2-Chief Problem Now No-Chief Problem

By NORVIN HANSEN
A three-man civil service commission decided Saturday morning whether to uphold the latest firing of Wayne police chief Vern Fairchild by mayor Kent Hall.
The commission's decision was not released to the public, however, because the city and Fairchild have to be notified by registered mail of the decision, according to Joe Nuss, one of the members of the commission. Registered letters wouldn't reach the parties involved until today (Monday), Nuss added.

Hall fired Fairchild Thursday afternoon for the second time in a little over eight months.
This time, however, Hall listed in writing several specific reasons for his action, something which he did not do when he fired the chief in April.

That first attempt at firing Fairchild was ruled void in Wayne county district court earlier in December and the city was ordered to reinstate Fairchild as chief. The judge said the city was wrong in not adopting civil service protection for paid members of the police department as required in first class cities.
That left the city with two chiefs of police, for the city had hired Robert Evers, a Fremont policeman, to fill Fairchild's post starting in June.
By Thursday night, however, the city was without even a single police chief.
At a special meeting of the city council Thursday night Hall said he had decided to "terminate the services" of Evers effective immediately. Evers would have ended his six-month probationary period with the local police department at the end of this month but, according to the city attorney, would then have been entitled to civil service rights.

Councilmen voted 7-0 to pay Evers the equivalent of one month's salary following his dismissal. Evers was being paid $825 a month plus benefits during his six months on the job.
Councilmen also agreed to let assistant chief E. L. "Pat" Hailey take charge of the police department until the steps required under civil service are completed on the latest firing of Fairchild.

Those steps include the handing down of a decision by the civil service board. If the board agrees with the firing, Fairchild could appeal for a public hearing before the board to argue his case, and he could then appeal to district court if he failed to gain reinstatement, the city attorney said.
If the civil service board agreed Hall was unjustified in firing Fairchild, however, the firing would be ruled void and Fairchild would once again take over as chief, according to the city attorney.
On that civil service board, appointed by Hall just this month, are Wayne State College instructor Dr. Freeman Decker and local businessmen Joe Nuss and Robert Merchant. Appointment of the board was ordered by the district judge when he ordered Fairchild reinstated earlier this month.

Merchant and Nuss decided on whether Hall was justified in firing Fairchild. Decker was out of town and unable to attend the meeting.
Thursday night the city council wrestled for about an hour and a half with the problem of what the city should do for a police chief until Fairchild's case weaves its way through civil service and, possibly, district court.

Local Band Seeing Sights in Dallas

Wayne High's marching band is in Dallas, ready to take part in the Cotton Bowl Parade and watch the Nebraska-Texas football game on New Year's Day.
The band, 97 strong, loaded up on three charter buses about midnight Friday night before starting the trek south.
The parade and football game will be televised nationally, with the parade scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.
The local musicians are the only high school band from Nebraska which will participate in the nationally televised parade. It marks the first time in the community's history that a high school group has taken part in a major college bowl activity.
Bandmen raised more than $12,000 to finance the trip to Dallas, much of it coming through contributions from local businessmen. Band members also tackled odd jobs and held fund raising events such as soup suppers to raise money for the trip.
In Dallas as chaperones are 19 adults. Several other local area residents made the trip to Dallas to watch the parade and football game.

Marching with the band will be Monika Plehn, American Field Exchange student from Germany. Also in the band will be seniors Gary Ruben and David Owens. W-Club members who carry the band's banner. The band will include six twirlers and drum major Gary Stollenberg.
During their stay in Dallas, band members will take part in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Eve party at the State Fair Park as well as four such local interest sites as the place where President John F. Kennedy was assassinated. Bandmen will play Saturday night during a professional ice hockey game, and Sunday the group gave a

Hall Lists Reasons for Firing Fairchild

Wayne mayor Kent Hall has listed specific reasons in eight general areas for his decision to fire police chief Vern Fairchild for the second time in a little over eight months.
Hall fired Fairchild Thursday afternoon. The decision will now be reviewed by the recently appointed civil service commission, which is expected to hand down its decision by Wednesday, according to the city attorney.

Reasons for Hall's decision to fire the chief are contained in a five page notice delivered to Fairchild and the civil service commission on the commission, are Dr. Freeman Decker, professor of education at Wayne State College, and local businessmen Joe Nuss and Robert Merchant.
The eight general areas covers what Hall calls incompetency of duty, inefficiency of duty, inattention to duty, dereliction of duties, insubordination, discourteous treatment of the public and fellow officers, acts and omissions that tended to injure public service, and prejudicial conduct.

The last one, prejudicial conduct, includes the reason Hall gave when he fired Fairchild for the first time last April after Fairchild conducted an investigation of local liquor establishments — Hall says in the notice that the manner in which the investigation was conducted caused "serious questions to be raised as to whether or not the action taken by the investigating officer was, in fact, entrapment." It also caused "hard feelings" and exceeded "bounds of authority given for such investigation," according to the notice.

Fairchild brought in two men from outside the city to help in the undercover investigation. He said he told the men to purchase liquor in five bars and to spike their beer while in the bars to see if the bartenders would permit it. He said he also told them to attempt to purchase drinks in three liquor establishments which at that time required persons to buy memberships before they could purchase drinks.

