extra days in an attempt to help conserve fuel.

Students will not return to classes from their Christmas holiday until Jan. 7 instead of Jan. 3 as originally planned.

Superintendent Haun said after the board meeting that the extended holiday will save only a minimal amount of fuel, but it is in line with suggestions for conservation issued by the executive committee of the Nebraska State School Boards Association.

Haun said the school is in little danger of running out of fuel to heat the three buildings in Wayne this winter. The building at Carroll is heated with coal.

In a related subject, board members learned that the school will receive only 83 per cent of the amount of fuel used in the same month in the previous year starting in January. The school will receive a 90 per cent allotment during December, however.

Board members also learned that an architect's cost estimates on building a new elementary school at Carroll and estimates for remodeling the present facility will be ready for review at the board's January meeting. The board is currently considering both possibilities since the present facility needs remodeling.

Approved during the meeting was a bill for $1,413 from Kaup's TV Service for three 23-inch color television sets for the elementary school. The television sets will permit elementary teachers to use Nebraska Educational Television (NETV) shows in their classrooms.

Board members listened to a request from Roy Corvill, owner of Corvill Auto Co. in Wayne, to permit him to continue supplying the school with driver training cars. The school will begin getting training cars from Worlman Auto Co. in January.

Board members also learned that the Wayne High marching band has raised by Monday $4,700 toward its $12,000 goal necessary to send the band to the Cotton Bowl Parade in Dallas Jan. 1.

Listened to a report by two staff members from Wayne State College which would permit television students at WSU and students and teachers in the school system to cooperate in a broad program of teacher training, preparation of educational programs and taping of NETV shows for use in the school and the community. The board took no action on the request.

Heard read a letter from members of the girls volleyball team who expressed their thanks to the board for permitting the sport in the school system this fall.

Home Study May Help Stretch Income

Wayne area residents trying to stretch their income are invited to enroll in a home study course titled "Dollarwise and Penny Pinching" being offered by the University of Nebraska Extension Service.

The five lessons, mailed to the home, are free, according to Anna Marie Krefels, area home economist at the Northeast Station near Concord.

One lesson helps those taking the course understand their feelings about money by use of a family money questionnaire, and students have an opportunity to set up a personal spending plan and put it into action. It also gives advice on getting family members involved in a family council.

Persons in Wayne, Dixon, Cedar, Dakota and Thurston Counties interested in taking the course should write or telephone Anna Marie Krefels. Enrollment should be completed before Jan. 1, since plans call for sending the first lesson out sometime during January, she said.

4 New Members Chosen For Extension Council

Four new members of the Wayne County home extension council board have been elected to three-year terms by mailed ballots.

New members are Mrs. Warren Baird of Winside, Brenna Precinct; Dean Jankb of Winside, Hancock; Mrs. John Grewe Jr. of Winside, Plum Creek, and Mrs. Richard Longe of Carroll, Wilbur.

They replace Warren Holtgrew, Winside, Brenna Precinct; Lyle Kruger, Winside, Hancock; Delvin Mikkelsen, Wayne, Plum Creek, and Mrs. Cyril Hansen, Wayne, Wilbur.

Also new on the board are Mrs. Robert Porter of Wayne, representative of the home extension council, and Bob Thomson, Wakefield, representative of the 4-H council. The two presidents of their organizations will serve for one year.

The new members take over in January, at which time the full board will elect a president, vice president and secretary for the coming year.

Current officers are Ray Roberts Jr. of Carroll, president; Delvin Mikkelsen of Wayne, vice president, and Mrs. Cyril Hansen of Wayne, secretary.

Other board members are Phillip Scheurich, Hoskins, Hoskins Precinct; Lowell Johnson, Wakefield, Logan; Merrill Baier, Carroll, Deer Creek; Mrs. Melvin Wilson, Pender, Leslie.

New Board Members Are Selected for Community Chest

Four people have been selected to serve three-year terms on the board of directors of the Wayne Community Chest.

They are Laura Franklin-Joan Polts, Bob Reeg and Norvin Hansen, who take over in place of four retiring board members in January.

Going off the board are Melvin "Bud" Froehlich, Bob Jordan, Ray Butts and Dennis Boehme, who recently moved from Wayne to take a Boy Scout job in Omaha.

The new board members will meet with current members Kem Swarts, Marilyn Carhart, Jan Liska and Sid Hillier to select a president for the 1974 fund drive on Jan. 16.

The 1973 fund drive has fallen short of its goal, according to a report by fund drive secretary-treasurer Mrs. Jim Hummel.

A total of about $9,400 has been collected in the fund drive, some $2,600 short of the $12,000 goal set for this year's drive.

About 150 cards have yet to be turned in by drive workers, Mrs. Hummel said.

Learned the city administrator has fired city building inspector Richard Carlson. Carlson had accepted a teaching position at Northeast Nebraska Technical Community College in Norfolk.

Agreed to discuss next week the possibility of the city donating money to help the Wayne High marching band reach its $12,000 goal so it can participate in the Cotton Bowl Parade at Dallas on Jan. 1.

Failed to get a majority of the council to vote to do away with the required three readings of an ordinance which would prohibit smoking in council chambers during meetings. Voting against bypassing the three readings were Prather and Russell.

Cattle Feeders Are Not Merry This Christmas

Cattle feeders are not humming a merry tune this Christmas season.

Feeders are losing $100 to $200 per head on cattle sold at the present time, according to George Olson, president of the Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association (NENLFA).

"We believe government interference has played a major role in this situation," Olson said in speaking for his organization.

"The price freeze caused many feeders to anticipate higher prices in the future," he said. "But to the contrary, average prices for choice steers at Omaha have declined from $56.60 per hundred weight during the third week in August to $36.50 per hundred weight the first week in December."

Considering present production costs, feeders need $45.50 per hundred weight just to break even, he said.

Olson, of Wilmabago, said that the feeder accepts some of the responsibility for the situation.

"Many feeders admit to holding cattle to excessive weights," he said. "We are not asking for sympathy," Olson emphasized. "We are simply pointing out facts to show that the feeder's financial position has been seriously jeopardized in recent months."

Many feeders are now questioning the farm-to-retail price spread for beef, Olson said.

According to figures available from USDA Livestock Market News September 1, the price spread from wholesale to retail for choice grade beef is averaging $220.58 per head, according to Olson. This is a new all-time high of over $80 per head above the August 15, 1971 price spread, he noted.

From August to September the total price spread—wholesale and retail—advanced 48.5 per cent which is an annual rate of 582 per cent, he said.

From the third week in August to the first week in December the feeder's price has fallen 35 per cent while at the same time the price of meat over the counter has declined only three to eight per cent, Olson said.

Officials of the National Livestock Feeders Association have been in Washington regularly since the freeze was initiated and recently have been contacting government officials about the farm-to-retail price situation.

Woodrow Collins, president of the state livestock association, has pledged his full support to Congressman Charles Thone in Thone's quest for federal investment.

her birthday fallen on the exact day drawn at random earlier, she would have taken home $300 in Birthday Bucks.

Local and area shoppers again will have a chance to win in the weekly promotion tonight (Thursday). The winning date will be announced in all participating businesses at 8:15 p.m.