Hall also says in the notice that Fairchild failed to keep adequate records, failed to properly investigate criminal activities, failed to properly check fire and bank alarm systems, failed to act on suggestions and orders from the mayor, and failed to cooperate with other city department heads to enforce city ordinances.

He also says in the notice that Fairchild repeatedly exceeded his authority as chief without consulting with the mayor or council, and that he showed acts of favoritism to certain individuals.
Numerous citizens complained about Fairchild's attitude toward them and the general appearance of the police department, according to Hall's notice, bringing "discredit upon the See FIRING, page 12

Russell Wants, Doesn't Get Hall to Quit

Wayne councilman Vernon Russell asked for — but failed to get — mayor Kent Hall's resignation during Thursday night's special council meeting.
Russell's request for Hall's resignation came during argument about how to solve the dilemma the city faces in its police department.
Hall Thursday afternoon fired chief Vern Fairchild, the second time he has done so in just over eight months. Thursday night the council went along with Hall's recommendation to dis-

WS Teachers Disagree With Cutting Positions

The faculty of Wayne State's School of Arts and Sciences disagrees with an administrative decision in reducing teaching positions for the 1974-75 school year.
Because of a legislative formula in funding the state colleges, coupled with an expected drop in enrollment, college officials anticipate the need to eliminate eight faculty positions.

The problem confronting officials was which positions to eliminate with least impact on the total college teaching program. On Dec. 15, the decision was announced in letters notifying individual faculty members that their positions might not exist in the fall term of 1974.

This will depend on the budget which the Legislature adopts in 1974. If it is higher than expected, the faculty retrenchment picture might change.

Of the eight faculty positions tentatively to be eliminated, seven come from the School of Arts and Sciences, which includes departments of humanities, social sciences, mathematics, sciences and fine arts.

Faculty in these departments, at a Dec. 13 meeting, expressed dissatisfaction with this ration of retrenchment.
By a vote of 47-1, the school's faculty passed a resolution "opposing the policy being followed by the administration of Wayne State College in the retrenchment decisions of December, 1973."

Seymour Andersen of the English faculty, presented the motion after Dr. Irvin Brandt, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, explained factors which led to the decision of which faculty might be retrenched.
Dr. Brandt distributed a chart of figures showing enrollment, student credit hours and faculty in each of the college's department for the past three years. These figures, he said, plus other factors, went into the decision on faculty reduction.
President Lyle Seymour explained, at a convocation Dec. 14, that the reductions were made in departments, and that the School of Arts and Sciences was not singled out for the burden of reduction.
At the school's meeting, the question was raised whether Andersen's motion suggested a vote of "no confidence" in the administration, Andersen said. "No, it was not." Disagreement, he said, but not no confidence.
The motion directed that copies of Andersen's resolution be sent to the college administration, faculty, State College Board of Trustees, the board's executive office, Gov. J. J. Exon, and the Legislature's appropriations committee chairman.
However, before it was sent to See DISAGREEMENT, page 12

Hoskins Man

Is Injured In Accident

The Hoskins rescue unit was called to the Lyle Roker farm southwest of Hoskins about 5 a.m. Dec. 22 to take Walter Wendt, 22, of rural Hoskins, to a Norfolk Hospital.

Wendt was released after being treated for leg and head cuts and bruises suffered when the 1970 car he was driving went out of control. The northbound car reportedly slid across a ditch, jumped a driveway and slid on its side into a grove of trees. The car was extensively damaged.

State patrolman Harold Nielsen of Norfolk investigated.

'No Resolutions for Me'

"Good grief," as Charlie Brown might say. "The new year is upon us and I haven't won a game for 1973 yet."

I have a lot of empathy for guys like Charlie Brown. I too have experienced the pain of being fourth in a contest that awards three prizes.

Maybe that's why I no longer believe in New Year's resolutions. If you compile an extensive list of idealistic goals, you are apt to forget most of them anyway. And if you make one, very important resolution, you really feel rotten when you blow it.

So this year, as the clock strikes the final hours of the nineteen hundred and seventy-third year since the death of a man who had it all figured, I won't be penning absurd promises which would serve only to increase the guilt feelings I already have over my existence.

Instead, I think I'll lean back in the rocker, looking out the front window, where hopefully big fluffy snowflakes will be tumbling out of the sky to cover the ground with a fresh start for the next day and the next year.

And rather than recalling all the times I fell flat during the past year, I'm going to reflect on the frosting of '73.

Instead of resolution number one, I'm going to dwell on new friends who have become an important part of my existence. And in place of resolution number two, I'm going to be thankful for new ideas which have opened the way to greater awareness.

And then, because thoughts like these tend to make me recall other days, and other places and old friends, I may spend the rest of 1973 writing the Christmas cards I never got around to sending out earlier this month.

May you find your happiness in 1974.

State Senators Are Off and Running . . . and It May Be Interesting

CAPITAL NEWS
LINCOLN—They're off, the 48 men and one woman who will be spending 60 working days trying to decide what kind of laws will be best for you and everybody else in the state.

This will be the second time since the adoption of the annual session system that the Legislature has met during an election year, but it's the first that has featured a race for governor (J. J. Exon was in mid-term in 1972).

There has been a good deal of speculation about how much the political climate will affect the consideration of those laws the senators are going to pass.