Also, the second of two drawings for $100 in Christmas Bucks is scheduled for Friday, with the list of numbers being posted in businesses at 1 p.m. Shoppers may compare the numbers on tickets they have received while shopping with those posted. The $100 in coupons will be awarded to the person holding a ticket matching the number highest on the list at 8 p.m. at the Chamber of Commerce office.

litation of farm-to-retail price spreads.

As a result of the concern recently expressed by the 4,300 members of the Nebraska association, Collins is planning another visit to Washington to voice members' feelings about the farm-to-retail price spread.

The board of directors of the NENLFA suggests that all local feeders:

—Write to Thone in support of his quest for an investigation into farm-to-retail price spreads as well as to Senators Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska expressing concern for him.

—Request that the normal 10 cents for promotion and advertising be checked off on all cattle going to market.

—Try to market cattle when they are at a desirable weight and finish.

The NENLFA includes members from Wayne, Dixon, Dakota and Thurston Counties.

director for the foundation. Another resident of Bancroft happens to be one of the Stater editors. Jay Coppel, and his grandmother, Mrs. C.C. Coppel, still living there, recalls her memories of the Neihardt family in a story written by editor Vicki Miller.

Jay Coppel writes a warm account—both comic and serious—about the several encounters with Neihardt, starting when he was 13 and his school class went to hear the poet. Anybody who has been a 13-year-old boy can guess what he thought about a poet. The Coppel story, however, goes on to later encounters with Neihardt. It's a story very few people could have written.

Joe Mahan, who will be editor of the Stater for the second term, contributed three articles probing the Neihardt concepts of love, fun, death and being human.

Mahan summed up the staff's enthusiasm for the special edition when he gave this comment: "As we worked on it, we just got caught up with the man Neihardt."

Help Is Available At IRS Office

Taxpayer assistance will be available on Fridays only during the first three weeks in December, reports Willis Wachter, office manager for the Norfolk IRS office.

Wachter said that over 70 IRS employees in Nebraska are receiving special training, some for as much as seven weeks, to prepare them to assist taxpayers during the upcoming income tax filing season.

"Because so many of our people will be attending this training, we will be able to offer walk-in assistance in our Norfolk office on Fridays only during the first three weeks in December," Wachter said.

Toll-free telephone assistance will continue to be available Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Wachter urged taxpayers to call 800-642-9960 in the early morning or late afternoon and avoid Mondays, if possible, for faster service.

Normal taxpayer assistance will resume Dec. 24, and beginning in January, walk-in assistance in Norfolk will be available from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Monday through Friday.

THERE WERE some tense moments for Wayne High wrestling coach Don Koenig and his squad Monday night during early action of the Wayne-Randolph wrestling match at the city auditorium. Scott Brummond, center, appeared to be in serious trouble in the second period of his match against 119-pound Lester Loberg. Both were tied at 2-2 each before Loberg moved and 5-3 on a near fall. But after a short breather and talk with Koenig, right, Brummond came back to pin his man in 5:28. Looking on during the anxious times were, from left, Tom Frahm, Kevin Heithold, Steve Meyer, Randy Surber and assistant coach Rob Keilmann and Koenig.

WHS Grapplers Shrug Off Saturday's 8th-Place Showing to Topple Randolph

Wayne High wrestling team started out their dual competition Monday night with an impressive 30-15 win over a strong Randolph team which placed well ahead of the Blue Devils in Saturday's Blair Invitational tournament.

Coach Don Koenig's crew took six out of 11 matches, including pins by junior Scott Brummond, and seniors Steve Meyer, Kevin Heithold and Charles Brockman.

Brockman, entered in the heavyweight division, nailed Craig Bartels in the fastest time in 1:03. The pins by Meyer and Heithold were back-to-back, with Meyer beating 138-pound Greg Rudebusch in 3:04 and Heithold pinning Ted Fuchs in 3:42—the 145-pound bracket. Brummond rounded out the pins with a 5:28 time over Lester Loberg in the 119-pound class.

Barry Rubeck's decision over Randy Gubbels at 126 pounds made up for last Saturday's fourth place finish at Blair. In that meet, Gubbels pinned Rubeck in 4:45 to halt Rubeck's chances of taking third.

Monday night's win was a "great team effort," coach Koenig pointed out. "Randolph was fourth in the Blair meet while we were eighth. It's really great to know we came back after last Saturday and doubled the number of points Randolph scored on us tonight."

In that Saturday match, only one local matman took first. Senior Gordon Cook decided Dave Trout of Elk Horn, 2-0, to win the 167 pound title. "Gordie looked phenomenal," Koenig added. "He just flat out beat his opponent."

Brockman was the only other Devil to appear in the finals going against South Sioux's Ron Singly. The heavyweight, lost on a pin in 2:58 for second place. "Charlie looked good, but he just got caught," Koenig said.

In the reserve match Monday, Wayne literally tore apart Randolph's B team, 51-12. The reserves collected eight pins and one decision.

Parks Is Clean-Shaven Now, But Friday's Game With Hartington Cedar Catholic Could Alter Things

By BOB BARTLETT
Laurel's basketball team is sporting a new look this year. Head mentor Joel Parks vowed that if his team won the opening meet with Norfolk Catholic last Friday, he would shave off his summer beard. He's now beardless, and he hopes to keep that way through-out the year.

But Friday's match against Hartington Cedar Catholic may start some fuzz growing again.

The Trojans undoubtedly will be one of the biggest teams the Bears will face this year. Start out with 5-4 Gary Wieseler and then work up to 6-5 scoring leader Gene Scholl, who hit 23 points in his team's upset loss to Plattsmouth last Friday, 72-65. Add Kevin Becker, 6-8, and the Trojans look to be mighty tough.

Parks knows his team is going to have to employ a fast break to have any hopes of coming out of this game alive. "Our offense will depend on their defense," the coach said. "But that doesn't mean we're going to stand around."

Parks reiterated that it's going to be tough going inside with Hartington's three big men — which might mean that the Bears boss may be contemplating some outside shooting to draw out the Trojans.

Also listed on the slate for Friday are four other area home matches. Wynot will be at Winside, Winnebago at Allen, Wisner-Pilger at Wakefield, and South Sioux City at Wayne.

Blue Devil coach Bill Sharpe doesn't intend to make any radical changes when South Sioux comes calling Friday at the city auditorium. Just continue playing good, hustling basketball.

"I was very much pleased with the way the team played last week against Blair," he said. "The boys played like a team and showed good hustle." Sharpe noted.

Sharpe said he intends to play his same game and not change to "somebody else's" — that's the quickest way to beat yourself.

But looking at the South Sioux's height may prompt the Devil mentor to make some changes in his running game. Take 6-4 Brian Joe, Curly, the team's leading scorer last year, and 6-3 Guy Frank, and the Cardinals could very well pose as big a threat as any team in the area this year.

But two men won't make up coach Ken Major's team alone. He'll have plenty of six-foot junior power to move the ball and help with press.

For Sharpe, his biggest men on the floor will be 6-4 junior Bob Keating and 6-2 senior Bill Schwartz. From there the Devils are going to have to rely on team rebounding strength to stop the South Sioux club.

Another big team coming into the area Friday is Wisner-Pilger.

The Gators will take on Wakefield with 6-7 Steve Hornbeck leading the way. The senior Wisner standout had an impressive debut last week when he led his team with 31 points in a 59-56 victory over favored West Point Central Catholic. In addition to his closing second shot that put the Gators out in front, the towering center had 17 rebounds to his credit.

That in itself may make Trojan coach Joe Coble worry, but he has more to worry about because it wasn't Hornbeck alone that pulled the Gators out. Senior Bob Beckman and junior Tim McMaster played major roles in the upset, with 6-1 Beckman accounting for 14 points.

Last week against Winside, it was Wakefield's Doug Fischer who was the playmaker, setting up the Trojans' inside shots. Wisner, however, has its own playmaker — 5-10 Scott McGinnis. McGinnis will be the man to set up first-year Jerry Cassin's offense, centered, of course, around Beckman.

Coble said he plans another run-and-gun game, hoping that Gary Addink, Keith Siebrandt and Sam Uchelt will be able to get the ball off the boards and out to his hustling guards.

As the head man put it, "It's going to be an uphill battle."

Little is known about the remaining two foes — Wynot and Winnebago.

One of the differences in Robert Moore's lineup of Allen will be the possible absence of starter Charlie Geters. Last week, the senior missed seeing duty against Coleridge after a bout with a cold, and it still isn't known whether he will play Friday against Winnebago.

"For first-year coach Karl Luff, his Winside team will try to break into the win column Friday against Wynot. Luff realizes his team has to continue working on its offensive pattern before the team can click for victories.

The first week of prep picks didn't turn out too bad, 5-0, but this week there may be some upsets in the making. However, I'll go with these teams:

WS to Host Christmas Cage Meet

Wayne State will play host to its 16th annual Holiday Basketball Tournament beginning Dec. 28 and 29. Four collegiate teams will be competing for top honors.

Along with the four college teams, there will be eight high school teams competing Dec. 27-29.

The college division will begin at 3:15 p.m. Friday matching Wartburg against Bemidji State. The second game will start at 8:30 Friday night with Wayne going against Bethel College.

The consolation game will begin Saturday at 3 p.m. and the championship game will start at 8:15 Saturday night.

First round action in the high school division will be held Thursday. The first game begins at 2:45. Albion against Plattsmouth; the second game at 4:30, West Point C.C. and Scribner; third game at 6:15, with Piug and Syracuse; fourth game, 8 p.m., Wayne and North Bend.

Ticket prices, are $1.50 each day for adults, including college students, and $1 for high school students.

How Long Can Winside Maintain Win Streak?

How long can Winside High's wrestling team stretch its winning record?

Tuesday night the Wildcats surpassed their previous record of 16-0 over three seasons with a win over Pender.

BARCLAY

But coach Doug Barclay really isn't worried about how many dual wins his team can collect. He's more concerned with overall team improvement.

For the third-year head man, one of his main goals is to repeat, if not go beyond, last year's record of sending nine grapplers to the state tournament.

With six veteran standouts continuing their winning ways last Saturday at Wakefield's tournament, Barclay has good reason to believe his Winside crew will be ready for districts in February.

Bob Bowers, Keith Suel, Monte Pfeiffer, Gregg Lage, Dwight Lienemann and Dan Bowers posted wins at Wakefield's four-team meet.

Not to be forgotten are two new promising additions to Winside's team — Neil Wagner and Brad Brummels. Both grapplers took their last Saturday after Wagner pinned Joe Lamphear of Hartington and Brummels drew a bye.

This Saturday the Wildcats will be back on the road to tournament action as the Winside crew heads to the 10-team Stanton meet. Then it's back to dual competition a week from today (Thursday) against Neligh.

When it comes to trying to improve a wrestling team, Wakefield coach Lyle Trullinger may have the solution — plenty of wrestling matches.

Starting this Saturday the Trojans will participate in one tournament, followed by duals on Monday and Tuesday. Wakefield has plenty of talent, and about all that is needed is a little seasoning, which the head man hopes will come with the help of next week's busy slate.

Sentors Steve Sorenson, Roger Gustafson and Ken Dolph are providing the leadership for Trullinger's relatively young crew. All three were winners in Saturday's tournament after Friday's dual victories against Winside.

Wayne coach Don Koenig knows that it takes experience to make a good wrestling team, but his coming schedule with Class A teams is going to tax his wrestlers.

Tonight (Thursday) the Devils are to take on Blair at Blair, then host South Sioux the following week.

Both teams especially are going to be tough after last Saturday's Blair invitational. The Bears won that meet and South Sioux took second.

FOR THE first time in Wayne's history, the town will host the American Legion Area A baseball tournament next summer.

That's the official word from Wayne's American Legion post adulate, Chris Bargholz, after the state American Legion meeting in Kearney last week.

According to Bargholz, Wayne won the right to host the journey through a process of elimination. "Wayne and West Point were the only posts to bid for this year's meet," he said. "Since West Point had it last year, the vote went in favor of Wayne."

The area tournament will be held here the end of July or the beginning of August, Bargholz said.

Area A includes three districts covering nine counties — Wayne, Cedar, Dixon, Dakota, Burr, Washington, Dodge, Thurston and Cuming. The winner of the area competition advances to state. From there the next levels are regional and national tournaments.

MAYBE IT'S a good thing city recreation director Hank Overin got the news first on part of the city's ball diamond. I don't think he actually was thinking of getting the area tournament at Wayne when pulling in the new sod, but now that it is settled, maybe he'll be able to get more help and materials to complete the job of fixing up the ball diamond.

According to Hank, the job of laying the rest of the sod (along the third base line) probably will have to wait until early spring. "Unless we get a warm weekend to finish the job, the frost will prevent us from doing any more work," Overin said.

When next spring rolls around, Overin hopes to put up storm fence along first and third base lines, in addition to working on the stands and moving bleachers in left field. "There probably will be a lot more to do, but I'll wait until spring to worry about that," he added.

WINSIDE HEAD wrestling coach Doug Barclay wants to make it known that his team already has tied its previous undefeated dual mark of 16-0.

Last Friday the Cats made it 16-0 over three seasons when they beat Wakefield, 48-15. "When I was going over my record book, I found out that I had made a mistake in figuring the number of wins we already have," Barclay said. "Instead of being 14-0, as I said last week, we are 16-0," he noted before Tuesday night's match at Pender.

During the 1971-72 season, the Cats went 9-2, with their only dual losses to Oakland-Craig and Randolph. Winside was 5-0 in that season before two straight losses to the NEN clubs. The Cats, however, bounced back, winning their last four matches and starting their record string.

After completing an 11-0 mark for the 1972-73 season, the Cats made it 16-0 with Friday's win over Wakefield.

Bulldogs 18-Point Quarters Down Allen

Using four 18-point quarters, the Coleridge High basketball team ruined Allen's hopes of gaining revenge as the Bulldogs clipped the Eagles, 72-58, Saturday night.

Coleridge's top gunners, Tim Krie and Alan Benson, ripped the nets for 29 and 18 points respectively in leading the team to its second consecutive opening win over coach Bob Moore's Allen team. Last year the Bulldogs dropped Allen 68-54 on the Eagles' court.