The budget bill always causes controversy, but never before has the chairman of the budget committee been running for the Republican nomination for governor, while the Democratic incumbent governor is asking to be re-elected.

Add to that the announced intention of another senator to seek election as governor as a petition candidate and the presence of a candidate for lieutenant governor (Democratic) on the legislative lineup.

All of those people can't expect a happy new year; not if victory at the polls is the key to their happiness.

Penal Reform Switch
 The 1974 session begins without the peace on earth and brotherhood that had been predicted for the penal reform issue.

In fact, some observers have said the whole package may come apart at the seams.

It began with everything coming up roses when Governor J. J. Exon, who had been opposed to judiciary committee proposals in 1973, announced his support for improved rehabilitation programs in the state's correctional institutions and a construction schedule which included a new reformatory-type facility in Lincoln, a diagnostic and evaluation center in Lincoln and renovation of Lincoln's state penitentiary.

Cracks started developing when budget chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings said there was too much emphasis on construction and not enough on programming.

Then judiciary, chairman Roland Luedtke of Lincoln found his own committee wasn't unified; nor with the Exon-administration timetable for beefing up rehabilitation efforts in terms of expanded work and educational release.

The committee overruled chairman Luedtke and voted 3-2 to have the reformatory replacement—formally described as a medium-minimum security facility—built in Omaha, instead of Lincoln.

Luedtke and the governor's spokesmen (new allies) said the Lincoln site was better because the staff is in Lincoln and the new diagnostic and evaluation center is to be in the Capital City. Land also is available in Lincoln.

But Senator Richard Fellman of Omaha said there are more Omahans in the prison system than persons from anywhere else and that there is rehabilitative value in having the prison located where it is convenient for friends and relatives to visit inmates.

Luedtke said he wouldn't give his support to the switch unless he was certain that it wouldn't upset his compromise agreement with the governor. Luedtke said he didn't think the lawmakers would have enough votes to overcome a veto if Exon didn't like the switch to Omaha.

Highway Money Curbed
 The new legislative session probably will have to tackle the question of providing additional revenues for a highway construction program that's financed by a per-gallon gas tax.

With the energy shortage and reduced gasoline consumption, revenues will continue to slip.

The options: Increase the rate of the tax, switch to a percentage tax tied to price instead of gallons or leave everything the way it is.

Senator Jerome Warner of Waverly, who sponsored a 1969 package of highway legislation which overhauled the state's road program, said he thinks the revenue ought to remain as is. He said there will be price increases in petroleum products and the federal government might increase taxes. That's not the time, he said, for the state to make an even bigger burden on the consumer.

David Breslow of Lincoln has suggested a two-cent hike in the per-gallon rate and Thane Davis of Hynalls has urged a switch to an excise tax on price. Both are members of the State Highway Commission, which received a report recently on the projected skid in road-building revenues unless something is done to the user tax system.

An estimated swarm of 250,000-million locusts once covered an area of 2,000 square miles.

NU Agronomist Offers Farmers Ways To Beat Expected Fertilizer Shortage

With a 10 per cent nitrogen shortage projected for the 1974 spring season, growers must begin to consider alternative decisions, says Dr. Richard Wiese, University of Nebraska-Lincoln extension agronomist.

The agronomist pointed to energy supplies as the root of both the general manufactured supply shortage and the distribution of materials problem.

"Energy, particularly natural gas supply, is becoming more restrictive to make anhydrous ammonia. Diesel fuel supplies are and will affect over-the-road transportation to distribute fertilizer materials from major barge or rail terminals," he noted.

Predicted high fuel costs could make manufacturing cost of anhydrous ammonia very near or equal to the cost by which anhydrous ammonia was once delivered and applied, said Wiese.

Tax Assistance Now Available Area Residents

The Internal Revenue Service and the Nebraska Department of Revenue are again combining efforts to provide free assistance in preparing federal and state income tax returns.

This year, however, assistance has been expanded to include some evenings and Saturdays.

Federal and state representatives will be available in the same offices in 14 Nebraska cities through April 15. After April 15, federal and state representatives will be available in these cities on certain designated days (to be announced later), but they will be located in their respective offices.

Wayne area residents may get assistance in preparing their income tax returns at the Norfolk post office and courthouse building at 125 S. Fourth St. The hours are 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Mondays through Fridays from Jan. 2-April 12. Assistance will also be available on Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Jan. 19 and 26, Feb. 2 and 9, and April 6 and 13. The office will be open April 15 from 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.

the future by Wiese:

- Soil testing becomes the single most important tool for getting information helpful in making decisions on fertilizer-nutrient use. Be more precise and careful in soil sampling. Probe soils with a sampling tool at least 15 times. Mix this soil to make up one sample. Take a soil sample from each 15-25 acres. Be sure to take two to three samples per field of any size. This approach will give a good indication of the variability in fertility in the field and assist in better interpretation of the soil test values.
- Broadcast applications of fertilizer are accomplished with ease. However, crops will do equally well when smaller quantities of fertilizer are placed in a band with, near or beside the point of seed placement. This necessitates separate application equipment and with a greater shortage of liquid than dry materials, attachments for dry materials may have to be the best decision. Return to soil test information and other management information to determine whether or not a band of fertilizer near the point of seed placement will be a beneficial practice.
- Applying some nitrogen in the irrigation water is more important on sandy than on fine-textured soils. Several trials show yield improvement when nitrogen is applied at a time just ahead of seed development. The practice can be used when less than adequate applications of nitrogen are made in fall or in spring ahead of planting.
- Corn has a high fertilizer need, particularly for nitrogen. Where supplies are short, reduce the amount of nitrogen applied on grain sorghum rather than on corn. A 20 per cent reduction of a desired rate of nitrogen on sorghum will be a less depressing effect on yield than a 20 per cent reduction of nitrogen on corn.