Allen trailed 18-12 after the first period and dropped back 10 points at the half, 36-26.

"Coleridge was able to get the second and third shots from inside," Allen's coaching staff pointed out. Senior Scott VonMinden led Allen with nine rebounds out of the team's 26, but Coleridge's big men — Krie, Benson and Rick Hansen — were able to get to the ball and make the inside shots.

Allen's shooting percentage was a respectable 55 per cent, but most of those shots came from the outside. In the first half the Eagles hit four of their shots from inside compared to seven in the second half.

Jr. High Teams Win, Lose

Wayne's seventh and eighth grade basketball teams split a pair of games with Macy Monday night at the city auditorium.

Dave Schwartz led the seventh graders with eight points to help overcome Macy, 22-14. Tom Ginn and Brad Emry tied with six each as the home team built a 12-6 halftime lead. Mike Niemann and Shane Willis scored five and two points respectively to aid the winners.

Macy reversed the results in the eighth grade game by wiping out Wayne, 30-15. The visitors rolled out to an 18-10 first half margin as the home team grew cold in its shooting.

Marco Garrick was high for the locals with seven points, followed by Vic Sharpe with four.

Cats Ready For Omaha

"I think we're ready for Omaha," Wayne State Coach Ron Jones declared in what might seem a surprising attitude after his basketball team took a couple of blitzings last week in the Western Illinois Tournament.

However, Jones could say the Wildcats played their best of the season in succumbing by 89-68 to Western Illinois University and 94-67 to Athletics in Action. And the Cats played well, he said, in their biggest scoring romp, 102-86 over Winona State.

Jones said he thought Western Illinois and AIA could play nearly any team. In fact, the Athletics had already played three of the nation's top-rated quintets — Marquette, North Carolina State and Providence — and lost.

Wayne was scheduled to go against the University of Nebraska at Omaha Wednesday night at 8 in the UNO Fieldhouse. Statistically, the Wildcats have a 2-4 record since the game with Athletics in Action does not count. AIA is composed of former college stars, not representing a college.

Wayne center Neal Walde of Denison, Ia., continued steady improvement in the Western tournament. Coach Jones said

Walde clearly stood out as the meet's best center — "He out-scored and out-rebounded most of the players he went against."

The 6-8 Walde, a junior who saw only limited action the past two years, scored 70 points in the three Illinois games — 51 in the two that counted. He hit a career high 30 against Winona, which assistant coach Larry Schultz called "probably the biggest team we'll ever face."

Junior guard Charlie Henderson of Tampa, Fla., also enjoyed a banner game with 29 points, including 11 of 12 free throws. Walde has a 20-point average and a 60 per cent field shooting pace. Henderson is averaging 14.7 points; senior forward Ronnie Jones of Kankakee, Ill., 12.8.

Athlete Of The Week

ROGER GUSTAFSON, WAKEFIELD HIGH SCHOOL

High school wrestling teams in the area are starting to shape up, and some of them sport possible state material. Last year it was Winside that led the three schools in the number of grapplers attending the state meet in Lincoln, but this year the story could be different.

Helping to possibly change things around is a senior stalwart on the Trojan mat team, Roger Gustafson, this week's Athlete of the Week, is beginning to prove himself as an up-and-coming power in the 145 pound division.

Last Friday and Saturday Gustafson started to show his strength when he won both matches against a strong foe, Winside's Doug Lage.

Lage, one of nine Cats venturing to the state wrestling tournament last year, displayed his mat skill, but the Trojan grappler managed to upset the Wildcat veteran in the closing seconds with identical 4-3 scores during the teams' first dual Friday and Saturday's tournament.

"This year Rog has put on some very good muscle," coach Lyle Trullinger said of his two-year letterman. During Gustafson's past two years, the 145 pounder has been average in wrestling, but Trullinger has noticed a big change in his style this year.

"He's showed a lot of determination in his senior year," the coach went on, "which is what is needed to be a team leader."

Roger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gustafson of Wakefield, also has shown leadership in his academic career. During his three years at Wakefield High, Gustafson has been on the school honor roll.

This week's selection begins the Herald's regular Athlete of the Week honors for winter sports. Area coaches with someone deserving of the award should contact the newspaper by Tuesday each week.

WS Tankers Win Relays

Wayne State's swimming team made its season debut a success Saturday when it won the Jack Rabbit Relays at South Dakota State University, Brookings.

The Wildcat tankers won three of eight events, finished second in two others for a 96-point total. Kearney State tallied 94 for second among seven teams.

That 12 Wayne Kearney battle sets up a dandy dual when those teams meet Saturday at Kearney.

The other team scoring North Dakota 86, South Dakota State 82, North Dakota State 78, South Dakota 64, Concordia (Neb.) 12.

Wayne's first place finishes came in the 1,700 yard freestyle relay, with the trio of Dan Carney, Norfolk; Dave Justi,

Cold Second Half Halts Cats in Bid for Victory

A cold second half for Winside High spelled defeat for the Wildcats Saturday night as a good Ponca team delivered the team's second loss of the young season, 51-32.

The Wildcats, led by sophomore Bob Hoffman with 18 points, stayed with the taller and more experienced Indian club in the first half, with Ponca holding a two-point edge at the intermission, 22-20.

Ponca had a three-point lead after the first period, 11-8, before coach Karlin Luff's crew hit the nets for 12 in the second period, compared to 11 for the visitors.

But Ponca's two veterans, Craig Jones and Joe McManis, started going to the middle in the second half, for five to six baskets each to put the game out of reach for the smaller Winside club.

Jones led his team with 14 points, one more than McManis, to help put Ponca out in front, 38-26, after three periods. Coach Larry Buhl's Indians added another 13 points in the final frame while holding Winside to six.

"I was pleased with our defense in the first half," Luff pointed out. "We were in a man-to-man setup and stayed with them most of the game."

Luff attributed the second half breakdown to his shooting. The Cats only hit 23 per cent for six points each period. Both clubs were about equal the first half in the shooting department. Winside made eight of 29 tries for about 30 per cent while Ponca dropped in nine of 29.

However, foul shooting did make a big difference. "We had more fouls than they did (7-14), but they somehow got into the one-and-one situation before we did," Luff added. The Indians converted 13 of 23 charity tosses while Winside made two of four.

For the second night in a row, Winside's leading scorer, Hoffmann, went into the double figure column. The first-year starter had 14 points against Wakefield Friday night.

Winside's reserve team found the going rough against the

BOB HOFFMAN

Indians, who tagged a 45-30 loss on coach Mike Jones' club for a 9-2 record. Winside lost to Wakefield Friday night, 64-17.

PROTECTION OF YARD TREES

Rodents should always be considered a threat to trees. The danger from gnawing is almost certain to be worse in the winter, and rodents cause the most damage to young trees.

Mice and rabbits cause damage by girdling a tree. Rabbits are capable of cutting off young trees in one short operation. As the tree gets older and the bark gains in thickness, rabbits are less likely to be a problem.

In a yard, building a barrier around each tree will work satisfactorily. A piece of two foot high chicken netting cut long enough to encircle the tree and held in place by large staples made of No. 9 wire six to eight inches in length will make a good barrier.

Mice do their gnawing at the ground level. The scraping back of all ground cover (weeds, trash and dead grass) from the base of each tree is an excellent management practice in dealing with rodents. Mice like working under cover, and damage can be minimized by disposing of ground debris.

Bait stations can be used to thin down the mouse population.

PASTURING CORN STALKS

Pasturing corn stalks can be a good idea if they are properly fed, but proper feeding includes the addition of protein, mineral and vitamin. Corn stalks alone probably will do well to produce one half pound daily gain for beef calves, but adding protein and mineral vitamin supplement can double this gain.

Alfalfa hay is an ideal supplement for stalks. From three to five pounds of alfalfa hay per day will balance the ration. Daily hay feeding is not needed, and alternate days or twice-a-week feeding is probably better because cattle eat more nearly equal shares, and they also seem to go out and fill better on the rough feed instead of waiting for a daily hay feed. Range cubes to supply at least 16 pound of protein (2 pounds 32 per cent or 1 1/2 of 40 per cent protein cube) can be fed if alfalfa is not available.

Don't leave stock yearlings or calves in fields too long after the grain is gone. On the other hand, cows may overeat on dropped corn, so dividing fields into sizes which will clean up well in a week or 10 days is recommended.

Trees for Area Farmers Available

Farmers wanting to add to their present farmstead windbreaks or to plant new windbreaks may do so next spring at a relatively low cost.

The Clark-McNary tree program that provides trees to farmers will again be available in 1974 to area farmers, says William Yost, district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service office at Wakefield. A well planned windbreak around a home, farm buildings or livestock feeding areas will do much in lessening the effect of cold winter winds and drifting snow, says Yost. It will also add beauty to a farmstead and provide protection for different species of wildlife.

The SCS may be contacted for help in planning a tree planting, and Clark-McNary trees may be ordered either through the SCS or the County Extension Agent.

In a country concerned with a diminishing quality environment, tree plantings are becoming a popular way to bring beauty to an area, according to Yost.

The Service Station

Navy Radioman First Class Richard P. Heers, son of Mrs. Augusta Heers of Pilger, returned to his hometown at Long Beach, Calif., on board the destroyer escort ship USS Cook after a six month deployment to the Western Pacific.

He participated in bi-nation fleet training exercises in the Far East, and on the way home helped host more than 13,000 visitors to the ship during goodwill stops in Australia and New Zealand.

A 1959 graduate of Pilger High School, he joined the Navy in July, 1959.

The county committee is made up of three members, one being elected each year for a three-year term. The other two members are: Alden Johnson of Wakefield and Ralph Olson of Carroll.

4-H'ers Are Very Close to Goal

Nebraska 4-H'ers are "real close to their goal" of raising $37,500 for the National 4-H Center, said Wes Anes, state 4-H leader at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Nebraska has raised all but $970 of the money needed for center expansion.

The center, located in Washington, D.C., is in the process of about an $8 million expansion. Anes said. Dormitory facilities, cafeterias and meeting rooms are being built to raise the center's capacity from 350 to 650 people.

In addition to raising money for the center, Nebraska 4-H clubs have been working to raise about $6,500 for Nebraska 4-H'ers. He noted that all of this money has been raised.

Nebraska 4-H'ers have not relied on donations for the money, but have earned it through bake sales, sale of "The Nebraska 4-H Friends Cook book," carnivals and other services, he said.

Nebraska accepted the suggested goal of $1 per club member active in 1969, and county 4-H clubs were then given a goal based on the number of 4-H Club members in the county.

In Nebraska, an additional 20 cents was assessed for each youth, to be used for Nebraska 4-H activities. Four H'ers began raising money in 1970 and are now ending their three-year project. Anes said.

After completion of their goal for the center, Nebraska 4-H'ers will continue earning money for camps being built in Nebraska, Anes said. One camp will be located in Gretna, and one by the Harlan County Reservoir.

UN-L Veterinarian Urges More Spending for Work in Research Projects

A University of Nebraska Extension veterinarian last week advocated increased spending by state beef organizations for cattle disease research projects, "particularly bovine respiratory diseases where the losses are so large."

Speaking on "Programmed Feedlot Health" at the first of two Nebraska Beef Seminars at Pender, Dr. Alex Hogg told his audience that "respiratory diseases, such as shipping fever, pneumonia and diptheria, account for 75 per cent of the illnesses in feeder calves."

Losses from the shipping fever complex alone have been estimated at $10 to $20 for every calf in the feedlot, due to weight loss, poor feed utilization, slow gains, treatment costs or death.

"When these losses are calculated at the lowest range, the 1972 totals for Nebraska and Iowa are $40 million apiece, and $240 million for the 23 states feeding 85 per cent of the fed cattle," Hogg said.

"Since vaccines have not been developed for more than 50 per cent of the known viruses and bacteria that cause respiratory diseases in feedlot cattle, and since undoubtedly there are other unknown organisms involved, it follows that additional research efforts will be required if feedlot health is to be improved," he reasoned.

"Government and private research funds for disease research projects are becoming increasingly difficult to obtain. It is reasonable to assume that beef producers themselves

300 Attend Open House At Dahl's

About 300 people turned out for Sunday's open house at Dahl's Care Centre in Wayne, according to administrator Ken Dahl.

Visitors were able to see the numerous changes which have taken place at the retirement home, including the 38-bed addition to the facility completed last year and the 25-bed addition completed this fall.

The completion of the 25-bed addition ended a four-phase building program which began in 1962 with construction of the 40-bed main complex.

Boyle Co., which operates the retirement center, also operates retirement centers at Creighton, North Platte and four communities in Iowa.

Lack of concern worries energy boss

CAPITOL NEWS

LINCOLN — State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters, who also serves as Governor J. James Exon's energy crisis chief, has expressed concern that the fuel shortages aren't being taken seriously.

"People who haven't had trouble filling their gas tanks, whose lights go on when the switch is flipped, whose homes are warm and whose jobs seem safe aren't concerned," Peters said.

They have been discouraged from saving energy, he said, by misleading public statements by utilities who have given assurances supplies in Nebraska are adequate.

"Peters said that supplies aren't adequate, and even if they were other sections of the nation might get a share in Nebraska's allocations.

"As the winter wears on, conditions are getting worse, Peters said.

Even though natural gas companies can assure most homeowners that heating fuel will be available, they have to interrupt service to large customers to make sure the supply is there. Large customers include such places as electric power generating plants, hospitals and schools.

Those customers have to start using backup fuel — heating oil, usually, and sometimes propane. Both are in even shorter supply than natural gas.

Peters says it must be driven home to Nebraskans — all Americans, really — that turning off a light bulb in a home where there seems to be plenty of electricity can help heat a home somewhere else.

It works this way: By using less electricity in one place, less fuel oil is needed for generation, increasing the supply which can be used for home heating.

Another example involves industry. Peters often has cited the need to keep some industries going even if it means they get oil that farmers would like to have for fall plowing and fertilizing.

It doesn't do any good to get the land ready for next year's crop — or even to pick this year's — Peters says, if there's no activity at the packing plant... or no diesel fuel for the trucks to ship grain to market... or no propane to dry this year's wet harvest.