- When the full application rate desired for nitrogen or phosphorus can be partially met, spread the limited amount on all acreage. This practice has proven to be more profitable than not fertilizing a part of the acreage.
- Crop prices, a farm livestock program, equipment and labor will all be part of the consideration in shifting to another crop. Soybean production is a profitable crop in dryland and can be grown on fertile soils without the need for fertilizer. Alfalfa is profitable under irrigation or dryland, when feed is needed or a potentially good market for hay exists in the community. Phosphorus is the single most important nutrient for alfalfa. Grain sorghum has a slightly lower need for nitrogen than corn.
- Manure usage went out of vogue as fertilizer became a popular and reasonable cost input for production. The beneficial use of manure has not changed—you can continue to expect three to five pounds of nitrogen from each ton of manure. An application of 15 tons of manure has the ability to replace 45-75 lbs./A of commercial fertilizer nitrogen.
- Crop stands are directly related to yields up to a given population for the row crops, soybeans, sugar beets and field beans. Suitable stands for the field, the crop and soil conditions must be adequate to make the best use of all energy inputs to the crop. Adjust planting machinery to suitable planting rates, operate planting machinery at the proper speed and depth, and finally adjust the planting equipment for different field conditions.

Ak-Sar-Ben Okays Changes For 47th Show

Several changes in the 1974 Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Show format and schedule have been approved by the Ak-Sar-Ben board of governors following recommendations made by the stock show and executive committees. The 47th edition of the world's largest 4-H livestock show will be held Sept. 20-28.

Due to a 25 per cent increase in 4-H entries over the past five years, the schedule has been realigned to include the elimination of open class Appaloosa, Quarter Horse and Palomino horse shows. The change allows for an extended 4-H light horse show to two days in 1974.

Other major changes approved for the show include:

- The market beef show will be shortened one day by marketing the blue, red and white ribbon market beef direct to cooperating packers.
- A single auction involving the grand champion, purple ribbon market beef, sheep and swine will be held.
- A 4-H feeder calf show will be added.
- Polled Hereford and commercial beef breeding classes will be added to the breeding heifer show.
- The dairy show will start Friday afternoon rather than Saturday. Minnesota dairy exhibitors are being invited for the first time.

Blue Devils Bid for Tourney Finals Falter In Overtime Action Against Plattsmouth

By BOB BARTLETT

A 22-point effort by Wayne's Bob Keating wasn't enough to help pull the Blue Devils into the finals of the Wayne State holiday basketball tournament Friday night when defending champion Plattsmouth used an overtime to down the locals, 67-61.

Despite Keating's brilliant board work and aggressive offensive scoring, the Devils lost the race in the fifth period, scoring four points to Plattsmouth's 10.

The 64 junior dumped in two crucial baskets, along with a tally by Bill Schwartz, in the beginning of the fourth quarter to erase a six-point deficit and make the score 47-47.

From then on the game was a seesaw battle, with both clubs knifing at 57 apiece with only seconds left to play after Keating sank a layup. Wayne got a break with eight seconds left in the game when Ehlers caused Plattsmouth's guard, Keith Heedum, to roll the ball off his leg and go out of bounds.

The Devils quickly called time out to set up the last shot by Keating. However, a pass to the big man was intercepted by Heedum to send the game in overtime.

During the overtime coach Rich McGill's crew showed its poise and controlled the ball while Wayne continued to run into turnover problems.

"None of the boys played a bad game. Wayne coach Bill Sharpe pointed out. "We just had a case of too many turnovers. I really didn't think that Plattsmouth's full court press would hurt us."

But the fact is, it did. From the outset of the game, both teams played hustling ball, with the locals shrugging off Plattsmouth's press to take a first period edge, 18-14. But the next two quarters turned out to belong to another Blue Devil team.

McGill's troops paced by another 22-point scorer, 63 Joe Peitzmeier, suddenly turned the game around with a tenacious defense that caused the Wayne team to give up the ball on bad passes.

After a 21-point second quarter effort by Plattsmouth for a 35-29, halftime edge, though, Wayne started to adapt to the visitor's press. But bringing the ball down still caused the locals problems. Both clubs scored 12 points each in the third frame, but Plattsmouth lost its momentum after taking a 12-point lead, 43-31.

two quarters before Wayne held him to six in the last half. Vaughn Kinney had 13 for North Bend's second man in double figures.

Syracuse upset Lincoln Plus X, 53-48, Thursday in overtime. The Rockets, led by 6.2 Don Sautter's 23 points, erased a seven point deficit before the half and took advantage of the Thunderbolts' miscues to knot the game at 48-48.

Coach Leon Rose's club then used its stiff zone defense to stop the Lincoln club from getting inside shots.

In other first-day action, West Point Central Catholic breezed past Scribner, 79-64, on the hot shooting of senior guard Kevin Mahlberg's 20 points. Helping out were Glenn Randel and Tom Ridder with 15 and 15 points respectively.

It took time for coach Rich McGill's Plattsmouth squad, to untrack, but the Blue Devils got away with a 58-48 downing of Albin.

High scorers for Plattsmouth were Joe Peitzmeier with 14.

gave the Knights a good shot position. Meanwhile Beaver offense fired from all over. Scappy little (5'10) guard Frank Kopetka chucked in fielders from near and far, and finished with a game high 24.

Wayne State and Bethel, of St. Paul, Minn., changed the pace to a mostly control game. By mid first-half, the scoreboard showed only 15-8, Wayne on top, and 28-22 at intermission, the Wildcats still in charge.

It was more of the same in second half, with a couple of important differences. Wayne's Chuck Collins and Bob Wentz went on a rampage with 10 and six points in a short span. Neither has played much lately, but both gave challenge they're out for somebody else's job.

Bethel's Royals chipped the Wayne lead to 56-54 a minute and a half from the end, but could not convert a potential tying effort in the final seconds. Final score: 57-54 for Wayne. Statistically, it was an oddity.

A basketball fan who likes the sport fast and wild, or the guy who likes it slow and deliberate — both had their favorite fare in collegiate action of the Wayne State Holiday Tournament Friday.

Bemidji State of Minnesota played it fast. Wayne State played it slow. In battling to the 8:15 p.m. Saturday final in Rice Gym, The Royals were slated to meet Wartburg Saturday for third place.

The 60 Beavers from Bemidji, coming in after a two-week layoff from organized practice (campus closed to save energy), went against Wartburg College of Waverly, Ia., in the college opener.

First half combat saw Bemidji go ahead by as much as 32-22 until Wartburg's Knights rallied for a 38-38 half tie. And after the half, Wartburg led briefly by 42-39.

Bemidji defense, tough all through the first half, got tougher after intermission, seldom

THESE WERE hands all around Wayne's Bill Schwartz as he tried to make a two point conversion. Plattsmouth's Joe Peitzmeier (34) aims to knock the ball out of Schwartz's hand. Standing guard are Kerry Jech for Wayne and Tom Shane for Plattsmouth.

PLATTSMOUTH'S Jeff Fitzpatrick doesn't quite make it in trying to block Bob Keating's shot from the side. Keating, who led Wayne with 22 points, played one of his finest games Friday night despite the team's 67-61 overtime loss.

Team 2 Leads In B League

How long Team 2 will hold on to first place in city recreation B league basketball will be determined Wednesday when it takes on Team 4.

The league's top team took first-place position last week with a 56-44 victory over Team 1. Maurice Boeckenhauer ripped the nets for 17 points in the team's third win against one defeat. Ron Fink popped in 16 for the losers, whose record dropped to 1-3.

In the first game of the night, Teams 3 and 4 evened their records at 2-2 when Team 4 beat Team 3, 39-33. Don Sherman paced the winners with 13 points while Wayne-Wesset had 10 for Team 3.

Wednesday Teams 1 and 3 will collide in the first match at 7:15 p.m., followed by the battle between Teams 4 and 2 at 8:15.

Team 2 — Boeckenhauer 17, Johnson 11, Doeschler 10, Schroeder 6, Hix 4, Graef 4, Maly 4; Team 1 — Fink 16, Manske 12, Schumacher 6, Casey 4, Green 4, Malsen 2.

Braking Distances

FROM 20 MPH

ON GLARE ICE AT 25°F.

Can you stop in time?
This chart, prepared by the Safe Winter Driving League, summarizes results of stopping distance tests conducted by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards at Stevens Point, Wisconsin. Comparing various types of tires and chains on the rear wheels, these tests have disclosed that conventional snow tires are of no help in stopping on glare ice. Studded tires, on the other hand, reduce braking distance by 19%, and reinforced tire chains by 50%.

Pointing out that with regular tires the stopping distance on glare ice may be nearly nine times the normal, dry pavement distance, the League reminds motorists that far slower than normal speeds are a must when driving on icy pavements.

WINTER TRACTION FACT SHEET
Summary of Test Findings of the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards

BRAKING DISTANCES FROM 20 MPH

Tire Type	Stopping Distance (ft.)
Regular Tires	188 ft.
Snow Tires	188 ft.
Studded Snow Tires	120 ft.
Reinforced Tire Chains	93 ft.

STARTING & PULLING ABILITY ON GLARE ICE

Tire Type	Starting/Pulling Ability (Ranking)
Regular Tires	100
Conventional Snow Tires	125
Studded Snow Tires	283
Reinforced Tire Chains	316

8 When used on the rear wheels only, these traction aids do not materially improve the carrying capacity of a vehicle. With studded tires on all four wheels, however, cornering speed is increased about 25 percent.

9 Regardless of efforts to improve traction on ice through the use of snow tires, studded tires, or reinforced tire chains, in no instance is the resulting traction close to that of conventional highway tires on either a dry or a wet pavement.