People must understand that all the problems are inter-related. Peters has said every time he has had a chance in recent days.

Peters and George Dworak are in charge of the allocation program for diesel fuel and heating oil. They instituted last week a program in which seven per cent of the fuel coming into Nebraska would be held at the terminal as a reserve for meeting hardship cases as they arise.

This plan stretches the federal rules a little, but Exon, Peters and the federal officials helping operate the state program decided it was worth doing anyway because it had been difficult to find supplies to meet emergencies otherwise.

"Peters hasn't been too pleased with federal regulations, he says, they put responsibilities on the states without giving authority to go with it and state officials — not just Nebraskans — aren't too glibly," as he put it, about being involved.

New regulations ask each state to set up rationing boards in each county, and Peters estimated it might cost as much as $2 million to operate a network of boards for a year in Nebraska. Since Uncle Sam hasn't offered to pay, Peters said, Nebraska taxpayers probably will have to.

Lieske Leaving
Bill Peters has been given a lot of special jobs during Jim Exon's administration. The fuel allocation duties are only the latest. He's been an adviser to the governor on many occasions.

Another member of the group closest to Exon has been Gus Lieske, who began as director of the State Department of Administrative Services (DAS) and resigned this month as chief of the office of budget and management.

Lieske's departure is the first in a long time from Exon's personal "cabinet." There may be many more changes in a second Exon term, if he decides to try for one and the voters decide to let him have it.

Lieske was perhaps the most controversial Exonite. He was sharply criticized by many persons in state government — particularly some legislators — for his budget policies. Lieske was in the trenches when the governor's "hold the line" decisions were made.

He is leaving to take a $35,000 job with an electronics firm — an opportunity to nearly double his state salary.

Exon said Lieske had been a "valuable asset" to the administration and a "vital force" in getting the budget policies implemented; but the governor said he understood why Lieske couldn't pass up "such a fine opportunity for his future."

Pear relish and the federal government

The following is a letter sent by a man from Arlington, Tex., to his congressional delegation in Washington, D. C.:

Gentlemen:

On Thursday, September 13, 1973, my wife and I were making pear relish, something we have done for many years. (It's wonderful on black-eyed peas.) She got carried away with quartering the pears and sliced the end of her left little finger — five stitches worth. She was well taken care of at the emergency room of the Arlington Memorial Hospital.

I am sure you are wondering why I'm taking the time and trouble to inform you of the foregoing. Read of:

On Wednesday, September 19, 1973, my wife received a long distance telephone call from what she thinks was the National Electronic Injury Surveillance System of the Federal Consumer Product Safety Commission asking if a product was involved. The person seemed to have considerably more interest in the product than in the state of my wife's health. My wife informed the person calling of the item involved, namely a kitchen knife. She also informed the person that she could lay no blame on the product; the operator was solely to blame.

I admire the efficiency of a system that can get word to Washington and back in less than one week about our pear relish operation. Further, quite honestly, this is much more government than I am interested in, care to have or want to pay for and recommend that this is one place you can start balancing the federal budget by cutting down on employees and their accompanying expenses.

Yours very truly,
W. A. Collins Jr.

P. S. In order to avoid duplication by this note, I am requesting Congressman Dale Milford if he would secure a ballpark estimate of the annual cost of this program for my information, i.e., the number of employees, total salaries, wafis line and office space cost, etc. There were at least five emergency cases during the hour we were in the waiting room at the hospital and from observation at least three of these involved a product. I shudder to think how many inquiries this program might entail, even if only a sampling is made of the injuries reported on a nationwide basis.

Mr. Collins got his answers. The "Electronic Injury Surveillance System" is budgeted at $500,000 a year. The average salary of its staff is $15,000.

OBSERVATIONS

Hard to swallow

State senator Terry Carpenter may be correct in saying all municipal generating plants in the state should be connected with another power company, but it's going to stick in the craw of a lot of people if the legislature forces the towns to intertie.

Municipal generating plants are important to the few towns in the state still maintaining them. They give the towns a good source of employment for local people, assure residents that electrical rates are kept at a minimum, provide a source of revenue for the communities, and give the towns a feeling of independence. At least, the municipal generating plant in Wayne does that, and we assume other towns with their own generating facilities operate them for the same reasons.

It would be wrong to pass legislation which would force those communities to intertie within a specified time period. The communities would be put in a poor position to bargain with the larger generating companies and would have to accept whatever contract were offered to them.

It would be better to let the communities go about connecting with larger power companies at their own pace. At least six of the 16 communities with their own generating facilities are already going down that road. The other communities must be thinking along that line now that everybody realizes that the fuel crisis in this nation isn't going to blow over in the next few months.

As usual, Carpenter has come out slugging. One of these times somebody's going to slug back. We doubt if it would shut him up for long, but the silence would be golden.

So they said

"When the cry is raised that we cannot afford to buy food today, what is really meant is 'I'm having some difficulty making payments on a second car!' Nowhere else but in America does the average wage earner have two cars, an air conditioned home and two TV sets. This is possible because in this country we spend a relatively small percentage of our income on food — 15.7 per cent this year." —Arizona Farm Bureau Federation

NEW SERVICE TECHNIQUES

Today's automobile has evolved from a relatively simple machine to a highly complex vehicle. Advances in technology have produced automotive components that last longer and perform better but, of necessity, are correspondingly more sophisticated.

For example, today's engines seldom require ring and valve jobs, not uncommon 25 years ago. Transmissions rarely cause trouble today with proper maintenance and normal driving, and usually perform well for the life of the car.

But on the other hand, emission controls mandated by the government have required additional sophisticated devices to be added to the engine such as air injection reactors and exhaust gas recirculators.

While cars have been improving in dependability, manufacturers have also been building in added safety, comfort and convenience. Items such as windshields with built-in radio antennas, electrically heated rear window defrosters, disc brakes and electronic fuel injection were either unavailable a few years ago or offered as optional equipment. Many of these items are now standard equipment on some models because of consumer demand.

Today's car buyer, of course, has even more options to choose from, like special suspension components for maximum handling, automatic temperature control and stereo sound systems. All this additional equipment results in a growing need for more highly trained technicians to service them. The average car, for example, contains some five miles of electrical wiring, not including the wiring required by the new 1974 seat belt interlock system. And while service information for one 1920 model car filled only 300 pages, the 1974 service manual has multiplied six times to some 1,800 pages.

The service equipment manufacturers have kept pace with this increased complexity by developing new and improved diagnostic equipment to help service technicians more easily identify the source of car problems.

One car manufacturer has developed a diagnostic testing system that plugs into its new model cars, another has installed onboard equipment that permits the car owner to monitor the condition of certain components and systems as he drives.

Clifton Forge, Va., Review

"One of the horrors of modern living that some think they may be able to put up with is the fantastic rise in the price of onions. Since last year the price of onions has quadrupled. You could buy two pounds last year for around 29 cents. This year one would cost nearly twice that. For most Americans, it already takes about all their money to buy a hamburger for lunch. Now they will have to say 'hold the onions.' We have a feeling that not too many tears will be shed."

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786.