The above summary, prepared by the Safe Winter Driving League, is based on test reports of the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards for the years 1967 through 1971, and the Council's 1973 booklet, "The Big Little Book of Safe Winter Driving."

 police department of the city of Wayne.
 City attorney John Addison said he interprets the state civil service law to mean that the three-man commission must act on Hall's discharge by Wednesday. If the commission accepts the reasons for the firing as valid, Addison said, Fairchild would have the right to file a written request for an investigation of the charges. The investigation would be held at a public hearing, according to Addison. If the commission then agreed the firing was justified, Fairchild would have a right to appeal that decision to district court, Addison added.

 Fairchild was fired in April by Hall, but the district judge ruled that the firing was illegal because the city had not instituted civil service for paid members of the police department. The judge ordered Fairchild reinstated as police chief and ordered the city to provide civil service for the police department.

 the designated places off campus, copies of the resolutions were sent to several newspapers. As a result, Dean Brandt called another meeting of the school faculty to express concern over results of giving the resolution to newspapers without providing background information. He noted that Board of Trustees rules require that suggestions or criticism by faculty must be transmitted to the board through the college president.
 The school faculty responded with a motion, passed 24-15, to send the original motion through the president to the designated people.
 It is not known who gave that motion to the newspapers.

SOMEONE AT HOME NEEDS YOU!

Maybe they're your kids, or your wife, or your parents. They'll need you for a long time. But drinking and driving could lead to a big vacancy in their lives and no life-at-all for you. Don't take "one for the road" . . . and maybe even forget the two that proceed it.

OBSERVATIONS

County officials deserve annual pay hikes

We recommend that the Wayne County commissioners consider building into the salaries of county officials an annual increase when they take up the salary subject at their January 8th meeting. Few businessmen in Wayne would be able to hire competent employees if they were unable to offer them salary increases more often than once every four years. Most people would be forced to seek employment elsewhere if that were the case, for the rise in cost of living would mean that they would be earning considerably less by the time they got their next raise than they were when they began the job. In addition, the lack of financial reward more often than once every four years would certainly not induce employees to become "better" at their jobs. Yet, this is exactly what we are asking of our county officials. In the past they have had their salaries set for the following four years by the county board and it was thought the board could not raise salaries of officials during their term of office. An opinion by the state attorney general says that county boards may build annual increases into salaries of county officials if the raises are based on some formula set at the beginning of each term. The formula could, according to the opinion, be a cost of living escalation clause. The county commissioners have an opportunity to take a progressive step at their next meeting when they discuss the salaries of county officials. They can set decent base salaries for the officials, salaries which are fair to both the officials and the taxpayers. And they can build into those salaries annual increases to permit those officials to keep pace with fellow employees in the area. If such an annual increase is not provided for, the county commissioners will be forced to do one of two things. First, they could approve small increases in the salaries of the county officials. That would be popular with the taxpayers, but it would be unfair to the officials. Second, they could approve large increases in the salaries. That would be popular with the officials, but it would be met with considerable criticism from the taxpayers. We think the commissioners should take the middle road, approving small but fair increases in the base salaries while at the same time providing for annual raises to keep the county officials from falling behind other employees in the area.

Inviting trouble

We hope Wayne area motorists aren't resorting to carrying a can of gasoline in their cars to beat the closing of gas stations on Sunday. The practice is a very dangerous one and can easily lead to serious injury if not death. The latest to warn against the practice is the Nebraska Easter Seal Society. We'll pass along some of the Society's comments in hopes they may help avoid a serious accident. Gasoline can never be stored safely in a car because the gas contracts and expands with changing temperatures. Expanded gas can split the seams of unvented gas storage cans or plastic containers, and it can leak from vented safety cans. When that happens, the entire trunk and parts of the passenger area may be filled with gas fumes. Any spark, whether from a backfire, car ignition or even a short in the tail light, can set off a lethal explosion. The gas may also explode during a wreck, turning the automobile into a flaming death car. The explosive power of gasoline shouldn't be underestimated. One gallon of gas has the same destructive power as 14 sticks of dynamite when it explodes. It just doesn't make sense to risk injury or death by carrying along a can of gasoline in case you run out while driving. But it does make sense to keep plenty of gas in your car. That way you won't find your fuel gauge filling with empty when the stations are closed.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

Loris, S.C., Sentinel:
"We think a cautious driver is the finest thing in the world and we certainly don't recommend tearing down the highway in excess of the speed limit. A speeding driver is dangerous. But so is a slow one! When we say slow driver, we aren't referring to someone who observes the speed limit or drives a few miles per hour below it. We mean the driver who insists on chugging down the road at 30 or 35 miles per hour, while the traffic backs up behind him. No doubt these well-intentioned folks believe they are advancing the cause of safety like it has never been advanced before. But we hope, those who think that driving 25 miles per hour below the speed limit is a good safety practice to ask any highway patrolman what he thinks of the idea. We think they might be surprised by his answer."

Florence, Ala., Herald:
"In modern times man has learned how to split the atom, build planes that conquer space and distance and bring people the world over within hours and miles of each other, yet has not been able to find a formula that enables men of different races, culture, personalities, and religions to live together amicably."

Cutting faculty causing concern

Dear Editor:
I wish to call the public's attention to the fact that again Wayne State College has been wounded with the dismissal of eight persons or positions of the faculty. This is causing great concern among the students and faculty about the quality of education offered at our college. I pray the public will seek to express their concern and seek solutions to the continual cutting of faculty which leads to the losing of more students in a downward spiral.

Of greatest concern and shock to me personally was the dismissal of John Bray as a professor of history. If I were doing the cutting, John Bray would be the last professor I would let go from the college staff. In my opinion John Bray adds the most quality to Wayne State in terms of his academic excellence as scholar and teacher. I have known many students who came alive intellectually and were influenced by Dr. Bray in ways that affected their whole lives for the better, due to his teaching, concern and his own example as a scholar and person. Dr. Bray is a better lecturer than any professor I had during five years of college and three years of seminary. I believe we could find no better professor to add excellence to our faculty, for the benefit of the students, if we had to go looking for one, and therefore I hope the college will reconsider and retain Dr. Bray at Wayne State. I can view his dismissal only as a tragic mistake, and as an insult to him personally and to excellence in general. John Bray's dismissal has caused great concern among the students and adds to their troubled spirits about the quality of their future education at Wayne State. They also will not be spreading good publicity about our college to their families and friends in their home towns. PAUL REIMERS, Campus Pastor

Thanks very much

Dear Editor:
Thank you for the money I received. I'm sure that I'll use the money in good use. I hope you have a nice Christmas. Thanks again for the money. Merry Christmas and seasons greetings. PHIL MARTIN
(Editor's Note: Phil, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Kendall Martin, was the first-place winner in The Wayne Herald's Christmas writing contest this year. His story, titled "A Tiger for Christmas," appeared in the newspaper's recent Christmas Bulletin. It won the youngster a $15 cash prize.)

A closer look. . .

JUST FINISHED a scary book which should be required reading for anybody concerned about the lies which have been coming out of our nation's capital in recent months.

Titled "The Politics of Lying - Government Deception, Secrecy, and Power," it's a well researched, well documented book by political writer David Wise. Wise, a journalist since 1951, is co-author of "The Invisible Government," the book about the Central Intelligence Agency which became the nation's number one best seller. "The U-2 Affair" and "The Espionage Establishment."

He argues a good case when he says secrecy, deception and outright lying by our top leaders in government have multiplied so greatly since World War II that they threaten to destroy our form of government. "The consent of the governed is basic to American democracy," Wise writes. "If the governed are misled, if they are not told the truth, or if through official secrecy and deception they lack information on which to base intelligent decisions, the system may go on - but not as a democracy. After nearly two hundred years, this may be the price America pays for the politics of lying." Mountains of information are hid from the public behind a complicated classification system that protects those in power more often than it keeps under wraps information which might be detrimental to the national security. Pressure in a variety of ways is put on television stations, radio stations and newspapers which have embarrassed top government leaders. Stories are "leaked" to the press to influence public opinion, mislead the voters, cover up mistakes by the government and even irritate other news media. Newsmen are required at times to attend news conferences held by governmental officials at which they have to take at face value anything the officials say because that's one of the groundrules. And Wise documents with facts and figures to prove his statements that deception goes on daily in Washington, D. C.

Lying by our government leaders isn't something unique to our generation, Wise says. It's been going on since the time the nation was founded, but it is only in recent years that lying has become so extensive that it is a real threat to our country. And it is only in recent years that the people who are being lied to have come to recognize those lies for exactly what they are.

The voters began becoming aware of governmental deception during the U-2 affair in the Eisenhower administration. They became even more aware of it after the Bay of Pigs fiasco in Kennedy's administration. Johnson's administration was responsible for even greater deception in his handling of the Tonkin Gulf episode and his secret widening of the war in Vietnam. Nixon failed to reverse the trend, conducting a secret war in Laos and now caught in the quagmire commonly called Watergate. "Where does it all end? Wise doesn't come out and say bluntly what's going to happen if official deception continues to grow and spread as it has in recent years. What we must hope for, he says, is that the press continues probing, analyzing and exposing the actions of our governmental leaders. If that ever ceases, democracy as we have known it in this country will cease to exist. "The Politics of Lying" is available at the Wayne public library. I highly recommend it.

HERE'S A humorous little story you might enjoy reading during this holiday season:

Not long ago a young man from Washington, D. C., was in a small Kansas town on government business. While there, he became involved in a conversation with a bright-eyed 70-year-old man. "Where are you from, son?" asked the old man. "Washington, D. C.," was the answer. "Washington, D. C.?" mused the older. "That's right." "You've got some pretty smart fellows back there, ain't ya?" The young man nodded. "You got some that ain't so smart, too, ain't ya?" Again the young man nodded. "Damn hard to tell the difference, ain't it?" the older concluded. "Should give credit where credit is due. Picked up that story from the local Lions Club's monthly newsletter, editor of which is Robert Sutherland.

LOCAL AND AREA residents might want to keep a good watch on the bands marching in the Tournament of Roses Parade on national television New Year's Day. Marching in the parade will be Ann Owens, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Orvid Owens. She'll be in McDonald's All-American High School Band, the same group she marched with during the nationally televised Thanksgiving Day parade in New York City. The 102-member band will be in California as guests of McDonald's restaurant chain, sponsor of the band each year. The parade will be telecast over NBC TV beginning at 11:30 a.m. Jan. 1. The band also will be one of the featured highlights of "Doc Severinsen's Rose Parade Preview" which will be telecast just before the parade.