Here's 2nd chance to comment on changes needed

For the benefit of those who may have missed it the first time around, we're printing our "Community Attitude Survey" on the editorial page again this issue. The survey gives you a second chance to tell us and others what you think needs the attention of private citizens and public officials if this community is to become even a better place to live, work and raise a family. Do you think we need more park space and playground areas? Or do you think something needs to be done to provide public restrooms in the downtown business district? Maybe you feel more attention should be placed on improving the general attractiveness of the city. Or maybe you think more work should be done in attracting industry to the city. Whatever your ideas are about improving Wayne, let us know about them by filling out the survey and returning it within the next few days. If you wish, jot down some thoughts on a separate sheet of paper and send it along to us. We'll try to include many of those comments when we release results of the survey within the next couple weeks. The survey is the third in our Speak Out series aimed at quizzing readers on a variety of issues and subjects.

Community Attitude Survey

In the following list of possible areas of community concern, please check the FIVE which you feel are the most important and should have the highest priority in terms of government and citizen action in order to make Wayne a better community.

WSC Theatre Students Direct Six One Acts

Some of the best acting of the season showed up in the annual "Tonight at Eight" presentations which ran Saturday through Tuesday at the Wayne State College Ramsey Theatre.

Two different bills of three one-act plays were presented on alternating evenings. All six plays were directed by senior theatre students at Wayne State College.

Four of the plays were light, with simple, romantic non-plots and they lived happily ever after conclusions. Despite the simplicity of their themes, the plays were entertaining and moved quickly enough to keep the audience from becoming bored.

although Dan Otto and Carolyn Roberts, in the lesser roles of Henry Potter, and Clara Monroe, were not as strong, Harold Grant provided the male voice which issued from the computer around which the sketch moved.

O Henry's "The Gift of the Magi," directed by Terry O'Donnell, included brilliant acting by Mary Harrison in the part of Della, and the rest of the cast kept pace with the excellent example she set. Paul Placek was Jim. Lucie Kuchar played a neighbor, Mrs. Boyd. Mary E. Hansen was Felice, a snippy shopgirl. Judy Roberts made the part of snooty Mme. Sofronie even more interesting. Doug Gooder was Mr. Hartman, a shopkeeper, and Steve Placek was the narrator.

The story, as you may recall, finds Della and Jim selling their most valued possessions in order to purchase Christmas gifts for each other — gifts which have no practical value. Jim sells his prized watch to buy a set of combs for Della's beautiful long hair, and Della sells her flowing locks to purchase a golden chain for Jim's watch.

Mike Carruthers directed "The Ugly Duckling," a Milne fairy tale as delightful to adults as children. The ridiculous king and queen come to life through the comic portrayals of Mike Schneidert and Barbara Curry. Deb Fellows made a lovely Princess Camilla and Kevin Bacon was a charming Prince Simon. Joe Manley gave punch to the part of Carlo. Connie Morrow played Dulcibella and Dave Borror portrayed the chancellor, a trio who made the most of their brief moments in the limelight.

The story, of course, is of the ugly princess who is not ugly after all, but who only needs love to make her beauty apparent.

Perhaps the most thought-provoking of the four romantic plays was "The Diary of Adam and Eve," by Mark Twain, directed by Martin Torrey.

Twain's idea of what the Garden of Eden might have been like after the arrival of Eve would make many a poor woman's libber bristle in chagrin, but at the same time it gave Noel Rennerfeldt and Becky Miller, as Adam and Eve, some excellent lines and ample opportunity to display their on-stage ability. Janet Macklin, who played the snake, was somewhat alarming in her over-worked costume, out of place in a play where scenery was abstract to the point of being nonexistent, and where the emphasis is on the exchanges between the actors.

Two of the six plays have more solemn themes. "Please No Flowers" by Joel Ensanía, and directed by Kass Klimer, places a pair of Jewish corpses, Lemt Grossman and Esther Rubel, in the position of being able to reflect on their lives and subsequent deaths.

Maureen Persinger, with a fascinating Jewish dialect, was particularly entertaining as Lena despite the grave mood of the playlet. Bev Lukefahr, playing Esther, often seemed not to know what to do with her hands and resorted too often to the same gesture which somewhat distracted from an otherwise good performance.

Leroy von Glan played the young man. Diane Baker was Sandy and Bernard Batenhorst was the gloomy caretaker. Mr. and Mrs. Hirschman were played by Rick Pippitt and Sue Morrison.

Introducing humor in the form of irony and really good character costuming were Diane Wuerth and Debbie Franco, who played Mrs. Bleeker and Mrs. Lehr.

of young lovers who are drowned.

Narration was by Jackie Rupp, and Greg Black. Black let loose with a rolling Irish R that thrilled the ear even while drawing a little too much attention to him.

Joe was played by John Stark, and Mag was played by Lori Adams. Both portrayals were natural and unaffected even though during the rather long play there was no moment when the attention was not on the two central characters.

For all the plays the audience was seated in a semicircle on stage and just inches away from the players, providing them with a close view and putting them in a position to notice even the slightest flaw in the performance. To the credit of casts and crews, the faults were few.

EXTENSION NOTES

By Anna Marie Kreifels

WHAT'S HAPPENED TO PRICES?

Everyone seems to be asking, "Why are we spending more for food?"

Many people may think the cost of food for the family is increasing only because prices are higher in supermarkets. But this isn't the only reason.

Americans are eating more food. The volume of food eaten per person will hit a new high in the U. S. in 1973. The per capita intake is up seven per cent from 10 years ago. This trend is worldwide, not just here at home.

People seem to have more money to spend for food.

Americans are eating more meat than ever before. We're eating almost twice as much beef per person as we did 20 years ago. Consumers also are demanding a higher quality meat. Americans are eating more prepared and convenience foods, and the cost of "built-in service" in convenience foods has gone up more than the cost of the food ingredients.

Americans also are eating out more often. Nationwide expenditures for meals eaten away from home rose almost eight per cent in 1972, a trend that continued in 1973. The cost of personal food service has risen much more rapidly than the price of food.

If you're trying to lower food costs for your family, try analyzing your present expenditures in terms of amounts consumed, types of foods purchased, use of convenience and prepared foods, and meals eaten away from home. There are ways to cut food costs if you really want to.

THANK YOU... We wish to thank all of our friends who made the open house of our 103-bed care facility such a pleasant success. "Where Caring Makes The Difference" DAHL CARE CENTRE

THE CITY of Wayne took on the Christmas look last week, thanks to city employees, workers from Wayne County Public Power District and Beta Sigma Psi fraternity members. They joined forces to check the Christmas lights and make sure everything was in order before braving the cold weather to put up the decorations. Bill Workman, of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, said the project ran smoothly due to the cooperation of those helping. "The Chamber decided to take on the project this year," he said, "to try to save the city some money." Last year the city paid about $450 for a Norfolk company to install the Christmas decorations, he said. Fraternity member Doug Nelson, (far right) checks the bulbs to see if they are working before fraternity brothers (second picture from right) Dave Cunningham (left), Marty Kuecker and Tom Harm help load up one of several pickups and trucks donated by Wortman Auto, Coryell Auto, WCPPD, the city, Wayne State College and Energy Systems. Bob Pratt, another fraternity member (third picture from right) also helps load one of the lamps before Bob Wingert (far left) and Ronald Wert, hidden, of WCPPD, install the ornaments. In addition to offering the use of their trucks, the city and power company donated three men for four hours.