PARENTS OF YOUNGSTERS who get a kick out of Walt Disney's characters might consider taking them to see "Disney on Parade" at the Omaha Civic Auditorium Jan. 16-20. The audience will get a chance to participate in the two and a half hour live production, including helping Mary Poppins singing "Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious" and other favorites from her production number. Tickets may be ordered from the civic auditorium, 18th and Capitol Ave., for $3, $4 or $5, with $1 off for kids under 12.

He said all towns in a county can contract for protection at a cost of $9 per year per person. If adopted in Antelope County, the plan would call for spending about $131,000 the first year. The federal government would pay about $83,700 while the state and county would pay $4,650 each. The rest would be raised through the $9 charge for each person in the county's communities. Another meeting to discuss the plan will be held Jan. 16 at Neligh.

Thone: There Was Good News and Bad News in Congress in '73

By CONG. CHARLES THONE

Work results of Congress in 1973 were a "mixed bag" filled both with fine accomplishments and serious failures.

Looking forward to 1974, there is a great promise for splendid legislation and also the prospect of passing some bills that would be bad for America, in my opinion.

Concerning 1973, first the good news. House Speaker Carl Albert, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and the majority of both Congressional bodies acted with dispatch and statesmanship in putting the provisions of the 25th amendment to the U.S. Constitution into effect for the first time. Gerald Ford was a good choice for filling the vacancy in the office of the Vice President, and it was a thrill that the first person elevated under the amendment is a native Nebraskan.

Passage of the war powers act was the most significant legislation of 1973. For about 40 years Congress had been losing power to the executive branch. We made the first step to regaining power this year by the new law that will not allow Presidents to continue future wars without the approval of Congress.

Other significant legislation in 1973 included the new farm act in effect for the next five years. I think it will be good both for farmers and for consumers. The new federal highway act, containing safety provisions that I worked on last session when I was a member of the Public Works Committee, will save many people from traffic deaths.

On the bad news side of 1973, the majority leadership in Congress reacted extremely slowly to the energy crisis. Much of the needed legislation recommended by the President in his first energy message in 1971 still has not been acted upon by the Congress. Despite the President's energy messages of April, June, October and November, it wasn't until December that any Congressional action was completed to help with the shortage of petroleum.

Looking ahead to next year, expected passage of the Budget and Impoundment Control Act might rank not only as good news for 1974 but as the most significant legislation of the 20th Century governing control of Congress. The House passed one version and the Senate is working on another. I expect the differences will be resolved, and Congress will have a budget-making process for the first time ever. Back door spending will be ended, national priorities will be established and a citizen will be able to let just by examining several key votes in a year whether a member of Congress favors fiscal responsibility.

The House of Representatives in 1974 hopefully will make a good move to reorganize its committee system. The House should get to work early in the session on the pension bill, minimum wage legislation, meaningful tax reform and other pending bills that space prohibited me from listing.

Prospects are fairly good for the coming year for legislation to provide a minimum standard of health care for every American. My choice is for a system of insurance to protect everyone from the financial effects of medical catastrophes. Beyond this, a standard would be set for a minimum type of health insurance. Employees and employers would pay for this insurance. The government would pay the post of such insurance for the unemployed and disabled; probably at a much lower cost than the present health programs administered through a sea of red tape.

A new law to govern the trading of commodity futures most likely will be enacted in 1974, marking the first major overhaul of this legislation in 32 years. Since annual commodity trading is 40 per cent larger than the exchange of all U.S. Corporation stocks, this is important legislation. I have a personal interest in it, since I was one of the five person subcommittee who wrote it.

It will be bad news in 1974 if the majority party does what is predicted and drags out impeachment hearings in the House Judiciary Committee. We should have open and thorough but prompt hearings and resolve this critical issue.

We need to pass some tough legislation in 1974 to control campaign spending. One bill offered in the name of voter reform, however, is an invitation to wholesale fraud. The Senate has passed a bill that would have the federal government send a postcard to every address in America. All those who want to be registered to vote would just return a postcard. I hope the House does not pass this bill, which would lead to more voting by tombstones than ever has occurred before.

The year 1974 will have both legislative triumphs and failures. As for my individual vote on the issues, I will be aided greatly if you will give me your votes on pending legislation.

Charles Thone, representative in Washington, D. C., for Nebraska's first congressional district, takes a look at what happened in Congress in 1973, citing passage of the war powers act as the most significant legislation during the past year. He also looks ahead to 1974, calling the anticipated passage of the Budget and Impoundment Control Act as possibly the most important piece of legislation the Congress will tackle during all of next year.

Even before TV, basketball was a popular spectator sport. Every school has a team and the season for basketball falls conveniently between football and baseball when sports fans need something to watch. TV has exposed millions of viewers to basketball and countless fans enjoy the games on their sets.

Probably the best way to learn the intricacies of the sport is simply to watch it played. There are slightly different sets of rules for colleges and the pros, so unless you're a real fanatic, just relax and let the announcer explain what is happening and why.

In TV, what is happening is that people are learning that we have the finest sets, the most complete selection, the best prices and our own service department to back-up our sales. Don't miss out... stop in today!

CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

December 11, 1973

Wayne, Nebraska
The Mayor and City Council met in regular session in Council Chambers in the Wayne City Auditorium on December 11, 1973 at 7:30 P.M. The Mayor called the meeting to order with the following present: Mayor Kent Hall, Councilmen Keith Mosley, Frank P.