ASCS has 3,000 county offices in nearly every county in the nation, and has administered the traditional farm programs—as well as emergency programs in crises. Recently, a reduction in workload forced the termination of 3,000 employees throughout the nation.

The national association points out that the 3,000 county offices are fully equipped and staffed, and additional duties in regards to the energy program could be assumed with a minimal increase in staff in each office.

Winside Rolls to 17-0 Record, Sweeps Wakefield Tourney

Now that Winside High has surpassed its previous record of 16 straight dual victories, coach Doug Barclay's main concern is his team's performance in Saturday's tournament at Stanton.

Undoubtedly, this weekend's matches will prove to be the toughest test to date for Barclay's crew—Howells will be at the meet to defend its championship status.

Winside, which finished in the runner-up slot in last year's meet, may have a better chance of taking the meet, especially after the way the grapplers pinned Pender Tuesday night, 5-0.

"I really was pleased with a couple of my wrestlers," Barclay noted. Brad Brummels, who lost to Pender's Wes Dunn at 119 pounds in the preliminaries of the Wakefield tournament last Saturday, reversed that result by downing Dunn. Another good match saw Lynn Langenberg, 126, come from a 13-0 deficit to pin Doug Powley in 4:49. What made the match even more exciting for Winside followers was that Lynn moved up from his regular 119 weight and still beat his man.

"It's exceptionally gratifying to see him come back to win," Barclay said. "A lot of guys will lay down and quit at that point."

As a team, Barclay noted that his squad did a fine job. That fine job was only part of Winside's wrestling display during the past week.

Saturday the Wildcats all but ran away with the four-team Wakefield tournament, scoring 109½ points to outdistance host Wakefield with 57½. Pender had 53½. Hartington 35.

The Cats claimed six of the 12 matches—all on pins by Bob Bowers, Keith Suehl, Monte Pfeiffer, Gregg Lage, Dwight Lienemann and Dan Bowers. Brummels and Neil Wagner were the only other Cats to place—in the top three spots. Wagner pinned Joe Lamphear of Hartington in 2:15 for third while Brad drew a bye in his class, also for third.

Wakefield coach Lyle Trullinger, pleased with his wrestler's performance Saturday, had three veterans pull through with victories.

Ken Dolph led the way in the 119-pound division with a 2-1 overtime decision over Dunn; Steve Sorenson, 155, decided Gary Dunn of Pender, 3-0, after Roger Gustafson decided Doug Lage of Winside, 4-3, in the 145 class. Last Friday the senior Trojan came from behind to win a 4-3 decision over Lage during a dual.

In wrestling for third place, 98-pound Terry Borg used a 2-1 overtime decision to defeat Darrell Theone of Hartington. Also, Brian Newton (105) pinned Paul Hansen of Pender in 2:32, and John Polen got a pin over Doug Powley of Pender at 126 in 4:33, both worth third placings.

Others taking third, by bytes, were Pat Nicholson (167), Steve Greve (185) and heavyweight Merrill Hale.

Results of Tuesday night's Wakefield-Winside Pilger dual were not available.

4-H Council Tabs Officers
Officers of the Wayne County 4-H Council were elected recently.

New president of the organization replacing Harold Wittler of Hoskins is Bob Thomsen of Wakefield.
Mrs. Dennis Greunke of Winside is the new vice president, taking over the post held the past year by Bob Thomsen of Wakefield and new secretary-treasurer is Janet Spittgerber of Winside, who replaced Renee Puls of Hoskins.

New members were elected in October. They include Mrs. Greunke, Miss Spittgerber, John Anderson of Wayne and Steve Gramlich of Carroll.

Business notes.

John Anderson of Wayne attended a recent delegate information meeting of Midwest Breeders Cooperative at Carroll, Ia. Each year, delegates and alternates of the Cooperative are elected locally to represent farmers in their particular area.

Midwest president Robert E. Wallin, general manager, reported on the strong financial position evident through the third quarter of the organization's business year.

Midwest Breeders, the nation's largest farmer owned cat breeding organization, provides a total herd-improvement program, technician service, direct sales, herdman training and herd evaluation.

A Wayne merchant, Griess Rexall Store, is part of a new nationwide gift giving system that makes it possible to have a gift delivered almost anywhere in the country within hours.

The system is operated by GiftAmerica, a subsidiary of the Western Union Corp. Deliveries are made through the network of 5,500 GiftAmerica dealers across the nation, and purchases can be charged to most major credit cards.

Gifts, which are on display at GiftAmerica Stores, range in price from $15 to $45. The local dealer relays all orders to GiftAmerica's computerized service center in St. Louis, Mo., which in turn contacts the dealer nearest the recipient's home. The dealer signs the special occasion card, wraps the gift and delivers it.

'Promise, Problems Ahead For Western Hemisphere'

Both promise and problems lie ahead for the western hemisphere, former President of Peru Fernando Belaunde Pery told a Wayne State audience recently.

Speaking mainly with optimism, Dr. Belaunde Pery said he sees promise through technology for the western hemisphere to achieve self-sufficiency. "That, he thought, should be the goal of the decade ahead."

"The United States has achieved 'much' from the Panama Canal to Skylab," he said. "There are similarities in their significance."

By conquering the plague of yellow fever in order to build the canal in early 1900's, the United States made the tropics livable, open to development.

By conquering space, the United States has technology now to solve many problems on earth, he said. However, solutions also will depend on new concepts of multi-national law and cooperation.

He traced the ups and downs of U.S. relations with Latin America and noted that U.S. aid, though greater than any other nation's in total, still ranks sixth or seventh in percentage of gross national product.

Belaunde Pery said the Alliance for Progress, initiated in the Kennedy administration, has left this main — the legacy of national planning in Latin America.

"Unfortunately," he added, "The United States is not doing enough planning for itself."

Latin America is overcoming some of the "black legends" that have troubled its government and people — dictatorships, frequent upheavals of government, unequal taxation. He pointed out that Mexico had its agrarian revolution before Russia's and that every Latin nation has since then experienced an agrarian revolution.

Belaunde Pery said freedom of expression of the press is essential to future development. He indicated there is progress in this respect.

Asked about the future of oil production, Belaunde Pery said there is reason to believe Latin America may have far greater reserves than it currently knows. Unlike the Arab nations where flat desert land makes oil exploration easy, Latin America's forested, mountainous land make it difficult.

"The United States has achieved 'much' from the Panama Canal to Skylab," he said. "There are similarities in their significance."

This is a reminder that we are all fair game for misfortune. There is no reasonable manner of preparing for or anticipating the whims of fate. It follows that we should be mentally conditioned to shake off misfortune as best as we can and go about the task of bringing our lives back to an even keel.

Faith, more than any other single factor, is our strongest and most dependable ally when we are troubled. Without it we generally find the road back from misfortune to be longer, more despairing and possibly impassable.

Sympathetic concern and friendly understanding have been the keystones of our service to this community, spanning nearly two-thirds of a century.
